ELECTION DAY

Monday brought to a close one of the most intense gubernatorial campaigns in the history of Texas politics, and a national campaign of great interest in which the issues considered most important by three parties have been clearly presented to the voters. The curtain fell after the final appeals sent to thousands of listeners through the air Monday night, and Tuesday the voters wrote the final chapter in the 1924 political battle.

Throughout the nation election day was one of excitement. The well-oiled Republican machine found the road rocky and blocked by the Democratic mule and the determined supporters of La Follette. In Texas, the backers of "Ma" and "Doc" went to the polls to register their convictions after weeks in which the state has been thoroughly covered by speakers for each party.

A record vote for Texas was predicted by political wise acres in the closing days of the campaign. The ballot cast in the national election was also expected to be heavy.

The political tale for this year will soon be told, election wagers will be paid and freak bets carried out, and in a few days the personnel of the crews who are to guide Texas and the United States of America through the coming years will be definitely established. Regardless of whether the capitol at Austin is graced by a learned doctor's gown or an apron, the cap of the collegian or the sun bonnet of the farmer's wife, it's a grand old state anyhow, and we're mighty glad to live in God's Country.

After election day, let's get together behind "Ma" or "Doc," Davis, Coolidge, or La Follette, and pull together for Texas and the grand old U. S. A.

BOYS' BAND

It is doubtful if there is a band in the entire state that is making the progress of the Sweetwater Boys' Band. They are growing all the time, both in numbers and in knowledge of music. They gave striking proof of their ability during the Trade Trip last spring and at Brownwood. Home folks had a better opportunity to hear them during the fair and were again surprised at the progress that the boys are making. There are three factors responsible for this situation. One is director Harry LeMaire and his exceptional ability. Another is the personal interest and time given to the work by such men as M. C. Manroe, in spite of numerous business and fraternal responsibilities. The third is the splendid spirit of co-operation accorded by city officials and citizens generally.

EVERY JOB

During our many years in Sweetwater is our guaranty of quality work. Quality plumbing is cheaper, and oh, so much more satisfactory.

OTTO CARTER

KNEADY

A Wisconsin editor whose subscribers have evidently neglected to pay promptly recently saw an item concerning a society belle who kneaded bread with gloves on. He commented on this news somewhat as follows: "I also need bread with my gloves on. Not only that, but I need bread with my shoes on. I would even go so far as to state that I need bread with my pants on. And if some of my debtors do not pay up I'll be needing bread without a d— thing on. This statement is made with the knowledge that Wisconsin is no Garden of Eden in the winter time."

AMUSEMENTS

At The Palace.

A picture dealing with a subject that will interest everybody will be the feature at the Palace Theater beginning Wednesday. It is a screen adaptation by Julien Josephson from Harriet T. Comstock's novel, "The Tenth Woman."

The cast is a typical Warner combination of screen stars, including Beverly Bayne, who has just returned to the screen, June Marlowe, John Roche, Raymond McKee, Charles "Buddy" Post, Alec Francis, Edith Yorke, Gilbert Holmes. James Flood is responsible for the direction of this picture.

Willie Brooks, who is saved from suicide by Barry Compton, remains at his ranch as housekeeper. Some time later Barry is compelled to go east on business, and during his visit he renews his friendship with Rose Anne Brainerd, although married, is a typical flapper type. When Barry is about to go home, Rose Ann has a quarrel with her husband, and as a result of her unusual thoughtlessness, she leaves for Barry's ranch, and arrives before he does. Willie, believing Rose Ann is the girl Barry is to marry, decides to leave. When Parry returns, Rose Ann regrets her hasty action and waits for her husband to come to her. Barry, meanwhile, having discovered Willie's flight, starts out for the station after her and is just in time to save her from an accident.

At The Lyric.

Psychology, and the power of good thoughts are given a new angle when they are made the basis for a play. This is the unique feature of "A Chapter in Her Life," Universal's adaptation of Clara Louise Burnham's noted novel, "Jewel," to be seen at the Lyric Theater commencing Wednesday.

It is a play of the minds of people. It bares human brains to teach a great truth, and does it grossly and fearlessly. Its pictured truth dawns fully at the final fade-out.

The story deals with the heart of a little child in an environment of hate, and whose own mind sees the good in people which conquers the evil of the thoughts of others about her.

Claude Gillingwater plays the part of the little girl's millionaire grandfather, a role that gives him greater opportunity for acting than even his many stage successes. Little Jane Mercer, newest discovery on the picture horizon, is seen as the little girl, "Jewel." The remarkable child actress has been the sensation of the picture studios since she began to play the role in the Burnham story.

Lois Weber directed the play and scenarized it from the original novel. The exterior action is particularly scenic, being set in a celebrated California estate. The interiors are copied in detail from the old New York mansion that inspired the author's description in the original book.

MARTYR TO ART

Producer Who Exhibited Ultra Attractive Posters Starves in Jail With Show Crowded.

By The United Press.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Earl Carroll's self imposed "martyrdom" for art's sake came to an end today when the producer was freed on $300 bail put up by his brother. The trial of Carroll for exhibiting indecent pictures in front of his theater was continued over until Thursday.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Through the bars of his cell in Tombs prison, Earl Carroll turned a wan face to the dawn of another day in jail.

A martyr to the freedom of the fig-leaf, suffering all the tortures of a theatrical producer whose income tax return was something around $10,000, he paced his narrow prison in patent leather boots and felt sorry for himself.

