Fatal maneuver

FATAL CRASH — Stunt pilot Wes Winter was killed at about 2:30 yesterday afternoon when the wings tore off of the twin-engine Partenavia P-68C he was demonstrating.

Experimental plane cracks up; stunt pilot killed before 1,000

PLAINVIEW (AP) — A stunt pilot demonstrating an experimental Italian aircraft at an air show died Sunday after the wings snapped off the plane as his wife was describing his maneuvers over a public address system, officials said.

Wes Winter, 46, of Mesa, Ariz., was killed instantly when his plane failed while flying loops before a crowd of about 1,000 spectators, said Hale County Sheriff's Deputy Todd Ed Burson.

In an interview with an Amarillo television station shortly before the crash, Winter said the plane was not designed for the stress of aerobatics, but he was confident of its capabilities.

"We know that the airframe is capable of doing what I want it to do," Winter told KAMR-TV reporter Anita Rother during an aerobatic ride minutes before the crash. "And of course we went to the factory and checked it over ourselves. And I've been very careful in designing the air show around the airplane."

Winter's wife, Kathy, was describing her husband's maneuvers over a public address system at the time of the crash, said Plainview Herald photographer Jerry Mennenga, who witnessed the crash.

"When (the plane tumbled) everybody was stunned. I thought at first it was just part of the thing. But you could hear her on the PA saying 'Oh my God!' Then she started screaming and it was being carried over the PA system," Mennenga said.

"Finally they shut it off after two or three minutes, and everyone was real quiet," he said.

Winter had attached 5-pound smoke bombs to each wing of the Partenavia P-68C, the photographer said.

"When the wings broke, the plane kind of tumbled, rolled head-over-heels, then lost momentum and fell straight down," Mennenga said. "It fell 500 to 600 yards beyond an Army helicopter and a crowd of people and the wings fell near the runway."

Airport officials estimated that the plane was flying at a height of 250 feet when the wings snapped off just short of the engines. Fuel spilled out of the wings as the plane fell, witnesses said, and there was no fire when the plane nose-dived into the ground.

Winter, an aircraft distributor and owner of Winter Aircraft Sales in Mesa, had been flying aerobatics for about four years but had only been using the Italian plane since December.

Winter told the television station pilot error was the main cause of aerobatic crashes.

"I guess there's no real definition of courage. It takes faith in your own abilities and knowing what you're doing," he said. "I don't do anything in an air show that I probably haven't practiced several hundred times."

Winter was on his third pass over the crowd at the time of the crash. He had earlier performed loops and a figure-eight, witnesses said.

After a 30-minute delay, the air show program was completed and four pilots flying vintage aircraft formed a "missing man" formation in honor of Winter.

The crash at the 15th annual Plainview Kiwanis Air Show occurred about 2:15 p.m.

The Federal Aviation Administration will conduct an investigation, officials said.

Rain flirts with city as drought drags on

From staff and wire reports

The trace of rain that fell in West Texas yesterday did little to diminish the impact of the area's months-long drought.

Yesterday's brief rain shower here added nothing to the yearly rainfall total in Big Spring of 5.19 inches, less than half of the average 12.88 inches for this time of year.

Temperatures continued at their record-setting pace yesterday when the mercury hit 95, seven degrees more than is usual for this time of year.

Rainfall amounting to 1.4 inches Sunday in some parts of drought-stricken West Texas may be too little, too late for farmers, officials said.

A long string of dry days was broken in Sutton, Schleicher, Coke, Runnels and Tom Green counties as rains fell on parched earth, the National Weather Service reported.

Coke, Sutton and Schleicher counties were among several West Texas counties listed as federal disaster areas.

"We haven't had any real rain here in the past little while, like since about last year. You could say it wasn't great and it's surely not enough, but its better than we've been getting," said Schleicher County Agricultural Extension Agent Jerry Swift.

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms covered Southeast and South Texas as well as the rolling plains of North Texas Sunday.

The National Weather Service said a funnel cloud was sighted north of Brownsville late Sunday afternoon and some showers and widely scattered thunderstorms dotted South Central Texas and the Hill Country.

Mostly cloudy skies were over parts of South and South Central Texas with fair to partly cloudy skies elsewhere.

Afternoon temperatures were in the 80s across most of the state with extremes of 96 degrees recorded in McAllen and 72 degrees in Abilene.

Council to vote on new tax hike

A public hearing will be held Tuesday on the city's proposed $11.6 million budget and a 2.3-cent property tax increase.

DON DAVIS ...wants tax hike

Big Spring city councilmen are expected to vote on the proposal after the hearing.

The council meets at 6:30 p.m. at City Hall at Fourth and Nolan.

City Manager Don Davis is asking for an increase in the city tax rate from 65.7 cents to 68 cents per $100 market value. He said the added revenue is needed to offset losses in sales tax revenue and a drop in the tax roll due to property reappraisal.

A copy of the budget proposal and revenue estimate is available at the city secretary's office.

In another matter, the council will consider allowing Big Spring Cable TV to transfer its franchise to its parent company, Texas Community Antenna Inc. of Tyler, Texas.

Jim Lancaster, vice president of Big Spring Cable TV, said the transfer will not affect the company's service to local subscribers. It will only put the company in a "stronger" financial position, he said.

Lancaster and the firm's attorney, Wayne Burns, are expected to appear before the council on the matter.

The council will also:

- Consider a resolution condemning the Soviet Union for shooting down a Korean passenger plane.
- Award bids for fire trucks.
- Make an appointment to the Advisory Board of the Police Academy.

Ranchers opposing relief measures

FORT WORTH (AP) — A drought relief program created by state and federal officials has brought protests from ranchers who say they would rather have a feed subsidy plan.

Agriculture Secretary John Block announced in mid-August that low-interest loans would be available to ranchers in 23 counties of Southwest Texas suffering from the drought. Three weeks later, not a single rancher had applied for one of the Farmers Home Administration loans.

Veteran West Texas cattlemen told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that the ranchers who will seek the federal disaster aid are those who engaged in unwise ranching practices or tried to walk a financial tightrope.

The more successful a rancher has been, the less likely he is to qualify for the current FmHA disaster loans. A proven loss alone will not qualify an applicant. And producers who can qualify for loans elsewhere are not eligible for the low-interest disaster loans.

Herschel Cox, 60, who has been ranching near Pecos since 1944, said the first rule of the range is "don't borrow money to feed cattle through a drought, especially in the summer," because it will lead to higher financial losses.

"The main thing in the good years is to resist overstocking. When you get into a drought, don't resist the urge to sell off," he said. "Pick out your best cattle and hang onto them as long as you can."

"I really can't see any point in the government putting out money to help people keep cattle that they have no feed for. I'm feeding my cattle at my own expense. I don't want any help from anybody," said Cox, who has income from oil and gas royalties.

Many West Texans would rather see Block provide a feed subsidy program than loans for the 23-county area west of a line from San Angelo to Abilene and southwest from Lamesa to the Rio Grande. See Drought, Page 2A

DOYLE CURTIS ...city solicitor

The city attorney

A messy desk, a clean mind

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

The sign on the Big Spring city attorney's desk reads: "A clear desk is the sign of a sick mind." Out of necessity, Doyle Curtis has a healthy mind.

Across his desk must pass all of the city's legal documents and correspondence. He pointed to an 8-inch high stack of paper from a lawsuit filed by the League of United Latin American Citizens. It almost blocked him from view.

"But that's not really a typical case," he smiled.

Curtis, 36, joined the city in June 1982 after the former city attorney, Elliott Mitchell, resigned to enter private practice.

A Plainview native, Curtis received a bachelor of arts degree with a major in English from Texas Tech University in 1969.

"I didn't decide to get into law until sometime later. I really wasn't sure what I wanted right out of college," he said.

He worked as a purchasing agent before he was attracted to the details and logic of law. He earned a doctor of jurisprudence degree from Tech in 1979.

Curtis came to Big Spring from Friona, a 3,000-population town southwest of Amarillo. There he was responsible for a private practice and did some local law. See Curtis, Page 2A

Philanthropist's wealth stolen by benefactor

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A man who received a scholarship through the help of a wealthy widow has been accused of befriending her to decimate her cash holdings.

Documents filed in court here contend that Phillip Doyle Spicer of Abilene borrowed more than $700,000 from Mary Elizabeth Failor Barrett and transferred to his name the deed to 40 acres she owned in Louisiana. The documents also claim he purchased with her money 14 pieces of Fort Worth property and took the woman's home, car, 28-foot yacht and other personal effects.

Spicer, 31, denied in court documents the allegations made by Robert Gieb, who was named guardian of Mrs. Barrett's estate after she was declared mentally incompetent earlier this year.

Spicer was among scores of students who attended college through scholarship funds set up by Mrs. Barrett. He studied theology at Texas Wesleyan University for 3 1/2 years but did not graduate.

David Broiles, an attorney representing Gieb's guardian status, said Monday that court records show Spicer was expelled from Texas Wesleyan "in about 1973 because TWC accused him of defrauding Mrs. Barrett and another benefactor."

Mrs. Barrett gave Spicer power-of-attorney status over her estate after he moved into her garage apartment in February 1981. Spicer administered the estate for two years, later moving into her Fort Worth home and hiring nurses to care for her.

