

Our Viewpoint by L. E. B.

It is sure fine to have our main street repaired so that one may ride down it and not be jolted near to death.

When one studies that financial statement of the Friona school district which appeared in last week's paper and then reads of the financial straits of other school districts it hardly seems that this can be true.

We spent Saturday in the north part of the Panhandle and were particularly to notice how the farms looked.

Last Thursday at the chamber of commerce meeting we had a long talk with Mr. Sullivan, manager of the Farmers elevator, and he says that conditions in the northern wheat belt are very poor.

Did any of you happen to study the statement of the Friona State Bank which was published last week? Go look it up for it is interesting and is worth close study and comparison, but it certainly puzzles us.

When we arrived in Friona last October the bank statement had just been printed and deposits were listed at $187,000.00.

Everyone here is crying hard, hard times and that they are broke. Well, some are having hard times, but when bank deposits continue to climb and times are hard, it is our own fault.

Six months ago our bank had $187,000.00 in deposits, now it has $244,000.00. If that extra $57,000 were put into circulation it would wipe out the hard times here in Friona.

Interscholastic Meet In Friona Creates Interest

The regular annual Parmer County Interscholastic Forensic and Track meet will be held in Friona Friday and Saturday, April 10 and 11, at the Friona high school.

This is the second year that this meet has been held in Friona. Last year the Friona school won both senior and junior trophies, but this year the other schools are taking more interest and keen competition is expected in all departments.

Gold medals will be given for all first places except those being won by a team, when a pennant will be awarded. In addition to the medals there are four loving cups, one each for junior and senior literary and junior and senior athletic events.

The school authorities anticipate the keenest competition ever given in an interscholastic meet, as there is a great amount of interest manifested throughout the county.

The Parent-Teacher association will serve lunch Friday, and all day Saturday at a booth on the school grounds. The home economics girls will also serve lunch in order to raise money to attend the state home economics meet to be held in Lubbock.

Father of Local Banker Dies In Dimmitt Sunday

A. G. Noble, father of Ester Noble, cashier of the Friona State Bank, died in Dimmitt Sunday evening at 8:50 o'clock.

He was a member of the Baptist church of Dimmitt and the funeral services were held at that church, interment being made in the Dimmitt cemetery, with Rev. Frost conducting the service.

The Friona State Bank was closed Monday in respect for Mr. Noble and the following Friona citizens went to Dimmitt to attend his funeral: Mr. and Mrs. Dan Etherage, Lena Osborn, Frank Spring and C. F. Brownlee.

1000 of the money coming into Friona during the last six months has been not circulated, but has been stored away. We believe that people should save but they should also spend—they should do both sensibly.

Rearranges Beauty Parlor.

The Bella Donna beauty parlor has been rearranged and made more attractive to visitors by Mrs. Etheridge. The large garment stand has been removed and a show case placed where it will greet the visitor's eye on entering.

Main Street At Last Gets Needed Repairs

Friday W. M. Alexander, county commissioner for this precinct, put his crew to work on Friona's Main street which was in such shape that it was almost impossible to ride over.

Mr. Alexander, realizing the condition of this street, and the need of Friona citizens, decided to place it in good shape and he therefore put the big tractor and scarifier to work on it.

In a conversation with the editor, Mr. Alexander suggested that the city or chamber of commerce buy a four horse light maintainer which would cost about $250 and after each rain hire a man and teams to smooth the streets.

Mrs. A. A. Crow and J. B., and Mrs. Fred Rogers and Miss Myrt Hicks have been visiting in Comanche.

STANDING OF THE CLASSES

|---------------|---------|
| Fifth Grade | 3,857.2 |
| Seniors | 3,631.6 |
| Sixth Grade | 2,219.5 |
| Juniors | 1,000 |
| Sophomores | 1,000 |
| Freshmen | 1,000 |
| Seventh Grade | 1,000 |

HOW WILL THEY STAND NEXT WEEK?

The fifth grade remains in the lead in the school circulation contest, although the seniors and sixth grade have taken up the gauntlet of battle to see who will carry off the honors.

