Progress of Nolan County Fair Oct. 28-31 Told—Exhibition Building Nearly Ready

NOTE TO AID CHARITY

Club Appropriates $10 Per Month Toward Support of Recently Organized Charity Board

The road situation, the Nolan County Fair here Oct. 28-31, a leading field for airplanes in Sweetwater and the decision to appropriate $10 per month toward the upkeep of the recently organized charity board were the principal items of business to occupy the attention of the Sweetwater Club at the regular session Thursday at noon at the Hotel Wright.

Owing to the absence of the toastmaster, M. B. Howard, called to Dallas by the serious injury of his father, the program was extemporaneous in its nature, president Will Wade presiding.

County Judge A. S. Mauzey discussed the road situation in Nolan County with special reference to the visit of Joe Burkett, member of the Commission who visited in Sweetwater Thursday. Judge Mauzey declared that the Highway Department asked the county to finance Highway No. 70 only until next March when more funds would be available.

John A. McCurdy, secretary of the Fair told of progress on the Fair Buildings. Nearly all the space in the 90x175 building has been sold and it is thought that merchants exhibits can begin to be placed Saturday.

D. A. Clark, president and Clifton Perkins also discussed the fair. Volunteers to take tickets, attend the gate and for various other activities in connection with the fair will be needed, it was emphasized.

Guy Morris told of the progress of the transcontinental air mail line and its value to the town should it go through Sweetwater and urged the necessity of an airplane landing field in this town in connection with the proposition.

Rev. J. T. McKissick, president of the Charity Board told of the work the organization and the club voted unanimously to appropriate $10 per month toward its expenses.

Morris Gets One Year's Suspended Sentence—Kendrick's Four Year Sentence Suspended

B. S. Morris was given one year suspended sentence by a jury in district court here late Wednesday. Both the state's attorneys and the defense counsel asked that the sentence be suspended.

Morris pled guilty to charges of possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor. He was the main witness in the trial of A. Duncan here this week who was convicted and sentenced to two years in prison on similar charges. Morris and Duncan were charged jointly with the offense.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty and a four-year suspended sentence in the case of state of Texas vs. C. F. Kendrick, charged with forgery. Kendrick is alleged to have cashed a check for $21 in a local store, signed with the name W. A. Hall.

E. V. Earp was defense attorney in the Morris trial. Attorney Snodgrass of Coleman defended Kendrick.

Trial of Opel Woodson, youth captured in an attic in a west side house here recently by police chief Headrick began Thursday morning. The boy is charged with burglary.

Woodson was later remanded to jail when a flaw in the indictment was discovered. He will be re-indicted, it was indicated.

Gins Turning Out 250 Bales Per Day—Season Late, Only 3,000 Ginned So Far This Year

While cotton is coming into the Roscoe gins at the rate of around 250 bales a day, a total of only 3,000 bales have been ginned so far this year according to Tom Dobbins, head of the Roscoe State Bank, in Sweetwater Thursday on business.

The six Roscoe gins are working night and day in an endeavor to keep up with the fleecy flood, which it is estimated will run over 12,000 bales by the time the season is over. The Roscoe cotton is grading high this year and is bringing around 22c a pound.

On the last bank call, Roscoe showed combined deposits of around $325,000. The call came ten days earlier than last year and combined with lateness of the season showed a decline. Deposits are now over the half million mark, it is reported.

EDITORIAL

When in 1923 Nolan County voted bonds in the sum of $600,000 for the purpose of improving the state highways through this county definite assurance was given by the State Highway Commission that this county had been allotted $300,000 to match this sum from state and federal funds. The State Highway body, Nolan County was told, had this sum available and if the bond issue were approved then the said sum would be set aside. Nolan county accepted this proposition in good faith and carried the bond issue by a good majority.

In the meantime the personnel of the State Highway Commission changed. Two years have elapsed. Some mileage of roads have been graded and ready for hard surfacing.

Not only has the State Highway Commission failed to advertise for contracts to complete the Nolan County program, but it now calmly comes along, says it is out of funds, and wants Nolan county to finance the south end of Highway No. 70 through Blackwell to the Nolan county line.

Nolan county judge and commissioners have an audience with the State Highway Department next Monday, October 26. The Nolan county voters will listen with great interest to just what the State Highway Department has to say, what alibi it will endeavor to offer for its negligence in completing the Nolan County program and what has become of the $600,000 supposed to have been allotted to this county.

Nolan County has no animosity toward the State Highway Department but it does want some roads. It has put up its money and has waited a long time for action. Its patience, however, is beginning to be exhausted.

