EXHIBITS URGED

Boys' And Girl's Clubs Asked To Prepare Exhibits For Special Days At Fair.

The Boys' and Girl's Clubs are urged to prepare for the agricultural and Home Demonstration departments at the 36th annual fair and exposition at Dallas, according to a letter received by the fair officials by Miss Mabel Spann, county home demonstration agent.

October 6 will be Children's Day at the Fair and the school children of the state will be the guests of the city of Dallas. The letter received by Miss Spann is as follows:

"On October 6th, the gates of the 36th Annual Fair and Exposition will be thrown open and we want to earnestly assure you, and through you the members of your club, that every detail preparation is being made to make the Educational Encampment this year its most instructive and entertaining in its history.

"We want to ask that you impress this upon your boys and girls and urge that they prepare their exhibits for the Agricultural and Home Demonstration departments in the most careful and artistic manner, so that the great work being done by the Boys' and Girl's Clubs of Texas may be visualized by every patron of the Fair.

"We not only want them to receive every educational advantage that the Exposition offers, but also want them to be royally entertained as a reward for their efforts during the year.

"If there are any details whatever regarding the Encampment with which you are not familiar, please write at once to Mr. R. W. Persons, assistant state agent in charge of Boys' Club work or to Miss M. Helen Higgins, state agent in charge of Girl's Club work, College Station, Texas, who will be in direct charge of the encampments.

PROPOSE A FILTER FOR CITY WATER

Engineer From State Board Of Health Tells Luncheon Club About Plant And Its Cost.

ASK CO-OPERATION FOR FARMER

Calvert Says Farmers Are Trying To Improve Conditions—Business Prospers As They Do.

Explanation of the work of the County Farm Agent and the need for co-operation between the farmer and the business man, explanation of the proposed filtration plant at Lake Trammell by E. G. Eggert, sanitary engineer with the State Board of Health from Austin were the principal items on the program at the Luncheon Club which met Thursday noon at the Hotel Wright. The program was enlivened by two cornet solos by H. P. Leavell, former director of the Sweetwater Band, who was accompanied by Miss Trotman. The solos were enjoyed very much.

The first man introduced was Dr. J. M. Kerens who is engaged in moving an oil rig from its former location north of Roscoe to Camp Springs, in Fisher County. He explained the well would be spudded in in a few days and that from a geological standpoint the structure was the most promising in the West.

Mr. Eggert explained his presence by saying that he was looking over the city's water supply with a view to the proper location for a filtration plant, to give an estimate on the cost of the plant.

Briefly, Mr. Eggert's remarks were to the effect that the proposed filtration plant would cost from $30,000 to $50,000, but that figure was only a rough estimate and that it might cost less. The plant could be located at Lake Trammell, without in any way sacrificing the gravity flow to the city. In the operation of the filtration plant, some four units would be required. These would consist of a settling tank, where chemicals would be used to clear the water. Filtration tanks, where sand and gravel would remove impurities, and a clear water tank, from which water to the city mains would flow. This could all be arranged on the gravity system. In addition to that, there would have to be an arrangement whereby some of the filtered water could be used to wash the sand and gravel used in the filtration beds. This part of the plant would probably require some sort of a pump.

Mr. Eggert said that some time the state would require the erection of such a filtration plant and in the meantime, he understood that a number of people wished to use the lake for recreational purposes, hunting, fishing, etc. He said the State Board of Health had numerous requests of that nature from over the state and that the Board denied them unless a filtration plant such as he described was installed. He also said that the large drainage area from which the lake drew was subject to contamination at times as tests showed, and that while the tests showed Lake Trammell water to be of good quality, that in view of the danger from pollution from various sources, such a filtration plant should be installed in the near future.

In connection with the filtration plant project, Mayor Sheppard reported that the Water Works could finance the filtration plant itself and that the City Commission was only waiting for an expression of opinion from the people as to the advisability of proceeding with the work before starting on it.

W. C. Calvert said that the first instance of County Farm Agent work was when the Pilsner Fathers were advised how to raise corn, and Mr. Calvert was of the opinion that corn raising was a very prosperous industry at the present time. He spoke in part as follows:

"The first instance of Farm demonstration work in Texas was begun in 1904 and was undertaken to combat the boll weevil. The idea gradually spread to include other crops and progressed until it included not only economical methods of production but economical methods of marketing."

