VOLE BY WIRE

Governor Ferguson adopted somewhat of a unique method to ascertain the sentiment of the state legislature with reference to measures for the stamping out of the hoof and mouth disease in Texas, without calling that body in special session.

On Saturday a wire was sent to each one to see how the y would vote on repayment of $400,000 if the state borrowed that amount to fight the cattle disease.

The saving to the state of the expense of a special session was doubtless the motive of the governor, but the method is hardly legal. For every representative must stand the hazards of an election campaign before the legislature convenes again in regular session. Even assuming that all of them were candidates for reelection, which of course will not be the case, there are many who will not be re-elected. Presumably a majority however, will be seen in the next legislature unless there is a landslide of altogether unlooked for proportions.

In the meantime the State of Texas must not stint in funds for the prompt eradication of the Hoof and Mouth disease. For citizens can be assured that the cost will be much greater if it is not stopped now. Delay will only pile up the expense.

CARELESSNESS

One of the strongest lessons of Fire Prevention Week is the fact that carelessness plays a very large part in nearly all fires. Accumulations of rubbish are allowed to remain where a carelessly tossed cigarette butt can finish up the job. Or oily rags or waste are allowed to lie where spontaneous combustion can get in its deadly work. There is a very strong argument for cleanliness in Fire Prevention Week.

Another excellent contributing factor to fires is faulty flues. After a few years of use, the mortar drops out from between and around the bricks in the chimney. This lets the sparks fly out to set fire to wall paper, partitions, closets, etc. Or it some times happens that wall paper is applied right over a flue opening in a chimney from one room while a stove is set up and run into the flue from another side. Another good opportunity for fires.

Inspection of flues and of premises to prevent accumulation of rubbish are two things that every householder can do to help cut down the percentage of preventable fires.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—New York's most sophisticated people are its most primitive. It seems to me, although that statement may appear as something of a paradox.

What I mean is that there is more savagery to be found in the smart night clubs than anywhere else in town. Much of it is painted savagery, the sort that runs to beads and baubles and all the other childish adornments of barbaric tribes, except the nose ring.

Then, too, the conduct of the night clubbers is largely a matter of primitive passions and very little of mental processes, even though you see among them leaders in the various arts and professions.

And then there is Greenwich Village, by repute the rendezvous of the country's sophisticates. In reality it is the forest primeval in which the normal person becomes lost in a maze of towering memorials to human decadence. It is there that sophistication becomes sophistication in its real sense—adulterated passions, watered emotions and erotic appetites.

What a disappointment for one to go there seeking a glimpse of artists and musicians and the great of the stage and to find a dimly lit dive with a negro at the piano and a white girl singing ballads, while several couples are trying to dance on a sawdust-covered floor!

Or to enter a cellar dive to see young girls making themselves sick with nicotine and bootleg!

The Village in its present state represents the back room of the saloon of a generation ago. It represents drunkenness, harlotry and all kinds of pernicious vices.

Please do not believe that I have turned reformer. I hate all reformers and all busybodies. The thing that stirs me to these more or less impassioned remarks about New York's pleasures is the hypocrisy of those who take part in them. Hypocrisy among the worldly is just as repulsive as among the Uriah Heeps of the world.

And I am stirred to these remarks by the thought that there is so much of beauty to be enjoyed in New York so many worth while things to see and hear and do, yet the cankers in the social scheme of things here are fed and fostered by the out-of-towners who come here.

And I am writing this to be read by out-of-towners, many of whom will come here sooner or later.

—JAMES W. DEAN.

Regular Eating Held Essential to One's Health

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMINGS, Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service. The human body is the most complex, the most wonderful structure with which man is acquainted, and yet how little the average person, even the average educated person, knows about himself. There are certain persons who seize a few crumbs of truth and magnify them until they make people believe that nothing else is important.

One person, for example, proposes to save the country's health by breathing exercises, another by chewing every bite of beefsteak fifty-seven times; one, by eating no meat and another, by taking a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

Good habits in eating have a lot to do with health and efficiency and perhaps even with disposition, not to say, happiness. Next to colds and diseases of the respiratory tract, people usually suffer more from digestive troubles than from almost any other ailment.

Good eating habits require that you take into account not only how to eat, but what to eat, when to eat, how much you should eat and what you should not eat. Every person should study this subject for himself.