BALKAN STATES ON EVE OF WAR

Greeks and Bulgars Engage In Combat On Macedonia Frontier Mutually Claim Invasion

LEAGUE OF NATION SILENT

No Report of Action Available—Jugo Slavia Rushing Troops To Her Frontier lead all Greece By United Press.

Greece and Bulgaria are locked in combat today near the rim of Macedonia and reports out of the Balkans indicate that numerous casualties have already occurred. A Sofia dispatch recounts that the Bulgarian Cabinet is called to meet tonight to decide whether or not Bulgaria should declare war on Greece.

In the meantime diplomats at Sofia and Athens are frantically trying to stem the war spirit. Neither nation has even answered the others sharp demands arising from what the Greeks call the Bulgarian invasion of Macedonia and the Bulgarians call the Greek invasion of their territory.

No reports have come concerning any action by the League of Nations. The Bulgar village of Coula was occupied by the Greeks following their capture of Petritsi yesterday and fighting was in full swing when today cables were filed.

Bulgaria is thinking of declaring war but is ill equipped to wage it as her armament is practically non-existent as the result of Allied conditions imposed at the close of the war.

However London messages indicate a great deal of anxiety lest the present trouble spread through the Balkan powder keg.

At the present writing the situation contains elements which may lead to complications in the Balkans, the ancient trouble spot of Europe.

The Bulgarian move in the Petritsi district is confirmed today and is being undertaken by the Greeks in order to enforce demands for reparations in connection with Bulgarian raids in Demirhisar and their occupation of that region.

Protest to League

ORIENT HEAD TO ATTEND SESSION

President W. T. Kemper Expected to Meet With County Judges of West Texas Monday

MANY JUDGES ARE COMING

Responses from Nearly All Counties Received by West Texas Chamber of Commerce

Special to Reporter.

STAMFORD, Oct. 22.—President W. T. Kemper of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient will attend the meeting called at Sweetwater next Monday of county judges of all counties traversed by that system, it was announced by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Responses have been received from the executives of all the sixteen counties in Texas through which this line passes signifying intention to attend the session.

Some secrecy enfolds this meeting. Just what the purpose is in calling the judges together has not been disclosed, but it is surmised that the assembly is to reach an understanding on a uniform taxable valuation in the several counties, together with an effort to get the whole-hearted co-operation of the several county units looking to a complete rehabilitation of the line through Federal subsidy.

A press report that an effort would be made to obtain an additional loan from the Government to carry on the reorganization program has been denied here. However, it is known that the session in Sweetwater is to line up interests looking to a complete reorganization of the Orient so that it may be enabled to function as other roads.

It is denied here that the Orient is seeking further financial aid from the Government. Removal of hitches in the affairs of the system due to holding up authority of a recent receivership sale is one of the things sought, it is believed.

The meeting at Sweetwater is to be one of the most memorable in the annals of the Orient Railroad. County judges will be there from the following counties: Hardeman, Foard, Knox, Haskell, Jones, Fisher, Coke, Tom Green, Irion, Reagan, Upton, Crockett, Pecos, Brewster and Presidio.

President Kemper has been identified with the Orient for several years. Until the line came out of receivership Kemper was its receiver. He has expressed all along confidence that it would some day develop into one of the best paying systems in the United States. It is understood that he is interested in the road financially.

A rumor has been current in West Texas for the past several weeks that the Southern Pacific system in now in a frame of mind to negotiate for the purchase of this system. Just such a thing was desired by the Interstate Commerce Commission and other organizations two or three years ago, but the Southern Pacific seemed disinclined to take over the properties. At the time a very minute examination was made of all the properties of the company by officials and stockholders of the Southern Pacific system.

EVERYBODY HOPES IT LASTS

All European diplomats who took part in the conference at Locarno had a lovefeast after signing their new agreements to keep the peace. Germany and France shook hands across the bloody chasm. They decided that there shall be no further wars over the boundary lines of these nations. As far as paper pledges can assure it, frontiers established by the Treaty of Versailles will stand. France gets assurance that in case some new power in Germany calls this agreement off it will have the help of England in repelling invasions of its country. In exchange for joining in this bargain the Germans will find the way open to new international credits that are needed to rehabilitate its industry. France will not have to live in fear of another outbreak of war, while England will profit from European trade whose revival is believed to be possible through the peace of Locarno.

