LESS than DEALERS Pay

This is a sample of our Furniture prices. Here is a couch which the factory sells to your dealer at about $8.00. Your dealer's price to you is not less than $10.00 or $12.00 for a couch of equal grade.

Our Price to You is

$7.25

Order No. R132

Price, $7.25

State color of plush preferred. We supply Dark Green, Dark Red, Dark Blue or Brown. Dark Green is most popular and will be sent unless otherwise ordered.

An unusually large, luxurious couch, made of selected oak, or, if preferred, in mahogany finish, handsomely carved throughout, and supported by massive carved claw feet. It has six rows of deep hand-made tufts, fastened with the celebrated steel tufting buttons which cannot pull off or pull through the cover.

It is well filled and contains the best grade of steel springs turned from special high-carbon wire, over which is placed heavy duck canvas instead of the burlap commonly used, the best grade of figured velour plush in all the staple colors being used for upholstery.

From a sanitary point of view the open bottom presents a special feature. It allows good ventilation and a free circulation of air, which is disastrous to moths and germs.

The frame is massive and substantial, the workmanship first-class, the appearance neat and artistic; a good, serviceable couch at the lowest price ever offered. Size 30 inches wide, 78 inches long. Weight, 100 pounds.

We do not care to ship goods unless freight charges are guaranteed. If you do not wish to send the full amount, $7.25, send us $1.00 to show good faith, and we will do the rest. If you really think that you ought not to take even this risk, write us and say that you prefer to have the couch sent C. O. D. and that you will pay the full amount upon arrival and examination.

We want to be reasonable from every point of view. It may be returned at our expense if not satisfactory. Send us your order now; do not wait. Order Number R132.

Our large Furniture Catalogue, illustrating and describing eighteen different styles of couches as well as four hundred other articles of furniture, will be sent on request, absolutely free. The above is only a specimen of the marvelously low prices quoted in this book. Your local dealer cannot buy the goods at lower figures than our prices to you.

Our General Catalogue lists over 70,000 articles which we sell direct to customers at wholesale prices, including nearly everything that you use, wear or eat. It contains over 1,000 pages, 17,000 pictures, and 70,000 of the lowest prices ever quoted. It weighs almost four pounds, and the postage alone costs 30 cents. We will send you this catalogue by mail or express prepaid on receipt of 15 cents. It will save an ordinary family at least $100 per year, and may save that on one purchase. If you are not satisfied with it we will return your 15 cents.

Ours is the largest mail order house in the world. Established 1872. We have 52 acres of floor space covered with merchandise; 2,000 employees, and two million customers. We quote lower prices, for values given, than any other house in existence.

RANGE NOTES.

Jno. V. Farwell and Charles B. Farwell have offered some nice prizes for best carload of steers bred by owners of XIT Ranch, to be exhibited at Chicago, Nov. 30 to Dec. 7. The offer also includes spayed heifers two and under three. The prizes are classified and run $100 for best, $50 and $25 on each group. Right is reserved to award only to animals of superior quality and finish.

Fourteen thousand cattle are expected to be on exhibition at the cattle show and sale, Oct. 21-26,

Texas has been visited by some good rains which came in some sections early enough to do the crops some good. In the grazing districts cattlemen are now rejoicing over the fact that there will be plenty of water for stock.

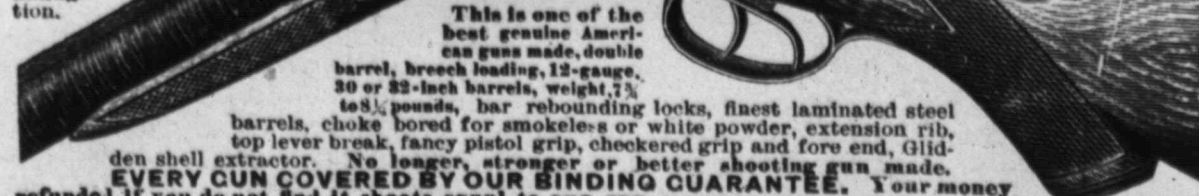

Only about sixty per cent as many cattle will be fed in Texas as were fed last year. Late rains have increased the supply of grass and cattle will be held back as long as possible. A great many will carry their stock over to next year.

Toot, and Keep Tooting.

If you toot your little tooter and then lay aside your horn,
There's not a soul in ten short days will know that you were born,
The man who gathers pumpkins is the man who plows all day—
And the man who keeps a-humping is the man who makes it pay.
The man who advertises with a short and sudden jerk,
Is the man who blames the printer because it didn't work.
The man who gets the business, pulls a long and steady pull
And keeps the local papers for years and years quite full.
He plans his advertisements in a clear and thoughtful way,
And keeps forever at it, and thus he makes it pay.
—Washington Star.

The Outlook is Better.

For some time past the various markets of the country have been glutted with dump lots of cattle whose owners were either short on water or grass or both, or else who saw little advance ahead and preferred to close out rather than hold their stuff.

The great drouth cut off the corn crop in every western state and territory, and buyers became timid. The range cattle men depend on these buyers to a large extent for their profits and all of southwestern Kansas, western Oklahoma and a considerable portion of western Texas including the Panhandle country depend largely on Kansas and Missouri feed lots for finish on the cattle they grow.

This being true, the disappointment has been serious, but since the late rains, the feed crops have been strengthened and it is now believed there will be enough and to spare to carry cattle through the winter. This saves some loss but even with this help, the time between marketing 2's and 3's is not always paid for in growth when marketed a year later.

Everything taken into consideration, the outlook is far more promising than a very short time since, and as prices prove a better demand, it is confidently believed that next spring's prices will more than cover losses on grass cattle while fat cattle will sell for prices that will bulge the pocketbooks of their owners until the buttons snap off.

The Cattle Outlook.

Reports from the market and range are most reassuring for the future of the cattle market this fall and winter. The demand for beef cattle is rapidly increasing and the supply is not keeping pace. At Kansas City the price on prime fed steers advanced fully 40 cents this week, and there was a firmer feeling in other classes. The high price of fat steers and the small supply coming forward is attracting the attention of feeders, and the result has been a stronger demand for heavy feeders for short feeding. This demand is noticeable in all the markets and is most significant. Feed lots have been emptying all summer and there have been but few cattle going back to the country. The result of this is already becoming noticeable in the scarcity of fed cattle in the markets and but for the good run of range beef at this time there would be an absolute scarcity of beef stuff in all the eastern markets. It is believed by those who are closely watching the trade, that there never was a better time for feeders to take on a few good cattle for the winter. They will all be wanted in the spring and well-fed steers in prime condition are going to be scarce enough to command fancy prices. The men on the range are all in good fix for the winter and are not worrying any over the outlook. Cattle are still cattle, and there are none to be given away this season. They are for sale if the buyers want them, but the demand has got to be demonstrated before the cattle will come to market.—Denver Record-Stockman.

"God's Will, Not Our's Be Done."

These were the last words of President McKinley as he bade farewell to the loving companion of his life, to whom his kindness and devotion has been so constant and conspicuous. It was with this beautiful spirit of resignation that he turned from the realities of this earth to explore the mysteries of the world beyond.

The struggle was over—the struggle of a week during which hope and fear alternately gained the mastery. The book of life is closed, and his achievements are a part of history. After he became conscious that the end was drawing near, but before the shadows quite obscured the light, he was heard to murmur some of the words of "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

It is still true that one's sorest afflictions and most bitter experiences are sometimes stepping stones to higher rewards.

The terrible deed at Buffalo, rudely breaking the ties of family and friendship and horrifying every patriotic citizen, crowns a most extraordinary life with a halo that cannot but exalt its victim's place in history, while his bravery during the trying ordeal, his forgiving spirit and his fortitude in the final hours give glimpses of his inner life which nothing less tragic could have revealed.

But, inexpressibly sad as is the death of McKinley, the illustrious citizen, it is the damnable murder of McKinley, the president, that melts seventy-five million hearts into one and brings a hush to the farm, the factory and the forum.

Death is the inevitable incident of every human career. It despises the sword and shield of the warrior, and laughs at the precautions suggested by science; wealth cannot build walls high enough or thick enough to shut it out, and no mouse is humble enough to escape its visitation. Even love, the most potent force known to man—love, the characteristic which links the human to the divine—even love is powerless in its presence. Its contingency is recognized in the marriage vow—"until death do us part"—and is written upon friendship's signet ring. But the death, even when produced by natural causes, of a public servant charged with the tremendous responsibilities which press upon a president, shocks the entire country and is infinitely multiplied when the circumstances attending it constitute an attack upon the government itself. No one can estimate the far reaching effect of such an act as that which now casts a gloom over our land. It shames America in the eyes of the world; it impairs her moral prestige and gives the enemies of free government a chance to mock at her. And it excites an indignation which, while righteous in itself, may lead to acts which will partake of the spirit of lawlessness.

As the president's death overwhelms all in a common sorrow, so it imposes a common responsibility, namely, to so avenge the wrong done to the president, his family and the country, as to make the executive's life secure without bringing insecurity to freedom of speech or freedom of the press.—William J. Bryan in The Commoner.

Last week in Hutchinson the State Rangers arrested two men for stealing Turkey Track calves. Three of the rangers ran across two men, one holding the end of the rope, the other and having accidentally got caught around the neck of an unbranded calf. The rangers kindly removed the rope from the calf's neck and the calf went to sucking a Turkey Track cow. The men were doubtless turned over to the civil authorities and without doubt a good ten cent bond was made for their appearance before the grand jury. We failed to learn the names of the men arrested and "thus endeth the first lesson." We learn that last week the rangers found five Turkey Track cows shot through the head and through the stomach. The calves had been stolen. We may refer to this matter again next week and give more particulars, but we think that it is high time that the State of Texas, by her authorities and by legal means, put a stop to such lawlessness, but unfortunately in too many cases the State of Texas is a party to the crimes committed and many of our courts are howling farces and the protectors of criminals.—Amarillo Champion.

Ravishing the Ranges.

