(Associated Press)

ENFORCE STATE'S LAWS OR RESIGN, RANGERS TOLD

AUSTIN, Feb. 15.—Governor Pat M. Neff today told Adjutant General Barton, Prohibition Enforcement Officer Beckman, Captains of the Rangers and all new rangers that the laws of Texas must be enforced. This message was presented by Governor Neff at a special conference. He told the Rangers that any new Ranger using intoxicating liquor would be asked to resign. Texas Rangers, said the Governor, are supposed to be "gentlemen as well as officers of the law."

HYLTON FARMERS CLUB STOCK FOR MARKET SHIPMENT

That the farmers joining the Farm Bureau are in earnest in the matter was manifested at a meeting of the Hylton Farm Bureau Monday night. Since the organization of the Bureau in that community a car of hogs, a car of sheep and a car of cattle have been arranged for shipment to the market about the first of April.

The stock supplied for these shipments will be furnished by a number of farmers. Under the plan, which was in use here before the drought, if a farmer has only one hog he gets a car rate on it to the market. The plan is a very simple, comprehensive one, and means some ready money for the farmers participating in the shipment, car rates and expenses prorated among the shippers.

This announcement was made by the local secretary at this meeting. It is expected to make these shipments from time to time as the stock can be furnished for the market. For earnestness, zeal, to use a street phrase, "delivering the goods," the Hylton Farm Bureau takes the plume.

GARAGE ROBBER GETS FIFTY YEARS; STATE ASKED FOR DEATH

HARMONY FEATURES BOARD MEETING OF CITY DEVELOPMENT

A spirit of optimism was shown at the board meeting, the atmospheric pressure being favorable in every respect.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Revolution has broken out in India in the state of Tonk, says a Reuter dispatch.

The new Mohammedan ruler of the district, after agreeing to the people's demands, arrested the leaders of the movement, whereupon rioting ensued.

State troops are actively engaged and people are fleeing toward the British territory.

TOMBSTONE FROM GRAVE OF THOMAS TRAMMEL FOUND IN CITY LAKE

Residents around Lake Trammel and Sweetwater nimrods who hied to the placid waters in search of the elusive bass, lost their nerve early Sunday morning upon discovering a large tombstone lying half submerged off the sloping spillway of the lake.

Investigation developed the fact that the monument had been taken from the grave of the late Thomas Trammel in Sweetwater cemetery, hauled to the lake in a heavy truck and dumped overboard. That the vandals who removed the stone took advantage of darkness to do their work is pointed out by the fact that they left the lake in the belief that the monument had gone to the bottom. Instead, its weight, some 2,900 pounds, prevented it sliding down the inclined dam. It was barely covered by water.

Upon being notified by J. F. Roland, keeper at the lake, Mrs. Thomas Trammel went to Lake Trammel and had the monument returned to the cemetery and replaced at the grave of one of Sweetwater's leading business men and townbuilder.

DECKER FARM BUREAU MEMBERS URGE RURAL ROUTE FOR COMMUNITY

Another evidence that the Farm Bureau will function was evidenced by the Decker Farm Bureau at its last meeting. In discussing things that could be done to improve local conditions, it was suggested that a rural route would be helpful, was badly needed and should receive the attention of that body.

A petition outlining a route was prepared and signed by all the citizens of that territory and is now in the hands of the authorities for a rural route.

The postoffice at Decker was discontinued quite awhile ago and the mail was delivered by a star route from Maryneal. The Department discontinued this route and left the Decker community without mail facilities of any kind. Some went to Maryneal and some to Blackwell for their mail. Often they would get no mail for a week or ten days.

A rural route as planned will be of great convenience to that community. The local Farm Bureau can do many things to improve rural conditions. Some thought and labor expended will bring great returns. Who'll be next?

STATE HAS NO CLAIM ON LITTLE MOTOR KAR OFFICIALS, DISMISSED

DALLAS, Feb. 15.—Twenty-one indictments charging embezzlement of funds of the Little Motor Kar Co. and a blanket indictment charging conspiracy to embezzle against William Livezey, R. L. McCoy and Geo. Stricker have been dismissed by the state courts, it was learned here today.

These three men are now on trial in federal court on charges of using the mail to defraud. The state indictments, according to records of the courts cases filed, were dismissed by motion of the then district attorney Pierson December 8, 1920, "because the evidence in all" is considered "insufficient to obtain a conviction."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Secretary of the Navy, Daniels, today in a letter to Chairman Page of the senate naval committee, declared "if there is one thing in which there should be a monopoly it is a monopoly of the air, and this monopoly should not be given over to private interests."

Secretary Daniels made this plea for federal ownership of all high power radio stations. His letter was in answer to Chairman Page's request for an opinion on the Poindexter resolution before the senate providing for the regulation of operation of radio communications.

