Holiday deadlines

The Big Spring Herald will be published Sunday morning, Christmas Day. However, so employees can enjoy the holiday weekend, the newspaper will not publish on Monday. All departments of the Herald will be closed Monday.

I'VE DONE MY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING. ONLY 1 DAY LEFT.

White (cold) Christmas on tap

From staff and wire reports

An unusually strong high pressure area stretching from central Canada to the Gulf of Mexico is pushing frigid arctic air into Texas, causing record cold temperatures in Big Spring and bringing the possibility of snow on Christmas day.

The cold air mass plummeted in Big Spring to record lows of 2 and 3 degrees Wednesday and Thursday night, according to the U.S. Big Spring Field Station.

The high pressure zone should affect area weather through Christmas Day, with a chance of snow and average temperatures in the mid 20s predicted by the weather service.

A warming trend is expected starting Monday, when temperatures should climb into 40s and 50s, the service said.

Area drivers Friday afternoon fought blustery winds and ice patches on roads, and Texas Electric Service Co. again pleaded with customers to cut all but essential electricity use.

Local bus companies continued to operate on regular schedules Friday night, and the Midland-Odessa Regional Air Terminal reported delays but no cancellations in passenger airliner traffic.

Despite the hazardous driving conditions, no major accidents have occurred here since Sunday.

A below-freezing Christmas is on tap for most of Texas as meteorologists said Friday the record-breaking chill will continue through Monday with occasional snow flurries along the way.

The National Weather Service said at least eight low temperature records were set in Texas Friday morning because of the frigid arctic air. The average temperature in Abilene this month has been 7.1 degrees below normal.

Patches of ice remained on some roads Friday, freezing drizzle brought traffic in Southeast Texas and Houston to a skidding stop and light snow fell from the Red River south to Dallas and Fort Worth Friday.

Few travelers remained stranded, however, from earlier ice and snow storms. But the weather service warned that conditions could get worse, or at least stay as they are, before they get better.

"I don't see any warmup this weekend," said NWS meteorologist Don Sullivan in Fort Worth. "Right now, it looks like Monday or Tuesday before we get some relief."

The weather service said that while some areas warmed a little Friday, the temperature forecast in Abilene calls for thermometers to read 20 to 40 degrees below normal for the last 8 days of the month.

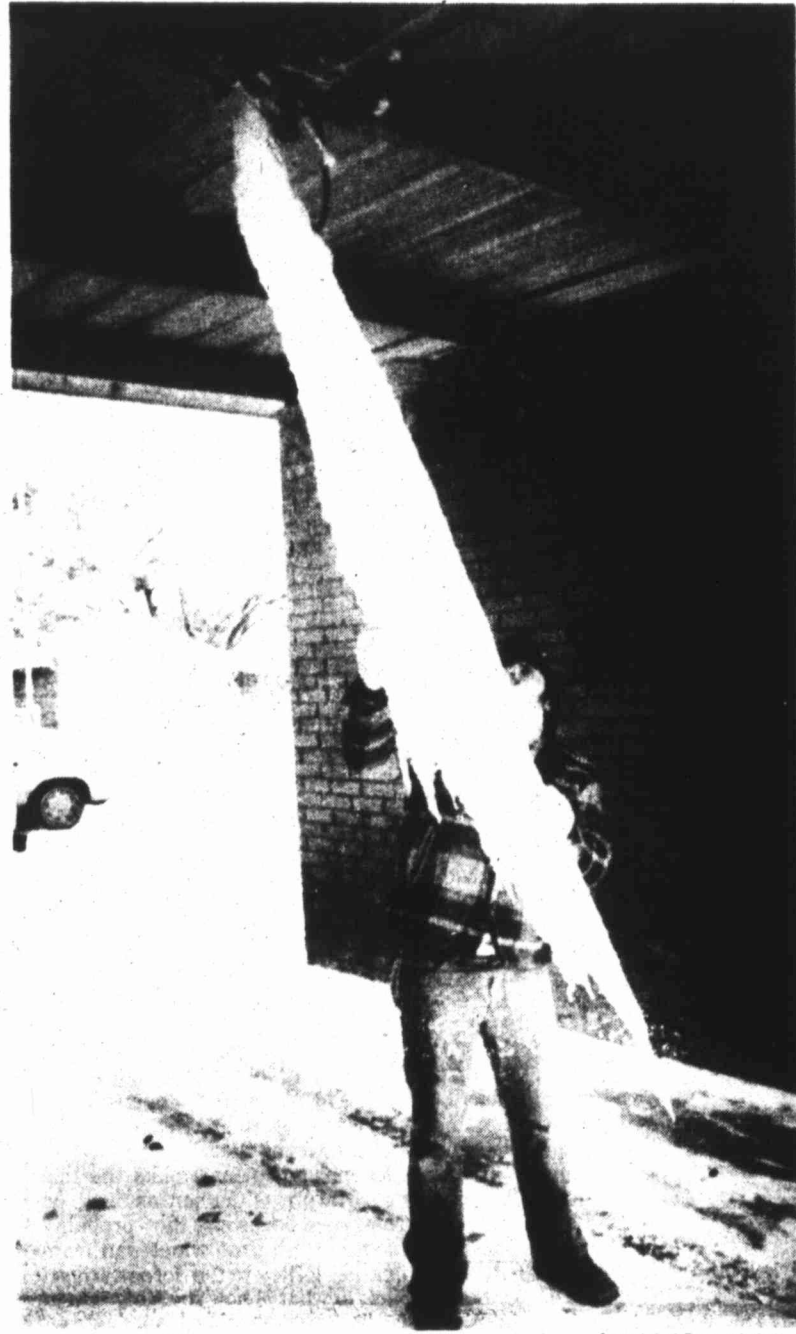

"We have an excellent chance at the coldest December on record, which is 38.7 degrees set in 1914, 1909, and 1898," an NWS statement from Abilene said. Temperatures there have been below freezing since 2 a.m. Sunday, and it has already been the snowiest December on record with 6.8 inches.

The winter front has claimed at least 10 lives in Texas since Sunday. In the latest cases reported, a 67-year-old Fort Worth man was found frozen in the back of a van and a Dallas transient died, apparently of hypothermia, at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Tarrant County Medical Examiner's Investigator Dail McMillan said the body of the Fort Worth man was "frozen solid just like a block of ice." A Dallas County medical examiner's office spokesman said a final autopsy on the other body had not yet been completed.

Light snow flurries fell before dawn Friday at the Jefferson County Airport in Southeast Texas and a travelers' advisory was posted for the Galveston area because of freezing drizzle.

A spokeswoman for the Galveston County sheriff said the causeway from the mainland to Galveston Island was closed for several hours early Friday because of ice.

WINTER STALACTITE — What looks like a stalactite from Carlsbad Caverns is actually a giant icicle being removed from an Abilene car wash. The temperature in Abilene was one degree lower than Big Spring's mark of 3 degrees early Friday morning.

Holiday travel hazardous

From staff and wire reports

Holiday travelers began the long Christmas weekend Friday facing a coast-to-coast blast of bitter winter weather, with many areas reporting hazardous driving conditions.

Bus companies in Big Spring said Friday night they were continuing to operate regular schedules, and the Midland-Odessa Regional Air Terminal reported frequent delays but no cancellations in commercial air flights.