The live stock market is very strong. The big enflow of hogs and cattle is well sustained and the consumptive demand both absorbs the run and backs it to a surprising extent. This is indicative of a strong and healthful commercial condition. It also indicates that the consumptive trade is in a better condition to buy. This is not only true of our own trade, but of foreign trade as well. The tariff movements in Germany and in other parts of Europe are evidently based upon a return of prosperity there, and an increasing disposition on the part of the foreigners to buy. Otherwise the commercial disposition of the continent would be to lower the tariff bars and allow the people to get as much as possible for their money. This would be especially true with the necessities of life. How far our industrial activity will carry us and what effect the cleaning up of the ranges to feed the hungry demand will have on our packinghouse trade in the near future remains to be seen. We fancy, however, that the high price of feed stuffs and the inevitable shortage of abattoir stock in the near future will present the problem to be faced that will put both our ingenuity and our resources to the test. Other countries will have the same difficult question to answer with a less likelihood of answering it.

Marketing a glut of stuff is a harder proposition than feeding a hungry demand created by easier money and more of it. It simply means intense activity, and—that is healthful.—National Provisioner.

Do You Read The Live Stock Inspector?

Without doubt, many readers will see this issue of this paper for the first time, as a number of sample copies will be distributed at the American Royal Fat Stock Show. If this is the first acquaintance you have with us, look the paper over carefully and send us $1.00 for it from now until January, 1903; or, ten cents for trial term from now until the end of this year.

The "Iowa Ranch," of 75,000 acres, and said to be one of the best ranches in West Texas, was sold recently to J. W. and H. C. Kokernot, of San Antonio. $1.35 per acre was the price received. It was a cash transaction. No cattle were included in the purchase.

The fancy cattle barn erected for use at the October show and sale is a magnificent one. Its dimensions are 176x520 feet. It will accommodate 1200 cattle. In connection with the fancy sales pavilion, there will be a capacity for from 1600 to 1800 cattle. The new building contains about 100 box stalls.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—The census office today issued a bulletin showing the division of the population of Oklahoma in respect to sex, nativity and color. Of the 398,301 people in Oklahoma, 214,359 were masculine and 183,972 feminine, 15,680 were foreign born and 30,807 were colored. Of the colored people 18,381 were negroes and 11,945 Indians.

HOG DEPARTMENT

Access to wood ashes or charred corn cobs are valuable. They will assist in throwing off disease germs and may prevent disease.

Hogs should be given plenty of water fresh from the well, as it does not remain pure very long under the hot sun. Attention to this and cleanly surroundings will do much towards preventing hog cholera. Succulent green food should be provided them occasionally.

The government crop report recently issued showed a decrease in the number of stock hogs now being fattened compared with that of a year ago, in every state except Arizona, which has an increase of 13 per cent. Texas has decreased 19 per cent, Kansas 42 and Missouri 35.

The farmer who handles a small number of hogs usually has healthier swine than those farmers handling large numbers. Consequently he often gets a higher price than the owner of fat hogs.

SKIM MILK FOR PIGS.

The most economical method of feeding skim milk to pigs has recently been the subject of investigation with the Canadian government experiment station. As a result, it was shown that pigs may be fed largely on skim milk with benefit to themselves and a saving to the owner.

To fatten swine averaging over 100 pounds in weight each, it is economical to feed not exceeding five pounds of skim milk per head each day.

Skim milk or buttermilk alone should not be fed to swine. With 100 pounds of skim milk or buttermilk should be fed at least 30 pounds of ground grain.

FEEDING FLOORS.

Feeding floors are becoming more and more popular among advanced stock raisers and as there is so much at stake in feeding hogs no effort should be spared to keep them healthy. When the hogs are fed on the ground there is great danger of inviting disease. A feeding floor, therefore, is very desirable. To insure perfect healthfulness it should be three or four feet above the ground, so that perfect ventilation is secured and the harboring of rats and mice made impossible. The floor can be made of inch lumber and any desired size. A strong board fence must be put up all around it to prevent the hogs being crowded off and injured.

At one end of the pen an approach should be built up to the gate, which can be closed while the feed is being placed on the floor. The other end of the floor a crib or pen is located in which the feed is stored. The floor must be cleaned after each feeding. Put a long-handled fork through the middle of a board about three feet long and six inches wide. With this the cobs and uneaten portion of the feed can be quickly pushed off. Hogs should never be fed unclean material.

SHEEP AND GOATS

The flesh of the young Angora is in many respects superior to lamb.

The Angora goat is unequalled by any other animal for exterminating brush and weeds.

Angora venison, as the goat flesh is called, because of its rich gamy flavor, is in great demand in California.

Strong virility of the ram is one of the essentials to success in breeding. A fine head and eyes show the character of a ram and are some of the points to be considered in selecting a ram for your flock.

Don't neglect your ewes when weaning your lambs. Some will require hand milking.

Don't select great, large-boned rams if your ewes are small.

Angora goats serve the double purpose of clearing the land and fertilizing it, their rich manure adding greatly to the fertility of the soil.

Now that it is time to wean your lambs, it is well to remember that proper care at this time will do much to insure success in your lamb feeding. At this time they should have the run of the pasture and should be fed grain or green food in addition.

Mr. Geo. F. Thompson, a well known authority on goats and mohair will be present at the Angora goat show and sale which will be held in Kansas City at the time of the big cattle show and sale in October. We give below the letter received from him by Mr. McIntire.

September 3, 1901.
Mr. W. T. McIntire, Secretary American Goat Breeders' association, Kansas City, Mo.—Dear Sir: I am informed that the department of agriculture will send me to Kansas City in October to attend your meeting and that I am expected to read a paper on some phase of the Angora goat industry. My subject will be "Mohair and Mohair Manufactures." I shall be glad to have you inform me of about the length of time I am expected to consume. I would also like to know how expensive is your collection of Mohair goods; it may be that you have so good an assortment that I need not bring what I have here. I feel that it is quite important that the people see the possibilities along this line. Besides, it is necessary that every friend of the industry should exploit the use of these goods in order that there may be a larger and stable demand for them.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE F. THOMPSON.

HORSES AND MULES

Prices are expected to advance 25 per cent or more in a short time.

If you have rough feed, you can not use it to better advantage than by feeding it to western horses.

There is a big demand for draft horses at present and prices are expected to go higher for fancy animals of this kind than has ever been known in this country.

BIG AS AN ELEPHANT.

Chicago Drivers Journal: The largest horse in the world arrived at the Union stock yards yesterday, consigned to M. Newgass & Son, by Geo. M. Tegard, El Paso, Ill. The animal is a coal black Shire gelding, 6 years old, standing 21.1 hands, and is of admirable proportions. This monstrosity weighs in good condition upward of 3,000 lbs. Unlike many equine mastodons, this gelding is of symmetrical conformation and well balanced proportions, being of excellent bone, massive quarters, short arched back, medium sized head, large, lustrous eyes, and perfect feet. In action he is as subtle as a pony, with a rapid walking gait and square trotting action. He was shipped in a special furniture car, as all the regulation size stock cars were too small to accommodate his Goliath proportions.

An English groom, who had been 20 years in the stables of royalty, tells of the difference in the way of treating horses in America and England: "You don't take good care of your horses. You think you do, but you don't. When a horse comes in all wet with perspiration, you let him stand in the stable and dry with all the dirt on. In England we take the horse as he comes in from a drive and sprinkle blood warm water all over him from his head to his feet. Then we scrape him down, rubbing his legs and face dry. Thus in an hour he is clean and dry and ready to take a good feed, while your way he will stand and swelter for hours and finally dry sticky and dirty. Our horses never founder and never take cold. We never use a curry-comb. You scratch your horses too hard. The only care necessary is to have the water not very cold. Then bathe them quickly and blanket them instantly while you are rubbing their legs."

In the matter of breeding horses for market perhaps at no other place could more valuable lessons be learned by the farmer than right at the auction ring, says Chicago Live Stock World. With many breeders there is either a woeful lack of judgment or a provoking carelessness in breeding for market which can only result in a little expensive experience. It seems to be an opinion, and quite universal, too, that in a drafter size is about the only essential feature. This is a fallacious idea which will be readily obliterated in the minds of those who would avail themselves of the opportunity to attend the auction sales. A drafter weighing a ton, but leggy and ill proportioned, will bring a disappointing price from the very critical buyer. The blocky fellow with heavy quarters, short coupled, good head and neck—one that shows breeding and action—he is the one that will make the money. The other one will be classed as a plain worker and sell that way too, no matter what his weight.

The same is true of the coacher, only he must be finished and style and action emphasized more strongly. He is an unfortunate farmer who cannot overcome the idea that "any old thing will do" for a brood mare. Your brood mare should possess as much and the same quality as a sire, and if she doesn't don't breed her.

Improve Mexican Cattle.

Thirteen carloads, or 325 head of purebred Hereford bulls left Kansas City Sept. 20, for Wm. Humphrey's 1,200,000 acre ranch in Old Mexico. The cattle were mostly from the Riverside ranch at Ashland, Neb., owned by Mr. Humphrey.

Five car loads were added from the Sunny Slope farm near Emporia, belonging to C. A. Stannard. This in addition to the shipment made a short time ago, makes a total of nearly 800 thoroughbred bulls that Mr. Humphrey has shipped to his ranch since his purchase of it a few months ago. The ranch has been entirely fenced and subdivided by many cross fences.

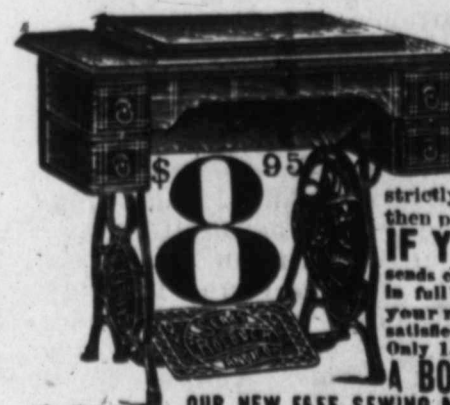

Mr. Humphrey already has on his ranch 20,000 head of Spanish cows which he purchased some time ago through Mr. Harry Trover, of Kansas City, from Don Luis Tarrazes, former governor of Chihuahua. These cows are the offspring of thoroughbred bulls which Tarrazes had purchased a few years ago and are of superior quality to the ordinary Mexican cow. Mr. Humphrey's object will be to still further improve Mexican cattle.

Missouri's State Fair.

Missouri held its first annual state fair Sept. 9-13. An appropriation of only $50,000 had been made, but the additional sum of $100,000 will be asked for next year. Although the committee had a very short time for preparation, they accomplished wonders.

The live stock interests had received special attention. In the center of the large two-story barn for hogs and sheep was the show ring surrounded by tiers of seats. There were also two large barns for cattle, one for the beef and the other for dairy cattle.

