—FACTORIES—

Until Texas and especially West Texas gets into manufacturing and retains the difference in price between what sells in the shape of cotton, wool hides and other products, it will not attain its greatest development, in the opinion of those who have given the situation study.

In December 1922 a pound of raw cotton could be bought for 25c. Deduct 15 per cent for waste and the pound of cotton would amount to 20c. A pound of spun cotton will make seven yards of gingham, or the cotton in the yard of gingham slight more than 4c. How much do Texans pay for gingham over the counter in the retail mercantile establishments? Part of this difference goes to the railway and steamship companies who haul the bales of cotton to the northern or eastern manufacturing centers. Part of it is paid out in wages of various persons and part is profit. All of it is going to the development and upbuilding of other sections of the United States while Texas pays the price thereof.

Wool which the Texas rancher considers himself fortunate if he gets 50c a pound for is bought back by Texans at many times that amount after the woolen mills have added their price to the proceedings.

The difference in price between what Texas sells and what it buys is the margin needed to develop the State.

A WORTHY UNDERTAKING

An American sculptor is fashioning a model for a monument to the "typical American woman." He has found an Oregon mother who personifies this ideal. It is more than likely that the nation will approve his choice. It is a collective picture of the pioneer mothers of America, themselves the daughters of the many races, gathered from many lands, of many religious faiths and social conditions, but the real creators of this republic—the type being presently glorified in the national epic of "The Covered Wagon." When Virginia erected a monument to the mother of George Washington one of its orators proclaimed: "There were ten thousand Mary Washingtons among the mothers of the revolution, and honoring her we honor the motherhood of heroic days and heroic men." A like spirit animates the tribute which our time purposes to pay to the "typical American woman."

than a century ago drew a sketch of the typical woman of that day. The narrative reads: "It was her pleasure to live simply—at a time of almost riotous profusion. It was her pleasure to busy her own hands with the housewifely work of her own household—knitting, sewing, sorting fleeces for Virginia cloth, preserving fruits, distilling herbs for the sick—making drudgery divine by sharing the task she laid upon others, thereby earning her many gifts to the poor. In an age of abundant leisure she was industrious; in an age of dissipation of time and money she was self-denying, diligent and frugal; in an age when speech was free and profanity 'gentle,' she preserved her temperate speech; was unpolluted by the faintest taint of coarseness or irreverence. When the church no longer concerned itself with the care of men's souls she kept her own serene, in her simple faith that prayer would prevail in the end, performing every outward religious duty as conscientiously as if the ministers and bishops showed, as well as they taught, the way."

Americans may rejoice that if in these times custom is repeating some of the follies and excuses that were imputed to this earlier period the republic has not lost the type of womanhood whose qualities of mind, heart and soul enabled it to triumph over every circumstance which threatened national destruction. So bring on the monument. The nation has waited overlong to express gratitude to one of its greatest benefactors.

THE PLAN WORKED

It is more than likely that the next time the Mexican republic tries to make a change of presidents it will do it with ballots instead of bullets. At any rate it will if the American government has a secretary of state on the job who prefers this peaceful and orderly way of making a change of administrations. It was the influence of Secretary Hughes on the side of the peaceful way that gave final victory to President Obregon and his forces. The secretary had been criticised because he was backing a Mexican ministry that stood for the broadest domestic rights in that country; a government whose sympathies were with policies that would be accounted radical in this country because they favored the people instead of special interests. This objection did not make the least impression upon Mr. Hughes. He would not budge an inch from his principle that whether the popular verdict is for moderate or radical measures of government a fair and intelligent election is always to be preferred to revolution as a means of changing political control in any country.

President Obregon emerges from the contest a more popular figure with his country than ever. By his own admission his exertions on the battle field did him good. As an exerciser it was really better than the American daily dozen. "My wife said I would surely die if I took the field," he said. "My answer was that I would sooner die on the field as a soldier than be caught in bed. Really, this revolt has improved my health. The change of civilian clothes to my old military uniform seems to have acted as a tonic. I am feeling much better than for many months."