Gieb began contesting Spicer's status this spring after a psychiatric examination pronounced Mrs. Barrett "a person of unsound mind." A temporary restraining order and an injunction prevented Spicer from continuing as the estate's guardian.

"I've been preparing for Miss America since I was four or five," said Miss Michigan, Denise Renee Gehman, 20, of Waterford.

Official judging begins Wednesday, when a panel of judges interviews each woman during the day, and preliminary talent, evening gown and swimsuit competitions begin are held night.

But the "auditions" for the job of Miss America have already begun.

Three dozen women — some in swimsuits, others attired in casual wear — spent their first day in this resort Sunday posing for photographers in a casino hotel pool and on a dock.

Everything was in place. Pants were neatly creased. Lipstick did not smudge. Eye shadow wouldn't run, even after a jump in the pool. Repeated requests for big smiles were honored.

HERE THEY ARE — Shown posing for photographers on the beach in Atlantic City on Monday are fifty state misses competing this year for the Miss America title. One of these girls will be picked next Saturday night and keep the title for a year.

50 beauties vie for Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The 1983 Miss America pageant got under way today with the 50 contestants appearing for the first time together during registration ceremonies at a casino hotel ballroom.

Reigning Miss America Debbie Sue Maffett, 26, of Anaheim, Calif., was scheduled to give this year's entrants some pointers today. But most pageant contestants don't need to be told how to act, dress, walk or talk.

"I'm ambitious," said Miss New York, Vanessa Williams, 20, of Milltown, who wants to be a performer on Broadway some day. "I'm not conservative. This is a stepping stone to my career."

The pageant sets no limits on what the women can spend for wardrobes. Miss California, Shari Anne Moskau, 19, of Mission Viejo, brought about $20,000 in clothing and jewelry, while Miss South Carolina, Dalia Mercedes Garcia, 21, of Irmo, used just $2,000 to outfit herself for the week.

"This is a big thing to be in the Miss America Pageant," said Miss New Jersey, Suzette Charles, 20, of Mays Landing. "Everything has to be perfect, or we shouldn't be here."

Each winner of a state pageant gets a $1,000 stipend from the national office to use as she chooses. Most of it is spent on clothes, although the women say many of their outfits are donated by merchants in their hometowns.

Corn shortage could flatten tortilla market

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A shortage of the white corn used to make tortillas could spark a price war among San Antonio's 44 tortilla factories and lead to higher prices for consumers, one factory manager says.

A lack of rain in the San Antonio area has decreased the supply of white corn, the raw material used to make tortillas and other related Mexican foods, said John Beltran, general plant manager for the Sanitary Tortilla Factory.

Commercial tortilla manufacturers believe the cost of each tortilla soon might be upped from 2.2 cents to 2.7 cents or more, he said.

"A price increase of half a cent per tortilla doesn't seem to be much, but when you buy 50 tortillas for the family, it means 25 cents more than what you paid last time," Beltran said.

"This hurts middle-income families," he said. "It's an item that is usually purchased every morning from the tortilla plant nearby."

Local grain elevators are holding onto their white corn supplies as long as possible, waiting for the price to inch up, Beltran said.

"The price of corn has been increasing slowly since January," he said. "Corn suppliers have been looking for bargains all over this section of Texas, but no one has revealed if he found a bonanza in some small town."

Beltran said the Sanitary Tortilla Factory currently is getting white corn from an area between Castroville and Helotes, some 25 miles away.

"I don't know how long the supply from that section of Texas will continue," he said.

Meanwhile, he said is considering raising the price of his tortillas from 2.2 cents each to 3 cents each.

"So far, I'm not getting any encouragement from my corn supplier, and that's why I'm keeping my fingers crossed so he does not increase the price," Beltran said.

The cost of corn tortillas nearly doubled last year, but the corn variety still costs less than the average flour variety, he said.

Father held in death of 2-year-old daughter

HOUSTON (AP) — Police and Coast Guard officers were dragging the murky waters of Buffalo Bayou on Tuesday for the body of a 2-year-old girl who was beaten to death by her father, weighted down with two car batteries and tossed from a bridge, detectives said.

The girl, placed in a foster home two months after birth because she had been severely beaten, was returned to her parents in July.

Larimore Cornelius, 27, who is unemployed, was charged with murder and held in the Harris County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond in the death of Monett Yvonne Cornelius.

The child apparently was killed Aug. 30 in the apartment where the Cornelius family lived, said homicide Detective Dave Collier. After his arrest Saturday, Cornelius took police to the bayou and showed officers where he had dumped his daughter's body.

Detectives were uncertain of the motive for the killing, but Judy Hay of the Harris County Children's Protective Services said the parents were having "discipline problems" with the child.

The girl had been placed in a foster home two months after she was born because she and her mother had been severely beaten, Ms. Hay said. The mother, who was not charged in her daughter's death, never told authorities who was responsible for the beating, she said.

Sands marks homecoming

Sands High School students will celebrate this week as Homecoming Week in preparation for their 8 p.m. Friday game against the Smyer Bobcats at Mustang stadium.

Students will dress up for Western Day on Monday; Professional Ambition Day, Tuesday; Kiddie Day, Wednesday; Slave Day, Thursday; and Brown and White Day on Friday. Prizes will be awarded for best costumes.

The pre-game pep rally will start at 2:45 Friday in the gymnasium. The Homecoming Queen will be named at halftime. Candidates are senior Teresa Vidales, junior Lisa Iden, sophomore Michelle Herm and freshman Elaine Barraza.

Deaths

Laura Kinman
Services for Laura Kinman, 78, were Saturday at the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Victor Sedinger, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiating. Burial was at Elm Grove Cemetery in Alpine.

Gerald Bell
MINERAL WELLS — Gerald L. Bell, 67, a native of Big Spring, died Saturday at a hospital here. Funeral will be Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at the Mineral Wells Chapel. Burial will be at Woodland Park Cemetery under the direction of the Mineral Wells Funeral Home.

He was born Feb. 5 1916 in Big Spring. He married Mildred E. Lord on Oct. 10, 1937 in Big Spring. Survivors include his wife; three sons, Gerald Luther Bell of Odessa, Marvin Eugene Bell of England and Thomas Lee Bell of California; a daughter, Terri Lee Cooper of Big Spring; and two sisters, Jolette Randall of Big Spring and Florene Lewis of Houston; 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by two sons, R.J. Kinman in 1944 during World War II and Joe Dell Kinman on July 31, 1982. She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Jesse (Ollie) McDonald of Sanderson, Mrs. Neil (Mildred) Rudd of Big Spring, Mrs. Helen Morgan of Odessa and Mrs. G.L. (Clemmie) Melchiorri of Natick, Mass.; two sons, Albert E. Kinman of Brownwood and W.G. Kinman of Roseburg, Ore.; and 23 grandchildren and 37 great-grandchildren.

Curtis

"It was a general practice with a fair amount of criminal law," he said. "But I got tired of the long hours and wanted to spend more time with my family."

Curtis and his wife, Carrie, have been married eight years and have two children: Jeff, 6, and Rebecca, 3.

He said he enjoys municipal law, but doesn't know if he would recommend the legal profession to his children.

"It's pretty demanding. There are a lot of easier jobs, although this is very challenging," he said.

His job requires him to prosecute cases in municipal court and to advise other city officials on legal matters.

Curtis considers himself conservative, but said he has no political ambitions and doesn't follow politics as a hobby.

"There's only one political job that interests me — someday I may like to be a judge," he said.

Curtis said he enjoys Big Spring and has no desire to practice law — municipal or criminal — in a larger city.

"This is the perfect size town for me. It's a good place to raise a family, and it gives me some place to fish," he said.

Drought

"The initial disaster program won't help anybody," said Michael A. Harrison, who manages two ranches for his family in the Pecos area. "I can borrow more money now than I can pay back."

Harrison, who has diversified into retailing and oilfield services, says he can survive without federal aid. He favors channeling feed subsidies or moving poor-quality, government-owned surplus grain from Panhandle storage bins to help all ranchers in the drought area.

But the ranchers, Block and state politicians disagree over whether enough corn remains in the bins to help.

A spokesman for Block said that with the drought spreading across the nation's Corn Belt, the secretary would "be opening a door in Texas and not be able to close it" if he approved the feed subsidies.

Meanwhile, ranchers in the area, where the average annual rainfall has dropped from about 10 inches to 3 inches, are taking their own advice and culling herds by as much as 50 percent.

In the Pecos-Fort Stockton area, a few operators have opted to let some cattle die rather than spend more money to feed them and sell them at a loss. Internal Revenue Service agents say these producers have only a slim chance at a tax break by abandoning their cattle.

"This is no place for anyone who can't survive a six- to eight-month setback," said Cox.

Many ranchers believe that federal aid raises "a moral question," said Gene West of Marfa, who manages three operations in the Big Bend region.

"If I can't make it, is it right to take your money and keep me in business?" West asked. "We're a conservative people out here. I don't want any loan from the Soviet ship leaves Houston harbor

HOUSTON (AP) — A Soviet freighter detained by the U.S. Coast Guard was set to depart the Port of Houston today, and a second Russian ship docked — although longshoremen say they may not unload it, officials said.