Four herds of whitefaces were entered and Shorthorns were also well represented. There were only two entries of Angus cattle and one of Galloways. Chester whites and Duroc Jersey hogs were in the swine exhibits. Breeders were highly pleased with the fine arrangements for stock and pronounced the show a big success.

The finest of the stock exhibited were shipped to Louisville, Ky., to be shown at the interstate fair held there the last week of September. They will also be shown at the Kansas City Americans Royal show, Oct. 21-26.

Prices Mounting Upward.

Keep your eye on the market prices for live stock. The prophet on prices is already beginning to foretell, and he sees large visions. He has a very tangible basis for some large prognostications. The prices of cattle and hogs are bounding upward in a fashion that will encourage feeders to take hold even at the high price of corn. As a matter of fact, without the least beating about the bush, we must have high prices or certain disaster in the future. Feeders and farmers are at the end of their rope; the matter has been passed up to the big buyers. Conditions are not tempting men into stock feeding ventures. Those who have grain and hay know where they can cash it at a very handsome profit and without the slightest risk.

If the farmer lets go his live stock now, what of the future? The men who must have finished market stock are abundantly able to answer this question. They know it foretells disaster to them. There is just one way to keep the stock on the farm and thus insure a future supply and that is to make it plainly profitable for the farmer to hold it. There is just one way to insure a supply of finished market animals next year and that is to make prices that will mean a profit on feeding. In the language of the day "it is up against" the buyers. The feeder's margin of profit has been small enough the past few years.

Will the buyer and the stock farmer hang together now or hang separately in the future? It looks like the former.—Brederers Gazette.

Meal and Hulls.

According to the local agent for a southern cottonseed oil mill, says the Kansas City Telegram, the demand for cottonseed meal and hulls for feeding purposes during the coming winter promises to be the greatest ever known since the feeding value of these articles was discovered. Already many inquiries are being received from farmers and feeders throughout the southwest, and the agents are kept busy answering inquiries and quoting prices.

The demand for cottonseed meal is due to the shortage of the growing corn crop and the high price of the old crop. A year ago corn was being delivered at almost any point in Kansas or Missouri at 40 cents per bushel. Now dealers are quoting 64 cents by the carload. This increase in the price of corn and the consequent increased demand for cottonseed meal has naturally increased the cost of the latter, and the farmers and feeders who have been accustomed to get it at from $15 to $20 a ton are protesting against paying $24 and $25 a ton. The dealers insist, however, that cottonseed meal at $25 a ton is as cheap as corn at 40 cents a bushel, and consequently cheaper than corn at 60 cents a bushel.

The condition of the cotton crop throughout the south is such that it is difficult to figure now on what the supply of seed this season will be. In Texas, for example, the crop is short and the supply of seed will be light. It was stated on the authority of one of the best posted men at the stock yards a few days ago by the Telegram that contracts had been made for cottonseed meal at points in Texas and Oklahoma at from $16.50 to $18.50 a ton at the mills. This statement came to the notice of the manager of an oil mill at Guthrie, who proceeded to announce that he expected to get $25 a ton for his meal and $6 to $8 a ton for farmers of the southwest will buy much meal at to exceed $25 a ton. Whatever its feed value as determined by experiments, the farmer can not see any money in it for feeding purposes when it costs so much.

Reign of Terror in Colorado.

A reign of Terror exists in Park county and the board of county commissioners has called upon Governor Orman for assistance in preventing its spread.

At a meeting held Saturday a reward of $500 was offered for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers of Joseph Hartsel, who disappeared some time ago and of whom no trace can be found.

Mr. Hartsel was a stockman of Park county and was a brother of Samuel Hartsel, who is the wealthiest cattleman of the South Park country. Some time ago he disappeared and it is believed he was killed by cattle rustlers who infest the section of the country in which he lived. The theory is that he had discovered the identity of the rustlers and they murdered him to prevent exposure. His body is believed to be in some of the numerous prospect holes which cover that region but all search has proven unavailing up to the present time.

The section of Park county in which Mr. Hartsel lived has been noted for its mysterious crimes. Even in the early days of the territory it was the scene of numerous murders. About two years ago there was a brutal crime at Guffey, a prospective mining camp in the immediate vicinity and other crimes approaching murder have been common. The situation has become so serious that the board of county commissioners of Park county met Saturday and adopted resolutions offering a reward of $500, and calling upon Governor Orman to offer a reward of a like sum for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers of Hartsel.

Cattle rustling has been carried on on a large scale in that section and there seems little doubt that the disappearance of Hartsel is directly traceable to the rustlers, and all suspected parties are being closely watched.—Denver Times.

Rabies in Dogs.

From a leaflet received from Our Animal Friends, we take the following which will be interesting reading to those who have a dread of "mad dogs." The information given is from a reliable source and should be authentic:

"1. It is supposed that a mad dog dreads water. It is not so. The mad dog is very likely to plunge his head to the eyes in water, though he can not swallow it and laps it with difficulty.

"2. It is supposed that a mad dog runs about with evidences of intense excitement. It is not so. The mad dog never runs about in agitation; he never gallops; he is always alone, usually in a strange place, where he jogs along slowly. If he is approached by dog or man, he shows no sign of excitement, but when the dog or man is near enough he snaps and resumes his solitary trot.

"3. If a dog barks, yelps, whines, or growls, that dog is not mad. The only sound a mad dog is ever known to emit is a hoarse howl, and that but seldom. Even blows will not extort an outcry from a mad dog. Therefore, if any dog, under any circumstances, utters any other sound than that of a hoarse howl, that dog is not mad.

"4. It is supposed that the mad dog froths at the mouth. It is not so. If a dog's jaws are covered or flecked with white froth, that dog is not mad. The surest of all signs that a dog is mad is a thick, ropy, brown mucous clinging to his lips, which he often tries vainly to tear away with his paws or to wash away with water."

Breeders and stockmen who attend the combination show and sale of fancy cattle at Kansas City Oct. 21-26 will be royally entertained by the members of the live stock exchange. A committee for this purpose was appointed, composed of G. M. Walden, president of the exchange, H. S. Boice and Eugene Rust, traffic manager of the stock yards company.

Poultry Department.

CONDUCTED BY

JOHN C. SNYDER.

KILDARE, OKLAHOMA.

Will be pleased to receive communications for this department and will answer all questions in regard to the Poultry Industry; the Holding of Shows; Treatment of Diseases, &c.

All Poultry and Hare Books sent to the Editor of this Department will receive notice and review.

Glad to exchange with all Poultry and Hare Journals.

Young hens are, as a rule, not desirable mothers, but if the farmer expects to hatch with hens he must train a few of his last year's pullets to set and take care of the young in order that he may not run short of good mothers, for they are half the battle in poultry raising.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

See that the chickens and old hens have a chance to get in the shade when they please during the day, if it is under a roughly built shed, or even a rude frame covered with bags or with branches of trees. When the sun pours out its heat they will seek the shade, and it must be a tempting grasshopper which they will go out for until the air is cooler. They like to have their hours of standing round and doing nothing in the heat of the day, just as much as human beings.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

The duck is rated by far the most profitable bird to grow for table use in all the fowl calendar. The duck is a great gourmandizer, that is, eats persistently, but is a good forager and will gather as large a percentage of its sustenance from insects in air and water (if there is a pond handy) and from the fields as any bird living. It is also a hardy fowl. Ducks are quite easily hatched and are soon in shape to take care of themselves. They sell readily in the cities at good figures and may be accredited much more profit than attends the raising of either turkeys or chickens.—Rocky Mountain Husbandman.

We have paid too little attention to forage crops for fowls. The stations and agricultural colleges have been working for a long time on forage crops for cattle, sheep and swine; but nothing has been done along the line of green provender for poultry. We recognize that the forage for poultry problem is a problem by itself, and is very properly given a place after the same problems relating to other live stock. But it seems to us that the time now is fully ripe to do something along the line mentioned. The stations have been at work for thirteen years. In considering forage for poultry the investigators will be able to go considerably outside of the present range of plant varieties. There are some plants we call weeds that appear to have in them great possibilities as useful to the poultry establishment. There is "chickweed," a plant well known and popular in the

New England states as a forage plant for hens. It grows spontaneously and rankly in places where it is given a chance. What it might do under cultivation we do not know, nor will we know till experiments are carried on to ascertain the facts regarding it.

OUTDOOR RUNS FOR FOWLS.

Where fowls are kept in confinement it will be found best to provide outdoor runs or yards for them during the summer months. Give them free access to these yards whenever the weather will permit. The most economical form, everything considered, for a poultry yard is one much longer than wide. Two rods wide and eight rods long is sufficient for fifty fowls. Whenever a poultry plant of considerable size is to be established it will be found most economical to arrange the yards side by side with one end of the poultry house. The fences which enclose these yards may be made of poultry netting or pickets, and should be at least seven feet high. In either case it is best to have a board at the bottom, for sometimes it will be desirable to give young chickens the run of these yards. If the poultry yards are constructed as described there is sufficient room for a row of fruit trees down the center of the yard, and still leave ample room for horse cultivation on either side, either with one or with two horses.

These yards are to be kept thoroughly cultivated. If thought best, grain may be sown before cultivation to furnish part of the green food for the fowls. Of all fruit trees, probably there are none that are more suitable for the poultry yard than the plum. The droppings of the fowls will manure the trees, and the fowls as insect destroyers perform a great office in protecting plums from the curculio. After the trees are once well established, a crop of plums nearly every year should be secured. These, too, will require an extra cultivation. The plum trees perform a valuable service in providing shade for the fowls. Where trees are not available sunflowers may be used for the purpose with a considerable degree of satisfaction. However, some protection must be given the plants until they are well established, and even then many plants will be destroyed unless the fowls have an abundance of green food all the time.

TREATMENT OF BROODY HENS.

When a number of broody hens are let off the nest at the same time, they often quarrel among themselves, and some of them get very little food indeed. If they are strangers to each other this is almost sure to be the case.

Often, in a few days, they become reconciled to each other's presence, but occasionally there is an incorrigible among them who would rather fight than eat. Such birds are better fed by themselves, although this entails a little extra bother.

A clumsy hen should not be allowed to return to a full nestful of eggs. Such a bird, on getting to the edge of the nest, will simply take a lurch forward into the center, right onto the top of the eggs, and if any of the latter are a little soft in the shell they are at once smashed. It is far better to take out the eggs, all except two, just before the hen is allowed to return, and there is little chance of her smashing these. When she has settled down, the others can be put under her easily enough. In the case of a light hen, or a careful sitter, these precautions are seldom necessary.

