Funeral Train Leaves Dayton

Simplicity and Lack of Ceremony Mark Placing of Bryan's Body on Train for Last Trip to Capitol.

CITIZENS GATHER AT STATION

Simple Folks of Tennessee Hills Say Hushed Farewell to Champion of Their Cause; Town Is Deserted.

By United Press.
ABOARD THE BRYAN FUNERAL TRAIN TO WASHINGTON, July 29.—Leaving behind a sorrowing little Tennessee town whose citizens, almost to the last man, woman and child, gathered to witness the departure, a train with two special cars attached today bore toward Washington the remains of William Jennings Bryan.

The simplicity and lack of ceremony, which, at the request of Mrs. Bryan, marked the reverent placing of Bryan's casket in its car, served only to emphasize the depth of feeling with which Dayton saw the last of its champion.

At the little railroad station before the train pulled out at 9 o'clock, there gathered the simple folk of the Tennessee hills whose call the Commoner had espoused. They came to say the last hushed farewell, leaving the little town, quiet and deserted, behind them.

All Dayton Present

All the ordinary activities of the day were laid aside for a while, as all came to watch the funeral train depart.

Mrs. Bryan refused to see the features of her husband in death, fearing a collapse. She was led into the little parlor where the body lay last night at her own request, but kept her eyes to the floor.

Mrs. Bryan Is Invalid

"I won't look at him until the very last," she said. "I feel that if I look at him now I will break down, and I must prevent myself from doing that."

"I don't want to look at him until the casket is closed for the last time." An invalid for the last five years, Mrs. Bryan is unable to use either legs or arms, owing to a form of paralysis.

Burial in Arlington

WASHINGTON, July 29.—High upon Dewey Knoll, in Arlington National Cemetery, overlooking the Potomac and Washington, the body of William Jennings Bryan, apostle of peace, will be interred Friday afternoon.

Only the simplest services will be read in keeping with the desires of the departed leader and his widow who has avowed "we are simple folk."

Not all plans for the funeral of the Commoner have been completed, but such as have been tentatively approved ignore all military and other ceremonial display. Upon the arrival of the funeral train here Thursday morning, the body will be moved quietly to a mortuary chapel to await the assemblage of the far flung family.

William Jennings Bryan, Jr., the Commoner's son, is not due until Friday.

Services, probably at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, where Lincoln worshipped, followed by a funeral cortege to Arlington and interment there of the body will end the last journey Friday.

Beautiful Resting Place

The final resting place of the commoner is one of the most beautiful spots in the cemetery. Nearby is the Dewey Memorial, where until recently, rested the naval commander of the war in which Bryan served. Not far away is the tomb of the unknown soldier. All around lie the heroes of the war with Spain. Behind the knoll march endless rows of crosses marking the grave of World War dead.

Body To Church

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, July 29.—The body of William Jennings Bryan will lie in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, where Lincoln worshipped, from its arrival here tomorrow morning until final interment in Arlington Cemetery Friday afternoon.

According to arrangements announced by Ben G. Davis, former secretary of the "Commoner," the body will be transferred from the funeral train on its arrival here to a funeral parlor and thence to the church.

Obeys Bible

Thomas Thompson, 48, of Cincinnati, took seriously the biblical injunction. "If thy right hand offend thee, cut it off." He by leaping a railroad track and thrust his right arm under the wheels of a train, holding it above the wheels. Taken to a hospital in a serious condition, he explained "The Lord told me to do it."

JAPAN HONORS DECEASED ENVOY

Nation Plans to Send Body of Edgar A. Bancroft to United States Aboard Warship

MISSION TO ACCOMPANY

Rear Admiral To Head Mission To Accompany Remains of Ambassador to His Home

By United Press.

TOKIO, July 29.—Japan plans rare honors for America's dead ambassador, Edgar A. Bancroft. It was learned today that this government is disposed to send his remains to the United States aboard a warship, accompanied by a mission probably headed by rear admiral Camaura.

Bancroft was the third American envoy to die suddenly in Japan, and his passing after a period of convalescence came as a great shock to the large party of United States congressmen here on a junketing trip.

The foreign office manifested its esteem of the American envoy in a declaration that it was "tremendously shocked" at his sudden demise.

FIND SKELETON

Gigantic Petrified Skeleton of Prehistoric Animal Is Unearthed by Santa Barbara Quake

By United Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., July 29.—A gigantic petrified skeleton, which scientists have not yet decided was a mastodon or prehistoric toothed whale, has been discovered on Green Mountain, highest point on historic San Miguel Island, 30 miles from Santa Barbara's shoreline.

San Miguel Island was badly rocked during the recent earthquake, and many of its tall cliffs tumbled into the sea.

The skeleton's tusks measured 15 feet in length, and together with the mammal's skull were found protruding above the ground at the summit of the mountain. The balance of the bones were buried in the earth's surface, but the entire skeleton was virtually intact.

If the find proves to be a mastodon it will disrupt the entire sequence of geology as worked out by scientists on the Pacific coast, according to D. B. Rogers, Smithsonian excavator. If it is a toothed whale, its discovery will be an equally valuable contribution to science and history.

