PRIZES OFFERED SCHOOL CHILDREN

Postmaster Howard Offers $10 in Prizes For Best Letters On How To Address Correctly.

PREPARE FOR CHRISTMAS RUSH

Many Letters And Parcels Received in Poor Condition And Cannot Be Delivered Addresses.

Postmaster Howard is offering $10 in cash prizes to the school children in the course of a campaign of education to the public on how to address letters correctly and to wrap and mail parcels correctly.

In just a short time the great Christmas rush will be on in full blast wherein postal clerks in every post office in the country, nearly, and especially the railway mail clerks and the transfer clerks at division points like Sweetwater, Ft. Worth, St. Louis, Chicago, etc., will be engulfed in the flood of Christmas gifts.

During the years when prosperity was rampant and also while nearly every family had some member or friend in the service, the Christmas rush nearly paralyzed the postal authorities. Christmas in 1921 was slightly different but with business conditions vastly improved, something of the old time vigor of the Christmas rush is expected again.

Clear, plain addresses with careful wrapping is essential on parcels and careful addressing on letters if mail is to be handled with the utmost speed and dispatch. In order to get these matters to the attention of everyone, Postmaster Howard is offering prizes for letters written him telling just how to address letters properly and how to address and wrap parcels for mailing.

The prizes will consist of a first prize of $5, a second prize of $3.50 and a third prize of $1.50. The letters and proper wrapping on addresses Postmaster Howard here in Sweetwater, before Saturday, December 2, three judges will be selected and the best letters will be printed in the Reporter. Neatness will be taken into consideration as well as the directions for "proper addressing for letters and proper wrapping and addressing for parcels."

The need of this campaign is shown by the fact that nearly 1,000 letters are sent to the Dead Letter Office at Washington from Sweetwater. They were letters improperly addressed so they could not be delivered and that did not have the return address on them so the could be returned to the sender. And then there are about 25 letters a month written here in Sweetwater that come back here because for one reason or another they could not be delivered to the person addressed.

It is especially essential that all parcels be correctly wrapped and addressed before they are brought to the post office. With a dozen or so people with office for mailing, said Postmaster Howard. With a dozen or so people with their arms full of parcels waiting to get to the windows to have them mailed, it is very annoying to have them have some one bring in a package wrapped with string that will break the first time, some one looks at it sideways, and with perhaps no address on the parcel.

And then too it is necessary that all Christmas packages be mailed early, early in the day, early in the week and early in the month, so that Santa Claus will arrive on time at his destination.

FOR SALE—Have some plain land for sale or exchange, improved or unimproved, for farms, ranches or city property. In Nolan, Fisher or other counties. ## CHILD SONGBIRD MUSICAL MARVEL

Fifteen Year Old Kansas City School Girl Has Taken New By Storm.

CALLED SECOND TETRAZZINI

Marion Talley Has Voice Range of Middle C to F Sharp Above High C.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—This is the story of a little girl who sang her way from dihwater to fame. And it contains a lesson for everybody, young or old, talented or not, who would rise from a meap position in life to a lofty one.

The little girl is Marion Talley, 15. Two weeks ago she was just the daughter of a Kansas City railway telegrapher—a little miss who liked to sing.

Today she is acclaimed by New York as a wonder child, a marvelous songbird, a coming second Tetrazzini, and not far in the future she may be the world's youngest grand opera star.

Already she has turned down one proffered contract to star in an opera because she knows her success will be all the greater if she puts in several years of hard work and study.

Tells How She Did It
Marion herself told today in an exclusive interview with NEA Service the story of her spectacular rise.

"Mother says I began to sing at the age of two," Marion said. "She'd sing little lullabies to me and immediately I'd repeat them, carrying the tune."

"Of course, I don't remember that but I do know that ever since I can recollect, I've sung."

"As I grew up I had to help mother with housework. Instead of trying to dodge dishwashing, sweeping and dusting, I did these things to the accompaniment of singing and I found that made it easy."

"In school I was called on to sing at entertainments and festivals. Then finally I decided to sing in the church choir."

Put in Front Row
"I can never forget the first time I took my seat in the choir. The director listened to me intently and called me to sit in the first row."

"That was my turning point. From that time on an ambition to be a singer grew in me."

And now let Mrs. Charles M. Talley, Marion's mother, take up the story.