If an egg gets broken in the nest, all remains of it must be cleared out. If it has been broken for some time before being discovered the nest is certain to be soiled, and the lining and perhaps a little earth will require to be taken out and replaced with clean material. If any of the remaining eggs are soiled they must also be carefully sponged quite clean with lukewarm water. If this is neglected the pores of the shell will be stopped up and the embryo will perish for want of the air, which it receives through the pores.—Farm, Field and Stockman.

A show and sale of Angora goats will be held at the goat pavilion in Kansas City, the same time of the big cattle show and sale, Oct. 21-26.

Breeders of fancy cattle are determined that the combination show and sale at Kansas City, Oct. 21-26, shall far surpass any previous attempt of a like character, and members of the live stock exchange have also determined that the entertainment of breeders and stockmen shall be commensurate with the magnitude of the affair.

The demand for feeders this year will not come from Kansas and Nebraska but from Colorado. The cattlemen of that state will take advantage of the scarcity of feed in the corn sections and winter cattle on hay. This will put them in fine shape for a quick finish on corn in the early spring. Commission men are willing to help the project by supplying money at a lower rate of interest.

O. C. French, secretary of the Oklahoma Live Stock Sanitary commission, returned yesterday morning from Canton, O., where he went to attend the funeral of President McKinley. Canton was the former home of Mr. French. He states that the floral tributes exceeded anything of the nature ever known before in the world. He attended the funeral in France of President Carnot in 1894, but says that the McKinley floral tributes far exceeded those seen in France. The funeral parade in Canton was never completed, darkness closing down.—Gushrie Capital.

At a meeting of the grain trade held in the Produce Exchange at New York, it was decided that No. 2 hard winter wheat, on and after June 1, 1902, shall constitute a good delivery on an equal footing with other contract grades of wheat. The grade represents a large proportion of the winter wheat crop grown in the Southwest. Its production as a contract grade, it is said, will militate against "corners," as it gives so much more wheat to deliver. A special committee of the trade, appointed some time ago, recommended that this grade be made deliverable at a discount of 2c a bushel, but a strong minority among its members has been doing some hard work since in the trade, and it was to their work that the vote to make the grade a full contract was due.

A special from Stockton, California, says: There were recently received at the Bliss ranch, on the Chowchilla, nineteen miles from Merced, six very fine rams. The animals were purchased in England by J. G. Massey of Colorado for George D. Bliss. They are the Hampshiredown, two years old, and weigh about 200 pounds each. They cost $140 each and the cost of bringing them here was $20 apiece. On the way they were placed on exhibition at the Pan-American Exposition, where they attracted much attention. Mr. Bliss says that he has about 400 ewes, all of high grade, being a cross of Shropshiredown. Their large size makes them especially valuable for mutton, while the wool is very long and fine and commands a much higher price than common wool. At Christmas time last year fourteen wethers were sent to the San Francisco market from the Bliss ranch, which created a sensation among market men. They weighed 172 pounds each dressed—nearly four times the weight of an ordinary sheep carcass.

The great Hereford breeder, T. F. B. Sotham, sizes up the range cattle situation of the future as follows and will deny his predictions. He says: There will come a day when the demands of the beef market will compel the saving of the awful waste that now occurs annually in the winter throughout the entire range country. Ranch men are turning their attention more and more to raising rough feeds and we predict that before many years cattle raised in the range country and destined more directly for the beef markets will all be removed from the range to the farming districts at weaning time in the fall, and the feed that is provided on the range will be used for the development and sustenance of the she staff. There is comparatively little loss in allowing the breeding herd to become thin in the winter time, so long as they are kept in a strong healthy, breeding condition, but in young animals destined for the feed lots every pound of flesh wasted will cost to replace it as much feed as would under more favorable circumstances produce two or more pounds of additional weight.

"Those farmers who are holding their cattle for next spring will reap a big profit," remarked S. A. Wright, of Dennison, Texas, who is at the Planters'. "Throughout the West there was general disposition on the part of the farmers to rush their cattle to market during the drouth. Cattle were practically given away rather than they should die for lack of water and feed. Those who were able to carry their cattle through are making arrangements to feed this winter in anticipation of higher prices. It may go hard with the cattle in some localities, but down in my section the stockmen believe they are in such a position that they will have plenty of roughness to last until spring grass. The alfalfa and millet planted is going to help out to a considerable extent. Many stock raisers are preparing to divide their holdings into bunches and apportion them around among the farmers who have more feed than they actually need. By this means the whole country will be covered and everything that is eatable will be gotten together. This is the salvation of the stock business in the West, and I think it will prove successful."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

All Sorts of Live Stock Will Be Judged by Experts.

With the added facilities for displaying cattle, the show this fall will far excel any other ever held in Kansas City. The date is Oct. 21-26.

Any one wishing to attend college will do well to write to Allen Moore, Pres., Chillicothe, Mo., for particulars and get illustrated catalogue free.

Mr. Trickey, who represents C. R. Fulton's clothing store, of Wichita, was in Woodward during the week of Sept. 23rd. While here Mr. Trickey was given some good big orders from many readers of the INSPECTOR who have been watching C. R. Fulton's advertisement. Fulton's goods always give satisfaction.

J. W. & J. C. Robison, of Towanda, Kans., writes that they have just returned home from central Kansas Agricultural Fair held at Hutchinson, Kans., and gives the following list of prizes awarded their herd:

See the advertisement in this issue of Miss Sallie Spies. A lady will run no risk in ordering from her, dresses and everything else can be returned if not satisfactory, until parties are suited. Miss Spies has had quite a number of orders from Woodward ladies, and she earnestly solicits their further patronage. Write to her and mention the INSPECTOR. Circulars, etc., free.

The reputation of R. T. Frazier is not confined to making men's saddles alone. His ladies' saddles are from Frazier's genuine Pueblo rawhide-covered trees and the most skillful workmen are employed in their construction. They also make a variety of other styles and prices vary according to quality. Write for late catalogue. They are pretty enough to be a pleasure aside from the information.

We wish to call special attention to the notice of J. C. Andras, which appears elsewhere in this issue of the INSPECTOR, advertising his stock which will be placed on exhibition at the coming show and sale of fine stock to be held in Kansas City in October. Mr. Andras started his herd on three head, one bull and two heifers which were purchased from Scott & Marsh in '99. The next purchase was eight cows and four heifers, and now this herd is among the first in the country. They are all pure bred and pure blooded Herefords and Shorthorns, with Seneca Chief at head of Shorthorn herd. Lady Lilly, weight 87670, the cow that is to be sold at the Kansas City show and sale, is a good feeding cow, with one of the finest coats that ever covered a Hereford. She is sired by Sir Allswell, dam Wild Rose 62238. Wild Rose is by Birdie Burdette 51294, whose grandsire is Peerless Wilton 12774. Wild Rose has for a dam, Isabella, by Don Felix, Isabella 52673, dam, descends from Anxiety 4th and Horatius 7153. Lady Lilly has a bull calf at side by Sir Launcelot 15621, who is a very large bull and is giving great satisfaction on Sir Allswell heifers. Among others to be sold are Battle Giant and Princess Beatrice. Both of these last named are equally as good as Lady Lilly. Mr. Andras has young stock for sale at all times.

Cheating Yourself.

A young lady working on a paper once said she did not try to do very good work for her employer because he did not pay much. This not working because it does not pay much is just what keeps thousands of young people from getting on in the world. Small pay is no excuse for doing poor or slovenly work. Indeed, the pay which one receives should have nothing to do with the quality of his work. The work should be a matter of conscience. It is a question of character, not of remuneration. A person has no right to demoralize his own character by doing slovenly or half finished work simply because it doesn't pay well. A conscientious person will do his work just as well if he receive nothing more for it than his board. A large part of the best work that has ever been done in the history of the world has been only half paid for. An employe has something at stake beside his salary. He has his character. There are manhood and womanhood involved, compared with which salary is as nothing. The way one does his work enters into the very fiber of his character. It is a matter of character and no one can afford to sell himself because his salary is meager. Besides, if one puts his very best self into every little thing he does,—puts his heart and conscience into it, and tries to see how much and not how little, he can give his employer,—he will not be likely to be under-paid very long, for he will be advanced. Good work cuts its own channel and does its own talking. What matter if you do twenty-five dollars worth of work for five dollars? It is the best advertisement of your worth you can possibly give. Bad work, half done work, slipshod work, even with a good salary, would soon ruin you. No, the way to get on in the world is not to see how little you can give for your salary, but how much. Make your employer ashamed of the meager salary he gives you by the disproportionment between what you do—and what you get. Character is a very great factor in success, and the personal impression you make on your employer will certainly tell. If not it will attract the attention of other employers.

A millionaire in New York told the writer that when a boy, he let himself out by verbal contract for five years, at seven dollars and fifty cents a week, in a large dry goods store in New York. At the end of three years, this young man had developed such skill in judging goods that another concern offered him three thousand dollars a year to go abroad as its buyer. He said that he did not mention this offer to his employers, nor even suggest the agreement to work for seven and a half dollars a week, although verbal, until his time was up. Many people would say he was foolish not to accept the offer mentioned, but the fact was that this firm, in which he ultimately became a partner, paid him ten thousand a year at the expiration of his first contract. They saw he was giving them many times the amount of salary, and in the end he was the gainer. Supposing he had said to himself, "They give me only seven and a half dollars a week, and I am going to only earn seven and a half dollars a week; I am not going to earn fifty dollars per week when I am getting only seven and a half!"

This is what a great many boys would have said and they would have wondered why they were not getting advanced.

It is not so much a question of cheating your employer, as cheating your self when you do poor work. The employer is not injured as much by half as you are by half-done work. It may be a loss of a few dollars to him, but to you it is a loss of character and self-respect, a loss of manhood or womanhood.

I have seldom known of a young person who persistently and determinedly filled his position in the best manner possible who was not eventually the gainer, even from a financial standpoint, to say nothing of the infinite gain in character and self-respect.

Young people should start out with the conviction that there is only one way to do anything, and that is the best way it can be done, regardless of remuneration.

They should be greater than the petty means of getting a living. They are making character-fiber every day. Their manhood and womanhood are woven from the warp and woof of their daily work and thought. They cannot afford to weave rotten or sleazy threads into their great life fabric. What men want is not talent, it is purpose and the will to labor.—Success.

