How's that? Clean-up

Q. Is the city going to clean up the three or four lots around 15th and Virginia that have construction material on them?

According to Public Works Director Tom Decell, the dirt and asphalt will be moved off and used to beef up and build streets and the concrete will be put to use at Moss Creek Lake, "hopefully before the end of the summer."

Calendar: Meetings

MONDAY
• The O'Neal-Kunkle DAV chapter No. 47 and auxiliary will meet at 7 p.m. at the FWF Hall on Driver Road.

• The Rev. Victor Sedinger will host the first of several Holy Week Services at noon in the First United Methodist Church. Sharon Andrews will provide the music.

TUESDAY
• The Washington Elementary PTA will meet at 3:15 p.m. at the school.

• The Rev. Jerry Kelly will host the second in a series of Holy Week Services at noon in the First United Methodist Church. John Wilson will provide the music.

WEDNESDAY
• The Rev. Bob Bonnington will host the third in a series of Holy Week services at the First United Methodist Church at noon. The Big Spring Federal Camp will provide the music.
• A stickhorse rodeo is scheduled in the Coahoma Elementary school gym at 9:30 a.m.

• CLEAN, a local clean-up campaign, will host a meeting at Big Spring High School during the last 30 minutes of school for students interested in working for the program.

Tops on TV: Specials

Two Easter season specials are scheduled tonight. "The Ten Commandments" airs at 6 p.m. on channel 2 and stars Charlton Heston and Anne Baxter. "Jesus of Nazareth" airs at 7 p.m. on channel 13. Robert Powell portrays Jesus. In part two of a three part series, Richard Nixon talks about Watergate on "60 Minutes" at 6 p.m. on channel 7.

At the movies: Thriller

"Friday the 13th, The Final Chapter" comes to the Cinema with "Police Academy." The Ritz is showing "Up the Creek" and "Where the Boys Are."

Outside: Cool

Highs in the mid 70s are forecast today with northerly winds, 10 to 20 miles per hour. By tonight, look for fair skies and lows in the mid-30s. By Monday, look for highs in the mid-70s.

Off the wall: Big Orange

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frank Sinatra, who extolled the Big Apple in "New York, New York," will soon rhapsodize about the Big Orange in "L.A. Is a Lady."

Some time in April Sinatra will record the song at Qwest Records for producer Quincy Jones. The melody, inspired by the upcoming Summer Olympics, was written by Marilyn and Alan Bergman.

It will be the second tune this year about Los Angeles. Steve Lawrence introduced "We're in L.A." just before Valentine's Day on NBC's "Tonight" show.

State repeals evolution ruling

EL PASO (AP) — The Texas Board of Education, in a move heralded as significant as the Scopes Monkey Trial, repealed a rule Saturday restricting the teaching of evolution in the state's schoolbooks.

The 10-year-old rule, which the textbook industry said influenced biology education nationwide, required references to evolution to "identify it as only one of several explanations of the origins of humankind."

Evolutionists were jubilant over the board's action, but creationists played down its significance.

"We believe this means a tremendous change in the way textbooks are written and published," said Michael Hudson, Texas coordinator of People for the American Way, a national anti-censorship group.

"I would claim and assert to you that this ruling, in ranking of importance, is on the same level as the Scopes Trial," he said, referring to the 1925 case in which a Tennessee teacher was convicted of violating a state law against the teaching of evolution.

Creationists characterized the rule's repeal Saturday as a "moral defeat," but said the board's action would not change the way textbooks are written or the manner in which children are taught.

The board's repeal came one day after it agreed to take the emergency vote on the issue, which has stirred interest nationwide.

Textbook industry officials say that because the state's $80 million schoolbook market is so large, publishers tailor their books for

Texas and other states must accept that version.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox issued an opinion last month that the 1974 rule was unconstitutional, and American Way had threatened a lawsuit if the board did not repeal it.

The education panel also voted Saturday to amend its guidelines on general textbook content to include a stipulation that all theories in textbooks "be clearly distinguished from fact and presented in an objective educational manner."

According to one supporter of the now-defunct rule, Steven Parker, that action leaves "the door wide open to the creationism theory."

"It is beyond the realm of science to explain how the world got here. The creationist movement will continue to make its way into the classroom. The war is far from over," Parker said.

Hudson, however, said the change would "have to mean a new way of writing textbooks. All books now carry a disclaimer that says evolu-

Library ghosts

Waldo, crowding haunt shelves

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

A friendly ghost named Waldo walks the overcrowded halls at the Howard County Library.

The well-read ghost is just one of the memories in the library, which houses more than 56,488 items in 12,000 square feet. Librarian Judith Gray and Rebecca Taylor talked about some of the library's history during a Silver Tea held Saturday in recognition of National Library Week.

The friendly ghost "is probably a figment of our imaginations," Miss Taylor said. But wandering footsteps, slamming doors and sounds of a barking puppy remain unexplained by library employees.

The library is housed in what was once the post office, and the ceilings are lined with catwalks used by postal inspectors. There is a quiet basement where library employees have found themselves followed by muffled footsteps.

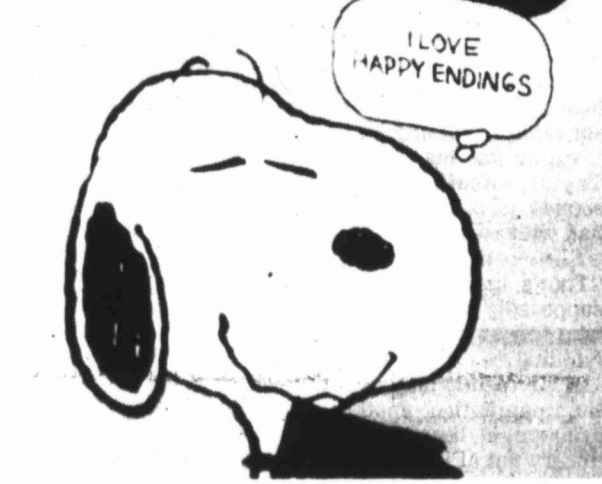

When the employees stop walking, the footsteps behind them stop. Anyone calling out, "Is anybody there?" is likely to receive no answer.

Miss Taylor remembers that she and other employees were standing together after hours in the library several years ago when they heard someone walk from a shelf of books to the main counter.

"All of us looked up and we could see nothing. The librarian stepped on the floor (in the area where they

State officials to explain arsenic probe

By JIM BROWN
Staff Writer

KNOTT — State Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, has arranged a meeting at the community center here Tuesday at 3 p.m. to discuss the continuing high levels of arsenic contamination in area water wells and soil samples.

Representatives from the state departments of health, water resources and agriculture and an animal toxicity expert from Texas A&M University will be present to answer resident's questions.

"I want the experts to sit down with members of the community and discuss what the health hazards are, the current situation, and what the alternatives are while answering any question that the people in community might have," Shaw said.

"I want feedback from the community before planning the next step," he said. "Knott residents need to be updated on what research is being done into the cause and how to deal with the current contamination," Shaw said.

Arsenic was first discovered in the area last December when several cattle died from poisoning by the chemical.

State officials have not yet determined the cause of the contamination, which exceeds minimum safety levels determined by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

"It's my personal opinion that's its going to be sometime, if ever, before we're able to pin down what the cause of the contamination is," Shaw said.

"I hope that this meeting will help Knott residents decide what the best course for them is — whether they need a purifier for their water system — and current health hazards to them and their livestock," Shaw said.

"Several theories have been stated concerning both the source of contamination and the amount of danger to the community," he said.

Missing Stanton baby girl returned to foster parents

By JIM BROWN
Staff Writer

MIDLAND — Twenty-one-month-old Solidad Martinez has been returned to her court-appointed foster home here after being taken by her natural father last week during a visitation period.

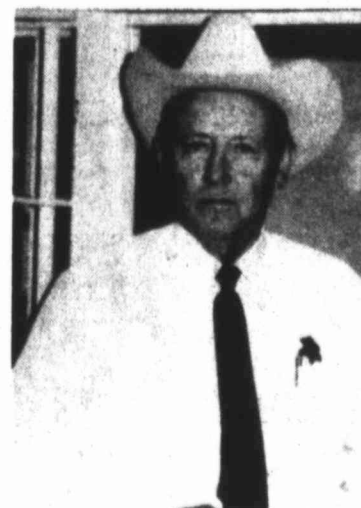

The baby, a victim of child abuse in 1982 at the hands of her mother, has been missing along with her parents since April 7.

Reading from a prepared statement, Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders today said, "At 7 p.m. on Saturday, April 7, I was handed a writ of attachment signed by District Judge James Gregg (of Big Spring) ordering me to seize Solidad Martinez...from Jesus and Juanna Martinez and return her to the Alberto Loya's (the foster parents)."

"When I was handed the writ, the baby was in the hands of her biological parents...who live on a ranch in Tarzan, located in Martin County."

"There existed a dangerous situation in removing the child at that time from the Martinezes and placing her back in the Loya's home. It was my duty and responsibility alone to determine the best way to do this. My utmost concern was the safety of the child."

"At 2:30 p.m. Friday 13, the Martinez baby was brought to my office at the Martin County Courthouse by her natural parents and surrendered to me."

DAN SAUNDERS
...returned child

Saunders ended the statement by saying a deputy and he "immediately transported the baby girl to Midland and the Loya family. The baby appeared to be fine."

When asked if he would comment on the dangerous situation that existed, Saunders replied, "No, I don't feel that it would be in the best interest of the child."

Saunders said he would not comment either on the circumstances surrounding the baby's disappearance and return to her foster parents. "I don't think I should comment on that until I confer with the district attorney," he said.

On Thursday, the Martinezes and their attorney filed two motions, one seeking to modify a current order placing the child with foster parents, and a second asking that Gregg appoint an investigator to make a study into the case and set a hearing, Saunders said.

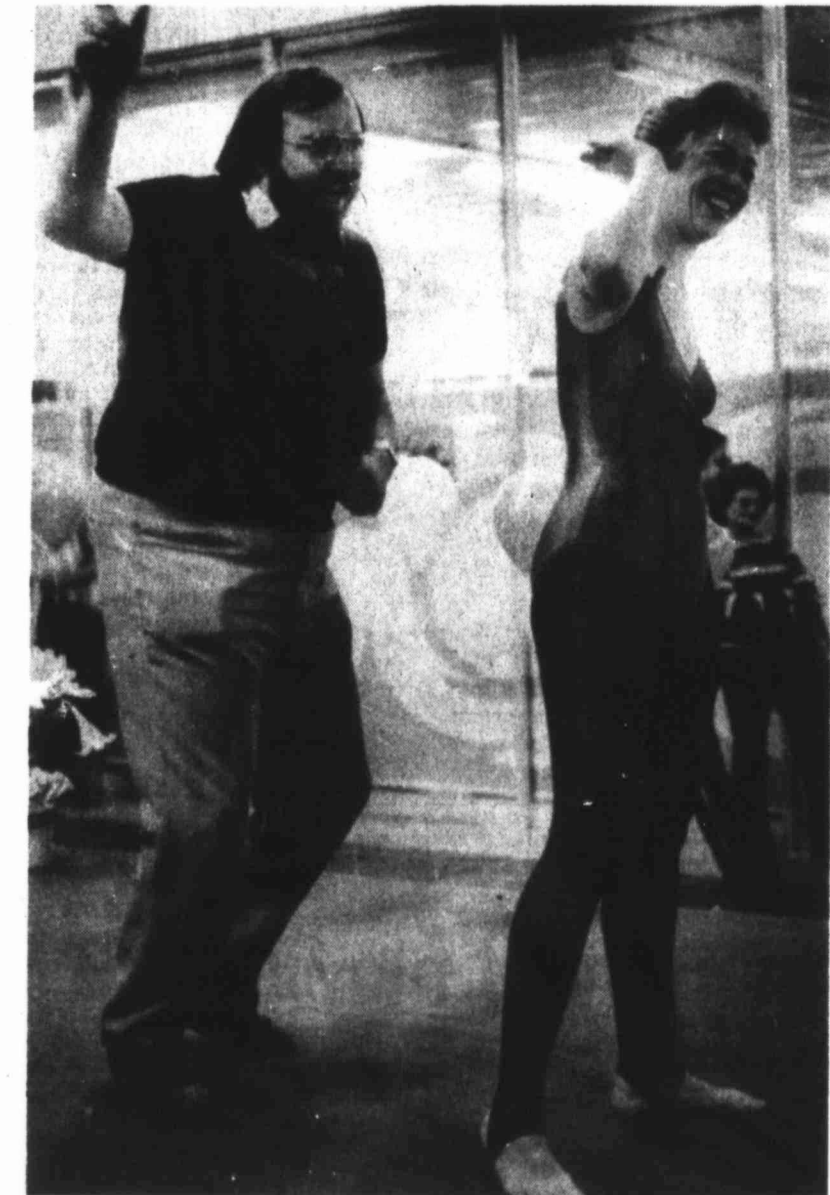

The study, to be conducted by the state Department of Human Resources, would determine whether the child should be returned to the Martinezes at this time, Saunders said.

Saunders said Gregg declined to sign the motions. Gregg could not be contacted Saturday for comment.

Saunders said he was first called into the case when Big Spring police called him after the girl was brought to the Malone-Hogan Hospital emergency room in 1982. She had suffered a concussion, five fractured ribs, multiple bruises on her face and what appeared to be cigarette burns under her arms and in her groin area.

Juanna Martinez was later convicted of felony injury to a child and sentenced to three years in prison.

"Jesus Martinez will be allowed to retain visitation rights to the child as outlined in the original custody order issued by Gregg," Saunders said.

Pampered pets

Couteux kennel caters to cross-section of canines

DENTON (AP) — The stories are told to elicit loathsome replies from the listener. It's usually told somewhat like this: Wealthy, elderly person dies ... leaves riches to pet ... relatives left out of will ... relatives contest will ... relatives lose.

It's an old story of the extravagance unfolded on mere pets for reasons understood only by the pet owners themselves. Although many think such behavior is exclusive to an unfeeling, wealthy few, businesses are springing up in the Metroplex that cater to the whims of pets.

And there's a trend even among the bourgeoisie that suggests more and more people pamper their dearest darlings with things other than kitty victuals or doggie milk bones.

"We have both (rich and middle class clients)," said Dorothy Adams who works at D-FW Pet Pleasers Inn, a pet hotel in Grapevine that sits on 10 acres of pasture land just west of Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport. Because of the inn's proximity to the airport, much of the clientele are airline employees who, while they're away, want their pets to have the same attention they get at home, Ms. Adams said.

Then there are people who want their "Fou Fou" indulged with the works they probably don't get at home.

"We have a Dallas oilman who leaves his afghan here and tells us, 'if there's anything she wants, she gets it,'" Ms. Adams said. The "works" includes hot oil treatments, whirlpool baths, gourmet meals such as Beef Wellington and steak Diane, and anything else the dog "tells" them, Ms. Adams said.

A North Dallas woman brings her two mixed-breed dogs to the inn when she leaves town. The dogs are left with a five-page instruction sheet giving directions down to the most minute detail.

"Please have the entire staff read the instructions," the sheet states. "Give her toys, she's teething again ... put their blue blankets down ... make sure they are blue blankets only ... don't let the dogs play with any other (dog's) toys ... don't let any other dog play with their toys," the owner wrote in the instructions. "And keep their toys separate."

"You wouldn't believe some of the notes we get, but that's what we specialize in — pampering pets," said Ms. Adams who admits she can't always keep up with such details as to what toys belong to which dog or cat.

The North Dallas woman apparently wasn't reluctant to let go of $700 for the monthlong stay her pets were treated to. It was one of three visits she has given to her pets while she left town, Ms. Adams said.

Another woman who brought her dog in for a stay kept telling the dog that it needn't worry because it was on its way to summer camp, Ms. Adams said.

There are only a few of the clients Ms. Adams caters to. They're the people who don't want or can't take their family pet with them yet they don't want to leave them in an ordinary kennel. The fees range from $8 per day and go as high as the pet owner wants to pay.

Although the usual outdoor kennel runs are available, this hotel offers roomettes styled in French, Spanish and oriental decor. The menu can range from the simplest, ordinary meal of dry dog or cat food to the extravagant that would tempt the most zealous gourmet.

Besides the accommodations and meals offered for almost any domestic pet, the hotel also offers national and international pet travel service, obedience training with or without the owner present, veterinary services, grooming, and a jacuzzi. A pet photographer comes in on holiday weekends to take portraits if the owners request it.

Police Beat

Man injured in wreck

A Big Spring man was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital early Saturday morning for treatment of injuries after a car he was driving hit an electric pole and broke the pole in half.

Tony Reyes of 506 E. 12th was ticketed for failure to control speed to avoid an accident and failure to show proof of financial responsibility after the accident in the 1300 block of East Third.

Humberto Hernandez told police Saturday that someone had shot at two fluorescent lights in front of the H&A Grocery at 201 N.E. 7th sometime Friday night. Damage was listed at $22.