The National Safety Council said that between 300 and 400 people could be killed in traffic accidents between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday. During a three-day non-holiday weekend at this time of the year 330 deaths could be expected. Last year there were 345 Christmas weekend traffic fatalities.

The worst Christmas holiday was during a three-day observance in 1965 when 720 people lost their lives.

"Bring something to read," passengers were advised by United Airlines spokesman Joe Hopkins at Chicago's O'Hare Airport, where several airlines' flights were delayed today as many service vehicles froze up and refused to budge.

Flights were moving, he said, but "they come in late, so they go out late."

Meanwhile the National Safety Council estimated that between 300 and 400 people may die in traffic accidents over the holiday weekend. The counting period begins at 6 p.m. this evening and extends until midnight Monday.

Motorists faced hazardous and slow journeys in many places, with travelers' advisories for snowy weather posted from northern

Knott residents await new test results

KNOTT — Residents here say they are taking a "wait-and-see" attitude about purchasing water treatment systems to remove arsenic recently found in their well water.

Bud Hughes, at whose home Knott residents met Friday to discuss the situation with representatives from the Odessa office of the state Department of Agriculture, said he did not intend to purchase a water treatment system.

"I'm not (buying a distiller or a reverse osmosis plant) 'til the ag guys come up with something to water cows and horses," Hughes said.

Joe Barnes, who lives northeast of Knott, said he did not plan on purchasing a system but might later if the arsenic contamination

"Six months from now, if the contamination continually rises, I might," Barnes said.

Barnes, Hughes and other area residents said the high cost of the water treatment systems forced them to wait and see if the arsenic content was rising. Some systems demonstrated Friday at the community meeting require an initial investment of $1,000 plus maintenance, Barnes said.

But even if residents were to purchase a water treatment system, the equipment would not be able to handle water used in farming or for livestock, sales representatives said.

"It would be too cost-prohibitive," a representative said.

"(The systems) are too expensive to put at the pump and go at everything," Hughes said.

"In summer, our grandkids were swimming in that water."

Many residents are continuing to drink their well water pending test results from the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Public Health, they said.

Others say they are buying bottled water to drink, but say they are concerned about whether they should use that water to wash dishes or to bathe.

Odessa agricultural department office director David Davis said the department invited salesmen to demonstrate to Knott residents distillation and reverse osmosis because "now people are kind of panicky and we want them to know about some things they can do."

The department will pull a sample of well water before and after water additives or treatment systems are installed, Davis said.

State agency officials remain uncertain about the source of arsenic in residents' well water. Davis said the arsenic probably was not the result of a natural source or run-off from lake water. He also said he didn't think arsenic was present in the insecticide farmers used on their fields.

Bill Rogers, who also is with the agricultural department's Odessa office, said that although arsenic acid is present in the defoliant farmers used, "It doesn't leach. You put it on the ground and it stays there."

Both Davis and Rogers say they are unable to tell anything about the arsenic contamination based on location.

"It's too early to have a pattern," Davis said. "We're waiting for more test results."

The road to Bethlehem

History marks old holy city

EDITOR'S NOTE — It is written in the New Testament that nearly 2,000 years ago a carpenter named Joseph and his wife, Mary, traveled from Nazareth to Bethlehem where Mary gave birth to the Christ child. This story traces the journey over the land as it is today.

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

BETHLEHEM — The golden lights of the city where Jesus was born twinkle brightly through the silver mist of rain at twilight on this December night.

The 120-mile journey from Nazareth has taken six hours by car, at first down a modern highway crossing a fertile farm valley and then by narrow, winding lanes that skirt mine fields and barbed wire barricades along the Jordan River.

In the time of Mary and Joseph, the trip would have taken at least three days if they kept a brisk pace by foot or on donkey. For a pregnant woman, the trip could have taken as long as a week, for the route turns rough as it leaves the Jordan and heads toward Jerusalem and Bethlehem through the Judean hills. A misstep could plunge incautious travelers to their deaths in the rocky gorges thousands of feet below.

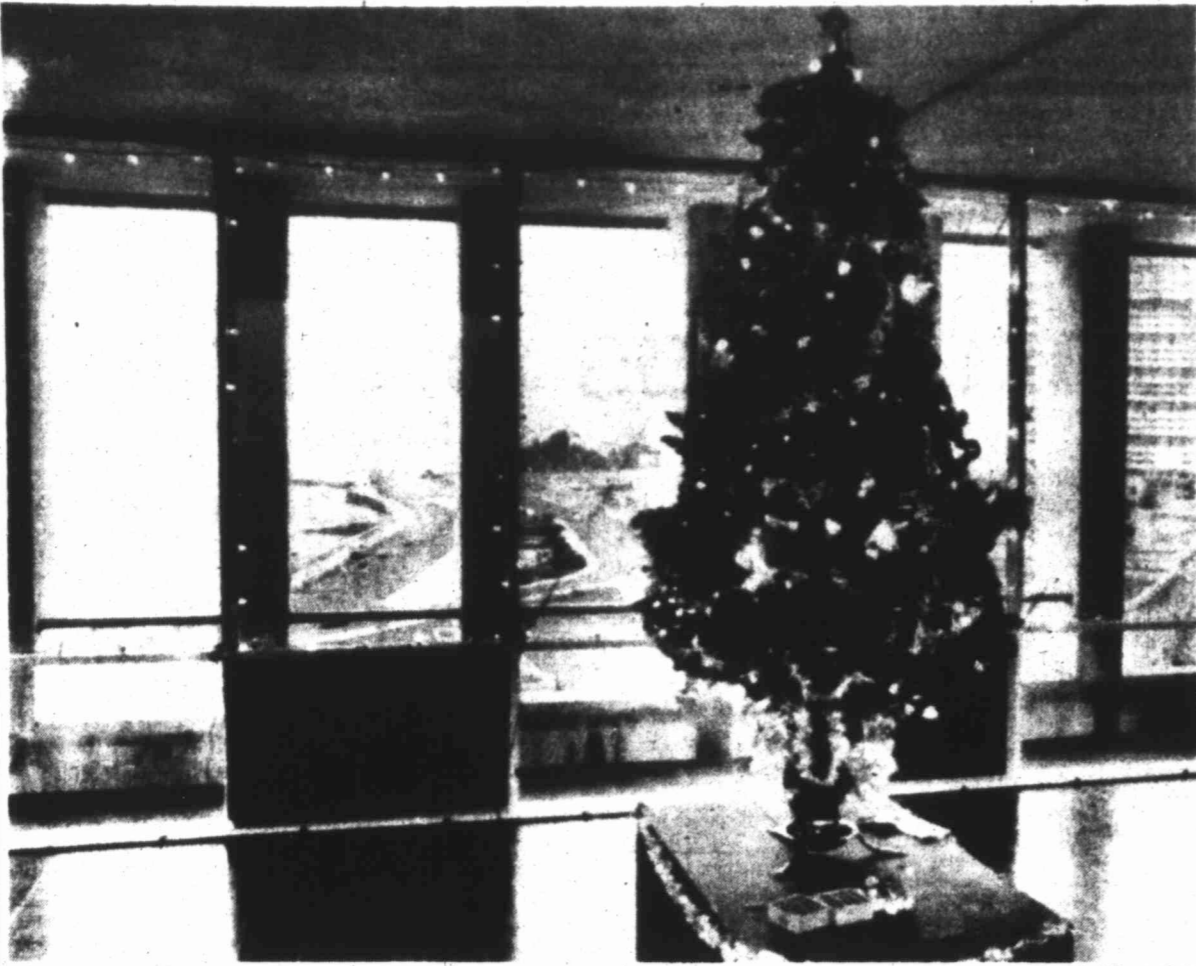

This route is not the most direct, although Biblical scholars say it was the one most often used in Jesus' time by Jews traveling from Nazareth of Galilee to Bethlehem of Judea. The straightest road then, as now, leads through the ancient land of Samaria — the name still used for it today by the Israeli government. Others call it Palestine or the Occupied West Bank, which Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

For Mary and Joseph, as for the Jews of modern Israel, there were political problems in Samaria.