Farmer's Wives.

Farry, Okla.,
June 9, 1901.

To the LIVE STOCK INSPECTOR,
Woodward, Okla.

In the "Outlook" of Oct. 14, 1899 appeared an article by Candace Wheeler on Domestic Manufactures and it was followed in the issue of Dec. 23rd by a reply from Mrs. Eleanor Howell, in defense of farmers' wives, their social advantages, degree of mentality, etc.

In respect to this article and reply I would like to suggest, that so far as describing the environments, mentality, and habits of farmers' wives, the two contributors were at cross purposes, yet both correct, the difference being that Candace Wheeler describes the typical farmer, and Mrs. Howells the stockman. For between the two great classes of people who are reclaiming and adapting to their individual needs, such vast territory throughout the west, there is drawn a line, so distinct as to astonish the student of sociological conditions.

A casual observer of these two classes, the western stockman and professional farmer is certain to confound them, though they are as widely separated in social and business habits, and general traits of character as the poles. To him it will appear that their occupation and environments are similar, and he will refer to them in the aggregate as farmers.

The careful observer, with a reasonable experience to assist him, is soon convinced that there is an error, and a very common one. Most of the controversy and indignant protest that follows the average discussion of the farmers' social and moral attributes, business habits, etc., emanate from this error. The conditions responsible for such contrast between types that seem, at first glance, so closely allied, appear out of proportion to the result, and almost beyond analysis.

The home of the average stock grower is necessarily remote from social and educational advantages. It is barren, too, of many of the beauties of nature, for the plains of Kansas, Colorado, Texas and Wyoming, containing the most extensive ranches, are restricted as to picturesqueness and scenery, the natural curve of the earth serving as a boundary between plains and sky; yet in these isolated homes dwell a class of people whose fund of general knowledge is far in excess of the average persons, and in inverse ratio to their apparent opportunities to cultivate intellect and broaden character.

It is in these homes you will find the late magazines, a library more or less extensive, and revealing literary tastes of a high order. As Mrs. Howell asserts, the mother is often the only available teacher, perhaps for years, and well does she perform this additional duty, in numberless cases.

There is a noticeable lack of the pettiness so common to the thickly populated rural districts, where farming is the chief aim and object and not, as with the stockman, the means to an end. Optimism is the lens through which the latter views human nature.

His generosity and hospitality are proverbial; generally he is a person of comparative leisure, pays no attention to minor financial enterprises, the butter-egg—and chicken methods of acquiring have no attraction to him as an auxiliary to his business. There is little gossip indulged in among ranchmen's wives and daughters—there is no one to gossip with or about. Consequently the mind is capable of receiving and assimilating a higher mental food. That the isolation and lack of manifold external interests is responsible for a condition directly opposite that which might be expected, is readily acknowledged by the careful observer. There can be no doubt of an absolute advantage in affording additional time, and the remoteness from much of the harassing detail of life proves conducive to the general culture and development of the intellectual faculties.

Among the farming classes, as a rule, different conditions prevail. The farmer's occupation is necessarily one of endless detail. His dollars and dimes are the result of unceasing and painstaking labor, shared more than likely by every member of his family—Spring—Summer—Autumn—Winter—in monotonous succession. Seldom having the time and eventually the inclination to study the beauties by which he is surrounded, he becomes incapable of conceptions of any magnitude.

There is no reason for believing that the farmer and stockman are not born intellectual equals. Therefore it is safe to infer that the farmer's mode of life, and habits are directly responsible for his lack of mental culture. There is, in many cases, a constant struggle to overcome these influences, with more or less success; and the effort of a human being struggling to rise superior to his environments, to evolve higher ideals, a broader view of life fills one with sympathy and admiration. Appositively mental stimuli in the form of social intercourse and occasional exchange of ideas would benefit any class. I have in mind examples where the inclination was to rely too completely on literature generally, and to become "book saturated" as it were, losing individuality as well as the faculty of reaching the true ethics of life through a forcible and unerring source—Nature herself.

Good Affects of Apple Eating.

The apple is such a common fruit that few are familiar with its remarkable efficacious properties. Everybody ought to know that the very best thing they can do is to eat apples just before retiring for the night. The apple is an excellent brain food because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than any other vegetable known. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. That is not all. The apple agglutinates the surplus acids of the stomach, helps the kidney secretions and is one of the best preventives known of diseases of the throat.—Journal of Agriculture.

There is no difference in the price. However, the service, equipment, schedules (time on the road costs money) and territories of the various companies admit of some preference.

If you enjoy comfort and satisfaction, use the handsomest trains,—having Pullman Palace and Observation Sleepers, with the only dining-car service from Texas, take the only road operating regular through trains to Colorado points, the one which gives you choice of SIX different routes beyond Colorado with stop-over privileges at Salt Lake City, among the Rocky Mountains, etc.

A printer recently tried his hand at farming, but couldn't make things work right, and is now back at the "case." He had a "wrong font" team—a mule and a horse—and this wouldn't justify. He said the farmer fired him after he had "pied" three or four "columns" of potatoes. All in all the "devil" was to pay.—Ord Journal, Neb.

PAVILION IS UNDER ROOF.

New House for Fancy Cattle is Nearing Completion—1200 Cattle are Coming.

The new fancy stock pavilion at Nineteenth and Genesee streets is being pushed to completion by the stock yards company as rapidly as a large force of carpenters, roofers, electricians and painters can do the work. While the roofers are putting the finishing touches upon the immense expanse of roof which practically covers half a block of ground, carpenters are putting in place the stalls and boxes and electricians are stringing thousands of feet of wire for the myriad of incandescent lights with which the gigantic structure will be lighted at night. The management is well satisfied with the progress being made, there being plenty of time before October 21, the opening day of the show, to put everything in shape for visitors.

The new barn will be a model of convenience in every respect. It will be thoroughly lighted by day, and at all times thoroughly ventilated by large sliding panels of glass which form fully one-half of the sides and ends of the structure. The center will receive a flood of light from the hundreds of panes of glass in the "Texas" on the roof. The stalls are large and roomy, and the passage way between them wide, giving every facility possible for viewing the animals.

Traffic Manager Rust, of the stock yards company, was at the Missouri state fair at Sedalia last week, and there met many of the leading breeders of Hereford, Shorthorn and Galloway cattle of the west. He said today that there was every indication that the display of cattle at the American Royal show and sale to be held here October 21 to 26 would be the finest ever seen in this country.

"There will be fully 1,200 head of the best animals of the three breeds to be found in the country," Mr. Rust said. "I found the breeders all enthusiastic over the outlook for the show and sale, and all confident that it would be a great success."

The railroads have agreed to return free of charge all animals sent here for show. The question of passenger rates has not been definitely settled. A rate of one and one-third fare on the certificate plan has been assured, but it is hoped that a better rate than this will be granted by the railroads. —Drovers Telegram.

Sec'y Thomas, of the Hereford Breeders Association, writes us that entries for the Hereford part of the American Royal Cattle Show have commenced to pour in in a surprising manner. Entries were called for but a few days ago, and almost by return mail the entries of seventeen breeders were received, and the encouraging part of this is that twelve of these were breeders who have never before exhibited at Kansas City. Practically none of the prominent show herds that are certain to be at Kansas City have been entered yet, and it is safe to say that the number of breeders who will show at Kansas City this fall will be twice that of any former show. Entries close October 10th, and the proper blanks will be mailed any one desiring them if they will notify Sec'y Thomas.

Catalogues are now out for the Hereford sale to be held in connection with the American Royal Cattle Show to be held in the new live stock pavilion at Kansas City. This great show will begin on Monday, October 21st, and will last throughout the week. One hundred and fifty Herefords are to be sold at public auction on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, October 22, 23 and 24. The sale will begin promptly at 1 o'clock p. m. on each day of the sale, and about fifty head disposed of during the afternoon. As this is the third combination sale of Association members to be held at Kansas City in connection with the October shows, there are a great many cattlemen and breeders who will profit by their past experience and visit this sale with the express intention of picking up some of the plums to be offered.

Those who have attended either of the previous sales will not be disappointed with this fall's sale, for if there was ever a more representative lot of Herefords included in one catalogue we have no recollection of the incident. Over sixty well known Hereford breeders have consigned from one to three head each, and it is certainly worth a considerable effort to be able to attend such a grand sale.

This will be an exceptional opportunity for the purchase of the right sort of seed. Herefords owe their present great popularity to their peculiar adaptability to the central and western country. No breed will give better returns for the amount of forage and roughness consumed than will a Hereford, and to what degree of perfection they can be finished will be demonstrated by the many fine specimens in the show and sale barns.

It should be remembered that the show will open October 21st, and that the Herefords will be sold Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, October 22, 23 and 24. For catalogues address, C. R. Thomas, Gen'l Supt., Kansas City, Mo.

MODEL BLUE GRASS FARM.

Will Have Offerings in the Great Show Sale at Kansas City.

In reply to a letter asking about his contribution to the great Kansas City Show Sale in October, Mr. Overton Harris says:

"My herd is based on the great herd bull whose name and number, together with likeness, appears above. The get of the above bull won more prizes at the International Live Stock Show at Chicago last fall (or winter), than the get of any one other bull. One of his get, "Good-Enough the Second," topped the Fort Worth sale last winter (This last bull was bought of me by Stannard, of Emporia, and sold in his name). At the Minnesota State Fair last year, my initial show, I stood second in order of winnings and at the same fair this year, or the first show of the season this year, I won more money, $1020, than any other exhibitor of Herefords. At the second show this year at Missouri state fair, held last week, where the three best herds in the country, on past record, were on exhibit, I won out of eleven rings in which I entered seven first premiums and was either 2nd or 3rd in each of the other four. I have not been able to exhibit in either last or this year an aged bull class as both years the aged bulls I fitted got sick and were unable to come out. At the Minnesota state fair this year I won out of the three herd prizes, first in young and calf herd and second in aged herd with young bull at head. Last year when I picked my show herd, I bought of Mr. Nave, of Indiana, two cows, paying $3000 each for them, to go in my show herd and on showing them, beat them with cows of my own raising—the get of Benj. Wilton. He has been pronounced by all newspaper men one of the greatest sires living of the breed. (See Geo. Bellows' report in Live Stock Indicator and Lamming in Gazette.) I am showing animals of my own breed at the various shows and meeting with success. I offer animals of my own raising, the get of the famous Wilton and his son, Good-Enough. (Good-Enough was second at the Chicago show last winter), in the coming Kansas City sale, where I sell six.