Police arrested Dave Ramirez, 22, of 3707 Connally, Saturday morning on I-20 for failure to identify himself as a witness. Police reports show Ramirez was asked for his name and address and gave officers a false name and date of birth.

Police arrested Juan Delossantos, 18, of 606 N. San Antonio, Friday night one mile north on Highway 87 for driving while intoxicated.

Teresa Horton of 1600 Settles told police Friday afternoon that a top battery operated drill bit had been stolen from the driveway of her home earlier in the day. The toy was valued at $60.

Douglas Beams of 1425 E. Sixth, No. 3, told police Friday afternoon that a video cassette player and a camera, valued at $2,950, were taken from his apartment by someone he knows between noon Thursday and Friday afternoon.

La Vonne Campos of 108 Carey told police Friday afternoon that her flute and case, valued at $300, had been taken from the band hall at Big Spring High School sometime between noon Wednesday and Thursday.

Bonnie Nix of 2911 E. 80, apt. 55, told police that someone took a $100 bill from her dresser drawer in her bedroom between 6 p.m. Thursday and 5 p.m. Friday. Ms. Nix said she did not know who had taken the money.

A Kmart employee told police Friday night that a man had left the store about 7 p.m. with a 13-inch color television without paying for it.

Mitchell Covington of 811 W. Third told police Saturday morning that a person known to him took six pairs of socks, four black T-shirts and a pair of pants, valued at $50, from his home without his permission.

tion is only one theory. Now, the disclaimer is not necessary."

Hudson added that the board "has been operating under unconstitutional rules for 10 years. Not since 1925, has there been a more important ruling."

The Board of Education approved rescinding the rule with no discussion Saturday.

But one member said on Friday the outcome was inevitable "in light of the attorney general's opinion and in light of all the criticism we've received on this from all over the place."

A decision on the evolution rule was at the forefront of textbook selection because the board this year is to adopt a list of biology and elementary science books for use in public schools over the next eight years. Local school districts will choose books from that list.

The textbook selection process begins next week and will continue for the next six months.

Library

heard the footsteps) to make it squeak and nothing happened."

Waldo got his name when Miss Taylor mentioned the strange sounds to a postal employee who had worked in the building.

She remembers being told, "That's just old Waldo," who was supposedly an ex-postal employee who felt at home in the old postal building.

While Waldo may be a figment of the imagination, another very real problem is literally crowding the library out of its present facility.

Libraries operate under state standards and "this library should have 66,000 items" to meet the standard, but "I don't know where we would put them," Mrs. Gray said.

State standards also specify that a library in a county the size of Howard should be housed in 21,000-24,000 square feet.

"We must keep up with new material," Mrs. Gray said. "We have to keep up with new subject trends."

Areas such as science, space exploration, treatment of illnesses change at such a rapid pace that the library is faced daily with making room for new material without disposing of valuable older items, she said.

Overcrowding has seen the library moved from several different locations throughout the years.

The library began in 1907 in the basement of the old J&W Fisher Store on Main Street. It was moved to a red sandstone building on the courthouse square, then into the courthouse in 1955.

The library was later housed in the old Dora Roberts home at 610 Scurry. Mrs. Gray has seen pictures of books stored in cartons, on top of shelves and in garages. The severe overcrowding at that address led the library to its present location in 1970.

More than 12,350 people have a local library card, Mrs. Gray said. Last year, 100,000 books were circulated through the library. The library employees seven full-time and two part-time workers.

Saturday's Silver Tea was another historical event at the library. Mrs. Gray said the first such tea was held in 1917 on St. Patrick's Day.

The practice was dropped for many years, but Mrs. Gray decided to begin the tradition again in 1981. She wanted to coordinate the day with National Library Week, which concluded Saturday.

Mrs. Gray said she hopes to see the library housed in a new building some day but, "that's more of a dream" now. Friends of the Library are working to raise money for the new building, she said.

DWI suspect released

Juan Delossantos, 18, of 606 San Antonio was transferred to county jail Saturday morning for driving while intoxicated. He was placed under a $1,000 bond set by Judge Melvin Daratt and later released on bond.

John Marino, 60, of 304 Circle was transferred to county jail Saturday morning for driving while intoxicated. He was placed under a $1,000 bond set by Judge Daratt and was later released.

Sabas Torres was to be released from county jail today after being jailed for a two-day sentence for driving while intoxicated. Torres, 49, is from Coahoma.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Michael John Hurlburt, 37, of P.O. Box 1972 Friday night with a warrant for assault with threats. Hurlburt was placed under a $5,000 bond set by Judge Lewis Heflin and released when bond was posted.

Moore residents to gather

MOORE — Residents and former residents of this historic Howard County farming community will hold their 22nd annual homecoming today in Garrett Hall at Big Spring's First United Methodist Church.

Former Howard county tax collector Zirah Bedner said a brief program will be presented this afternoon. "There will be plenty of visiting, refreshments and a 'Moorite' good time for all," she said.

For the record

Julian Alcantar Ramirez, 34, of 104 N.W. Fourth was incorrectly identified as Julian Alexander Ramirez in the marriage license listing in Saturday's public records.

Great Wall is great rumor

PEKING — Elizabeth Taylor, arm-in-arm with fiancé Mexican lawyer Victor Luna, arrived Saturday for a two-day visit and dismissed as "pretty wild" rumors that she has picked the Great Wall as the locale for her eighth marriage.

The 52-year-old actress traveled by train from the northeast port of Tianjin, where her tour group disembarked from a cruise ship.

Miss Taylor — wearing a black sweater, black slacks and thick gold earrings — posed briefly for a few photographers with Luna, 56. Scores of Chinese passengers stared, unaware of her fame in the West since her films have never been shown publicly in China.

Some of the Academy Award winner's seven marriages have been exotic locales. Her second marriage to actor Richard Burton was in a mud hovel on the banks of the Chobe River in Botswana, Africa, and there was speculation that she would wed Luna on the famed Great Wall.

"No, that's pretty wild," Miss Taylor said when asked about the rumor. She offered no hints of when the couple plan to wed.

"They're just having a good time, a vacation," said William McLenahan, a friend traveling with the couple.

Family album now history

JACKSON — Writer Eudora Welty, known for her stories of Mississippi life, has turned over a trove of family pictures to the state Department of Archives for an exhibit marking her 75th birthday.

Miss Welty, who turned 75 Friday, is known as a private, unassuming person, and the release of the 500 negatives, pictures taken by her father, was a departure for her.

He's still a ham at age 80

LONDON — Sir John Gielgud celebrated his 80th birthday Saturday after a star-studded party at London's Old Vic Theater where he made his acting debut 63 years ago in Shakespeare's "Henry V."

"I've been enormously spoilt, really only because I've managed to survive," said Gielgud, who is ranked with Sir Lawrence Olivier and the late Sir Ralph Richardson as the greatest British actors of the century.

Gielgud, who appeared slightly embarrassed at the party Friday night, spent Saturday at his country house in Buckinghamshire, 50 miles west of London, where he lives alone.

Among the well-wishers at the party were stars Trevor Howard, Glenda Jackson and Edward Fox.

Gielgud said he hopes to tread the boards again "if I can find the right play."

Meanwhile, executors in London on Saturday published the will of Richardson, who died Oct. 10, 1983, at 80. He left most of his nearly $1.87 million estate to his wife Meriel.

Richardson also left unspecified mementoes to several friends and relatives, including Gielgud and Olivier.

Author weds in the bush

SYDNEY — Author Coleen McCullough, whose best-selling novel "The Thorn Birds" traced the life of a family in the Australian bush, returned to the bush for her marriage to an island planter.

The 46-year-old Australian writer married Ric Robinson, 33, in a private ceremony Friday at Mourinjerie, the farm of a friend near the New South Wales town of Cessnock, her publicist, Martin Dougherty, said Saturday.

He said Miss McCullough considers herself "a bush girl" and felt she should be married in a bush setting.

WWII general losing fight

CHARLESTON — Retired U.S. Army Gen. Mark W. Clark, who was hospitalized for tests last month, was listed in critical condition Saturday at the Medical University of South Carolina, a spokesman said.

The 87-year-old World War II general remained stable, said Charles Gudaitis of MUSC.

"There's been no change," he said, adding that Clark's condition was posted as critical during the week.

Neither hospital officials nor relatives have disclosed the nature of the tests or Clark's illness since the retired four-star general entered the hospital March 20.

Clark commanded the 5th U.S. Army that chased the German army from Italy in World War II. He was later the supreme commander of the United Nations in the Far East and signed the armistice that ended the Korean War.

Clark, president emeritus of The Citadel, South Carolina's state military school, was nominated by then-President Harry Truman as U.S. ambassador to the Vatican in 1951. But a storm of protest forced Truman to withdraw the nomination.

Wilder suicide questioned

COLEBROOK — Rape-murder suspect Christopher Wilder died of accidental gunshot wounds in a scuffle with police, a doctor said Saturday, but said New Hampshire officials may never know whether Wilder intended to commit suicide or shot himself inadvertently as he aimed at a trooper.

CHRISTOPHER WILDER

The millionaire fugitive shot himself twice in the heart with his .357 Magnum revolver Friday after being approached by a state trooper at a gas station parking lot. One shot passed through Wilder's body and wounded the officer.

The 39-year-old electrical contractor and race car driver allegedly raped, stabbed, beat, tortured and killed a number of young women during a three-week, 8,000-mile flight from his Boynton Beach, Fla., home.

The FBI accused him in the abductions of 11 women — four found dead, three who turned up alive and four still missing, and said that the search for the missing women would continue.

Wilder's death was labeled accidental by Dr. William Gifford, who witnessed the autopsy and signed the death certificate. The autopsy showed that both shots tore through Wilder's heart, the second ripping it apart.

Gifford said Saturday, however, that he had no way of determining why Wilder fired.

"We have no way of knowing if this man wanted to commit suicide," he said. "There's no way to tell."

"We're treating it as an open issue and we think there's a good chance it's going to remain open," said Assistant Attorney General Andrew Isaac. "It's a state-of-mind question, and we can't determine Mr. Wilder's state of mind any more."

Jackson takes S.C. slate

COLUMBIA — Native son Jesse Jackson claimed his presidential campaign's first clear-cut victory Saturday at the Democratic convention in South Carolina and Walter F. Mondale finally got some delegates of his own in the Southern state.

The Rev. Jackson, a Greenville native, won 34.4 percent of the vote and 17 of the state's national delegates as previously unpledged delegates defected in droves. Uncommitted dropped to second place with 27.1 percent of the vote, or 12 elected delegates.

Mondale and Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, who finished close in the unofficial percentages, will get six elected delegates each, said South Carolina party officials.

But the total count after Saturday stood at 17 for Jackson, 14 uncommitted, seven for Hart and six for Mondale because three automatic delegates not involved in the voting already have stated a preference — two uncommitted and one for Hart.

"This exceeds my wildest dreams," said Dr. Walker Solomon, chairman of the Jackson effort. "This says to the nation that South Carolina loves her children. If you work hard with a good candidate you can win."

In Virginia's caucuses, Jackson won the popular vote but Mondale got more delegates because of a quirk in geographic distribution.

Hart campaigner Phil Noble said efforts for Hart succeeded. "I don't think anybody expected us to demolish Mondale down here," he said.

Noble predicted that three to five of the unpledged national delegates eventually would go for Hart.

Mondale organizer Samuel Tenenbaum had similar comments: "We are very happy. We've achieved a significant victory for Mondale considering where we were."

Tenenbaum predicted Mondale would get three-fourths of the unpledged slate at the national convention.

Rocket hits Gemayel's home

BEIRUT — A rocket struck the residential quarters of President Amin Gemayel's palace in suburban Baabda, destroying three rooms, but he and his family escaped injury, state-run television said Saturday.

AMIN GEMAYEL

Police reported nine people killed and 42 wounded in fierce overnight exchanges of rocket, artillery and tank fire that tapered off at dawn Saturday. At least four more were killed when the battles between Christian and Moslem militias resumed Saturday afternoon, police and hospital officials said.

The television said a rocket exploded into the third floor of the palace's western wing shortly before midnight Friday. There was no explanation why the incident was not reported until late Saturday.

The explosion wrecked three rooms and ignited a blaze that was put out by palace guards, the television said. Gemayel's family was believed to have been in the wing at the time, but it was not disclosed if the president himself was at home.

The television said army experts had determined the source of the rocket, described as Soviet-made, but did not reveal it.

The palace has been hit by artillery shells or rockets on four other occasions since September 1983. The latest attack appeared to have inflicted the greatest damage.

Hospital officials said a French observer was slightly wounded Saturday by shrapnel at the "green line" dividing mostly Moslem west from Christian east Beirut. It was the first casualty among 40 French commandos sent to Beirut last month to help police the green line.

Lebanese police said they were readying a 2,000-man disengagement force to occupy proposed buffer zones between the nation's civil war combatants within the next 48 hours.

2nd volcano ready to erupt

VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — Kilauea Volcano was "ready to go" Saturday as the eruption at neighboring Mauna Loa continued its sluggish outpouring of lava, a National Park official said.

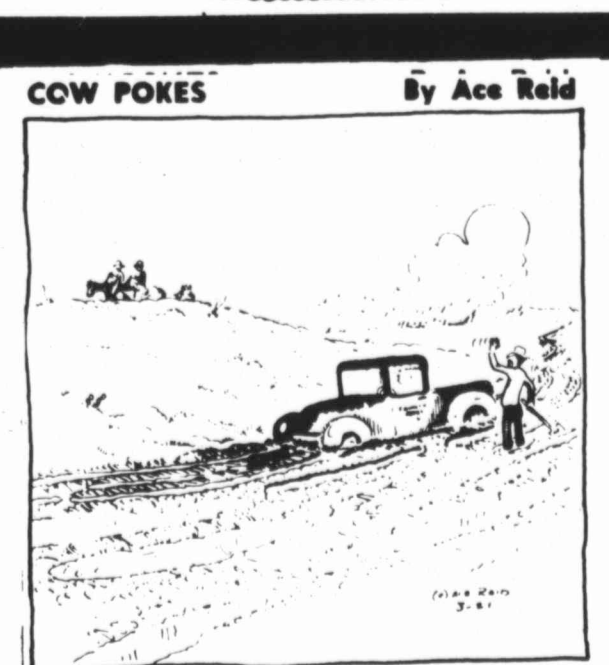

Kilauea, which began a sporadic eruption Jan. 3, 1983, last burst to life from its Pu'u O vent March 30, five days after Mauna Loa began to spew 1.3 million cubic yards of molten rock per hour. The simultaneous eruptions were the first in 116 years.

Kilauea quit March 31, but has since regained 100 percent of the force it lost during the two-day outburst.

"It's just sitting there, ready to go," said Joni Mae, a naturalist at Hawaii Volcanoes National Park.

Twenty-five miles to the northwest, the lava output from Mauna Loa, the largest active volcano in the world, fluctuated Saturday between 10,000 and 20,000 cubic meters per hour, Ms. Mae said.

West Texas — Mostly fair with a gradual warming trend through Monday. Highs Sunday 69 Panhandle to 74 south and upper 90s Big Bend valleys. Lows Sunday night 37 Panhandle to 49 south and near 50 Big Bend. Highs Monday 72 Panhandle to 79 far west and low 90s Big Bend valleys.

Clear skies prevail

A ridge of high pressure pushed its way into Texas Saturday, leaving the state under a clear sunny sky. Winds kicked up as high as 20 to 30 mph, however, and West Texas residents complained of sandstorms. A gust as high as 63 mph was reported at Wichita Falls at 10 a.m.

Temperatures reached only the 50s and 60s in the north, but into the 70s in the central part of the state and into the 80s in the southern reaches of Texas.

At 5 p.m. Saturday, it was 83 at Corpus Christi, 80 at Brownsville, 79 at San Antonio, 74 at Waco, 73 at El Paso and San Angelo, 69 at Dallas, 65 at Wichita Falls, 64 at Lubbock, and 60 at Amarillo.

The lows early Sunday were expected to be in the 30s in the Panhandle and in the 40s in North and Central Texas.

Clear skies are expected statewide again on Sunday and Monday, the National Weather Service said. A strong cool front was located in the north-west Gulf of Mexico and was expected to continue a strong offshore flow through Sunday.

Golf ball-size hail dropped on northern Georgia on Saturday, as thunderstorms moved across the Appalachians and were scattered from Lake Erie to Georgia.

Light rain fell over the Midwest, while drizzle and light rain covered most of the Midwest from Missouri to Michigan and Ohio.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 p.m. EST ranged from 32 degrees at Jackson and Yellowstone, Wyo., to 100 at Palm Springs, Calif.

For Sunday, scattered thunderstorms were forecast from Florida to the Ohio Valley and the mid-Atlantic Coast.

Showers were expected from the Great Lakes region into New England, with a few showers developing over the Pacific Northwest.