In coming to this harmony of action the principal powers of the old world seem to have taken a sensible step. The only wonder is that they had to keep squabbling for seven years following Armistice day before reaching the conclusion that there is more profit for all in peace and industry than in a policy of hate and distrust that leads inevitably to another war. A test of the sincerity underlying the new pact will come when President Coolidge invites the nations to another disarmament conference. If Europe is truly converted to the idea of brotherly love, and has resolved in earnestness to fight no more, there ought to be no further occasion to make every nation over there a parade ground for armies. Let there be more room for mills and plows.

EDITORIALS

By Chester H. Rowell

Most of the nasty printed matter in the United States comes out of New York, complains the board of temperance and morals of the Methodist Church.

Of course! So does most of the virtuous printed matter. Probably the most edifying religious literature is published in New York than anywhere else in America.

New York is a factory and distributor of print, as of everything else, and comes nearer to having a monopoly of periodical publications than of any other commodity.

And the printing press has no conscience. It will turn out fish or pearls with equal impersonality.

Of course somebody does have responsibility. "Guilt is personal," as Woodrow Wilson said.

Sometimes a great many somebody-in New York has found out that what is more openly and widely salable than it used to be, and the market is therefore supplied.

Guilt is primarily on the purveyor of such goods. But it is also on the buyers. These things are not sold in New York.

Most of them are sold elsewhere if rural police are less vigilant than they once were against obscene literature. If rural populations buy more of it, the guilt is national.

These things go in waves. We are in an era of frankness, which is a virtue. The degenerate aberrations of frankness are its by-product.

They need repressing, not only at the source, but all over the country. We have been through that in the moving pictures. It is now the turn of the printed page.

"Old Guard" leaders of the Senate are reported to have sent to Wisconsin for a copy of "Young Bob" LaFollette's "Declaration of Principles" as the first step toward reading LaFollette out of the Republican party.

What have "principles" to do with it? LaFollette's platform can not differ from the Republican declaration more than that of Senator Borah, for instance, who is not only still recognized as a Republican, but is made the official Republican leader on the very issue on which he repudiates the party platform. Senator Lodge, "regular" of regulars, was not read out when he did the same thing. The Old Guarders themselves did not read themselves out when they used Republican policy on the tax bill, the bonus, and other issues.

It is not principles. It is "standing in." The Republican voters of Wisconsin made "Young Bob" the regular Republican nominee and then elected him. The only candidate against him were bolters, running independent.

If a candidate after the Old Guard's own heart had thus won the regular nomination, any bolter running against him would have been read out of the party.

If the rule does not work both ways, it is because the Old Guard considers itself regular even when it bolts, and the other side irregular even when it has the regular nominations and is endorsed by the regular organization.

World Court Fight Goes On

Announcement is made of the opening of a national campaign against the policy of President Coolidge and of both parties on the world court, to start with a speech by Senator Borah in Chicago Oct. 20, and to be continued by Mrs. Medill McCormick and others.

This means, of course, that a campaign on the affirmative side of the same issue is also in order. It will be rather refreshing to have such a campaign of education, uncomplimented with either personal or party politics. There is no election on, and nobody is a candidate for office.

Both parties are on the same side of this issue, and neither of them can gain or lose by it. Nothing will be involved but the issue itself.

And that, if the as yet inarticulate part of the people at all resembles the articulate part, is already settled one way. Organized public opinion has already spoken, and it is almost unanimous.

It only remains for a campaign of public discussion to inform, and sound out, unorganized opinion. At one leader or group of leaders might easily be mistaken in estimating popular sentiment.

It is inconceivable that they all are.

York. Only occasionally are they to be seen eating at restaurants around town. That is because a restaurant on Forty-Seventh street installed a set of high chairs especially for their benefit and the midgets patronize that restaurant almost exclusively.

To one who sees life as it is lived on Broadway day in and day out over a period of years the most amazing development is the growth of efficiency among its men. One curly-headed hero of the screen, at one time probably its most popular hero and who is again coming into popularity, has had several permanent waves. Insofar as I know this is his only lady-like habit.

But there is another notable of screen and stage, a man who was probably the country's greatest matinee idol long before the word "beik" came into its present meaning and who more lately has appeared on the screen as a be-man hero whose love affairs have embossed many front pages. This fellow visits a beauty parlor almost every day. After his facial treatment he goes to a tailor and very carefully applies rouge to his cheeks, carmine to his lips and mascara to his eyelashes and brows. And this hero has caused more feminine hearts to flutter than any other idol with the possible exception of Valentino.

Impure Milk Kills Many Babies Each Year, Record Shows

BY DR. HUGH S. CUBBING, Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service.

