Dealing with drugs: a family's story

By NICK GREENWALT

Staff Writer He was sure that his wife was mistaken when she told him their son was on drugs; but after she explained her evidence, his eyes became glossy, his speech a little slurred.

"I didn't believe her — I guess I didn't want to believe her," his father recalled. "I just didn't want to believe my son was that stupid."

John (not his real name) had grown up in a good family in a nice town and in a normal way. Described by his father as a happy-go-lucky guy, John had en-joyed school, earning respectable grades, and had even biked a paper route for five years.

After graduation he went away to school, did well in his first semester but then ran into academic problems during the spring. Returning home, he worked hard at a junior college before once again setting out on his

"That's when the trouble started," his dad said. After four months of regularly meeting his car payments, his sor stopped sending in money.
"He called the first time, then he just missed it. So after the third time, I went to get him and the car."

That's when his wife started to think something was amiss, but he didn't believe her. Nor did he consider a drug problem when he received a call from a friend

First in a 3-part series saying that his son had been jailed An acquaintance of his son had stolen a checkbook, and his son had then stolen some government checks according to the district attorney, who told him that his son had deposited checks into that account and then used the money to buy drugs.

His reaction was one of disbelief: "Again, I just didn't want to believe that he would do this. John was charged with eight counts of forgery, but the DA managed to get all but one count dropped. John was sentenced to seven years in prison; eventually, he For a second time, John returned home. At first, things were fine. His father bought him a motorcycle, and John found a job that he liked. But once again, drugs took control. 'My wife told me he was taking something, but I still didn't believe he was doing this, although I knew he was losing his jobs," his father recalls, remembering how his son often switched employers

"It was blindness on my part. I didn't want to admit he was doing this," he said. "He was living the hippie life, wearing long hair and outlandish clothes.'

Finally, the reality of his son's problem hit home. His wife called him one day at work with the news their house had been broken into. It turned out the break-in was rigged by their son.

Returning from work, the father questioned his neighbors, who hadn't seen anyone except a boy leaving the house on a motorcycle.

When I asked what color it was, and they said gold, I knew it was my son's.

A back window had been pried open, and his suspicions were confirmed when he entered the basement and discovered his son's reportedly missing stereo. Later, John returned home to find his "stolen" stereo sitting on his bed. Knowing he was caught, he admitted the break-in, as well as taking his father's coin collection and some silver certificates. Some of these lay hidden in a motel room, while others had been cashed in for money to buy drugs.

'We went out to his motel, and I found part of my coin collection and some of the certificates as well as needles and some heroin," the father said.

He also found out his son had lost his last job and had been spending most of his time in this room.

Now, knowing the problem, he sought a solution. He entered his son in a drug rehabilitation program, where he was put on methadone. He also told his son to leave home until he found a job.

Methadone, a less expensive but still addictive drug, was used as a "substitute for heroin, which relieved the physical cravings an addict's body has for heroin," according to John's father. "It prevents the excruciating pains and cramps in the user's stomachs

Taking just a day to find work, John started washing dishes in a small restaurant and, according to his father, things went well for about three months.

Or so he thought. John had learned a trick that enabled him to make money and keep his heroin habit. On his prescriptions for 10 methadone pills, he would add an extra zero, then sell the extra 90 tablets.

"While he was taking methadone to relieve his dependency on heroin, he was selling methadone to make money to buy heroin," his father said, his voice mixing disbelief, sarcasm and pity.

During this time he had also worked his way up to kitchen manager, but then the bottom fell out once

One morning John pulled into a gas station and, after See DRUGS, page 2A

High court to review Stacy permit

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court, spurred by angry directors of the Lower Colorado River Authori-ty, said Wednesday it will review the legality of a state water permit that authorizes the construction of the Stacy Dam and reservoir.

The appeals court said it will review only six of 30 points of error advanced by the LCRA. All revolve around the river authority's contentions that the Texas Water Commission, which granted approval of the $50.5 million project, did not have the right to approve the project because water from the Colorado River is already committed.

Oral arguments in the case are set for 9 a.m. Oct. 26.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District's plans to constuct the dam and 554,340 acre-foot reservoir 24 miles south of Ballinger have been stuck in a legal quagmire for years. Legal briefs on the issue fill a large cardboard box at the Texas Supreme Court.

Once constructed, the project would supply municipal water to several West Texas cities, including San Angelo and Big Spring.
The Colorado River Municipal

Water District, under the permit granted by the Texas Water Commission, would be authorized to use up to 25,000 acre-feet each year for a planned steam electric generating station adjacent to the reservoir. An acre-foot is equal to 325,851 gallons of water. If filled, the reservoir would inundate portions of Runnels, Concho and Coleman counties.

The Lower Colorado River Authority lost legal attempts to overturn issuance of the permit during arguments before an Austin district court and the Austin-based 3rd Court of Appeals.

LCRA officials contend that permits already issued by the Texas Water Commission obligate all the available water in the Colorado River and that issuance of the Stacy Dam permit would take water needed by the district downstream for the Highland Lakes chain north of

"This has been strung out far beyond what we ever thought it would be," Owen Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, said Wednesday after learning of the See STACY, page 2A

American Petrofina attorney denies company overcharged

By RICHARD HORN Staff Writer

An attorney for American Petrofina Co. of Texas today responded to a $40 million lawsuit against his firm by denying the oil company had ever overcharged for its gasoline products.

He said, however, the firm had settled in 1982 with the U.S. Department of Energy over a question of "probable violations" of pricing regulations during

The lawsuit, filed last week in Missouri, claims the Department of Energy covered up alleged overpricing of Petrofina's gasoline products from 1975 through 1979. It was filed by an Austin attorney on behalf of 13 independent gasoline suppliers, including Thurman Oil Co. of Big Spring. The Thurman firm sued under the name of Tommy Gage Oil Co., the company's name at the time of the alleged overpricing.

Bob Anderson, assistant general counsel for American Petrofina in Dallas, denied that the comoany overcharged for its products. But he said the firm had reached a $14 million settlement with the federal agency because of a complicated interpretation of the regulations

He said the energy department, following an extensive audit in the late 1970s, had served the company with "notices of probable violations" for 1974.

He said the energy department claimed the overpricing amounted to "$300 or $400 million." But he said the firm and the federal auditors had "settled" on the $14 million figure The suit claims the Department of Energy is covering up the additional overcharges (The auditors) made their pitch, and we reached a settlement. What they (the plaintiffs in the suit) are doing is going from the preliminary figures straight to the actual settlement," Anderson said in a telephone interview this morning.

He said Petrofina, while denying any overcharges agreed on the $14 million figure because company officials were uncertain how a court would interpret the

"I defy anyone to read those regulations and tell you what they say," he said. He also said the government did not insist that Petrofina admit to the overpricing when the settlement was reached.

The $14 million was made available to companies which had purchased products from Petrofina during 1974. Anderson said.