I attend all these exhibitions in person and will gladly meet all lovers of the breed. Visitors are always welcome at my Model Farm of over 3000 acres of the best north Missouri blue grass land, where they will see 200 of the best "Model" Herefords in the world.

My show herd are at Kentucky state fair at Louisville this week. From there they go to Illinois state fair at Springfield, thence to St. Louis fair, then to Kansas City sale and great show and wind up at the Great International Live Stock Exhibition at Chicago."

To All Readers.

THE LIVE STOCK INSPECTOR hereby extends a cordial greeting. This issue marks the beginning of the last quarter of a year which has had many surprises for all of us. Plans and calculations for profit on the range, in the fields and in the marts of traffic have been perforce, remodelled as the prospects gave way to realities in drouth and failure of corn crops and the partial failure of even hardy forage crops.

But the indomitable courage which marks the true American is finding a way; the turns have been made and hope of better results already is having an influence in trade and the price of all kinds of live stock.

With this more cheerful view, the LIVE STOCK INSPECTOR invites attention to its merits as a Journal for the ranch and farm and makes the following offer:

This paper will be mailed to any address from date until January 1st, 1903 for only one dollar. Send us your name and address.

Many will doubtless read this issue who are not regular patrons, on account of the increased circulation due to the American Royal Fat Stock Show at Kansas City this month. To all such, we will send the paper on trial until Jan. 1st next for 10 cents. Seeing is believing.

All old subscribers who desire may take advantage of this offer, from now until Jan. 1, 1903, by paying one dollar in advance.

THE LIVE STOCK INSPECTOR is the only journal in America printed and published on the range. Now is the time to subscribe. Address

THE PUBLISHER,
Woodward, Okla.

FRANK COOPER.

The above is a good illustration of one of the pioneer live stock men in Kansas City. Everybody, or nearly everybody, knows the genial gentleman who is tireless in his energy, broad in his conceptions, brainy in everything, whom his acquaintances always call Frank Cooper. For years past he has been in direct connection with the big growing market at Kansas City, and has been honored by a place in the councils of the Exchange for years. The INSPECTOR is pleased to present the features of Mr. Cooper to its readers as one who has encouraged and developed the live stock interests of Oklahoma in a material manner. He was present at the first meetings of the Oklahoma Live Stock Association and during those trying years did much to develop the growth of the organization. As a man, as a commission merchant and as a friend, Frank Cooper has won a most enviable reputation among all who know him.

Why Not at Wichita.?

Wichita Daily Beacon, Sept., 25th.—W. E. Bolton, publisher of the LIVE STOCK INSPECTOR and a member of the Oklahoma livestock sanitary commission, was in the city a few hours this morning. He was returning to his home in Oklahoma from Kansas City. While standing on the platform waiting for his train he said:

"I am going to attend the Inter-state Association of Live Stock Boards, which convenes in Buffalo, Oct. 8, and there I will make a fight to bring the next annual meeting of the association to Wichita.

"Last spring the Western Quarantine association was organized at Woodward, O. T., by the sanitary commissioners of Kansas, Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Arizona and Missouri. This Association will meet in Buffalo on October 7, the day before the Inter-state Sanitary association meets. We will caucus that night and make our plans to bring the next annual meeting to this city. If we cannot succeed in that, we will compromise on Kansas City.

"For the past four years the meetings of the association have been held east of the Mississippi river, and the eastern men have been in the ascendancy in the deliberations of the convention. Consequently the western men could not induce the convention to consider the questions of quarantine which are most important to us. We want more vigorous legislation and prosecution to control the marketing of infected cattle from points south of the quarantine line. The disease we have to fight is Texas fever.

According to George H. Hutchins, of Carlsbad, New Mexico, the number of cattle now on the ranges of the Pecos Valley and adjacent ranges of the Panhandle country is about 455,000 head. Scott & Robinson's "H. A. T." have about 80,000; C. B. Willingham, agent for the "Turkey Track," 30,000; J. M. Daugherty, 10,000; C. W. Merchant, the "San Simeon," 7,000; the "L. F. D." Littlefield's, 90,000; Gen. G. R. Benson, the "T. X.," 10,000; W. Washington, (rail mark), 7,000; Block Bros., (brand), 42,000; Allen C. Heard, 4,000; Barber Bros., 3,000; Capitol Syndicate, X. I. T. brands, 140,000; Sundry small owners, 32,000; Total, 455,000.

Among the Galloways to be exhibited at the American Royal Show at Kansas City, Oct. 21-26, will be a number of imported animals, of which several have recently taken prizes at cattle shows in Scotland.

Kansas City Stock Yards,
Sept. 24, 1901.

The entries for the American Royal cattle show and sale at Kansas City, October 21-26, are being rapidly enrolled and present indications are that the 1200 head capacity of the new Fine Stock Barn which has been erected by the Kansas City Stock Yards Company will be none too great to house the representatives of bovine royalty that will contest for supremacy at that time. Charles R. Thomas, secretary of the show, is elated over the number of new herds, that is, herds that have not been represented at Kansas City at former shows, that are being enrolled and feels confident that the coming event will be the greatest cattle show, both in number and character of cattle, that has ever been pulled off in the United States.

The cattle market during the past week has experienced some fluctuations, but, upon the whole, has been a week during which the tendencies of prices on all grades of cattle were on the rise. Corn-fed cattle showed an exceptionally high range for September, never having been exceeded but once in the history of the market. Cows and heifers belonging in the butcher class sold high, mixed steer and heifer lots having reached the six dollar mark and choice fat cows having sold up to $4.50. The range for dressed beef cattle was from $5.00 to 6.30, including fed Westerns up to $6.00. Grass beefs from Colorado and Panhandle ranges sold at $3.50 to 4.75 and Southern steers at an extreme range of $2.65 to 3.85.

Southern cattle shared the general advance in values but lack of quality kept a check on the range of values. There was an abundance of Texas and Indian cows that ranged from $2.10 to 2.80 in value and were taken readily by the packers. The demand for Southerners was active and there was never a time when the market dragged. Veal calves continued active with the best of the desirable weights selling at $4.75 to 5.25.

There was a liberal inquiry for stockers and feeders, and while shipments to the country were but 14,000 head against 22,000 for the corresponding week last year, the general cattle receipts for the same week a year ago were 12,000 in excess of this year's offerings. A load of choice 1060 lb feeders sold on Tuesday (the 24th) at $4.45 and the general range of stocker and feeder prices was from $2.85 to 4.00.

In the hog market prices continued their upward movement and the highest September top on record was realized. Choice heavy hogs are scarce and sell at $7.00 to 7.10; mixed and medium hogs at $6.75 to 7.10; light hogs at $6.15 to 6.95 and desirable pigs at $5.25 to 6.15.

The best Western lambs are selling at $4.00 to 4.50; choice Western wethers at $3.10 to 3.35; fat ewes at $2.75 to 3.10. Recent rains have put some life into the feeder market and good feeder wethers sell at $2.75 to 3.00; feeder lambs at $3.00 to $3.35 and stock sheep at $1.50 to 2.50.

Receipts of live stock for the past week were, 55,000 cattle, 41,000 hogs and 29,000 sheep, as compared with 52,600 cattle, 41,600 hogs and 20,900 sheep for the preceding week and 62,700 cattle, 41,600 hogs and 23,300 sheep for the corresponding week last year.

Vaccination for Blackleg.

Blackleg is one of the most dreaded diseases affecting cattle. Vaccination of the animals has proven to be the most effective preventive treatment yet discovered, and its use and what is known of its value were discussed by Dr. John R. Mohler, of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry, in a paper prepared at the request of Secretary F. D. Coburn of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, and presented at the Board's recent annual meeting.

Dr. Mohler said in part: "Blackleg is an infectious disease, caused by a specific germ which is almost universally present in the ground in all districts where the disease is known to prevail. This microbe, upon gaining entrance into the system, usually through punctured wounds made by briars or stubbles, develops rapidly and causes hemorrhagic, bluish-black, gass-filled swellings. The course of the disease is very rapid, and the animal usually dies within twenty-four hours after the appearance of the first symptom.

By vaccination we understand the injection into the system of a minute amount of attenuated or artificially weakened blackleg virus, for the purpose of producing a mild and clinically unrecognizable case of blackleg. The virus is obtained from animals which have died from blackleg by securing the affected muscles, cutting them into strips, and drying them in the air. When perfectly dry they are pulverized, mixed with water to form a paste smeared in a thin layer on flat dishes, placed in an oven, and heated for six hours at a temperature which approaches that of boiling water. The paste is thereby transformed into a hard crust, which is pulverized and sifted and measured out into packets containing either ten or twenty-five doses. This powder constitutes the vaccine, the strength of which is thoroughly tested on experiment animals before it is distributed among the cattle owners.

The process of manufacture as it is here described appears extremely simple but it requires, nevertheless, constant vigilance and great experience to produce a vaccine which on the one hand will be sufficiently strong to enable the animals to resist a subsequent attack of the disease, and which, on the other hand has been made sufficiently harmless to insure that the most susceptible animal does not develop an acute case of blackleg as a result of the injection.

If all animals were equally resistant to the disease or equally susceptible to it, a happy medium could easily be decided on, but the great difficulty in the preparation of the vaccine lies in the fact that no two individuals possess the same power of resistance. In fact some animals, fortunately a very small number, are so susceptible to the disease that the injection of the vaccine results in the development of a fatal case of blackleg; but statistics from this country, as well as from Europe, show that these cases amount to less than one in 2,000 among the several million animals which have been vaccinated during the past fourteen years; that is, since vaccination for blackleg was first introduced.

As to the protective value of vaccine, we are in receipt of more than 500 complete reports from Kansas stockmen, covering their experience with blackleg in general and with vaccination in particular. A tabulation of these reports shows that the estimated loss from blackleg in unvaccinated herds amounts to ten and one-half per cent, while the actual loss of animals due to the postponing of vaccination until the disease had appeared in these 500 herds amounted to 2,360 head, of three and one-half percent of the total number of cattle. This means a loss last year of at least $35,000, which could easily have been avoided if the cattle owners in the infected districts would have vaccinated their young stock previous to the beginning of the blackleg season.

These figures speak for themselves and it is to be hoped the time will come when every cattle owner will come to the conclusion that vaccination is a duty he owes to himself as well as to his neighbors, and that the inconvenience in obtaining vaccine and supplying it to his cattle is outweighed a thousandfold by the benefits derived from its use."

