Jaycees show
BIG SPRING — "The Elegant Magic of Fred Story" will be presented Dec. 20 at 7 p.m. at the Municipal Auditorium.

The second annual 90 minute program is billed by the sponsor, the Howard County Jaycees, as the show "children take their parents to see."
 Acts include a lady floating in mid-air, and birds, rabbits and ducks that appear and disappear. A highlight will be the "French Guillotine Illusion." Also, members of the audience will be invited to participate in various performances.

"Comedy, special lighting, costuming and stage sets help to make this an evening of enchantment for the entire family," the Jaycees promise.

Proceeds from ticket sales will go to various community projects. For more information call: 263-2514.

Promenading pups

DALLAS (AP) — Most square dancers have brightly colored shirts and swirling skirts, but there is a small group of performers in Dallas that wears only bandanas.

The Promenade Pups, a canine square dance troupe, has been performing in the area for about a year. During most performances, four human couples dance with eight dogs at their sides. A smaller group consists of just four individuals with dogs as their partners.

Dogs and humans wear matching red bandanas.

The pups also can do a modified version of the Cotton-Eyed Joe, a popular country music dance. During some of the more difficult steps, the pooches stand still while their owners dance around them.

Sally Browning, who organized the troupe, said the dogs are great performers.

"Every now and they a dog won't do it quite right," said Mrs. Browning, who is a professional dog training instructor. "We know it. But you don't."

Mrs. Browning has a 5-year-old Samoyed named Kayla who fills in with dogs are sick or too distracted to perform.

Caribou blues

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Attempts to reintroduce caribou to Maine have been thwarted by disease and bears, but based on the success of a hearty doe named Daisy, officials will keep trying to "transplant" animals from Canada.

"We were amazed she was in as good condition as she was in" after a 600-mile trek into and out of Canada, said wildlife biologist Mark McCollough, leader of the privately funded Maine Caribou Project.

Of a dozen North American reindeer released last spring in Baxter State Park, only Daisy is known to be alive, although a second caribou that lost its radio collar may also be, said Richard B. Anderson, project coordinator.

Five caribou died after being attacked by bears, and five died of the "brainworm" parasite. Others still being kept in pens have been ravaged by brainworm and ulcers, said Anderson.

Reverend accused

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Bruce Ritter has long been synonymous with Covenant House, the Times Square shelter that grew into a world-renowned refuge for street kids through the Franciscan's vision, savvy and tenaciousness.

Now, Ritter is faced with allegations that threaten not only his reputation but also the very viability of the institution he created.

Last week, Ritter was forced to call a news conference to deny reports that he had sex with a young man he had helped, and that he improperly spent Covenant House funds on the man.

Area counties plan EPA fight

RANKIN — An effort in a 36-county area of West Texas to get variances on federal pollution regulations that will affect landfill operations is gaining support from local and state officials.

Currently, 23 government entities, including Martin and Glasscock counties and the city of Stanton, have agreed to join a coalition that will ask Environmental Protection Agency officials for site-specific exceptions on new landfill rules scheduled to take effect this spring.

"So far we have received 25 resolutions from 19 counties and the rest are cities," said Upton County Judge Peggy Garner, who is leading the area-wide effort. "Today our commissioners' court is going to enter into a contract with our attorney."

Garner said the effort has received support from U.S. senators Phil Gramm and Lloyd Benson and State Sen. Bill Sims of San Angelo.

In addition, meetings are being set up with U.S. representatives Charles Stenholm of Stamford, Ronald Coleman of El Paso, Larry Combest of Lubbock and Lamar Smith of San Antonio, she said.

"We talked to Gramm personally and received a letter from Lloyd Benson and they have agreed to help set up a meeting with the EPA," Garner said. "(Sims) has told us that he supports us and will try to go with us to (the meeting with the) EPA."

She said Sims also said he would try to garner support from other states through the National Conference of State Legislatures.

Meeting with Stenholm tomorrow night in Big Spring will be representatives from Martin, Glasscock, Borden, Sterling and Concho counties and the city of Stanton, said Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport.

The group will meet at 5 p.m. in room 210 of the Permian Building to ask Stenholm for his support, said Deavenport, who helped organize the meeting.

Also considering joining the coalition is Howard County and Borden County, officials in those counties said.

Howard County Commissioner O.L. "Louis" Brown said he planned to introduce a resolution to join at a commissioners meeting this morning.

Boxing clubs gets funds, new lease

By BRADLEY WORRELL

BIG SPRING — The former Lakeview School now used by the Howard County Boxing Club will remain open for at least one more year after county commissioners today unanimously voted to renew the lease and restore $2,000 in county funding to the project.

Big Spring City Councilwoman Pat DeAnda and eight supporters of the boxing club, who appeared before the commissioners' court today in an effort to keep the building open, appeared pleased with the commissioners' decision.

"I'm here because I was concerned about the possibility (the boxing club building) might close."

DeAnda said of her reason for appearing before commissioners. DeAnda said the club is a "very viable place for the kids."

"I'm comfortable with what the commissioners are saying," DeAnda said of the court's decision today. Commissioners previously expressed some concern with keeping the building open because a county-led study by an abatement contractor has determined the building contains asbestos.

DeAnda added, "The concern was never brought up by the people working out there, the concern was brought up by the county."

DeAnda said she understands those concerns, but said there is no

City to discuss benefits

HERALD STAFF REPORT

BIG SPRING — The City Council will again discuss expanding retirement benefits for city employees during a special meeting today at 5 p.m.

In an early-December meeting, council members passed 6-0 the first readings of three ordinances expanding benefits but last week rejected 4-2 the second readings. The councilmen voting against the ordinances said they were afraid the expanded benefits would cost the city too much money, although City Personnel Director Emma Bogard said the initial costs would be negligible.

The council agreed to reconsider the second readings of the ordinances if more information was provided.

City Manager Hal Boyd said a representative from the Texas Municipal Retirement System, which oversees the city's retirement plan, will be at the special meeting to discuss benefits and answer questions. Boyd said the representative will explain how the benefits work and what impact they will have on the city, if any.

In other agenda items, the council will consider:

- The first reading of a resolution authorizing a contract with Mid-Tex Detention Center, Inc.

Boyd said center, which is used by the Immigrations and Naturalization Service to detain illegal aliens, is considering expanding. The contract will provide for a feasibility study of the expansion, he said.

Federal judge assassinated

By KENDAL WEAVER
 Associated Press Writer

MOUNTAIN BROOK, Ala. (AP) — Federal judges were placed on security alert and the FBI gave top priority to finding out who mailed a bomb that killed a U.S. appeals court judge in his kitchen.

FBI agents also said the search for the assassin of 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Robert S. Vance was aided by a hospital bed interview Sunday with Vance's wife, Helen, who was listed today in serious but stable condition from wounds suffered in the explosion.

Vance, 58, who fought for racial moderation and progressive stands in Alabama during 11 years as state chairman of the Democratic Party, was killed instantly Saturday when the package exploded at his home in Birmingham's most exclusive suburb.

He was the third federal judge to be assassinated in 10 years. The three are believed to be the only federal jurists killed this century.

Tom Moore, an FBI spokesman, said "specific leads" had been developed, but he declined to elaborate. Authorities said Vance had received no threats to his life before the explosion and hadn't requested protection.

On speculation of a possible connection to drug cases Vance may have handled, Moore said, "It is not being ruled out, but it is no more prominent than several other avenues we are following. We are reviewing his full caseload."

However, the head of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration office in Miami discounted any link between the bombing and drug cartels.

"It's pretty far-fetched if someone says it's drug connected," said Tom Cash.

Vance, appointed to the appeals court in 1977, served in a circuit that reviewed cases from

Holidays stressful for kids

By JOHN McMILLAN
 Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — "Christmas is the most exciting time of year for children — and the most stressful."

So begins a press release from the Texas Medical Association.

But is Christmas the most stressful time of the year for children?

"If they are depressed already or have some kind of problems in life, then holidays would be more stressful for them," said Connie Edgemon, program director for the adolescent unit at Big Spring State Hospital. "But for a normal kid in a normal environment... it's not more stressful" than other times of the year.

"I'm not sure that it's the most stressful time," said Dr. Ann Mann, a Big Spring psychologist whose clients include children. "But it's a very stressful time. A lot of people are invited into the home."

Mann noted that children's stress comes from seeing relatives and friends of their parents whom the children only see at Christmastime. To reduce anxiety, Mann recommended that parents show children a photograph of the relatives in advance of meeting them.

"If you don't have pictures, you could just tell them about that person, just describe the person to them," Mann said.

Psychologists and the TMA offer the following suggestions, which especially apply to children under

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents Saturday and Sunday:

Eduardo Rodriguez, 45, 1306 Mesa, was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated, no insurance and failure to signal intent.

Frankie Eugene Pennington, 22, 538 Westover, was arrested and charged with DWI.

Roy Don Andrews, 19, 2505 Hunter, was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled substance, unlawfully carrying a weapon and harboring a runaway. He also was arrested under a Department of Public Safety warrant charging speeding.

A juvenile male was arrested in connection with the incident.

Garcia's Cafe, 1509 W. 4th, reported a burglary. Thieves took an unknown amount of pennies.

A person living on Village Road reported a burglary. Money totalling $500, an electric keyboard valued at $279, and jewelry valued at $750 were stolen.

A person reported the theft of five golf clubs valued at $380, and two covers, one valued at $20 the other of unknown value. The theft occurred at the Comanche Trail Park Golf Pro Shop.

A person reported the burglary of a 1981 Cadillac. A purse valued at $10, its contents valued at $100, credit cards and rings valued at $1,500 were stolen.

A person living in the 600 block of State reported a burglary. Burglars took a TV valued at $45, a phone valued at $25, a cassette tape player valued at $60, a cable TV converter box valued at $200 and earrings valued at $200.