The General Kravtsov, detained by U.S. Coast Guard officials for not having the necessary paperwork, produced the required documents Sunday and was given clearance to leave the port, a U.S. Customs spokesman said.

The ship was the first Soviet freighter to dock in Houston since Korean Air Lines Flight 007 was shot down Sept. 1, killing all 269 people on board.

While the crew waited aboard the ship Sunday, members of the Jacinto City chapter of the American Legion held a memorial service for the victims close to the dock, which was roped off and guarded by police officers.

Legion members carried an empty coffin draped with a U.S. flag to an area, offered their prayers and ended the ceremony with a three-gun salute.

A second Soviet freighter, the Novovolynsk, arrived early today with a load of general cargo, said Wayne Thompson, Coast Guard operations officer.

Longshoremen would be needed to help unload the cargo. But Miller Barrington, president of Local 24 of the International Longshoremen's Association said, "I really don't know if we'd work it."

The General Kravtsov originally had planned to depart Saturday after loading a cargo of liquid tallow through a pipeline.

The Coast Guard, however, detained the ship because the crew only had a copy of the certificate of financial responsibility, which proves the freighter's owners have the money to clean up an oil spill should one occur.

"We certainly didn't go out of our way to cause that problem. It was a routine paperwork check that every ship entering the port has to go through," said Coast

Motorist leaves accident scene

An unidentified motorist is being sought by Big Spring police for failure to stop and render aid at the scene of an accident.

Police said at about 5:54 p.m. Sunday Jimmy Latham of 800 Nolan was driving in Comanche Trail Park when he had to swerve to avoid hitting a car parked in the middle of the road. Nolan then lost control of his vehicle and struck a tree, according to police reports.

• Tena Marie Young, 24, of 110 E. 18th St. reported that she was beaten about the face and body by someone she knew while at her home Sunday afternoon.

• A Zenith television, its remote-control unit and a wood grain cabinet valued at $600, was reported stolen from the home of An Van Charles, 801 Lorilla.

• Virgil Jennings, 610 Goliad, told police that sometime between 11 a.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday his garage was entered and a power drill and assorted hand tools were stolen.

• Dan Wennerlind, 2523 Gantor, reported that sometime Sunday afternoon a .38-caliber revolver, valued at $100, was stolen from his home.

By The Associated Press Rod, wife are separated

LONDON (AP) — British rock star Rod Stewart and his wife, Alana, have separated after five years of marriage, British press reports said today.

Stewart, who arrived in London on Friday to take part in a benefit concert for a sick friend, is staying at fellow pop star Elton John's mansion in Windsor, west of London. The 38-year-old singer refused to accept telephone calls.

Stewart's Texas-born wife, who is 37, reportedly left their Beverly Hills home three weeks ago, taking their children, Kimberley, 4, and Sean, 3, with her.

Stewart's mother, Elsie, told a reporter: "I didn't want them to split up, but I could never understand why he married her in the first place. She is not a sociable sort of girl."

Biaggi is super grand dad

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Rep. Mario Biaggi, at 65 a senior member of the House Select Committee on Aging, has another honor to add to his resume. He's been named "Grandparent of the Year."

The eight-term New York Democrat, flanked by his six young grandchildren, received the title during a ceremony Sunday.

"This is what I call 'the richness of life,'" he said. "When you get to be my age you reflect back on what's really meaningful — family."

Mike Goldgar, founder and executive secretary of the National Council for the Observance of Grandparents Day, noted that Biaggi is author of legislation that would give grandparents the same child visitation rights as divorced parents.

Grandparents Day, signed into law in 1978, is observed the first Sunday after Labor Day.

Leo now wears a badge

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP) — If singer-songwriter Leo Sayer ever pulls you over on a Virginia City street, don't argue. He might mean business.

Sayer, 35, a native of Sussex, England, whose hits include "You Make Me Feel Like Dancing" and the Grammy Award-winning "When I Need You," was recently sworn in as a badge-bearing Storey County deputy sheriff.

"We don't want him to go out and arrest anybody, but technically I guess he could," says county Sheriff Bob Del Carlo.

It all started when sheriff's Deputy Roger Hartley met Sayer in a Virginia City saloon. The two became friends.

Liz loses golden tongue

CHICAGO (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor has been left with virtually "no voice at all," and her performances in "Private Lives" have been canceled while her doctor maintains a day-to-day check on her condition.

Miss Taylor, 51, was to have opened in the play at the Schubert Theater with her former husband, Richard Burton, on Sunday.

But the performance was called off after she developed a vocal cord and sinus infection which he doctor, George Allen, described as severe.

Theater spokeswoman Jennifer Matz she said she understood Miss Taylor "can't talk at all" and the performances were being canceled from day to day because "we can't really tell how long it'll take her to improve."

Nancy takes award for mom

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Accepting an award from the Arizona Association for Retarded Citizens on behalf of her ailing mother, first lady Nancy Reagan said she was glad to see her mother honored after more than 20 years of work.

"I really think they broke the mold after they made her," Mrs. Reagan, 60, said in a 10-minute speech Saturday accepting the Lifetime Achievement Award on behalf of Edith Luckett Davis, 87.

The presentation was at the association's 19th annual convention.

The news in brief

By The Associated Press Two killed in Chilean riot

SANTIAGO — President Gen. Augusto Pinochet marked the 10th anniversary of his military rule with a pledge to eliminate violence, but two people were killed in new clashes between slum dwellers and police.

The deaths Sunday brought to 10 the number of people slain during four straight days of violence. Witnesses said one of the latest victims was a man killed by a hostile crowd which accused him of being a police informer.

In a nationally televised speech outlining the accomplishments and goals of his government, the 67-year-old army commander said his opponents are using terrorism and violence to frighten the public.

The latest outbreak of unrest began Thursday when hundreds of Chileans participated in the fifth monthly "Day of National Protest" organized by a Democratic Alliance of five non-Marxist political parties.

More than 50 civilians have died in confrontations with riot police and soldiers since the protest days began in May.

Warden thwarts prison riot

MCALISTER — Six inmates took two prison guards hostage during an attempted takeover Sunday night, but gave up when confronted by a rifle-toting warden, authorities said.

The Oklahoma State Penitentiary warden fired a warning round and refused to negotiate, and the guards were released, a Corrections Department spokeswoman said.

"I don't know if that's standard procedure or not. It was a judgment call, and that's just what I happened to do," said Warden John Brown.

The incident came one day after a disturbance at the Joseph Harp Correctional Center, a medium-security facility in Lexington 80 miles to the west.

It was not immediately known what sparked Sunday's incident, which occurred about 5:45 p.m. in the prison's Unit C, said spokeswoman Joyce Jackson.

The officers were taken hostage during a scuffle, she said.

"Warden Brown then confronted the inmates with a riot gun and fired a warning round, explaining he wouldn't allow them to take the officers hostage," Ms. Jackson said. "The guards were then immediately released."

Marines trade fire in clash

BEIRUT — U.S. Marines traded small-arms fire with Lebanese militiamen throughout the night, a Marine spokesman said today, and Syrian-backed Druse insurgents clashed with Lebanese army troops in the central mountains near the capital.

A Saudi-sponsored ceasefire plan reportedly was being negotiated in an effort to end Lebanon's latest outbreak of fighting.

Maj. Robert Jordan, the Marine spokesman, said all three companies of the 1,200-man Marine contingent engaged in sporadic firefights from their base at the international airport. He said there were no American casualties.

He said militia fire directed against nearby Lebanese army positions spread to the Marine base and the Marines returned fire.

Jordan said an amphibious task force of about 2,000 Marines arrived off the Lebanese coast. The additional forces were ordered to the eastern Mediterranean by President Reagan as a back-up in the event of future attacks.

Teachers continue strike

ST. LOUIS — Denying school board charges that they have "abandoned" their jobs, the city's striking teachers are standing firm in the face of a back-to-work order and today's threatened mass firings, a union leader said.

St. Louis school officials warned striking teachers last week that unless they returned to work today, they would be fired and replaced.

Although teachers' strikes are illegal in Missouri, 2,000 instructors remained on the picket lines Friday, and only 19,986 of the district's 56,500 students showed up for class. The strike also has hampered a court-approved desegregation plan.

Some politicians, civic leaders and labor leaders voiced support for the teachers at the rally Sunday night. A union spokesman estimated 1,500 of the district's 3,400 teachers attended.

At the gathering, strikers signed a letter to the school board aimed at countering claims that they abandoned their jobs by walking out when classes opened Wednesday.

A full-page help-wanted advertisement seeking replacements for strikers appeared in Sunday's St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Board President Penelope Alcott said Saturday that 700 laid-off teachers were in line to be recalled.

Pope: Freedom has price

VIENNA — Pope John Paul II, celebrating Sunday Mass in a rain-soaked park on the banks of the Danube River, warned in his homily that "freedom has its price" and called for a return to traditional Roman Catholic values.

"Marriage and the family are in grave danger today," the pope told the estimated 270,000 people who came to hear the pontiff on the second day of his four-day trip to Austria.

The pontiff called abortion "an evil which we have not yet found the right way to curb, and the horrible nature of which far too few people have yet come to understand."

Thousands in the crowd sought shelter from the rain in telephone booths, under trees or beneath plastic garbage bags. Some brought umbrellas despite an official ban on them.