"The risk then was the same sort of risk an Israeli settler would take passing by a Palestinian refugee camp today — he might be stoned," said the Rev. Jerry Murphy-O'Connor, a Roman Catholic priest and professor of New Testament history at the Ecole Biblique, a century-old Bible studies school in Jerusalem.

CUBAN CHRISTMAS — Cuba's only public display of the Christmas holiday is this Christmas tree on the sixth floor of the U.S. diplomatic mission. The window overlooks the Malecon, Havana's seaside boulevard.

Christmas in Cuba

Castro frowns on Yuletide celebrations

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA — The sweet soothing tones of "Silent Night" floated through Havana's cavernous cathedral last week. But Christmas in Cuba stops at the church door.

Up and down the tired old streets of this communist capital, the lights, carols and cheer of Christmas a generation ago have disappeared.

The only public symbol of the great Christian holiday is a tree glowing above the seaside Malecon Boulevard — from atop the six-story U.S. diplomatic mission.

Last Sunday in the weather-pocked, 279-year-old cathedral, volunteers hung tiny bells and ornamental balls dating from before Fidel Castro's revolutionary triumph 25 years ago. A plump, middle-aged choir mistress practiced Christmas hymns on an aged Hammond organ.

Waiting for Mass in a cathedral pew, a 23-year-old woman's eyes lighted up as she told a visiting American what she had heard from her father, a Miami resident, about Christmas in the United States.

"I have a little Christmas tree," she whispered. "He sent me a green artificial tree."

She asked that her name not be used, saying she might be questioned by the authorities for talking to a foreign journalist. Around Havana's churches, other Catholics expressed similar fears.

Like Christmas, religion itself is subdued in today's Cuba.

The Havana communists have not tried to stamp out the churches. But as atheists, they seek to discourage them. As a result, the Roman Catholic Church in Cuba, never as potent a force as in other Latin American countries, survives under Castroism, but in a shrunken form.

The government allows no religious activities outside church buildings; religious instruction in the schools was ended after the revolution, and churchmen complain they have difficulty getting their Bibles and other materials printed. Believers are banned from Communist Party membership — and hence from a key avenue to advancement in Cuban society.

The harassment can be petty: The highly detailed tourist map of Havana points out movie theaters and popular bars, but not the city's historic churches.

Exiled Cuban churchmen say that before the revolution more than 90 percent of Cubans were baptized, but this has dropped to under 50 percent. The number of priests on the island has declined to about 200, down from a pre-revolution clergy of 750, they say.

Stubborn remnants of Cuba's Catholic tradition cling to the island, however.

A 70-foot statue of Christ erected by pre-Castro dictator Fulgencio Batista still stands on a harbor hillside. Lovely colonial churches, though fraying for lack of upkeep, still dominate Old Havana. And pangs for a less secular past still pain some Cuban hearts.

Devout Catholics told a reporter that on Christmas Eve — "Nochebuena," or "The Good Night" — they would try to scrape together the makings of the traditional meal of roast pork with black beans and white rice, and nougat candy.

Some food items either are scarce, such as the traditional suckling pig, or are out of many Cubans' financial reach.

After the meal, as midnight approaches, families planned to walk to church for the "Misa del Gallo" — "Mass of the Rooster."

Bethlehem

Murphy-O'Connor, a native of Ireland, noted that the Bible does not give any details of the route taken by Mary and Joseph from Nazareth to Bethlehem. Luke, the only writer who mentions the trip, says without elaboration that they "went up from Galilee, from the city of Nazareth, to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem."

The Irish priest said in an interview he has doubts that Mary and Joseph traveled from Nazareth to Bethlehem to be counted in the Roman census mentioned in the Gospel of St. Luke.

"The basic principle was that everybody stayed at home for the census. It's much more probable that Mary and Joseph lived in Bethlehem and that's why the child was born there. None of the other Gospels have them going from Nazareth to Bethlehem for the birth. Luke simply got the wrong idea."

But if Mary and Joseph did in fact make the trip before Christ's birth, Murphy-O'Connor as well as other scholars and reference books say they probably took the most-used route of the time which ran from Nazareth down the Jezreel Valley to the Jordan River, crossed to the east bank in what is now the Kingdom of Jordan and recrossed the river near Jericho.

Vassilios Tzaferis, a Greek-born archeologist in Israel's antiquities department, said travelers in Jesus' time could also have walked along the western side of the river, although that route was generally rougher.

Whichever way is taken, the journey begins in Nazareth, today an Israeli city of 55,000 Christians, Moslems and Jews, compared to about 1,000 people in Christ's time. The Church of the Annunciation, the Church of St. Joseph and the Church of Gabriel mark sites where tradition places Mary and Joseph before their trip to Bethlehem.

The churches are surrounded by souvenir stands, banks, coffee shops and a market where an open sewer winds past the feet of elderly Arab women selling turnips and tomatoes.

The 20th century traveler descends from the hillside town via a series of hairpin curves on a black-topped highway where pine trees are interspersed with rusting hulks of wrecked cars and trucks.

The Jezreel plain below is divided like a giant checkerboard into squares of bright green fields and freshly plowed furrows of chocolate brown and brick red earth. The first big town, Afula, is uninviting, a drab expanse of apartment blocks and industry. Farther along is Shata Prison. Then comes Bet Shean, a crossroads town since Biblical days.

To get close to the Jordan River, one must abandon the main highway in favor of narrow military roads whose surfaces are scarred by the treads of tanks. Frequent signs warn "Danger — Mines" in English, Arabic and Hebrew. In addition to the mine fields, access to the river is blocked by electronic fences and coils of barbed wire. Barely 50 yards away, on the Jordanian side of the river, an elderly man and woman pull weeds from a cabbage patch.

Here Mary and Joseph and other travelers of their day could have crossed the narrow river easily, for the water is shallow and the ground is level.

Then the West Bank rises into a series of hills topped by Israeli military outposts. Not a single civilian is seen until the land becomes gentler, accommodating narrow fields where Palestinian women pick vegetables.

Near the Allenby Bridge east of Jericho, where people forded the river in Christ's time and where West Bank Palestinians today can cross through Israeli checkpoints into Jordan, a flock of black goats appears with a Bedouin shepherdess, Mayhda. She is a pretty young woman, perhaps the age of Mary when she came this way, but the Biblical image is soon dispelled, for Mayhda wears blue jeans and a plaid shirt.