A person reported criminal mischief to a 1984 Oldsmobile that occurred in the 800 block of Lancaster. Damage was estimated at $300.

A person reported the theft of wire wheel covers valued at $300 from a 1979 Oldsmobile. The incident occurred at Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

For the record

In Sunday's edition of the Herald, Howard County Commissioner David Barr was quoted as saying he is running for commissioner for another term to help stop the shrinking county tax base. Barr said Sunday afternoon that the shrinking tax base is related to the county's economy and he has no control over the economy.

"People might think I can stop (the shrinking tax base) and I can't do that," he explained. Barr said his reason for running for office is because he believes the commissioners' court will need experience in dealing with more limited budget than previous years.

Bush won't rule out military response in Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush today called the weekend slaying of an American officer in Panama "an enormous outrage" and said he is reviewing a range of options in response. He pointedly did not rule out military action.

"I think a president, all presidents, have options, but they don't discuss what they might be," Bush said. He repeated the answer when asked if military action was among the options available.

He said the U.S. failure to drive Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega from power in Panama was "an enormous frustration" of his first year in office.

The president made his comments in an Oval Office interview with reporters from The Associated Press and three other news agencies. His remarks followed the shooting Saturday night of a U.S. military officer who was in a car with other Americans trying to flee a crowd of Panamanian troops and civilians.

Bush's voice was raspy, showing signs of the laryngitis that forced him to cancel a speechmaking trip to New York last Friday.

On other topics, the president: —Defended anew his decision to send two top aides to China to rekindle relations for the first time him when he attends a regional drug summit in Colombia on Feb. 15. "It's an enormous outrage and a moderation in Iran after the death this year of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini have not been backed up by concrete action.

"I think a president, all presidents, have options, but they don't discuss what they might be," Bush said. He repeated the answer when asked if military action was among the options available.

since the bloody suppression of pro-democracy demonstrators last June. He said he does not know when Chinese dissident Fang Lizhi would be able to leave the U.S. Embassy in Beijing, where he has taken refuge since the crackdown.

—Said the administration is undertaking a "massive re-evaluation of intentions as well as military threat" by the Soviet bloc in light of the radical political changes sweeping Eastern Europe.

—Said "as far as I'm concerned" his 1988 campaign pledge against new taxes still stands.

—Shrugged off a published report that Colombian drug lords have placed a $30 million price on his head. "There is nothing to it," he said and added he was confident the Secret Service could protect matter of enormous concern to this president," Bush said of the killing of the American officer in Panama.

He also defended his decision to send the high-level delegation to China 10 days ago, even though Chinese leaders remain unrepentant about the massacre of pro-democracy students.

Speaking of his gesture, he said, "I don't think it's a salute" to the hard-line leaders in Beijing. He spoke of it as a decision to end the isolation of a country of more than 1 billion people.

Bush said the criticism of his move was "not a good rap" but that a president has to be willing "to take a little heat from time to time. It hasn't been that much."

On another foreign policy front, the president said that signs of Bush said he feels a "personal frustration" that the American hostages in Lebanon remain in captivity, adding: "It's on my mind an awful lot." He said he wrote a personal note recently to the relatives of the hostages.

Fielding a question on the domestic agenda, the president renewed his pledge against any new taxes. Asked if the vow he took for 1989 would remain in effect next year, he said: "As far as I'm concerned it is."

Bush appeared unwayed by arguments in Congress that the massive political changes in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe should translate into big spending cuts for the Pentagon.

"I will not take any naive unilateral action and I am determined to move forward on a sensible program of evaluation and a sensible program of arms reduction which includes conventional forces," he said.

Bush said he and Gorbachev should push ahead on a range of arms control steps, including chemical weapons and conventional forces in Europe.

"So let's go forward with our eyes open and do that," Bush said. "And I think that's exactly what Mr. Gorbachev wants to do."

In an opening statement, the president said he and Gorbachev both want to wrap up a treaty before their scheduled summit in June 1990 to cut strategic nuclear weapons arsenals nearly in half.

He also pledged that the United States would take "an active and appropriate role" in encouraging democratic changes in Eastern Europe.

On his overture to China, Bush refused to say whether he won any concession from Beijing in return for the United States taking the first step to renew contact.

"I'm not going to discuss what I did or didn't get ..." he said.

Boxing

"If the place is closed down, it is the responsibility of the city and the county to find them someplace else to work out," she said. DeAnda said she has checked and is unaware of any building the city has that could be used as a boxing club.

Commissioner O.L. "Louis" Brown, whose precinct includes the boxing club, said he also was fairly pleased with the court's decision.

"I don't want the responsibility of somebody up there being poisoned," he said. But Brown said he understands from school district officials, who met with commissioners last Monday, that the school will be liable for any possible health problems related to the asbestos in the building.

Other commissioners echoed that idea today.

"It's part of their program to inspect (the building)," Commissioner David Barr said of the school district, which owns the building.

"It's their problem," agreed Commissioner Bill Crooker. "They said, 'It's our problem and we couldn't get rid of it if we wanted to,'" Barr again affirmed. Crooker said he believes school district officials will close the former school and former YMCA if they believe the building is unsafe. School officials conduct periodic checks on the building and have the approval of the EPA to operate the building, commissioners noted.

Brown said the $2,000 in restored funding will be used to pay for gas, electricity and for maintenance supplies for the building. Water is provided free of charge by the city, he said.

Supporters of the boxing club said they were particularly interested in getting the gas to the building turned on, noting they have been without heat in the building for some time. The club has continued to meet in the building despite the absence of heating.

Commissioners as a whole said they believe the boxing club has been a good thing for the youth.

"Don't you feel like you've accomplished a lot?" Commissioner Paul Allen said.

"Absolutely," said Ed Garza, one of the leaders of the boxing club. "I'm proud of all the kids that have come out of there."

Garza said he has been involved in the club as a way to teach the young boxers skills and try to keep them out of trouble.

Deaths

Mittie Ray

Mittie Kennedy Ray, 84, Big Spring, died Sunday, Dec. 17, 1989 at her home.

Services will be 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Dalton Froman, pastor.

She was born Aug. 19, 1905 in Dunn and married Floyd Curtis Ray July 6, 1923 in Howard County. He preceded her in death May 27, 1959. She was a member of the First Assembly of God Church where she had taught Sunday school for many years. She moved to Big Spring as a young child and had worked as a practical nurse for several years. She was active in visiting in the nursing homes.

Survivors include two daughters: Mrs. S.M. (Merle) Haney, Big Spring; Evelyn Love, Odessa; one brother Russell R. Kennedy, Odessa; three grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

She was also preceded in death by three brothers and five sisters. Pallbearers will be Burl Dennis, LeRoy Linney, Jack Bennett, Ernest Lillard, Robert Pruitt and Pete Sanderson. All friends are considered honorary pallbearers.

The family suggest memorials to the First Assembly of God Church, 310 W. Fourth, Big Spring, 79720.

Stress

age 8: ● Maintain the children's regular sleeping, eating and playing schedule, since routines provide a feeling of security. Keep the children occupied with simple tasks, such as decorating the tree and baking cookies.

● Parents should organize their own time carefully, not trying to do too much within a short period. When parents feel stress at Christmastime, that can increase the children's anxiety. "Children will very quickly pick up on the emotions of their parents," Mann said.

● When shopping with a preschooler, use a stroller, plan rest stops and snacks, and be prepared to leave early if necessary. Mann also advised that parents hire a baby sitter or a friend to stay with children, rather than take them on long shopping trips. "They get very tired, and it's not a very pleasant experience for them," Mann said.

● In decorating the tree, hang the larger, unbreakable ornaments on the lower branches and the smaller, fragile ones on the higher branches out of children's reach.

● Let your children decide whether they want to sit in Santa's lap. "Children may perceive that big, furry-faced man as a monster until they are about 5 or 6 years old," the TMA notes.

● After a special event, such as a conversation with Santa, help children identify their feelings. You can do that by saying, "Sounds like you're excited." When children accept their feelings, they can better cope with them.

● When children become irritable or tired, suggest a soothing activity, such as playing in the bathtub with plastic cups and bubbles.

● To keep children from having unrealistic expectations about the presents they'll receive, explain to them that Santa cannot give them everything they requested. "I think it's important that kids get some of the things they want, based on the family's ability to provide. But I think it's detrimental if the family provides them everything that they want," Edgemon said.

● Children of divorced parents should be allowed to spend time with each of the parents, Edgemon said. She noted that Christmastime can accentuate the child's feeling of missing one of his parents.

"I'm a big believer in maintaining that kind of contact, in not telling the child they have to choose where they want to spend Christmas," Edgemon said. "That should be a time when divorced parents try to put aside their personal differences so that the child can feel good about Christmas."

Borden County Judge Van York said they will consider a resolution to join at a meeting Thursday. He said he feels it has a good chance of passing.

Members that join the coalition agree to pay up to $500 for an attorney, Garner said. "(Upton) County will enter into the contract," she said.

"Then each of the other participating entities will be billed their share but not to exceed $500 each," she said. "Of course each entity will have to pay for the expenses of their representative to Washington."

Garner said Doug Caroom of Bickerstaff, Heath and Smiley of Austin, will represent the coalition when they go to Washington this January or February to meet with EPA officials.

The law firm charges $160 an hour, she said. "Originally he told me that it would not be over $10,000," she said.

Florida, Georgia and Alabama. "As a member of the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals, they heard many appeal cases related to drugs from Miami," said Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., a longtime friend of Vance. "There's speculation in that regard, but nobody knows."

Authorities said the 11th Circuit caseload was varied, although most of the cases were drug related. Vance took several controversial stances, including: —In 1985, he told an attorney seeking to block the deportations of about 1,500 Cuban refugees that the "government can keep the detainees in the Atlanta pen until they die."

—Later that year, he was on a panel that cleared the way for prosecution of Ku Klux Klansmen in a bloody 1979 confrontation with black civil rights marchers in Decatur.