"Marion soon became church soloist. She was paid as much as a maid. Her voice came to demand at all kinds of entertainments and she was well paid. Soon her talent caught the attention of several wealthy Kansas City men."

At a special concert $10,000 was raised to pay for her musical education. And the Metropolitan Opera test her voice."

Then Sembrich Heard
So Mr. and Mrs. Talley and Marion came to New York. In the great Metropolitan Opera House Marion sang before Giulio Gatti-Casazza, director of the opera company, Otto Kahn, head of the board of directors and half a dozen others whose names are known all over the world.

And now Mme. Marcella Sembrich, one of the great singers of the day has heard Marion and said, "I think she will be a dramatic soprano." Mme. Sembrich has been asked by several of the backers of opera in New York to assume control of the training of the little singer. She has accepted the task.

She will not only give Marion lessons herself but will select others who will have charge of the girls training in technique, dramatic expression and language. For Marion has much to learn. Years of training, all ahead of her before she can hope to be the great singer her friends want her to develop into.

Among the celebrities who heard Marion at her concert last week in the great Northern Hotel were: Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, one of the Langhorne sisters, famous beauties of Virginia; Daniel Frohman Fannie Hurst and her husband, Japues Danielson, Deems Taylor and Pierre V. R. Key.

Harry Webber of Keith's vaudeville theaters pleaded for an interview, out was told it would be useless to offer Miss Talley a position in vaudeville.

The tide of public interest in the singing of Marion Talley is still a rising tide here. She will be featured in the news films in all the New York theaters tomorrow.

Today a Celebrity
Today she is the victim of a celebrity few singers ever attain and that before her voice has been heard by a New York audience. Critics are as eager as the public to hear her for they know the praise of Nathan Franko, Marzoni, Arthur Bodansky and the other conductors who heard at the Metropolitan is not bestowed except upon the most unusual talent.

Teachers also clamor at her doors, and every time the telephone rings in room she expects now to hear that the greatest teacher of French diction in the world is Mme. So-and-So, or that the most marvelous instructor in the Italian language outside Italy is Signor This-or-That.

Men, armed with cameras, still await Marion in the lobby of the

MARION TALLEY

Great Northern hotel. She wonders how they can use so many pictures of her, but, realizing she is destined for a public career, the little girl submits to the publicity that will assure her a remarkable debut when the time comes for her to sing on the stage of the Metropolitan.

Nobody seems to doubt Marion's not look as old as her 15 years. Each interview expresses gratitude at seeing her so simple and unspoiled, so entirely unlike the prevailing flapper type. The range of Marion's voice is from middle C to F sharp above high C, a range that astounds singers and critics.

West Texas Farmers Most Prosperous Of Any Section Of The State, Says Dallas Hotel Man.

HIGH PRICES FOR GOOD CROPS

Bankers And Merchants Optimistic—Need of Preservation Of Orient Stressed Over Territory.

Special To The Reporter.

DALLAS, Nov. 30.—With development of the vast resources of West Texas accelerated by one of the most prosperous seasons experienced by that part of the State in many years, an unprecedented volume of business awaits Dallas institutions, R. L. Winfrey, of the Adolphus Hotel declared Thursday after completing a trip of four days during which time he covered the territory west of Fort Worth, from Wichita Falls south to Sweetwater by auto. He conferred with many bankers, business men and stock raisers.

"After an unusually poor year the farmers have made not only large crops, but have received most satisfactory prices for their products," Mr. Winfrey said, "and the bankers report the agricultural population wiping out their indebtedness in a manner which assures wholesome and active business conditions. Stock raisers, especially beef and goat raisers, are also optimistic."

"West Texans declare that a new railroad into the heart of that territory direct from Dallas would be of great benefit both to Dallas and the West and would, in their opinion, pay for itself in a short time."

"Junking of the Orient railroad is inconceivable to most of the men with whom I talked. Traversing a section which is rapidly increasing in population and with prospects of millions of tons of traffic in time, the Orient, if nursed along a while longer, as every railroad of West Texas has been in its infancy, will become one of the most important and prosperous lines in Texas," a Sweetwater banker said.

"The West Texans are a hospitable and optimistic lot. They have not forgotten the courtesies shown them in Dallas during the State Fair and many expressed themselves as anxious for closer business relation with Dallas establishments."

SIGHT OF MONEY WON HIM.

Prospector Refused $100,000 for Mine, but Sold for $10,000 Cash.