The pope, wearing green, white and gold robes and the papal mitre, was protected by a white canopy stretched over the altar platform, built for the Mass near the modernistic United Nations complex.

Congress faces full slate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will devote much of its attention this fall to relations with the Soviet Union, the role of U.S. troops in the Mideast and a variety of fiscal matters. But there are other significant items on this fall's congressional agenda.

Items pending on Capitol Hill include:

- A compromise version of a $187.5 billion 1984 authorization bill for defense programs, including the MX missile plan Reagan wants and the resumption of the production of nerve gas for the first time in more than a decade.
- An expected administration request later this month to raise the national debt limit — the government's authority to continue borrowing money — from the current $1.389 trillion to $1.615 trillion.

The House acted in advance when it passed a budget outline earlier this year, but separate Senate action on the debt limit increase will be necessary.

- Legislation to reauthorize the federal government's revenue sharing program for local governments, which expires at the end of the month. The House has approved one version and Senate action is pending.
- A measure establishing the birthday of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. as a national holiday. The House has passed the bill.
- An administration request to raise the United States' contribution to the International Monetary Fund by $8.4 billion.

Lawmakers' trips need monitoring

We're not aware of any advertisement stating, "Join Congress and See the World." But then members of Congress would hardly wish to advertise the good things some of them have going — courtesy of American taxpayers — via overseas travel.

Senators and representatives took 991 trips to 114 countries at the public's expense between Jan. 1, 1981, and June 30 of this year, according to Public Citizen's Congress Watch, a government watchdog group founded by Ralph Nader.

Nader groups often think up new excuses to spend taxpayers money. But in this case, one has performed a public service by studying travel records and spotlighting millions of dollars of abuse in congressional excursions.

For example, no attempt is made to curb travel by "lame-duck" members of Congress who had been voted out of office in the most recent election. And lawmakers have flown on military planes when commercial flights were available at lower cost.

Moreover, according to the watchdog group, congressmen travel in unnecessarily large groups, delegations spend thousands of dollars more than the usual $75 per diem per member, and trips are often taken "for dubious purposes."

The Soviet Union wouldn't give visas to a delegation that Rep. Kiki de la Garza, D-Texas, planned to lead there to study agriculture. Instead of canceling the trip, he switched it to Copenhagen, Budapest, Istanbul, Athens, and Madrid.

Perhaps most distressing, the travel study was hampered by inadequate records on congressional journeys. The public is entitled to information that would allow it to distinguish high-rolling junkets from essential fact-finding trips.

The reform proposals of Congress Watch also have merit. Limit the number of each congressman's annual trips, curb the use of military aircraft, strictly cap delegation member expenses, and establish guidelines for the number of congressmen and staff taking a trip.

Around the Rim

Spin cycle

A few years ago, when I was single and most of my friends married, I would get invited over to the homes of various couples for "the home-cooked meal" and some conversation.

Invariably, our evening's reprieve would roam over such topics as the good old days, our jobs and if, and when, I might be getting married.

I always enjoyed those evenings; however, there was always one subject that, while boring me to tears, could keep a young married couple excitedly talking for hours — the purchase of modern conveniences. Just the thought or mention of food processors, microwave ovens, power lawnmowers or king-size mattresses could send them into the dreamy-eyed state of consumerism.

Being single I could never share their enthusiasm. I could understand getting excited about a $1,500 Yamaha stereo system, but the thought of actually going into Sears and shopping for a Kenmore Ultra-Stitch sewing machine with 12 stitching features made me drowsy.

I secretly chuckled to myself at their bourgeois attitude. They seemed to be getting older and less interesting. They were mired in the petty materialism of adulthood, while I was still young and unencumbered by appliances. I vowed always to travel light, never needing a U-Haul for my refrigerator and dishwasher.

Then it happened. I got married. My wife and I, though we had never discussed such topics, found ourselves perusing ads for, gulp!, vacuum cleaners and steam-iron feature sets. Suddenly, jobs and commitments were making more demands on our time and we needed something to help us get everything done. And what was the answer? Modern conveniences.

It became drudgery to lug baskets of clothes to a laundromat, not to mention scrapping up enough quarters to keep the machines turning. The 45 minutes spent waiting on a potato to bake in a conventional oven was too long. It was embarrassing to ask friends to borrow their vacuum cleaner.

Recently, we did something dangerously adult. We have purchased the item so treasured on countless shows of Let's Make a Deal — the washer-dryer combination. Call us bourgeois or boring middle class, but we've got a permanent press cycle and wrinkle guard. And while it's no $1,500 stereo system, the sound of the rinse and spin cycle is like music to our ears.

I feel I have passed into adulthood now and the microwave oven is just around the bend. I now understand my married friends' wants and needs. I have been to the mountain and met the great Kenmore and I am a believer. Let consumerism ring.

Rehab centers are different

Dear Editor,

It has come to my attention several times recently that many of the people in Big Spring and surrounding areas still do not know the difference between the West Texas Rehabilitation Center and the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. Please let Big Spring know that there is no connection.

When you donate money to the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, your money is being used to treat people in Abilene and San Angelo. The West Texas Rehabilitation Center, of course, makes no effort to clear up the confusion because they profit from it.

Only when you contribute to the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center does your money stay in Big Spring to be used to treat people in this area.

I do not begrudge funds to the people in Abilene and San Angelo who need therapy, but I do get frustrated and angry when the Center here is so in need of financial support, and the people here send their money to Abilene in the mistaken and deliberately misled notion that they are helping the Center here.

It isn't ever mentioned that the West Texas Rehabilitation Center is in Abilene with a satellite center in San Angelo. I think the people here should know.

Thank you for letting me say this. Sincerely,

War Powers Act: a dead letter

Congressional leaders, who are seldom willing to take the lead in making foreign policy but often eager to question that made by the chief executive, are now demanding that President Reagan abide by the War Powers Act. They want him to announce that American troops are involved in "hostilities," which would obligate him to withdraw them within 60 days unless Congress says otherwise. It is no endorsement of the administration's policy in Lebanon to say that Congress has no business using the War Powers Act to alter it.

The demands from Capitol Hill have little to do with partisan politics, coming as they do from Republicans and Democrats alike. They stem more from the legislative branch's jealousy of what it sees as its prerogatives.

At issue instead is the primacy of Congress in formulating this country's policies toward the rest of the world. By the Constitution and by right, it has the final authority over such matters as committing U.S. forces abroad. But that power isn't — and shouldn't be — as extensive as the War Powers Act tries to make it.

The act tries to achieve what the Constitution never intended — to give the legislative branch direct control of foreign policy. That is impracticable for a variety of reasons. Congress makes laws slowly, deliberately and with great difficulty — not by accident, but by the design of the framers, who feared excessive government power and, in the words of Hamilton, sought to guard "against the passing of bad laws through haste, inadvertence or design."

This calculated clumsiness protects the citizenry from precipitate legislation, but it also prevents Congress from making the rapid decisions often required in the conduct of foreign policy. That is why, for example, the president was made the commander-in-chief of the armed forces, while the ultimate power over "the declaring of war and ... the raising and regulating of fleets and armies," as the Federalist No. 69 put it, belongs to Congress. The Senate has authority over the ratification of treaties, but their negotiation, significantly, is reserved to the executive.

In any event, the Supreme Court has cast serious doubt on the constitutionality of the War Powers Act, because the law provides a legislative veto over executive decisions. Either house, by failing to authorize the continued presence of American troops in a given place, can force the president to pull them out.

Such a veto, said the Court in a June ruling, will not do. If Congress wants to require the president to do something, it has to use customary legislative means. It passes a law and the president either signs or vetoes it. If the latter, Congress may override, but only by a two-thirds vote of each house. The War Powers Act tries to circumvent this legislative process: it puts the power to tie the president's hands in a single house, and he has no veto.

Why congressional leaders insist on making their stand atop such a creaky pedestal as the War Powers Act is open to dispute. Most likely they realize they have no constitutional case, but hope to persuade Reagan to perform the desired genuflections toward Capitol Hill nonetheless. Still, he would be making a mistake to let Congress intimidate him into conceding a power that is rightfully his.

All this is not to say that Reagan's deployment of troops in Lebanon was wise. It has three major flaws: 1) it exposes Americans to physical danger; 2) once done, it is politically hard to reverse, and 3) it holds only a faint prospect of doing more than postponing civil war in Lebanon. The death of two Marines doesn't exactly put us waist deep in the Big Muddy, but the President may soon find himself having to choose between suffering considerable American casualties, to no apparent end, and withdrawing humiliatedly under pressure, thus hastening a Lebanese conflagration.

But if Congress wants to put an end to our involvement in Lebanon, it has ample powers to do so. As in the case of Vietnam, it can simply cut off all appropriations for the venture, leaving Reagan with no option but withdrawal. Or it can pass a bill forbidding Reagan to leave American troops in Lebanon.

If Congress can muster the votes to do either, more power to it. If not, it will have to content itself with ordinary criticism of the administration's actions. It shouldn't hope in vain for salvation from the War Powers Act, which is as good as dead and should be unlamented.