Skies over the Plains were predicted to be partly cloudy. The South will enjoy sunshine.

High temperatures were forecast in the 50s and 60s over the northern two-thirds of the country; 70s in the South; and 80s in the desert Southwest.

An insured portfolio of municipal bonds

- Tax-Free — no federal income tax.
- Guaranteed — insured against default to guarantee principal and interest payments when due.
- Diversified — a portfolio strongly diversified by type, location and purpose.
- Affordable — units available in multiples of $1,000.
- Flexible — monthly, quarterly or semi-annual income distributions, or automatic reinvestment.
- Convenient — no call notices or clipping coupons.
- Marketability — units may be liquidated at any time at the current market value.

IM-IT
INSURED MUNICIPALS INCOME TRUST

This represents the net annual interest income after annual expenses, divided by the public offering price as of 3/8/84 (Series 109). It varies with changes in either amount and with the particular payment option. The terms of the insurance policy are more fully described in the prospectus; no representation is made as to the insurer's ability to meet its commitments. The AAA rating is due to an insurance policy issued by American Municipal Bond Assurance Corporation (AMBAC) and relates only to the units of the trust and not the bonds in the portfolio. The insurance does not remove the market risk since it does not guarantee the market value of the units. Portions of this return may be subject to state or local taxes. Due to future delivery of a portion of the portfolio, on deposit date, the actual first year return will be 10% lower than the normal annual current return. This difference will still be paid to the unit holder the first year but will be called a principal distribution rather than tax-exempt interest.

Paying the price of killing freedom

The Soviet Union has invested nearly 4½ years, millions of rubles and more than 100,000 troops in its unsuccessful attempt to conquer Afghanistan. Yet recent reports from that beleaguered country suggest that things are looking even worse for the invaders.

Recently it was announced that the Soviet army had started its seventh major offensive against the Afghan freedom fighters in the strategic Peshawar Valley located some 60 miles north of Kabul. And initial dispatches indicate the Soviets are faring no better this time than they have in their previous campaigns.

According to diplomatic sources, the Afghans have already engaged the Russians in two separate raids and have killed or captured at least 60 Soviet soldiers and destroyed 20 vehicles. To date, the Soviets are estimated to have lost between 7,000 and 11,000 men (precise figures are unavailable) and have little or nothing to show for the casualties. Half the country remains beyond communist control. Assassinations of government officials are so commonplace that it is difficult to recruit local leaders as replacements. Last year, the Marxist Afghan army lost through deaths, desertions and defections nearly a third of its men. The situation is so desperate that the government has resorted to forced conscription where young men are physically rounded up on the streets and hauled away for combat training. The government has also begun drafting communist party members, a previously exempt group, because they are considered less likely to collaborate with the enemy.

Consequently, frustrated Soviet forces have retaliated with terror tactics such as chemical and biological warfare, saturation bombing, a scorched earth policy to starve the freedom fighters, and summary executions of women and children. But the resistance remains undaunted.

Public utilities are sabotaged daily, local merchants refuse to stock goods requested by the occupying army, and truckers make monthly protection payments to the resistance so their vehicles can pass unmolested through the countryside. Recent attacks against the Soviet embassy in Kabul have caused the army to triple its security forces there. Still the invaders live under constant fear of reprisals from the locals.

Such is the price to be paid by the Kremlin as it continues to prop up a puppet regime in Afghanistan.

Underground bombs ready to explode

WASHINGTON — A maze of underground "pipe bombs" could endanger tens of millions of Americans in homes and office buildings all over the country. Yet the Reagan administration is doing little or nothing to meet the threat.

Almost 1.75 million miles of pipelines — carrying natural gas, oil, anhydrous ammonia and other hazardous materials under our cities and countryside — are slowly rotting away. Some are already leaking, and the danger grows inexorably as the life span of the steel pipes (generally 16 to 40 years) runs out.

Despite orders from Congress, the Department of Transportation is failing in its duty to inspect the pipes for signs of corrosion, poor welding and other weaknesses that could lead to leaks of terrifying proportions.

The General Accounting Office has censured the DOT in a 94-page draft report obtained by my associate Les Whitten. The cover of the report warns against publication or other "improper disclosure," but I think the danger is too great to conceal from the unsuspecting citizens who are sitting on top of these time bombs.

Although the GAO report's language is cautious, its message is that the DOT's negligence, mismanagement, sluggishness and downright stupidity are to blame. Here are the highlights:

— "Concerns exist over the dangers posed by the toxic, flammable and highly combustible substances which are carried through the pipelines at relatively high pressures, often near or through highly populated areas," the report warns.

— "Many of the underground pipelines are never inspected as the law and common sense dictate. DOT inspectors don't even know where some of the pipelines are."

— "The DOT has purposely understaffed its inspection program, despite the risk of 'deaths, serious injuries and ... property-environmental damage.' It has also failed to oversee state inspectors as it is supposed to do."

— "Some (pipeline) operators (have) been inspected only once every three to five years, while others (have) not been inspected at all."

— "Among those who received inadequate or no inspection were known high-risk operators with previous violations in high-density areas. These should be inspected annually."

— "The minimum number of inspectors required to keep the nation's pipelines safe is 228. As of early this year, there were just 16. The administration's cost-cutters have refused to add more inspectors, even though the DOT's responsibilities will be increased by a law that takes effect later this year."

— "Errors, inconsistencies and inaccuracies in the DOT's muddled records make it difficult to determine which pipelines are safe and which are not."

— "Most of the hundreds of thousands of pipeline leaks each year are harmless, but DOT figures show that in 1982 there were 21 deaths, 272 injuries, 200 hazardous liquid pipe accidents and 1,711 major gas line failures.

The GAO study was ordered by Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., one of the few in government who is alarmed at the pipeline situation. He has good reason to be. In 1968, a gas pipeline explosion, touched off by a fire in a gun store, destroyed half of downtown Richmond, Ind., killing 41 people.

Footnote: In a statement, a Department of Transportation spokesman insisted his agency is "reducing ... gas pipeline accidents," is forging a "strong federal-state enforcement partnership," and is focusing its inspections on high-risk problems.

Christian ways

When the bishop becomes king, we may count the end of everything.

anonymous Medieval poet
Modern historians are telling me that Christianity is fracturing into two disparate movements.

A renaissance American fundamentalism and the so-called liberation theology of Central America are the dynamic forces in Christianity today. The religion, as practiced in Europe, Asia and Africa, is dead.

Virginia's Jerry Falwell and Nicaragua's Ernesto Cardenas are the prophets of Christianity's future.

If this be true, then Christianity has passed from the kingdom of faith into the realm of politics.

Falwell, a Bible-thumping independent Baptist minister building a small empire in Lynchburg, has aligned himself squarely with the New Right in America, preaching the gospel according to Reagan and lobbying for conservative political issues in Washington.

Cardenas, a priest and former monk, is the minister of cultural affairs for a revolutionary Nicaraguan government intent, with the aid of the Soviet Union and Cuba, on freeing Central America from what he calls the economic and military harness of the United States.

Falwell preaches the balanced budget and nuclear superiority. Cardenas preaches Marx and revolution. Their followers are legion.

These two movements in modern Christianity, represented by these two men, distress me so because the religion is based on the teachings of a member of my own faith, Jesus of Nazareth, an ascetic rabbi who spent his life instilling hope in the poor, the sick and the disenfranchised.

What would Jesus think of Jerry Falwell? What would he think of Ernesto Cardenas? And, let's mention it, what would he think of the Lebanese Christians who take such delight in massacring their Muslim countrymen?

I would like to think there is some middle ground in this religion, some basic, faithful center actively pursuing the Semitic theology of Jesus. But I must agree with the historians: The peacemakers, the meek and the spiritual now seem without leadership.

Falwell and Cardenas believe that by reforming society through legislation or revolution, the individual in turn will be reformed. Is this the message of Jesus? Was it not he who preached that the faith of the believer will bring about the kingdom of God, not the other way around?

I certainly have no objection to clerics participating in politics. It's their right and duty as citizens. But to use the pulpit to pontificate on politics is beyond the charge of religious teaching and preaching.

We must remember those German priests who implored their parishioners to vote for the Nazi party to save the Fatherland from "socialist democracy."

I say all this as an outside observer. I really don't know much about Christianity.

But the historians' judgement alarms me. Where is Christianity going? Are Falwell and Cardenas the only spokesmen for the modern-day expression of this religion?

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Reagan: We deserve what we got Campaign promises, like eggs, are made only to be broken. More than once, we Americans, wide-eyed and trusting, have let ourselves be won over by seductive words, only to find ourselves rudely awakened in the morning. So we've gotten cynical. We know a pick-up line when we hear it.

Right now, campaign pledges are piling up so fast that they've inspired a new bumper sticker: "Honk if Mondale's promised you something." At times like these it's worthwhile — or at least a welcome distraction from the current depressing spectacle — to go back to the previous flurry of pledges and see what became of them. Lo and behold, we find that Ronald Reagan, for better or worse, has done a lot to refute the cynics.

Not that he hasn't broken a few promises, including some significant ones. Reagan vowed to abolish the departments of energy and education, but the last time I visited the City of Desolation both buildings were insouciantly intact. He assured us he'd balance the budget, which by the end of his third term he might. He said he'd scrap the SALT II treaty rather than expose us all to Soviet rape and pillage, but for three years he's quietly abided by it.

As the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee notes, his criticism of Bert Lance — "the average citizen resents what seems to be undue special privilege for a few in high places" — applies equally well to Ed Meese. And scholars will search in vain for any hint by Reagan that Americans were being asked to vote for the worst recession in 50 years.

Some things he promised haven't come to pass, but not through any fault of the president — like a constitutional amendment to ban abortion, or his "New Federalism" plan to return some duties to the states.

In addition, you can find all sorts of obscure planks in the GOP platform. My favorite is "combine efforts to encourage the renewable resource timber production capability of privately-owned forests and woodlands with a federal program committed to multiple use," a promise that may have been kept, for all I know.

On the big issues, though, Reagan has done pretty much what he said he'd do, which is a great surprise. Never in my wildest dreams did I suppose that he would push through a three-year tax cut, even one scaled down from 30 percent to 25, much less abolish the government's inflation tax by indexing brackets.

What seasoned skeptic put any stock in his pledge to cut domestic spending? But he has, partly by paring once-untouchable programs like subsidized student loans and trade adjustment assistance for some unemployed workers. And no one dared to hope that inflation would drop as rapidly as it has — an achievement due partly to Reagan's support of the Federal Reserve.

Reagan also deserves credit for his deregulatory measures — particularly ending price controls on crude oil and gasoline. At times, the president has taken brave stands — proposing cuts in Social Security's early retirement benefits, offering a sub-minimum wage for teen-agers. Neither got anywhere, but both made perfect sense.

That's the good news. The bad news is that the President has also kept a lot of promises we'd be better off without. Candidate Reagan called for a military buildup, and we've gotten it with a vengeance. Defense spending has risen by a dizzying 84 percent since 1980, which even the most ferocious hawks couldn't have imagined (or tried to justify) four years ago.

He vowed to take a tougher line with the Soviets, and he has, combining rhetorical excess with useless provocations — as in the deployment of the Pershing II missile in Europe or the approval of the MX missile. In the process, Reagan has effectively scuttled all arms control negotiations, without moderating Soviet behavior in any discernible way.

He's also stuck to his New Rightist "social agenda." He's proposed restoring government-sponsored prayer to schools, lobbied for "preventive detention" of some criminal suspects and gutted FBI rules on surveillance of domestic political groups. If the President had his way, civil liberties would be found only in history books.

Reagan's problem is that he wants Washington's power and responsibility reduced at home but expanded abroad. He fears state intrusion in economic matters, but welcomes it blindly in private conduct. The clarity of his vision doesn't minimize its incoherence.

But let no one say that we didn't ask for all this when we elected him. Reagan has committed a lot of sins, but misleading the voters in 1980 wasn't one of them. And we have even fewer excuses if he's re-elected and does what he's promised. As H.L. Mencken said, democracy is based on the theory that the common people know what they want, and deserve to get it good and hard.

Billy Graham

Scientist discovers a formula for life

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have been trained as a scientist, and frankly for that reason I have always dismissed the Bible as being out of date and unscientific. But now my life seems to be going on the rocks — my marriage is breaking up, I'm depressed — and I am wondering if the Bible can help me somehow. What do you think? — Dr. G.D.S.

DEAR DR. G.D.S.: I know the Bible can help you, because I have seen its message help countless people who were in great difficulty — including some of the most intelligent people I have ever met. The reason it can help you is that it will point you to God, and God loves you and wants you to know him personally.

The Bible is the story of God and his relationship to the human race. God, the Bible tells us, created this world; we are not here by chance. God created us in his image, so that we could have fellowship with him. Originally the first humans had perfect fellowship with God, but then they turned their backs on him and decided they would act as if they were God. The results were disastrous — and they still are, whenever we try to live life without God.

The Bible does not end there, however. The Bible tells us that God loves us, and since the beginning God has worked to make it possible for us to be reconciled to him. He sent his only son, Jesus Christ, into the world to make this possible. You see, sin broke our relationship with God and twisted our lives and our world. But Christ died on the cross to take away our sins and bring us back to God.

Yes, turn to the Bible. When you do, you will discover God throughout its pages is telling you, "I love you!" And you will also discover that God offers you a new life, if you will turn in faith to Jesus Christ. You may not understand everything about it, but God will welcome you and forgive you as you turn to him.

Jesus once said, "Anyone who will not receive the kingdom of God like a little child will never enter it" (Mark 10:15). That may sound strange to you as a scientist — but God wants you to humble yourself, confess your sin to him and admit your need of him, and then trust him the same way a small child trusts his father. Trust Christ, and he will help you and encourage you as you face the problems of life.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by the Tribune Company Syndicate.

The power elite

AUSTIN — Remember all the hoopla last February when a few thousand New Hampshire Democrats voted on their party's presidential candidates?

Television crews and reporters by the hundreds followed after the candidates, seeking some insight on who would capture the state's 22 delegate votes for the Democratic convention in San Francisco next July. New Hampshire hotels and restaurants did a booming business.

U.S. Sen. Gary Hart won and at that time seemed to be off on a miraculous rise to the Democratic nomination. Then, that rise became a slide and Texas' 200 delegates are a critical part of Hart's new Western strategy to regain the momentum.

So, Texans should be courted royally by the candidates and scrutinized by the national press between now and the state's May 5 primary. But don't count on it.

Oh, there will be some attention. The three remaining Democratic candidates — former Vice President Walter Mondale, Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson — each will spend several days in Texas. And we'll be hearing and reading more about Texas in the news media. But proportionally it won't be anything like the attention that was focused on some of those piddling states back East.

Individual Texas voters won't enjoy a king-maker role because few of them will have any say in which candidate wins. Rather than a presidential primary such as that used in New Hampshire, Texas Democrats have opted for a convention system of delegate selection. More accurately, party leaders have opted for this system because it gives them more power in the selection process.

In Texas, it won't matter who is the voters' favorite presidential candidate. To participate in the selection process, a Democrat first must vote and then return to the polling place at 7:15 p.m. for the precinct convention. Since not many people do that, a very small but dedicated group can control almost any convention.

The key to success is organization, and Mondale has a huge step up on both Hart and Jackson in most areas of Texas. He is supported by most party leaders and party workers, those who do care enough to attend conventions and to bring some friends.

Probably, a fair number of Texas Democrats will be surprised when they don't find the presidential race on the ballot on May 5. They may even be angry. The big question is: Will they be angry enough to come back at 7:15 for the precinct convention?

Even if they do, those for Hart or Jackson may leave frustrated. In many cases, the caucus leadership will be for Mondale, and there are ways to challenge and wear down the opposition when you're in charge.

The Hart and Jackson campaigns will try to educate their Texas supporters and turn them out for the precinct conventions. But they are starting late and so far there have been no sign of an emotional swing to either man that would inspire average voters to attend conventions.

Don't look for the Mondale people to stir up the voters for the conventions. They already have the best organization and would practically sweep in all the 154 delegates up for grabs if the conventions were held today. They also would take most of the 46 set aside for party officials and officeholders.

Hart has tons of funds he can put into Texas but it's questionable how effective a media blitz would be under the current system.

He might do best to run his campaign against the system rather than Mondale, attacking party leaders as trying to prevent average Texans from participating in the selection process. That might anger enough people to make them turn out for the conventions. It also would damage any chance of the party leadership working hard for him in the fall if he somehow won the nomination.

The complex convention system hardly will tempt the national media to focus hard on Texas. Their sophisticated polls mean little in a convention system. It may even take several days before anyone knows who won how many delegates.

Ironically, in a year when Texas may determine the nation's Democratic presidential nominee, few voters in this heavily Democratic state will have any role in the process. And the national attention that normally goes with such a role probably will be relatively small.

Parents fight grandmother to win custody of daughter

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston man is fighting his mother for custody of his 8-year-old daughter, who has been living with her grandmother since her parents began having financial problems.