From the Portland Oregonian
Money's an odd sort of commodity and some persons know very little of actual cash from intimate acquaintance.

Harry Veness tells of one old sourdough of the Klondike, who had a valuable claim after several years of dangers and hardships in the north. He came to Seattle and operators who realized the value of his holdings had tried to buy him out for $100,000, but it was no use, the prospector held on. Then came the wise man who made the deal, and for one-tenth of that sum. The stage-managed proposition was worker like this:

The operators cornered their man on the main street and induced him to accompany them to a dark little office off Marion street. There they talked Alaska and mining until they thought they had their man in the proper frame of mind. They opened up the subject of a deal and he admitted that he had been offered $100,000.

"And you'd never sell for that?" one said, and when the miner said "No" the would-be purchaser went to a table nearby that was covered with a cloth and snatched the covering away. There, stacked in neat but careless appearing piles, was $10,000 in bright, new shiny $20 gold pieces.

"There's what we'll give you," shouted one of the operators as he saw the miner's eyes gleam. "You just sign the deed, and take the money."

And the miner, unused to money, carried away by the sight of real coin signed.

A PRINCE OF BEGGARS.

From "The Prince of Beggars" by Natalie Langston.

"A lady wrote to Lord Knutsford, the chairman of the London hospital: 'I am sending you my last night's bridge winnings—they ought to be more, but my partner revoked.'"

"Lord Knutsford replied by return a prepaid telegram: 'Thanks; please send partner's name and address.'"

"On another occasion, having written to a member of a firm called 'Milby & Stemp,' Mr. Milby, in sending a guinea, mentioned that he was the only member of the firm, Stemp, being 'in heaven' at least I hope so." Lord Knutsford replied by return: 'Your guinea will insure your meeting Stemp, but on the other hand Stemp has got to meet you—so you had better send me another guinea on his behalf to be sure of renewing the partnership.'"

"He got it."

G. W. Outlaw returned several days ago from Dallas where he has been taking X-ray treatments for several days. He seems to be somewhat improved.

Thanksgiving Dinner Today Entails Less Expenditure Than Required Year Ago.

GOBBLER PRICE IS STEADY

Flour, Sugar And Canned Fruits On Down Grade—Apricots Are Climbing.

Several signs of the return to normalcy, gradual as they may be, will be noticeable if the prevailing prices of foodstuffs surrounding and adjacent to the Thanksgiving turkey today are compared to the price a year ago today.

True, his lordship, the turkey, savior of the Pilgrim Fathers in the days long gone, has about the same buying average locally in 1922 as he had in 1921, selling for the neighborhood of 25 cents to 40 cents. But the hen, Rhode Island Red or other popular colors, the stilling substitute for the gobbler is rated far below last year's quotations and to those who "don't like turkey anyway," will run close in quality if not in quantity.

Due to the fact that Maryland is the home of the cranberry, it is placed below Massachusetts on the map of the original home of the wild turkey and the Pilgrim hunters, these "scarlet necessities" have suffered an intricate loss of approximately 33 per cent since they had their day in 1921, bringing today in the neighborhood of twenty cents a gallon.

Beef, pork and cured meats have fallen approximately 5 per cent in the past twelve months, while the oyster has maintained his original commercial rating.

Other articles of foodstuff, who have not learned of the close of the war or yielded to the desire to ascend to lower levels, are canned vegetables, coffee, (choice of mocha or java) hen fruit, salmon, pickles, English walnuts, apples, bananas, oranges, lemons, etc.

Due to a long dry season in Italy and various parts of the United States in the past summer, the sylvan crop far exceeded expectations with the result that knife and fork experts may indulge freely with the knowledge that the subject of their attacks has decreased 30 per cent from the sale price of last year. Potatoes, however, pressed 25 per cent of $2 a bushel. Flour is also quoted from twenty-five to forty cents lower this year than the previous annum, selling today a little above the $2 mark a hundred. Sugar is also about one cent a pound cheaper.

Dried and evaporated fruits have lost about five cents a pound from the last anniversary, selling today near the twenty-five cent mark and mark, with the exception of apricots, which still hang to the 30-cent mark. Canned fruits, peaches, pineapples, pears, etc., have declined from five to ten cents a pound below the quotations of a year ago. Syrups are cheaper at present than they were last Thanksgiving, but are scheduled to advance, according to local merchants. Pecans are at a premium in Sweetwater, and much higher than in 1921, selling around the half-dollar mark a pound. The English walnut crop seems to have escaped punishment during the troubles of Ireland and are quoted on the same level as were their predecessors in 21.