Mr. Calvert spoke of discoveries concerning phosphorus in the soil and the need of it, along with other soil ingredients, spoke of seed selection and its importance, diversification meaning raising a more varied crop instead of just one, touched upon cooperative marketing and how seven or eight basic commodities were being handled in that manner, and concluded with a plea for recognition of the farmer's aims and co-operation there in by business men. He said:

"The co-operative marketing plan of the Farm Bureau has no relation to the Non-Partisan League. Farmers are only seeking to have better schools and churches for themselves, and not to deprive city folks of theirs; are only striving to get better roads, and not to reduce city streets to lanes; they would build up and not tear down. As the farmer prospers, so does the business man prosper. There should be hearty co-operation between

RECOGNITION NECESSARY.

HOUSTON, Sept. 14.—Mexico is experiencing a business revival that bids fair to end in recognition of the Southern Republic by the United States, according to Mayor Oscar Holcombe of Houston who has just returned from a trip far into the interior of Mexico. Conditions in Mexico are described as quite peaceful, according to Mayor Holcombe. "I neither heard nor saw any bandits during my stay," he said. The steel mills of Monterrey have reopened and other signs of commercial revival are prevalent. It is apparent, the mayor stated, that phenomenal business expansion in Mexico awaits only recognition by this country. "The question uppermost in the minds of most Mexicans as well as the Mexican press eagerly questioned us as to the prospects of early action by the American government," Mayor Holcombe said.

SHOWS BIG GAIN

Hupmobile Automobile Sales Increased 2,000.—Credit to Advertising.

What would you say if your business showed a gain over last year of two thousand per cent? Not two hundred—two thousand!

Well, that's just the good news that J. R. Overstreet's August report brought to him a gain of two thousand per cent in Hupmobile sales in West Texas over August of last year.

"I realized that conditions are on the improve all over the state, but I can not attribute the remarkable gain in Hupmobile sales to this condition alone, otherwise all other lines of business and all other motor car distributors would be feeling the same reaction."

HOME CANNING IS COOKS SALVATION

Improved Methods Of Preserving Edibles Relieves Task Of Housewives.

PRODUCTS FRESH ALL SEASONS

Careful Perusal Of Farm Papers And University Bulletins Are Profitable.

Mrs. Stewart is a farmer's wife, and a progressive one, who receives the state and government bulletins, reads farm papers and home magazines, and keeps in touch with the Home Demonstration Agent.

Several years ago she did her first one-period cold pack canning to save the fruits and vegetables going to waste. She found it easy and somewhat exciting to put beans, corns and other products, which no one she knew had ever before attempted to can, into jars, and carry over that bit of summer into the long vegetable-lacking diet of winter. As she became familiar with the method and tried in gauging her practices, she tried new products.

She had canned meats for several years before she had the courage to undertake liver. But she reasoned that there was nothing about liver which would not keep as well as any other meat. She boils it a few minutes just as she does for frying, packs it into the jars and processes one and a half hours in the pressure cooker at ten pounds. Her husband thinks it just as fine as the fresh liver. Last fall she canned egg plant, of which they had more than could be used fresh.

Just now she is canning vegetables for creaming next winter. She also cans cauliflower, kohlrabi and chicken a la King.

Does she become "flustered" when unexpected company arrives? She does not. Recently an automobile load from a neighboring community called. It was a pleasant afternoon, the laws were shady and comfortable, they talked as ladies will, and never noticed that it grew late, nor that their hostess had slipped a can of cauliflower salad, rolls and jam, with loaf fruit punch brought an enthusiastic chorus of "Oh! and Ah!" from her callers and a promise from her to teach them how it was done in an short a time.

A social club which has hitherto used its funds to take a trip or attend a matinee, decided to invest some of the money in the treasury in a pressure cooker to be used jointly by the Club. When Mrs. A. has corn ready to can, she will have the use of the canner and the help of some of her fellow members. Then when Mrs. B's corn is ready, her turn will come; sometimes two or three families can combine and care for the crop from several gardens at the same time. Mrs. Stewart kindly agreed to help them by showing them how to use the new convenience, and it is fair to suppose that the husbands of that section will no longer fear to ask a man with whom they are concluding an important deal to "Come in and have dinner with us." The wives will be proud to show that strange man that he cannot catch them unprepared. The shelves of the canning closet will always be adequate to care for any emergency in the eating line. Vacations at which Mother spreads all her time cooking for the rest of the family are not popular nowadays. They never were popular with Mother.

Threshing rings and silo-filling days and wood-sawing bees must be supplemented by canning sessions. Time, labor and nerves will be saved and the food supply for the year made safe, assured and convenient.

PIANO TEACHERS

THE RUSSIAN JOKER.

The pending alignment of Russia with the Turks in their effort towards the re-assumption of Constantinople as the political center of the Moslem world contains a hidden "joker." If history is a fair recorder of national aspirations...

Russia's action has not resulted on account of their love for the Turk, but due to their commercial fear of Great Britain in Asia Minor and points eastward.