Messrs. Madden and Hart, of the school land office in the capital, are now appraising school lands in Woods and Woodward counties. Bids will be received as soon as the work is completed. All inquiries about these lands should be addressed to Commissioner of School Lands, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

Chicago Market.

Sept. 21, 1901.

The supply of beef cattle was very moderate this week, showing a decrease of 23,000 under last week, but part of this was due to the market being closed on Thursday. Prices were generally steady. Top for the week on beef cattle was $6.60.

Receipts of western rangers reached scarcely 9000. Prices were steady to strong.

In the Texas division the supply was moderate with prices strong. Stockers and feeders of the better quality were in good demand with prices firm.

Hogs were in moderate supply and the market made a sharp advance in prices. Market on sheep and lambs suffered a decline through the week but closed steady.

St. Louis Market.

To The L. S. INSPECTOR:

The quarantine market this week has closed 10 to 15 higher on all kinds of steers and cows, but the strength of the market lies principally with the very best grade. Some of the buyers are quoting it 15 to 25 higher but a conservative estimate of the advance over last week will not reach more than 15 cents. The market has not been as wild here this week as at some other points, but our receipts have been fair and the market safe at the advance. Calves 50 to 75 cents per head higher than last week.

Hog market 25 cents higher than one week ago. Sheep steady.

Yours very truly,
BARSE L. S. COM. CO.

South St. Joseph Market.

South St Joseph, Sept., 20.

Receipts for the week were light, the run of cattle falling about 1100 under last week and 3700 less than a year ago. The market opened up for the week with prices steady to strong for native heaves, the best grades selling at $5.85. The middle of the week prices advanced 10 to 15c.

The light supply of good corn heaves and the preference shown for these grades by dress beef men created a strong market for this class of cattle.

There was a good demand for quarantine cattle, which with the light supply caused a ready changing of hands at stronger prices.

The supply of cows and heifers was also light and an active market prevailed. Prices ruling steady to 10c higher.

Bulls and stags sold steady to strong and veals continued steady.

The demand for the better grades of stockers and feeders was far in excess of the supply and prices were strong to 10c higher with more sales at the advanced figures than otherwise. The commoner kinds sold steady to weak.

The week closed with the hog market at the $7.00 mark. The first time since 1894 that hogs have reached this notch and the highest price paid in September since 1884. The light supply of pigs caused keen competition and an advance of 10c on good to choice kinds. Commoner kinds sold steady. Sheep sold steady to 10c lower.

The South St. Joseph market was closed Sept 19 in honor of our late president, Wm. McKinley. Tokens of grief and respect were manifest throughout the building. The entrance to the Exchange and to the lobby were draped in mourning and in the various places appeared lithographs of McKinley similarly draped.

The St. Joseph stock yards are a "dream," says our patrons. "It is very probable that the south St. Joseph yards will be taken as a model for the building of our new yards," says the Ft. Worth Register. "There the yards are paved and are washed daily so that they are kept clean". When patrons and contemporaries speak thusly, what must be the general decision.?

The executive committee of the National Live Stock Exchange, which met in Chicago recently decided to hold the next meeting in St. Joseph, Oct., 25 and 26th. The meeting of the executive committee will be held in the commercial club rooms Oct., 25th, at 10:00 a. m. and the general session will meet at 2 p. m. the same day. Saturday night Oct. 26, a grand banquet will be given in honor of the visitors at the Hotel Metropole.

WICHITA MARKET.

There has been no startling innovation in the stock market here the past two weeks. The hog division has experienced an incipient boom and prices have soared heavenward along with the rest of the Western markets. Good even running well matured fat butcher hogs can get most any old price lately. One car load of fine Oklahoma porkers averaging 274 pounds and well fattened sold at the seven cent mark and the average prices have been around $6.80 and upward. The quality of the hogs has not been very much on the average. There are good hogs coming in, a few, but they are usually mixed with too many skimpy, half matured, thin stuff and pigs so that the average weight of a car load does not mean very much any more. A few head of good prime fat butcher stuff will run in with a car of thin skips and undesirable hogs. The demand was never more keen than right now for the right sort of hogs and prices seem to cut no figure as the buyers now on hand are that anxious for hogs that they do not stand back on the price if the quality is anywhere near what they want. The demand is far beyond the supply of late and more hogs will find a ready market here. Many new shippers from the south country have lately tried this market and invariably they go back mighty well pleased. There are buyers enough and call enough for three times the number of hogs arriving and the best prices anywhere will be paid for them. The heavy dockage of late shows that too many rough sows and coarse stags are coming in but all are some way assimilated and taken at what they are worth.

As to the cattle trade it drags along in about the same ruts. There has been a scarcity of good butcher stuff and this is of course to be expected. There are a good many half fat cattle coming in, but good cows and heifers are what is most wanted and these and butcher stuff generally are in demand by local packers and the order buyers. Farmers and feeders are banking largely on wheat pasturage and this will afford wheat in feed in plenty if the winter stays off long enough. There are some small lots of stockers coming in and these are being snapped up at once and at good stiff market figures.

Will Use Hay at Home.

There seems to be a general impression abroad in Kansas and Nebraska that Colorado farmers will send them all the hay they need for next winter. If that is the way they are figuring they are going to get left unless they propose to pay exorbitant prices for it. Colorado farmers have discovered how to feed their hay so as to make it bring them a fair price and present indications are that all the hay in the state will be wanted right at home for stock next winter. Some will feed sheep and lambs and others will feed cattle, but there will be no lack of stock to eat the hay. H. A. Miller, of Codell, Kansas, was interviewed in Omaha last week and said that while the general impression seemed to be that there would not be many sheep fed he believed that in the end it would be found that quite a good many had been fattened. The prospects are good for fat sheep commanding good prices the coming year, and that will serve as a great inducement to feeders who will be disposed to rustle around and to get together what feed is available. One thing that will be a big relief to the Colorado sheep feeders is the fact that the drouth in Kansas has given them a first-class outlet for their hay which heretofore could be utilized only for sheep feeding. This year they are getting good prices for their hay to be shipped to the dry sections and will not be compelled to feed it up. As most of them lost their hay last year from feeding, and many of them money in addition, it is believed that the farmers will be disposed to let their hay go whenever they get the opportunity.—Denver Record-Stockman.

THE END OF SUMMER.

Pods are the poppies, and slim spires of pods
The hollyhocks; the balsam's pearly bredes
Of rose-stained snow are little sacs of seeds collapsing at a touch; the lot, that sods
The pond with green, has changed its flowers to rods
That balance cell-pierced disks; and all the weeds,
Ar...und the sleepy water and its reeds,
Are one white smoke of seeded silk that nods.
Summer is dead, ah me! sweet summer's dead!
The sunset clouds have built her funeral pyre,
Through which, e'en now, runs subterranean fire;
While from the east, as from a garden bed,
Mist-vined, the dusk lifts her broad moon, like some Great golden melon, saying, "Fall has come."
—Madison Cawela in September Century.

ASHES OF ROSES.

Soft on the sunset sky,
Bright daylight closes,
Leaving, when light doth die,
Pate hues that mingling lie—
Ashes of roses—
When love's warm sun is set,
Love's brightness closes;
Eyes with hot tears are wet,
In hearts there linger yet
Ashes of roses.
—Elaine Goodale Eastman.

ARISTOCRATS VS. PLEBEIANS.

The farmer boy who feels his awkwardness in comparison with some polished aristocrat, or the poor girl who is condescendingly patronized or else carefully avoided by her wealthy classmate need not feel handicapped by her poverty in her desire to make her life a success. The haughtiest aristocrat has been proud to shake the hand of many a plebeian. Shakespeare was the son of a wool comber, Johnson of a bookseller, Horace of a feedman, Socrates of a mid-wife. If family could keep a man down, we would never have heard of Abraham Lincoln. There are too many instances of the kind for an attempt at enumeration. Simply do your duty bravely, don't be afraid to aspire and the rest will take care of itself.

COALS OF FIRE.

The story of Damon and Pythias is a beautiful one, showing the devotion of one friend to another, but kindness shown to an enemy is a rarer occurrence, and possesses still nobler qualities. The following incident appeared in a paper a few days ago. When Mme. Sontag began her musical career, she was hissed off the stage by the friends of her rival, Amelia Steininger, whose decline had already begun, through her dissipation. Anyone who has the slightest conception of the study necessary to a preparation for the stage and of the discouraging thought that after all one may never be successful, can partially realize what this meant to the young singer.

In after years when Mme. Sontag had reached the zenith of her fame, she saw in the streets of Berlin a blind woman led by a child. She asked the child who the woman was.

"That's my mother, Amelia Steininger. She used to be a great singer but she's lost her voice and she cried so much about it that she lost her eyesight."

The next week a benefit was given by Mme. Sontag for the blind woman and afterward a skilful oculist was consulted in regard to restoring her eyesight. This was found to be impossible, but until the day of Amelia Steininger's death, Mme. Sontag took care of her and her daughter after her.

A CHURCH AS A CLUB ROOM.

Religion is becoming less of a creed and more of a practical endeavor to help mankind. This does not mean that religion is changing. It is the people's conception of it that has changed. What could have taught the practical uses of christianity more than the life of Christ, who alleviated human suffering whenever opportunity offered. He did not tell the blind man, "It does not make any difference if you can't see in this world. You will go to heaven by and by and see all right there."

Religious organizations and liberal organizations are beginning to realize the need of helping others. This is the grandest indication we have for the new century—the fact that we are more fully realizing the meaning of the words, "Bear ye one another's burdens."

The work of the Salvation Army is too well known to need much comment. Their penny ice wagons and outings for the poor in tents near Fairmount park in Kansas City have been followed by a still broader kindness that gave to colored women and children the same pleasures.

For the benefit of young men who have not the advantage of a home, the parlors of the Olive street Baptist church will be turned into club rooms, in charge of the Young Men's Club of the church. There are a great many boarding houses in the vicinity of this church that are filled with young men, who have come to Kansas City for business purposes.

One room will be furnished as a reading room, with books, papers, periodicals, and everything as comfortable as possible. Another room will be devoted to games. The church will be kept open every night of the week and young men without homes will have some place to go besides saloons.

Arrangements are being made for a series of popular lectures and it is intended to present the cantata "Ruth" this fall. A club dinner was recently served in the hall by the church women.