"All right John, carve the turkey."

PLANS FOR SHOW

Third Annual Poultry Show to Open At Snyder December 7—Poultry Expert Will Be Judge.

SNYDER, Nov. 30.—The Third Annual Poultry Show of the Scurry County Poultry Association will open at Snyder, Texas, December 7 to continue through December 9. The show will be held in the city auditorium, which has been arranged to afford spacious accommodations for the entries and spectators. The association has engaged F. W. Kazmeier, the well known poultry expert of Texas to judge the exhibits which insures exhibitors the best possible consideration of their entries. During the progress of the show, Miss Murray, head of the Poultry Extension Department of A. & M. and Miss Helen H. Swift, of the Department of Home Economics, will deliver lectures that will be of interest to poultry and live stock owners.

On Friday, Dec. 8, Mr. Kazmeier is to deliver a lecture on "Selection and Care of Poultry."

The annual meeting of the association will be held at 2 p. m. in the auditorium Saturday, Dec. 9, for the election of officers and the transaction of other business that may come up.

The present officers of the association are J. A. Merritt, president; W. T. Murphree, vice president; E. J. Anderson, secretary-treasurer; C. W. Greene, superintendent; J. L. Myers and Oscar Davis, assistant superintendents.

Superintendent Greene has announced that entries have been received from many parts of the United States and a conservative estimates places the number of exhibits that will have been received by the time the show opens at over 600.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

A SONG OF THANKS GIVING.—Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us come before his presence God, and we are the people of his pasture.—Psalm 107: 25; 95: 1, 2, 7.

SAM SAYS.

Some people spell cooperation DOMINATION, hang a bell on themselves and then sulk because the world does not fall into step.

The man who spells his own name in capitals and the name of the service he represents in small letters may find much personal gratification in the flashing headlines, while a few weak-kneed sycophants may bow at his approach, but real men with backbone instead of cotton strings in their back soon locate his number and place his name at the head of the list of self-seekers in the agnostic class.

When the ass believes that people are bowing to him instead of the image he carries he is pretty apt to start to braying with a loud he-haw, he-haw, which will provoke the populace to respond with a unanimous long-drawn, ha-ha, ha-ha, which will be appreciated by everyone except the ass.

The modern case of the blind leading the blind is frequently found when some man tries to tell another man the way to a place he has never visited himself. People are willing to take directions from a man who knows the way, but the high-priced theorist is fast falling into disrepute. Be sure your sin will find you out, and your ignorance will be discovered. A little more rope and the calf's neck will crack.

If you want your clothes to fit let the tailor take your measure or have a dress form made. The other man's clothes may look fine on him but would make you appear ridiculous. Do not be a monkey or an ape. They may amuse the children in a circus, but can never become leaders of men except in a parade. Develop your own talents, live your own life, keep out of the other man's pasture, and do not try to wear his shoes or clothes and you may stumble into the road which leads to success. Though few there be that find it.—Farm News.

CAN THE MODERN GIRL LOVE?

No, She Is Too Selfish and Too Wise, says woman Novelist.

Gilbert Frankau in the Forum.
You have to watch the modern girl to see the modern girl at her most self-revealing. Regard her carefully, this be-painted, be-powdered, be-manicured product of our hectic age, as she circles the ballroom.

She dances emotionally, but her emotions are for the rhythm and the music, not for the mere male, her partner. Even in a man's arms she is as nearly sexless as the ladies of the Lysistrata. Regarding her, thus, one cannot help answering the question, Can the modern girl love? In the most emphatic negative, No!

Give her all her good qualities, her poise, her efficiency, her intelligence, and you will still be forced to admit that—judging her superficially—the modern girl is not capable of a great and enduring love.

To begin with, she is too selfish, too self-centered, too set on the pursuit of what she considers pleasure, to abandon herself to that self-sacrifice which is love at its best. And then, perhaps, she is too wise. Myself, I am and have always been a strong supporter of the civil contract in matrimony. Matrimony, after all, is—however much sentimental middle aged fogies like myself may like to regard it as a pure love affair—a legal undertaking. And I think that it is high time for the young man of today to understand that his legal undertaking or an independent young woman is not confined purely and simply to housing her.