Heading west past Jericho, the ascent into the Judean hills brings the journey's first glimpse of Israel's West Bank settlements, high-rise monoliths which dominate the small Palestinian villages around them.

In the distance is Bethlehem.

There, the Church of the Nativity, dating from the 6th century, sits at the end of Manger Square, surrounded by souvenir shops. A blue and white plastic sign, put up by Israel's civil administration for the West Bank, admonishes visitors not to take animals or firearms inside. Under the church is a series of caves. Stone steps, worn smooth by the feet of pilgrims, lead down to a gold star marking the spot where Christ was born, according to traditions dating back to at least the 3rd century.

There is nothing in the New Testament or historical record to prove that this is the spot where Mary and Joseph and Jesus spent that first Christmas night, according to Murphy-O'Connor, the historian-priest.

"You wonder why every tradition picked that spot," he added. "The only reason I can offer is that's where it really happened."

A Greyhound bus ran off icy Missouri 72 and toppled onto its right side Thursday, injuring 12 passengers, state police said. The accident occurred near Patton, 90 miles south of St. Louis.

The extreme cold — more than 30 below in some places — prompted Amtrak officials to order passenger trains to slow down, for fear of snapping or breaking super-chilled tracks under the weight of racing trains, railroad officials said.

2 charged in priest killing

LIBERTY (AP) — Two men charged with capital murder in the slaying of a priest are accused of robbing the elderly man of "small change," then shooting him with a pistol, a sheriff said Friday.

David Wayne DeBlanc, 27, and Arlington Gary Mark, 30, were arrested Thursday, Liberty County Sheriff Buck Eckols said. They are accused of the Feb. 18 killing of the Rev. Henry Boushie, 68, of Ames.

Boushie, who had moved to the small southeast Texas parish from Boston, was shot once with a handgun, Eckols said. Justice of the Peace

W.E. "Sonny" Loftin set DeBlanc's bond at $1 million and Mark's at $500,000.

The killers stole "a little money — maybe $60."

Samantha globe trotting

TOKYO — Samantha Smith, the 11-year-old who went to the Soviet Union at the invitation of party leader Yuri Andropov, says children have much to learn of the world and "we are ready to start learning."

The Manchester, Maine resident, is in Japan with her mother at the invitation of a group promoting an international science and technology exhibition to be held in Tsukuba, northeast of Tokyo, in 1985.

She said Friday that she was excited to be in Japan.

"It's one of the best places you could possibly be," she said, "I've seen many beautiful new faces."

After a weekend of sightseeing, Samantha will go to Kobe in western Japan, where on Monday she will attend an international children's symposium on communications, science and technology.

Samantha went to the Soviet Union last summer after she wrote to Andropov saying she was worried about nuclear war.

Ex-priest eyes politics

BOSTON — Charles Fiske, who conducted a successful appeal last year for a live donor for his year-old daughter Jamie says he is considering entering politics.

Fiske, 37, of Bridgewater, a former Roman Catholic priest who married an ex-nun, told The Enterprise of Brockton that he may run for the state House of Representatives because of "what we've been able to do for our daughter."

He said in Wednesday's interview that his experience in lobbying for treatment for people needing transplants "has caused me to look at the quantity and quality of people running for office."

He said Jamie's case "showed me that you can change the system. Plus, I have a sense of obligation that I feel toward society."

Fiske, who said he would run as a Republican, is an administrator in the social services department of University Medical Center in Boston.

Fiske appealed for help in finding a donor for his daughter at a meeting of the American Academy of Pediatricians in September 1982. The publicity led to a transplant at the University of Minnesota Hospitals in Minneapolis and Jamie, now 2, has recovered and leads a normal life.

Ford's son loses wheels

SACRAMENTO — The driver's license of Jack Ford, son of former President Ford, has been suspended for six months because he refused to take a chemical sobriety test after he was arrested for drunken driving.

Ford, 31, was arrested Aug. 16 in northern San Diego County after officers saw his car weaving on Highway 101. He was given a field sobriety test by the arresting officer — in which the officer examined a driver's physical coordination — and flunked, police said.

He later pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of reckless driving, but his license was ordered suspended because of his refusal to submit to the chemical test.

He appealed, but on Dec. 16, the Department of Motor Vehicles "re-imposed that suspension," department spokesman Erwin Cooper said Thursday. Ford can reapply for his license June 15, he said.

Troops in Beirut get visits

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A land mine explosion injured three members of an International Red Cross medical team Friday, and there were reports of scattered fighting between Christians and Druse southeast of the capital.

The defense secretaries of France and Britain visited their troops in Beirut and Italy's president said Italy should pull out of the multinational force.

Comedian Bob Hope entertained the U.S. Marine contingent of the multinational force aboard American ships of Beirut's coast for a second straight day. With him were actress Brooke Shields and other American entertainers. On shore, U.S. Marines got presents from a Marine chaplain dressed as Santa Claus.

Michel Amiguet, a Swiss who heads the International Red Cross in Beirut, said three Red Cross workers were injured when their car ran over two anti-personnel land mines in the Kharroub region southeast of Beirut.

Arafat vows to reorganize

CAIRO — Brushing aside criticism of his overtures to Egypt, Yasser Arafat was quoted Friday as vowing to reorganize the PLO following a revolt in the organization's ranks that drove him from Lebanon.

Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was criticized by both friends and foes in the PLO for meeting Thursday with President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt.

The Cairo daily Al Ahram quoted Arafat as saying that "the present situation with all its challenges and dangers" required him to patch up his differences with the largest Arab country.

He referred to the Syrian-supported rebellion in the PLO that drove Arafat and about 4,000 of his followers out of the Lebanese port city on Tuesday. It was a bitter defeat for Arafat and left his forces scattered in the Arab world.

Arafat told the newspaper he would restructure the Palestinian movement through a series of meetings of the leadership of the PLO.

The effort would culminate in February in a session of the Palestine National Council, the PLO's parliament-in-exile, in Algiers, Arafat was quoted as telling Al Ahram.

As usual, Arafat did not give specifics of his next political moves. But he faced renewed calls for his ouster as chairman of the organization from the Syrian-controlled rebels as well as from some PLO leaders who resent his meeting with Mubarak.

It was the first meeting between Arafat and an Egyptian leader since Egypt in 1979 became the only Arab country to sign a peace treaty with Israel.

Arafat was reported on his way by ship Friday to North Yemen along with some 3,000 of his fighters who were forced to leave Tripoli after a month-long siege by Syrian-backed PLO rebels. An additional 1,000 guerrillas forced out of Lebanon went to Iraq, Algeria and Tunisia.

Arafat has military headquarters in North Yemen, also known as the Yemen Arab Republic. Arafat also maintains a political headquarters in Tunisia.

Thatcher visits Belfast

BELFAST — Ringed by armed detectives, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher paid a six-hour Christmas visit to this strife-torn province Friday and declared that Britain and the Irish Republic are determined to beat the IRA.