"If it is a whale," Rogers said, "it died about the time the bottom of the sea rose as it had been exposed to the air during the process of petrification, and is therefore imperfect and brittle. If it had petrified beneath the water, I believe it would have been as solid and hard as other specimens we have in the museum."

Capt. Bob Ord, veteran Santa Barbara navigator, made the discovery, and reported his find to scientific investigators. Except for the tusk of a sabre-toothed tiger found there 10 years ago, no mammal had ever been found on the quake heaved island before.

Jap Puzzle Prizes

OSKA, Japan July 29.—The Cross Word Puzzle mania, along with radio, has struck Japan with full force.

Japanese lends itself readily to puzzle construction because of the prevalence of short words in the language. A puzzle contest being conducted by a local newspaper already has yielded more than 400,000 answers, 300,000 of which are correct. The newspaper will draw lots for the prizes—a motor boat, a donkey and a monkey.

Dallas Police Keep Ex-Soldier Under Surveillance After Receipt Threatening Letter

By United Press.

DALLAS, July 29.—Dallas police ordered today to keep under surveillance William B. Walls, World War veteran, following receipt of a threatening letter alleged to have been written to General Arthur T. Hines at Washington.

Washington authorities returned the letter here. In the letter, the writer told Hines:

"I am giving you 15 days notice to do something for me. I am hungry and out of work. We need help, but you won't give us any."

The letter advised Hines that the writer would arrive in Washington in 15 days and "I am bringing my six-shooter with me."

Questioned, Walls admitted writing a "foolish sounding letter," detectives said.

WEST TEXAS IS SOAKED

Precipitation Extends Over Wide Territory North to Panhandle; Nolan County Is Drenched; Rains Extend West.

Rains Tuesday afternoon and during the night soaked a large area of West Texas, brought relief to many sections where dry weather menaced cotton and other crop productions, and broke the intense heat of the past several weeks.

Showers came at an opportune time in various counties, according to reports received here today, practically cinching cotton crops, grain sorghums and brightening the outlook for a larger acreage of winter wheat over West Texas. The shower that fell in Nolan county late Tuesday was of great benefit to all crops, coming at a time when rain was needed badly.

PROGRESS

If there is one statement that ought to be allowed to die speedily and quietly, it is "It was good for our fathers, so it's good enough for us."

MOTOR DEATHS

Traffic accidents during June alone in sixteen states caused the death and injury of as many persons as the combined Union and Confederate casualties in the Battle of Bull Run.

A survey covering only one-third of the nation, shows that in the 30 days of this one month 376 persons were killed and 13,773 injured on the highways.

These figures indicate that even in this limited area 12 fatalities and 400 less serious casualties occur on the average during every 24 hour period.

Chicago is the most dangerous city for the jay-walker if these reports are to be taken as a criterion. That city reported 91 deaths during June, and 1034 persons injured. New York was a close second, with 86 deaths and 9,585 hurt.

Sixty-four persons were killed and about 2,000 injured in Massachusetts. Forty deaths occurred in Los Angeles county, California, where 746 minor casualties were reported.

Records in other cities were as follows: Portland, Ore., four dead, 123 injured; Buffalo, N. Y., nine and 34; Denver, Colo., three killed; Philadelphia, nine dead, 31 hurt; Wilmington, Del., two and six; Camden, N. J.,

MIGHT AS WELL RETREAT

Out of Washington comes the story that General Dawes is not going to prosper very well with his effort to put a padlock upon the voice and independence of the senate, and keep the key in his own pocket.

In the first place the general has opposition because his plan is wrong. The idea is abroad that the country is not likely to suffer because the senate has too much power, but rather that it has too little emergencies, or when its opposition is needed to restrain unpopular programs, or assaults upon the constitution.

There are other reasons why Gen. Dawes is getting nowhere with his "reform." In the first place a protracted fight over this side issue would delay the passage of important legislation.

The general marched his minority little army noisily up the hill. It looks as if he will have to march down again, but not in excellent order.

Blue Lighted

LONDON, July 29.—The appearance of a large automobile with a powerful blue light on the front of the canopy over the driver's seat has puzzled American tourists—and for that matter many Londoners—during their jaunts in the West End.

It is one of two cars used by King George and Queen Mary, and the blue light has solved a problem that puzzled the police authorities for some time.

When the king and queen were returning from a function at night their car was often held up in the traffic. So the blue light was fixed to two of the automobiles.

Whenever one appears, no matter what time of the night, it is given right of way, other traffic being held up.

Freckles And His Friends

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The White House here in the absence of President Coolidge is being deluged with suggestions for his amusement during his vacation.

Evidently feeling that Mr. Coolidge has been unable to find enough to do at Swampscott where he is spending the summer, people write advising him to seek recreation by learning to play the saxophone, to climb mountains or to do nothing.

Discussion of the President's vacation interested the capitol almost immediately after his departure. It was stimulated by reports that he was

AMUSEMENTS

PALACE

A self-made man marries a cultured lady. The man is rough, unprincipled ambitious to a fault and his only interest in the matrimonial bonds is the social advancement it will bring him. The woman mocks love and the wedding vows for money.