But investigators said the attack might have been unrelated to his work. In the nearby suburb of Hoover, about six pipe bombs were left in mailboxes of residents during the past year. The New York Times reported today, citing unidentified FBI officials. Only one of the bombs detonated, injuring the person who was thought to have planted it, but authorities said they could have been lethal, according to the newspaper.

One recipient, Chris Doss, was a former associate of Vance in the Alabama Democratic Party, the Times said.

Within 24 hours of Vance's death, William M. Dempsey, a spokesman for the U.S. Marshal's Service in Washington, said marshals around the country were notified by wire to contact each federal judge or magistrate in their jurisdiction. There are about 1,500 federal judges and magistrates.

Moore said all members of the federal judiciary may request special security.

At the 11th Circuit headquarters in Atlanta, security was tighter today, with visitors required to sign in and show identification.

U.S. District Judge Marvin Shoob of Atlanta said federal marshals called him Saturday and advised him not to open packages unless he knew who was sending them. He said they called later and advised him not to open any packages at all.

"We all think this isn't going to happen to us. When it does, you realize everyone is exposed," he said.

Delay requested

DALLAS (AP) — The lawyer for Peggy Railey, the incapacitated wife of former minister Walker Railey, is expected to ask for a delay in a divorce hearing scheduled today in Southern California.

Railey, formerly senior pastor of First United Methodist Church of Dallas, filed the divorce action in a California court. Mrs. Railey is in a Tyler nursing home, where she has remained in a persistent vegetative state since being choked by an assailant in April 1987.

Her husband was the only police suspect in the case, but has never been charged. He has been found civilly liable for the attack.

Bill Arnold, the Texas lawyer for Mrs. Railey's mother, Billie Jo Nicolai, said Sunday he would ask for a continuance on the divorce, support and community property hearings. The reason for the delay, Arnold said, is that Mrs. Railey's parents have just hired a lawyer in California who hasn't had a chance to prepare for the case.

Arnold said it took the Nicolais some time to find a lawyer because they can't afford legal fees. He asked that the Nicolais' California lawyer remain unidentified until today's hearing.

The Nicolais said they would grant Railey's request for a divorce if he agreed to reveal his assets and pay alimony and legal fees. They have been paying Mrs. Railey's medical expenses, estimated at $3,200 a month, since September, when her insurance stopped, Arnold said.

Railey's former church has established a trust fund to pay the medical fees not covered by Medicare or Medicaid when the Nicolais' money runs out.

Brown of Houston named N.Y. police commissioner

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor-elect David Dinkins today named Houston Police Chief Lee P. Brown as the city's next police commissioner.

Brown will take office Jan. 22, succeeding Richard Condon, who has held the post since Benjamin Ward retired late in October.

"We needed the best police commissioner we could find," said Dinkins, who announced his selection at a news conference.

Of Brown, he said: "The professionals that have analyzed him and others have come to that conclusion" that he is the best choice.

Brown said at a news conference in Houston, "This is probably one of the most difficult decisions — and one I've made with mixed emotions. ... I pondered, I agonized, I worried, I prayed."

He said he took the job in New York because it's a "once-in-a-lifetime opportunity."

"Obviously it's the largest police department and the opportunity to run the largest police department — that's the challenge."

Brown is known to have opposed an all-civilian board to review complaints against police in Houston, while Dinkins favors an all-civilian board for New York. Said Dinkins: "We didn't discuss it at great length. ... He's someone who's concerned a lot about the behavior of police."

Dinkins, who will be inaugurated Jan. 1, had favored naming someone from within the city's police force as a way to boost morale. But he said he did not think it would not make any great difference that he chose an out-of-towner.

When the force gets to know Brown, he said, "I think they will embrace him. I think they will like him. I think they will respect him."

Brown started his law enforcement career as a police officer in San Jose, Cal., in 1960. He established the Criminal Justice Program at Portland State University eight years later and in 1972 joined Howard University, where he became associate director of the Institute for Urban Affairs and Research, public administration professor and director of the Criminal Justice Program.

After three years at Howard he returned to Portland, became Multnomah County sheriff and director of public safety, and then in 1978 was appointed director of the county's Department of Justice Services.

He went on to become public safety commissioner in Atlanta before joining the Houston police in 1982.

Dinkins, the first black elected mayor in New York, reportedly had considered Condon, Brown, San Jose Chief Joseph D. McNamara and Henry DeGeneste, superintendent of the police of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

Brown, 52, who is black, has been credited with easing racial tensions in Houston. But the Houston force recently has withstood allegations of racism and corruption, as well as controversy over some shootings by officers.

He is only the second out-of-towner to be named New York's police commissioner in the past 30 years.

Women object to store display

HOUSTON (AP) — Protesters say three bound and gagged female mannequins in a Houston-area store window depict violence against women.

The scantily clad mannequins' hands are tied with bows of shiny cellophane and their necks are coiled with green ribbon reins held by a Santa Claus figure.

The store owner, Robert Ortega, said Sunday he'll keep the display, but wouldn't answer other questions, the Houston Chronicle said.

Outside, about 50 women and men said the display at a vintage clothing store in Montrose is a blatant glamorization of sex and violence.

"This happened to me," said Stephanie Minor, referring to her

"It takes a Christmas symbol that our children trust and tells them it's OK to be abusive to women because Santa binds and gags them."

depiction. "I was bound and gagged and nearly killed when I was raped two years ago. This glamorizes and desensitizes the public to violence. This is a rape scene."

"It's not black leather and chains," said protester Allison Martin, "but it's the same thing in a more festive green and red."

A man who identified himself as a co-owner of the store stormed past protesters and screamed, "You have misinterpreted this!"

Each mannequin wore one item of clothing.

store, both frequented by children, also fueled the protesters' ire. They said the display dehumanizes a Christmas symbol and doesn't represent what the store sells.

"It takes a Christmas symbol that our children trust and tells them it's OK to be abusive to women because Santa binds and gags them," said Leslie Carothers.

Several people didn't enter the store after talking to the protesters, the newspaper said.

But one man said he thought the protest was silly.

"They (store owners) are just having fun," said the man, who declined to give his name. "They are using it to draw people in. I passed by here yesterday, and I didn't think anything of it."

Postal fires caused by arson

ARLINGTON (AP) — More than 1,000 pieces of Christmas mail were destroyed in four post office fires that officials said were the work of arsonists.

The fires occurred Sunday morning in a 3½-hour period in this suburb between Dallas and Fort Worth. Flammable liquid was poured into mail slots and ignited, burning almost all the contents, police and fire officials said.

Several grass fires were set in addition to those at the post offices — Great Southwest Station, Watson Station, 157 Plaza and Prestonwood Station.

"They were all in a series, a big circle, one right after the other," said Stephen Lea, deputy fire marshal. "They're all arson. We're dead sure of that. The same person or persons did all of these."

Arlington Postmaster Mike Lantz said between 1,000 and 2,000 pieces of mail were destroyed.

"Anyone who dropped mail in those boxes after the last collection should consider that mail gone," Lantz said. "Any salvageable mail, anything we can identify, we will make an attempt to send anything back to the sender or receiver."

No injuries were reported. Damage to each of the post offices was estimated at $5,000, not counting the mail.

WICHITA FALLS — Continued freezing temperatures kept The Falls in Wichita Falls partially frozen on Sunday.

Homeless ousted

HOUSTON (AP) — Shivering people were roused from under trash and tattered blankets by Houston police and city officials who vowed to enforce trespassing laws if they return to their makeshift camp under a downtown freeway.

Most agreed to be taken to warmer, indoor shelters Saturday while a few simply walked off.

"It's damn cold under here. They shouldn't be here," said Bob Dean, director of the mayor's citizen assistance office.

Dean said a lack of toilet facilities under the freeway on the southern edge of downtown is causing a health hazard, and that the small fires the campers set could spread.

Car theft

DALLAS (AP) — Police are looking for a man who stole a car with two children in it, then abandoned them at a city park in freezing temperatures.

"That's the most lowdown car thief I've ever heard of," police detective Roberto Garza said Sunday. "Those two little children could have frozen to death in that dark park, but he just drove away and left them there."

Searchers found the boys, ages 2 and 4, unharmed about two hours after the car was taken Saturday.

Opinion

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Opinions from across the U.S. Too soon for complacency

A poll says half of all Americans think communism has failed and is now on its deathbed. We think that possibly they may be half right. Marxism is generally regarded as a failure. But what we perceive as the evils of the communist system could persist under any number of new names. We should never forget that rivalries among nations spring from deeper causes than ideology. The nations of Europe have been warring for years over territory and economic advantage. Communism was no more than a radical pipedream when the nations of Europe blundered into World War I. National antipathies and rivalries brought that on. And many of the same rivalries and antipathies exist today. It is only human to expect that every favorable development on the international scene means the millennium is being ushered in. But history tells us not to expect it. History tells us that world powers always tend to collide when their interests conflict. We must never lose hope, but we must never expect too much. Complacency, such as that reflected in the poll, could prove to be our worst enemy.

Religious accommodation

When Mikhail S. Gorbachev met with Pope John Paul II in the Vatican, many commentators recalled Joseph Stalin's facetious remark to Winston Churchill: "How many divisions does the pope have?" Yet the historic encounter between the head of the Roman Catholic Church and the leader of the international communist movement signified more than an acknowledgment by Gorbachev that the pope's power cannot be measured in military terms. Gorbachev cannot, even should he wish to, rule through terror, like Stalin. It is too late for that. He must respond to the beliefs of the people of the Soviet Union. His predecessors were forced to come to an accommodation with the Russian Orthodox Church, based on the latter's subservience. Gorbachev has had to come to an agreement with the pope that acknowledges the spiritual power of the Catholic Church. The Soviet leader will also have to come to an accommodation with the other divisions of religion, under the banner of Islam as well as Christianity, as the world witnesses, not the death of God, but the agony of communism.