The modern woman, you see, is something more than a mere domesticated pet. She requires her pleasures, her pleasures and, more perhaps even than these, her full partnership rights.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Clayton and little daughter, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wade left this morning for Thanksgiving dinner at Abilene with Mrs. Clayton's parents Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Phelps.

Mrs. Tom Flack and little daughter, Louise accompanied by Miss Janice Lane, left yesterday afternoon for Lampasas to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with Mr. Flack's uncle, Dr. N. B. Bowie and wife. Miss Duisney will be one of the special guests at a reception and dance there this evening.

ARE PROFITABLE HOME ORCHARDS

Fruit Is Essential In Every One's Diet And Can Be Profitably Raised At Home

FRUIT IS NEGLECTED LOCALLY

Orchards Can Be Grown On Nearly Any Fertile Soil—Consult The Local Nurseryman.

(From An Article On Orchards.)

We are inclined to measure profit in dollars and cents. Yet, we must acknowledge that money can not always purchase the real benefits which make life worth while. Health, happiness and contentment are the greatest assets in the farm home and the most profitable farm practices must of necessity be those which are conducive to the promotion of such a state of existence.

Doctors and dieticians have mutually agreed that fruit in the diet is conducive to a healthful family, while money can not measure the happiness produced in the home by fresh peaches, apples, plums, berries, and the like to say nothing of apple dumplings, peach cobbler, jam, preserves, and, etc. These are essential to complete home life and may best be obtained by a home orchard. In fact, a home orchard to be the most profitable does not necessarily mean one from which the fruit is sold, but it is the orchard that furnishes an abundance of wholesome fruit for the year round, either fresh or canned, for the farmer's table. We are too prone to think only of the physical man's fitness for farm practices, but the mental man is much more vital to success. The farmer who has a balanced diet will think clearer and do better work and thus be in a better position to practice profitable farming, while a happy, healthy family will save doctor's bills, lost sleep, and worry and keep the farmer in a good frame of mind to plan and work his other crops.

Fruit growing has been sadly neglected in Texas and there are fewer bearing fruit trees on Texas farms than there were ten years ago. Peaches are probably more generally grown over the state than any other fruit, yet, ten years ago there were over seven thousand more farms growing peaches than there are today, about 5,000 more farms growing plums, while the pear, which will come nearer growing in all parts of the state than any other fruit, is produced on almost four thousand less farms than ten years ago.

One reason that the commercial production has decreased during the past ten years, is that much land was devoted to fruit production. However, the reason is no reason why some kind of fruit should not be grown on practically every Texas farm. The time has passed, however, if there ever was such a time, when trees can simply be planted and then left alone and expected to bear profitably.

The first thing in planting a home orchard is to select the proper site. Most any fertile, well drained soil which will produce other farm crops profitably will grow an orchard. The site however, should be selected as close as practicable to the house, since most of the fruit is harvested by the household. It is not practical at this time to attempt to give varieties, as varieties that will succeed well in one section of the state might be an absolute failure in others so it is suggested that the would-be planter consult his local nurseryman and visit orchards that are bearing, then select the varieties that are apparently making the best success.

For deciduous fruits, one year old stock from three to five feet in height, is the best. Make sure that the stock is absolutely free from any insects or diseases, especially crown gall and San Jose scale. The amateur planter will do well to patronize only a reliable nursery. The itinerant tree peddler is usually more concerned in selling trees than in having them grow. This is not an argument for the catalogue nurseryman but is a suggestion that one deal with a nurseryman who is in the business to stay and who will take a personal interest in the tree's growing.

The best time, on the average, to plant is late fall or early spring. The land should be in as good condition as is necessary for an ordinary farm crop, such as cotton or corn. A good average distance is 25 feet apart for most deciduous fruits. This will give about 70 trees to the acre, and if varieties are properly selected so as to ripen in succession, will give a supply of some kind of fruit over most of the season. It is necessary only to dig the holes deep enough to take care of the roots of the young trees without crowding. The tree should be planted about the same depth in the orchard that it stood in the nursery. Fill the hole with top soil, taking care that the soil is worked tightly around the roots. Probably more trees die from allowing the roots to dry out by not having the soil packed firmly, than for any other one reason. Before planting, of course, and broken or diseased roots should be cut off, and after the tree is planted if it is merely a whip, as the best type of tree should be, it should be cut off about knee high from the ground. If there are a number of stocky side branches, three to five of these well distributed around the trunk, may be left to form the future scaffold limbs of the tree, and these should be cut back about two-thirds. All other limbs should be cut off close to the trunk. This is all the pruning that the young tree will need the first year.