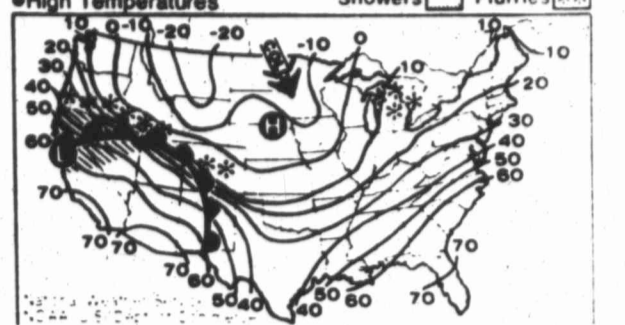

In London, police for the third straight day interrogated an unidentified Irish Republican Army sympathizer held in raids after the outlawed organization last Saturday bombed Harrods department store, killing 5 people and injuring 95.

Although police sources professed optimism in the hunt for the IRA unit responsible, Scotland Yard police headquarters reported no new leads.

Mrs. Thatcher was nearly mobbed by enthusiastic shoppers in the mainly Protestant town of Newtownards before going on to tour British army checkpoints in the "bandit county" of Armagh, an IRA guerrilla stronghold.

Bomber wheel catches on fire

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The nose wheel of a B-52 bomber caught fire Friday during a full-scale exercise simulating takeoffs at Fairchild Air Force Base, base officials said. No injuries were reported.

The nose wheel of the lead plane in the exercise caught fire, possibly from leaking hydraulic fluid, officials said.

Firefighters from nearby Spokane International Airport rushed to the scene to assist, and were seen leaving about 30 minutes after the blaze was reported.

Base officials announced a news conference later this afternoon to release further details.

Spokane County sheriff's deputies shut off traffic to the base area, including U.S. 2, when the fire was reported.

Getting Ready in Pasadena

Lining Up the Rose Parade

60 flower-covered floats costing from $12,000 to $40,000. The floats are entered by cities, civic groups or businesses. Since the number of floats is limited, there is a long waiting list of groups that would like to sponsor one. Miss Piggy and Kermit the Frog were on a float that led the 1982 parade.

Over 20 million fresh flowers. Seeds, pods, grasses and leaves also decorate the floats. Most flowers come from California, but some are imported from Hawaii and Thailand.

23 marching bands from all over the country. Bands compete for the honor of being invited. Each band must raise the money to pay for its travel and other expenses.

1 Grand Marshal. Entertainer Danny Kaye will lead this year's parade. The theme of the parade is "A Salute to the Volunteer." Danny Kaye was selected because he gives a lot of his time to help others. He is pictured above with a young girl.

230 dressed-up horses and their riders. The horses must be trained to be used to large crowds. There are Appaloosas, Palominos, Arabians and many other breeds in the parade.

1 Rose Parade queen. She is selected from nearly 1,000 senior high school or college students in the Pasadena area. The queen also has a seven-member court. Suzanne Gillaspie was the 1983 queen.

800 volunteers. These members of the Tournament of Roses Association give many hours to put on the parade. The members wear white when they are helping out so they will stand out in the crowd.

Hopping John

Some people believe eating Hopping John on New Year's Day will bring you good luck throughout the year. Rookie Cookie is serving it to all her friends.

- You'll need:
- 4 slices bacon
  - small onion, chopped
  - 2 cans black-eyed peas
  - 1/2 cup uncooked rice
  - 1 cup boiling water

What to do:

1. Have an adult help you fry bacon. Remove bacon and crumble; cook onion in bacon grease.
2. Mix bacon, onion, peas with their juice, rice and water in a large pot.
3. Cover and cook over low heat for 20 minutes. Stir every now and then.

How the Floats Are Put Together

Floats in early-day parades were a lot simpler. Horses-drawn carriages were used in the first parade in 1890.

1. Designing the floats begins in March when the parade's theme is chosen. Designs must be OK'd by a committee, so that no two are alike.
2. A scale model is built from the artist's and engineer's drawings.
3. A car, jeep or truck body is stripped down to serve as the base. It is rebuilt with space for two drivers. Since the engines heat up at the slow 2 1/2 mile-per-hour parade pace, an extra-large radiator and spare water tank must be added.
4. A welder builds the float's form using steel rods covered with chicken wire.
5. A plastic coating is sprayed over the wire to form a surface on which to glue the flowers.
6. After the float is completely shaped, it is painted with the colors of the flowers that will cover it.
7. Over 2,000 "petal pushers," or volunteers, glue the flowers on the floats during the week before the parade. Hardier blossoms such as mums are pasted on first. Some flowers may be strung on wires. The delicate flowers are put on only a few hours before the parade begins. These are put in tubes filled with water and a kind of chemical that keeps them fresh.

Most drivers of floats see where they are going through a peephole in the flowers. Sometimes a third person sits in the front and gives directions to the drivers by phone. The moving parts of a float often are controlled by computers. The above float, "The Beauty of the Orient," won last year's Grand Prize.

Nine children die in 2 separate fires

By The Associated Press
A man and five children died today in an early morning fire that injured 11 other people in a house on Chicago's South Side, while four children died in a house fire in Pine Bluff, Ark.

The Chicago blaze was in a two-story brick house where a space heater had been improperly connected to a gas line during a 19-below-zero cold wave, officials said. Initially, the fire department had reported that wood was being burned in the kitchen, but authorities later said that was not true.

As many as 18 people from two families lived in the house, he said.

Nine suits, including one fireman, suffered smoke inhalation or burns, said hospital officials. Also injured were one teen-ager and a 4-month-old baby.

In Pine Bluff, firefighter Bobby Williams said an initial investigation indicated the children, who died of smoke inhalation, couldn't escape from the rear of the house because objects were stacked up against an exit. The bodies of three girls were found in a closet and a boy's body was found outside the closet, Williams said.

The fire early today was confined to the front of the house. The cause of the blaze had not been determined.

Manges loses ruling

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A federal judge Friday ordered South Texas rancher-oilman Clinton Manges to pay about $34 million to a Seattle bank that lost hundreds of millions of dollars in bad energy loans.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon settled part of a complicated exchange of lawsuits between Manges and the Seafirst Bank of Seattle. The bank was purchased last summer by San Francisco's Bank of America because of the bad loans.

Shannon ordered Manges, his children and the companies involved to pay Seafirst the balance of the principal on five loans involved in the litigation, according to Barbara Vellermoe, Shannon's law clerk.

Mustangs, Tide tangle today

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The numbers read 1,503 yards, 5.5 per carry and 16 touchdowns, which is about what Linnie Patrick expected — but in one season, not four.

Four years ago, when he came to the University of Alabama as the state's two-time Class 4A MVP, his three-year numbers at Walker County High in Jasper, Ala., were 5,045 yards, 9.6 per carry and 47 touchdowns. And when college recruiters talked about running backs they mentioned Herschel Walker and Linnie Patrick in the same breath — or, at worst, consecutive breaths.

"It hasn't been anything like I expected it to be," Patrick said Thursday as he prepared for his Alabama swan song in Saturday's Sun Bowl against sixth-ranked Southern Methodist as the Crimson Tide's third-string tailback. "I expected some glory, better success than I've had. I expected that I'd at least make All-America, which was one of my goals."

Instead, Patrick has had trouble cracking the starting lineup because of (1) a series of injuries and (2) a run-in with the late Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant that got him suspended for a couple of games as a sophomore.