Jim and Debbie Bennett, were living with Mrs. Bennett's parents, when Bennett's mother, Jeanne Lewis, offered to keep the couple's two oldest girls.

At the time, Bennett was working two low-paying jobs and his 31-year-old wife had lost hers.

Bennett, 34, said he asked his mother last April to return 8-year-old Jammie and her half-sister Teresa Wright, 11, Mrs. Bennett's daughter by a previous marriage. But Mrs. Lewis refused to return Jammie and filed suit last September for permanent custody.

"It's just been a nightmare," Bennett said Friday. "It's the worst thing I could imagine happening to a person."

Mrs. Bennett said her mother-in-law has "got to be nuts. There ain't no judge that's going to sign that. There isn't any law that lets somebody take a kid from her parents."

Bruce W. Wettman, a former family law judge, signed a temporary order for Jammie to stay with the Lewises and visit the Bennetts on weekends. Under a new state law, a person may ask for formal custody of a child who has lived with him for six months. Before the law went into effect last Sept. 1, judges were allowed to give grandparents custody.

"It's unusual — there's no doubt about it," said Wettman, who resigned as a judge in November. He declined to discuss the case.

However, Wettman said in his six years as a judge he never saw a case in which a married couple had to fight for custody of their child.

The Lewises declined comment, but their attorney, David A. Gibson, said the case will probably go to court.

Gibson said the Lewises will argue that the Bennetts' marriage is unstable. He said the couple separated briefly last year and had petitioned for divorce in 1979 but withdrew the action.

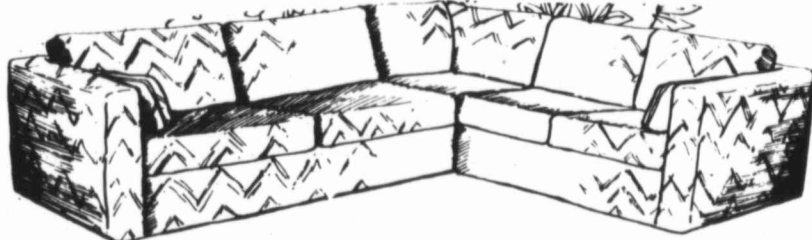

Elect Robert D. (Bob) Miller District Attorney May 5

As your new District Attorney, Robert D. (Bob) Miller will work in close cooperation with all local law enforcement officers. As County Attorney, he has developed a close relationship with all law personnel and will continue to coordinate efforts for strict law enforcement and prosecution in ALL cases. He will bring a high degree of professionalism to the office of District Attorney.

Woman wins police harassment suit

HOUSTON (AP) — A 27-year-old woman suffering from a hormonal imbalance that gives her a man's appearance has won $122,000 from a Houston suburb where two policemen allegedly demanded she lift her blouse to prove she was a woman.

A federal court jury awarded the damages Friday to the Louisiana bookkeeper, Micki Ann Ramie, in a civil rights lawsuit against the community of Hedwig Village, west of Houston.

Ms. Ramie claimed she was verbally abused for an hour by the two officers after she voluntarily went to the police station to discuss a neighbor's complaint.

The congenital hormonal imbalance from which Ms. Ramie suffers makes her short and bald and gives her a masculine voice and facial hair, doctors testified.

Her attorney, Robert Wallis, said the August 1980 incident occurred after a neighbor told officers Ms. Ramie had assaulted the neighbor's child and was impersonating a police officer.

Ms. Ramie testified that the neighbor was angry because she reported to her apartment manager that the child was pushing grocery carts into parked cars.

But the two officers, Sgt. Rex White, 34, and Lt. William George Rush, 41, repeatedly questioned Ms. Ramie about her sex and demanded she pull off her wig and lift up her blouse, Wallis said.

"They got into asking her what her sex was, and they kept asking and asking," Wallis said. "If it was their business, they should have only asked once."

HUD chief resigns amid controversy

DALLAS (AP) — The regional chief of the Department of Housing and Urban Development has resigned less than two weeks after the General Accounting Office was asked to investigate allegations of political misconduct.

"I have accomplished that which I that which I came to do," Dick Eudaly said in announcing his decision in a prepared statement Friday.

A $64,000-a-year political appointee, Eudaly became the object of the investigation after charges surfaced that he had demoted five "whistle-blowers" who implicated him in possible political maneuvering in the awarding of federal grants.

The Washington Post had reported that the five employees cooperated with a HUD probe that found that Eudaly had pressed aides to upgrade the eligibility rankings of two small Texas cities so they could receive community development block grants.

A 1983 report by HUD Inspector General Charles L. Dempsey said an aide to Eudaly overruled a HUD staff committee and boosted the ranking of Navasota from 102nd place to 25th place in eligibility among competing cities, and Cranfills Gap was raised from 55th place to fourth.

HUD planned to fund projects in the top 42 cities, but officials in Washington rejected the ranking changes.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, calling the demotions of the five employees "blatant, politically motivated irregularities," requested the GAO probe into the matter.

Eudaly did not mention the controversy in his statement.

"I served gladly, proudly and look forward to seeing ... (President Reagan's) second term be far and above the greatest days ever in the history of our wonderful country," the letter said.

"My wife and five children, ages 6 through 13, need a full-time husband and father, and that duty calls first."

Eudaly, a developer, rancher and ardent Republican, was appointed to the post two years ago. Eudaly said he would leave office April 30.

Ex-boxer convicted in death of socialite

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A former boxer has been convicted of murder in the death of a wealthy socialite who was found beaten in her posh condominium.

Jurors deliberated about about six hours Friday before convicting George Henry Wilkinson, 48, in the July 18 slaying of Dorothy Moncrief.

Wilkinson will be sentenced next Friday by State District Judge James Barlow.

Mrs. Moncrief, 53, was the widow of Dr. John Moncrief, the former commander of the Surgical Research Unit at Fort Sam Houston's Brooke Army Medical Center.

Prosecutors referred to Wilkinson, who had been Mrs. Moncrief's live-in companion, as "Rocky Marciano" Wilkinson, saying he was intent on killing the woman when he repeatedly slugged her in the face.

"He's a strong man," Assistant District Attorney Ed Garcia told jurors. "Look at this man. With one punch, he could knock down Dorothy Moncrief."

"It wasn't enough that he was hitting her," Garcia said. "He strangled her with one hand. The life didn't go out of Mrs. Moncrief's body until he choked it out of her."

Defense attorney Allen Cazier contended that Wilkinson never intended to kill the woman, but became angry during a quarrel.

Farm program sign-up Monday

Registration for the 1984 farm program will re-open Monday.

The sign-up will continue through May 4. The program was reopened as a provision of the farm bill passed by Congress this week.

LIBERTY CAGED? — Scaffolding rises around the Statue of Liberty as part of a $30 million renovation project of the aging monument in New York Harbor.

USAF launches secret payload

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An Air Force Titan 34D rocket launched a secret payload into space at 11:52 a.m. EST Saturday from Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, a spokesman said.

No advance warning was given for the launch, which was announced half an hour after liftoff, nor was there any comment on the nature of the payload.

"It's a classified launch. It's a classified payload," said Air Force spokesman Dick Castelucci.

The 655th Aerospace Test Group, commanded by Col. Charles A. Kuhlman, was the Titan's Eastern Launch Site program manager and launch agent, said a two-sentence statement released by the Air Force.

The Titan 34D rocket is more powerful than the Titan 3C, which was previously used for secret payloads by the Air Force. The Titan usually launches communications or surveillance satellites into stationary orbits 22,300 miles from Earth which can view about one-third of the planet.

It was the second Titan 34D launch from Canaveral. The last one was in October.

Jury deliberating fate of 9 Klansmen

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)— An all-white jury deliberated for the second day Saturday on whether racist fervor or self-defense motivated nine Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazis when five communist demonstrators were killed at a 1979 anti-Klan rally.

The jurors resumed deliberations at 8:35 a.m. Saturday in the 14-week civil rights conspiracy trial. The jury met for more than eight hours Friday.

Federal prosecutors said the defendants conspired to provoke a fight because the rally at a black housing project in Greensboro was integrated.

"They got the reaction they wanted," U.S. Justice Department attorney Daniel Bell said in closing arguments last week. "They took the law into their own hands ... and they turned Morningside Homes into a small war zone."

Defense attorneys said the men accepted a communist challenge to attend the "Death to the Klan" march and fired only after demonstrators attacked them.

Five CWP members were shot to death and six supporters wounded in the Nov. 3, 1979, confrontation. One Klansman and a television cameraman also were wounded.

TAXES In 1980 we collected $1,298,571.00 in taxes. This represents 92% collected. In 1983 we collected $3,280,499.00 in taxes, this represents 94% collected. Our tax collections have increased $2,000,000.00 from 1980 to 1983. Due to the reappraisal in property, this has made our taxes very high. In studying our financial report I do believe we can and should lower our tax rate.

ROADS In the past five years we have spent approximately one third of our general expenses in our Road Dept. The last year we spent $1,466,460.00 in this department. I do believe for this much expenditure we should have better roads than we have.

COURTHOUSE If you had walked through our courthouse ten years ago, you would have said, "we sure could use some remodeling around here." We'll walk through it today, it sure hasn't changed much.

Christoval crisis

A recent article in another area newspaper detailed trouble in the small Tom Green County community of Christoval.

It seems that the head football coach at Christoval is under close scrutiny for possible violations of not one, but two University Interscholastic League rules.

Buddy Luce, the coach in question, is the focal point of the controversy after suspending three male athletes. Luce, with backing from the Christoval school board, contends the boys were suspended for breaking training not connected with the school's track and field program.

One of the boys and his parents, however said they are considering a lawsuit alleging civil rights violations. They contend the boys were forced to run track if they wished to play football.

Reportedly as part of the regimen, the boys were required to participate in an unsanctioned meet in Mertzon on Apr. 3. The competitors consisted of non-track runners and did not really constitute a track meet. It's called a "fat man's relays," by some folks.

The situation will undoubtedly drag on and on and on and etc... etc..

But despite who is at fault and who is not, the case points out a con of athletic competition, especially that in smaller schools.

In smaller schools coaching staffs are greatly reduced from the 20 or so found at larger 4A and 5A institutions. Hence, that makes for more difficulty in spreading the time around in which to work with athletes. That's why most times a case like the alleged one at Christoval arises.

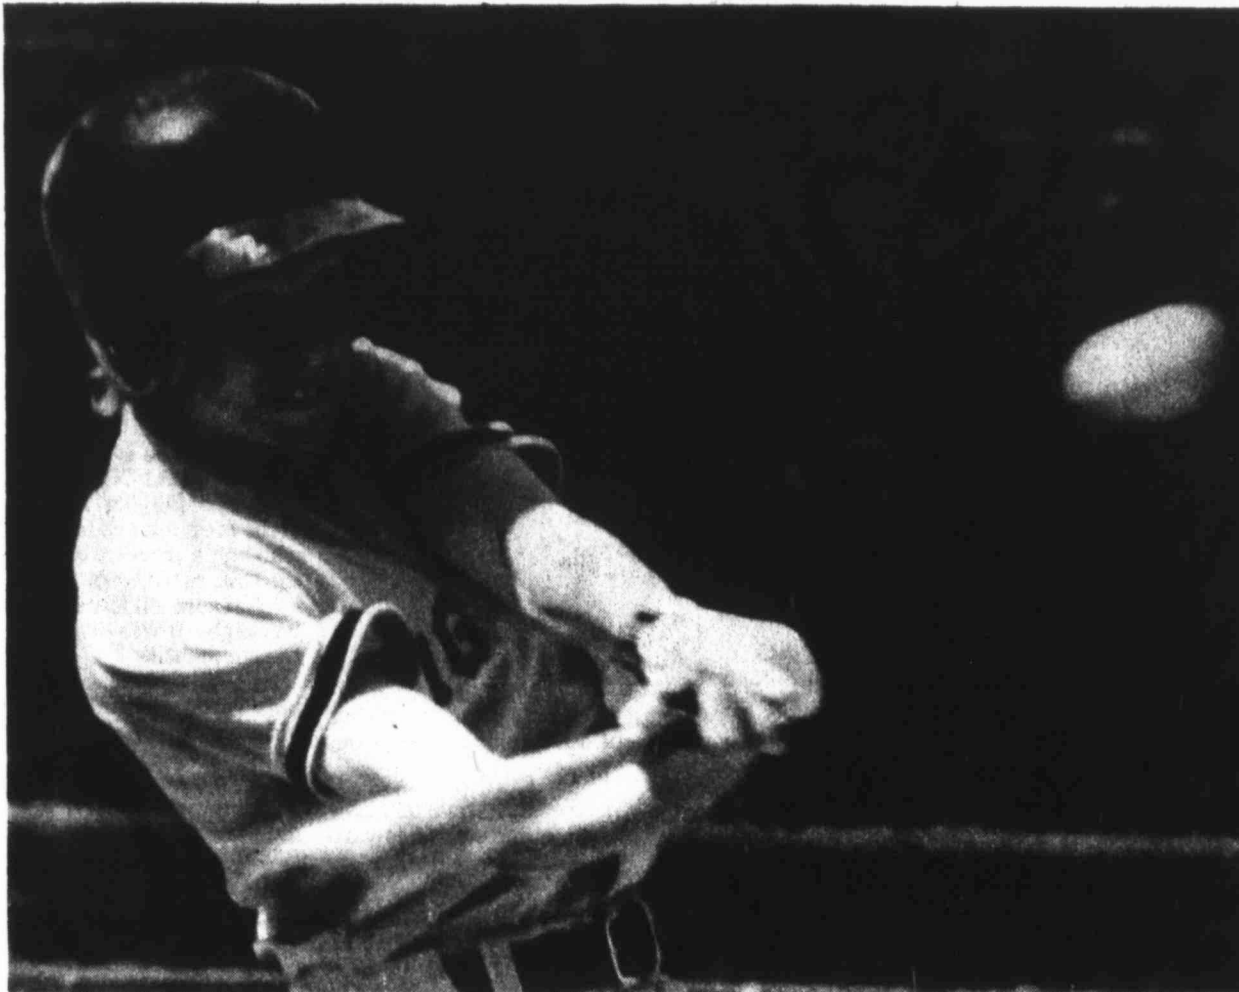

There are more athletes than coaches and in order to insure that all prospective griders (because football is usually the big sport on campus) get "off-season conditioning," more often than not they are "requested" to "participate" in track and field. In that way coaches feel the young men are getting their adequate supervision, conditioning and fueling the competitive fires at the same time.

Don't get me wrong. I was as avid and dedicated an athlete as there ever was in my small 2A high school. But I did see several associates forced out, including one of my brothers, because they and he did not wish to run track. They wanted to concentrate on one sport only.

Unfortunately, and this is based on personal experience and previous observances at other schools I have covered, it's an unwritten rule in too many smaller schools that track is the backbone of any successful football program.

Whether the case in Christoval uncovers a violation of rules or whether it's simply a case of sour grapes (as so many parents can feel when they think their poor baby has been wronged) one thing is for certain.

The case, should it go before the UIL or whom ever, can cause a big split between the community and school and will pit friends against friends. In that category, no one wins.

DOUBLE BY HART — Big Spring rightfielder John Hart gets ready to meet the ball for a second inning double that scored a run in the Steers game with Odessa Saturday. Despite striking for three runs in each of the first three innings, Big Spring fell, 17-14 to remain winless in 4-5A action.

Rogers' sites set on Olympics

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

Big Spring's Kelly Rogers is picking up where he left off last fall — winning gold medals in trap shooting competition.

Rogers, a 19-year-old freshman at Texas Tech University recently returned from Mexico City where he competed along with the 1983 United States Shooting Team in the VIII annual Benito Juarez International Shooting Championships. The trap shooting portion of the competition was held Apr. 2-4.

Thirty-three countries participated with representatives competing the four Olympic disciplines of trap, skeet, rifle and pistol shooting.

Rogers won the gold medal in the junior men's trap-shooting (clay pigeon) event by scoring 191 out of a possible 200 points. His total was fifth overall.

Milo Carrega of France finished first with a score of 196, George Leary of Canada was second with 195, Peter Piffath of the United States followed with 194 and Danny Carlise also of the U.S. was fourth with a score of 192.

In a shooting championship held earlier this year in San Antonio, Rogers won the gold medal in the junior class Zone VIII trapshooting competition by hitting 96 of 100 shots.

In the two-day region championships Kelly scored 185 of 200 possible points, finishing second.

Rogers next scheduled competition will be Easter weekend in Fort Benning, Georgia at the Zone III International Trap Championships. Fort Benning is the site of Rogers' first ever Olympic style trap shoot competition when, as a 17-year old in August 1982 he won first place in the junior men's event at the 22nd USISC. He returned to Fort Benning last May for the 23rd annual event and again came away with a gold medal.