The second year, in the case of the whip, where there were no scaffold limbs left, three to five of the best limbs of the current season's growth, well distributed around the trunk, should be selected for the future framework of the tree and the rest removed, as in the case previously mentioned. After these scaffold limbs have made a year's growth in either case, they should be cut back about one-third and some of the surplus limbs removed entirely. No attempt will be made here to give careful directions for pruning, but the main idea is to keep the head somewhat open and low, so that it can be easily sprayed and harvested from the ground. Any broken or diseased limbs should, of course, be removed.

A young orchard may be cultivated similarly to any common field crop. If the land is fertile, or if fertility is applied, either in the form of commercial fertilizers or well rotted barnyard manure, garden or field crops may be grown between the tree rows for the first two or three years. As the trees get larger, not only will they need more and more of the soil fertility, but they will shade the ground so that other crops will become less profitable and by the time they are in full bearing, it is well not to attempt to grow any crop to be harvested between tree rows. The orchard should be given, on most soils, clean cultivation throughout the entire growing season and then a cover crop of oats, vetch, rye, or something of this character should be planted in the fall and turned under in the early spring. In no case should grain crops be allowed to mature in an orchard.

A good quality of fruit can hardly be expected in the present day without some attention being given to the control of insects and diseases by spraying, his is not necessarily a particularly expensive or laborious process. The family orchard can be very successfully sprayed with a small barrel spray outfit. No attempt will be given here to discuss insects and diseases, except to call attention to the absolute necessity of taking precautions to control these pests, if the orchard is to be a profitable one.

Many people will say that fruit will not grow in "my" section. No fruit will grow over all of the state, but I have yet to see that portion of the state where farm crops will grow successfully that some fruit or berry will not also grow, but the orchard that is not planted will never be a success"—Farm News.

BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. A. H. Fortner was hostess at a most enjoyable meeting of the Wednesday Bridge Club Wednesday afternoon.

Besides the regular four tables of club members, Mrs. Fortner extended her hospitality to include two tables of players, who were not members. The usual number of games were played with enthusiasm.

When the games closed, Mrs. Fortner served a most delightful salad course. Special guests present were Mrs. F. M. Poffenbach, Mrs. Berry Bowen, Mrs. Moss, Mrs. R. M. Simmons, Mrs. George Willis, Miss L. L. Fishburn of Dallas, Rita Brashear and Ruby Tidwell.

Mrs. John Hubbard will entertain the club next Wednesday afternoon, December 7.

CHORAL CLUB

The Choral Club held an interesting business meeting Tuesday afternoon preceding the rehearsal hour, with Mrs. Douthitt club president in the chair. The coming Music Memory Contest formed the chief topic of discussion. The members feel repaid for the trouble and cost them to place it in the hands of the school children and school patrons.

The club voted to give $5.00 either the cash or its equivalent in a gift, as a first prize in the contest. They will obtain a number of other prizes as first and second prizes in the different classifications.

Any member of the club will be glad to give any one information in regard to the proposed contest.

The club also voted to give, on evening's entertainment, during the teacher's Institute in honor of the visiting teachers.

A LORD SALISBURY ANECDOTE.

Distinguished Father of New Cabinet Minister Rebuked as Guest.

From the Outlook.

It is interesting to observe that the ranking member of the new British cabinet next to the prime minister, although holding by no means the most important office in the ministry, is the Marquis of Salisbury, the eldest son of Lord Salisbury, the great Conservative Victorian prime minister.

His title is an ancient one, and his seat is that famous Hatfield house in Bedfordshire, which was the scene of so many dinners and receptions when his distinguished father was prime minister, who represented in his person and policies the highest type of government by the peerage in Great Britain—a type which has probably passed away forever.

This passing is a gain, perhaps, for the plain people, but a decided loss to the literature of political anecdote and reminiscence.

Of Lord Salisbury, the father, a delightful story is told in the recollections of one of his private secretaries. A dinner was being given by Lord Salisbury at Hatfield house, and one of the guests was a neighbor of Lord Salisbury's, a country squire whose pedigree was more impeccable than his education in the fine points of literary allusion.