"What the jobbers (gasoline suppliers) failed to understand is that we got our money back to the jobbers," he said. "Other companies have settled, and the money has gone to state programs, but we gave the money to them. So we were a little surprised to hear (of this suit). "All of this (the $14 million settlement) is public knowledge. We haven't kept it hushed up," he said. "Nobody is hiding anything, and that's what makes the idea of a conspiracy kind of laughable."

plaintiffs) are right," he said. "But I don't know if the DOE has been served yet. We haven't contacted

TESCO considers pursuing charges against PUC attorney

AUSTIN - Texas Electric Service Co. officials say they are uncertain whether they will pursue conflict of interest charges against a Public Utility Commission

(PUC) attorney Texas Electric (TESCO) tried and failed Tuesday to disqualify Steve Porter, the chief PUC attorney assigned to the company's $195 million revenue hike case. TESCO attorneys charged that Porter's decision to abandon the commission staff's recommendation that the utility receive more than $100 million of its request is linked to his decision to leave the agency for a job

Both Porter and the commission's chief attorney, Allen King, favor a $54.9 million revenue increase recommendation suggested by the municipal league, which represents a number of cities fighting TESCO's request with the Texas Municipal League

In a written statement submitted on the first day of an expected two weeks of hearings, TESCO attorney Carter Burdette noted that "Mr. Porter is not capable under the circumstances of objectively discharging his duties to protect and represent the public interest in this case

Phillip Holder, the commission examiner in charge of the case, declined to disqualify Porter, saying it was not his job to decide conflict of interest questions.

He also indicated that if TESCO is serious about its allegations, the matter should be taken elsewhere. That could include the State Bar, which oversees the ethics of all lawyers in the state, or district court.

Earlier in the hearing, Holder allowed newly appointed Public Counsel Jim Boyle to join the TESCO rate case at the last minute but denied Boyle's request for a two-week delay to give him time to prepare for the hearings. Boyle, former director of the Texas Con-See TESCO, page 2A

School budget hearing draws 1; vote Sept. 15

The Big Spring school district held a public hearing last night concerning a proposed 85-cent per $100 property evaluation tax rate; however, only one person showed up, and she didn't voice an opinion.

The hearing was held because the district is proposing a $477,000 or 7.9 percent increase in total tax revenue over 1982. State law requires the district to hold a public hearing on increases of more than 3

The proposed 85-cent tax rate will raise about $5.4 million in local taxes. The district's board of trustees will meet Sept. 15 to vote on the 85-cent tax rate.

sumers Association, was appointed last week by Gov. Mark White.

Concerning a possible appeal of the conflict-ofinterest charges, TESCO spokesman George Hedrick said no such action is expected at this time. "Our major concern was to remove any doubt about the position Mr. Porter was in," he said.

Porter said he will answer the charges in writing this week, but he noted that the decision to go with the league's recommendation rather than the staff's was made by his boss, King, and had nothing to do with his decision to change jobs. Texas Municipal League attorney Don Butler quickly denounced the charges as a "smokescreen (by TESCO) to try to avoid having an adequate case presented against them." He also called the attempt a new low in trying to win a rate case. He said the utility is trying to cover its own inadequacies by indicating some "sinister plot. Early in the day, several members of the Senior Citizens Alliance of Tarrant County testified in opposition to TESCO's requested rate hike.

George A. Parker, a Fort Worth resident and president of the group, noted that "if these increases are granted, many older citizens now living in their own homes under great economic stress will be forced to give up their homes and move into nursing homes at great public expense.

He urged the commission to hold TESCO rates to a minimum and to consider establishing a new and lower rate category for those over age 65.

The group's vice president, Claude Griffith, also complained about TESCO's "exorbitant and outrageous" fuel charges, which he said went from 36 percent of his total bill in April to 44 percent in August. During that same time, he noted, Lone Star Gas did not increase its fuel charges and foreign and domestic crude oil prices dropped.

He said he believes TESCO is charging too much for its fuel, as it did in 1980 when an Austin district judge estimated the over-recovery at $30 million.

The arresting officer, to whom John confessed a $2,000-a-day habit, found about 2 ounces of marijuana in the car. This earned John a year in the county jail.

The night of his arrest, John's father did the hardest thing he had done in his life. He refused to post bond and walked away from his son.

"It was the hardest thing in my life to do, leaving him in that jail. It was an ugly, filthy place with cockroaches all over, but I'd gone just as far as I could financially as well as emotionally," he said.

"Emotionally, I was shattered, and it suddenely dawned on me that maybe jail was the place for him he was a thief and a drug addict," the father said, the frustration and pain obvious in his voice. "It was a bitter pill. My only son was a thief, a drug addict, a liar and would do anything just to feed his filthy drug

Instead of jail, John ended up in a federal drug rehabilitation center, and once again it appeared that he had kicked the habit.

Leaving that program, he found a job with another restaurant, and for a year all was well. He lived on his own, found a steady girlfriend and worked his way up

'While he was on the job, he knew it and was good at

Things went well until John's supervisor found some needles in the store. John denied they were his (which his father said turned out to be a lie) and lost his job. Moving to another state helped things go well again for John. He got married and eventually worked his way up to a supervisory position. Then, his father said. John fell victim to his past. At one of his stores, money was missing. The company's vice president wanted the employees to take a lie detector test. John refused, claiming his past was being held against him and that he was being singled out.

His father claimed John was wronged. His immediate supervisor backed the claim, telling John's dad that John didn't know the safe's combination but was singled out because of what had happened. John rejoined his family, and things went well for the next two years as John opened his own restaurant. Then events turned bad again as John and his wife separated and he was turned down for a job he really wanted, causing him to return to drugs. The job he had applied for required an extensive background check, and his former employer's accusation had cost him his chance.

Again, life went downhill as John lost his business, his car, and job after job. Eventually, John found a job with a former employer, but he was still on drugs. According to his father, drugs are still the major influence in John's life. 'I don't think he'll ever quit all drugs," the father said dejectedly. "I know he still smokes marijuana, and he has told me he'll never quit doing that.'

The Jews of Cuba

A forgotten remnant maintains its culture

...I shall scatter them among the nations, and disperse them in the countries."

In the dimly-lit crowded archives room of Havana's Patronato de la Casa de la Comunidad Hebrea, 42-year-old Adele Dworin chronicles the history of Cuba's Jewish population.

Secretary for the synagogue, Mrs. Dworin records the births, deaths, marriages, divorces and circumcisions of the island's 1.500 Jews

Her files are much thinner than the old ones kept in wooden cabinets at the back of the room under a portrait of Jose Marti. For the last 25 years, the names have become fewer, the journal entries irregular and uncertain.

After Fidel Castro won control of the island in 1958, 90 percent of the country's 15,000 Jews fled for America, Israel and Venezuela. The Jews who remained are an almost forgotten remnant of a once proud and wealthy community centered in the Vedado section of Havana.