By competing at Fort Benning, Rogers will be going through another qualifying tournament for the trip to a possible Olympic berth. All zone and regional championships permit a shooter the chance for an invitation to compete for a spot on the U.S. Olympic Team June 17-23 at the 24th U.S. International Shooting Championships (USISC) in Los Angeles. The top two finishers will represent America in the Summer Games.

To qualify, a shooter must score a minimum of 170 in men's competition and 160 in women's and juniors competition.

CHECKING THINGS OUT — During a break from his own shooting, Kelly Rogers checks the scores of the other competitors in the Mexico competition. Rogers is a quite accomplished trap shooter despite participating internationally for only two years.

Bell rings loud in Rangers win over Blue Jays

ALINGTON, Tex. (AP) — After Friday night's loss to Toronto, his team's fourth straight, a dejected Buddy Bell sat in the Texas Ranger clubhouse saying he just couldn't understand what the Rangers' problem was.

Apparently, Bell found an answer sometime before Saturday's game when he boosted the Rangers to a 6-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays with four hits that included the game-winning RBI.

"I have been swinging a lot better," said Bell. "A few days ago I felt it was only a matter of time before I got hot. We have been facing some good right-handed pitching, maybe it was our day today."

Bell, who did his work in the cleanup position, said he wasn't concerned about his place in the lineup.

"I'm not thinking about what place I hit. It doesn't matter who hits where as long as they produce," he said.

Charlie Hough scattered seven hits for the victory. Hough, 1-1, struck out five and walked two as he evened his career mark against the Blue Jays to 2-2. Jim Clancy, 0-1, took the loss, missing his bid for a 10th straight victory over the Rangers.

The Rangers opened the scoring in the first inning when Bell tripled in Gary Ward, who had walked. Larry Parrish then doubled to score Bell.

Toronto's Alfredo Griffin stole home for Blue Jays' first run in the sixth. Griffin had walked, advanced an infield grounder and took third on a Lloyd Moseby single.

The Rangers scored again in the second. Wayne

Tolleson went home on a passed ball after reaching on a single and advancing to third on another single by Curtis Wilkerson.

Bell once again was responsible the Rangers' scoring in the fifth and seventh innings.

In the fifth inning, Bell singled and was doubled home by Pete O'Brien. He led off the seventh with his fourth hit, advanced to second on an infield out and, after O'Brien walked, scored on Ned Yost's single. O'Brien then scored the Rangers' rinal run on a sacrifice fly by Bobby Jones.

Twins 4, Mariners 3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Ron Washington led off the 11th inning with his first homer of the season to lift the Minnesota Twins to a 4-3 victory over the Seattle

American League

Mariners Saturday.

It was Washington's second at bat of the season and came against Bob Stoddard, 0-1. Ron Davis, 2-0, pitched the final inning for the Twins.

Al Cowens led off the Seattle 10th with a homer off Pete Filson, but the Twins retied the score in the bottom of the inning on an RBI single by Gary Gaetti.

Mickey Hatcher was safe on an error by third baseman Larry Milbourne and reached third on a single by Dave Engle. Gaetti then singled off Stoddard, scoring Hatcher.

Engle's two-run triple tied the score at 2-2 in the sixth inning. With two out, Kent Hrbek got the Twins second hit of the game off rookie Mark Langston, a single to center.

Indians 8, Orioles 2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Andre Thornton drove in three runs with a homer and a double, and Rick Sutcliffe pitched his second complete game of the season as Cleveland handed the Baltimore Orioles their sixth loss in seven games, 8-2 Saturday in the Indians' home opener.

The Orioles' 1-6 record matches the worst start in team history. Baltimore started 1-6 in 1955.

A's 4, Angels 3

OAKLAND (AP) — Jim Essian led off the ninth inning with a home run over the left-field fence to give the Oakland A's a 4-3 victory over the California Angels Saturday.

Essian's blast was his first hit of the year and came on a 1-0 pitch from Angels reliever Curt Kaufman, 0-2. Bill Caudill, 3-0, got the victory despite failing to hold a lead in relief for the third time this season.

Tim Conroy was sailing along with a two-hitter until the eighth inning when the Angels scored three runs to tie the score 3-3.

Odessa hands Steers defeat

By BILLY NABOURS
Sports Editor

You just knew this was going to be it. It seemed like the Big Spring Steers were seeing light at the end of their tunnel which is the District 4-5A baseball race. But the light simply proved to be another in a series of oncoming trains as the Odessa High Bronchos finally captured an up and down contest, 17-14 Saturday evening at Steers Field.

The crash leaves Big Spring staring at an 0-10 league record while Odessa is 6-4.

For awhile, however it looked as if the Steers were the engineers, railroading the Bronchos to a 6-1 deficit after two innings on the strength of a Jerry Anderson three run homer in te first and run scoring doubles and a triple by John Hart, Robert Porras and Danny Arista in the second.

Odessa took a 1-0 lead off starting pitcher David Renteria when Freddy Alvarado singled in Boyd Cowan who had doubled.

Cowan was the starting pitcher for Odessa, but the all-around athlete was driven from the mound after allowing five runs in two and two thirds innings. He faced 11 batters, walking two, giving up four hits and striking out one.

His replacement, Tommy Olivas, struggled throughout, but Odessa hitting managed just a little better than Steers batters down the stretch.

Olivas was hit for nine base raps over the course of his four and one third innings of work. He walked two and hit a batter, struckout five.

After Big Spring took its 6-1 lead, Odessa came back with two in the third. The Steers worked hits by Jay Pirkle and Sammy Watson and a walk to Renteria into a 9-3 lead, however. IN the fourth Renteria encountered trouble when a triple, single and double, plus two walks and an error pulled Odessa to within one at 9-8. He was pulled in favor of Pirkle who came in from his centerfielder's position.

Pirkle lasted through two batters in the fourth and tossed to six in the fifth before leaving after the Bronchos regained an 11-9 advantage.

Pirkle's replacement, Tommy Gartman struckout the one batter he faced in the fifth to get the Steers out without further damage being done.

In the sixth the Steers went wild, sending 10 men to the plate in a five run inning to go back in front, 14-11.

Gartman helped his effort with a single that tied the game at 11-11 when Arista and Pirkle scored. Arista singled to get on base and Pirkle was safe on an error at second. Sammy Watson, singling ahead of Gartman, and Gartman made the score 13-11 in favor of the Steers when both came home off a fielder's choice that turned into an error by Odessa's Olivas. Hart gave the Steers their final run of the inning and game when he singled in Chris Lamb who was put on when he was hit by a pitch.

Odessa reached Gartman for three runs to knot things in the seventh, prompting Renteria's return. A walk and a two singles provided the Bronchos with their cushion.

Meanwhile, the Steers saw a rally fall short when Anderson and Pirkle were left stranded in the bottom of the seventh after a single and double respectively.

Big Spring will travel to Abilene Tuesday, Apr. 17 to face district leading Cooper in a 4 p.m. contest. The next home game for the Steers is Thursday, Apr. 19 at 4 p.m. against Midland Lee.

OTHER GAMES

In other district action Saturday, Coper blanked Midland High, 9-0; Lee bested Abilene High, 5-3; and San Angelo Central popped Permian, 11-1.

Dodgers record fourth straight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Terry Whitfield knocked in four runs with a homer and a double to lead Los Angeles to its fourth straight victory, 8-4 over San Francisco Saturday.

The former Giant, who played the past three seasons in Japan, drove in a run with a double in the first inning and cracked a three-run homer in the second when the Dodgers scored four unearned runs.

Alejandro Pena, 1-1, earned the victory with relief help from Tom Niedenfuer and rookie Orel Hershisier, who yielded a two-run homer to John Rabb in the ninth inning. Mike Krukow, 1-2, took the loss.

Phillies 4, Expos 3

MONTREAL (AP) — Juan Samuel tripled home Kiko Garcia to break a seventh-inning tie, enabling the Philadelphia Phillies to defeat the Montreal Expos 4-3 Saturday.

Garcia opened the inning with a walk against reliever Dan Schatzeder, 0-1, who had just entered the game. Samuel then lined a pitch into the gap in right-center field to drive in the run.

Larry Andersen, 1-1, who replaced starter Steve Carlton in the sixth, gave up one hit in 1 1-3 innings for the victory, and Al Holland pitched the final two innings for his second save.

Cubs 5, Mets 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Leon Durham drove in two runs with a homer and a single, and Rn Cey's double keyed a wild, three-run first inning Saturday as the Chicago Cubs hung on for a 5-2 victory over the New York Mets. Durham drove in one of the first-inning runs, then hit his first homer of the season in the eighth inning.

With one out in the first, Ryne Sandberg reached first when second baseman Wally Backman booted his ground ball for an error. Gary Matthews followed with a single and Durham singled to score Sandberg. Cey doubled to left to score Matthews.

Mel Hall singled to left to score Durham, but Cey was out rounding third on George Foster's throw to Hubie Brooks, and Hall was run down between first and second with center fielder Mookie Wilson coming in to make the putout.

Gold fever hits Maulers, 31-21

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Reserve quarterback Bob Gagliano threw for two touchdowns and ran for a two-point conversion in just over one quarter of playing time as the Denver Gold, trailing 21-0 in the second half, charged back for a 31-21 United States Football League victory over the Pittsburgh Maulers Saturday.

Wide receiver Kevin Williams ran 18 yards on an end-around for the game-winning touchdown with 6:08 remaining as the Gold improved to 7-1. The Maulers, beaten in touchdown that cut the Maulers' lead to 21-19.

Scrambling for a tying two-point conversion, Gagliano was seemingly stopped a few feet away from the goal line, but used second effort to dive into the end zone despite vehement Maulers' protests that he had already been downed.

After an interception, Gagliano needed only four plays to score, hitting Elmer Bailey on a 17-yard gain the play before Williams' scoring run.

Speedman added a 20-yard field goal with 1:48

WRAPPED UP — Washington Redskins Willie Holley (24) and Joe Hines (52) put the wraps on runningback Thornton Sidney of the Oklahoma Outlaws during their game Saturday. Oklahoma kept the wraps on runningback Thornton Fed's winless.

tory over the Washington Redskins Saturday before a crowd of 6,075.

Williams hit 24 of 44 passes for 333 yards on the day and moved the Redskins 93 yards in the last four minutes to give Oklahoma their third straight victory and spoiled Washington's shot at its first victory in eight games.

Jeff Brockhaus kicked three field goals, the first by the Redskins this year, to give Washington a 9-6 lead in the third quarter.

Brockhaus kicked field goals of 40, 25, and 43 yards.

Quarterback Reggie Collier ran for a touchdown on a 2-yard bootleg to give the Redskins a 16-6 lead midway through the third quarter.

Efren Herrera kicked two field goals for Oklahoma but missed a 38-yarder after a bad snap with seven minutes left that could have tied the score.

The Redskins opened the scoring on their first possession with a 40-yard field goal by Brockhaus. Brockhaus was helped by a 12-yard pass from Mike Hohensee to Greg Taylor on a third-and-17 play from the Oklahoma 35.

Brockhaus made good on his next attempt from 25 yards with 1:34 remaining in the first quarter. The kick followed a 54-yard pass from Hohensee to Mike Fisher to the Oklahoma 11.

The Redskins held scoreless through the first quarter, got on the board with 10:25 to go in the first half with a 24-yard field goal by Herrera.

Brockhaus' third consecutive field goal attempt connected early in the third quarter. The 43-yard kick followed pass completions to Joey Walters and Eric Robinson and an 18-yard run by Curtis Bledsoe.

Hohensee suffered a possible concussion on the play and Collier replaced him.

Rains disrupts Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Mark Lye, hounding a one-shot lead, will be presented with an opportunity to expand that margin when third-round play resumes Sunday morning in the storm-disrupted 48th Masters tournament.

Lye and his closest pursuer, Tom Kite, hit their tee shots on the water-guarded and extremely difficult, par-3 12th hole at the Augusta National Golf Club course before the second in a series of afternoon thunderstorms forced a halt in the day's play at 6:06 p.m., EST. Play had been held up for an hour earlier in the day.

Kite, Lye and 17 others marked their positions on the course and are due to complete third-round play beginning at 8 a.m., EST. After new pairings are made, fourth-round play will begin at approximately 10:54 a.m., tournament officials said.

"It could be a blessing in disguise for me," Lye said. "I was playing a little bit shaky. It gives me a chance to regroup," said Lye, who had a three-stroke lead at the end of the first two rounds.

"I'm sure I'll have an easier night than last night. It was brutal. My first night in the spotlight."

Lye will have a 20-foot birdie putt when play resumes while Kite's tee shot spun off the green and into a bunker.

That's where they left it because, Lye said, "a deluge was coming down."

"I know what I have to do. Today, I just didn't have the ammo. On the eighth tee, I told my caddy there was no way I could have saved any more shots than I have this week."

"This is the absolute peak of my game."

Lye said he and Kite were on the 12th tee when the storm approached.

"I kept telling Tom, 'Let's go ahead and hit before they suspend play.' That's one hole you don't want to wake up to," he said.

"I never want to play that hole," Kite said. "It's scary."

Lye, a lanky man whose long, loose gait has won him the nickname "Strider," retained his overnight three-shot advantage through the first eight holes, but spent two of those shots with a double bogey-6 on the ninth.

That dropped him back to nine under par for the tournament, and he stayed at that figure until play was halted.

Kite, a frequent challenger but not yet a winner in this, the first of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness, was eight under through 11 holes.

"I'm still playing well. I'm secure in my game. I'm hitting the ball well, and I'm putting well," he said.

Ben Crenshaw, who elected to finish play on the 13th hole while thunder rumbled, lightning flashed and rain fell on Amen Corner, was next. He went seven under for the tournament—two under for the day—when he two-putted for birdie-4 on the 13th.

Under the rules, when play is suspended, the player has the option of completing play on the hole he is playing. But he is not required to do so.

And Tom Watson, the two-time Masters champion who has put himself back into contention here, chose not to.

"If I came back later on, or tomorrow, I feel like I would lose the feeling for the putt," Crenshaw said in explaining his actions.

And Watson, his playing partner, explained why he did not finish the 13th but marked his ball on the green as the dark clouds grew darker, the temperature dropped and the storm approached.

"I couldn't see the hole," Watson said. David Graham, an Australian now living in the United States who has previous victories in the U.S. Open and PGA, held the No. 4 position. He was six under through 12 holes.

Watson, Nick Faldo of England and local product Larry Mize were five under. Watson and Faldo had completed 12 holes, Mize 15.

Larry Nelson, the current U.S. Open champion, was one of the early starters and got his round of 66 in before play was called off for the day.

With a 54-hole total of five-under-par 213, the slightly-built little man had placed himself in the title chase.

"I knew I'd have to shoot a low round either today or tomorrow to have a chance to win it," Nelson said.

"If I can get off to a fast start tomorrow, I have a chance."

He was tied with Fred Couples, recent winner of the Tournament Players Championship and the season's leading money-winner. Couples shot a third-round 67.

USFL Roundup

the final minute last week by the New Orleans Breakers, erupted for a 21-0 first-half lead on three touchdowns passes by Glenn Carano, two to Greg Anderson, and Mike Rozier's first 100-yard rushing effort as a professional.

But the Gold seemed to come to life after Gagliano, a fourth-year professional from Utah State, replaced the injured Craig Penrose with Denver trailing 21-7.

On his first play in the game, Gagliano threw 15 yards to Leonard Harris for a first down, then rifled a 25-yard scoring pass to Harris on the next play to rally the Gold to within 21-13 with 9:19 to go. Brian Speedman missed the extra point after a bad snap.

Gagliano drove the Gold 72 yards in 10 plays on the next possession, throwing 5 yards to Harris for a remaining. Carano connected on scoring tosses of 24 and 21 yards to Anderson and 65 yards to Jackie Flowers. Rozier rushed for a pro-high 137 yards on 24 carries, his first 100-yard game since he played for Nebraska.

Penrose, who left the game with apparent torn knee ligaments, tossed a 34-yard touchdown pass to Kevin Williams with 5:23 left in the third period for Denver's first score.

One half of Runnels doubles claims title in singles division

One half of the eighth grade boys doubles champs from Runnels Junior High added another first in singles competition Saturday as Aaron Allen claimed easy 6-1, 6-1 sets for the title in junior high tennis tournament action at Big Spring's Figure 7 Tennis Center.

Allen teamed with Quade Weaver for the doubles title on Friday. Weaver reached the quarter-finals in singles action.

Angie Wilson made the consolation finals where she dropped an 8-5 decision.

For Goliad seventh graders Troy Simonek reached the boys consolation final.

Coach Kim Hood also singled out eighth graders Amber Logback and Stacey Parks for playing well as Runnels claimed second place in the overall team standings with 27 points. Andrews won the team title with 45 points and San Angelo Lincoln was third with 22 points.

Seventh grade team honors went to San Angelo Glenn with 29 points and San Angelo Lee was second with 19.

The next competition for Runnels and Goliad tennis players is in two weeks at the Andrews Junior High Tennis Tournament.