Quite another thing were the vainglorious declarations of Gen. Adolfo de la Huerta, leader of the revolution. "The minute the revolution succeeds," he said, "I, Adolfo de la Huerta, will step down from leadership and will become a plain citizen of Mexico, without title and without office. Then I will announce my candidacy for the office of Mexico, pledged on my honor to uphold the constitution and all constitutional guarantees. If the votes of the majority of my fellow Mexicans are against me I will retire cheerfully to private life. We of the revolution are not fighting to make Adolfo de la Huerta—or any other man—president of Mexico by force of arms. I would not take the presidency unless elected to it by the votes of my fellow citizens."

The collapse of the revolution has disconcerted all of this visionary's plans. Next time he tries to lead a revolt not any too popular with the masses and certainly not in their interest, he should do it with votes instead of muskets. This is the American way. Now that Secretary Hughes has demonstrated the sufficiency of this plan in its application to Mexico he should do his own countrymen the courtesy to believe that their all-around patriotism and good sense, in addition to the ballot, will keep the red flag away from the capitol dome.

MEMORIAL

Announcement by the Oscar McDonald Post, American Legion of plans for a suitable memorial for the Nolan County Service Man who paid the supreme price is one that should receive re-echoing approval on the part of everyone.

That same pride and patriotism which animated this country during the trying war days, and which kept it in the ranks of those who did their duty, should now find expression in the erection of a suitable memorial. In peace as in war—let Nolan County do its duty.

Abandon Babe
DALLAS, Texas, March 7.—A baby girl, weighing five pounds, was found at the entrance to Mrs. E. B. Loomis' store at Miller's Ferry, near here. The infant, apparently only several hours old, was turned over to the county matron, Mrs. Jack Gorman. It died from exposure a few hours later.

TO GROW COTTON FROST HIT CROP

Central, California to Raise Fleece Staple—San Joaquin Valley Plans Big Crop in '24

MERCED, Cal., March 7.—Central California, has joined the extreme southern part of the state in bidding for cotton production. Cotton is becoming a major crop in the San Joaquin Valley, which stretches for more than 20 miles east and south of San Francisco.

During 1923 it was announced here during the recent visit of W. B. Camp of the United States Department of Agriculture, more than 50,000 acres will be planted to cotton in this section. Land in the San Joaquin Valley, he said, produces an average of a bale of cotton for each acre planted. In 1923 10,000 acres were planted in Kern County, producing 12,000 bales.

The boll weevil, which is reducing cotton production in many sections of the country does not thrive in the irrigated sections of the San Joaquin Valley, according to local experts, and the quality of the cotton is declared to be above the average.

Turkeys Provide Welcome Revenue

B. R. Goodwin of Old Silver Valley community bought a turkey gobble from T. J. DeLiney and mated him with four turkey hens. He sold turkeys to the amount of $115, after raising one, and he has thirteen turkeys to raise from the coming season. Mr. Goodwin was in Coleman Wednesday on business.—Coleman Democrat-Voice.

FROST HIT CROP

AUSTIN, Texas, March 7.—Considerable frost damage to tender vegetables in the Lower Rio Grande Valley was caused during the last week of February when cold weather extended into the lower valley, according to a special report of the government truck specialist, Chas. Sperr, released through the co-operative State and Federal market news service at this point.

Cameron County's potato acreage was cut back fully 1500 acres of the total 3500 and the plantings in the neighborhood of San Benito were estimated 4 per cent killed, leaving 700 acres to be harvested. Of tomato plantings 40 per cent damage was reported to the total 2000 acres, and Cameron County growers reported an unwillingness to replant. Half of the 1,000 acres of string beans at San Benito were damaged and 50 per cent damage was reported to Brownsville's plantings of 600 acres.

The cantaloupe crop in Hidalgo County which centers around plantings of 700 acres was protected and no injury is reported. A light frost at Corpus Christi did no damage and spinach throughout the entire section escaped without damage. Webb County onions were slightly damaged but citrus fruits escaped injury, the report states.

L. J. Geer, manager of the West Texas Electric Company at Sweetwater, and Mr. Blair, representing the same company were here Friday and made a pleasant call at the News office. Mr. Geer stated that the company was preparing to extend an electric line from Lamesa to O'Donnell to furnish the citizens of that town with light and power. Mr. Geer intimated that his company might like to buy the plant here and install an ice factory in connection therewith. The city owns and operates the plant here most satisfactorily, however, and we understand that it is not for sale.—Lynn County News.