The past week the fifth graders failed to add to their score and the seniors gained 2,631.6 votes, placing second. Then along came the sixth grade with an increase of 1,219.5 votes and taking third place.

When May 10 rolls around we will know who is who in Friona school. We will know which classes take an interest in their school and which classes are willing to do the most to help their school get ahead.

Extra Votes.

In order to stimulate the classes to extra effort at this time we have decided to make a special offer. With every subscription brought in from now until April 15 we will give 1000 free votes.

Report Shows Local School In Good Shape

The report of the financial condition of the Friona independent school district as of March 25, 1931, submitted to the people of this section in last week's issue of the Star was one of which we should be proud.

The above, mind you, is cash on hand and does not take into consideration the taxes due and payable most of which are at present delinquent.

Such a healthy condition of the school's finances speaks well for the way the school board has handled the school's affairs the past year and their promise of a 5 per reduction of 5 per cent show efficiency in handling finances.

Community Club Meeting.

The Community club met March 19 with Mrs. Nola Adams. The afternoon was spent in sewing and social conversation and 129 quilts were made.

The club adjourned to meet on April 2 with Mrs. Florence Day. The afternoon was spent in the usual way, one comfort being knitted and bound, and 23 old cloth flowers made.

But the Mail and other papers point out there is one issue of refuge for the newspapers and the movie men. In 1875 there was passed a law called the Remission of Penalties act. This was passed to enable the crown to remit, in whole or in part, any penalty imposed under the old law of 1780.

Reactionary Candidates Win Offices

The election held last Saturday, April 4, for trustees of the Friona independent school district was a clean sweep in favor of the reactionary candidates.

|------------------|-----|
| Elected. | |
| D. H. Meade | 153 |
| A. S. Curry | 145 |
| V. L. Todd | 145 |
| M. Lacy | 144 |
| Defeated. | |
| E. V. Rushing | 127 |
| J. Bengier | 126 |
| F. L. Reed | 123 |
| Ed Allen | 110 |

The retiring members of the board are E. V. Rushing, F. L. Reed, C. E. Allen and A. J. Elliott, who will be succeeded immediately by the newly elected members.

Much excitement marked the election, which was a hard fought battle between the present board and the reactionaries, who were not satisfied with the policies of the board for the past year, and the friends of the old board who desired them to remain in office.

In an organization meeting held Monday night the board elected D. H. Meade president to succeed F. L. Reed, and A. S. Curry secretary taking the place of F. N. Welch.

Carrie DeWitt Goes to Reward Monday Morning

Miss Carrie DeWitt, age 88, died at the home of V. E. Weir Monday morning, April 6, at 8:20 o'clock, and was buried in the Friona cemetery Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

Miss DeWitt, who was affectionately called "Aunt Carrie" by her numerous friends in Friona, was loved and respected by all who knew her.

Although of such cheerful disposition, romance and sorrow marked the entire life of this little old lady. Way back just before the Civil War, when she was in her young girlhood, she found the man she loved, the man she expected to marry.

In all probability he lay an unknown dead on an unknown battle field, but "Aunt Carrie" loved him and she saved her wedding dress and she waited his return for approximately 70 years—until she died.

Such love and such constancy enduring through the long years in honor of a promise marks the high character of Miss DeWitt, who possessed a character of such sterling quality as is attained by but few people.

Old English Law Enables Girl Clerk To Sue Sunday Movies for Million

MISS MILLIE ORPEN, 22, who works as a clerk in a financial office in London's financial district, is today the most discussed person in the United Kingdom.

For, acting through her lawyers, she has proceeded as "Common Informer" under some very ancient English laws and is claiming about $1,250,000. And thereby hangs a very complete and muddled tale of the law, the movies, the newspapers and the courts.

Theaters in England have to be licensed for public performances by the Lord Chamberlain in King George's palace and he, likewise, acts as censor of plays. No play can be performed for patronage by the general public if he disapproves of it. Likewise, he has never allowed theaters to give public performances on Sundays.

But the movies were not under his jurisdiction. Therefore, some years ago the London County Council licensed movie houses and permitted them to open up on Sunday evenings. Recently in the high court the judge enunciated the dictum that the London County Council had absolutely no right to permit Sunday opening of the movie houses.