Player Profile

One of three seniors on the Big Spring High School baseball team, Joe Anderson, Jr., is also one of the largest at 6-0, 205 pounds.

The personable Anderson has been playing organized baseball for 10 years, first in Arkansas and then Arizona before locating in Big Spring with his parents Joe and Carolyn Anderson and brother Jerry.

Joe can handle seven positions, having seen time at catcher, first base, left and centerfield, third base and pitcher.

He said he plays because, "I think baseball is a very exciting sport and it keeps you active. That's why I'm playing."

But Anderson also enjoys fishing, bowling, jogging, swimming, football, rugby, auto racing and soccer as other sports interests. Favorite subjects at BSHS include shop and physical education. He is also a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

JOE ANDERSON

He cites his parents as being the influential force behind his sporting interests. "They (parents) gave me the opportunity to always get involved, yet they never forced me," he said.

Joe hopes to attend Howard College after graduation from BSHS. Post-high school plans call for earning the needed credits in which to enter the firefighting profession. Joe said he would also welcome any chance to play college baseball.

Soviets come down hard on LA

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press is waging its harshest campaign yet over the Los Angeles Olympics, complaining about everything from smog to security but avoiding direct threats of a boycott.

Some Soviet sources say there won't be a boycott, and Western experts also are optimistic about Soviet participation.

The Westerners see the escalating campaign of complaints as an effort to score propaganda points off the Reagan administration, avenge the U.S. boycott of the 1980 Moscow Games and win more concessions from U.S. officials.

The United States already has agreed, for example, to suspend the ban on Soviet airline flights during the Games.

Soviet charges about the 1984 Summer Games have been aired regularly for two years. But they intensified last week, with the Soviets quoting a host of sports personalities and officials from Communist-bloc nations to back their arguments.

The International Olympic Committee, meanwhile, has called a special session between Soviet sports officials and Los Angeles Olympic organizers to discuss the Soviets' complaints about preparations for the Games. The Soviets had requested the special session.

A statement from Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, termed the Soviet complaints "baseless," and confirmed organizers have been invited to send a delegation to IOC headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland, April 24.

Marat Gramov, head of the Soviet Sports and Olympic Committees, plans a rare news conference Monday on the Olympics, which will be held July 28 to Aug. 12.

Gramov has said the Soviet Union has no plans for a boycott, but a final decision on whether to go probably won't be announced before the June 2 deadline. The Soviet statement asking for an IOC meeting began by noting the impending deadline and adding that Moscow considers crucial issues unresolved.

Last week, the Soviets withdrew from demonstration tennis matches planned for the Olympics. Although officials declined comment, some Soviet sources say the decision was unrelated to the question of Soviet participation in the Olympics.

"The Olympic committee probably has decided that our tennis team is too weak," said a source close to the sports establishment. "It's only a demonstration event anyway," with no medals at stake.

He and other Soviet sources say preparations for the Olympics are proceeding "vigorously."

The Soviets attach great importance to the Olympics, as they do to all sporting events. They are a chance to show off the nation's considerable sports prowess and to gain favorable publicity.

The Kremlin also has accused Washington of violating Olympic ideals with the 1980 boycott and has portrayed the Soviet Union as a guardian of the Olympic flame. A boycott of the 1984 Games might smear that image.

Steers score in two 4-5A events

ODESSA — Jimmy Cearley had the best showing for the Big Spring varsity here Friday at the boy's 4-5A track and field meet.

Cearley placed fourth in the discus with a fling of 149-0, marking the fifth straight meet where he has notched the Steers' highest finish. It was Cearley's first sub-third place performance in a month, but the senior proved consistent. Cearley threw the oval 145-plus in each of his final five meets.

Adding to the Steers' total of six points was the 400 meter relay of Eric Sherman, Billy Wegner, Roddy Fair and Dale Crenshaw. The foursome raced fifth in a time of 44.7 — the best of the year for the Black and Gold.

JV TEAM SPARKLES

Meanwhile the future looks good for Big Spring track and field.

The Steers' junior varsity finished third in its division, bolstered by first places from Dax McCracken in the 800 (2:03) and Roland Montana in the 1600 (4:58).

The 1600 relay team of McCracken, Brian Reid, Collin Carroll and Derek Logback clocked third in 3:38. In individual events, Carroll took third in the high jump at 5-8 for the only field event points by the Steers' JV; Logback gained another third in the 110 hurdles (16.3); Montana ran second in the 3200 (10:45); and Dewayne Sherman placed fourth in the 300 hurdles (42.5).

Some more relay points were earned when the 400 team of McCracken, Reid, Alex Minter and Sherman turned a fifth place 45.7.

Also contributing for the JV Steers were Minter who made the finals in the 100 meters with an 11.6; and Carlos Beck and Bobby Madigan who qualified in the 110 highs.

Coahoma tunes up for regional meet

ODESSA — Colorado City and Coahoma will help make up the field here at the Region-1 girls track and field meet slated for Ratliff Stadium Monday and Tuesday, Apr. 16-17.

Colorado City will be led by sophomore sprinter Sandra Williams who qualified in the long jump, triple jump, 100 meters, 200 meters and the 400 meter relay team.

Sophomore Sherry Fite will represent the Lady Wolves in the 400 meters and Lin Scott will compete in the 100 meters. Williams, Fite, Scott and Staci Free make up the Colorado City sprint relay team.

Coahoma will send two individuals and its 1600 meter relay squad of Tobie Henry, Gina Hudson, Janna Griffin and Leslie Kirkpatrick. Stephanie Dobbs is an alternate for the relay team.

The Bulldogettes tuned up for the trek towards Austin by competing in a regional qualifiers meet at Wall Friday.

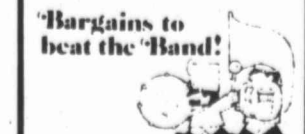

Henry, a senior, went 5-0 in the high jump for fourth place and then ripped the field in the 400 meters with record for her according to coach Bill Dennis.

Henry then helped Coahoma wind its time down in the 1600 meter relay to a 4:11.48, giving the Bulldogettes the third best time in the event heading into the start of Monday's competition.

Foreigners favored for Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Devoid of the top American competitors, the tradition-steeped Boston Marathon will be run Monday for the 88th time, with Geoff Smith of Britain and Allison Roe of New Zealand the favorites.

If the Masters is golf's rite of spring, then the 26-mile, 385-yard trek from the quaint village of Hopkinton, west of Boston, to the finish line at the Prudential Center in the heart of Boston, holds the same claim for runners.

If the New York City Marathon has perhaps achieved the most international acclaim among these mushrooming long-distance races, because of its wide-ranging television package, Boston can more than match it in mystique.

"I've been in love with the Boston Marathon all my life," says John A. Kelley, the bandy legged, high-spirited 76-year-old who will be running the race for the 53rd time Monday, and appropriately wearing No. 53.

Although no Olympic champion has won the Boston Marathon, the annual Patriot's Day extravaganza, which this year has attracted a field of about 6,500, all of whom met the event's qualifying standards, the race has produced some of the most distinguished winners in long-distance running history, both foreigners and Americans.

Among the men, the elite have included:
— Alberto Salazar, the fastest marathoner ever.
— Bill Rodgers, a four-time champion and the former American record holder.

— The indestructible Kelley, the winner in 1935 and 1945, and a seven-time runner-up.

— Clarence DeMar, the winner of a record seven Boston Marathons, the first in 1911, the last in 1930.

— Toshihiko Seko, the 1981 champion, who, along with Rob de Castella of Australia, is considered the favorite for the gold medal in this year's Olympic marathon at Los Angeles.

The Olympic champions who have run Boston but failed have included Frank Shorter, the first American to win the Games' gold medal in 64 years, when he finished first in 1972 and set off the long-distance running boom in the United States, and Ethiopian Abebe Bikila, the barefoot sensation who won Olympic titles in 1960 and 1964.

Among the women, who first officially entered the race in 1972, the best-remembered have included:

— Joan Benoit, a two-time winner who last year cut more than 2½ minutes off the world best with a clocking of 2 hours, 22 minutes, 43 seconds.

— Kathy Switzer, who paved the way for women in the Boston Marathon by running as an unofficial entrant in 1967.

— Nina Kusick, the first woman to win Boston, and she was the first woman to win New York.

— Roe, with a then course-record 2:26:46 in 1981.

— Roberta Gibb, the first woman known to have run Boston, in 1966, when she hid in the bushes and waited until about half the runners had gone by before slipping into the crowd of men.

Through the years, the race — while refraining from offering prize money, as is done by most big races nowadays, and not even offering expense money — still has attracted the top Americans plus the best from Finland, Japan, Ethiopia, Greece, Canada, Korea, Belgium, Sweden and New Zealand.

It also has attracted its share of characters, such as Will Cloney, the race director from 1946-82; Jock Semple, a member of the marathon team since 1929, and best known for trying to rip the number off Switzer as she was running the 1967 race, and Rosie Ruiz, who jumped into the 1980 race about a mile from the finish and claimed to be the woman's winner after being the first woman to cross the finish line.

LOOKING FOR NUMBER ONE — Geoff Smith of Liverpool, England, and a student at Providence College, holds up the number he was given to wear as the top male qualifier for the 88th running of the Boston Marathon. The race will be at noon Monday.

This year, as in most Olympic years, the best Americans are missing, awaiting their trials for the Los Angeles Games — the women at Olympia, Wash., May 12 and the men at Buffalo, N.Y., May 26.

That leaves Smith, the heartbreaking runner-up in his first marathon in New York City last October, the only sub-2:10 entrant in the field. He is competing mainly because he wants to assure himself of a spot on the British Olympic team.

The British Amateur Athletic Board will select the three marathoners for its team May 15, two days after the London Marathon.

"I think if I run a good race in Boston, I should convince them I deserve to be on the team," said Smith, a 29-year-old Providence College senior who led the New York City race from the 16th through the 26th miles before being overtaken by Rod Dixon of New Zealand with 385 yards remaining.

"To gain automatic selection, I would have to do something special, like break 2:09 — or win. I'm going to Boston to win," added Smith, who completed New York in 2:09:08, the fastest first-time marathon ever.

Veteran Tom Fleming of Bloomfield, N.J. also was going to Boston in hopes of winning, but that was before he learned that Smith would be in the race.

The 33-year-old Fleming, a two-time winner of the New York City Marathon and a top-10 finisher in Boston six times, said he was running Boston because, "I'm very realistic. I don't think I can make the Olympic team. I'd be foolish to think that. I'm just not fast enough."

"People say to me, 'You wouldn't want to win Boston in a weak year?' The heck I wouldn't. I'll win it anytime I can!"

Fleming's personal best is 2:12:05, when he finished third in Boston in 1975.

Majors, US Team to play

DALLAS — Former Big Spring High School standout Rose Majors, now a member of the 1984 USA Women's National Volleyball Team, will make her nearest appearance in this area when the Americans take on China in the start of a five game-city series Wednesday, Apr. 18.

Action gets underway at Dallas' Loos Fieldhouse at 7:30 p.m. as Majors and her teammates, currently ranked number one in its region, play traditional world power China which is ranked second.

Majors is one of the starting six for the USA which is expected to field its strongest team ever at the games this summer in Los Angeles.

After playing China in Dallas, the US team hits the road and will play the Chinese again during the Easter weekend in Minneapolis.

Loos Fieldhouse is located in North Dallas between Marsh and Midway Roads.

Q: In preparing to sell my house, I've been told I will have to have the property resurveyed before closing the sale. Why?

A: When a surveyor "recertifies" a property, he goes over the property to make sure everything is the same as when originally surveyed. This is important because if there has been a change in the buildings on the property, those changes will be reflected in the survey, and such a change could mean a violation of local zoning laws, or something unfavorable to the property which was not unfavorable before. The survey should also reveal easements and encroachments that public records do not reflect.

Student Council officers chosen

The new cheerleaders that will lead the 1984-85 cheering season were elected by the student body Wednesday, April 11.

Supporting the junior high teams will be the seventh grade cheerleaders Trina Whitaker, Krista Thomas, Robin Musser and Melissa Bedell. Eighth grade cheerleaders will be Anne Damron, Andrea Ray, Sheila Kelly and Paige Wilson. Freshman bulldog cheerleaders elected are Shonna Drewery, Jo Hudson and Nancy Hardison. Traci Dorsey, Karen McCoy and Dani Perkins were elected to the junior varsity cheerleading squad. Varsity football cheerleaders for the 1984-85 football season will be Stephanie Dobbs, Rita Uranga, Valerie Calaway, Leslie Kirkpatrick, Jeanie Robertson and Marilyn Newton. Varsity basketball cheerleaders are Frances Camp, Michaele Craft, Pam Briscoe, Candy Joiner, Dana Reid and Lori Wyrick. Coahoma High School also has a new mascot, Mark Roen, who is the first male to ever be elected as cheerleader or mascot.

Teachers of Coahoma High elected the Who's Who in Coahoma High School during the week of April 9. Seniors elected to Who's Who are Joe Don Wright, Tobie Henry, Jenna Brown, Gloria Molina, Ronda Fowler, Mila Gellido, Donna Myers and Janna Griffin. Shawn Justiss, Gina Hudson, John Swinney and David Shaw were elected as juniors to Who's Who. In order to be elected to Who's Who, a junior or senior student must maintain an average of 85 while participating in at least three extracurricular activities and showing good character at all times.

The senior class elected Senior Personalities during the week of April 2. Chosen for Beauty and Beast were Tobie Henry and Robbie Phernetton; Most Bashful — Diana Sipes and Joe Don Wright, Most Spirited — Laura McCartney and Tony Burnett, and Most Friendly — Robin King and James Sanders. Also chosen for personalities were Donna Myers and David Gross — Most Gullible, Irma Padron and Carey Jones — Best Dressed, Melissa Paige and Robbie Phernetton — Most Mischievous, Ronda Fowler and James Sanders — Most Talented, and Lisa Thompson and Tony Burnett — Biggest Flirt.

The entire student body of Coahoma High elected Joe Don Wright and Tobie Henry for Mr. and Miss CHS. Elections were based on popularity from the list of Who's Who made by the teachers. Congratulations to Tobie and Joe Don.

The All Sports Banquet will be held April 26 at 6:30 p.m. in the Elementary Cafeteria. Tickets may be purchased from Darlene Reid, Bill Musser or Larry Hudson.

April 19 is the date for the district varsity boys track meet which will be held in Coahoma.

Student body elects cheerleaders

As the end of the school year approaches, many clubs and organizations begin holding their 1984-85 school year elections.

Last Friday, April 13, Student Council officer elections were held. Julie Miller was elected as president. Sam Gladden and Jim Cowan will serve as vice presidents. Recording secretary will be Tonya Stevenson and Lori Griffice will serve as corresponding secretary.

Also on Friday, cheerleader elections were held. Juniors elected to the varsity squad were Adrienne Allen, John Buzbee, Pricilla Escanuela and Becky Griffith. Brenda Shirey will be the junior alternate. Sophomores elected were Suzanne Bowers, Tracy Kilgore and Chandra Wrightsil. Crystal Patrick will be the sophomore alternate. The junior varsity cheerleaders for next year will be Sheila Cunningham, Larrie Norman, Christy Malone, Mary Anita Trevino and Tessa Underwood. Sammy Watson will be the mascot.

Elections for 1984-85 officers were held at the National Honor Society meeting last Thursday. Mark Corwin was elected as president, Julie Miller will serve as vice president, secretary will be Kristie Grimes, and Blair Richardson will be treasurer. Also at the meeting, Jerry Anderson, junior, was inducted into National Honor Society.

On Wednesday, April 18, all students 16 years or older who are interested in working for the Youth Corps this summer in Big Spring will be allowed to go to the cafeteria at 3:10 p.m. to meet with city officials.

School will be dismissed at 2:45 p.m. Thursday, April 19, for the Easter holidays. There will be no school Friday, April 20, and Monday, April 23.

Teen guilty of killing ex-lover's boyfriend

Phillip McClendon

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (A) — A 17-year-old high school senior was convicted of murder Saturday in the rifle slaying of her former female lover's new boyfriend.

Kimberly Branham and her parents wept when the Lake County Circuit Court jury returned its verdict after deliberating for more than eight hours.

Judge Fred H. Geiger, who set sentencing for May 7, ordered Miss Branham held in the Lake County jail. The murder conviction carries a sentence of 20 to 40 years in prison.

"There's not a lot to be happy about," prosecutor Matthew Chancey said. "It was a tragic verdict all the way around."

Miss Branham, of Long Grove, was charged with murder in the Jan. 2 death of Kurt Barlow, 19, of Wildwood. Barlow was shot with a high-powered rifle as he stood at a window in the Lincolnshire home of Elizabeth Lou, 18.

The case went to the jury Friday after nearly four days of testimony. The courtroom had been filled to capacity with as many as 100 people, including relatives of Barlow and Miss Lou.