Sun Bowl
El Paso, Texas Dec. 24
Southern Methodist vs. Alabama

But he has given the Alabama faithful enough glimpses of what might have been, enough exciting runs to make them realize that the talent has always been there. Like the 31-yard gallop to set up the winning touchdown against Auburn in 1981 — Bryant's record-breaking 35th coaching victory — on which he broke six tackles and which the Bear called "one of the best runs I've ever seen."

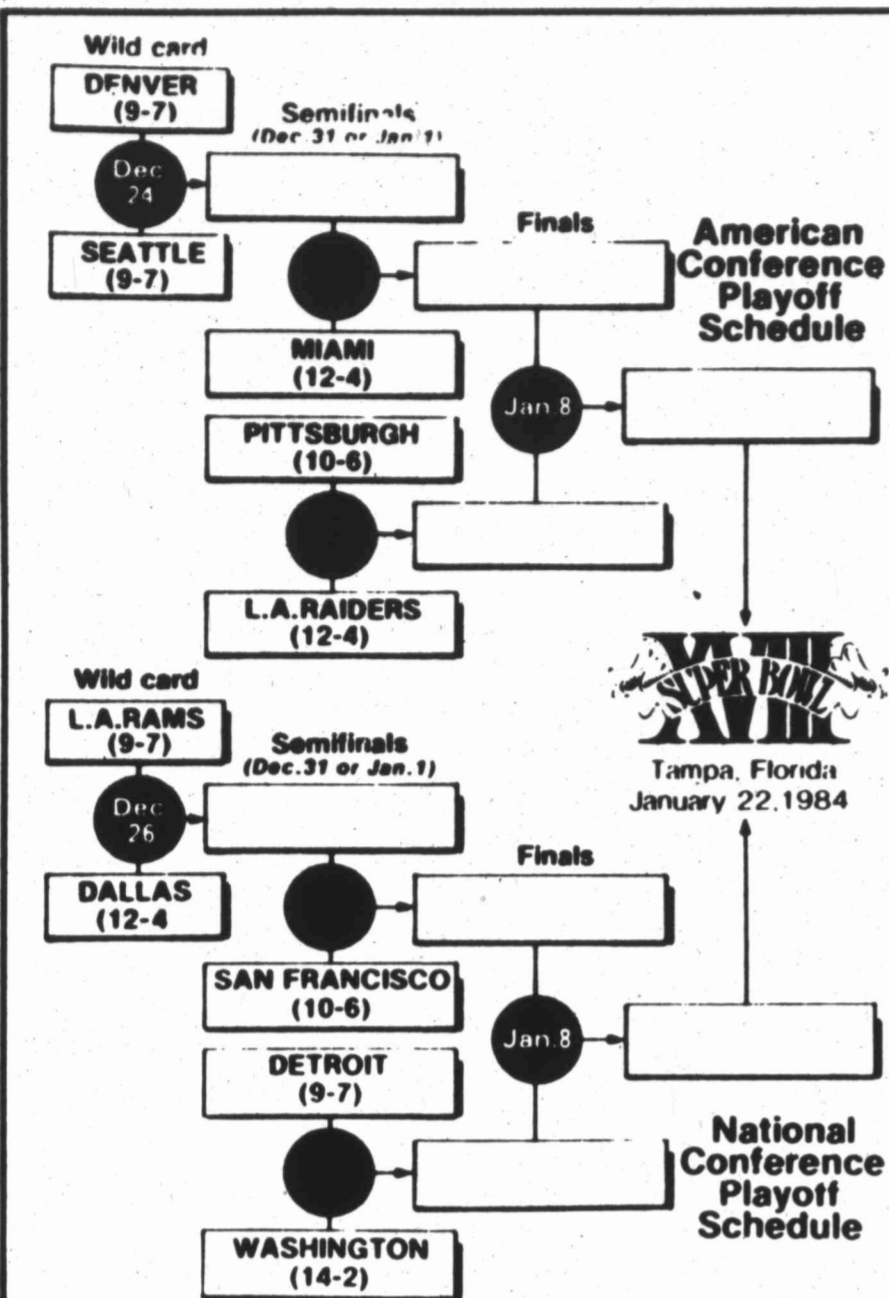

As a freshman, Patrick had a couple of 100-yard games and was Alabama's third best rusher with 361 yards, but a whopping 7.2

average. "I didn't get an opportunity to run the ball like I did in high school," he said. "In one game I carried nine times for 109 yards and I was 11-for-121 in the next game, but the rest of the season I didn't see the ball. I don't know why, but I don't think it was intentional. The other teams were keying on me, and in the Wishbone, the defense can determine who carries the ball."

Patrick says he "can't reflect back on my sophomore year too good because that was the year I got into my little trouble."

With the team playing a road game, Patrick failed to show up for treatment of an injury. He was suspended for a couple of weeks and had to move out of the athletic dorm.

"I guess I wasn't thinking," he said. "I didn't think I'd get into any trouble. The press made it seem like I had a fight with Coach Bryant, but it wasn't anything like that. It was just a coach doing what he had to do to a player."

Broncos, Seahawks begin 10-team Super Bowl quest

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Coach Chuck Knox and his counterpart at Denver, Dan Reeves, disagreed on who would start at quarterback for the Broncos when the teams square off in the National Football League playoff opener.

When asked on Monday who he thought would start for Denver in the Christmas Eve American Football Conference wild-card game at the Kingdome, Knox replied: "John Elway."

On Thursday, injured veteran Steve DeBerg was activated and Reeves named the seven-year veteran as his starter.

AFC Wild Card

"I can certainly see the reasoning," Knox said when he was informed of Reeves' decision. "Dan Reeves wants to go with a more experienced quarterback. They had won four games in a row with him prior to his injury."

DeBerg suffered a separated left shoulder against the Seahawks in a game here on Nov. 6. He left the Kingdome grimacing in pain with his arm in a sling.

Although he still has a pin in his left shoulder, DeBerg has been throwing in practice for three weeks.

Elway, a 1982 Stanford All-America and the 1983 NFL draft's No. 1 selection, has struggled in his first NFL season and threw four interceptions in zero-degree weather in a 48-17 loss in Kansas City last weekend. That defeat cost Denver the home-field advantage against the Seahawks.

"I'm tickled to death as a rookie just to get into the playoffs," said Elway. "My philosophy has always been that you don't lose a starting job because of injuries," said Reeves.

"I would much rather start than have to come into the game off the bench when we're behind," DeBerg said.

Seattle earned the right to get into the playoffs for the first time in the franchise's eight-year history last Sunday by beating New England 24-6 in the Kingdome.

The Seahawks and Denver each ended with 9-7 records. The AFC West rivals split two regular-season meetings in 1983, with Seattle winning 27-19 in the game in which DeBerg was injured and the Broncos taking a rematch in Denver 38-27 on Nov. 20.

In the game in Denver, third-string rookie Gary Kubiak filled in for Elway, who was in bed with the flu that day, and quarterbacked the Broncos' victory.

Despite his glowing collegiate statistics, Elway has struggled in his first NFL season and Denver is just 2-6 with him as a starter. DeBerg has directed the Broncos to a 6-1 mark.