Three hundred dollars' bail was all that was required to free young Mr. Carroll and restore him to the land of restricted liberty where he could come and go as he pleased as long as he did not display too frank portraits of the young ladies in his chorus in the lobby of his theater. Did Mr. Carroll have $300 for bail? Absolutely not. Not to liberate him from the Tombs where his presence was a front page story and already has raised prices at his theater to $5.50 per seat.

"I'll starve myself," he moaned, when the Magistrate Moses Ryttenberg in Yorkville court held him for trial in special session on a charge of having exhibited lewd and immoral pictures in front of his theater.

Visions arose. Iced grape fruit, golden brown eggs, crisp bacon, savory coffee. Did Carroll have them for breakfast? He did not.

Forty-five cents is all you can pay for breakfast in the tombs, no matter what your income tax or your love of the nude and you get it from the prison commissary, table d' jail.

The producer is in jail chiefly because City Magistrates are not sufficiently discriminating in the matter of wheel art leaves off and the nude begins. Carroll's show wasn't doing so well until he was arrested for displaying some decidedly artistic portraits of the ladies of the ensemble, in the ensemble and nothing much else.

Then things went fine. Prices went up. Carroll's publicity manager got a raise. Kathryn Ray, one of the fair ones portrayed in the lobby had her jewels stolen because there wasn't room to pin them on her costume. Then Carroll went to jail in the big red wagon to pay penalty for his devotion to art.

A REAL PUZZLE

Hard to Predict Outcome of Election on Basis of Last Three Presidential Races.

By DALE VAN EVERY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4.—Comparison of the results of the last three presidential elections upon a merely mathematical basis yields no common denominator for forecasting the result of the 1924 election other than this—that the result promises to be determined largely by the trend of the states west of the Mississippi.

In 1912 with the Republican Party split into liberal and conservative wings the Democratic Party swept through with an overwhelming victory. In 1916 there was another Democratic victory, by a slight margin this time, with the South and West practically united against an equally united Democratic rival as overwhelming and as apparently abnormal as the Democratic sweep of 1912.

This year has most of the unusual elements of all three of the previous elections and yet cannot strictly be compared to any one of them. Again as in 1912 there are three tickets in the field though this time most observers agree the third does not represent an exclusive split in either party.

Again there seems to be a widely different point of view between the East, South and West, as there was in 1916. And again there seems to be some of the same kind of protest against post-war conditions which figured in the 1920 election.

CROP NEAR END

All Cotton in This Section Will Be Gathered by Dec. 1, Cotton Men Here Believe.

Cotton receipts at the yards in Sweetwater will not reach over 4,000 bales this season, according to the belief of local cotton men. This amount is in addition to the bales sold to the Cotton Bureau or disposed of other than through the local cotton yards.

The opinions on what per cent of the 1924 crops has been gathered, varies among local cotton men, some expressing the belief that only 50 per cent of the crop in this section is gathered, and that the crop as a whole is 68 per cent out. From good local authority, however, it is declared that the local crop is 75 per cent gathered.

A total of 2,948 bales has been received at the yards here up to Monday morning for the entire 1924 season. These figures were expected to reach the 3,000 mark by Tuesday. Last week 350 bales were received at the yards.

Rains during October slightly held up the movement of cotton in West Texas, it is believed, but cotton men are of the opinion that the delay will be outweighed by benefits to the crops. If favorable weather continues, the crop in this section will be all out by Dec. 1, it is stated.

Mrs. Hubert Toler was hostess Monday afternoon at a meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Christian Church, with Mrs. John Hubbard directing an attractive program.

OLD JAIL BIRD

Houston Man, 81, Arrested on all Occasions, Buys Barber Shop to Get Shave.

By The United Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 4.—A. J. Wilds, 81, a cripple, enters his bid for the national jail record for frequent visits. In sixty days he has been lodged in the city jail twenty-two times.

The charges are always one of two—drunk, or disturbing the peace. During the sixty day period Wilds has paid the city of Houston nearly $250 in fines, but the amount was not to be missed from his $100,000 bank account.

Saturday night when Ferguson spoke for "Ma," Wilds felt that he too should make a speech, but he was arrested.

Recently a barber refused to shave him. Wilds bought the barber shop. Then a street car conductor refused to make change for a bill of large denomination, and Wilds tried to buy the car. Again he was arrested.

Wilds says he made his money by working 22 hours a day, sleeping one hour and studying one hour.

PIMPLES AND BUMPS ARE AWFUL PESTS

Girls and women of the most even dispositions are quick to resent attacks on their character, or bold advances. But it is hardly explainable why these same folks tolerate disgusting pimples, blotches, bumps, "breaking out," etc., which are even worse pests than that.

THE SOUL OF A GIRL LAID BARE!

Her Secret — a Secret No Longer!

They knew—all the world knew that she had been living a lie! Gold would not buy happiness—neither would it silence truth. And now the wasted years of her life in her helplessness!

As this story unfolds, one fancies that one is looking into the very souls of living, breathing people—not characters, but people such as we see and know. A lavish presentation of one of the greatest novels ever written.

No one but Lois Weber, the foremost woman director in pictures today, could have successfully produced this masterpiece. It took a woman's understanding and appreciation to interpret and portray all the power and pathos of Clara Louise Burnham's famous novel, "Jewel." The innermost thoughts, the very soul of a girl, her hopes and desires have been picturized in a way that will hold you engrossed and enchanted to the very end. No wonder it has created such a sensation in film circles and has been hailed as one of the outstanding films of the current season.

It is a big, clean, wholesome picture that the whole family can and should see.