Cheerleaders for the 1984-85 school year at Sands High School are head cheerleader Kris Marshall and Lisa Iden, Sandra Franco, Michelle Herm, Michelle Hall and Shannon Marshall. The mascot will be Becky Webb.

Regional qualifiers in UIL literary contest traveled to Levelland this week. They are Leland Bearden in headline writing, Michelle Hall in editorial writing and Pandy Grigg in informative speaking.

Michelle Bayes qualified for the track regionals by placing second in the district discus throw. The regional meet is next week in Levelland. Representing Sands this weekend at the FFA State Convention in San Antonio were Lisa Iden, Sheri Perry and Sandra Franco. Michelle Bayes also attended as the Area II president for next year. Sponsoring the group was Miss Stacy Lee.

Junior high and high school students and their parents are invited to attend a Student Council program Monday, April 16, at 7 p.m. in the cafeteria, where the use and abuse of alcohol and marijuana will be discussed. It is a BYOB (Bring Your Own Banana) Party, where those attending bring the banana and the Student Council furnishes everything else for banana splits.

Report cards were given to students last Wednesday. The last day of school will be May 25.

School will dismiss at 2 p.m. Tuesday, April 17, for the boys' district track meet to be held at Sands.

Easter holidays for Sands students will be Friday and Monday, April 20 and 23.

Pope appeals to youth

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II addressed more than 200,000 youths from around the world Saturday and urged them to play a "prophetic role" in combating world problems and what he called a "culture of death."

"It is up to you to play a kind of prophetic role. You can carry out an action of denunciation against today's evils," the pontiff said from a platform in St. Peter's Square.

Organizers and Vatican Radio said there were 170,000 Italian youths and more than 30,000 others from countries including France, West Germany, Spain, Poland, Japan, and the Philippines in the square. Many were attending the Vatican-sponsored International Youth Jubilee.

The pontiff urged them to "speak above all against the diffuse 'culture of death' which, at least in certain socio-ethnic contexts, reveals itself as a perilous plan inclined toward decline and ruin."

John Paul cited "the overwhelming folly of a nuclear conflict" and "drugs... recourse to terror, eroticism," as examples of the "culture of death."

Other examples he gave were abortion, euthanasia and exclusion of the old and disabled.

On the platform with the pope were Mother Teresa of Calcutta and Italian Premier Bettino Craxi.

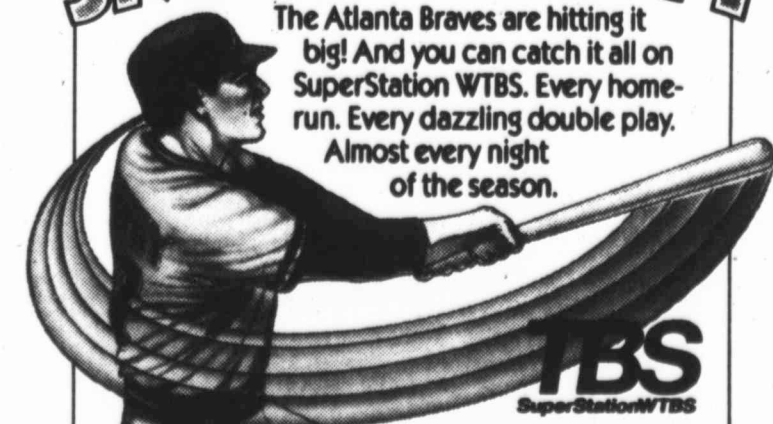

Before the rally in St. Peter's Square, the youths made a four-hour march through Rome's historic center.

The jubilee was held as part of the Roman Catholic church's Extraordinary Holy Year of the Redemption, declared by the pope to commemorate the 1950th anniversary of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ.

ENJOY WASHING DISHES — Large bay windows, at kitchen den & master bedroom look into wooded, scenic cedar covered Edwards Heights lot. This home must have been picked right out of Better Homes & Garden. Handsome s-p-a-c-i-o-u-s 2 br brick. So lovely! $115,000.
 SOMETHING DRAMATIC — This home has all the usual features you'd expect to find in an executive type home — 3br 2 bath, central air, dbl garage, formal dining & College Park location but its cathedral ceiling family room & 10 ft. fireplace adds extra drama. No qualifying — Assume existing FHA loan. $135,000.
 YES! THIS IS CORRECT — Edwards Heights location for only $34,500. Pretty 3br formal dining, 6 ft. tile block fence. Neighborhood of expensive homes near VA hospital.
 IF TWO OF YOU — (This home & you) could meet — it could have a new owner & you in an executive type home for $38,000 on Morrison St. available.
 ITS — A 3 br 1 bath College Park home with swimming pool, new carpet & recent low interest loan that's assumable. End all worry of future higher mortgage payments. Lo, lo, to $2,500.00 equity & assume loan. Nice! Nice! Nice! $34,500.
 THIS IS A DRIVE BY — Home, at 1202 Lloyd St. brick, 2 br 1 bath, with paneled den, fireplace, refrigerated air, double garage. $250.00 down with new FHA loan.
 $27,800 — COLLEGE PARK — 3 br 1 bath, carpet. Handy to school, shopping & every major convenience.
 16 ACRE RANCH — Forsan School — with newer 2 br 2 bath home. Open, spacious family room & much to admire. $135,000.
 4 ACRES — Of beautiful panoramic country side view. Water well. $12,000.
 FEW COUNTRY HOMES — Can offer all this for $39,000. 17 ft. x 30' living room, formal dining area, dishwasher, stove, beautiful fireplace, custom cabinet breakfast bar, storm windows, custom drapes, fenced. 3 br 1 bath, Sand Springs area.

Parvo

Protect your dog from disease

By RHONDA WOODALL Lifestyle Writer

Part of caring for man's best friend, the dog, is giving him all the necessary shots. One of these shots is for a relatively new disease called Parvo virus.

"Parvo is a strange and nasty disease. It is deadly, but preventable and treatable," said Betty Innis, kennel owner. "Parvo strikes the very young and the very old dogs. It's a devastating thing to have happen to a dog."

Parvo virus effects the dog's intestines. "In the intestines are structures called villi which are finger-like projections," said Dr. Bobby Lawdermilk, veterinarian. "The villi increase the absorption area of the intestine. The virus attacks the villi and destroys them."

'Parvo can be controlled through the vaccine, but it's not going to go away. Without vaccinating your dog, you can't protect him from it.'

VETERINARIANS started recognizing the disease Parvo during the late 1970s. "We don't know where it came from for sure. Up until that time we didn't have a disease like it."

As far as Lawdermilk is concerned, Parvo seems to be a contagious and communal disease caught by breathing the air or through direct contact.

"The virus does not only effect absorption but also leaves an area in the intestine susceptible to bacterial invasion, which can lead to blood poison."

Since Parvo effects the intestines, the dog with Parvo will have intestinal-like symptoms including vomiting, diarrhea and blotting of the stool.

Although some symptoms are evident, "some dogs just lay down and dehydrate on you," said Mrs. Innis. "Animals don't show symptoms like humans. When it has symptoms you can bet it's sick."

"WHEN PARVO HITS, it hits quick," she said. "If you get the dog to the vet, you can stop it just as quick."

"Their best chance for recovery is if you treat them as soon as you notice the symptoms. You've got to treat them right then. You can't wait until the next day," she said.

If a person can't find a veterinarian when his dog becomes ill at night or on the weekends, he can take the dog to Permian Basin Emergency Veterinarian Clinic between Odessa and Midland. "It's just like the hospital's emergency room," Mrs. Innis said.

A vaccine does exist for Parvo. "Parvo can be controlled through the vaccine, but it's not going to go away. Without vaccinating your dog, you can't protect him from it," Mrs. Innis said. "When you are having an outbreak of it, nobody's dog is safe unless it is vaccinated. The vaccination can mean the difference between life and death."

The Parvo vaccine has an 85 percent effective rate, said Lawdermilk and Mrs. Innis. "During Parvo season, the best medicine is not to take any chances," said Mrs. Innis. When a person takes his dog to get his shot, he should tell the veterinarians to give the dog all the necessary shots. That way no disease is overlooked.

PUT IT HERE, PAL — Betty Innis gives her dog, Lady, a hug. Mrs. Innis wanted to make sure Lady was protected from all diseases including Parvo, so she took Lady to the veterinarian to get all her shots.

Dixie Hogan helps folks along Mexican border

By RHONDA WOODALL Lifestyle Writer

Dixie Hogan volunteered her time, service and love to needy people along the Rio Grande River, recently. A woman in her seventies, Dixie Hogan is wife of the late Dr. John Hogan and retired registered nurse and senior citizen.

Mrs. Hogan went with 115 West Texans as part of a medical mission for Rio Grande River Ministry of the Missions Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, March 10-16. The expedition was coordinated by Dr. Gilmer B. Johnson of Plainview.

Mrs. Hogan learned about the river ministry from Baptist publications. She wrote the group and "asked them to let me know when they needed a registered nurse to go on one of their trips."

AMONG THE VOLUNTEERS were two dentists, four physicians, six registered nurses, two dental assistants, four licensed vocational nurses, two interpreters and one lab technician.

About 60 young people from Plainview Baptist Church also went on the trip to teach vacation Bible school. Some people did odd jobs like cooking, hauling water and setting up tents. The group worked in the Candelaria area, which included Vada de Piedra, Ruidosa, San Antonio de Bravo, El Comedor and Los Fresnos.

Volunteers were responsible for paying their own expenses on the trip. "We made the trip and gave the service without expecting anything in return. From beginning to end the whole trip was unconditional love," Mrs. Hogan said. "We did it voluntarily because we believe that loving your neighbor means helping people in need."

"We went because there was a need. Some of those people live more than 100 miles from a doctor. All they have is worn-out trucks and rough roads to go over. You can see it is an almost impossible situation."

The supplies for the mission was donated. "We had a tremendous amount of supplies. Medicine, vitamins, infant food and first aid equipment were furnished by doctors, pharmaceutical companies and pharmacies."

The supplies were of great expense. The people couldn't have bought these things, if they had needed them. But we had it for them (for free)."

Volunteers were given assignments before they went on the trip. "We opened up a little clinic building that had already been established, and took care of all the people who came in. The people were notified ahead of time that we were coming." The volunteers treated 323 patients.

ONE THING, MRS. HOGAN found interesting was "that some of those people walked as far as five miles to come to the clinic."

The people who were helped by the volunteers "were very appreciative, cooperative and courteous."

One thing Mrs. Hogan remembers with delight was the children's eyes as they lit up. One woman had brought new coloring books and crayons for the children. "The kids' eyes would just brighten up when they were given little gifts like that."

While on the medical mission, the volunteers "roughed it. We had no running water, no lights and no heat. And the temperature got down to 31 degrees at night," Mrs. Hogan said. "However, no one deserted camp and no one complained."

Most of the volunteers slept in tents, while a few stayed in mobile homes. Before the trip, "I had never slept in a sleeping bag. I had never roughed it, but I enjoyed it."

PEOPLE ALONG THE border received help not only from the Rio Grande River Ministry, but also from the Los Hermanos De La Frontera. Los Hermanos is a non-profit corporation which handles equipment and supplies and under whose auspices the Rio Grande River Ministry works.

The non-profit corporation "employs local people to carry out such projects as digging wells for villages that do not have water," Mrs. Hogan said. "The people in the village can't hire people to dig a well, so these people do it for them. The group does that type of thing and teaches the people improved agricultural methods and cattle raising."

Mrs. Hogan said she would like to see the churches in Big Spring get together and send a group down to help along the Rio Grande. "My motive is to awaken the people of this area. This group (from the Plainview area) only goes once a year. Who is going to take care of the people the rest of the time?"

REFLECTIONS — Dixie Hogan, retired registered nurse, recalls her trip to the Rio Grande River, March 10-16, to help the needy people in the Candelaria area.

The practice of restoring old homes has gained popularity

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Buying an old house and restoring it to its former grandeur was once confined to a rather small group of home purchasers. Whatever the reason — and it actually has little to do with economics, remodeling costs being what they are — the practice has gained surprising popularity in recent years.

A man whose business is buying old houses and restoring them, Bob Vila, has some advice for homeowners thinking about purchasing old homes to remodel. Question No. 1 was: What is the top priority in searching for a remodeling prospect?

He says: "One of the first things a buyer should do is decide on a prospective neighborhood — or two. This is done by careful research — finding out everything from zoning regulations and tax incentives available for restorations, to the quality of the local school system and the public transportation system."

WHAT'S NEXT DOOR and down the block really counts too. The most magnificent house will be a tough sell if it's adjacent to a super highway or a shopping mall. Also, take a look at — and talk with — your future neighbors. If they're out there on weekends with paint, hammers and nails, it's a good sign the neighborhood's on its way up."

Once you've found the right neighborhood, what then? "Look for a home that's structurally sound — that won't deplete your entire bank account while remodeling it," Vila says. "If the home has sagging or rotting floors, large cracks or water stains on walls and ceilings, crumbling cornices, a sagging roof and exterior detail that's decayed beyond repair, it's not a good

'When I look for a home, I want one that's within the realm of the feasible, one that can be updated without becoming a monstrous undertaking.'

idea to buy it even if you're thrilled about its possibilities.

"Repairs for structural damage can be much too costly and time consuming, and most of us don't have the luxury to live somewhere else while we attempt such a massive renovation project."

What else is important? Is size a consideration? "Certainly. These days, rambling old castles are much too costly to maintain — much less renovate. When I look for a home, I want one that's within the realm of the feasible, one that can be updated without becoming a monstrous undertaking."

IS IT PRACTICAL to buy a home that you plan to gut?

"I don't think so. Why buy an old house unless you plan to preserve its basic design and layout? I think it's important to have a finished home that pleases you, but if you're going to make major structural changes, you may as well buy an old loft or gutted shell in the first place."

What about restoration? What type of home's a good candidate?

"Restoration is an expensive undertaking and requires a lot of time and patience on the part of the homeowner. Often people buy ornate, large homes to restore and realize too late how difficult it is to replace or restore the home's intricate detailing. My advice is to look for a smaller house and plan to restore its basic features like doors, floors and fireplaces. While modernizing the rest."

Anything else buyers should look for?

"Well, in terms of layout, the kitchen and bath must be in workable locations, the bedrooms and living room should be well lit — or at least have the potential for good lighting. As for systems, check that the wiring and plumbing are in good working condition. It's a good idea to have a pro examine them."

WHAT FINAL ADVICE did he have for those who plan to buy and remodel an old house?

"Before committing yourself to an investment, assess what has to be done to the house. Draw up a plan for each room, listing the projects you can do yourself and those that will require a contractor — and estimate the cost for each project, including a cushion for overspending and inflation. After you've done this, you'll be able to determine more realistically if the house is worth your investment in terms of both time and dollars."

"If it is, and you're prepared to exist among the ruins — with dust flying and saws buzzing — then buy."

Road Riders plan its annual Rally

Big Spring Road Riders met at Homestead Inn, April 3. Seven new members were welcomed into the organization. The Crossroads Road Rally will be held at Comanche Trail Park, May 4-6.

About 700 motorcyclists from around the country are expected to attend. Finalized details will be discussed at a special meeting at the Chamber meeting room at 7:30 p.m.

A birthday party was held for Eric Randall following the meeting. Forty-five Road Riders attended the Spring Round at Fort Davis.

The next meeting will be at the Chamber meeting room, May 3 at 7:30 p.m. Persons interested in "good, clean" motorcycling is welcome to attend, says Joyce Chennault, club reporter.

Putting flowers on TV shortens life

It may be the focal point of your room, but the top of the television set is the worst place to display a beautiful bouquet of cut flowers. The reason is that TVs emit heat even when they're turned off, and heat can shorten the life of flowers, says consumer information service of the Florists' Transworld Delivery Association.

"People love to receive flowers but they often forget that they need care," says Penny Peters, FTD representative. "There are just a few things to remember but they can help extend the life and enjoyment of flowers."

Direct sunlight also is bad for bouquets. They generally like cool places, but drafts should be avoided. At night, some people move bouquets to cooler spots in the house, like the basement or garage. One florist recommends putting out the flowers with the cat.

Cut flower arrangements should be watered daily with tepid water. One technique is to put the bouquet in the sink and let lukewarm water run over it gently. Then pour off the excess, dry the container, and redisplay the bouquet.

Florists arrange most bouquets in one of two ways, in floral foam or loosely in water.

Florists pre-soak the foam in water containing a preservative. The foam then acts as a water reservoir and a base for the flowers. The foam can be felt to determine when additional water is needed.

Bouquets arranged loosely in water usually have had a preservative added and regular watering is all that is required. If the vase is clear, you can see when the level is down. If it's not, put your finger in alongside the stems.

Loose flowers which are arranged at home in a vase or container require a little more work, says Peters.

First make sure that the container is scrubbed clean. Then fill it with tepid water, adding a preservative which the florist will give you or sell for a few pennies.