Milk is unquestionably one of the most important of all human foods. It contains practically all of elements which man requires for his sustenance. It constitutes his sole dependence throughout the first year of life. In later years milk and its products make up a large proportion of our diet and go far toward furnishing the total energy expended in accomplishing our daily tasks.

Milk, however, if not properly safeguarded may be a very dangerous food. Instead of producing strength and nourishment it may engender illness and death and it is capable of transforming health and vigor into frailty and decay. Annually thousands of babies are sent to their graves because of impure milk, while other thousands go through life maimed and injured from infection received through impure milk.

A mixture of milk from several cows is much more constant in its chemical make-up than that from a single animal and for that reason composite milk is to be preferred for infants.

Cows which are well fed and well housed in clean surroundings produce a supply of milk richer in its composition than those herds which are improperly cared for.

Water Is Basic Ingredient of Milk

The basic ingredient of milk is water. The remaining components are either dissolved or held in suspension in this water.

Ordinarily milk contains approximately 87 per cent of water. The laws of the majority of States now require that 47 per cent of solids must be present in milk.

When the amount of solids falls below this requirement of 12 per cent the purchasers do not receive full value for their money. For this reason regular standards have been adopted in practically all communities.

Fat is the most valuable constituent of milk. It is present in the form of an emulsion. These droplets of fat are held in suspension and give to the milk its normal color.

The droplets are surrounded by thin albuminous membranes which prevent them from uniting. If you stir or beat milk the albumen envelopes are partially broken up, the droplets stick together and butter is formed.

The fats in milk are not all of the same composition, but their properties are similar. Milk too rich in fat may cause digestive troubles in young children.

Many cows produce a milk which contains as high as 5 per cent of fat. The milk standard of the different States varies from 3 to 3 1-2 per cent.

Proteins Are Important Foods

A number of substances called proteins, of complex chemical composition, are also found in milk and are important foods although they furnish only approximately one-half the amount of energy furnished by fats.

The principal protein is casein, familiar as curds in sour milk. Other proteins known as albumin and globulin are also present.

When milk spoils these three proteins undergo changes and may, when taken into the system, cause illness, though milk when soured by the usual "lactic acid bacilli" is an excellent food, especially for adults. Proteins are always present even in skim milk and for this reason milk deprived of its fat still has considerable food value.

Skim milk is a good food. A third important constituent of milk is lactose, commonly known as milk sugar. This substance is similar to ordinary sugar in composition, but differs from it in sweetness and other properties.

Milk sugar ferments when acted upon by bacteria. The product of this fermentation is known as lactic acid. It is the lactic acid which makes old milk taste sour.

The amount of milk sugar in cow's milk is less than 5 per cent. Lactose has a high food value, furnishing about the same amount of energy as protein and is very easily absorbed.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The saving grace of Broadway is its sense of humor, as inherent in its swarming crowds as in its individuals. I once met a young fellow who had worked hard and saved the money he made in various and odd ways in the theatrical business and had invested it all in his first venture as a producer. He was standing in front of the theater where his show had just been produced and where it was just about to die. Tickets for the show were being begged even in Joe LeBlanc's half-price agency.

When I started to sympathize with the young producer he laughed and said, "Well, I got my name in the papers anyway."

And now with the agitation for censorship of plays considerably abated, the Shuberts are announcing a "sex appeal" contest between members of the "Gay Parade" and "Artists and Models."

And then there is a gray-haired woman who came here from Dubuque several years ago and each week she buys a copy of "The New Yorker," which proudly announces itself as "not edited for the old lady from Dubuque."

Editors and contributors of "The New Yorker" kid themselves. Most of them are only a generation, or less, removed from the farm. Fully ninety per cent of the wisecrackers of Broadway are not native to the city.

ROOSTERS WIN

Fitzgerald Runs Twenty Yards For Third Touchdown

Although the Roosters were playing against a team nearly twice their weight they won over the Sylvester team with a score of 19 to 0. Neither team scored in the first quarter, but in the second Fitzgerald ran nine yards for a touchdown. Roy kicked goal. Roy ran ten yards for a touchdown in the third quarter, but he failed to kick goal. In the last quarter Fitzgerald, in a twenty yard run, went over the goal line for the second time. The Roosters failed to kick.

Roy intercepted a pass, gaining nearly twenty yards, but before the ball could be put in play again the game was over.

The Roosters made no fumbles, and were not penalized. They showed lot of team work and their victory was due largely to that.