This plan has been adopted by many of the eastern churches and will be a good plan for the west to follow, not only in the cities but smaller towns as well. Many a boy who has lived a good life in his home town falls into bad company when away simply from loneliness.

A FISH PARTY.

This is something entirely new in the way of entertainment. The invitations may be cut out in the shape of a fish and on one side written, "Come and catch me at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, Oct. 17, at 8 o'clock."

Each guest should be provided with a fishing rod which can be easily manufactured at home. If you have a fishing game, this can be used. If not, a long pasteboard box or boxes set together can represent the brook. It should be half filled with sand, in which pasteboard fishes are placed with their heads out. In the head should be a small hole for the hook to go in. On the fish will be written the name of the lady the fisherman shall take in to supper.

Each one of the guests should come prepared to tell a fish story and the one telling the biggest story to be presented with a goldfish, a pincushion in the shape of a fish or anything suggestive of the evening's entertainment. "Little Fisher Maiden," or other appropriate songs may be sung. The principal refreshments should, of course, be fish.

The following questions can be given the guests for solution:

1. What fish is found in every band?
2. What fish is served with meats?
3. What fish is worn by officers in the army?
4. What fish is a household pet?
5. What fish forms a resting place for birds?
6. What fish accompanies the hunter?
7. What fish represents the earth?
8. What fish is not on this planet?
9. What fish is found among royalty?
10. What fish guides the ships?
11. What fish was once used as a military weapon?
12. What fish is a man's solace?
13. What fish is a destroyer of ships?
14. What fish is a good sailor?
15. What fish is a carpenter's tool?
16. What fish is prominent in winter sports?

What fish is immortal?

SOLUTION.
1. Drum; 2. Jelly; 3. Sword; 4. Cat; 5. Perch; 6. Hound; 7. Globe; 8. Moon; 9. King; 10. Pilot; 11. Pike; 12. Pipe; 13. Torpedo; 14. Skipper; 15. Saw; 16. Skate; 17. Sole.

FASHION HINTS.

The collarless gowns are said to have brought the pearl necklaces into vogue again, but as pearl necklaces are scarce, the imitation pearls are made more beautiful than ever.

Long puff oversleeves or bishop sleeves of medium fulness, with a decided bulge at the back of the arm over the wristband, will be the popular ones for shirt waists.

Boleros of white silk trimmed with a lattice work of black velvet are very pretty worn over garden party frocks. This lattice work of baby ribbon or ribbon velvet is also pretty over silk yokes.

Winter shirt waists will be made of Henrietta, nunveiling and French flannels in beautiful shades, plain, polka dotted or Persian figured. Back or side closing will be chiefly worn.

ABOUT THE HOUSE.

Every pantry or closet should have a window. Dark corners in a house are undesirable.

Waterproof paper or paint is much nicer for the kitchen wall than ordinary wall paper. This paper can be washed whenever necessary without damaging it in the least. With linoleum on the floor, waterproof paper on the walls, light wood tables that can be scrubbed, and an absence of wooden sinks or dark cupboards where roaches can secrete themselves, the kitchen can be kept a cleanly, cheerful place without much trouble.

Just Between You and Me.

Not three months until Christmas. That means a good deal of planning and working for those persons who are glad of an opportunity to remember their friends by some token. I hope the readers of this department will give others the benefit of any suggestions they may have for making Christmas presents.

We can hardly expect George, Woods County Cowboy or Deacon to help in this but they might tell us what they desire for Christmas and it may prove a guide to sisters, wives and mothers.

By the way, suppose we have an experience meeting? Anything that leaves a pleasant memory in one heart will be likely to strike a responsive chord in that of another, for human nature is much the same.

Suppose you ransack your memories for a recollection of "Your happiest Christmas," and write us about it. Send them in before Nov. 25. Don't be afraid that we won't have room, for we will take extra space if we need it. I wish our readers would imagine they are at a Methodist class meeting and refuse to keep quiet. Old men and women, young men and women, big boys and girls are invited to write on any subject, whether it is to praise or blame, or ask questions; or about books, something to eat or wear; or about your games or studies.

"What is your opinion of games or cards, and what do you do with your evenings?"

Some of you have been to college. Why not tell us of your life there? If any of you have had a vacation—or made a visit during the summer, tell us about it. Don't let us be formal.

Dear Aunt Mary:—A woman who overworks in order to save money so that she can put it into fine clothes intimated that I was lazy. Now I think that a haggard, overworked, prematurely old woman in the most expensive clothes does not look as well as a well preserved, healthy woman in a plainer dress. And I think it better to allow your too-energetic neighbors to call you lazy than to lose the most precious boon to mankind—good health.

I do work but I am not afraid to rest or to take time for enjoyment. The best means of rest for a tired woman is a flat position, in a darkened room if possible. A few minutes flat on your back is worth an hour's sitting in a chair. It will not only rest you in body, but in mind also, if for that time you will put out of your mind everything pertaining to work. Don't say you can't. You can if you will and you will be repaid for it. Your husband wants a companion and your children a mother just as much as they need a house-keeper.

MILKWEED.

Thousands of beautiful rosy stars Came tumbling down from the sky. And dear Dame June she gathered them up In a clustering family.

The sun fell hot, and the world was strange To the little frightened things. Until August came to unfold them With a pair of sheltering wings

You will shine again with brighter rays. Sweet wanderers from the skies; The days are bringing you sure reward In a wonderful surprise.

For Autumn carries the magic key To unlock the milkweed pod. And thousands of starry angels will Fly back to their home with God.

Dear Aunt Joe:—I am sorry no one tried to guess my riddles. The answer to "Why is a boy like a postage stamp?" is "Because they both have to be licked."

Why is a galloping horse like a stick of candy? Because the harder you lick it the faster it goes.

Why is a boy looking at a pudding like a wild horse? Because he wants a bit in his mouth.

Dear Aunt Joe:—I want to tell the children about a visit I made this summer. I started at ten o'clock one night and arrived at four o'clock next evening. I slept in a sleeper. Part of the time I was away I stayed on a farm. It was a nice farm, just covered with springs and sand and trees. They had one cow, six pigs, ten Angora goats and a lot of chickens.

The wife was a little girl lived there about a year old. She always called me "Nec." She would go to a door and say, "Nec, opie gor Isie." She would mean, "Open the door for Isie." Then she would go to every door and say the same thing.

When she got out on the back porch, she would say, "Nec, pay shand." Then she would empty out the sand I had brought her and say, "Nec, more shand." I would get her some more sand and then she would say, "Nec, chuyer my tootsies up."

One time she laid down on the couch and rolled over and over, and would say "Isie shiek! Isie shiek!" and then she would grunt.

After a few weeks I went out to my uncle's and on the way back we slept on the ground over night. While I was there, my six-year old cousin stepped on a flat head, a very poisonous snake. He stepped on it with his bare foot and did not know it for a long time. Then he felt something soft under his foot and he looked down and when he saw it was a snake he screamed and ran to the house as fast as he could. Then my uncle came out and killed it.

A REAL TRAIN.

"Alta! Iva!" "There's Virgil calling us," said Iva, so we climbed down from the loft of the barn and went out doors.

"Let us go down to Sweet's," said Virgil. Virgil and Iva are my cousins. I was visiting them this summer.

We went down to Sweet's and played house.

"Now, I am going to Buffalo," said I. "Goodbye, children." So I put my trunk on board and got in myself and rode on a really real car. What do you think of that?

The Sweet's boys papa is a railroad man and he made them a real track, with wooden ties. The engine was about three feet long and made just like a real engine. It was so heavy one could not lift it alone. The tender was about eighteen inches long and was as heavy as the engine. It was made like a coal car.

In fact everything was made like a real train, except there were cars like they put stone, iron boilers, etc., into instead of passenger cars. There were two of them and children twelve and fourteen years old would ride in them.

Their lot was about 150 feet long and the track run all that length and around the other side of the house coming back.

The tracks were made of wood. About half way down there was a bridge with the wood extending down under it to hold it up. Farther on there was a bridge with no help from underneath but railings on each side about two feet high. Each one of these bridges was about two yards long. The cars all had brakes to them, so they would stop whenever you turned the brake.

The ground sloped down from the front yard, and by giving the train a push it would run the whole distance. About three yards from the lower end of the track, it separated into two tracks. Of course there was a switch and with that you could go on either track.

SUNSET LOCKS.

Sunset sleepily opened her eyes one winter morning. It was not fully light. Mamma and papa had gone down stairs and she was alone in the room. In the semi-darkness she saw something awful. A small black object was by the wall, looking straight towards her bed; in fact, right at her. It was rather broad, with two little ears standing straight up on its head. It looked more like a dog than anything else, but she was sure it was not a dog.

She could not stand it any longer. That dreadful looking thing might come towards her any moment, so a completely scared little girl climbed out of bed softly and had to walk almost by this strange animal in order to reach the stairway.

"What made my baby get up so early?" asked mamma, as Sunset entered the dining room.

The little girl did not have much to say, so her mother did not question her further. A few minutes later Sunset Locks said,

"There was somfin in my room."

"There was? What was it?"

"A little black fing."

"What was it like?"

"It had two ears."

"Where was it?"

"Right by the wall, looking straight at me."

But when they took the light into the room, they could not see a strange or any other kind of animal.

Then mamma stooped down in front of a pair of papa's shoes standing close together with the toes turned towards the bed and the loops by which he pulled them on standing straight up.

"Do these look like the ears?" asked mamma.

Then mamma and Sunset both laughed and did not look any further for the "little black fing."

One morning Sunset was playing with her dolly, but oh! dolly was so naughty.

"Now, dolly, you must speak your piece," commanded the small mamma.

"But I don't want to," squeaked a tiny voice.

"But you must, or I will have to whip you."

"No."

Then a vigorous spanking was administered and a penitent little dolly meekly made her bow and spoke her piece.

After it was over, a thoughtful young mother sat very still for a time. At last she said,

"But suppose my dolly wouldn't speak her piece? I might whip her and whip her, but I couldn't make her if she just would not, could I?"

"No, but little girls usually get tired of being whipped sooner than their mammas get tired of whipping them, but if they did not, their mammas would take some other way to punish them. But the reason you should mind mamma is not because she whips you but because mamma has lived so much longer and has seen how unhappy children become when they don't mind their mothers. Mammas love their little girls and won't tell them to do anything that is not best for them to do. "Now, do you hear, dolly?" and Sunset Locks rocked her baby to sleep.