Seattle is in the playoffs after three straight losing seasons.

McIlhenny taking last collegiate snaps

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The football career of the third leading passer in Southern Methodist history is nearing its end.

"Unless I play in some touch football league next year," Lance McIlhenny said with a grin Wednesday.

For a quarterback who doesn't live by the forward pass, McIlhenny is in some pretty distinguished company. With 3,512 yards, he is third on SMU's career pass yardage list behind a couple of strong-armed slingers, Chuck Hixson and Mike Ford, and also trails the same pair in touchdown passes.

"I'm only up there because I've played four years," said McIlhenny, who has led the Mustangs to a 34-4-1 record since he became a starter in the seventh game of his freshman season. The 34 victories is the most of any quarterback who ever played in the Southwest Conference.

"He's a winner who can lead winners," Coach Bobby Collins said following a windy practice session for sixth-ranked SMU's Sun Bowl date with Alabama on Saturday. "Sometimes his athletic ability is downplayed, but that's not true. He's an athlete. He's 6-foot, 190 pounds and he does what he has to do. I think he's the best option quarterback who ever played the game. I think he's the type of player a lot of pro teams could use, the kind you like to have on your squad."

McIlhenny, the son of former SMU and pro player Don McIlhenny, doesn't expect to be drafted, although he thinks his style of quarterbacking is becoming more prevalent in the pros.

"I think quarterbacks like Washington's Joe Theismann who take a three-step drop and roll out with a moving pocket are coming into play more," he said. "If so, I have a chance."

"Right now, I haven't had anybody talk to me. I'm not real fired up about it (pro ball), but I'll give 100 percent if I do get a chance."

McIlhenny, a Dallas native, is all fired up about playing Alabama because "I almost went there. It was between Alabama, SMU and Arkansas. It seemed like everybody wanted to play for Bear Bryant. But I felt Dallas would be a better place to stay for whatever I do in the future."

BYU rallies for 21-17 in Holiday Bowl

SAN DIEGO (AP) — All-American quarterback Steve Young, who set a bevy of passing records this season, combined with running back Eddie Stinnett on a flea-flicker that resulted in Young catching a 14-yard touchdown pass with 23 seconds left to give ninth-ranked Brigham Young a 21-17 victory over Missouri in the Holiday Bowl football game Friday night.

Young, suffering one of his poorest nights of the season, rallied his team 94 yards in the last four minutes of play after the BYU defense shut down a Missouri scoring threat.

Eric Drain, Missouri's workhorse fullback, failed on a fourth-and-one run with 3:57 left, and Young and the Cougars took over.

Young completed six passes during the hectic final drive, the last an 11-yarder to Casey Tiumalu on fourth down that gave Brigham Young a first down at the Missouri 16.

The drive appeared to stall, however, when Young was sacked on the next play.

Then, lightning struck. Stinnett took a pitchout from Young, ran toward the right sideline, then stopped and threw back to Young on the left flank.

An adept runner, Young used a couple of fancy moves to break away from tacklers and then dove into the end zone for the winning score.

The victory gave Brigham Young, champions of the Western Athletic Conference, an 11-1 record this season.

Young threw for one touchdown and ran for another, but was intercepted three times and sacked on five occasions. His chief tormentors were Missouri defensive ends Bobby Bell and Taft Sales. Bell was credited with four sacks and he pressured Young into an interception that set up Missouri's first TD. Sales intercepted a pass, recovered a fumble and had a sack.

Missouri, which finished 7-5, drove 80 yards early in the fourth quarter behind reserve quarterback Warren Seitz for a 17-14 lead.

TIGER ON THE LOOSE—University of Missouri running back Ron Floyd drags a nine yard gain and a first down during Missouri's first touchdown drive in a first quarter of the Holiday Bowl.

USFL jolts NFL supremacy over pro football

By The Associated Press
Pro football became a two-party contest in 1983, and the older member of the pair lost some of its lustre of infallibility.

After nearly a decade without competition for the fans' dollar, after nearly half a season without games in 1982 due to a players' strike, the National Football League found a new league and fewer fans waiting when 1983 arrived.

The United States Football League made a big splash before it ever played a game with the signing of undergraduate Herschel Walker, the Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Georgia.

It was one of the few highlights of the USFL's inaugural season. For most of its 18 weeks, empty seats and low television ratings were commonplace. Still, when its first season ended, it expanded, adding six franchises.

As the year began, the NFL engaged in a one-time-only "Super Bowl Tournament," an offshoot of the strike settlement in which an unprecedented 16 of the league's 28 teams participated in the playoffs.

For the first time in NFL history, teams with losing records (Detroit and Cleveland) were in postseason play. The Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Raiders each finished 8-1 for the league's best record and survived the first round. The New York Jets beat LA in the second round, only to be shut out 14-0 by Miami in the AFC title game. Washington, with John Riggins picking up steam each week, defeated Minnesota in the second round and routed Dallas 31-17 for the NFC championship.

And on Jan. 30 — the latest date ever for an NFL championship — with Riggins setting a rushing record of 186 yards, the Redskins defeated Miami 27-17 in Super Bowl XVII for their first league title since 1962.

Although fans stayed away en masse when the 1982 season resumed, the NFL was confident they'd be back in '83. But in the six months before the opening of training camp, the league was stung several times.

The Los Angeles Raiders, who successfully challenged the league by moving from Oakland in 1982, and the LA Memorial Coliseum won nearly $50 million in damages from an Los Angeles jury. The league appealed.

Baltimore quarterback Art Schlichter admitted to running up gambling debts of $350,000. He was suspended by Commissioner Pete Rozelle for the season.

Four players — defensive end Ross Browner and fullback Pete Johnson of Cincinnati, nose tackle Greg Stenrick of Houston and linebacker E.J. Junior of St. Louis — were suspended for four games by Rozelle because of their involvement with cocaine.

Safety Tony Peters of the Washington Redskins pleaded guilty to taking part in a cocaine sale, received a suspended sentence in court and was suspended for at least one season by Rozelle.

The Dallas Cowboys were mentioned in a drug probe and "America's Team" became known derisively as "South America's Team."

According to published reports, Leonard Rose, owner of the Philadelphia Eagles, ran up hundreds of thousands of dollars in gambling debts. He also engaged in a costly battle to retain ownership of the franchise.

The USFL, scoffed at because of its "offseason" format, emerged with television and player contracts in hand. Along with some NFL has-beens and never-wases were a smattering of rookies projected as pro stars no matter where they played —

Kelvin Bryant, Anthony Carter, Truaine Johnson, David Greenwood and Craig James. And as the year progressed the USFL added a few NFL stars for the future — Kris Collinsworth, Joe Cribbs, Dan Ross, Doug Williams and Gary Barbaro.

During the year the leagues wound up briefly in court when Arkansas running back Gary Anderson signed with Tampa Bay of the USFL and then San Diego of the NFL. The court ruled Anderson belonged to Tampa Bay.

And in December, the two leagues collided again when the USFL's Houston Gamblers and NFL's Detroit Lions each insisted they had signed Billy Sims, a running back with the Lions, to a five-year contract.