WINTER SNOW STORMS PLAY STRANGE FREAKS IN EMPIRE STATE

AVON, N. Y., Feb. 15.—When Peter Flinigin went out to do the chores one morning recently he was mystified by the sight of a large number of huge snowballs scattered over his farm. On a twenty acre field there were hundreds of them ranging from six to ten inches in diameter. Leading up to each snowball was a streak of bare ground showing the distance it had traveled in forming.

Mr. Flinigin and the neighbors who gathered to study the odd spectacle decided that the wind which had blown a gale during the night had blown and whipped up small particles of "good packing snow" and started them down the field, some of the particles gathering up additional snow balls were in the general direction of the wind to move further. All the paths of the snow balls were in the general direction in which the wind had been blowing.

To record this unusual freak of nature cause, the farmers to notify the correspondent of a Buffalo news paper who counted more than 1,000 snowballs of more than ten inches in diameter.

AUTHORITY GIVEN INSTITUTION TO BEGIN OPERATIONS--HAS LOANING POWER OF $17,500,000.00

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.—The Federal International Banking Company today is a going concern with a loaning power of $17,500,000, to aid the financing and movement of Southern crops to foreign markets.

Archibald Kains, of New York, was elected president at the meeting of directors and promoters here last night. T. J. Caldwell, of Fort Worth, was elected vice-president.

It was announced that the Federal Reserve Board has authorized the company to start active business.

ELECTRIC PLANT IS ADDED BY REFINERY; EXPENSES REDUCED

Recent organization of the local management at the Rex Oil & Refining Co. has resulted in the elimination of more than $3,000 monthly expense according to M. H. Roberts, manager. This has been accomplished, he said, by the adoption of a system of operations which was outlined by him at a conference of officials of the company at Fort Worth a few weeks ago.

The output of the refinery has been increased to some extent, declared Mr. Roberts, while the working force is less by several men.

One of the recent improvements at the refinery is the installation of an electric lighting system, providing lights for the entire plant and grounds at much less expense than was possible in using bought current.

The reduction in expense, asserts Mr. Roberts, amounted to $750 per month on the payroll and some $1,500 on tank car rentals. Mr. Roberts expects to spend the most of his time here managing the refinery, of which he is vice-president.

FORT WORTH PEOPLE WOULD BUILD BRICK FACTORY NEAR CITY

A Fort Worth firm has written the Board of City Development of its intentions to establish a brick factory at Sweetwater. This matter also has been taken up through M. H. Roberts, manager and vice-president of the Rex Oil & Refining Co., with a view of ascertaining what can be had here in the way of fuel oil.

While it is known that clay deposits exist in the vicinity of Sweetwater, Mayor George H. Sheppard is desirous of learning the location of banks containing sufficient clay to justify the establishment of a brick factory. The company wants a deposit near one of the three railroads coming into Sweetwater and would prefer being near enough to the refinery to pipe fuel oil to the plant.

"At one time there was a brick factory in Sweetwater. The Douthitt building is constructed of brick made here, but for some reason the plant went out of business.

DALLAS, Feb. 15.—Captain R. M. Warden, former well known Texas peace officer, is dead in Los Angeles according to private telegrams received here.

HOWARD SLATED FOR POSTOFFICE BIRTH HERE; PETITION IS BEING CIRCULATED

A petition to President Elect Harding, requesting the appointment of M. B. Howard, Sweetwater, as postmaster of this city, is being circulated in the business district this week by Mr. Howard.

As Postmaster Crane's term will expire for almost a year, Mr. Howard asks that his appointment start with the expiration of Mr. Crane's term.

Howard was postmaster of Sweetwater for several terms under former Republican administrations.

A convention of Republican leaders of the state was held at Dallas last week, culminating in a grand banquet Friday evening at the Adolphus hotel. Mr. Howard attended the convention, which body discussed coming appointments in Texas and outlined plans for campaign publicity during the present administration.

Mr. Howard stated to the Reporter that a large number of signatures had been affixed to the petition already and he was just started.

MODERN APARTMENT HOUSE IS PLANNED BY BUSINESS MAN

Sweetwater is to have another modern apartment house soon, if plan now under consideration by a local man materialize. Specifications call for eight apartments.

The building will be two stories, stucco, designed along very attractive lines, and is to be located on Pecan street, between West North Second and third.

An apartment house designed on similar lines has been erected at Abilene and is proving both a money-maker as well as an asset to the town.

Work on the new structure will be commenced at an early date, according to the man who is planning it. Owing to the demand for residences, no difficulty will be experienced in renting the eight apartments, said the man this morning, although he is not ready to make public his name.

HOUSE BILL WOULD ABOLISH HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT STATE

AUSTIN, Feb. 15.—Representative Binkler, of Young county, today introduced a bill in the house proposing the abolishment of the State Highway Department and placing the functions of that body under the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission.