The Turks owe their pseudo-mastership of Constantinople today to Great Britain, who could not for politic reasons allow the expulsion of the head of the Mohammedan religious world from that place on account of the effect upon England's Near Eastern and Asiatic colonial subjects. The Turks are regarded by the balance of the Mohammedan world as their leaders in the struggle against Christianity and for this reason any outstanding overt action toward Turkey in particular half-way benevolent attitude toward the Turk by Great Britain has already had a great effect upon the serenity of the British far-eastern Mohammedans, which has been a secret annoyance to Russia.

With the British ousted from Constantinople and Russia and Turkey victors, Russia will dictate the division of the Spoils, which will undoubtedly be the mastery of Constantinople, thus putting Russia upon the greatest trade route of the world. The Turks deserve no pity and they will get none from Russia.

SECTIONAL STUFF.

Abilene Reporter: The president of the Association of Former Students of Texas A. & M. College, in a formal statement, says he is willing for West Texas to have a branch of the A. & M. to teach agriculture only. He is not in favor of permitting the proposed institution to teach mechanical, civil or electrical engineering, or to be separate from the institution at Bryan. So nice of him, we feel sure. He says it would be too great a burden on the tax payers. Yes, it might deprive the main college of a little money, to support which the property owners of West Texas have been taxed without return. West Texas doesn't need a dinky little offshot of the main A. & M., but one designed to serve West Texas as the Bryan college serves East Texas. And West Texas means to have it. Where do the former students get on?

State Press in Dallas News: Knowing that the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas is now short of money and always has been, would you needlessly create another mechanical engineering plant in West Texas, although you say, yourself, that "it might deprive the main college of a little money"—would you really do that? It is a fair argument to say that the crops and climate of West Texas are sufficiently different to make it worth while to have a separate agricultural college out there. But if there is anything in the climate of West Texas which makes the principles of mechanics or engineering different from elsewhere, S. P. hadn't heard about it. Texas now has two schools of engineering, besides the School of Mines, which is in about the westest West Texas there is. Anybody who knows anything about engineering schools will tell you that it would be better to have all the engineering faculty together and all the engineering equipment together so that the best results would be obtained. But that isn't going to be done soon. But it would be wise for West Texas to help their engineering freshmen away from home, rather than put up a cheap John engineering school nearer home and turn out second-rate graduates. It's going to be hard enough to find the tax money to finance a first-rate agricultural school in addition to the one at Bryan.

State Press, how do you get that way? It must be that the world begins and ends with you as far as you can see, with Oak Cliff the farthest point West that is at all habitable, with a grudging admission that Fort Worth may in a hundred years or so, be developed into something worth while. And with the idea firmly entrenched in your mind that the cactus and the chaparral are the only living things that inhabit West Texas, West Texas doesn't want a "cheap John" Engineering college and doesn't intend to have one. Neither does West Texas concede the wisdom of shipping its tax money east to keep up a college and then shipping its young folks east to attend said college. The best folks from West Texas have settled in West Texas and its about time West Texas quit enriching East Texas with its tax money. Speaking about the difficulty of finding the tax money, West Texas tax money will support a first-class institution. It has been supporting East Texas right along.

Here is a big, sturdy, long-wearing new tire built to satisfy the buyer on every point of mileage, quality and price.

It is designed especially for the man who wants the essential advantages of cord tire performance at the lowest possible price.

It is designed to offer the buyer a quality product at a price even lower than he has formerly paid for a "long discount" tire. It has a different tread from the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread Cord—a new tread with a deep, clean-cut, cog-like pattern—and its selling price is substantially less.

This new tire is the Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord.

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord it is liberally oversize in all straight-side sizes, the 4 1/2-inch tire, for example, actually measuring nearly 5 inches.

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord, its foundation is genuine high-grade long-staple cotton.

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord, it embodies the efficient group-ply construction, a Goodyear patent.

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord, it is the product of an experienced company which has a world-wide reputation to safeguard.

Look at the prices of the new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord, listed below.

Compare these prices with net prices you are asked to pay for "long discount" tires of unknown reputation and value.

AT A GLANCE.

The crops are splendid. This is the third successive year of bumper crops, which is unusual—as the California man says about the frost.

The transportation and fuel trouble are beginning to hurt the farmer. Perishable products in the West and South have suffered for lack of transportation. Advices last week from the West reported grain elevators closed in Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma, for lack of cars. The anthracite shortage worries the farmer least of anybody; but lack of bituminous coal hits directly at the industries which handle his products and furnish his supplies, and indirectly at the whole machinery of distribution. The general tendency of all this is to raise retail food and clothing prices and curtail urban consumption in a year when prices at the farm tend to be kept low by the heavy production.