Because of the American embargo against Cuba and Castro's inimical relations with Israel, the Jews of Cuba are in exile, cut off from Jerusalem and most their brethren in the rest of the Diaspora.

The 250 members of the Patronato synagogue operate only the rear section of the Communidad Hebrea, a giant structure three stories high covering a city block which a quarter-century ago was the focal point of Havana Jewry. After the revolution, the Ministry of Culture purchased about two-thirds of the building, including the gynasium, banquet halls and study rooms.

The synagogue's auditorium, used only for the High Holy Days, is deteriorating, its pews ripped and crossed with cobwebs, its velvet curtains tattered and rotting. The more devout of this

There remain only five synagogues in Havana, three Ashkenazi (European) and two Sephardi (Mediterranean). The synagogues in Camaguey and Santiago de Cuba closed their doors long ago for lack of congregants.

"How shall we sing the Lord's song in a foreign land?"

But the tiny Jewish community manages to nurse along its Hebrew culture despite a disproportionately large population of elderly, a small number of children (between 150 and 200) more interested in Das Kapital than the Talmud, and isolation from American and Israeli Jewry.

The Patronato synagogue's board of directors includes several young and middle-aged professionals. The children are taught Hebrew. Families keep kashrut (kosher dietary laws). The High Holy Days bring out almost the entire community. And, according to Mrs. Dworin, the Castro government puts no pressures on the Jews to drop their religion and assimilate.

Mrs. Dworin, an attractive blonde with Slavic features, says she is typical of the modern-day Cuban Jew.

"I'm not very religious. I have the Jewish roots. I still keep kashrut in the house. It's a little difficult, but you can do it. It's a way to maintain your Judaism. I'm not ashamed of being Jewish, and I'm not ashamed of being Cuban."

She said she dissuaded her father, a wealthy merchant, from leaving Cuba when the revolutionary government nationalized his clothing store.

She recalls when she was 18 telling her father, "You can leave if you want. I remember what you told me as a child that Jews always have to run. I was born here, and I'm going to stay.'

"Your exile shall be long; build houses and live in them, and plant gardens and eat their produce."

Those who stayed continue a 500-year history of Jewish presence on the island.

Probably the first Jew to set foot in Cuba was Luis de Torres, an interpreter for Columbus. Hernando de Castro, another Spanish Jew, introduced cultivation of the country's sugar cane. Because the Spanish Inquisition did not end in Cuba until 1823, the number of Jews there remained insignificant until 1881 when Havana opened its gates to East European immigrants. Not until 1898, however, were they allowed to build synagogues.

"Most of the Jews here sympathized with (Castro's) agrarian reforms. But when the businesses were nationalized, they left," Mrs. Dworin said. "Most of the Jews who stayed here had sympathies with the revolution. I was in favor of the revolution at the start, and I still believe in it."

Many Jews played important roles in Castro's revolution and continue to hold high government

Manuel Stolik, an official in the foreign ministry, is a former ambassador to Canada and India. And the Cuban Academy of Sciences counts many Jews among its members

"For a small group of Jews, there is a big number occupying important jobs," Mrs. Dworin said.

Cuban Jews are doctors, dentists, architects, lawyers, party officials and athletes, she said. Jewish soldiers serve in Angola, Ethiopia and

'Here they don't ask you if you are a Jew, a Catholic or a communist, if you have the grades, you can go to college," Mrs. Dworin said: "The schools teach our children to be proud they are Jews like they teach the Black children to be proud they are Black.

The problem of 'deadbeat parents'

Eight million American children are being raised in homes in which a parent — usually the father — is absent. More than half of the 8 million are supposed to receive court-ordered childsupport payments. But a lot of them don't. Congress should stiffen the penalties for parents who defy such orders.

Census Bureau figures tell a disheartening story: In 1981, less than half the children entitled to support received all they were due; more than a third collected nothing at all. Overall, the nation's children are deprived of $4 billion a year in court-ordered

Partly because of the deficiency, more children are poor now than at any time since 1965. Of all children in female-headed families, 56 percent live in poverty, and the percentages for minorities are higher. Another reason for the rising poverty figures is the Reagan administration's unwise cuts in programs that help children and families in crisis. But if more absent parents obeyed child-support orders, children would be better off and so would taxpavers.

Several proposals soon to be considered in Congress would crack down on parents who refuse to pay - by imposing mandatory wage withholding, intercepting tax refunds or expediting court actions. Some proposals would provide financial incentives to the states to ensure vigorous entercement of child-support orders. Most congressmen agree that the new law should apply to both welfare and non-welfare cases.

Tough enforcement and tougher laws are part of the answer. But, as Minnesota Rep. Bill Frenzel correctly argues, attitudes must change as well.

A co-sponsor of several child-support bills, Frenzel says that the government alone cannot solve the problem of "deadbeat parents." People must come to see parental refusal to pay child support for what it is: child neglect.

U.S at mercy of Middle East

WASHINGTON — A deep inner logic links the decision of Menachem Begin to resign with the murderous assault of the Marines in Lebanon. Behind both events lies a historic development - a loss of self-confidence in Israel.

Prime Minister Begin, at least, understands what is happening and behaves accordingly. The Reagan administration, hung up between a liking for tough rhetoric and an aversion to the use of force, acts as if blind to reality.

The invasion of Lebanon brought Israelis to the end of their psychological tether. The deliberate use of overwhelming power, then the casualties, and then the massacres in the Beirut camps, demoralized the army and divided the public. The ruling Likud Party fell to squabbling, and - in the ouster of Defense Minister Ariel Sharon — an unloading of blame. toward unilateral withdrawal from

In consequence of those pressures, the Israeli government decided to redeploy its forces in Lebanon. To save blood and money, the Israeli army is now abandoning a chunk of territory around Beirut. While the withdrawal may look like a tactical maneuver to some, it in fact marks a historic turn of the

In the past, after the Suez war of 1956 and again after the October war of 1973, Israel abandoned occupied territory under pressure from within.

Nobody is more sensitive to the historic meaning of the pullback than Manachem Begin. His life has been one long assertion of unyielding Jewish militancy

He stood up to the anti-Semites of his native Poland, and to fellow Jews who made accomodation in the ghetto. He stood up to the Russian invaders of Poland who wanted to Sovietize the Jews. He stood up to the imperialist impulse of the British in Palestine. He stood up to the Palestinians, the Syrians, and Lebanese and all other Arabs, making peace with Egypt only after Sadat came to Jerusalem. He even stood up to the U.S.

No doubt the death of his wife Aliza induced a certain melancholy Physical ailments weakened him. But the strange depression of the past year is rooted in the larger shape of events. Begin's basic reason for being has collapsed. His decision to resign as prime minister acknowledges a historic failure.