Bread goes down the drain

WASHINGTON — Millions of impoverished Egyptians will go hungry this year for lack of bread — thanks to the higgledy-piggledy operations of the Agency for International Development.

During the past four years, AID has funneled more than $16 million into the construction of automated bakeries that were supposed to provide Egypt's needy with cheap bread. Yet not one such bakery has been completed. Worse still, internal AID documents suggest none may ever be finished.

The story is documented by AID's inspector general in an audit report appropriately titled "AID-Financed Egyptian Bakeries: Will They Ever Make Bread?"

The American people, who put up the misspent $16 million, don't begrudge bread for hungry Egyptians. But they never meant their bounty to be squandered. Here's the depressing story:

In 1977, the Egyptian masses rioted when their government raised the price of bread from one cent to two cents. The government felt compelled to stabilize the production of bread and appealed to the AID mission for help in constructing automated bakeries.

To evade congressional oversight, the bureaucrats at AID funded the project through the Commodity Import Program. That says the inspector general, was their first mistake.

Because the bakery construction was classified as a "commodity," it was accorded the same attention, say, as imports of fertilizer or tractor tires. The construction plans got a little scrutiny.

Here are other flagrant faults documented in the report and double-checked by my associate Lucette Lagnado who was raised in Egypt and understands Egyptian practices:

• An $18.1 million contract was awarded to the American Export Group, a Washington-based firm that unfortunately "had no experience in automated bakeries," the report charges.

• The contract approved by AID was so "poorly written, vague, ambiguous and contradictory," according to the report, that the contractor and the Egyptians have been arguing from the start over who is responsible for carrying out the various clauses.

• The Egyptian government "was understandably concerned about the supplier's technical capabilities and wasted much 'project' time attempting to secure ironclad guarantees for performance," the report states. The relationship between the supplier and Egypt is described as "awkward and acrimonious."

• One audit report states that American Export Group invested an advanced payment of $1.8 million in an interest-bearing account.

• The report alleges that AID was told in 1980 by Egyptian officials that several bakery sites

"have been readied" and utility lines installed. But upon checking, officials found "there were no complete buildings ... no utility services and at some sites the ground had not even been graded."

• A contract provision allows the contractor to substitute certain bakery equipment that AID officials fear may be inferior or inadequate.

• The audit report places much of the blame for mishandling the project on the AID mission in Egypt, charging it did little planning, took three years to establish a monitoring task force and consistently overstated progress.

The mission has reported unhappily to Washington that "none of the bakeries will be operating this calendar year ... and that no more than five will be in operation by September 1984."

But AID officials in Washington are not holding their breaths. As one official confided in an interoffice memo, "I personally have serious reservations that these bakeries will ever be installed, become operational and accomplish the original objective."

Another official added this ominous note: "We are especially worried about the Agency's fiscal exposure should (the contractor) default through bankruptcy or some other reason."

The American Export Group denies it is going bankrupt and vehemently disputes the findings of the inspector general's audit, blam-

Billy Graham

How do you start all over?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I wish I could live my life over again, because I have made some terrible mistakes. Do you think it is ever possible to start all over again? — H.H.T.

DEAR H.H.T.: It is not always possible to erase the effects of some of the things you may have done in the past — but yes, you can start over! You can start over by giving your life to Jesus Christ and letting him come into your heart by faith. The Bible says, "If anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has gone, the new has come!" (2 Corinthians 5:17).

How is this possible? It is possible because of God's great love for you. He loves you so much that he wants to help you straighten out your life, and he has made it possible by sending his Son, Jesus Christ, into the world to bring you forgiveness and new life.

You see, the basic problem you have had in life is that you have been living your life by seeking your own desires and pleasures, instead of seeking God's will. But God's way is best, and when we turn our backs on him and neglect his will for our lives, then life becomes mixed up and we never find the lasting happiness and peace that we all seek. But when Christ comes into your heart you have a new desire to love God and base your life on him. Furthermore, when you come to Christ, God the Holy Spirit comes to dwell within you, and as you seek God's help and direction he will strengthen you and help you to live as you should.

I want to stress something very important, however, so that you do not misunderstand what I am saying. I am not urging you to "turn over a new leaf" or just try to follow a new set of rules. You cannot conquer the problems you face on your own — you need God's help. That is why I urge you to turn to Christ. Confess your sins to him and tell him you cannot live as you should apart from him. Then by a simple prayer of faith ask him to come into your heart and become the center of your life. Yes, Christ can make all things new — new motives, new strength, new love for others, and most of all new hope for the future. Let him begin his work in your life right now as you turn to him and commit your life to him.

IN PRESIDENTS
President Harry Truman was distantly related to President John Tyler.

ing the Egyptian government and AID for the project's problems.

The financial commitments, meanwhile, have risen from the original $18.1 million to $24.5 million. Costly though this is becoming to the taxpayers in this country, it's the hungry Egyptians who will suffer the most from AID's incompetence.

MISSILE SHUFFLE: For all the talk, the number of U.S. intercontinental ballistic missiles won't increase until after 1987.

The United States now has 1,053 ICBM launchers. It will have the same number in 1987, according to a secret Pentagon projection, though 40 MX missiles are scheduled to be deployed that year. But Titan and Minuteman missiles will be retired to make room for the MXs.

The Titan missiles have stood the longest guard. They're scheduled to be down to 46 by the close of this year. By 1985, they'll number 22, by 1986 just 10. The last of the Titans will be retired in 1987. There will also be 50 fewer Minuteman II missiles.

However, Minuteman IIIs will reach 600 by the end of this year, and that total will hold until 1987 when it will drop to 560.

THE FIRST NEEDLES
The first needles, historians say, were made about 30,000 years ago.

Former N.Y. Post editor dead at 67

NEW YORK (AP) — James Wechsler, the former executive editor of the New York Post and a leading liberal voice for decades, was mourned as "a man of rare courage" after his death at age 67.

Wechsler died of cancer Sunday at New York Hospital.

Post executive editor Roger Wood said the last time they spoke Wechsler was discussing when he could return to work, more concerned about that than "worrying about how ill he was."

"He was a man of rare courage, a colleague of unswerving loyalty. Above all, he was a good friend in good moments and in bad," Wood said.

Post Publisher and Editor-in-Chief Rupert Murdoch described Wechsler as a journalist who "brought distinction" to the paper.

"All the world was his assignment and all the people in it his concern," Murdoch said. "He was a warm-hearted and generous man and a splendid colleague whom we shall miss dearly."

Wechsler guided the Post from 1949 to 1960. During the 1950s he was a leading opponent of McCarthyism.

Before joining the Post's Washington bureau in 1947, Wechsler had been an assistant editor on The Nation magazine and Washington bureau chief of PM, a short-lived liberal New York City daily tabloid.

He became chief of the Post's Washington bureau before returning to New York to become executive editor in 1949. After leaving that position, he remained with the Post as editorial page editor and columnist.

He resigned the editorial page job to become an associate editor in 1960, and continued to write his column. His last column appeared in the newspaper June 22.

"He was a man who cared about people, politics and sports. He was a political nut and he was a sports nut," his wife, Nancy, said Sunday.

"He was a liberal," she said. "He cared very deeply about individuals and civil rights. He cared very deeply about injustice."

Wechsler's newspaper career began in Manhattan's Townsend Harris Hall, a high school for gifted pupils, where he was editor of the school newspaper. He attended Columbia University, working as editor of the student newspaper. He graduated in 1935.

He was a magazine editor for the American Student Union until 1937, when he joined The Nation.

He joined PM as its labor editor in 1940, moved to Washington as bureau chief, then interrupted his career for a 1½-year stint in the Army.

He was posted in Germany, where he worked in a program to restructure

JAMES WECHSLER

German industry, then returned home to rejoin PM.

Mrs. Wechsler said her husband received awards from the New York Civil Liberties Union and from the Fortune Society. He had lived since 1949 on the Upper West Side of Manhattan.

Wechsler's funeral was to be private, but a memorial service was planned for 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Frank E. Campbell Funeral Chapel.

Wechsler is survived by his wife; a daughter, Holly Schwartz, of Miami; two grandchildren; and a brother, Herbert, of New York, professor emeritus at Columbia Law School.

Man opens fire on family reunion

NATRONA HEIGHTS, Pa. (AP) — A man armed with two rifles and a pistol sprayed his neighbors' family reunion with bullets, killing two teen-agers and wounding three other people, then calmly surrendered, police said.

David Zewe, 31, dressed in black leather pants, combat boots and a heavy military shirt, opened fire Saturday evening for no apparent reason from the patio behind his home in this quiet Pittsburgh suburb, said Harrison Township Patrolman Joel Sowinski.

"He was very serene. He was blank, no expression at all," Sowinski said by phone Sunday.

Two teen-agers lay dying on the spot where they had been setting up a volleyball net as Zewe laid down a .223-caliber Ruger semi-automatic rifle that investigators found had been fired at least 18 times, a 6mm rifle with a telescopic sight and a .45-caliber automatic pistol, Sowinski said.

"He had one rifle over his shoulder and one rifle in his arms. He just dropped (them) very slowly. Then he opened his field jacket. That's when I saw the handle of the .45 automatic. He reached in with two fingers and very slowly laid it on the ground," Sowinski said.

