GOUGING A GOOD CUSTOMER

That British citizen who declared that his empire could repay its war debt to America by increasing the price of crude rubber, upon which it has a near monopoly of production and sale, seems to have been a good prophet. But the remarkable recent increase in the price of this product, of which our nation is the chief purchaser, suggests an intent upon Britain's part to be too hasty in retiring its debt at the expense of the American consumer. The result of the recent higher prices will give new impetus to the American effort to create a source of rubber supply that will not place one of its great and growing industries at the mercy of those who now monopolize this product. But years will be required to mature these plans for independence. Meanwhile, American tire users may be under the necessity of paying a price that will make them believe they are paying the whole world's war debt, instead of that of a single nation. America may need all its singular prosperity to stand up under these imposts that are always in evidence when their foreign neighbors get a good whack at them. Hundreds of millions are flowing into foreign coffers as payment for imported goods. "A billion a year will hardly cover the sums that are spent in other nations by American consumers. Being that Americans are so easy in parting with their cash it is not beyond understanding that the thrifty Englishmen should be making hay with this rubber business while the sun of opportunity is shining.

A CORONER TAKES A HAND

After Coroner Oscar Wolff of Cook county, Illinois, had been summoned to hold inquests into 230 deaths caused by motor cars, he decided that it was time to ask the legislature of his state to do something to end the killings. He is in the state capital fighting for the passage of a law that will reduce the toll of automobile accidents by eliminating incompetent drivers, the latter having been responsible for most of the Chicago deaths. The coroner has told the legislature that every competent driver of an automobile knows that his dangers are multiplied by the incompetent driver. Everyone feels that it is not what he does, but what some reckless driver in front of him, or behind him, or beside him does, that strains his nerves or wrecks his car. The good driver has his car under constant control and could handle it safely if all other drivers were good. Then the chief danger would be from the jay walker, and even the stupid or thoughtless pedestrian could be dodged in safety if all drivers were of high class, and responded wisely, promptly, and efficiently to a sudden dangerous situation. It is Coroner Wolff's argument that "any fool can drive a car, and most of them do. Almost any adolescent can drive a car, and a great many of them do. With the exception of the drivers for hire, they take no examinations and need no licenses. The result is chaotic as attested by 230 fatal tragedies in Chicago alone."

Coroner Wolff's purpose is to correct that situation. He would do so by requiring a strict examination and licensing of every person in the state who wishes to drive an automobile. Instead of the family car being driven promiscuously and recklessly by every member or friend of the family, it should be driven only by those who have proved their ability and judgment. Every person thus driving should have the license card on his person. If found driving without it he should be subject to arrest and punishment. If found breaking any traffic law or displaying incompetence either of judgment or of mechanical ability he should lose his license or have the transgression marked up against him for future evidence.

There have been many conferences by experts, but none of them has evolved a plan such as this proposed by a coroner for the control of traffic hazards. It is to be hoped that the Illinois legislature will heed his suggestion. If it were left to the coroners all American streets would be as safe as those of the New Jerusalem.

ADVERTISING TESTED

The worn-out question, "Does Advertising pay?" is answered in Forbes Magazine. Two similar articles, one advertised and one unadvertised, were placed on sale in 100 stores. No attempt was made by store clerks to influence the decisions of purchasers. It was found that 87 per cent of the customers bought the advertised article, six per cent of them bought the unadvertised stuff, and the remaining 7 per cent had no preference.

Even when the unadvertised article was priced lower, 60 per cent of the customers bought the ones which were advertised. Only 24 per cent bought the unadvertised articles.

There might have been a time when advertising was regarded as a donation to a struggling newspaper owner. This is true no longer. Business is business and a newspaper which has to be supported by donations is a failure before it starts, and has little excuse for existence. Business firms in the present day do not hesitate to make donations to charity and civic welfare, but advertising is far from being a donation with them. It is an investment which pays dividends. If it did not pay it would be stopped, and the fact that it is not stopped shows that it does pay.