Cattle Tick Removed From Ear of Child

A two year old child was taken to the office of Dr. G. G. Castleberry here complaining with earache. The doctor made a thorough examination of the case, and with a long pair of forceps extracted a large tick that had evidently embedded itself in the child's ear several weeks ago, as it had grown to such proportions as to thoroughly close the channel of the ear.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Washington has long been known in the show business as a "hard town." Folks here don't seem to rise to average theatricals as they do in other cities. We venture the explanation that this is because Washington lives in the midst of theatricals. Tragedy, melodrama, burlesque, comedy—they're an everyday part of the political drama on the Washington stage. Small wonder, then, that the stagey emotions of the average playwright leave the normal capital audience cold.

PROBER POMERENE NO GRAND STANDER

Man Named by Coolidge in Oil Investigation Has Found Way for Nothing But Work.

STRANGER TO PROMOTION

Seldom in Public Eye, But For More Influential in Shaping Legislation.

By NEA Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 7.—Albee Pomerene, named as a suspect in the Coolidge oil investigation, has never found time for anything but work; however, he is a total stranger to promotion in any form. During his 12 years as United States senator, Pomerene was seldom in the public eye, yet few Democratic senators were more influential in shaping legislation than the man from Canton, O.

The spotlight passed Pomerene by because he lacked the ability to capitalize his accomplishments. He was never a politician. Others were versed in the ways of publicity from the very beginning, with the credit that was rightfully his.

Pomerene is tall, thin and dark-skinned, his forehead is high and his fringe of hair black.

He usually wears a black coat, black trousers, a "hotted" white shirt and a checked collar and a narrow black bow tie.

His dress suggests the stage makeup of an undertaker. Serious-minded, unusually and rarely smiles or jokes. Criticism hurts him deeply.

Albee Pomerene's seriousness and high sense of duty undoubtedly are heritages of his boyhood. He was raised on a farm in Beria, Holmes County, O. Albee and his 10 brothers and sisters each had a certain set of chores and each was held strictly accountable by a stern parent.

Darpta, an elder brother, was blind. Albee not only learned his

WHILE POMERENE WAS IN THE SENATE...

While Pomerene was in the Senate, his secretary realizing the necessity for a more hygienic office to walk from his home to the office...

Pomerene tried it a day or two but found it fatiguing. Then, for a while, he walked part of the way. Mrs. Pomerene picking him up in her electric after the first mile or so, but soon he gave up even this privilege of exercise.

He went to no ball games, played no golf, attended his theater only when his wife dragged him there.

There is not time in his life for frivolities or amusement. With him, the job at hand is the whole thing. There is nothing else.

In the Senate Pomerene was a member of important committees—banking and currency, foreign relations, interstate commerce and privileges and election.

As chairman of the latter committee he directed the inquiry that ultimately resulted in discrediting Senator Newberry of Michigan and forcing him from the Senate.

Pomerene turned up the facts of the Ford-Newberry case other senators made speeches about them. He did the work, they got the credit.

HE WAS ONE OF THE LEADERS IN THE...

He was one of the leaders in the fight that resulted in enactment of the last child labor law, later declared unconstitutional.

He led the Senate fight for the Adamson eight-hour day law. He worked for the bill creating the Department of Labor and the children's bureau. He supported practically every bill organized labor endorsed.

but he voted for the Esch-Cummins transportation act and was defeated for a third term by the labor vote.

The Old West is passing. New chapters are being written in the history of West Texas every day.

The break-up of the vast cattle ranges, now under way on a tremendous scale, is the biggest developmental event in the history of the West since the last fifty years.

In all parts of West Texas, particularly in the Panhandle and South Plains area, the best baronies are being set up into farms and the tiller of the soil is beginning to "take over" from the cowboy.

Where once the lone horse reamed, and where more recently the majestic whiteface grazed, we will soon see fields white with cotton, or covered with billowy wheat.

The old West is passing, and it will never come back. There is no profit in growing cattle on land that is worth from twenty to a hundred dollars an acre for agricultural purposes.—Ablene Reporter.

WEST TEXAS UTILITIES TO MAKE ICE IN COLEMAN.

The West Texas Utilities Company has arranged to enter the Coleman industrial field with its high-power electric line and will engage in the manufacture of ice along with its other industrial activities.