Such is the plot of "Gerald Cranston's Lady," booked for two nights at the Palace theatre, beginning today. The photoplay is an adaptation from the current season's best seller of the same name by Gilbert Frankau, leading English novelist of the modern school.

The cast includes James Kirkwood, Alma Rubens, Marguerite De La Motte, J. Ferrell MacDonald and others.

LYRIC

Ed Cobb as a real live-wire "detective" in "Midnight Shadows" an Arrow-Ben Wilson production, is featured at the Lyric Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Ed puts this role over in his usual daredevil style and stops at nothing to give his fans a thrill. He crosses a rocky gorge by rope and while in mid-air the rope is cut by the chief villain and Ed drops many feet below into the gorge. He also does a lot of hard riding and surpasses his previous work to make this picture first class.

There is romance interwoven in the story and a little humor is introduced by Ashton Dearholt as the colored porter who goes to roost with the chickens.

Hobby-Horse Chair on Springs Kept Cromwell in Training

One of the reasons for Oliver Cromwell's fame is the fact that he successfully developed the cavalry units of his army to a high degree of efficiency.

demonstrating the value of horses in many battles. An interesting sidelight on this phase of his career has attracted attention recently in a curious armchair with a seat resting on high springs extending above the bottom frame. When home from campaigns and too busy to take regular exercise on his mount, Cromwell is said to have exercised in this chair, bouncing up and down for a short period each day to keep himself accustomed to the motions of horseback riding. The relic is now in the possession of Premier Baldwin of England and was demonstrated by him when friends visited him at his residence.

Radio Control on Railways to Start and Run Trains

A radio system capable of operating railway trains, throwing switches, and providing means of communication with messengers, all from a central point, has been described by G. T. Allen, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. It is entirely possible, he said, through a combination of electric and radio supervisory control, to start a train without a crew from a station, operate it at full speed, or to slow or stop it, automatically in compliance with automatic block signals, permitting a central dispatcher to control and supervise completely all movements of trains on a system. The carrier-current of signaling and communication, as the process is called, is based on the principle that wireless waves will practically follow along the course of wires without leaving them, if propelled in a certain way.

Making Giants Out of Mice and Men

Rats as large as mecoons and guinea pigs as big as badgers are possibilities as a result of a discovery by a scientist at the University of California, while its application to cattle, sheep and hogs, as well as to geese, ducks and chickens, would result in such an increase in size and rapidity of growth that one-half the live stock now produced would furnish the same quantity of foodstuffs as those raised today.

The discovery was made, after nine years' work, by Dr. Herbert M. Evans, who also announced that he had found that barren animals may be made capable of producing young by feeding them with a certain food. The first of these findings is that the extract of the pituitary gland, a tiny organ hidden in the base of the brain, when injected into the tissues of living creatures, no matter what their age, starts a period of growth limited in time, amount and rapidity only by the quantity administered and the duration of administration. Rats born in the same litter and treated daily with "pituitrin" extract outgrew by fifty per cent other rats of the same litter reared under the same conditions but without pituitrin.

Dr. Evans says he does not know when it will be possible to apply this treatment to human beings, because his experiments are not yet complete, and because of the difficulty of obtaining a purified extract from the pituitary gland. The fluid which was used in the experiments was obtained from tadpoles. If, however, the administration of the pituitary extract produces the same result in all rats, regardless of age or sex, there is every reason to believe that it will have the same effect on larger animals, even to man.

Making Crystals at Home

Good crystals can be made at home. Crystal set users are always anxious to try new crystals, and many of these now on the market are not as good as those they should be. The ingredients used are powdered lead and sulphur, and when properly made will equal, in clearness and volume many of the best commercial types. Lead shavings can be melted on an iron plate over a gas stove, but if the crystal maker is equipped with a porcelain crucible and Bunsen burner, the lead can be handled more easily.

Methods of Making Lead and Sulphur on Iron Plate and in Crucible for Making Synthetic Crystals

When the lead is molten, sprinkle powdered sulphur over it and stir with an iron wire. The lead, if hot enough, will then burn with a blue flame, and the result is a synthetic form of lead sulphide, which, when cool, will act as a good detector.

PALE, NERVOUS

West Virginia Lady Says That She Was in a Serious Condition, But Is Stronger After Taking Cardui.

Huntington, W. Va.—"I was in a very weak and run-down condition—in fact, was in a serious condition," says Mrs. Fannie C. Bloss, of 1964 Madison Avenue, this city.

"In my left side the pain was very severe. It would start in my back and sides. Part of the time I was in bed and when up I didn't feel like doing anything or going anywhere.

"Life wasn't any pleasure. I was very pale. I was nervous and thin, and so tired all the time.

"My druggist told me that Cardui was a good tonic for women and I bought a couple of bottles. I took two bottles, then I noticed an improvement. I kept on and found it was helping me. I have taken nine bottles. I'm stronger now than I have been in a long time."

Cardui is made from milder medicinal herbs with a gentle, tonic, strengthening effect upon certain female organs and upon the system in general.