He suddenly remembered what everybody seemed to have forgotten, that in 1780 there was passed by the Parliament a Lord's Day Observance act. This law is known to the legal sharks as "21 George III c 49"—in other words a law passed during the reign of that King George III whose acts caused the American colonies to revolt.

Miss Orpen seeks claim of $1,250,000 under law passed in 1780.

But upon any subject on Sunday which persons are admitted only on payment, there shall be forfeit, to any persons who will sue for the same, $1000 for each offense.

The person, who thus sued, was quaintly termed a "common informer." This person has a very ancient status under English law. It dates back to the times when there was no such thing as a police force to enforce the laws of the land and it was left to common informers to take action to see that the courts enforced the laws.

After the court called attention to the fact that the London County Council could not give licenses for Sunday performances, every movie house in town proceeded to open as usual on Sundays and the newspapers as usual took their advertisements.

Then Miss Orpen got busy. Acting through her lawyers, she laid an information against most of the leading movie houses of London and also against some of the newspapers. Thus she claimed $50,000 from the Daily Express and a like amount from the Daily Mail.

She collected this trillion and quarter dollars, she would think nothing of writing a check for a mere 40 billion dollars to pay of England's national debt.

Refuge for Defendants. But the Mail and other papers point out there is one issue of refuge for the newspapers and the movie men. In 1875 there was passed a law called the Remission of Penalties act. This was passed to enable the crown to remit, in whole or in part, any penalty imposed under the old law of 1780.

THE PRODIGAL SON

Luke 15:11-24

11. And he said, A certain man had two sons:
 12. And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of thy substance that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living.
 13. And not many days after, the younger son gathered all together and took his journey into a far country; and there he wasted his substance with riotous living.
 14. And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that country; and he began to be in want.
 15. And he went and joined himself to one of the citizens of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.
 16. And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat; and no man gave unto him.
 17. But when he came to himself he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish here with hunger!
 18. I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight:
 19. I am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.
 20. And he arose, and came to his father. But while he was yet afar off his father saw him, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him.

21. And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight; I am no more worthy to be called thy son.
 22. But the father said to his servants, Bring forth quickly the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet;
 23. And bring the fatted calf, and kill it, and let us eat, and make merry;
 24. For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

Golden Text: There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.—Luke 15:10.

Time: The three parables of this chapter were spoken in January, A. D. 30, in the closing three months of Christ's ministry.

Place: Peraea, the region east of the lower Jordan.

Parallel Passages: These three parables are found only in Luke.

Introduction.

"Luke's fifteenth chapter is one of the most precious in all the Bible. It is made up of the three parables of the lost and found—The Lost Sheep, the Lost Coin and the Lost Boy. There are three priceless pictures of redemption. They constitute the parable trilogy of the gospel. They are the triptych of salvation. All men are lost, and the Son of God came to find them. These wonderful little stories represent Christ to the human heart more definitely and glowingly, perhaps, than any other portion of the Bible, even the 33rd chapter of Isaiah.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

EARL SHEELY, 18 YEARS IN BASEBALL, GETS THIRD CHANCE IN MAJORS AS FIRST BASEMAN FOR BOSTON BRAVES—HE STILL PACKS A WALLOP

BY PHILIP MARTIN

A BASEBALL player may be down but the rules specify that he's never out until he has three strikes on him. If proof of this statement is needed, there is Earl Homer Sheely, elongated first baseman, who is coming up again this year to play for the Boston Braves after two previous attempts resulted in failure.

Earl Homer Sheely . . . the Braves hope he'll live up to his middle name.

Sheely joins the Braves at a time when they can use a good hitter and a man capable of handling his assignments afield. In view of Earl's previous "strikes," the count on him now rests at "three-and-two" and he must hit safely or trudge back to the minors, from which he probably will never again be invited to make good in the big show.