Next to this ruddy-faced squire sat a young whippersnapper of a diplomatic secretary, who in an argument in which he had teased and irritated the squire, finally called the old gentleman a "Phillistine." "A Phillistine!" exclaimed the old squire somewhat heatedly, "what's that?"

Lord Salisbury, who had overheard the discussion with some concern, and felt that his old friend was being impolitely chaffed, and yet could not quite bring himself, as host, to rebuke the young secretary openly, saw his chance. He leaped forward and politely remarked: "Don't you know what a Phillistine is? A Phillistine is a gentleman who is annoyed by the jaibone of an ass."

The young secretary naturally subsided. We hope that the new president of the council, the present Lord Salisbury, possesses his father's sense of humor. He may need it before he gets through with the complications of this new office.

Miss Lily Fulton a member of the High School faculty left last night for Fort Worth to spend Thanksgiving with friends and relatives.

FARMERS TO POOL TURKEYS.

The farmers of this territory are invited to Pool their Christmas turkeys and offer them for sale upon the dates and at the places listed below:

HILTON, Friday, Dec. 8.
BLACKWELL, Saturday, Dec. 9.
ROSCOE, Monday, Dec. 11.
SWEETWATER, Wed., Dec. 13.
TRENT, Tuesday, Dec. 12.

Turkeys will be weighed and paid for on the ground. The Thanksgiving pools brought the highest prices of that season, and there is every reason to believe that the Christmas pools will be equally successful.

No price can be announced in advance for these pools, but the farmer is assured of the highest price the market affords on these dates.

G. A. LUCKEY.

Dr. J. T. McKissick left Monday night for Georgetown, Ky., to hold a ten days revival service for the Christian church at that place. He will only be out of town for one Sunday.

Miss Mable Spamp, who has been at College Station attending a state meeting of the County Home Demonstration Agents, will leave there tonight for Austin to spend Thanksgiving with her home folks.

THANKSGIVING

It has been a long time since the first Thanksgiving when the Pilgrims rendered thanks for having been able to stay alive in America for one whole year. Comparing conditions then and now, reasons for Thanksgiving are increasing steadily. For Sweetwater is the best town in the best part of the best state in the best country in the world.

Isn't that reason enough to be thankful?

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Barbee and children accompanied by Judge W. W. Beall have gone to San Angelo to spend Thanksgiving with his son, Walter Beall and family, who is also Mrs. Barbee's brother.

Mrs. Crosthwaite and Laby left last night for San Angelo to visit Mr. and Mrs. Foster for the holidays. They are the foster parents of Mr. Crosthwaite.

Rev. E. R. Harrison, pastor of the First Christian Church of Colorado is here today and preached the Thanksgiving sermon at the First Baptist Church this morning. He came on the invitation of his old college friend Dr. J. T. McKissick pastor of the local Christian church, who was chosen by the pastors of the city for that service was unable to be here on account of being called to Kentucky.

Mrs. Bynum of Colorado will very likely take the place of Miss Pearl Miller in the West Ward school, who resigned and was married here this morning at 8:30 o'clock at the First Christian church.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30, 1922—Between midnight and 2 a. m. November 11, one of the most destructive earthquakes of recent years occurred in northern Chile and thousands of human lives were lost. These great events can be successfully foretold and many lives saved thereby, but I have not the clerical force to make the calculations and orthodox scientists are so bound in the fool idea of the dark ages that they refuse to look at sensible reasons. They base their nonsensical, so-called, science on a belief that the interior of the earth is intensely hot, that water gets into that heat and steam makes the earthquake. Come down to the modern times and let the dark ages sleep. There are no hot bodies in the solar system; sun and planets are great magnets; so are the clouds that, coming near each other, pass electricity to equalize their charges; lightning and a cloudquake results. Any electrician can prove that, at the time of that great earthquake, the sun, moon, earth and several other planets occupied relative positions that always cause a shock among magnets where some of them are overcharged and some are undercharged. The dark ages have a stronger hold on our science than on our ignorant, superstitious people. The local forecasts follow:

Section 1: North of 47, between 90 and Rockies' crest; highest temperatures December 2 and 8, lowest 1 and 5; average warmer than usual; precipitation normal; most severe storms and most precipitation near 3. Section 2: North of 47, east of 10; lowest temperatures 2 and 8, highest 5 and 10; average warmer than usual; most severe storms and most precipitation near 3; normal precipitation. Section 3: Between 39 and 47 and between 90 and Rockies' crest; highest temperatures 4 to 8, lowest 6 and 11; average warmer than usual; most severe storms and most precipitation near 4; normal precipitation. Section 4: East of 90, between latitude 39 and 47; highest temperatures 1 to 9, lowest 5; average warmer than usual; most severe storms and most precipitation near 5; normal precipitation. Section 5: South of 39, between 90 and Rockies' crest; lowest temperatures 1 and 7, highest 4 and 9; average warmer than usual; most severe storms and most precipitation near 5; normal precipitation. Section 6: South of 39, east of 90; lowest temperatures 2 to 9, highest 5 and 11; average warmer than usual; most severe storms and most precipitation near 6; normal precipitation. Section 7: North of 43 1-2, west of Rockies' crest; highest temperatures 2 and 8, lowest 4 and 9; average warmer than usual; most severe storms and most precipitation near 3; normal precipitation. Section 8: South of 43 1-2 to Mexican line, west of Rockies' crest; highest temperatures 2 and 6, lowest 4 and 9; average warmer than usual; most severe storms and most precipitation near 3; normal precipitation. All indications are that first week of December will be unusually warm with more than usual rain, followed by very bad, cold, stormy weather, inclined toward blizzards. These are so many great magnets, planets, concerned in that great storm period that I will not be able to get the exact dates. Better get your outdoor affairs arranged before end of November, although you may get some good weather first few days of December. When that great storm breaks you will need shelter. Some good weather is expected between this great storm period and the bad storms of the Christmas holidays.

"VELVET"

From the Kansas City Star. The difference between what one earns and what one spends is profit. "Velvet" is a term applied to profit which is a little greater than one naturally expects from a business or an investment. There are various kinds of "velvet" to be derived from the business of life. Not all of these kinds are in money or in bonds, or in real property. Many a man of vast fortune would exchange all his minted "velvet" for the "velvet" that his neighbor enjoys in the way of a sound digestion and plenty of sleep. Many an old man who has traveled a lonely road discovers at 60 that his "velvet" is worth but little compared to that of his neighbor who has a family of well brought up children. To hundreds of hard-headed business men, the ability of their acquaintances to enjoy music and understand pictures and find pleasure in nature is worth more than all their accumulations and all the properties they have got together.

On the other hand, there are men who have built great industries to whom the fact that they are employing thousands of men and adding to the production of merchandise is the real "velvet" which they have sought and won.

This is a world composed of many people with many different ideas and ideals.

Sefansson, the explorer, got out of a trip through the polar regions—that other men would have regarded as a terrific hardship—the greatest joy of his existence.

There are elderly and portly bankers who would consider it the most enjoyable form of "velvet" to play around eighteen holes on a golf course in a score under a hundred.

Money is far from being an adequate measure of "velvet." It is rich pay for some men, poor pay for others.

The safe rule is to consider what is worth most to us in the days after accumulation has been made and work for that as our chief object. Then we shall finish life "on velvet," which, in other words, means in the possession of something as near to happiness as any human being can hope to attain.

WHY SUFFER SO Why suffer from a bad back, from sharp, shooting twinges, headaches, dizziness and distressing urinary ills? Sweetwater people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Could you ask for stronger proof of merit? Mrs. L. N. Thaker, 604 Cedar Street, Sweetwater says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for some time and can certainly say I have derived great benefit from them. I suffered from a dull pain in the small of my back, which at times got so bad I thought I could hardly get about. I thought it was lumbago. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, the trouble has all disappeared. Whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine since then I have taken Doan's and the have always given me good results.

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Thaker had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

R AND R QUEEN Today and Friday Today's our Anniversary, Mother Dear old dad never forgets the day when Mother said Yes. The years bring their trials; cares of life and business bow down his old grey head. The children yearning only for social position are critical of his old fashioned ways. But he remains the ever patient provider, sweet and self sacrificing, tolling for the family he dearly loves. Life may be harsh and unkind to him, but it can never cloud the radiant memories of his great affectionate heart. Suddenly again she is a young wife with her young husband. The tenderness of long ago returns. Life, with its just for material things, is bared to her now. Her mother heart, awakened, smites her for the harsh words and neglect that have been the lot of the unselfish, unwearying family provider. She brushes the thin hair back from his brow very gently.