The News and Courier, Charleston, S.C.

Spending 'peace dividend'

In anticipation of an enormous "peace dividend" from improved superpower relations, members of Congress have already begun laying plans for allocating the tens — or even hundreds — of billions of dollars that are expected to be saved on defense. The idea is to shift the windfall to domestic programs, from education to the war on drugs. Congress, in its eagerness to fatten politically popular domestic programs, may cut too much from defense and leave American forces dangerously weakened in a world that still has its dangers, whatever happens in East-West relations. To prevent a weakening of America's defenses, both (President) Bush and Congress need to keep three important points in mind. — Cut troops before anything else, but maintain enough strength to protect American interests. (For example, cutting the 2.1 million active-duty personnel by 20 percent — 420,000 troops — would save about $12.5 billion alone in fiscal 1994). — Don't be in a rush to weaken America's strategic capability. — (D)espite the Soviet Union's paring of conventional forces, its massive nuclear arsenal remains largely intact. (T)he United States should avoid excessively deep cuts, because nuclear systems tend to be a relatively cheap form of security. — Don't cut research and development. The R&D portion of the defense budget — less than 5 percent — is arguably the best defense investment the taxpayers can make. Even as Bush and Congress agree to slash procurement for this and that weapon system, they must make sure not to jeopardize America's lead in the technology of warfare.

Los Angeles Daily News

Non-aggression treaty

The nearly 40 percent pay raise that members of the House voted themselves in the waning days of the 1989 session probably won't be much of an election issue next year. That's because the chairmen of the Democratic and Republican parties as well as the congressional committee chairmen from each party signed a non-aggression agreement. In part, the bipartisan pact reads: "The four of us have agreed to issue instructions to our staffs that the vote on HR 3660 (the pay raise) is not an appropriate point of criticism in the coming campaigns. Further we will publicly oppose the use of this issue in any campaign in the 1990 cycle." In other words, challengers to a House seat who had hoped to make an issue of their opponents' vote for a pay raise will be strongly urged by their own parties not to do so. This accommodating attitude between the two parties leads one to wonder if the political cynics aren't correct: There no longer are two distinct parties in Washington. They've been replaced by one large group of incumbents whose primary aims are to keep getting elected and reaping as many benefits as they can from the taxpayers.

A plea for wholesomeness

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Every year it happens. The love one wishes to express at Christmas gets lost in an orgy of eating and drinking, not to mention greed and buying sprees. Then, only days later, that love is obscured by hangovers and self-flagellation. I am referring, of course, to the annual New Year's resolutions, in which the nation's citizenry does penance for its excesses of the previous year. "I vow to never again drink more than six glasses of rum in one evening," a stodgy banker will write. "For 1990, I promise to stop cheating on my income taxes," a business executive will declare. I must confess that all of this leaves me a bit cold. The vow of abstinence, the sudden display of conscience, loses credibility when it follows so closely after bacchanalian bashes. The relevant question concerning New Year's resolutions is not whether they will be fulfilled, but exactly how many weeks will pass before they're violated. I mention all of this as a plea on behalf of wholesomeness throughout the year — including a wholesome restraint during the holidays. Wholesomeness, I know, sounds like a word from an earlier era, when cakes were still made from scratch. In the 1980s, the word is thought to be vaguely pejorative, implying a bland and fatuously conservative lifestyle — something on the order of Pat Boone. But the problem lies in our lack of imagination, not in the idea of wholesomeness. The dictionary defines wholesome as "conducive to sound health or well-being; salutary" and, for a second definition, "morally or socially salubrious." In an era of specialization — both in the media and at the workplace — that spawns a fragmented awareness, we need wholesomeness more than ever. We need to be returned to our whole selves, our full humanity, with a capacity for universal understanding and love. We need more humanitarianism, something that supersedes minority and special-interest identities. To inspire us, we have the innovative tradition of "holistic medicine," in which the patient is evaluated as a whole person, not just as a collector of symptoms. We also have the youth movement of the 1960s, which — for all its drugs and promiscuity — brought a wholesome legacy of cooperative housing, love of nature, and natural foods. Contrary to popular belief, wholesomeness is more than a personal virtue, such as applying a pure soap to one's face for the sake of a good complexion. The 1980s have brought compelling evidence that a failure to be wholesome can inflict serious damage on the rest of society. Drug addicts pose a hardship to family, friends, and employers, and they're often led into a life of crime to support their vile habit. Nor can Americans ignore the fact that smoking increases the likelihood of contracting cancer, not only for the smoker but for those around him. The deaths of thousands of people through the spread of the AIDS virus has also demonstrated, in a rather brutal manner, that lack of wholesomeness can kill. The fatal virus would not be spreading if people tended to the health and psychic needs of others. They could do that in part by practicing monogamous love. But monogamous love, let alone monogamous sex, is a rarity in modern society. And few of the sexually active are conscientious enough to use condoms and to take an AIDS virus test every six months as a means of protecting the lives of others. The failure to practice wholesomeness, then, carries ethical as well as medical implications. The Jewish philosopher Martin Buber preached tending to the health and psychic needs of others by incorporating the principle of "I and Thou" in one's conduct and beliefs. Yet Americans repeatedly fail to take into account those needs. When a person at the office comes down with a cold or the flu, it's quite common for him to carry it to work and endanger the health of coworkers. "It's not fatal, and besides, everyone else brings their cold to the office," the offending party reasons.

Judging by the celebrities — those people who are celebrated — wholesomeness counts for little in our culture. Any society that glorifies Madonna, who is not at all like a virgin, and the brutalities of Sylvester Stallone has a bit of explaining to do. It's refreshing, then, to find actors who radiate goodness. River Phoenix, a vegetarian, works on behalf of animal rights off the screen; in his films, he displays a marvelous blend of levity and earnestness. Katharine Hepburn, through her films, also exemplified wholesomeness at its best: exuberance blended with creative idealism.

Tragically, we have been made to feel ashamed for our fundamentally wholesome instincts. If we're offered a choice between wine or apple juice, we are expected to prove our "adult sophistication" by asking for wine. If we're given a present on a day other than Christmas or our birthday, we feel compelled to demonstrate our "savvy" by asking: "What does he want from me?"

To assume that people are fundamentally good, and that love plays a role in their motives, would seem hopelessly naive to today's jaded sensibility. It's far trendier to play the role of the cynic, dwelling on the worst possible motives in others.

The price of cynicism is high. It begets misanthropy and a failure to love or allow love into one's life. Under such conditions, Christmas can degenerate into platitudes uttered without conviction. At its best, Christmas should be a time for affirming our and others' wholeness as human beings. It should be a time for delighting in the wholesome, which has a heartening effect.

Let us celebrate Christmas, then, by rededicating ourselves to goodness.

Gift ideas for today's teenagers

BY LEWIS GRIZZARD
I hear a lot of my male friends complaining because they don't know what to give their children for Christmas.

Allow me to clarify that. The men I hear complaining the most are the ones with teenaged children. Those with younger offspring appear to have it much easier.

They buy their kids Nintendo games and dolls that file sex discrimination suits. These seem to have replaced the toy truck and Barbie.

But what do you give the teenager on the brink of the '90s? I would really like to help these people, but my credibility in this area, I admit, is somewhat suspect since I don't have any children, teenaged or otherwise.

However, as an observer of life in all its phases, perhaps an outsider like myself can, in fact, select appropriate gifts for teenagers even better than their parents can.

I have already admitted I am not a parent, but I did have some. And in the immortal words of my mother, "Believe it or not, I was a teenager myself once, and I don't care if you are 16, you're not getting a Corvette for Christmas."

In other words, I think I can understand both points of view, thereby giving me an edge over parents whose minds are cluttered by such thoughts as, "If I give my kid a Corvette for Christmas, will he (or she) drive it through a K mart?"

Here are some gift ideas for teenage boys:

An earring: Earrings have become quite popular with teenaged boys. I realize most fathers likely can't stand the thought of their sons wearing an earring, but they're cheaper than a Corvette and he's already dyed his hair orange.

A guitar: What do you think you give a kid who wears an earring and dyes his hair orange? A set of golf clubs?

A motorcycle: Maybe he'll drive it through a K mart and get sent to reform school. You can tell your friends at the club your son has joined the Marines.

A facelift: As soon as a kid dyes his hair orange, starts wearing an earring and joins a rock group, the term "zit-head" takes on an entire new meaning.

A box of condoms: Believe it or not, some chicks go for zit-heads.

Now for your teenaged daughter: Tight-fitting jeans: Daddy's little girl has grown up. Plus, all the other girls are wearing them.

A pair of red high heels to wear with her tight-fitting jeans: What, you wanted to give her a chastity belt?

A convertible: Perhaps she'll drive it through a Neiman-Marcus and get sent to girls' reform school, where she'll be safe. You can tell your friends at the club your daughter has become a nun.

A trip to Europe: In case the convertible thing doesn't work. Maybe while she's gone, she'll forget about that zit-head she's been dating.

A box of condoms: In case she doesn't.

Volcano Redoubt still spewing ash

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A family living in the shadow of reawakened Redoubt Volcano was airlifted to safer ground, and scientists warned that the mountain could go on launching ash and steam for some time.

The continent's most notorious volcano, Mount St. Helens in Washington state, also showed signs of life after more than three years of silence.

In Alaska, the rescue came on the fourth day of intermittent ash and steam eruptions from the mountain, which lies in a sparsely populated region 115 miles southwest of Anchorage.

Scientists at the Alaska Volcano Observatory relished the opportunity to train modern instruments on the 10,197-foot mountain.

They hoped to reach the peak today by helicopter for a first-hand look, said John Richter, a geologist at the observatory.

By correlating ground observations with instrument readings, the scientists hope to gather information that could help anticipate eruptions or determine the importance of seismic activity on the mountain in Lake Clark National Park. "We have no baseline data to judge it by now," Richter said. "This is the first time we're getting good data on it."