When it came Boston's turn to select a player in the draft last fall, the officials picked Earl from the host of minor league satellites because of his tremendous hitting average. He led the parade in the Pacific Coast League, a circuit in which the players do considerable flitting with 400 batting averages. If he hits anything above the .300 mark this year, he will be a good investment and well worth the $7500 draft price which Boston turned over to the San Francisco Seals for him.

Sheely's third sojourn into the majors this spring gives him some kind of a trans-continental record. When he joins the Braves at St. Petersburg, Fla., next month he will have completed five long treks across the country. He came up to the White Sox from the coast league back in 1921. At the end of the 1927 season, the Sox sent him back to Sacramento. A year later the Pittsburgh Pirates brought him east once again but he failed to hit major league pitching and they turned him over to the "Pirates" Seals as part payment in the purchase of Gus Suhr. Earl's batting and fielding for the Seals during 1930 ranked him at the top of coast league first sacker, so the Braves once more rescued him.

In eight campaigns in the major leagues, Sheely maintained a batting average of approximately .300 and always was among the leaders in fielding. His batting fell below the .300 mark in 1923, 1926 and 1929. His best effort was an average of .320 for 146 games with the White Sox in 1924.

Sheely no longer is a youth, so it behooves him to stick with the Braves. He recently observed his 36th birthday on the anniversary of Lincoln's birth. He has played professional baseball since 1912 in the Northwest, Western Tri-State, Pacific Coast and both major leagues. Truly, Earl has done no little knocking around in his 18 years of baseball.

ness. Although he was hungry, "no man gave unto him." From day to day the grunt of the swine was the friendliest sound he heard. Disgrace. He became a swineherd, the most degraded work of the land, and disgraceful in the eyes of Jews.

He Came to Himself.
 He saw himself as he was, a man who had made a shipwreck of his life, who might have been at that moment in his father's house an honored son with every need satisfied, instead of perishing with hunger in a foreign land. Two words indicate his new thought about himself. First, "I have sinned." How far away he had gone before he saw the truth. Second, "No more worthy." One is reminded here of our Lord's parable of the Pharisee and the Publican, and his word of grace concerning the prayer of the humble. When men thus see themselves in the light of truth, they are getting near the kingdom of God.

He Came to His Father.
 Someone has said that nobody is ready to come to Christ wholly until he has seen Christ to be his whole dependence. When in his despair he came to himself, the prodigal saw only one gleam of hope and that was in the direction of his father's house; and he responded. He said, "I will arise and go to my father."

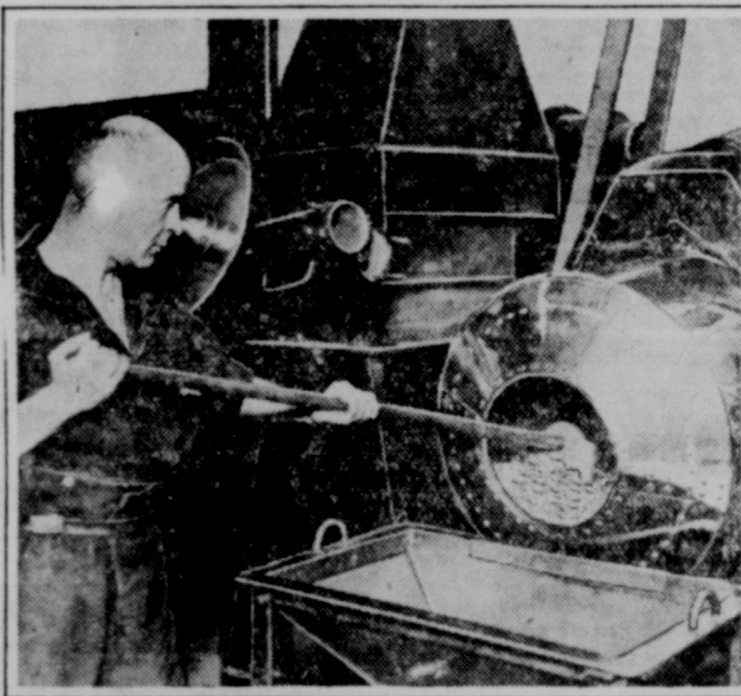

1. In the father's house he found love for his loneliness. It was with full knowledge of the tender love of God ready for every penitent that Jesus drew the picture (verse 20) of the father, the compassion, and running, and embracing and kissing.