The USFL gained or lost massive credibility — depending on one's outlook — with the signing of Walker. The new league, like the NFL, had pledged to refrain from raiding college campuses. Then it pulled a reverse, Commissioner Chet Simmons saying Walker was a special case. Much of the publicity was negative — and Walker's impact was minimal. After some big crowds turned out to watch him early in the season, ticket sales and ratings dropped precipitously.

On July 18, before a paid crowd of 46,535 in 75,123-seat Mile High Stadium in Denver, the Michigan Panthers defeated the Philadelphia Stars 24-22 for the first USFL title. In November, Toronto ended Edmonton's five-year domination of the Canadian Football League, defeating British Columbia 18-17 to win the Grey Cup.

Stanford quarterback John Elway, whom the USFL had wooed hard, long and unsuccessfully, was the NFL's No. 1 draft choice, by Baltimore. But he strong-armed the Colts into trading him to Denver and became a million-dollar-a-year rookie, to the consternation of some lesser-paid veterans. He was benched early in the season but later regained the starting job and led Denver into the playoffs.

Terry Bradshaw missed all but one game as Pittsburgh's quarterback and Dan Fouts missed most of San Diego's. Not one regular quarterback made it through the season without some bench time. Still, the offense took control with some unprecedented numbers, and that — along with the strike's aftermath, the drugs, the USFL and other factors — was blamed for a dip in NFL attendance and ratings.

As Franco Harris closed in on Jim Brown's all-time rushing record, the 47-year-old Brown said — not quite seriously — he'd make a comeback to keep it. George Blanda's only response was congratulatory when Jan Stenerud broke his all-time field-goal record.

Seattle, with Chuck Knox its new head coach, made its playoff debut, leaving hard-luck New Orleans the only team never to have a winning season or a postseason game. Other new head coaches had mixed results. John Robinson's Los Angeles Rams made into the playoffs, thanks in part to record running back rookie Eric Dickerson. But Kay Stephenson's Buffalo Bills, John Mackovic's Kansas City Chiefs, Bill Parcells' New York Giants, Marion Campbell's Atlanta Falcons and Joe Walton's Jets failed to do so. The Jets did make a move elsewhere, though — to New Jersey, starting in 1984.

Ed Biles was fired as Houston's head coach during the season, his interim replacement, Chuck Studley, quit at the end of the year, and Bart Starr, a hero as Green Bay's quarterback during 1956-71, was fired after nine years as their coach. And as the new year approached, two-time Coach of the Year Joe Gibbs and his Redskins set their sights on another Super Bowl.

Howe files for bankruptcy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Howe, the Los Angeles Dodgers' cocaine-troubled pitcher who has been suspended for the 1984 season, filed for bankruptcy Friday.

Howe and his wife, Cindy, who live in suburban Agoura and have an infant daughter, listed $340,000 in debts and $267,000 in assets in the bankruptcy petition filed in federal court.

The petition said Howe earned $325,000 last season. Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn last Thursday announced that Howe was being suspended without pay for 1984. Kuhn said Howe had been tested three times for cocaine use last month, and each time the tests revealed the Dodger reliever was using the drug.

Dodgers owner Peter O'Malley has said the organization will stand behind Howe, and Atanasio said it was possible Howe can get a loan from the club if the commissioner's office will allow it.

In the bankruptcy petition, Howe listed $71,000 in fines to the Dodgers, although a spokesman for the National League team said it was only $54,000.

Howe, 25, first acknowledged his drug problem last winter and spent a month in a rehabilitation center. Last May, he missed a home game and admitted that he had resumed cocaine use. At the time, he was among the major league leaders in saves and hadn't allowed an earned run.

Man pleads guilty to killing jockey

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — A Brooklyn man has pleaded guilty in the shooting death of a jockey who was found fatally wounded on the shoulder of the New Jersey Turnpike last month, authorities said.

Ronny B. Layne, 26, entered the plea to a charge of felony murder before Superior Court Judge Paul R. Kramer on Thursday.

By entering the plea, Layne avoided a murder trial that could have resulted in a death penalty verdict, said Burlington County Prosecutor Stephen Raymond. Layne faces a life prison term with a 30 year minimum before parole when he is sentenced on Jan. 20, Raymond said.

Jockey Eric Beitia, 21, of Queens, N.Y., was found beside the turnpike in Mansfield Township on Nov. 21 with his hands tied and a bullet in his head. He died a week later at Burlington County Memorial Hospital.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Steve Johnson came off the bench to score 13 of his 19 points in the third quarter and pace the Kansas City Kings to a 126-122 National Basketball Association win Friday night over the San Antonio Spurs.

Forward Eddie Johnson fired in 24 points and Mark Olberding and reserve Mike Woodson added 20 points each to give the Kings their eighth straight victory at home.

Steve Johnson scored nine of Kansas City's first 13 points in the third quarter as the Kings went on to outscore the Spurs 36-22 in the period. A basket by Woodson at the 8:04 mark of the third quarter put the Kings on top for good, 73-72.

Kansas City, 13-13, led by as many as 12 points early in the fourth quarter but had to fight off a late San Antonio rally.

A basket and free throw by Artis Gilmore with 42 seconds left in the game brought the Spurs to within one point, 121-120. Olberding answered with a basket and free throw after he was fouled by John Lucas with 30 seconds left to put the game away.

Teeth marks taken of murder suspect

RICHMOND (AP) — A judge ordered a woman charged with killing her husband to let officials take an impression of her teeth to determine whether they match a bite mark on the slain man's body. State District Judge Reagan Clark on Wednesday granted a prosecutor's motion to make molds from the teeth of Frances Turner, a 38-year-old Bay City woman. Mrs. Turner has previously refused to make the impressions. Robert Turner, 46, was found dead March 18 at a rest stop south of Richmond, 25 miles southwest of Houston. He was stabbed more than 60 times and bitten on the back of his shoulder. The state is seeking the death penalty for Mrs. Turner, who is charged with capital murder. Her trial is set for Jan. 4.

Jews protest denial of Leo Frank pardon

ATLANTA (AP) — A Jewish group Friday called on the Georgia Legislature to "rectify" the state parole board's denial of a posthumous pardon for Leo Frank, a Jewish businessman who was convicted of murder and lynched in 1915. But a legislator said the General Assembly has no power to overturn decisions of the Board of Pardons and Paroles. The board Thursday rejected a request from three Jewish groups that Frank be pardoned for the 1913 murder of 13-year-old Mary Phagan. The ruling said new testimony from a witness who broke a 70-year silence was not enough to prove that Frank was innocent. Theodore Ellenoff, chairman of the board of governors of the American Jewish Committee in New York, issued a statement calling on the Legislature "to pass a bill to rectify this grave miscarriage of justice." "If there is any serious doubt about Frank's guilt — and the statement last year of surviving witness Alonzo Mann at the very least creates a serious doubt — Frank should have been exonerated," Ellenoff said. But state Rep. Al Burrows, whose district is in Cobb County where Miss Phagan lived, said the Legislature does not have such power. "All of the power of the parole board is granted under the (state) constitution," he said. "The governor can't reverse or we can't. At least I don't know of any way. "We could pass a resolution asking them to revive the case, but it would be advisory only," he said.

Miss Phagan, who worked at Frank's downtown Atlanta pencil factor, was beaten and strangled and her body was dumped in the factory basement April 26, 1913.