He said scientists have no idea how long the volcano might spew ash and steam. "It could go on for quite a while at rate. We sort of call it a (phase) five — a long period of moderate explosive activity, punctuated with some larger bursts."

South Florida restricts water

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Water restrictions prompted by South Florida's worst drought in 27 years took effect today, forcing the shutoff of decorative fountains and raising the prospect of brown golf courses and dirty cars.

About 4 million people from the Florida Keys to the sprinkler-equipped estates of Palm Beach, more than 200 miles to the north, must reduce water consumption 15 percent under the first regional restrictions in nine years.

The rules were adopted Thursday by the South Florida Water Management District. Violators can be fined $25.

Environmentalists charge the Everglades are being short-changed, and golf course operators worry that the winter tourist season may wither along with their greens. Golf is a $5 billion-a-year business in Florida.

South Florida is in its worst dry spell since 1962. Some areas have gotten 33 inches less rain than normal during the past 14 months, and the area is heading into the dry season, which runs through May.

Contract reported on president

NEW YORK (AP) — Rumors are circulating in Washington that Colombian drug lords have put a $30 million price on President Bush's head and have tried to recruit Middle East terrorists to kill him, Newsweek reports.

The magazine, in its Dec. 25 issue, also said the drug cartels have sought Colombian guerrillas to raid U.S. targets.

The information was attributed to a well-placed State Department official, who said some of the reports have been investigated but none checked out.

Deputy White House press secretary Roman Popadiuk said Sunday he knew nothing about the reports.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., called the reported bounty credible.

"They have used these tactics against their own people and they would resort to this kind of effort," he said.

The senator added that he thought it unlikely that Bush would back down from his plan to attend a drug summit in Colombia Feb. 15.

FORT CLAYTON — U.S. troops in battle gear sit in trucks inside Fort Clayton, Panama, Sunday, after being put on alert in response to the fatal shooting of a U.S. soldier Saturday night.

Tensions high after U.S. officer killed in Panama

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Government troops manning machine guns blocked streets around Panama's military headquarters after the killing of an American military officer seriously jeopardized already tense U.S.-Panamanian relations.

Their guns were aimed across the Panama Canal at American military bases as Panamanians waited tensely for the United States to retaliate.

U.S. soldiers were put on maximum alert after the officer was fatally shot and a Navy couple arrested and beaten Saturday night not far from the military headquarters of Panamanian leader Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

At U.S. bases, perimeter fences were patrolled by troops in battle gear.

In Washington, the White House deplored the violence, terming it a "consequence" of Panama's being run by Noriega.

The United States said Panamanian troops were solely responsible for the violence. The Panamanian Defense Forces accused U.S. officers of a provocation and did not mention the American's death.

Since February 1988, when Noriega was indicted in Florida on charges of trafficking in Colombian cocaine, the United States has been trying to drive him from power with economic, diplomatic and political pressure.

Noriega denies the charges and says Washington wants to oust him and renege on the treaties that transfer U.S. control of the canal to Panama at the end of the century and close U.S. military installations in the country.

In recent months, high-ranking U.S. military officers said that any attack on U.S. military personnel would bring an immediate violent response.

On Sunday, buses and trucks blocked streets around Noriega's headquarters. But Panamanians were beginning to doubt there would be any U.S. action.

"Nothing has happened," a psychiatrist said on condition of anonymity. "The gringos have not done anything and it looks like they are just going to bury their dead."

"If they do not do anything today, then they are not going to do anything at all. What is Cisneros waiting for?" a university student asked, referring to Gen. Marc Cisneros, head of the Panama-based U.S. Southern Command.

Storms batter France and Britain

PARIS (AP) — A wave swept a teen-age angler out to sea and gusting high winds blew two cars into a head-on collision, killing two people, to bring the weekend death toll from a savage tropical storm to at least 17.

Six people were killed and 11 reported missing in France and Britain over the weekend after the storm moved in with heavy rains, lightning and wind blowing from the southwest Atlantic that attained speeds of 75 mph.

Residents along French coastal areas braced today for more rain and 62 mph gusts that forecasters said could last through Tuesday.

Widespread damage was reported in western parts of the country, with roofs torn off homes, trees and telephone lines toppled, and structures knocked over by the gale-force winds.

Near the Mediterranean Sea port of Toulon, an unidentified teen-ager drowned Sunday when a huge wave swept him out to sea as he fished from the shore. Three people near Paris died Sunday afternoon when the storm pushed briefly into the capital.

In Britain, the 35-foot fishing boat Destiny sank Saturday in Scotland's Firth of Clyde, 750 feet from safe harbor, and all six fishermen were believed lost in heavy seas and driving snow, authorities said.

Conservative holds slim lead

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Conservative Fernando Collor de Mello held a slim lead over his socialist adversary in Brazil's first popular presidential election since 1960, according to partial returns today.

Sunday's runoff was seen as a referendum on two decades of rapid but unequal growth that has brought 1,500 percent annual inflation, sinking real wages and corruption, and the Third World's biggest foreign debt, $110 billion.

Voters could choose between two kinds of reform to attack the problems — Collor de Mello's free-market policies or the platform of Luis Inacio Lula da Silva that includes redistribution of land and wealth, reform in education and health care and a moratorium on Brazil's foreign debt.

Globo TV, the nation's largest network, said that with 78.3 percent of the vote counted, Collor de Mello led with 29.4 million votes to 26.9 million for da Silva.

Collor de Mello, a former governor of Alagoas who advocates free-market policies and battling corruption in government, is backed by Brazil's business, military and media establishments.

Protests prompt sealing of border

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Romania sealed its border with Yugoslavia today to all but official traffic and tanks were reported patrolling a major city near the frontier after the biggest anti-government protest in two years.

Western diplomats contacted by telephone in Romania said security forces guarded Otopeni international airport and refused to allow a plane carrying about 200 Western tourists to land.

Hungarian border officials also reported that entry to Romania by Hungarian visitors was severely curtailed today following a weekend of demonstrations against the hard-line leadership of Nicolae Ceausescu.

Romania's strictly controlled state-run media made no mention of the unrest, but Bucharest radio on Sunday warned citizens to stay calm, indicating security forces were worried about protests spreading, as occurred in East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Popular revolts in those countries led to the downfall of hard-line leaders and ended the Communists' monopoly on power.

Dallas man starts paper for Texans who live away from home

DALLAS (AP) — Yes, Virginia, there really is no way to change a Texan into something else.

But Kirk Dooley figures folks in Virginia and a bunch of other states already realize that, and will just let them keep bragging about the Lone Star State.

And to keep those transplanted Texans up to date on happenings in their homeland, the 35-year-old Dallas man has started a newspaper called HomeState Texan.

"When you live somewhere else, your Texas pride is increased," Dooley said.

Dooley said he suspected there was a market for such a publication as he became aware of how tenaciously Texans hold onto their identity. For example, he points out that a club for Texans in Washington, D.C., has more than 3,000 members.

He said Texans like to bring out their cowboy boots and hats once in awhile just to let others know what a great deal they have missed out on.

"That's what we're banking on," he said.

Although Dooley has not advertised the newspaper's existence other than mentioning it to friends, his mailing list for the first issue quickly grew to more than 200 people. He already has subscribers in 38 states and more than two dozen foreign countries. A subscription, for four issues annually, costs $15 for U.S. residents and $30 for those living elsewhere. Dooley said he hopes to build the newspaper's circulation to about 5,000 people.

The inaugural issue is 24 pages and has articles on the Terlingua chili fest, the County Line Barbecue chain, the Kennedy exhibit in Dallas and Texas author Larry L. King.

Each issue will have a summary of recent news events, some features and a heavy dose of Tex-ana, said Dooley, who previously invented a Texas trivia game.

"It's something people would want to read about Texas if they were in London. I don't think people in the state would read it themselves, but a lot of people are buying it to send to their relatives," said Dooley, who has started two suburban Dallas newspapers.

"The reception from some people has been passionate. I think we've struck a nerve. I just got back from the mailing some copies and the post office man asked me what I had. He bought two subscriptions for his sons."

Some people subscribing from other states have sent long letters detailing their affinity for their native state along with checks.

Dooley said he has firsthand knowledge about how frustrating it is to be a Texan living out of state. He spent six months studying in San Francisco.

"He told me six months in California was too long for him," said his wife, Charlotte Dooley, who is in charge of the newspaper's circulation and advertising.

"By the sixth month, I was just looking for someone to talk with me about Texas," Dooley said.

Wood worker plays Santa

DALLAS (AP) — Ken Jervi says he made his own toys as a youth because his family could not afford to buy any.

Jervi, who lives near Crowley in Johnson County, still makes toys but no longer for himself.

Almost like a real Santa Claus, he labors for hours making simple, unpainted wooden playthings for children. He makes holiday rounds, distributing the toys to area charities, using a well-worn Mercury that may have been brown many years ago instead of a red, snow-powered sled.

"I didn't have very many (toys) of my own, and the ones I had, I made," said Jervi, the son of a laborer who sometimes unloaded coal cars for a living.

"Hey, I'm not Rockefeller," he said as he was dropping off about 20 wooden mice, 10 boats and 25 fish at a girls club in Arlington. "If you can't give from the heart, you haven't got anything."

Jervi makes a living from a small business refinishing antiques and doing other woodwork. He has made toys for children for four years.

"There weren't many things I could do," he said. "I was unemployed. I couldn't write a check to the Kiwanis Club to do something like this. But I kept thinking about kids this time of year. At Christmas, a toy to a child is just as important as food and clothing to you and me."

"What I do is give them something simple," he said. "At least it shows that people care."

Drop in grade fails to pass as punishment for students

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to stress my agreement with your opinion of teachers inappropriately using grades as punishment for students' behavior.

I still carry resentment (after 15 years) over such an experience in high school. Toward the end of our senior year, five of us were tardy for math class. It was intentional — a conspired "lark" — and the teacher knew it. Our punishment was a drop of one letter grade for the semester.