THE MEETING.

When the pigs had nothing to do in the shed and when there was nothing around to eat and they had slept enough they grunted and squealed at each other.

"It was different when it was summer and we were out-of-doors for we could always look about in the mud in the hope that there would be something else," said Grandfather Porky.

"But here it is different."

"Ah yes, here it is different," said Miss Ham.

So they had decided that the best thing they could talk about was the food they had had and the food they were going to have.

"We'll call our talks meetings," said Grandfather Porky, "which is a superior and fine way of speaking. And we will have meetings when we don't have food."

"That will be the way we will do." And all the pigs agreed that that was the best way to do.

So they were holding a meeting in the shed on a cold winter day.

Porky Pig was the president, who called the meeting to order, and Brother Bacon was the chairman and Sammy Sausage the secretary and the other pigs were the members of the committee who always attended the meeting.

They didn't always know what each one was supposed to do, but when they didn't know they went ahead as though they did and none of them knew if they made mistakes or not, so it was quite all right.

"I call the meeting to order," said Grandfather Porky Pig, on this cold winter's day.

He pounded on a wooden bucket in his winter home, using his little twisted tail to pound with.

"And," he turned to Sammy Sausage, "the secretary will now read the minutes of the last meeting."

"What are minutes?" interrupted a member of the committee.

"Mr. Secretary," said Porky Pig, "there is a question which one of our members wishes to ask and will you propose the motion that it should be answered?"

"All those in favor of having the question answered," said Sammy Sausage, "will say 'Aye.'"

All the pigs squealed "Aye."

"Those who oppose say 'Nay.'"

There was not a sound. So Sammy said in a shrill, squeaking voice: "The Ayes have it."

"Then," said Grandfather Porky, "in reading over the minutes of the last meeting you will find that we explained what was meant by the word minutes."

"Just read the minutes over and we will all understand."

So Sammy Sausage, making a bow to Grandfather Porky Pig and another to Brother Bacon, said: "Ladies and gentlemen are not present, therefore allow me to address this meeting of squealing, grunting, greedy pigs, of which I myself have the honor to be a part."

"I will read the minutes of the last meeting and at the first part of the last meeting some one asked what minutes are."

"But I will go back and read all of my minutes. The meeting was called to order a week ago Thursday when there was no food and when the pigs had all slept enough and when there was nothing else to do."

"Grandfather Porky Pig called the meeting to order and Brother Bacon acted as the chairman and I, Sammy Sausage, as the secretary."

"After the meeting was called to order the minutes of the last meeting were read, which together with an explanation of what minutes were, took up all the time of the meeting and it was voted as a successful meeting and the motion was seconded."

"Minutes, as we said in the last meeting, were reports of what happened always at the meeting before. And at the time they were duly understood."

So Sammy Sausage went on reading the minutes of the last meeting, how they had spent practically all their time reading the minutes of the meeting before so that any members not present at the meeting before would know what had happened.

And when the meeting was over on this day they had simply read the minutes of the meeting before and that was all, but Porky Pig said it was quite right, for a real meeting wasn't a real meeting unless they used up all their time in reading what had happened at the meeting before!

MR. HARDING AND NEWSPAPER MEN

THOUGH HE BANISHED THEM ALL FROM FLORIDA HOUSE-BOAT NONE BLAMED HIM.

GLAD TO ESCAPE PUBLICITY

Washington Correspondents Hope and Believe Their Old-Time Relations With White House Will Be Re-established After March 4.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington.—When President-elect Harding crossed the gangplank of the good houseboat Victoria, owned and presumably navigated by the honorable senator from New Jersey, Joseph Sherman Frelinghuysen, he requested that the newspaper men stay at the nether end of the plank and let him sail the placid Florida waters without their companionship.

Men of the newspaper world probably will appreciate Senator Harding's feelings in this matter and probably will understand his desire to cut loose from publicity for a few days. It is also entirely probable that the newspaper men who had been the president-elect's constant companions were perfectly willing to "cut it out" for a short time and to give their fingers and the keys of their typewriters a rest.

The correspondents in Washington today are wondering whether the old-time relations with the executive mansion will be re-established after Mr. Harding moves into the white building. President Wilson for a long time has been unable to see the correspondents. For some time after he became president Mr. Wilson talked to the newspaper men en bloc, and occasionally he gave them the basis of a good news story, particularly so in one instance when he literally flashed out one morning the statement to them that "a pernicious lobby is at work in the city of Washington." Instantly the newspaper men asked if he could be quoted. He said he would make a statement. He did, and the result was the investigation into the activities of a lobby which afterward became known as the Mulhall case.

President Wilson, however, rarely has seen the newspaper men alone. He has been averse to granting interviews and he reversed the procedure of Theodore Roosevelt and to some extent that of President Taft.