2. He found honor for his shame. The best robe, the signet ring, the shoes proclaimed his complete restoration to sonship in the father's house.

3. He found plenty for his want and joy for his misery. The fatted calf was killed, and with the feast came joyous music and dancing. "There is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth."

Special Lessons.
 1. Lost Found. The chapter ends on its key-note. We are not told how the scribes and Pharisees received the parable, but they must have seen themselves in the elder brother; and indeed that harsh character finds a likeness in ourselves whenever we do not fully share Christ's joy in the finding and winning of lost souls."

2. "If you are bent on using your life and resources for what you fondly dream will make you happy without God, God will let you take your way. God never places his almightiness between a man and the perdition to which he is wedded. He who made you free will leave you free."—Rev. Henry Batchelor.

3. "In the best robe we may see illustrated the doctrine of justification, the robe of Christ's righteousness, in which the soul is, as it were, clothed. The ring, as containing the signet or seal, may well be regarded as symbolizing the sealing gift of the Holy Spirit. The shoes, used only when walking or at work, assured the son of the privileges of service, and yet that in serving he should be free."—Canon J. Denton Thompson.

Self Indulgence Works Evil.
 A natural accompaniment of selfishness is an over-estimate of things. The prodigal was a materialist. "Give me the goods" was his prayer. The summum bonum of life was self-indulgence, and the way to find his joys was through wealth. Wealth is always a temptation. In the hands of a man wholly surrendered to God, bent in love upon service, it is not an evil, but a blessing, but in the hands of the selfish man it is sin's readiest weapon. As it proved in the case of the prodigal, "the love of money is the root of all kinds of evil." What do we want of life? Beware, if the real prayer of the heart, the parent of life, is "Give me the goods."

The Results of His Prodigality.
 1. Want. A strange coincidence that a famine should have come just when he had spent all; but it is no strange coincidence that sin reduces men to want, and that is what our Lord was saying. He was giving the natural history of sin. There comes a time when a sinful man has nowhere to turn in the far country of sin. Famine is as sure as life. 2. Lonli-

Hawkins' Sale Of Jerseys In Record Average

(From the Hereford Brand)

In the farm sale of H. H. Hawkins, the principal item of which was his entire herd of 56 purebred, non-registered Jersey cows and heifers, a record price for the season was established with an average of $54. Two years ago his herd also made the record average of $98.

The sale was conducted by Col. Ray Barber March 31, during unfavorable weather conditions, but the crowd was about twice as large as expected, and the bidding was spirited. The two recent blizzards had been detrimental to the stock, leaving the cows somewhat drawn. The average would probably have been higher, said Mr. Barber, had the dairy herd presented a better appearance.

Mr. Hawkins has maintained a Jersey farm recognized in this part of the county for high quality. Constructive breeding for several years through use of purebred bulls is responsible for the herd of high standard.

More Than Million in Twenty States Fed by Red Cross Volunteers

Hot School Lunches and Balanced Rations Given to Drought Victims — Seed Programs Instituted on Wife's Scale

More than 1,000,000 persons in 26 drought-stricken counties of 20 States came under the care of the American Red Cross in what developed into the most extensive relief operations in half a century of ministering to stricken humanity.

Measures to lessen the severity of the blow inflicted by drought were taken as early as last September, when seed was distributed to more than 55,000 families for the planting of rye and other pastures, and to more than 27,000 families for the planting of kitchen gardens. The expenditure for this purpose amounted to $226,800. Green vegetables were made available up to January.

Early in February another Red Cross garden program got under way and 507,000 packages of seed were distributed in 15 States. Quarter-acre plots were planted to beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, sweet corn, kale, lettuce, mustard, onions, peas, spinach, squash, tomatoes and turnips. Once again were farm families given the opportunity to participate in their own salvation.