Following a mild protest by the parents and students involved, and a little push from the principal, the teacher agreed to give us a "second chance." We would have to earn an "A" on a math test especially designed by this teacher. Only two of us opted to try. Well, I failed the test, and so did the other student. Although I was a straight-A student, I never in all my life had seen a more difficult test!

Granted, intentional tardiness was immature, but none of us had ever given this teacher any trouble before. The punishment might not have remained so clearly in my memory except for the fact that it prevented me from becoming salutatorian of my class, which would have meant a lot to my parents.

It is said that people can touch the lives of others in very significant ways through the smallest of actions. You can bet I'll never forget that teacher's name. — FROM KANSAS troversy about whether a teacher should lower the grade of a student for giving or accepting "help" from another student during an examination.

Many who responded seemed to feel that a student should receive the grade he or she earned and not have it lowered for any reason.

Well, in the state of Idaho, a student must attend 90 percent of the classes or he/she will get no credit for that class. In our school district, that means students who miss seven days of school in a trimester will receive no credit, even if they have done all the work and would otherwise get an "A." To add insult to injury, students are counted absent if they miss a class due to a school activity — band, sports, drama, debate or even counseling. In the parents' handbook sent home from our school, it states that if students have missed more than six days, they will receive no credit, but are still expected to attend school and do all the work. I cannot imagine anything that would do more to encourage a student to drop out of school!

I am all for preparing our young people to live productively in the adult world. However, I firmly believe that those students who have done all the work and passed all the tests should be given full credit for the class. — UPSET IN IDAHO

DEAR UPSET IN IDAHO AND FROM KANSAS: Many readers disagreed with me, but I still maintain that for cheating, skipping school and unacceptable behavior, appropriate punishment is in order. Expulsion or suspension might be an alternative, but teachers should not tamper with a student's scholastic record.

If character references are required, the student's character blemishes should be clearly stated, but a student's grades should reflect that student's scholastic ability — and nothing else.

Rocking horses ride again

From TRADITIONAL HOME
For AP Newsfeatures

Rocking horses, tireless and faithful companions to children of generations past, remain well loved.

According to Traditional Home magazine, antique horses are collected as folk sculpture, and tradition-minded craftsmen keep the art alive by carving a new breed of rocking horses to charm wide-eyed youngsters.

The rocking horse, a fixture of the nursery from 1700 to 1940, has always delighted. Whether primitive and worn or extravagant and untouched by time, the rocking horse possesses a quiet beauty that makes it a highly coveted antique.

Though it all but disappeared during recent decades, the rocking horse, like many things traditional and well made, is beginning to re-emerge as craftsmen pick up their tools to carve them once again.

Born at the dawn of the 18th century, the rocking horse was one of the first toys of childhood. Social change swept across Europe during the 1700s; for the first time children were encouraged to laugh, play and dream.

The nursery of the time was unlike any that came before. It brimmed with pretty new children's books and ingenious toys like china dolls, marbles, bat-tledore and shuttlecock. But the rocking horse was loved best of all.

Recognizing children's stress

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS
For AP Newsfeatures

All parents want their children to succeed. That's only natural.

And so is wanting to give a child every advantage. But faster, better, sooner isn't always best for kids, say experts, and some children are paying the price.

Children under too much pressure often show signs of stress. Watch for some of these warning signs, says Better Homes and Gardens magazine:

- Stomach pain or headaches.
- Sleep problems.
- Bed-wetting.
- Changes in eating habits.
- Aggressive or stubborn behavior.

• Reluctance to participate. Sometimes these symptoms are not immediately obvious.

"The better you know your child, the less likely you will be to push on inappropriate activity," says Nancy Robinson, director of the University of Washington's Center for the Study of Capable Youth.

To find out what really holds a child's interest, Robinson suggests simply observing how the child responds to activities.

"One of the best investments a parent can make is to get a cup of coffee and sit and watch his or her child playing," Robinson says.

If parents discover a child is stressed out from being overscheduled, they shouldn't be afraid to back off.

New board game

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new board game built around real-life situations from nursing and retirement homes around the country is designed to help people who work with the elderly solve problems and be more understanding.

The Game of Aging Concerns asks participants to discuss how they would deal with challenges and crises that come up in homes for the elderly.

For example, one game card instructs players to role-play a situation in which an administrator is talking with a group of residents who are demanding the ouster of an unmarried man and woman who live together.

Another card asks the player to discuss how to help an elderly man whose wife died two years earlier and feels he has nothing left to live for. A third asks what to do about a 72-year-old man who is intoxicated when he comes to the dining room and acts belligerent and disruptive.

The game was developed for the American Association of Homes for the Aging by Vicki Schmall, a gerontologist at Oregon State University who based the game cards on more than 1,000 situations submitted by retirement housing officials.

The game is available for $30 plus $3 per game for shipping and handling from AAHA Publications, American Association of Homes for the Aging, 1129 20th St. NW, Suite 400, Washington D.C. 20036-3489.

Cutting back

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than one-fourth of older Americans cut back on basic necessities such as food, energy or medical care because of "money problems," according to a government survey of married couples age 55 and older.

Energy consumption, including heat and hot water, was the most frequent cutback, followed closely by food, with medical care reduced by substantially fewer households, said the report in the Agriculture Department Family Economic Review. It said 14.5 percent of households surveyed reduced on one of the three necessities, 6.9 percent cut back on two, and 5.2 percent cut back all three.

"Health or safety problems are likely to be a very real possibility for some households who cut back on food purchases, heat or hot water, or medical care," the report said.

It also found that 31 percent of older households cut back on entertainment because of financial strains, suggesting that "when older consumers are faced with the need to cut back, discretionary areas are likely to be cut first."

End of a great ride

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

BEDFORD — The Steers' magical mystery tour is over for this year, but wasn't it a great ride while it lasted?

The Steers' dream of a state championship crashed here Saturday at the hands of the Chapel Hill Bulldogs.

And while it is unlikely that anyone will soon forget the 59-6 thrashing that Chapel Hill administered, neither should it detract from what was a Cinderella season for Big Spring. Big Spring was picked to finish no better than second in the district race by most so-called "experts," but proved those experts wrong by advancing further in the playoffs than any Steer's team since 1953.

In the process, they lifted this town's spirits to a high not seen for many years.

Having a town dream resting on your shoulders must be a horrible weight to bear, but the Steers did it with class and distinction.

That class was never more in evidence than after the final gun sounded Saturday. The Steers graciously lined up and shook hands with their opponents, wishing them good luck in next week's championship game.

This is not to say that the team wasn't disappointed at falling short of its goal. Red eyes were a common denominator in the locker room following the game.

Red eyes or not, however, the Steers to a man were complimentary of Chapel Hill's effort. Head Coach David Thompson likened the defeat to "a good ol' fashioned country whipping" and complimented Chapel Hill for having a great team.

"We came in here knowing that they were a great defensive team," wingback Neal Mayfield said. "Today, we didn't play well at all, but they came in here and did a good job."

Although very disappointed at the loss, the Steers expressed optimism for the future.

This optimism was perhaps best exemplified by sophomore Pat Chavarria, who stuck his head out of the locker room and said, "Don't worry, we'll be back next year."

Coach Thompson also expressed optimism for next year's team, pointing to the fact that the Steers will return seven defensive and four offensive starters.

Granted, this can be of little consolation to this year's seniors. For many, their football careers ended Saturday.

Regardless, this season should long be remembered by Steer fans. This team provided more thrills and chills than any Big Spring team in recent memory.

All in all, it was a heck of a ride.

Player remains in coma

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland Trail Blazers forward Ramon Ramos remained in a coma early today after being critically injured when his speeding sports car went out of control on a slick freeway.

Doctors on Sunday put the chances for his survival at 50-50. "We really have to take it one day at a time," said Dr. Kim Burchiel, head of the Neurosurgery Department at Oregon Health Sciences University Hospital. "The first three days or so are of the utmost critical nature."

Burchiel said fluid on Ramos' lungs had subsided somewhat, but he remained on a breathing machine. Several small hemorrhages were putting pressure on his brain, which Burchiel said was typical of serious head injuries.

Ramos' girlfriend, 22-year-old Carmen Padial, said she had arrived from Puerto Rico with the player's mother and father early Sunday.

"Me and his parents are taking it day by day," Padial said on behalf of the family. "We're keeping hope, but we're realistic."

Blazers co-captain Jerome Kersey said Ramos accident "puts your life as a basketball player in perspective. You live such a fabulous life and you are always in the limelight. It tends to make you overlook what life really is."

Ready to go

BEDFORD — Members of the Big Spring Steers have some last-minute words prior to the kickoff in Saturday's semifinal game against the Tyler Chapel Hill Bulldogs. The Bulldogs ended the Steers' season with a 59-6 thrashing. Big Spring finished the season with a 11-3 mark.

Bengals slaughter Oilers, 61-7

CINCINNATI (AP) — Now that they've been shown up, the Houston Oilers have to get ready for a showdown.

The Oilers let a chance to claim the AFC Central Division title slip away Sunday with five first-half turnovers in frigid conditions against Cincinnati. The Bengals, smarting from years of perceived slights, cashed in on the mistakes and then extracted revenge, rolling up the score in a 61-7 victory that matched the club record for points in a game.

The Oilers (9-6) now will face the Cleveland Browns (8-6-1) in the Astrodome next Saturday for the division title. The Browns beat Minnesota 23-17 in overtime Sunday to leave Cincinnati (8-7) hoping for a wild card.

"We feel very fortunate that we haven't lost two in a row since 1987," Glanville said, looking ahead to the Cleveland game. "We'll be very fortunate if we can keep this streak going."

"You take it personal when your opponent says bad things about you constantly," said receiver Tim McGee, who had six catches for 147 yards. "When we've beaten them, they said we're lucky. When they've beaten us, they called us a finesse team, a soft team."