The Arabs, of course, see what is happening before their very eyes. Their most militant leaders have convinced themselves that Israel is recoiling, not because of inner hesitancy, but because of superior Arab strength. One in particular. President Hafez Assad of Syria, has long been waiting for just such a turn of the tide.

Assad kept his troops in Lebanon despite heavy losses suffered during the Israeli invasion. He refur bished his army with Soviet weapons bought with money from Saudi Arabia. He took over part of the Palestine Liberation Organization and used his influence over the PLO to prevent Yasser Arafat and moderate Arab leaders from coming to terms with the U.S. under the Reagan Plan.

Now, with Israel pulling back, Assad is moving in to take over Lebanon. He has mobilized various Lebanese dissidents against the government of President Amin Gemayel. One of the dissident groups working under Syrian patronage launched the attack that killed two Marines last Monday. Thus Assad is challenging the American protection of Lebanon.

The Reagan administration has never had a clear view about the Marine presence there. The State Department, under both Alexander Haig and Geoge Shultz, pushed for it as a poltical tool, useful in shoring up President Gemayel and in easing out all foreign forces from the country. The Defense Department, led by the chief exponent of tough rhetoric, Secretary Caspar Weinberger, was cool to the Marine presence. The upshot of the bickering was that the president sent with maximum publicity a tiny force highly circumscribed in duties.

While the Israelis were hanging tough, that didn't matter much. All the Arabs, including the Syrians, were wary of tangling with Marines. For the U.S. represented their best hope to push the Israelis out. But with the Israelis pulling back on their own, the Syrians see that Marines as obstacles, not assets. Hence the attack.

The Marines now find themselves in highly exposed positions. Logically, the detachment should either be strengthened in some way, or withdrawn.

But an administration chiefly sensitive to appearances doesn't want to be seen either going in deeper or turning tail. So, unless the Israelis suddenly gain heart, the U.S. is at the mercy of events in the Middle East - "Eyeless," as Milton put it, "in Gaza."

Billy Graham

Can faith cure illness?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have some emotional problems, and my family doctor says that I need to see a psychiatrist. A friend of mine, however, says that if I just have enough faith these problems will go away. What do you think? — H.A. DEAR H.A.: I would be the first to say that faith in God is very, very important. It is essential for our eternal salvation, and it is crucial for our everyday lives as well. But at the same time I do not agree with your friend, because God may choose to use an able psychiatrist to help you with some of the problems you are facing.

You see, when you have faith in God, you are actually trusting a problem into his hands. You are sayiing, in effect, "Lord, I don't know how to deal with this problem, but I have faith that you do. I trust you to lead me and give me wisdom, so I will know what is right. I trust you to show me the right answer to this situation." Faith, in other words, does not necesarily mean that we sit back and fold our hands, assuming that God will work without ever using any human tools.

Do you remember the incident when Jesus healed a man who had been blind since birth? (You can read about it in chapter 9 of John's Gospel.) Jesus could have simply pronounced the man healed. But instead he used some mud which he put on the man's eyes, and then told him to go and wash it off in a certain pool of water. I believe one reason Jesus did this was to show us that a times he uses earthly tools or instruments to bring healing.

Therefore you should not feel that you are wrong in seeking the help of a psychiatrist or trained psychologist if that will help you deal with some deep-seated emo-tional problems. Seek one who will not discourage you in your faith in God. (Your Pastor can perhaps suggest a Christian psychiatrist in your area). And at the same time ask God to help you grow in your faith in him. I am convinced that many emotional problems today are caus ed by spiritual problems. Some people, for example, are beset with deep feelings of guilt that they cannot shake. Christ, however, is the only ultimate answer to guilt because he alone can offer us full forgiveness. God bless you as you seek to overcome these problems.

For example, I asked my roving reporter, Jon Lee Anderson, to investigate the covert military manipulations in Central America. He went deep into the Nicaraguan bush to observe the guerrilla war where it is happening.

He traveled by jeep, by foot, by dugout canoe. He is the only correspondent who visited all the warring factions. He marched and bivouacked with the combat troops.

At camp sites in the rugged northern mountains and marshy coastal plains - sometimes against a backdrop of thatched villages full of the rural noises of squealing pigs, bawling babies, squawking hens Anderson wrote stories that later made worldwide headlines.

The most colorful of the rebel commanders is Eden Pastora, a Nicaraguan folk hero, who stormed dictator Anastasio Somoza's palace and captured it for the Sandinistas in 1979. But when the Sandinista regime failed to grant the promised freedoms and adopted the same oppressive practices Pastora had fought against, he returned to the

Today, Pastora leads a small band of independent rebels against the Sandinistas he onced served His is a lonely fight, for he refuses to ally himself with the CIA-backed Nicaraguan Democratic Force which, he says, bears the taint of Somoza. He still goes by his revolutionary name, Commander Zero.

Anderson sought out Pastora in Costa Rica, south of the Nicaraguan border. After an eight-day wait, the rebel's emissaries picked Anderson up and delivered him by a circuitous route to a suburban home where exiles were making flags and writing propaganda messages. Not long afterward, two jeeps pulled up, and Pastora's top aide jumped out He was called "The Dwarf.

He took Anderson on a 20-hour journey that began in a jeep and ended in a dugout canoe powered by an outboard motor. Pastora's camp was located in the jungle near the Rio San Juan, the river separating Costa Rica from Nicaragua.

Anderson found Pastora out of money and short of supplies. There were barely enough munitions left for one last battle. "Get ready," Pastora told my reporter. "You're coming along on a big offensive." Commander Zero intended to go out in style. "We'll be at the target in 70 hours walking time," he said.

But he re-evaluated the prospects and decided it would be futile to throw his reported 2,000 guerrillas against a Sandinista military camp. Instead, he radioed his combat units that he was giving up the fight.

Anderson was at his side as he broadcast the message. Then Pastora rigged up a telephone patch through his military field radio so Anderson could alert me in Washington. The news made frontpage headlines. The result: Supplies were rushed to Commander Zero so he could stay in the war.

Later, Anderson joined the Miskito Indian guerrilla force, MISURA, upon the Rio Coco delta flat, marshy country bedeviled by oppressive humidity and pelting

On a sweltering journey delayed by a tropical storm, he traveled in a leaky dugout canoe, loaded above the gunwales with supplies and ammunition, and navigated by a 22 year-old rebel known as "The

After two days of paddling through endless channels and bayous and sleeping in the huts of destitute Miskitos, Anderson reached the base camp of "The Eagle," a 21-year-old rebel company commander. It turned out that "The Eagle" was in flight because his guerrillas had run out of ammunition. They hid in the rain forest while a Sandinista reconnaissance plane overflew the camp twice.

My reporter intended to proceed down the coast another 100 miles, but the rebel commander at the destination radioed that his forces were surrounded and under heavy fire. It would be futile, perhaps suicidal, to try to reach them, he reported tersely.

For most Miskitos, life is harsh and death comes early. Of all the people who inhabit this tragic piece earth called Nicaragua, the Miskitos have been the most abused by man and nature.