Zewe was jailed without bond after being arraigned on two counts of criminal homicide early Sunday morning before county Deputy Coroner Fred Bell.

Police took other weapons and ammunition from inside Zewe's house.

The dead were identified as Michael Frantz, 17, of Greensburg, and Craig Posati, 15, whose parents were hosting the reunion about 20 miles northeast of Pittsburgh.

The injured were Frantz's father, Claude, 46, who was shot in the back; Lynn Downard, 16, of Arnold, who was shot in the leg, and P.J. Kosakowski, 5, of Portland Mills, who was shot in the hand, County Homicide Inspector Charles Mosser said.

All three victims were treated and released, said Allegheny Valley Hospital spokeswoman Leslie Birtig.

The younger Frantz was struck in the head and died at the hospital about 40 minutes after the shooting. Posati died later at the same hospital of a chest wound, according to the Allegheny County Coroner's office.

All bets off

Q: If I make a bet on a football game with a bookmaker, can he legally force me to pay the debt, and is it a criminal offense to make the bet with the bookmaker.

A: First, a bookmaker is defined as a person whom receives a percentage of bets placed; and as for it being a legal debt, it is not a legal debt, therefore the bookmaker has no legal course to follow. If he attempts to collect his profit in any other means, he could be liable for criminal charges.

It is a criminal offense to place a bet with a bookmaker. Under Texas law it is a Class C misdemeanor and punishable by a fine only not to exceed $200. Bookmaking under Texas Law is considered a felony of the third degree punishable by not less than two years or more than 10 years in Texas Department of Corrections and/or a fine to exceed $5,000.

So if you play don't forget, "You don't have to pay."

Dear Abby

Husband's trip to altar tempts wife to stay home

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a well-known professional man in our area. His secretary, who has been with him for four years, has asked him to give her 19-year-old daughter away in marriage. The secretary is divorced, and her ex-husband (a local resident) refuses to participate in or even attend his daughter's wedding although his name is on the invitation.

No one even mentioned the above to me until all the plans were made. I know the secretary but have never met her daughter.

I feel very uncomfortable about this and have told my husband that it is bound to create some speculation as to what the relationship between him and his secretary really is.

My husband said he had no choice because "they have no male family member to perform the duty." Am I wrong to be upset? And do you think I should attend the wedding?

WITHHOLD MY NAME IN FLORIDA

DEAR WITHHOLD: Are you wrong to be upset? No.

Dr. Donohue

Insulin problem

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband is a diabetic. We had a difficult time controlling his problem. He either got too much insulin and would pass out or too little and his blood sugar went out of kilter. I don't know how either of us lived through that.

Now I have a special question. Last night my husband got drunk (he knows better) and I found him on the floor. He passed out. I couldn't tell if he was having an insulin reaction or not. I woke him up and he was able to take some orange juice with sugar in it. Then I put him to bed. Did I do the right thing? — Mrs. W.Z.

You did the right thing. Giving him sugar would not hurt, even if his blood sugar were not low. A diabetic who has taken too much alcohol usually has low blood sugar as well as the effects of alcohol to contend against. I sympathize with your problem. It's not easy to distinguish between passing out from low blood sugar because of insulin excess and passing out from too much alcohol. I can give you a few tips that might help.

When a person passes out from insulin excess, his skin is sweaty and clammy. The heartbeat is rapid and breathing is usually shallow. When the cause is too much alcohol, the skin tends to be warm and flushed and breathing is noisy and deep. The heartbeat is not fast usually.

If you have doubts and if you cannot arouse such a person, don't force feed him anything, even liquids. He may get some of that liquid into his lungs accidentally. I would not take any chances — get him to the emergency room of your nearest hospital where a proper evaluation of his state can be made quickly.

I won't preach to your husband. As you said, he already knows better. But even the best of us slips up once in a while.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You've got me scared! A recent article stated that a squamous cell skin cancer may spread to other parts of the body. Do you mean other parts of the body skin or internal organs? My husband just had a squamous cell cancer removed from his chest followed by X-rays. We just hope it wasn't too late. My husband didn't bother to ask whether it might spread. I hope you can relieve our minds. — J.H.M.

I didn't want to scare you. Almost always, squamous cell cancers of the skin are completely curable, so much so that insurance companies will give standard rates even if you have recently had one. Only rarely do these kinds of cancers spread to internal organs, and that is usually the case if they have been neglected. I merely wished to alert readers to that outside possibility. Most such cancers are gone forever once they have been treated as your husband's was. I am sure his physician will reassure him on this.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: We recently bought assorted soups. This label read 800 to 1,000 milligrams of sodium. Please advise if this is harmful. — J.P.

You should limit your sodium to between 800 and 2,000 milligrams every day. If that is milligram content per serving, it's rather high. You also have to consider the sodium you get from other foods.

You should be grateful to the manufacturer for listing the sodium content of the product. I wish more would do the same. And did you know that there are now soups available with low sodium content?

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Your husband should have discussed it with you first. Should you attend the wedding? Yes. It would look worse if you didn't.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and have been married a year and two months to a wonderful man.

We are very happy, but we have problems making love. I seem to hold back, and much as I want to, I can't seem to let myself go. My husband has been very patient with me, but I know he can't enjoy himself because of the way I am.

We've discussed the problem together and think maybe I should seek professional help. Where should I go?

DEAR UPTIGHT: First you should be examined by a gynecologist to determine whether there is some kind of physical problem. If there is none, there's a strong possibility that you are uptight because of your rape experience. Go to your nearest rape crisis center. It doesn't matter how long ago the rape occurred, if it hasn't been dealt with and resolved, it needs to be.

Cowboys crush Cards, 34-17

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — At first the Dallas Cowboys pretended again they wanted to be their own worst enemies, but this time quarterback Danny White sensed a difference.

"It was almost scary. It was so similar to the Washington game, except Washington dominated us," said White following the National Football League team's 34-17 triumph Sunday over the St. Louis Cardinals. "Today, it was our fault. Today, we knew we would come back."

Dallas, which rallied from a 23-3 halftime deficit before prevailing 31-30 over the Redskins in its opener last Monday night, this time revived earlier after lagging 10-0.

Ron Springs' first of two touchdown runs launched a Cowboys offensive comeback in the second quarter. Meanwhile, four interceptions of Jim Hart passes bottled up the St. Louis attack. And the winning team, while improving its record to 2-0, coasted after building a 31-10 lead in the closing period.

"Every one played very poor in the first quarter," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, who at the afternoon's end was breathing more easily on his 59th birthday.

"I don't know why, but we came on in the second quarter and played very well. We were very tired all week — the hot weather and coming off the Monday night game," said Landry. "Our offense is coming along, and our defense is coming along. The kicking game is the worst part."

At the outset, to be sure, a pair of lengthy returns by Stump Mitchell were most responsible for placing Dallas in a hole.

The third-year Cards back first hauled a John Warren punt 16 yards to the Cowboys' 39, setting up Hart's scoring bomb to Roy Green on the next play. Not long afterward, following a 29-yard Mitchell return to the 43, it became 10-0 on Neil O'Donoghue's field goal from the Dallas 13.

White, who completed 19 of 27 passes, zipped a 19-yard bullseye to Tony Hill to set up Springs' first touchdown, a plunge from St. Louis 1, but a turnaround lingered late into the opening half.

Still trailing 10-7, the Cowboys moved ahead on White's 10-yard flip to Drew Pearson. Only 19 seconds later, Dallas made it 17-10 when Everson Walls pilfered a Hart pass and Rafael Septien booted a 45-yard field goal.

In contrast to the opportunism of the Cowboys, the Cards failed to capitalize early in the third quarter on Bubba Baker's recovery of a Tony Dorsett fumble and 9-yard return to the Dallas 14.

Dennis Thurman spoiled the bid three plays later by picking off another of Hart's passes in the end zone. Scrimmaging from their 20, the Cowboys swept to a touchdown on Springs' run of 19 yards and later made it 31-10 on still another interception.

"One was tipped, and two others I thought were fine plays by their defense," the 39-year-old Hart said of the passes stolen by Dallas defenders.

The final, by Bill Bates, hurt the worst. He picked it off at the St. Louis 34. When he fumbled into the end zone, teammate Thurman won the battle for the ball. The best the Cards could do afterward was assemble a 34-yard scoring drive ignited by the elusive Mitchell's kickoff return of 66 yards.

In addition to the interceptions, Hart was sacked five times in the final half by the winning team's defenses.

"That's part of football; it's fun to get knocked down," said Hart, who nonetheless completed 22 passes for 295 yards. "The gloom of another loss, this is the part that's not fun. I think you have to give credit to the Cowboys; they shut us down."

St. Louis, while absorbing a second setback in as many weeks, suffered most through its inability to generate an offense compiling more than 53 yards on the ground.

"We didn't think we were going to have a particularly big running day against Dallas," St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan said. "There were just too many mistakes. I think our team is a team that really hasn't jelled."

Connors overpowers Lendl

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors was on the ropes, like a boxer trying to roll with the punches.

His stomach was upset, his toe was hurting, the heat was oppressive and Ivan Lendl was serving rockets at him. This clearly was not a very good situation for the defending U.S. Open Tennis champion.