AN INDIGNANT PRINCE

There is no great tumult at Ellis Island when some humble toiler is returned to shores from whence he came, but it's different when a prince is deported. Mohammed Said Zerdechino, self-styled Emir of Kurdistan, had to go back home because the United States would not recognize his claim to kingship and would not permit him to land. "Woe, woe," he shouted, "if the United States does not do me this justice. Then the world of Islam will unfurl the green banner of the prophet Mohammed and register his deep resentment at the manner in which I have been treated in this country. Americans may also expect similar humiliation when they visit Kurdistan." There has been occasional popular regret that some of the workers who make the long traverse to Ellis Island have to go back home, with only a fleeting glance at the Statue of Liberty and an enforced farewell to all their dreams of American opportunity. But there will be no sorrow for the departure of this spurious prince. He should learn better manners. No nation's immigration gates ever open at a threat.

It will be easy to get the nations together once their notions are together.

from New Orleans to San Francisco; we have two weeks' engagement at Philadelphia and could get many more if we could get off.

If boys and their parents only knew what learning band music meant to them as you, there would be a wild scramble to get into your organization, the learning of band music is no doubt the best and most profitable investment that a boy can make.

Our band goes into camp at Palacious, July 3, for 15 days. If you have any boys who would like to make it with us, have them write to me. Also any of them interested in the college work, have them get in touch with me.

I congratulate you and your most wonderful organization.

Your Electric Lamp!

Romance! Have you ever thought of its connection with the lamp which illuminates your home, office or factory?

Here are some of the things that go into its making—materials and minerals assembled from all parts of the world:

- Potash from Germany.
- Feldspar from Sweden.
- Manganese from the Caucasus.
- Cork and Pyrex from Spain.
- Shellac from India.
- Tin from the Malay States.
- Tungsten from Japan.
- Sodium Carbonate from British East Africa.
- Gun. Alacal from the Sudan.
- Bamuth from Australia.
- Cryolite from Greenland.
- Cobalt and Nickel from Ontario.
- Molybdenum from Quebec.
- Nire from Chile.

And back home again, the lamp draws lead from Missouri, calcium, lime, soda and arsenic from various parts of the United States, marble dust from Vermont, alcohol from Indiana, resin from Georgia, cotton from Texas, wool from Montana, mica from North Carolina, copper from Utah, Montana, Wisconsin and New Mexico.

There are things that we have missed, but we have given enough to show that your commonplace electric lamp is more than an object—it is a romantic story of science and invention.

HERMLEIGH NEWS

(By Special Correspondent.)

Band Returns

The delegation that accompanied the Hermleigh band to Mineral Wells to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, returned the latter part of the week. They all reported a nice time, although they were almost washed away the last night they were there by the heavy rains. Hermleigh's band won first place in the one-year old band contest. The town is very proud of this and feels sure that the band is proud of being under the competent directorship of Claude Henderson.

Mrs. Ross Williams entertained the young people of this community with a party Saturday night. On account of the rains, not a very large crowd attended.

The students of the McCauley school presented the play, "The Path Across the Hill" Saturday night. Hugh Chff a young man from Hermleigh, who is teaching school at McCauley, was one of the leading characters.

House Burns

The residence occupied by Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Watson, was completely destroyed by fire early Monday morning. The contents and structure was a complete loss. Mrs. Watson, at the time, was visiting their daughter in Dallas and Mr. Watson barely escaped with his life. The bed in which he was sleeping being on fire when he was awaked. The fire is supposed to have started from an oil stove. The loss is covered by insurance.

Rev. Stewart, the Presiding Elder of this district, preached at the First Methodist church Sunday night, after which quarterly conference was held.

The Ira baseball team played the Hermleigh baseball team here Monday. The scores were three to four in favor of Hermleigh.

Saturday afternoon the Hermleigh baseball team defeated the McCauley baseball team.

The Hermleigh baseball team motored over to Westbrook Sunday where they played the Westbrook team.

C. W. Hooper has returned after an extended trip to California.

The extra quality built into the extra process of Gum-Dipping, the extra of these wondrous tires and the added mileage obtained from them during the past two years, has created such a large demand that the Firestone's mammoth production is now Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords.

This has greatly increased the total sales volume and the huge Firestone factories are now working on a 24-hour schedule to supply the demand.

This large volume, produced under the most economical tire manufacturing methods, permits Firestone to sell these extra-process Full-Size Balloons at no extra cost to car owners. And this in the face of greatly advanced cost for crude rubber brought about by the operation of the British Rubber Restriction Act.

Gum-Dipping means longer mileage—greater economy—at no extra cost to you!