It seemed almost impossible for any of the Sylvester team to go around left end while Tucker was playing there. Hughey and Alston both went through the Sylvester eleven several times tackling the opposing men for a loss. Shepherd made some good runs. Davis, as quarterback played an excellent game.

In the first quarter, when Lilly's arm was sprained, Fitzgerald was sent to left half. Beal was sent to the right guard position. In the last quarter McFeewent went to left end and Taylor to right guard.

A run of about 45 yards was made by Freeman of the Sylvester squad, and that was the only time that the heavier team came near scoring.

Two fifteen yard penalties were called against the Sylvester team.

The game was played Wednesday at Sylvester.

Congressman Marvin Jones of this district discovered the printed fallacy and was quick to take offense.

Just how the writer got his statistics and just how the Texas Textbook Commission allowed it to pass the censor is the puzzling question to West Texans, who have come to the logical conclusion that they have about the richest agricultural section in the whole state.

CLAIM EQUINOX STORMS A MYTH

U. S. Weather Man Says No Scientific Reason for So-Called Equinoctial Storms

SQUALLS DEFEY PREDICTION

Are of Brief Duration and Cannot Be Forecast—Threaten Lives of Army of Airmen

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—"Equinoctial storms" are a myth and have no standing in meteorology. They are "line squalls."

"There is no maximum of storm frequency, according to statistics, either in this country or in Europe, close to the date of either equinox," according to the American Nature Association which publishes an extended statement on the point in Nature Magazine by C. F. Talman, of the United States Weather Bureau.

"Of course in the long run many storms do occur about these dates just as they occur at all other dates," the writer points out, "but there is no scientific reason for supposing their occurrence can be connected in anyway with the sun's passage over what the schoolboy described as a "managerial lion running around the earth."

An "equinoctial" is looked in the United States particularly in the autumn. The autumnal equinox occurs during the season of West India hurricanes, and it occasionally happens that storms of this character sweep up our eastern seaboard within a week or two of the date in question, extending their influence far inland. These events have probably helped to foster the widespread belief in autumnal equinoctial storm.

"Violent upward and downward movements of the air prevail in all squalls and thunderstorms. This fact has been known for many years, but it has only recently assumed practical importance. Formerly only the birds and occasional balloonists were whirled aloft or dashed downward by vertical gales, but today such gales threaten the lives of an army of aeronautes.

"Squalls, like tornadoes, are of such brief duration and generally of such limited area that they defy prediction by means of the ordinary machinery of weather forecasting."

"As to storms the 'Big Wind in Ireland,' January 6-7, 1839, according to contemporary newspaper accounts was one of great weather disasters of modern times.

"The 'Great Storm' of 1703 is supposed to have the most severe temperature that ever visited the British Isles. It cost the lives of more than 8,000 men of the Royal Navy.

"The Barbados Hurricane of 1780 was probably the most destructive hurricane that has occurred in the West Indies.

"Saxby's Gale swept over eastern Canada with terrific force October 4, 1869. It owes its name to the fact that it was predicted by a Lieutenant Saxby of the British Navy.

"In the Baekergunge Cycle, October 1876, more than 100,000 people were drowned by the storm waves over the Granges Delta.

"The Blizzard of March 11-14, 1838, also known as the Great March Blizzard, "the New York Blizzard," and, in New Hampshire, as the "townmeeting Storm," is historic.

"The Samona hurricane of March 16, 1889, wrecked American and German warship, off the harbor of Apia, with heavy loss of life.

"The St. Louis Tornado of May 27, 1896, was the most destructive of the three tornadoes that have occurred in large American cities, the others being the Louisville Tornado of 1890 and the Omaha Tornado of 1913."

LYRIC

James Kirkwood, the capable screen star recently experienced the comforts—or should it be discomforts—of Pullman transportation without moving off the Paramount studio in Hollywood.

In "The Top of the World," which George Melford produced from the novel of the same name by Ethel M. Dell, Kirkwood portrays a dual role. During the filming of this picture he was required to make frequent changes of costume and makeup from one character to the other. So the carpenter shop built him a dressing room on wheels which could be moved rapidly wherever he happened to be working.

It was surprising to watch Kirkwood finish in one set, step into his dressing room, and make a lightning change of character while the property man wheeled him nonchalantly to the other end of the studio and the next set.

Incidentally, picturegoers will be amazed and mystified when they see this photoplay on the local screen, seemingly impossible things happen. Kirkwood, in his impersonation of the two characters, shakes hands with himself, fights with himself and at all times passes himself in the same strip of film.