A comparatively mild winter contributed to the success of the Spring and Fall seed campaigns. Many habitual single-croppers were introduced to the advantages of kitchen gardens, balanced cropping and balanced diet. Numerous land-owners have expressed the opinion that this constitutes the one apparent blessing to come out of the drought catastrophe. The United States Department of Agriculture and the local county agricultural agents and home demonstration agents cooperated in making this part of the relief operations successful.

Balanced Meals Served

Red Cross feeding was aimed at adequacy and scientific correctness. In large numbers of schools, where children were found to be attending with little or nothing in their lunch boxes, hot meals were served at noon. A typical menu consisted of vegetable soup and bread one day; thick beef soup or stew with vegetables another day; cocoa or milk and cheese, peanut butter, or jam sandwiches, a third day.

In some places where lunches were not served in the schools, but were provided for in the regular food orders, each family having

Thousands of Volunteer Workers

Many thousands of volunteers, through their local Red Cross chapters, gave freely of their time, experience and efforts, as in other Red Cross disaster operations. They searched out needy cases in their communities. Chapter committees investigated circumstances, distributed food and clothing.

More than 500 carloads of food-stuffs were contributed. These were given free haulage by railroads. Farmers of more fortunate sections embraced the opportunity to help their pastoral cousins of the affected area. Shipments ranged from live poultry to fish, from grain to grapefruit. Carloads of flour, eggs, beans, vegetables, onions, rice, corn and mixed vegetables were included.

As the result of co-ordinated Red Cross chapter efficiency, no authenticated case of starvation as a result of drought has been uncovered.

Large quantities of new and used clothing were distributed. In direct consequence many school children resumed their studies, who had been kept at home for lack of sufficient protection from the elements. In some instances, rural schools that had been closed were enabled to reopen as a result of Red Cross relief.

States Involved were: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia.

Many of these States had been hard hit by a succession of floods, crop failures, low prices and economic depression, and drought constituted a climax to the cycle of distress.

"Wherever I went," wrote one observer, "I made a point of asking what would have happened if the Red Cross had not been able to respond. In widely scattered points, from leading citizens, came the answer that undoubtedly there would have been many deaths directly from starvation, with epidemics prevailing upon the undernourished."

Dairy Products Have Been Life Line to Farmers

One of the items of salvation of people on the farm in this district, and the whole territory for that matter, including urban residents, may be seen in butterfat and other dairy products.

Figures are available at present for only one dealer, C. H. Carl, a grocer. Records for the past 18 months show that he has handled 105,523 pounds of butterfat, which amounted to $41,413.00.

Auction

Sales are Profitable

Permit me to suggest that you book your auction sales at your earliest possible convenience in order to secure the date you prefer.

I am booking sales over a large territory this season. The splendid results obtained in recent sales of live stock, farm equipment and real estate has convinced the owners to sell at auction, the well known method by which you can get your buyers in one group and convert your property into ready cash in a day, and receive full value.

My knowledge of values enables me to render an efficient service which means dollars and cents to you the day of your auction sale. The many satisfied people I have sold for are my best reference.

Well, my dear, what is more interesting than fooling away your time in study hall by just watching people?
My, but that "kid" thought he pulled a good one over Mr. Conway. But, come to think of it, he did not do so much. If Mr. Conway "bawled kids out" for things like that he would be "bawling 'em out" all the time. I wonder, though, what that person will be later in his life. Do you suppose that little smart one he pulled those will help him any for the betterment of his later self? I do not believe he cares, though. My, what a life he has ahead of him! He does not realize that, I am afraid.
Really, though, the greater part of our failures are caused by not realizing. We often know but we just do not realize the ferocity of it. Well, we just think when it is all over, I knew that—but you see we just do not realize the importance of it.
Helen, my girls, aren't people queer? Did you ever get to wondering how you wonder? I often do. But I never get any satisfaction out of it. It's just as though you were looking into space, space so spacious that there is no conclusion.
Say, Helen, do you reckon that girl looked in the mirror before she left home? What you bet she did not. But she is a mighty nice girl, anyway. Funny how you feel about some people. I cannot help but like her, even if she did not look in the mirror. But see that one, she is still looking, she even brought her mirror to school. And if you ask me, I do not know that