Mr. G. W. Fry, general superintendent of the Texas division with headquarters in Abilene, accompanied by T. E. Powell of Baird, was in Coleman during the week making arrangements for the company's entrance to this field.

Wednesday a deal was closed for the purchase of the Union Henderson property located directly north of the courthouse and having frontage on the Santa Fe right-of-way. The purchase price is reported as $4,000.

The company will erect a three-story building to be later installed. It is said that construction work on the company's property here will be started in a few weeks and that bringing of the high-powered line to this city will not be long delayed.—Coleman Democrat-Voice.

TRAVELERS returning from the West (when they do!) speak of the gorgeous scenery, the whole-hearted hospitality, and wonderful western coffee! With all the zeal of a discoverer, they are spreading this tradition which had its birth in the West's homes of wealth and instinctive discrimination.

To-day, the tradition is the common property of the great western empire. A tradition to treasure! Puncture the vacuum seal of a tin of Hills Bros. Red Can Coffee, inhale that rare aroma and know the coffee reputation of the West is in safe hands.

The intriguing aroma of "Red Can" is but the trumpeter of a marvelous flavor to come. And that flavor is sealed in vacuum, that it may lose none of its charm and strength. It is still fresh days, weeks, even years from now—whenever you decide to break the seal!

With all its high quality, Hills Bros. Coffee is not high-priced. It is economical to buy—and economical to use. Hills Bros., San Francisco.

Indiana Lady Says She Was Run-Down, Suffered With Her Back, Took Cardui, and Got Well.

Richmond, Ind.—"I thought I would write a line or so, to say that I owe my good health and strength to Cardui," says a letter from Mrs. Cora Courtney, 31 Railroad Street, this city.

"I was all run-down until my family thought they would lose me," writes Mrs. Courtney. "My husband coaxed me to take Cardui, so, to please him, I did, and will say I do not regret it, for I am able to do all my work and do my shopping."

"I have five children, four in school, my husband and a boarder to do for, and I do all my own work for all of us, and find time to play. We all praise Cardui. Every sick and run-down woman should take this wonderful medicine."

"I suffered with my back; a very weak feeling in my limbs."

"I felt hardly able to drag; just tired—so tired all the time."

"It was an effort for me to do anything, but Cardui helped me so I felt like a different woman."

If you are in a run-down physical condition, suffering as this Indiana lady says she did, give Cardui a fair trial. It should help you.

Take Cardui. NC-107

ENGINE TO MUSEUM

First Airplane Engine Used to Carry Mail Is Preserved

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 7.—The engine used in a Blériot monoplane to carry the first aerial mail in the United States has been presented to the Smithsonian Institution by Earle Ovington, a Santa Barbara aviator, who, in 1911, was sworn in as the first aerial postman.

The official document bearing the signatures of Postmaster-General Hitchcock and Chief Inspector Morgan of New York also will be presented to the institution, together with a sample of mail carried on the first trip and a photograph of the plane.

A Worthy Project

Sixteen hundred and forty acres of forest land, completely covered with redwoods, and lying in one tract in San Mateo County, California, will be purchased by Shriners, an dthe timber will be preserved that the giant redwoods may not become extinct.

While this a great work, still more important results might be attained by organizations and fraternities all over the country if they would interest themselves in tree planting.

School districts in various parts of the country are finding this an excellent means through which to provide for support after the lapse of a few years. Fraternities might well engage in the same progressive effort.

George Mulkey of Lubbock was dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Toler Thursday evening. He is manager of Toler's Maxwell branch house at Lubbock and nephew of the well known Abe Mulkey.

Girls Leave Home

DALLAS, Texas, March 7.—High school girls are leaving home at an alarming rate according to Mrs. Albert Walker, local director of public welfare. Twelve cases of run-away girls were reported here the past month, three in one day.

Ask Aid in Fight OAKLAND, Cal., March 7.—Governor Friend Richardson has appealed to banks of the San Francisco Bay district to finance the fight against the hoof and mouth disease. The bankers will be asked to underwrite a fund of $300,000 to be used to check the disease. There has been no serious spread of the disease the past 36 hours, according to a report of authorities.

MARSHALL, Texas, March 7.—Rev. J. Sam Barcus, pastor of the First Methodist Church here has been offered the presidency of Southwestern University, it is reported here. Barcus is a graduate of the Georgetown school.