'Leadership' applications available

Applications for the new Leadership Big Spring program are now available at the Chamber. The purpose of this program is to educate, motivate and coordinate the future leadership of Big Spring. This leadership training will consist of one all-day session each month from October to June. If you haven't heard enough details about this interesting program, call 263-7641. Deadline for applying is Sept. 20, and it will be limited

Wayne Rock, ad chairman for the upcoming Howard County Fair, is working on a unique promotion that should create a lot of interest. He wants to "paint the town" for the fair... literally! The plan is to have merchants volunteer their store windows for art students to paint. The students will come from Big Spring, Forsan, Coahoma and Howard College and will use water base paint. Working with adult supervision, the students will design the window, get the approval of the merchant and then do the painting and clean-up. Prizes will be given for the best windows, with checks being presented during Hoyle Nix Night at the fair. Call Wayne Rock, 267-5855, for more information.

An NAACP Chapter has been established in Howard County. This organization is dedicated to winning equality for all Americans by the elimination of racial hatred, bigotry and poverty. The entire community is being invited to a reception on Monday at 7 p.m. at the Coors' Hospitality Room. This will give an excellent opportunity to learn more about the struggles and achievements of the NAACP and the positive stance the Howard County leaders will take in their work here. For more information, call Dock Voorhies, 263-8265, or Hebrew Jones, 263-4043.

The Big Spring Morning Optimist Club will sponsor the fifth Annual Gun Show and Exhibits Sept. 17-18 at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. For more details call David Draper, 263-1757, or Richard Wright, 263-8781.

Mary Valli has opened Big Spring Travel, giving Big Spring its third travel agency. Mary is located at 608 Scurry and is pleased with the response she has received. If you want on her newsletter, give her a call at 263-0225, and you can be kept informed on the latest in business and pleasure travel.

UTPB at Odessa has been pegged to become the center of training in physical education of the handicapped. The coursework begins in the spring of 1984. All physical education majors who intend to be certified as teachers will be required to take the adaptive physical education course which will include a practium in a community agency. Dr. Lois Hale, chairman of the physical education department at UTPB, says that most school districts do not have persons trained to work with handicapped students in their classes, and this will be the first college giving physical education adaptive training certification for teachers in

Bob Bullock, state comptroller, has warned sellers to be aware that persons presenting a document titled "U.S. Citizen Sales Tax Deferment" and claiming a sales tax exemption are not exempt from Texas tax. These persons are claiming that U.S. currency is not legal tender for payment of sales tax and claim it is a violation of Article 1, Section 10 of the U.S. Constitution to pay debts with general currency. If you fail to collect sales tax on the sales of taxable items, you will be held liable for the tax.

Malone-Hogan Hospital is leading the efforts to establish a comprehensive community hospice and total health care program which should be availble in a few months. Beginning in November, patients who are covered by Medicare and who have a life expectancy of six months or less can elect hospice benefits instead of other Medicare payments.

Hospice care emphasizes physical, emotional, social and spiritual support to relieve the pain and stress of terminal illness for patients and their families. New legislation passed last year allows Medicare reimbursement to qualified hospices that provide services at home by physicians, nurses, medical social workers, homemakers and health aides and shortterm insitutional care when needed. A beneficiary may choose up to 210 days for hospice care.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Howard County Library are sponsoring another 'lunch and learn' session Friday from noon to 1 p.m. Bring your lunch and hear the program on "Food... Waste Not!" No charge.

Kenneth Williams is show manager for the Howard County Youth Horseman All Breed Open Horse Show to be held Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. Prizes will be awarded to youth and adult entries. Call Kenneth for more information, 263-6458.

Plans are being finalized for the Mexican Independence Celebration which will be held Sept. 17. The Fiesta will be held at the Comanche Trail Park. A parade will be start downtown at 3 p.m. Contact Pat Deanda, 267-7839, for more information.

Med student brings first-hand lessons to job

STREAMWOOD, Ill. (AP) — As he begins the last step toward becoming a doctor, Shane VerVoort brings with him a bachelor's degree, a medical degree and first-hand knowledge of how not to treat quadriplegics. As a teen-ager, VerVoort wanted to become a heart surgeon. That dream was snuffed when, a week before high school graduation, he was in a car accident that left him almost totally paralyzed.

Instead of giving up, he revised his career plans and now, at 27, is beginning a three-year residency in rehabilitative medicine at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Along the way he earned a degree in physiology from Southern Illinois University, membership in the Phi Beta Kappa honor society, and a medical degree from the Medical College of Georgia.

VerVoort spent a month in intensive care and a year in intensive rehabilitation after his accident. He regained enough use of his arms to write, feed himself and do other necessary tasks and later he learned to walk with leg braces and crutches.

"My main goal was to get better so I could go to medical school," he said during a recent visit at his mother's home here.

While in rehabilitation he developed "thousands of ideas about how I'd like to run things as a doctor because a lot of things I saw as a patient were wrong," VerVoort said.

At one point after his accident, rehabilitation experts told VerVoort he would probably be forced to remain in a wheelchair he would control by blowing through a

He said some doctors approached him condescendingly during his treatment. And he believes that he, better than others, understands how to "really motivate (the handicapped) because everyone goes through a period when they just don't want to try."

But, he said, "It can be done. The key is hope. Never crush hope in an individual, don't tell them what they can't do. Let them find that out for themselves."

The adversity that VerVoort has faced has taken many forms. He was rejected by three medical schools before becoming the first quadriplegic admitted to Georgia Medical College.

"He was wheeling around the house, shouting, 'I'm going to be a doctor!'" his mother, Jan, recalled.

Upon graduating in June, VerVoort received the col-

Cancer is on both sides of my family. This makes me wonder about it, but I haven't seen a doctor. I'd want to know the truth, but maybe I'm afraid of that very truth. Please comment. - G.C.

Please don't allow your fears stop you from seeing your doctor immediately. It's difficult enough for doctors to know what to do about moles, so it's even more difficult and dangerous for you to try to judge for yourself. So, the sooner the mole is treated, the better. That's also true, obviously, if there is a skin cancer

For you and for my other readers I'd like to list a few features that suggest possible cancer of the skin, specifically where moles are concerned. A mole with a variety of colors (browns, blacks, reds, pinks, bluegrays, and whites) can raise suspicions. If there is an irregularity to the mole's surface or an irregularity to its border, cancer may be present. A mole that changes in color or size must be examined, as should one that bleeds or ulcerates. Pain is a late-appearing

Skin cancer may be detected from changing mole

Dr. Lawrence M. Field, of San Luis Obispo, Calif., made a very valid point to me about moles. He noted that moles present from birth are more likely to become cancerous than those that appear later. Having a mole certainly should not cause a person undue concern; but it should be casually watched to note any of the changes I mentioned. Then, the safest path to follow is to have a doctor examine it. And the best way to settle matters is with a biopsy of the mole and examination of its cells through a microscope. Your mole is enlarging. That's reason enough to call your doctor right away.