It may be added here that the general trend of wholesale prices now seems to be upward. There are several factors in sight which may lead to some reinflation. The rise in fuel prices was outstanding during the month.

There has been a general slowing-up in movement of farm products. This usually happens at the end of the crop year, but has seemingly been emphasized by railroad troubles the past month. Heavy stocks of butter and eggs have gone into cold storage; but the country must now move a considerable beef and mutton supply from the farm each month.

Conditions in different agricultural sections are changing from last year, along with shifts in production and relative prices. Milk producers in the East are now taking a sharp depression, and wheat prices are hurting the grain belt. The South, on the other hand, is optimistic; the stock men of the far West are "coming back;" and the corn belt sees some hope in the price of hogs.

The loading platform near the railroad crossing on the Santa Fe in the north part of the city has been torn away and a new and longer one is being constructed.

The Ladies of the Church of Christ were in session this afternoon for Bible study.

The Ladies of the Royal Neighbors held a business meeting in the L. O. O. F. hall last evening.

JOSIAH WILBARGER
 Josiah Wilbarger with his brother, Mathias, came to Texas from Missouri in 1829 and settled with Austin's "Little Colony" on the upper Colorado, built log houses and opened up farms. The location was in Bastrop county at the junction of what is known as Wilbarger creek and the Colorado river. Until Reuben Hornsby located on a league of land eight miles from the city of Austin, in July 1832, the Wilbargers were the only outside settlers.

In August, 1833, Josiah Wilbarger in company with Christian Strother, Haynie and Standifer made a prospecting trip to look over the country. About six miles from Hornsby's they saw an Indian who fled to the mountains. While eating their dinner at a spring now on the Manor highway about three miles from Austin, they were fired upon by Indians. Strother was killed and Christian mortally wounded at the first volley. As Wilbarger sprang behind a tree his powder horn was shattered by a bullet. Both legs were pierced with arrows and a bullet passed through his neck, coming out on the left side of his chin. He fell apparently dead and the Indians stripped him of all clothing save one sock and scalped him while he was still conscious. Haynie and Standifer reached their horses and escaped. Thinking Wilbarger dead the Indians left him, but cut the throat of Strother and Christian. When Wilbarger regained consciousness it was late afternoon. He had lost quantities of blood and his wounds were still bleeding. He dragged himself to the spring and quenched his thirst and lay down in the water for an hour or two. Crawling out of the water he sank into unconsciousness again. On awakening the blood had ceased flowing, but flies and maggots were busy at his wounds.

In an effort to reach Hornsby's he crawled probably half a mile and sank down exhausted at the foot of a tree, where he was found next day by a relief party. He presented a ghastly sight, but was carried tenderly to the home of Hornsby, where he was nursed back to life. While the scalp wound never completely healed he lived for eleven years. Wilbarger was born September 10, 1801, and died in 1844. Wilbarger county was named in his honor.

CAPTURE OF SAN ANTONIO
 General Adrian Woll, a Frenchman, serving under Santa Anna, with an army variously estimated from 1,000 to 2,000 men, made a sudden attack on San Antonio, September 11, 1842. The surprise was so complete that the city was in his hands before the inhabitants were aware of it. Judge Hutcheson was holding District Court at the time and he and all the court officers, together with many of the attendants, were captured.

CROSBY COUNTY
 Crosby county was organized September 11, 1886, with Emma as the county seat. It was created August 21, 1876, out of Bexar county. The county was named after Stephen Crosby, who came to Texas in 1845, and accepted the position of chief clerk in the Land Office, to which he was elected in 1853, and again in 1855. In his memoirs, Governor Lubbock has this to say of Crosby: "There was some fun in nominating the Commissioner of the General Land Office. The convention was really anxious to nominate Captain Stephen Crosby, the incumbent of the office, and without doubt one of the most popular officers and men in the state. He had, however, strayed off from the Democratic party and joined the Know Nothings. He was shelved by the pledge prescribed by the convention and ran as an independent, but was defeated, but was re-elected in 1859 and under successive elections served until removed by military authorities in August, 1867." He died in Austin in 1869.

DOM PEDRO
 Brazil celebrates the 100th anniversary of its independence from Portuguese rule. Hughes, our secretary of state, goes to make speeches at the celebration. He says, on sailing: "I am especially honored by the opportunity to return the visit which the liberal and high-minded Emperor Dom Pedro paid us at the time of the (Philadelphia) centennial in 1876." That's the right thing to say, for effect in Brazil. However, the "liberal and high-minded" Pedro had such a corrupt government that when he was deposed by revolutionists, he left Brazil in his pajamas and had to borrow clothes from the ship captain. The air on the American continent doesn't seem to agree with autocracy.