LOST IN THOUGHT

ALBERT CONEWAY
Were you ever lost in thought? What a foolish question when one knows that everyone has been. Probably on some hot, still day you feel the monotonous beat of the teacher's voice upon your brain grow fainter and fainter until suddenly it ceases entirely because you have in imagination left the dry, sullen school room for more pleasant spots that you hold in your heart. Perhaps in the mountains beside some rushing brook with a cool breeze softly fanning you and an over-hanging pine or spruce, you forget which, giving you ample shade. Or maybe beside the far-stretching ocean with shading palms giving you protection from the sun. Anyway you have left, I myself sometimes think about my future life. I see myself graduating with honors from high school and then I enter the gates of some great college. I have picked a major course and am studying hard to master it. My first year is a success and I return home, the pride of my community.
Then I return to college and this goes on for the remaining three years. In my fourth year I have gained a great reputation in the college and when I graduate I immediately receive employment. A good job, too, with a pleasant salary and in a good city. Then I meet a beautiful girl and immediately fall in love (I do not let love bother me in college) and after a year of courtship we are married. I have become prosperous, but not rich nor wealthy. In the meantime I have been promoted until I hold a high position in my concern. Finally, after three years of hard work I build up a sum large enough to buy the boss out, and I begin upon an adventurous career of my own. I do not play the market—it is too dangerous. Gradually I build my concern up until its capital is near one million dollars. I am about 45 years old, so with a one-million dollar profit in my banks I retire from business. I find some beautiful spot in the west, establish a ranch and build a beautiful home and there with my wife and family (boy and girl) I spend the remaining days of my life very happily.
"Albert, who assisted Lee in his attack upon Grant?"
I jerk out of my dream only to find that I am still in the old school room questioned by the teacher, who catches me off attention.

I like her so well.
But you kinda like anybody as long as you're interested in 'em and you're interested in anybody just because they are people.
People are the queerest animals there is. Some of 'em are mighty animals, too. I cannot understand 'em. The way they treat one another sometimes is terrible. How they do talk about each other, when they are all just people trying to do the same things at the same time and making the biggest jamme yet.
Just people, that's all, even the teachers. Queer how the kids think of teachers. Like as though—well, like they should do everything right and all.
Then stand all the kids blab-blah until the teachers get mad. Why, teachers cannot be treated just like a chum I do not see. Why, are not they just overgrown kids trying to pound some sense into us kids? They're trying to do us the favor of showing us how dumb we really are so we can go on and try to learn something if we are not too lazy.
Learning is just freeing of our minds and the more a person gets his mind freed the more he realizes how much it isn't freed. That is just going round in circles, but it's true.
Have you ever heard school kids say they never cried when their teacher left? Act as though it was a disgrace to cry over one's teacher. The same kid will go on to say that they cried when some neighbor or chum left. Why are not teachers chums? Huh?

THE STORM

By HELEN CRAWFORD

The wind had been blowing moderately all afternoon. All at once there came a lull. This lasted only for a moment; then all the pent-up furies of the elements burst loose impatiently as if they could wait no longer. In a second the air was yellow with the harsh New Mexico sands, and a bright yellow glow was cast everywhere. Window glasses rattled, doors banged, and the gritty sands scraped along the surface of roads and houses. The sounds rending the air were of mothers shrieking to their children to come indoors; of the grating of old tin windmills as they nearly whirled off their wheels, and of the old tin tubs and rackets boxes from unfenced back yards battering over the vacant lots of the small town. To add to all this confusion and clamor, cars were being cranked and wagons hitched up so that the country people might scurry home before the blizzard came. Cars and wagons were rattling down the roads, honking and screeching at anything or anybody who might be crossing the road.
Soon a blast of stinging cold wind blew from the north. Sleet began to pepper down, beaten by the wind severely cold and biting against houses and people out in the storm. In a few minutes the snow and sleet were driven in little patches on the north sides of everything. The wind swept the rigid snow swiftly down the roads and into every crack or crevice, trying to force it even into the houses. Up in the attic the wind howled and moaned as if it were caught prisoner and wished to escape. The only comfort one could get was to hover around a stove inside the house. Even the key wind could be heard whipping and whistling around the corner of the house. The furious storm seemed to have everything in its angry clutches, and everyone only hoped that all travelers had got out of its reach.