Troubled with gout? To learn about new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever

Dear Abby

Boss won't play with woman he pays

DEAR ABBY: Sexual harassment has recently become a hot topic. This probably sounds unusual, but I am a sexually harassed male. I am 31, single and recently inherited a good business from my father. With this business I inherited an excellent office manager. She does a remarkable job, but she is aggressively pursuing me if you know what I mean.

She always manages to run up against and touch me in a very familiar way. She's done just about everything but pin me down physically. She is 11 years older than I am, and I know she means business

I wouldn't dream of firing her because she's indispensable to my business. What should I

HIDING IN THE OFFICE DEAR HIDING: C'mon. Don't tell me you either have to give in to this woman or risk losing her and having your business fall apart.

Tell her that a wise tailor the cloth, or you don't choose to fish off the company dock, or anything else that translates into "No." And if she leaves, she leaves. Nobody is indispensable. DEAR ABBY: I just read your column about "Should a lady call a man?" After I was divorced, I was invited to a Parents Without Partners dance. Toward the end of the evening, I met a very attractive gentleman, and as I was about to leave, he hurriedly wrote down his phone number and asked me to call him. I was quite surprised. At first I didn't want to call him, but I changed my mind and a few days later I called. I didn't tell him I wanted to see him — instead I made up some excuse. I think I asked if P.W.P. had any

1931 Church directory features members recipes

The Recipe Exchange features recipes from a 1931 First United Methodist Church directory. The directory contains the roll of the Methodist Church as the register at that time showed it to be.

The foreword to the directory is a message from W.G. Bailey, then pastor. At one point Bailey says, "Your inner nature needs food as well as your body." He said worship would provide food for the inner nature. The directory provided recipes for food for the body.

Members of the church came across this recipe book/ directory when they were gathering things to prepare for a centennial ceremony recently.

Coahoma almost pulled off a surprise. Colorado City did pull off a surprise. And Garden City didn't enjoy getting surprised.

A brief, but fair, summary on Big Spring area football after Friday One.

Kermit, a state powerhouse in Class AAA football, squeezed out an 8-0 win over Coahoma, stopping the Bulldogs twice from within the 10 yard line. Colorado City, thought to be strong but flexing more muscle than expected, edged Slaton 20-6. Garden City ran into big trouble in Imperial, losing to Buena

In other games, Forsan squeezed past Bronte 6-0, Levelland topped Lamesa 20-6, Klondike fell to Sundown 21-14, Jal, N.M. held off Greenwood 27-21, Stanton edged Tahoka 13-7, Sands destroyed New Home 40-14 and Grady licked Loop 32-27

Here are the coaches' comments on those contests and their games this Friday night:

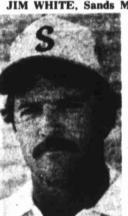

LARRY HUDSON, Coahoma Bulldogs -(On giving Kermit fits before the home folks) "I thought we played real good defense. We shut down their running game and that was a tremendous thing to do. What we need to do is work on making touchdowns. We were in there twice, inside 10. We had the opportunity to score 14 points and we didn't capitalize." (On battling rival Stanton this Friday) "They are last year's district champs and run a wishbone offense which is very strong. Our defense has to ready again. They have a veteran backfield. On offense, we have to come off the ball more and block the right people and not getted rattled by stunts.'

RICHARD GIBSON, Grady Wildcats -

opening-year win over Loop) "We were up and down. We played fairly good in the first half but in the second half, we made some mistakes defensively. Our passing game looked good. We're going to have to rely on more throwing this year; (Jay) Billingsley has a good arm. (On a rematch with Dawson this Friday) "We're going to have to play a good ballgame. Again it'll be a learning experience for us. They're not as big and physical as last year but are quick and fast.'

JIM WHITE, Sands Mustangs — (On lopsided win over New Home) "I'm just glad to get that first game over with. It wasn't as big a rout as it a senior on the field. Our running backs were running like crazy and our young line fired off the line real good. I'd rather see that against seniors, though. We needed to put points on the board and we did." (On game No. 2 against Water Valley) 'This is the best they've ever fielded. They have new coaches from Iraan, four new transfers and a new look. They have lots of seniors and will be their usual gigantic selves. We'd better get ready for a hard-hitting game. Jeff Wells, offensive guard and defensive tackle, can bench press 300 pounds.'

JOE LONGLEY, Greenwood - (On near Dallaslike finish against Jal) 'We just started too late. We just didn't play good football in the first half. But we had a chance to win the thing. They were a good football team and we learned some things. We were playing under a different set of rules and I think that made the team tentative. Our defense held up and we found our trouble spots."

hosting No. 1 ranked Wink) "We've got the opportunity to play the No. 1 team in the state. This Friday, we are the only ones with that opportunity. We've just got to go out and see if we can meet that challenge. I believe we have the makings of a good highly-rated Slaton) "We were real proud of them. They really took it to Slaton. Our defense performed well, especially on their all-state running back (Geryl Lacy). We got a lot of people around him. We didn't have a lot of solos but we had a bunch of assists. He carried 27 times for 98 yards one fellow said. Last year he ran through us for 200 yards. We were real pleased. Our offense is better than last year. I think we had 400 yards in total offense." (On aiming for win No. 2 against Seminole) "They graduated a lot of seniors so it's difficult to say what they have. They do have a new coach and a new system. Last year they played us hard and beat us pretty good. They have some good athletes. We're not taking anyone lightly."

-wednesday's Martina meets old nemesis quarterback NEW YORK (AP) - They are best before you play her (in singles)," so friends, doubles partners and two of the said. "Maybe she'll think you're partners and two of the said."

AIMING FOR HER FIRST TITLE - Top seeded Martina Navratilova returns a backhand volley to West Germany's Sylvia Hanika Tuesday at the U.S. Open. Navratilova downed the No. 7 seed 6-0, 6-3 to gain the semifinals where she'll face No. 5 seed Pam Shriver.

friends, doubles partners and two of the top players in women's tennis. It's just that Pam Shriver keeps getting in Martina Navratilova's way

One year ago, when Navratilova was supposed to win the United States Open Tennis Championship, her pal Pam destroyed the dream in the quarterfinals. Now Martina is supposed to win the Open again and she's advanced a step closer this time, reaching Friday's semifinal round. And there, waiting for her again, is Shriver.

Navratilova continued her straight sets march through the tournament with a 6-0, 6-3 destruction of No. 7 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany Tuesday. Meanwhile, Shriver, seeded fifth, upset No. 3 Andrea Jaeger 7-6, 6-3.

On the men's side of the draw, No. 2 Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, No. 4 Yannick Noah of France, No. 5 Mats Wilander of Sweden and No. 9 Jimmy Arias completed the quarter-final lineup.