Wyche made sure there was no softness Sunday. After Boomer Esiason's fourth touchdown pass put Cincinnati ahead 45-0 midway through the third quarter, Wyche had the Bengals successfully execute an onside kick. Cincinnati was still throwing the football in the fourth quarter, and scored its final points on Jim Breech's field goal with 21 seconds to play.

Wyche said his only regret was that the game couldn't have gone longer.

The 61 points matched the club record, established in a 61-17 victory in the Astrodome in 1972. It was the biggest margin of victory in Bengals' history. Cincinnati's 589 yards was the second-highest total in club history.

But all the Bengals had to show for it was personal satisfaction. They lost their chance to repeat as division champions when Cleveland won later Sunday to hold onto second play with one week remaining.

Esiason was the offensive catalyst. He completed 11 consecutive passes in the first half and finished with 20-of-27 passing for 326 yards and four touchdowns.

When the rout was complete, the Browns' game was played on a television in the Bengals' locker room. Esiason watched as Cleveland won in overtime with a fake field goal.

Houston is looking forward to getting back under a dome. The Oilers lacked crispness Sunday in the frigid air.

Seahawks deal blow to Raiders' hopes

By The Associated Press
San Francisco, Denver and the New York Giants are in the postseason dash to the Super Bowl. Eleven teams know their seasons are over next week.

Everyone else — 14 teams in all — are still seeking the seven remaining playoff spots.

In Sunday's games, no team clinched a berth and only one team — Washington — was eliminated.

On Saturday, the New York Giants blanked Dallas 15-0 and Denver defeated Phoenix 37-0.

Tonight, Philadelphia will be at New Orleans.

Seahawks 23, Raiders 17

Dave Krieg completed 25 of 34 passes for 270 yards and two touchdowns as Seattle dealt a severe blow to the Raiders' playoff hopes. Both the Seahawks (7-8) and the Raiders (8-7) remain mathematically alive — although longshots — for the playoffs.

The Raiders drove to the Seattle 15, but Steve Beuerlein's fourth-down pass with 11 yards to go sailed over Mervyn Fernandez's head at the Seattle 5 with 1:28 remaining.

Seattle's game-winning score was a 13-yard TD pass from Krieg to John L. Williams, who finished with 12 receptions for 129 yards and one touchdown.

SEATTLE — Paul Skansi (82) of the Seattle Seahawks is knocked out of bounds after catching a five-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Dave Krieg. Defending on the play is Los Angeles Raiders' Russell Carter (29).

Rams 38, Jets 14
Jim Everett threw for 273 yards and two touchdowns as the Rams (10-5) remained in position for a wild-card berth by downing the Jets.

Los Angeles dominated the Jets (4-11) in every department, with Everett throwing two touchdown passes and Greg Bell running for two TDs.

The Jets scored on a 63-yard touchdown pass play from Tony Eason, making his debut for New York, to JoJo Townsell in the first quarter. But the Rams scored 21 points in the second period.

49ers 21, Bills 10

Roger Craig rushed for 105 yards and the go-ahead touchdown as San Francisco (13-2) beat turnover-prone Buffalo, the Bills' fourth loss in five games and fourth straight on the road. Buffalo (8-7) missed a chance to clinch its second consecutive AFC East title, but the Bills can still do it by betting the Jets Saturday.

The Bills set up a 21-point San Francisco burst in the second half by giving the ball away in their own territory on three straight possessions. They committed all five of their turnovers in the second half.

Steelers 28, Patriots 10

Tim Worley ran for 104 yards and a touchdown, Louis Lipps scored on a 58-yard reverse and Pittsburgh's defense dominated for the second straight week.

Merrill Hoge ran for two short-range touchdowns as the Steelers (8-7) won for the fourth time in five games to maintain an outside shot at their first playoff berth in five years.

Chargers 20, Vikings 13

Billy Joe Tolliver threw two touchdown passes and Marion Butts rushed for 176 yards on a club-record 39 carries as San Diego damaged Kansas City's playoff hopes. The loss was the first in five weeks for Kansas City, (7-7-1), which was unable to hold a 13-0 lead.

The Chargers (5-10) lost their previous four games by a total of 15 points.

Kansas City drove to the Chargers' 19 with 19 seconds left, but Roy Bennett intercepted Steve DeBerg's pass in the end zone.

Browns 23, Vikings 17

Mike Pagel threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to linebacker Van Waiters on a fake field goal with 5:30 left in overtime to boost Cleveland (8-6-1) over Minnesota (9-6).

Chris Bahr kicked a 32-yard field goal for the Browns with 24 seconds in regulation to force the overtime.

Oregon rallies to win Independence Bowl

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Tulsa coach David Rader believes the Hurricane would have had a better chance to beat Oregon in the Independence Bowl if the weather had been colder than 29 degrees.

Oregon won the game 27-24 Saturday night by rallying from a 24-10 deficit in the second half.

"It needed to be colder," Rader said. "I thought we needed every advantage that we could get. If it's colder, they have to put more clothes on and maybe that will slow them down."

But even more frustrating to Rader was the officiating. He was upset by two calls: when Brett Adams was stopped on a fourth-and-one at the Oregon 48, and in the game's key play when Oregon quarterback Bill Musgrave appeared to fumble at the Tulsa 1, but the play was ruled dead.

The fumble that wasn't led to Gregg McCallum's 20-yard field goal with three minutes left and the Oregon victory.

Musgrave, the game's most valuable offensive player, thought he had fumbled away the game.

McCallum's winning field goal gave Oregon (8-4) its most victories since 1963 and made it only the third Oregon team to win a bowl game. The last victory was in the 1963 Sun Bowl.

Tulsa (6-6) was a 14-point underdog, but the Hurricane led 24-10 early in the third quarter.

Musgrave, who hit 23 of 39 passes for 320 yards and two touchdowns, rallied Oregon on a 42-yard drive in just 10 plays after Tulsa was stopped on a fourth and one at the Ducks 48 with 7:48 remaining.

On a third and goal from the Tulsa 1, Musgrave took the snap and tried to hand off to Derek Loville. But he stumbled and tossed the ball backwards. Tulsa recovered but the play was ruled dead.

Oregon coach Rich Brooks said Musgrave was closer to the play than he was.

Both teams struggled in the first half, which ended with Tulsa ahead 17-10. Musgrave and Tulsa quarterback T.J. Rubley were intercepted twice each, and both teams lost a fumble.

Rubley drove the Hurricane 27 yards in six plays to put Tulsa up 7-0 after a pass by Musgrave was intercepted. Adams scored from the 1-yard line.

Oregon answered with a 29-yard field goal, and went up 10-7 when the game's defensive player, Chris Oldham, intercepted a pass. Musgrave hit Tony Hargain for a 20-yard touchdown.

Tulsa tied the game on a 26-yard field goal by David Fuess and closed the first half scoring when Derrick Williams ran 21 yards with a blocked punt.

Adams scored again from the 1 in the third quarter after Tulsa stopped the Ducks at the Hurricane 28.

Then, Musgrave drove the Ducks 54 yards in eight plays, hitting Joe Reitzug with a 9-yard pass to close to 24-17.

After a Tulsa punt, Musgrave drove the Ducks 58 yards and scored his first rushing touchdown of the season from one yard out. That tied the game at 24-24.

Tulsa played without star receiver Dan Bitson, who broke his legs in an automobile accident.

SHREVEPORT, La. — University of Tulsa fullback Brett Adams (43) finds a hole in the University of Oregon line as Oregon defenders Mark Kearns (37) and Rory Dairy (3) move in for the tackle in Independence Bowl action Saturday night.

Beer brews issue

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Eagles' beer ban has brought a long-brewing issue to a head in Philadelphia, but NFL clubs and vendors say no consensus has emerged for dry football in stadiums across the country.

Eagles owner Norman Braman, enraged by snowball throwing during Philadelphia's 20-10 victory Sunday over the Dallas Cowboys, proposed banning beer for the final regular-season game and during any playoff games at Veterans Stadium, and the supplier agreed.

The supplier, Ogden Allied Food Services Inc., has said it hopes the ban will not be renewed next season, but other teams already have invoked curbs of various degrees.

"I'd say it's a very hot topic here and in the industry," said David Flaherty, spokesman for ARA Services, which sells beer at Pittsburgh Steelers, Atlanta Falcons, Denver Broncos and Chicago Bears home games.

Flaherty said ARA had a meeting on the issue Wednesday.

"It's raised the awareness throughout the industry," he said.

Philadelphia is the third team to ban beer altogether. Phoenix and Dallas took the step on orders from local authorities.

The New York Giants, New York Jets and Buffalo Bills ban beer at night games, and the Giants and Jets stop selling alcohol after halftime of other games.

In Kansas City and Indianapolis, sales stop after the third period, and the Chiefs also set aside sections where beer is forbidden the entire game.

The Cleveland Browns decided to cut off beer sales after the second quarter in the infamous Dawg Pound section of Municipal Stadium because fans were throwing dog biscuits, batteries and eggs. Club spokeswoman Francine Lubera said there have been fewer incidents since the cutoff.

Dale Lewis, assistant manager at Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati, said crowd behavior is closely monitored and beer sales are sometimes stopped early in the fourth quarter if city police, stadium security and the concession company feel it necessary.

"They see how it's going," Lewis said. "Later games, Monday night games, it's more of a problem. People don't tend to drink as much at Sunday afternoon games. There's always a few incidents, a few fights. There's always a few rowdy fans."

In Philadelphia, beer will still be allowed in luxury boxes, with the windows will be locked as a security move.

"It's a safety factor because, frankly, we're still not sure how to control the people sitting down below," Harry Gamble, Eagles president and chief operating officer, said.

Tim Robbie, Miami Dolphins vice president of public affairs, said the Eagles' action could become commonplace in the NFL.