Be regular in your eating habits. Eating at all hours of the day and night is sure to cause trouble.

If you suffer from indigestion, skip a meal occasionally and give your stomach a chance to rest, but do not counteract the good effect that this has done by overloading your stomach at the next meal.

Do not take violent exercise, or take baths immediately following a full meal.

Many Eat Too Fast and Too Much.

Most people eat too fast, and many adults, particularly those of sedentary habits, eat too much.

One's mental attitude has much to do with digestion; anxiety, anger and worry seriously interfere with digestion and nutrition.

The average growing boy and girl need three square meals a day. They should be taught to eat wholesome vegetables and should not be allowed to over-indulge in starches and sweets, particularly between meals.

Overweight in adults, particularly after 30, is usually an indication that such an individual is over-eating, certain kinds of food at least, or he may be under-exercising, or he may be doing both.

Every extra pound you carry is just that much more extra strain on heart, liver, kidneys and other internal organs.

Reduce your in-take of starches, such as bread, potatoes, beans, peas, bananas, also your fats, such as butter, cream, fat meats and chocolate.

You should also limit your sweets, particularly pastries and candy.

Take systematic daily physical exercise, out of doors, if possible, and do not over-sleep.

HURT IN ACCIDENT

Sweetwater Girl Receives Broken Arm Three Other Hurt—Car Overturns

Miss Frankie Bishop sustained a broken arm and Miss Zelma Shook, Dayton Foy and Albert Spencer were slightly injured when the touring car occupied by them overturned on the Bankhead Highway two miles east of Lorraine Sunday afternoon.

The four, all of Sweetwater, were carried to Lorraine where a physician treated the injuries.

The car, a Wayne Stiles rent car, hit a sand bed and got beyond control, overturning in the road, according to reports of the accident. The car was badly damaged, the top, wind shield and steering wheel being destroyed in the accident.

Don't cook all over the house!

Mrs. Ida Chitwood, in her lectures in the Cooking School conducted by this newspaper explains that it is not necessary to have your whole house smell of smoke whenever you have deep frying to do.

"With Crisco," she says, "you need not heat your fat to the smoking point, because Crisco's proper frying temperature is below its burning (or smoking) point."

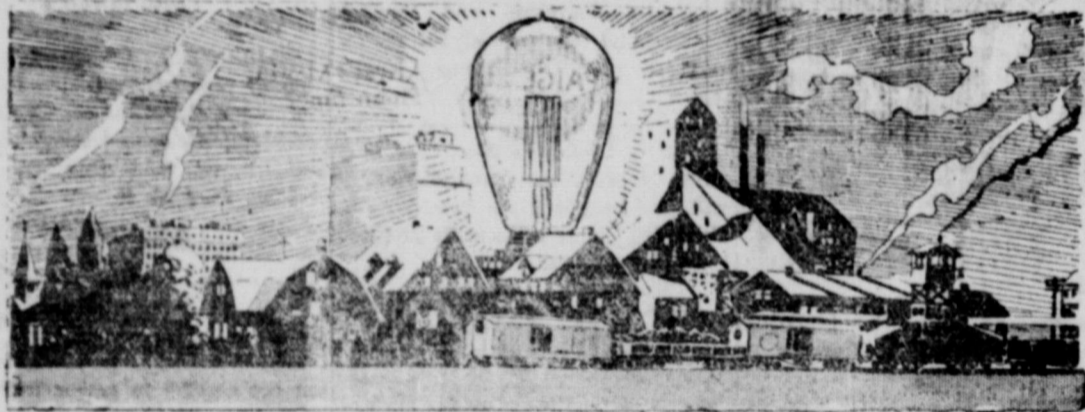

Not alone in frying does Crisco improve cooking results, but it also excels as shortening for all pastries, cakes and biscuits.

Back of Civilization The Magic of Electricity

ELECTRICITY is indeed, the fore-runner of civilization. It has made possible hundreds of ways of lightening toil, of speeding up production, of lowering living costs.

In your own home, you will find scores of uses for Electricity. There's the vacuum cleaner, electric stoves, electric waffle iron, electric washing machines, electric percolators—not to mention the greatest use of all—that of light.

Make your home, office and your factory a better place to live and work in—take advantage of Electricity. For service at all times use Electricity.