Sixth Grade.

Last Friday the fifth and sixth grades had an entertainment by our teachers. We went to the gym and played ball awhile. Then we came back to our rooms and our teachers read to us. We told jokes awhile and also asked riddles. The refreshments were lollipops and Easter eggs. Then our teacher read to us until school was out.
The ones who made a hundred in spelling last week were Cecile Baren, Willie Ellen Codgill, Harold York, Raymond Jasper and Virginia Weis.

The furious storm seemed to have everything in its angry clutches, and everyone only hoped that all travelers had got out of its reach.

Sixth Grade.

Last Friday the fifth and sixth grades had an entertainment by our teachers. We went to the gym and played ball awhile. Then we came back to our rooms and our teachers read to us. We told jokes awhile and also asked riddles. The refreshments were lollypops and Easter eggs. Then our teacher read to us until school was out.
The ones who made a hundred in spelling last week were Ceele Baren, Willie Ellen Codgill, Harold York, Raymond Jasper and Virginia Weis.

LOST IN THOUGHT

ALBERT CONEWAY
Were you ever lost in thought? What a foolish question when one knows that everyone has been. Probably on some hot, still day you feel the monotonous beat of the teacher's voice upon your brain grow fainter and fainter until suddenly it ceases entirely because you have in imagination left the dry, sullen school room for more pleasant spots that you hold dear in your heart. Perhaps in the mountains beside some rushing brook with a cool breeze softly fanning you and an overhanging pine or spruce, you forget which, giving you ample shade, or maybe beside the far-stretching ocean with shading palms giving you protection from the sun. Anyway you have left. I myself sometimes think about my future life. I see myself graduating with honors from high school and then I enter the gates of some great college. I have picked a major course and am studying hard to master it. My first year is a success and I return home, the pride of my community.
Then I return to college and this goes on for the remaining three years. In my fourth year I have gained a great reputation in the college and when I graduate I immediately receive employment. A good job, too, with a pleasant salary and in a good city. Then I meet a beautiful girl and immediately fall in love (I do not let love bother me in college) and after a year of courtship we are married. I have become prosperous, but not rich nor wealthy. In the meantime I have been promoted until I hold a high position in my concern. Finally, after three years of hard work I build up a sum large enough to buy the boss out, and I begin upon an adventurous career of my own. I do not play the market—it is too dangerous. Gradually I build my concern up until its capital is near one million dollars. I am about 45 years old, so with a one-million dollar profit in my banks I retire from business. I find some beautiful spot in the west, establish a ranch and build a beautiful home and there with my wife and family (boy and girl) I spend the remaining days of my life very happily.
"Albert, who assisted Lee in his attack upon Grant?"
I jerk out of my dream only to find that I am still in the old school room questioned by the teacher, who catches me off attention.

(Tune, Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching)
We're a jolly little band of farm women, hand in hand,
And we need the knowledge of a new farm day:
With a courage and no fear, with a smile of hope and cheer,
With the torch that leads us to a better home.

CHORUS

Cheer! Cheer! Cheer! for Parmer county.
For she ranks among the best; With her fair and fertile fields That produce abundant yields Of most any kind of crops we wish to grow.

DR. R. R. WILLS
Physician and Surgeon
Phone 5 and 80

Many people who are here came from states both far and near. All are settled in our little new-made homes.
And we wish to plant and grow everything to let you know that
We came to live in Parmer county all the time.

CHORUS
Cheer, cheer, cheer for Parmer county.

Where the corn and thistles grow, And the water is so pure It is almost sure to cure all The old rheumatic pains of long ago.

If we farmers save the day We must make our farming pay, So now listen, Boss and Anne, also Sue—
We must help our husbands' meet, And put old hard times on the beat,
Let us all work together and be wise.

CHORUS

Cheer, cheer, cheer for Parmer county.
Where the milk and money flow, If you ever come our way,
You will always want to stay, Where the breezy summer nights will cheer you on.