Connors and Lendl had split the first two sets of the men's singles final Sunday, but the tide was rolling the Czech's way in the third one. After losing the first set 3-6,

ONE POINT TO GO — Jimmy Connors reacts prior to the match point in Sunday's U.S. Open match with Ivan Lendl. Connors went on to win the match and the tournament by downing Lendl 6-3, 6-7, 7-5 and 6-0 for his 100th career tournament victory.

U.S. Open

he had salvaged the second 7-6, winning the tiebreaker 7-2. Lendl had a 5-4 lead in the third and was serving for the set. One more game and he would be just one set away from his first grand slam victory.

"I never happened. Inexplicably, Lendl committed a double fault. Like a balloon that suddenly springs a leak, all of the air seeped out of the steely-eyed Czech. Connors suddenly had the opening he needed and the 31-year-old didn't miss it.

"When he double faulted on set point, I said, 'Well, if he's going to do that, he's going to give me a chance,'" said Connors.

It was an invitation to take back the match and Lendl didn't have to ask Jimmy twice.

"I started getting in there and jumping on my returns more," Connors said. "I hit them more solid and started doing something with them instead of playing him back."

Connors won that game and the next one, taking the set that he had been just a Lendl serve away from losing, 7-5.

"My spirits lifted about 50 or 60 percent and I think I dropped a little from that point," Connors noted. "He played a pretty awful game to lose the set. He missed three or four balls for no reason."

Connors' insight was on target. The double fault had taken its toll on Lendl.

"I never really recovered from having set point and double faulting," he said. "If you make a mistake like that, you really don't deserve to win."

No problem there. He didn't win. Connors came out roaring in the fourth set, breaking Lendl's service in the second game.

"I tried to jump on everything and get on top right away," said Connors, who now had his fifth U.S. Open title and the 100th singles championship of his brilliant career in sight.

"For me to come out and break him right away (in the fourth set) was important. I played a pretty good game and he missed two backhands just for no reason. I felt at that time, 'Well, if you're going to do that, I'm going to try to hit one by you.' I jumped on him right away and he kind of sank at that point."

In the third game, Connors blitzed Lendl with three of the six aces he had in the match. The Czech, who had not lost a single set in the tournament until Sunday, simply folded, losing the set 6-4.

"After double faulting, I never recovered mentally," he said. "I should not have lost the third set."

Connors said he could understand the double fault bothering Lendl but thought he could have come back.

Lendl, however, never did.

Elway ineffective in Denver's 17-10 victory over Baltimore

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

John Elway came "home" to Baltimore and was literally driven from the game by the boos and catcalls that Colt fans had promised him. But it was Elway's backup Steve Deberg and the Denver Broncos who had the last laugh.

Elway, picked No. 1 by the Colts in the National Football League draft, then traded to Denver after saying he wouldn't play in Baltimore, started Sunday but was lifted in the third quarter after being driven to distraction by crowd noise. He was replaced by Deberg, who engineered the two touchdowns that gave the Broncos a 17-10 win.

"I made the change strictly because we couldn't get the plays off," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said of the din from the 52,613 who booed and chanted obscenities. "The crowd was very involved and every time we didn't get one off, they got more fired up."

Oilers fizzle against Raiders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a week's time, the Houston Oilers went from 496 yards in total offense to 223 and from 38 points to 6. Granted, they were without some key players, but that was only part of the story.

"We were at a disadvantage without (running back) Earl Campbell, (wide receiver) Tim Smith and (tight end) Dave Casper," said Houston quarterback Archie Manning, referring to three injured teammates, after the Oilers were beaten 20-6 by the Los Angeles Raiders. "But saying that takes something away from the Raiders."

Manning passed for 348 yards and wasn't sacked once during Houston's 41-38 overtime loss to Green Bay in a National Football League regular-season opener on Sept. 4. At the Los Angeles Coliseum on Sunday, he completed only six of 19 throws for 107 yards and was sacked five times.

"We can't make any excuses," said Manning. "They played real good defense. They put a lot of pressure on the passer. We wanted to stay out of long-yardage situations. We knew we had to do that to be successful."

Manning was just about right. Houston's only points came on a pair of field goals by Florian Kempf. The Oilers managed only seven first downs to 26 for the Raiders, who finished with 386 yards in total offense. Four times, the Oilers had the ball in Los Angeles territory following turnovers by the Raiders; once at the 46, then at the 30, then at the 24 and finally at the 12 with 4½ minutes to play following a 44-yard interception return by Willie Tullis.

Houston's total output resulting from the four turnovers and good field position? Zero.

"I thought we played hard today," said Coach Tom Flores of the Raiders, whose team is 2-0. "I thought we were a little bit flat. But we did move the ball."

"One thing I was worried about was giving them many scoring opportunities with our turnovers, but our defense did a good job creating some of their turnovers. I think our pass rush really kept Manning off

Connors celebrates 100th win with U.S. Open title

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a bull-ring crowd — not a traditional tennis crowd — and for every roll of thunder another quart of adrenaline went coursing through Jimmy Connors' veins.

It was more than an elixir for the gutsy little court-maverick from Belleville, Ill., playing with a sore right foot and with a case of diarrhea. It was a potent drug that fired every fiber in his 5-foot-10, 178-pound frame and kept him king of the hill in men's tennis in the United States.

"It's always an upper for me," he said Sunday evening, the cheers still ringing in his ears for a four-set victory over tough Czech Ivan Lendl, for his fifth U.S. Open Championship at Flushing Meadows.

"Anything I do, they get kind of excited. I love to play in New York. I like the crowd. These are my kind of people."

It marked Connors' second consecutive Open victory on three different surfaces — the latter a record that probably will never be duplicated — and it was a moment of frustration for the dour, 23-year-old Czech who has dominated the men's circuit but never won one of the major titles — Australian, French, Wimbledon, or the United States.

Connors called attention to the partiality of the 20,200-plus crowd in referring to the turning point of the final match.

"When Lendl's served double fault on set point in the third set, the stadium erupted," he said. "That's bound to take something out of you. But I have played in these conditions myself."

"It is difficult. You've got to go out there and get to the point so that no matter what you do, they will have to look at you and respect you for it."

Lendl refused to blame the partisan crowd, but did admit later that the double fault when he was one stroke from taking a 2-1 set lead in the match, was a devastating experience.

"I never recovered from that," he acknowledged. Connors said his own game picked up 50 to 60 percent at that point while Lendl went into a surprising relapse.

"After winning the third set," Connors said of his 6-3, 6-7, 7-5, 6-0 victory, "I decided to go out and jump all over him, which I did in the fourth set. He began playing very loosely and making lots of unusual errors."

Lendl, who had swept into the final without losing a set and was a favorite of many, completely withered under Connors' sledge-hammer attack from the backcourt.

Lendl, who lost to Connors in the 1982 final, began shakily — double faulting twice in losing his first service and never getting back even. In the second set, he twice was swinging so wildly the ball flew in the stands. Yet the match developed into a slugging duel — two gladiators beating each other over the head with aces.

It was as subtle as getting hit between the eyes with a railroad tie, Lendl serving most of his 16 aces to squeeze out the set in a tie-breaker. The crowd settled down for a knockdown-knockout battle that never materialized.

But Connors, with his unrelenting pressure, now boasts an 11-3 edge in head-to-head series with Lendl. It's Connors style. He literally hurls himself into the ball, emitting grunts that can be heard blocks away. His teeth clench, shoulders hunch, head down, he plays every shot as if his life hangs on it. He never temporizes. When he wins a crucial point, he'll raise both arms with clenched fists and emit a Tarzan yell.

The crowd goes wild.

If he were in the movies, Connors would be James Cagney. If he played baseball, he would be Leo Durocher and Billy Martin. If in TV, he'd be one of the East Side kids.

He plays rough.

Lendl was compared with Bjorn Borg when he came out of Ostrava, Czechoslovakia, to shake up the men's tour. He had Borg's cold, stroking precision, without the Swede's steel nerve. Although still young, with his punk rock hair style, deep-set eyes, sunken cheeks and pert manner, he has never succeeded in winning over the press and public.

Not like Jimbo, who, in winning his 100th singles title Sunday said: "I saved it for here."

Baseball Roundup

LA wins crucial game over Braves

By The Associated Press
A major league pennant race will make a rookie grow up quickly.

Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda oanked on that Sunday in a crucial National League West game with Atlanta. His faith in Dodger youth paid off in a wild 7-6 victory that lifted LA three games ahead of the Braves.

Rookie R.J. Reynolds squeeze bunted home the winning run in the ninth, capping a four-run Dodger rally to victory. Earlier in the inning, freshman Mike Marshall's two-run double tied the score.

"I don't ask kids how old they are," said Lasorda, who also used rookie first baseman Greg Brock and catcher Jack Fimple. "I just put them up and tell them to do the job. We're going to make men out of them real quick."

The Braves built a 6-3 lead thanks to a pair of three-run innings, with Dale Murphy's three-run homer a key blow.

But the Dodgers staged a stirring comeback in the ninth as pinch-hitter Jose Morales led off with a double and Steve Sax walked. Gene Garber then relieved and fanned Bill Russell but Dusty Baker hit a bloop single, loading the bases. Pedro Guerrero walked, forcing in one run, and Marshall doubled to right. Brock was walked intentionally, loading the bases for Reynolds, who executed his squeeze bunt, pushing the ball past Garber for his first major league RBI.