The stems of the flowers should be cut on an angle with a sharp knife before they are put in the vase. The cut opens up the stem so the bloom can drink. The slant prevents the cut from closing over when it rests against the bottom or side of the vase. In addition, remove any foliage from the stems which would be under water in the container. Such foliage can cause bacteria and shorten the life of the blooms.

Stem-cutting also can be used to help revive blooms that droop after a few days. Some florists recommend recutting, again on a slant, while the entire flower is submerged under tepid water.

When some flowers in a bouquet finally wilt for good, they should be removed so they don't affect the healthy blooms, Peters said.

Magazine mentions Joy Decker and local RSVP volunteers

JOY DECKER was mentioned in the latest issue of West Texas Business magazine. She is the Retired Senior Volunteer Program's director locally. The article, titled "Senior Volunteers Our Hidden Resource," was written by HARRISON YOUNGREN, a retired journalism instructor at Angelo State University. It was about the RSVP groups in the West Texas area and how they are a way for retired persons to exercise their career skills in volunteer work.

The article said that as director of the Big Spring RSVP, Joy coordinates more than 300 volunteers who serve at 19 volunteer stations. And it said that during the last fiscal year, more than 50,000 hours of service to the community was logged.

JOHNNIE LOU AVERY is getting well known in the speakers' circle. Last week, she was asked by McDonald's International's headquarters, home of the Big Mac, to speak at its international convention, February 1985. A man from a Dallas brokerage firm had heard her speak somewhere and recommended her to the hamburger corporation.

A few weeks ago, I mentioned that JOYCE CHELETTE had received a new granddaughter, JENNIFER MICHELLE ADAMS, born to MIKE AND SHERRI ADAMS. I said, Jennifer was the fifth living generation in both her mother's and father's families.

Nineteen days later after Jennifer's birth, Joyce received another granddaughter, REBECCA HOPE PHILLIPS. She was born to SANDRA AND JIMMY PHILLIPS of 2003 Runnels, March 29. She arrived weighing 7 pounds and 7 3/4 ounces. Rebecca also is the fifth living generation of her mother's family.

DR. MARK PETERS of Conroe, son of local dentist and owners of C and G Quick Stop DR. AND MRS. CLARENCE PETERS, was a contestant in the Houston Barbecue Cookoff recently. While he was there, an ad agency representing Polaroid was at the cookoff taking pictures of people there. Polaroid notified Mark last Friday week that it wanted to use his photograph in an advertising campaign. His family was just thrilled.

The advertisement first appeared during the Academy Award Program and the CBS Monday Night Movie, Monday evening. It also was shown during the Falcon Crest and Dallas programs Friday. Mark is the star of the advertisement and it shows him taking pictures and talking to people.

Near the blue Corpus Christi Bay, more than 2,000 Texas librarians met at the convention center, April 3-7, for its 71st annual Library convention. In the evenings, many conventioners gathered in the La Vista lounge atop the floor of the La Quinta Royale Hotel where DAVID AND SUSAN CRAWFORD performed with the band SUN-

NY DAYS. Thursday night the lounge was packed with West Texas librarians when JERRY HICKMAN of Texas Tech University, JOHN DEATS of Midland, JUDY GRAY and MARY CRAWFORD of Big Spring, and ELIZABETH POLK of Austin were there to here the Crawfords sing. David and Susan are former Big Springers and David is the son of Mary Crawford.

The librarians heard ANN RICHARDS, state treasurer, and BARBARA BUSH, wife of vice president GEORGE BUSH, speak at the convention. It was intriguing to compare the two speakers and their style, Judy said.

For the record

In an article "Stokes-Parker session slated" that ran in Thursday's edition of the Big Spring Herald Lynn Reed's name was given as Lynn Green. Reed, a Big Spring High School coach, demonstrated self-defense for women at the Stokes-Parker meeting at the Homestead Inn, Saturday.

Rugged Individualist Creates Beautiful Jewelry ...

Sports enthusiast Travis Hunter moved to Big Spring in 1971 to learn the jewelry business from D.O. Gray who opened the store in 1966. Two boys', John David, 12 and James, 7 fill his time after the business day is over. They find time to go bowling and play golf together and Travis tries to play handball several times a week. He says that trial and error gave him great respect for his meticulous teacher and the founder of the shop. He truly enjoys seeing a lovely design emerge from loose stones, a wax mold and old jewelry to be recycled. The new creation combines the nostalgia, brilliance and character of the individual.

There's always something new even in the ancient craft of jewelry making and this year Travis is featuring diamond cut finish gold jewelry. It glitters with the brilliance of faceted stones. There are bracelets, butterflies, hearts and religious pendants to dangle from ears and chains. There are filigree charms, eagles and unicorns, too! Election results reported at meeting of study club

Susan Gaston reported the results of the local elections at a meeting of The GFWC Forsan Study Club at the Forsan High School cafeteria, April 9. Donna Parker, Brenda White and Jeanine Fishback entertained the club with a medley of songs they sang at the Western District Spring Convention held April 6-7 at Fort Stockton. At the convention the club was awarded nine first places, six second places and one third place for its programs and projects for the year. A salad supper honoring Forsan senior girls and their mothers will be held May 7. Members were reminded to bring a salad to the cafeteria at 6:15 p.m., May 7. Tiffany Bedwell, dress shop owner, will present a style show. The community rabies clinic will be May 17 from 3:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the firehouse.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL MEYER
...she is the former Tere Bevers

Bevers-Meyer

Good Shepherd Church in Acton was the setting for the marriage of Tere Bevers and Michael Meyer, Jan. 7. Fr. Lawrence Perry of Lubbock officiated at the Nuptial Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Bevers of Granbury. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Meyer, Big Spring.

Randy Page, organist, and James Gudat, vocalist, performed music for the ceremony.

The bride wore a white organza gown featuring a Queen Anne neckline, fitted bodice accented with Venice lace and pearls, bishop sleeves, an A-line skirt and cathedral-length train. To complete her ensemble, she wore a waltz-length illusion veil attached to a Chantilly lace covered wide-brimmed hat. She carried a bouquet of rubrum lilies, pink roses and English ivy, trimmed with pink and white ribbon. She also wore a strand of pearls belonging to her grandmother.

Garland and David Baremore of Snyder, Greg Morrison and Kevin Bailey, both of Stephenville, were ushers and Kevin Hughes of Granbury was altar boy.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception at the De Cordova Bend Country Club. A three-tiered wedding cake ornamented with pink and white rosebuds and a chocolate bridegroom's cake was served.

The bride is a graduate of Granbury High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Coahoma High School. Both are attending Tarleton State University. He is assistant manager of Lingleville Road Piggly-Wiggly in Stephenville.

The couple is at home in Stephenville.

Judy Bernier of Granbury was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sheri Mooney of Irving and Cindy Wagley of Granbury. Lindsey Wright of Garland was flower girl.

Bruce Meyer of Big Spring served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Jimmy Wright of

Jewels & Gems
by Ralph and Lynette Brooks

In the long history of rings, one romantic tradition was the use of the poesy, or poetry, ring. Originally they were simple bands inscribed with a sentimental thought such as "Forget not he who loveth thee." An off shoot was the message ring, which spelled out a word by the initial letters of the gem names. Thus, a diamond, an emerald, an amethyst and a ruby spelled "D-E-A-R." An amusing use of this type of ring was devised in the mid-nineteenth century by the British Free Traders, who wanted to get rid of the bothersome Corn Laws. They put together a ruby, an emerald, a peridot, another emerald, an amethyst and a lapis lazuli to spread the message REPEAL.

Boyett-Walker

Karen Ann Boyett became the bride of Robert Allen Walker in a Saturday evening ceremony at Wesley United Methodist Church. The Rev. Johnny Robertson, pastor, officiated at the 7 p.m. rite before an arch decorated with spring eric, pink carnations and baby's breath, two large arrangements of gladiolas, carnations and statice, and two nine-branch candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Bodin, Sand Springs, and the late Rev. Robert Boyett. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walker, 908 W. 2nd.

Malinda Crocker, organist and pianist, and Mrs. Don Moore of Dallas, vocalist and cousin of the bride, provided music for the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza. A fitted bodice accented with pearls and Alencon lace featured a scoop neckline, which was accented with gathered ruffles. Mutton sleeves gathered at the elbow with a ruffle and was finished at the wrist with lace. The full skirt fell from the natural waistline into a multi-layer ruffled chapel-length train. To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a wreath of silk flowers in her hair. Two tiers of illusion was accented with scattered pearls and fell to elbow length.

The bride carried a cascade of pink roses, gerbera daisies, purple statice and stephanotis, and accented with baby's breath and pink satin ribbons. The bouquet sat atop a white Bible belonging to her mother.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore a wedding ring belonging to her great-grandmother, Mrs. John Alexander, for something old. For something new, she had her wedding dress; for borrowed, pearls from her mother; and blue, her garter. She also wore a birthdate penny in her shoe.

Mrs. Terry Grantham of Knott was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Terry Hart, sister of the bride, Mrs. Calvin Johnson, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Phillip Price. Nikki Crawford, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Bruce Walker and Cecil Walker served their brother as best men. Groomsmen were Phillip Price, Gary Wyatt and Scott Simpson. Ushers were Terry Hart and Preston Crawford, brothers-in-law of the bride. Clay Thixton of Foran, cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Greg Bodin of Sand Springs, brother of the bride, was candlelighter.

During the recessional, the bridegroom presented to bride's mother with a rose and the bride presented the bridegroom's mother with a rose.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception in the church's Fellowship Hall. The bride's table was covered with white lace and centered with the bride's and her attendants' bouquets. A three-tiered cake trimmed in pink roses and forget-me-nots and topped with pink satin bells was served. The bridegroom's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth over brown underlay. A chocolate cake featuring a motorcycle ornament and saying "Get me to the church on time" was served.

Mrs. Preston Crawford, sister of the bride, registered guests. Mrs. Fern Cox and Mrs. Steve Stephens O'Donnell, aunts of the bride, Mrs. James Teeler and Mrs. Tom McKnight, aunts of the bridegroom, served at the reception.

A rehearsal dinner was held Friday evening at La Posada Restaurant. It was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School and is employed by Southland Corporation. The bridegroom attended Coahoma High School. He is employed by Britton Drilling of Midland.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Miller-Purcell

Candace Miller of Shertz became Mrs. James Purcell during an afternoon wedding ceremony at the Blue Room of Dora Roberts Community Center, April 7. The Rev. S.C. Guthrie, retired Presbyterian minister, officiated at the rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jimmy Miller, Shertz. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Toby Purcell, 1408 Tucson.

The couple was wed before an archway flanked by pedestals, both decorated with gray and peach flowers. The area was accented by an opened window showing the lake at Comanche Trail Park.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Brian Siniff. She wore a peach-colored Sasson linen three-piece suit trimmed with embroidered eyelet. She carried a bouquet of peach-colored carnations accented with peach and white lace.

Melissa Siniff, sister of the bride was matron of honor. Tom Purcell was best man.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES PURCELL ...wed in afternoon ceremony

Dear Abby

Mixed-up wife cheats on husbands

DEAR ABBY: First, I know that I am a very mixed-up person. I'm 36, have two children, and I'm on my third husband. I believe in God and know there is a hell, but for some reason I'm not afraid of going there even after all the bad things I've done.

I started making love to almost every man I dated when I was 15. I cheated on all my husbands, including the one I'm now married to. I don't know why, because basically most men are alike. None of them do very much for me, so I know I'm not a nymphomaniac, if there is such a thing.

I'm currently involved with a man much younger than me. He's married, too. I think I love him, but if he decided not to see me anymore, my feelings might be hurt for a week or two, then I'd find someone else to take his place.

What in the world is the matter with me? I think I need a psychiatrist, but I can't afford their prices. CONFUSED IN BOSTON DEAR CONFUSED: You have been using sex to fill an unmet emotional need that's been gnawing at you since you were very young.

There is an excellent mental health clinic in your area. Look in your phone book under Mental Health or County Health Services. Call and make an appointment. You will be charged only as much as you can afford to pay.

Please don't put it off. The longest march in the world starts with one step. God bless and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am 27 years old and planning to ask a young Christian lady to be my wife. We are very much in love and committed to each other.

There is one problem. I am bisexual. Will marriage cure my bisexuality? And do you think I should reveal this to my fiancée before I propose marriage to her?

OKLAHOMA BISEXUAL: DEAR BISEXUAL: Bisexuality is not a "disease" for which one must seek a "cure" in order to eradicate. One can control his (or her) sexual behavior — but not his sexual urges.

And yes, I think you should tell your fiancée before proposing marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I don't mean to sound ungrateful, but I have had it with homemade decorator items from my in-laws with the message, "This will look lovely in your living room or kitchen or den."

Believe me, Abby, lack of money is not the reason for these homemade gifts. I appreciate the thought and effort that went into these gifts, but they are creating a real problem for me. I have my own style of decorating, and these craft items simply do not fit in.

"We hired Edward through the Private Industry Council. Because of the Job Partnership Training Act, half of his salary while we trained him was reimbursed to us. Since he only cost us half as much to train, we could devote more time to training him, instead of giving him simple things to do and having him just stay at one place. Now he's a good hand. The difference that the Private Industry Council made put him way ahead for us."

Engagement policy

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald from anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks before the wedding.

We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form should be signed by the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or parents of either.

We will use a picture of the couple or the bride-elect. The picture must be of a quality that will reproduce well in the newspaper. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to our paper. If only grandparents live in our area, please, give their names and addresses.

The information may be brought by the Lifestyle Department of the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry, or mailed to the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

Call us at (915) 267-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.
The Lifestyle Staff

Wedding policy

Weddings are published in the Sunday Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. A wedding form, available at the Herald, should be filled out, signed by either the bride, bridegroom or a member of either family and in our office no later than noon the Wednesday before the wedding.

The information may be accompanied by a photograph either of the bride or the couple. A black and white glossy 5 x 7 inch print is preferred. The picture must be of sufficient quality to reproduce in the newspaper. Pictures may be picked up following publication.

If a wedding writeup is turned in after the wedding, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

Forms for wedding stories may be picked up at the Lifestyle Department of the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry. Writeups may be brought in to the department or mailed to Big Spring Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Please call our office if you have problems or questions. Our number is (915) 263-7331.

On Turning Heads

by Gary Don

Do you have medium-length, fine, curly hair? Why attempt to take out the curl with large electric rollers? Try a shorter, multi-layered cut that will bring out the beauty of your curls not repress them. Your hair will look fuller and frame your face nicely, and fluffy bangs will help draw attention down to your eyes. The hidden extra in a cut like this is that it requires little upkeep. Shampoo your hair, allow it to dry naturally (no drying heat) and fluff it up with your fingers. To dress up for evening wear, add a little glitter with a scarf or ribbon. Stop trying to defeat the very thing that is natural for you. Curls are easy and beautiful.

Look to LA CONTESA for the latest in hair trends. We are up to date on all the latest styles making the headlines. We know what's new and exciting in the world of beautiful hair. Feel free to discuss any of your hair care concerns. We'll have the answers to your problems. Split ends, dry, lifeless, hard to manage hair, we'll show you how to get them under control. You will find us conveniently located at 1508 Marcy. We are open to serve you Tues.-Sat. Tel. 267-2187.

Dr. Donohue

Nerve pressure causes numbness

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have what I think may be a unique problem. I have prepared properly for and completed eight marathons, including seven in the last two years. I've developed a problem with my right arm and little finger during the last five, at about eight miles each time. My lower triceps begin to get uncomfortable. Then my little finger gets numb. I have noticed a small lump just above my wrist on the upper side. There's no discomfort. Any idea what the problem may be? — F.L.

I can only guess. Your problem seems complicated and needs direct examination. Your numbness is in an area supplied by the ulnar nerve. The long nerve that travels down the upper arm, passes behind the elbow, then courses down the forearm into the hand. The sudden shock when you hit your elbow is from stimulation of that nerve.

Any abnormal pressure at any point along the path of that long nerve can cause numbness. All that I feel sure about is that, from your description of your symptoms, there is ulnar nerve pressure in the picture somewhere. What I'm offering is a possible explanation, not a diagnosis. Please let me know what your doctor finds.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: For the past few months I have been jogging backwards. I use a well-lighted area, but do it after dark so that people won't think I'm daft. In fact, I find this easier on my feet and ankles. Your comment? — K.A.

You're not daft. It's a good idea. Running backwards exercises an entirely different set of leg muscles and gives the others a chance to rest. Many runners are doing the same thing.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Being a sprinter with the track season coming up, I wonder if you can give me your ideas how to improve speed? — F.J.

I'm sure your coach can do a better job answering that question than I can. The basic considerations, though, are length of stride and number of strides per second. World-class sprinters have a stride length of 7.5-8.5 feet, and they take about 4.5 strides every second. That's close to flying. But this is too simple and answer. Other factors, like leg strength, which you improve through weight training, have to be considered also.