Lendl defeated No. 12 Johan Kriek 6-2, 6-4, 6-1; Noah eliminated 16-year-old Aaron Krickstein 6-3, 7-6, 6-3; Wilander finished Andres Gomez of Ecuador 6-2, 6-1, 6-2; and Arias won 12 straight games in the last two sets to down Joachim Nystrom of Sweden 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-0, 6-0. In the men's quarters, Arias plays Noah and Wilander meets Lendl

Shriver and Navratilova are entered in the women's doubles tournament at the Open and reached the quarter-finals of that competition with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Carling Bassett of Canada and Ivanna Madruga-Osses of Argentina Tuesday before you play her (in singles)," Shriver said. "Maybe she'll think you're playing great and be scared."

Navratilova, who has lost just two singles matches since Shriver beat her here last year, laughed at that. "You can't think that you better not give anything away in the doubles like 'God, I can't hit my forehand," she said.

Shriver is looking forward to the showdown with her friend.

"I like my chances here whenever I play her," she said. "She doesn't have good memories of me here and it tends to bring out the emotional side of me which helps me concentrate hard and that's when I'm at my best."

Navratilova has beaten Shriver three times since they last met at the Open. But none of those matches have been in he kind of setting they have at the National Tennis Center

'I think I've won about six games, so I have to do something, especially on service," Shriver said. "But I haven't played her in a stadium where it's been a little windy and sunny. Those are the days I like to play Martina.'

Shriver will be the underdog, of course, just as she was last year. In that match, Navratilova, weakened by a mysterious virus, was a three-set loser.

"I just didn't hit the ball hard enough to get it past her," Navratilova said. "I'm playing a totally different game now. I'm

Honor Roll Hamilton, Rackley gain top notice

Colorado City running back Larry Hamilton and Coahoma linebacker Kyle Rackley have been named the Herald's first two Players of the Week for the 1983 football season

Hamilton, a returning all-West Texas back, rushed for 225 yards on scored on a 49-yard run to lead the Wolves to a mild 14-6 upset of Slaton. Rackley, the Bulldogs' outside linebacker, made five unassisted and four assisted tackles and intercepted a pass in Coahoma's 8-0 loss to highly-regarded Kermit.

Special notice goes to Coahoma linebacker Robby Henry who was in on nine tackles before going down in the second quarter with a knee injury. He'll undergo surgery Thursday and is lost for the season.

In other top offensive performances, Sands all-world running back Robby Creswell gained 225 yards and scored twice in the Mustangs' 40-14 win over New Home while Roger Smith of Greenwood piled up 90 yards and scored twice in the Rangers' 27-21 loss to Jal. Klondike's Rolando Juantos had 90 yards and two

TD's in 21-14 loss to Sundown and Lamesa newcomer Kenneth Williams gained 108 yards in his varsity

Defensively, C-City free safety Dennis Rivera intercepted three passes, Klondike's Mitch Mitchell had 15 tackles, Stanton safety Jerry Anderson intercepted a pair of passes, Ranger linebacker John Gilliam had 16 tackles and Sands linebacker Chris Wigington had 15 tackles in limited duty. — GREG JAKLEWICZ

Landry labels Dallas rally one of best in club's history

DALLAS (AP) - Monday night's wild shootout with the Washington Redskins gave Dallas Coach Tom Landry cause to reflect on a NFC East race that he says 'looks like a wide open battle.'

The Cowboys came from 20 points down to defeat the Super Bowl Champion Redskins 31-30 in the National Football League opener for both teams. "I don't think anybody in the East will be a doormat this year," he said. "Any team can win at anytime. The records in the East may not be as good this year." Landry said, "It's almost too early to say who will dominate the east but if you don't streak (win a number of games in a row) you won't win the division.

Landry was suffering from a heavy cold Tuesday after one of Dallas' most stirring comebacks.

"I'm not in good shape," Landry admitted.

But helping Landry's spirits was the pride his team displayed after trailing 23-3 at halftime. "I was surprised we won because we had so far to come." said Landry.

wednesday's quarterback

(On disappointing loss to Buena Vista) "It was mental. A lot of mental breakdowns. We moved the ball pretty good but we had a lot of penalties. We scored once but had it called back. We marched the ball but anytime we got something of substance going, we had a blocking breakdown or penalty. I wonder if we were ready to play. They wanted it worst than we did." (On rebounding against arch-rival Forsan) "We hope to show more consistency. We had a good workout yesterday (Monday). They'll be tough. That (Mitch) Hays kid is good...give him a seam and he's gone. And that (Todd) East kid throws the ball real well. We can't afford to relax at all."

JAN EAST, Forsan Buffaloes — (On one-point

win over Bronte) "We were real pleased. We had a lot of question marks because we have very little experience. We moved the ball well and played pretty decent defense. They rushed for 200 yards so we have to play better defense. We had 165 yards rushing, (Brad) Jenkins had 94 on 10 carries. The line did a good job but missed a few assignments." (On the Big Game with Garden got that going for us. But we have to play well." DALE RUTH, Stanton Buffaloes — (On subduing an improving Tahoka team) "They were pretty good. We still were making a lot of mistakes on defense in the first half. Tahoka is coming back, they had a little speed. Our passing game was okay. Whenever we had something going, we had a breakdown. We had 100 yards in penalties." (On big and quicker than last year. We're trying to correct our mistakes and get better offensively and defensively. The kids know this is a big game.

hosting AAA Coahoma) "This is a big game. They are a real strong team,

MICKEY VIRDELL, Klondike Cougars — (On narrow loss to a Class A district favorite) "We should have had them. We just broke down on three plays (52, 37, 35 yards) That's 120 yards of offense and they only had 200 for the game. We played pretty well in the first half and drove the ball down and scored to make it 14-14. We had two drives stall on interceptions. We need to get to where we can control the ball better." (On a chance to even record at 1-1) "They are very similar to Sundown. They have better running backs but their line isn't as good so I rate them about the same. It'll be another close battle.'

nadoes - (On dropping first game to Levelland) 'We felt like we played well. Our ground game was better than we anticipated. We saw a few things that will help us down the road. We had breakdowns defensively and gave up the big play. We had our opportunities. We would have had to play real well and not make any mistakes to win the game." (On playing Brownfield, the team's only victory in 1982) "Of course I wasn't around but from what I understand they are better than they were last year. They will be a physical team, big but not a lot of speed. We're not down at all. The kids have a super attitude. They think they'll get better overy game.

Moviegoers spend record $1.5 billion

HOLLYWOOD (AP) -Moviegoers spent a record million $1.5 billion at U.S. and Canadian box offices this summer season, with the ing almost a quarter-billion dollars.

"The summer business is 8 percent better than last summer's $1.39 billion, which itself was a record, said A.D. Murphy, Daily Variety's financial expert who also teaches future film executives at the University of Southern California.