The Braves and Dodgers have met in five series this season, with LA taking two-of-three each time.

Giants 3, Astros 2

Atlee Hammaker struck out 14 batters, a major-league season high and San Francisco rallied for its runs in the ninth.

Nolan Ryan, 13-7, struck out 11 and pitched four-hit ball until the Giants began their winning rally.

Pinch-hitter Bergman singled home two runs and Tom O'Malley drove in the winning run with a pinch-hit single.

Expos 4, Mets 0

Charlie Lea threw a six-inning and set a team record with his eighth straight victory. Tim Wallach's two-run double was the biggest hit for

National League

Montreal, which leads the East by a half-game and finished it's most successful homestand ever with a 12-4 mark.

Lea, 15-8, broke David Palmer's 1979 record for consecutive victories for a starter in tossing his fourth shutout this season.

Phillies 5, Pirates 3

Philadelphia stayed on Montreal's heels when pinch-hitter Sixto Lezcano — who was acquired Sept. 1 from San Diego — broke a 3-3 tie with a single to right field, which Dave Parker booted to allow an insurance run to score. Someone from the stands then threw a battery at Parker.

Parker came running off the field as if to pull himself from the game, as he did when a similar incident occurred in a July 20, 1980 contest against Los Angeles. But first base umpire Dutch Renner intercepted Parker, who apparently then changed his mind and decided to stay in the game.

Cards 2, Cubs 1

Willie McGee's RBI single in the ninth — his second game-winning hit in three days of Cubs relief ace Lee Smith — was decisive. St. Louis is 1½ games back.

"I think Lee might be a little tired," said McGee. "But even if he is used a lot more often than not, he'll get you out."

Rick Reuschel, purchased by the Cubs two weeks ago from Class A Quad Cities and making his first major league start since the 1981 World Series — when he was with the Yankees — scattered six singles in six innings.

Reds 4, Padres 2

Cincinnati's Paul Householder homered and doubled to key the victory. Rookie Jeff Russell pitched a five-hitter through 7-1/3 innings. Russell, who was called up from the minors on Aug. 9, had a no-hitter into the seventh inning in his last outing against San Francisco but wound up losing on a two-hitter.

Stewart pitches Rangers to victory

By The Associated Press
SEATTLE — Right-hander Dave Stewart scattered five hits over 7 2/3 innings Sunday as the Texas Rangers edged the Seattle Mariners 2-1.

Stewart, 3-1 since coming over from the Los Angeles Dodgers at the end of August, struck out six and walked two as he outdueled the Mariners' Jim Beattie, 9-13. Dave Tobik came on with two out in the eighth to pick up his sixth save.

Consecutive doubles by George Wright and Buddy Bell highlighted the Rangers' two-run seventh inning that snapped a scoreless tie.

The Mariners picked up their un in the seventh when Steve Henderson singled home pinch runner John Moses. With one out, Ken Phelps singled to right and Moses ran for him. Stewart hit Al Cowens with a pitch and Henderson followed with a single.

Orioles 5, Yanks 3

NEW YORK — Todd Cruz and Rick Dempsey each drove in two runs during a five-run second inning as the Baltimore Orioles downed the New York Yankees 5-3 Sunday.

The Orioles entered the game with a 5½ game lead over Detroit in the American League East. Baltimore now leads New York by seven games after winning three of four from the Yankees during their weekend series.

Royals 3, Twins 1

MINNEAPOLIS — Willie Aikens drilled a two-run homer with two out in the top of the ninth inning to give Kansas City a 3-1 victory over Minnesota Sunday as reliever Dan Quisenberry worked the ninth to pick up his 38th save, tying the all-time major league record.

Twins rookie Jay Pettibone, making his major league debut, went the distance for Minnesota and got the loss. He allowed six hits, struck out four and walked two.

Tigers 6, Brewers 4

MILWAUKEE — Enos Campbell capped a three-run Detroit fifth inning with a two-run single and the Detroit Tigers held on for a 6-4 win over the Milwaukee Brewers Sunday.

American League

Tigers starter Dan Petry, 17-8, allowed four hits and four runs in 5 2/3 innings. Aurelio Lopez picked up his 18th save by getting Jim Gantner to fly out to end the game.

Red Sox 4, Indians 1

CLEVELAND — Jim Rice snapped a seventh-inning tie with an unusual two-run sacrifice fly double play, and Bob Ojeda pitched a six-hitter as the Boston Red Sox downed the Cleveland Indians 4-1 Sunday.

Cleveland's Larry Sorensen, 10-10, took a 1-0 lead in the seventh, but Rick Miller tied the game with a leadoff home run to right field, his second.

Glenn Hoffman followed with a single and stole second before pinch-hitter Dwight Evans walked. Hoffman and pinch runner Lee Graham moved up on Jerry Remy's sacrifice bunt, before Wade Boggs was intentionally walked to load the bases.

Rice then lifted a fly ball to left-center field, barely deep enough for Hoffman to score the lead run.

Blue Jays 16, A's 6

TORONTO — Willie Upshaw clouted a grand-slam home run and Jesse Barfield contributed three RBIs with a solo blast and a triple to power the Toronto Blue Jays to a 16-6 victory over the Oakland A's Sunday.

The Jays trailed 1-0 in the first but erased the deficit with Upshaw's first career grand slam and 23rd homer of the season.

Oakland halved the margin to 4-2 in the fourth on a double by Dwayne Murphy and a single by Don Hill. But Barfield led off the bottom of the inning with his 23rd homer.

White Sox 5, Angels 4

CHICAGO — Harold Baines lined a run-scoring single with one out in the 10th inning Sunday, giving the Chicago White Sox a 5-4 triumph over the California Angels and making LaMarr Hoyt the first American League pitcher to win 20 games since 1980.

Baines, who solo homered in the 12th inning gave Chicago a 7-6 victory over the Angels Saturday night, drove in Julio Cruz, who lead off the 10th with a pinch-single and took second on a groundout.

eighth straight road victory.

Mark Moseley kicked field goals of 36, 24 and 23 yards and Joe Theismann completed 15 of 26 passes for 142 yards and one touchdown.

Giants 16, Falcons 13

Rob Carpenter picked up 111 yards in 28 carries, his second 100-yard game in a row. But Al Richardson's interception of a Scott Brunner pass set up Steve Bartkowski's 6-yard scoring pass to Alfred Jackson that tied it at 13-13 with 3:36 left in regulation.

New York's Mike Dennis, however, returned the overtime kickoff 54 yards to the Atlanta 41 and rookie Ali Haji-Sheikh booted a 30-yarder to win it, his third field goal of the game.

Rams 30, Saints 17

Rookie Eric Dickerson scored his third touchdown on a 3-yard run with 1:22 left as the Rams ran their record to 2-0 and dropped New Orleans to 1-1.

The score culminated a 60-yard drive after Saints punter Russell Erxleben took a safety with his team leading 27-21 rather than risk a punt from his end zone.

Dolphins 34, Pats 24

David Woodley, held to just 40 yards last week, led

Miami, 2-0, by passing for 218 yards and two touchdowns, including a 64-yarder to Duriel Harris.

Andra Franklin had touchdown runs of 6 and 7 yards and Uwe von Schamann booted two field goals.

New England fell to 0-2.

Bills 10, Bengals 6

A swarming Atlanta defense that hasn't allowed a touchdown in two weeks stopped Cincinnati on four plays from the 4-yard line in the final quarter.

Joe Ferguson's 14-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Butler was the only touchdown of a game dominated by defense. The Bills are 1-1; the Bengals 0-2.

Browns 31, Lions 26

Mike Pruitt rushed for 137 yards and Brian Sipe threw four touchdown passes and completed 18 of 29 passes for 234 yards for the Browns, 1-1. The Lions are also 1-1.

Bears 17, Bucs 10

Terry Schmidt's 32-yard return in the fourth quarter with an interception of a Jerry Golsteyn pass gave the Bears their victory and a 1-1 record as Tampa Bay fell to 0-2.

Oilers

balance, and offensively, I thought we played well."

The Raiders went ahead for good on their first possession, marching 49 yards on nine plays after a Houston punt. Kenny King capped the drive by scoring on a 2-yard plunge. Chris Bahr, who later would miss three field goal attempts, was unsuccessful on the conversion.

Los Angeles made it 13-0 with 1:12 remaining before halftime on a 10-yard TD run by Greg Pruitt, which capped an 80-yard, eight-play drive.

The Oilers got their first field goal by Kempf, a 40-yarder, just 35 seconds later. The three-pointer came shortly after rookie Larry Moriarty broke loose for an 80-yard run on a draw play, moving the ball from the Houston 7-yard line to the Los Angeles 13.

Kempf booted a 38-yarder with 1:57 remaining in the third period to make it 13-6. The score came shortly after Bill Kay blocked a 41-yard field goal try by Bahr. The ball bounced into Los Angeles territory and Houston took possession at the Raiders' 36.

Los Angeles responded to Kempf's second field goal with another 80-yard, eight-play scoring march to complete the scoring. Todd Christensen got the touchdown on a 2-yard pass from quarterback Jim Plunkett in the opening minute of the fourth quarter.