"I think there is a trend toward making it a more comfortable atmosphere for all fans," Robbie said, adding that the creation of family sections is becoming popular around the league.

La Salle makes hoop's Top 25

By The Associated Press
The top six teams in the AP college basketball poll remained the same today as last week, but there was a new name toward the bottom of the rankings.

La Salle (4-0) entered the Top 25 for the first time in the 1980s as the Explorers came in at No. 23.

The top of the poll looked very familiar as Syracuse, Kansas, Georgetown, Missouri, Illinois and Michigan stayed in the same spots for the second week in a row.

The Orangemen (7-0) have been in the No. 1 spot for each of the four regular-season polls and this week they received 35 first-place votes and 1,525 points from the nationwide panel of sportwriters and broadcasters.

Kansas (10-0) was next with 20 first-place votes and 1,484 points, 31 more than Georgetown (7-0), which had seven first-place votes.

Missouri (9-0), with one first-place vote and 1,378 points, held fourth and was followed by Illinois (6-0), 1,279 points, and Michigan (7-1), 1,255 points.

Oklahoma, Louisiana State and Louisville each moved up one spot from last week's voting. The Sooners (4-0) took seventh this week with 1,255 points, 140 more than Louisiana State (4-1).

Louisville (7-1) had 1,052 points to edge Arkansas (5-1) by 23 points. The Razorbacks, who had been seventh, dropped after losing to Missouri 89-88 on their home court.

Indiana and Duke held their spots in leading the Second Ten and was followed by UNLV, Georgia Tech, North Carolina State, Iowa, Memphis State, UCLA, St. John's and Alabama.

Oregon State was 21st and was followed by Arizona, La Salle, Oklahoma State and Michigan State.

Most teams only played one game last week because of final exams and, in addition to Arkansas, the only ones to lose among the ranked teams were UCLA, which fell to Notre Dame 86-84 on Sunday; Oklahoma State, which lost to Tulsa 95-80 on Sunday; Florida, which dropped a 105-94 decision to Texas on Saturday; and Michigan State, which lost its first game as a ranked team 65-57 to Ill.-Chicago on Monday.

The victory snapped Cleveland's four-game winless streak and put the Browns in position to win the division title at Houston.

Bernie Kosar emerged from a five-week slump and threw two second-half touchdown passes for the Browns, then hit Reggie Langhorne with a 39-yarder to set up the winning play, which came on third down.

Packers 10, Bears 28
Don Majkowski passed for a touchdown and ran for two others, and Keith Woodside had a 68-yard touchdown run as Green Bay kept its playoff hopes alive.

The victory guaranteed the Packers' first winning season since 1978. The need a victory over Dallas and a loss by Minnesota next week to win the division.

"We're definitely a contender now," Majkowski said. "We have to keep our fingers crossed and see what happens. Hopefully, we'll get a little help."

The Bears (6-9) lost for the fifth straight time, their first losing streak of that length in 11 years.

Colts 12, Dolphins 13
Jack Trudeau passed for a career-high four touchdowns and Eric Dickerson had a career-high nine pass receptions and ran for 107 yards and two touchdowns for Indianapolis.

The Colts (8-7), who will get at Only Florida dropped from the rankings as the loss to the Longhorns made the Gators 2-2 for the season.

La Salle was quick to take their place as the Explorers had been 27th and 26th in the last two polls.

Although not regulars recently to the rankings, La Salle finished in the Top Ten five times in the final poll since the voting started in 1949.

The Explorers, now a member of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, were 10th in 1950 and second in 1969. From 1953-55, they finished sixth, second and third, while three-time All-America Tom Gola was playing for the Philadelphia school.

Now La Salle has returned to the rankings behind senior star Lionel Simmons, a 6-foot-7 senior forward who was third in the nation in scoring last season at 28.4 points per game and was fifth in rebounding at 11.4 per game.

Redskins 31, Falcons 30
Mark Rypien sparked three touchdown drives in the third quarter as Washington edged Atlanta.

Rypien connected with Art Monk on a 60-yard scoring play, set up Earnest Byner's 1-yard touchdown run with a 68-yard completion to Ricky Sanders to the Atlanta 1, then ran nine yards for a TD.

It was the fourth straight victory for Washington (9-6), whose playoff hopes ended when the Rams beat the Jets. Atlanta (3-12) lost its sixth consecutive game.

Lions 33, Buccaneers 7
Detroit (6-9) won its fourth straight game, the Lions' longest winning streak since the start of the 1980 season.

Rookie Barry Sanders rushed for 104 yards and a touchdown, breaking the Lions' rookie record with 1,312 yards this season. The previous mark was 1,308 by Billy Sims in 1980.

Bob Gagliano threw first-quarter touchdown passes of two yards to Richard Johnson and 55 yards to Jason Phillips.

Tampa Bay is 6-10.

Akeem produces triple-double

By The Associated Press
The Orlando Magic couldn't overcome Akeem Olajuwon's streak.

See Akeem score. See Akeem rebound. See Akeem block shots.

To their dismay, the Magic saw all those things Sunday night as Olajuwon's second triple-double of the season — 32 points, 25 rebounds and 10 blocked shots — led the Houston Rockets to a 109-94 victory.

seventh straight road loss. The rebounds and points are typical for Olajuwon, but the blocks have exceeded his high standards.

"I lead the league in blocks after being second or third because I'm going after every shot and people are challenging me more this year," Olajuwon said. "I have great timing, as well as jumping ability."

Orlando coach Matt Guokas likened Olajuwon to a football player about to make a tackle.

"Most players in the league, when they play great shot-blockers like Akeem, they hear footsteps," Guokas said.

NBA

"They don't have a dominating big man, and that makes it easier," Olajuwon said after posting the fifth triple-double of his career. He surpassed 20 rebounds for the fourth time this season and matched his career high.

In other NBA games, it was Phoenix 125, Sacramento 113; Utah 122, Minnesota 112; Portland 121, Indiana 113.

Houston used a 17-5 spurt, including six points, four rebounds and two blocks by Olajuwon, to take a 97-85 lead with 3:49 left.

Orlando's Reggie Theus scored 29 points and made nine straight shots at one stretch. It wasn't enough to prevent the Magic's CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: anthropologist Richard E. Leakey, basketball player Kevin McHale, actors Tim Reid and Robert Urich.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do not let personal feelings affect a business decision. You should not give preference to a friend unless it is in the best interest of your employer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Detail work is favored now. A Christmas shopping trip results in bargains — and joy. Romance is favored, and so is travel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): More rest and better eating habits will boost your energy level. Your new vigor will be reflected in your work.

Brownie visit

Brownie troop 229 surprised Mrs. Vada J. May who lives at Canterbury North, making her their honorary "Grandmother of the Year" for 1989-90.

The girls are: Tandi Casselman, Nancy Baeza, Brandi Clearman, Lacey Clearman, Dallas Kelly and Shawnta Savell.

Leaders are Maria Baeza and Melba Hill.

Mrs. May was presented with a pink poinsettia, and Christmas candle, and a Santa Claus stocking filled with fruit, candy and cookies.

Sing winners

Cindy Locke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Locke, 2600 Rebecca, was recently part of Sigma Alpha's production of "Camp Sigma Alpha" in the 1989 annual Sing at Hardin-Simmons University.

Sing is sponsored annually by Phi Mu Alpha, the national professional male music fraternity, and Sigma Alpha Iota, the international professional fraternity for women in music.

This is an annual competition between the different organizations on campus to put together the best musical act, and to receive the most cumulative points over a two-night weekend.

Sigma Alpha received the sweepstakes award, women's division the vocal award, best set and choreography awards.

Who's Who

Sixty-two West Texas State University students including one from Big Spring have been named "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Lisa Riley, Big Spring, senior, political science, military science department faculty.

The selected nominees were announced by Mary Hill, dean of student services and chairman of the student honors committee.

For consideration, "Who's Who" nominees had to be full-time students with at least 60 hours of college credit (junior standing) and a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.75.

Student wins poster contest

Jaime Falkner has taken the first step to becoming an internationally-recognized artist by winning the Lions District 2-A1 competition in the International Peace Poster Contest.

The eighth-grade Runnels Junior High School student's entry best portrayed the contest's theme "Picture A Peaceful World."

"I'm surprised," the 13-year-old said of her win.

Big Spring Evening Lions Club project chairman Al Valdes said he was pleased with all the work the Runnel's students put into the project. "From looking at all the entries, it was obvious all the students really gave the matter a lot of thought," he said.

Jaime's poster advanced to the district level, which is round two in the competition in Big Spring where the poster competed against entries from other schools in the district, the release stated.

Her entry, which faced tough competition, will be sent to state competition and to two additional rounds of the international competition if she is to be declared the international grand prize winner, said District Governor Bob Noyes.

Lions Club International is sponsoring the contest to underscore the importance of world peace to young people everywhere, the release stated. "We hope this contest will make the children of the world more aware of their own beliefs and reflect on what peace means to them," said William L. Woolard, international president.

The grand prize winner, which will be selected from 24 international finalists, will receive a cash award of $1,500 plus an all-expense paid trip for the winner and two family members to New York City where the awards ceremony will be conducted at the United Nations in March. Merit award winners, which includes the remaining 23 finalists, will each receive certificates and a cash award of $250.

When you make a purchase, where does your dollar go? The grocer you buy from buys shoes, shoe salespeople buy cars. Car salespeople buy newspapers. Newspaper employees buy clothes. Clothing salespeople buy jewelry. Jewelers need their cars fixed. Mechanics buy candy. Candy salespeople buy air conditioners. Air conditioner owners eat out. Restaurants have their houses painted. Painters buy motorcycles. Motorcycle riders buy lawnmowers. Lawnmower dealers hire accountants. Accountants take their clothes to the cleaners. Dry cleaners have their eyes examined. When you buy locally your dollars don't "go." They come back to you from customers, and from civic improvements paid for by taxes raised from the businesses you support.