'That represents a crease in ticket prices," he said Tuesday. Behind "Jedi," the came surprise hit Flashdance' and "Trading Places."

"WarGames" was fourth and "Octopussy" fifth. Here are the principal moneymakers of the summer, films grossing more than $30 million: 1. "Return of the Jedi,"

$232.3 million 2. "Flashdance," $87.5 million

3. "Trading Places," $80.6 million "WarGames," $68.2 million

"Octopussy," $62.9 million 6. "Superman III," $62.5 million 7. "Staying Alive," $58.3

million 8. "National Lampoon's Vacation," $49.4 million 9. "Blue Thunder." $43.6 1979 JEEP CJ7, V 8 304, automatic, million 10. "Jaws 3-D," million 11. "Porky's II — The Next Day," $33.9 million "Risky Business," 12. $33.8 million

"Twilight Zone," 13. $32.6 million 14. "Mr. Mom," $31.5 million

15. "Psycho 1"," $30.8

Most of the films are still in release and some are expected to achieve much biggest winner, "The higher figures. For in-Return of the Jedi," gross- stance, "Mr. Mom" was the leading moneymaker over the Labor Day weekend, grossing $8.2 million in 1,362 theaters.

Runners-up over the four-day period were 'Risky Business' with $6.3 million on 1,119 screens, "Easy Money" with $4.1 million (1,112) and "National Lampoon's Vacation," $4 million (1,248).

The Cinderella movie of substantial rise, even con- the hot months was sidering the 7 percent in- "Flashdance," which actually started its run in the spring but continued earning big money through runaway summer favorite, Labor Day — $2.1 million over the weekend in 860 theaters after 144 days in the marketplace.

"'Flashdance' was the real surprise of the summer," said Charles Powell, motion picture marketing consultant.

"It helped the Travolta movie ('Staying Alive') because of its popularity. 'Flashdance' proved that these are MTV (Music Television) times. It's not just a TV freak; you can build a full-length movie with them."

Powell noted that some of the "imitation 'Animal Houses' did well" while some of the sequels did not. Among the latter: "The Curse of the Pink Panther' and "Smokey and the Bandit III

Among the other summer casualties: "The Survivors' (Robin William, Walter Matthau), $14 million; "The Man With Two Brains" (Steve Martin), $8.5 million; "Krull," $17 million; "Stroker Ace" (Burt Reynolds, Loni Anderson), $11.4 million; "Dr. Detroit" Ackroyd), $10.4 million.

giant orange fishing pole that has been caffed "trash arti' but endorsed efforts by a private group to erect the pop art work X

The council voted 4-3 to turn the project over to a private group that already has raised $140,000 from residents of the posh ski resort to help pay for the $190,000 sculpture, by artist Claes Oldenburg. It also gives town council endorsement to the non-profit local group receiving the $50,000 National Endowment for the Arts grant, which Vail had secured for the project.

Much of the controversy has concerned a huge tin can the size of an oil drum that would dangle from the end of the fishing pole into pristine Gore Creek, which runs through the middle of

Other residents have expressed doubts about the size of the sculpture and its purpose

"If that piece of sculpture determines our destiny, then we're in trouble because we're the top ski resort in the country, said councilman Herman Staueffer, who donned hip waders to denounce the sculpture.

'If we need an orange fishing pole to be noticed, that's sad. Let's go on doing what we do best, and that's skiing," he added. "I believe art should be for a much more meaningful purpose, for the city, and the visitors, rather than to simply attract attention," said councilman Ron Todd.

Teachers' strikes disrupt classes in 7 states

Teachers voted 1,917 to

A teachers strike disrupted the first day of classes under a new desegregation plan for 56,000 students in St. Louis while walkouts in seven states kept 200,000 pupils out of school today.

But Pittsburgh, Boston and Detroit all averted job actions at the start of the school year. Strikes by teachers were reported in Missouri, Illinois, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Washington, Michigan, and Pennsylvania, but union officials said Tuesday they did not expect as many teacher strikes this year as in 1982, when there were

No incidents were reported, but the strike hampered the first day of the city's voluntary school desegregation plan.

"I assume some of the parents would be cautious about sending students into the unsettled situation in the city," said Marge Polcyn, spokeswoman for the school board. "And that will be very discouraging for those who have put in a lot of work all summer long.

Ms. Polcyn said attorneys would seek legal aid in state and federal courts today to force the dent of the American 3,500 striking teachers back into the classrooms. As public employees, they are forbidden to strike.

Salaries and class size were the points of contention, said Evelyn Battle White, president of Local In St. Louis, striking 420 of the American teachers picketed public Federation of Teachers.

Teachers voted 956 to 572 in favor of the strike. Under the latest proposal, salaries would range from $14,006 for a beginning teacher to $29,751 for a teacher with a doctorate egree and 10 years of srvice. The 1982-83 school year range was $12,850 to $27,550, Jones said. 'We are prepared to hold out for a long strike," said St. Louis School Superintendent Jerome B. Jones after teachers voted by a 2-to-1 margin to walk out Tuesday night.

Jones, who claimed the only sticking point was teacher pay, said the strike will be "disastrous" to a voluntary interdistrict desegregation plan begun this year. Suburban schools involved in the plan have already begun of $6.620 in the third year. Ten thousand Detroit teachers voted to return to work Tuesday and hold classes today, averting a strike that would have given 200,000 students an early holiday.

But 340 teachers in the East Detroit School District have delayed the beginning of school for 7,800 students, and district officials say the teachers will be fired if they don't report for work by next Monday. The teachers struck Tuesday.

For Bauer students, school's a little longer

Staff Writer

When the school bell rings for afternoon dismissal at most schools, teachers and students in the Bauer Magnet School extended-day program swing into

The school is a frenzy of activity at 3:15 p.m. each day as regular school shuts down and about 200 magnet students in grades 1 through 5 prepare for their enrichment courses.

First order of business is an energy-bolstering snack in the cafeteria. As the youngsters munch, buses arrive to transfer art and woodworking students to Runnels Junior High and swimming and gymnastic students to the YMCA.

As soon as these students are off, those taking music, computer, physical education and tutoring are escorted to classrooms at the Bauer campus. Although it may sound confusing, the students are working by

A tour of the classes finds students engrossed in a computer program, talking about writing a newspaper, learning to make mosaics or refining a backstroke technique. These special programs, less formal than regular classes, offer youngsters a change of pace and a chance to relax.

'Since it's not rigidly structured and there are no grades, the atmosphere is loose and casual. We try to make it fun," said Toni Saxton, computer director in the extended-day program.

"I think kids are realizing that 'Hey, I can learn there, and there's no pressure," said Kay Barnett, an aide. "It's not the stereotypical classroom. I think its working well. I haven't had one kid say 'I'm bored.""

Currently, students in the off-campus programs of swimming, gymnastics, art and woodworking participate in only that class, while the other students attend two different classes a day. and teaches English.