How Roosevelt Used the Press.
When President Roosevelt wanted to find out whether the country would respond to some legislation that he had in mind he would send for the newspaper men and would talk about the subject in detail without committing himself to it one way or the other. The result was that everybody in the United States soon was informed what the president was thinking about. The returns from the country, sympathetic or antagonistic, were instant, and if the sympathetic ones were in the majority congress soon would hear something on the subject from the White House.

President Roosevelt soon found out what men there were in the body of Washington correspondents who were sympathetic with his progressive policies. These men he would call into conference frequently, one at a time, and actually would pour out his heart to them. He had a stanch following of the faithful.

When President Taft came into office he was not particularly communicative. He held little intercourse with the members of the press, although before long he let down the bars and meetings with the correspondents were frequent. A little later when one element in the Republican party began its criticism of the Taft administration intercourse with the representatives of the press was not by any means continuous, but once in a while the president would "open up" and come to his own defence, and also frequently would spring to the attack.

Harding Genial to the Boys.
Washington correspondents have come to realize that their chances of frequent interviews with presidents of the United States depend largely upon their temperaments. This intercourse with the press can be overdone, and it has been overdone in some cases, but it also can be underdone, and this has happened in times present and past.

Ever since the day that Warren G. Harding was nominated for the presidency at Chicago he has had with him eight or ten newspaper men, representatives of the press associations and of some of the larger dailies. He also has had with him a man who might be called the press representative of the president, a trained newspaper man who has endeavored to direct the news currents in a proper way and who generally is credited with having made a success of his job.

What is to happen when the president moves into the White House is not yet known, but the majority of correspondents in Washington believe that the American public is not going to look in vain to the White House for news. The next president of the United States is a genial man, and one who can stand a lot of what some people would call hectoring, but newspaper men do not hector presidents.

Everything Glitters

THE goddess of Fashion must have had a twinkle in her eye this year when she turned her thoughts toward spring millinery, and almost everything in hats reflects that twinkle. Colors are reserved and rich—they can afford to border on the sedate, for the most comprehensive description of the new modes is found in the phrase "Everything Glitters." It fell from the lips of an expert millinery authority, after a study of a great collection of new models, but is not meant to convey that everything has a hard brilliance. Hats are radiant with a play of light over surfaces that catch and reflect it.

The outstanding feature in spring hats is cellophane materials, sometimes alone, but oftener in conjunction with other fabrics. Fashion has led up to this brilliant stuff by the vogue for beads and embroideries and, after several seasons of experimenting, manufacturers have advanced cellophane to the place of first importance. The new hats—of whatever material—are soft and light, their veils beautiful and becoming and their colors rich. Laces, flowers, bows, veils and handsome ornamental pins are the trimmings featured.

includes four hats that are representative of the season. At the top a cloche street hat has a crown of cellophane and a draped brim of corded moire, all in gray, with two coral pins by way of finish. It is a simple but immensely clever bit of artistry. At the right another gray hat of cellophane, with a gray rose of folded ribbon at the front, divides honors with a very handsome navy veil. A lovely dress hat at the left has a body of black hair-braid with rows of narrow cellophane applied and a flange of malines about the graceful brim. A wreath of fine flowers and a generous sash of French blue ribbon completes a hat that every woman loves. A similar style below, of navy hair-braid and cellophane with a wreath of old blue poppies, fulfills the mission of a less picturesque but equally pleasing demidress hat which is equal to many occasions. Black and brown are great favorites and the refinement of lace and malines in both colors is an allure-ment that designers make the most of.

In Summer's Calendar

IT IS a foregone conclusion that taffeta frocks for formal and informal dress will add to the charms of women during the spring and summer to come. Taffetas we have always with us in fascinating developments, but the changeable weaves have been revived and the field of their usefulness widened in consequence. Besides, for dressy afternoon wear, taffetas are beautifully combined with nets, laces and georgette, while less formal models employ braid, trimmings made of the silk, embroidery and other decorations.

The pretty new model shown in the picture stands between a suit and a dress, and commends itself to those who are looking for an all-day frock. Among the spring frocks, as in winter ones, there are those that must be cross-examined before they can be placed in the right class, the one-piece dresses often bearing a close resemblance to suits, as in the case of the model pictured here. It is a charming style and a safe investment, for it is made of black taffeta trimmed with white soutache braid—a perennial favorite in materials and color combination. The sash of taffeta is lined with white satin, and there is a vest to it. In this particular dress the tunic is short—one of those exceptions that proves the rule.

Black taffeta is used as a foundation for charming dresses in which white lace makes the overdress. Colored nets—with green a favorite—are featured on the dressier afternoon frocks and changeable taffetas figure in the displays for both day and evening wear.
