GERMAN CRUISER EMDEN DESTROYED

AUSTRALIAN WARSHIP DEFEATS
HER IN BAY OF BENGAL

BETTER SPEED GIVES VICTORY

Most of Crew Are Reported Saved—
Burning Boat Forced To Beach
On Island

By Associated Press.
London, Nov. 10.—12:51 p. m. It was officially announced in London today that the German cruiser Emden has been driven ashore and burned. The Emden was destroyed in the Bay of Bengal by the Australian cruiser Sydney. She was driven ashore on an island of the Cocos or Keeling group, southwest of Java in the Indian Ocean.

The Sydney sighted the Emden yesterday morning; with superior speed she at once closed in and gave battle. The German boat could not escape. There was a running fight at the end of which the Emden, burning from shells of the Australian boat, was beached. The casualties on the Sydney are said to have been slight.

Before the fight the Emden had cut the British cable to the Cocos Cosos. Most of the crew of the Emden were reported saved.

Has Sunk Many Prizes.

The Emden has sunk twenty-two ships, mostly British and has captured one. Most of the time since last August she preyed on British shipping in the Indian Ocean but late last month she appeared off Penang on Malacca straits. Disguised she steamed unchallenged under the British guns of the fort and fired torpedoes which sunk the Russian cruiser Jemtechug and a French destroyer. She escaped unscathed.

The vessel destroyed by the Emden had a total value of about 4,000,000 exclusive of her cargoes. The Emden's largest gun was only four and a half inches. Her speed of 24.5 knots per hour was her greatest asset.

Koenigsburg Bottled Up.

The admiralty's statement is as follows: "After the whereabouts of the Koenigsburg had been indicated by the attack on the Pegasus September 19, a concentration of fast cruisers was arranged by the admiralty in East African waters and a thorough search was made by these vessels. The search resulted October 30 in the Koenigsburg being discovered by his majesty's steamship Chatham, hiding in shoal waters about six miles up the Rufiji river opposite Mafia Island, German East Africa. Owing to a greater draught the Chatham could not reach the Koenigsburg which probably is aground, except at high water.

"Part of the crew of the Koenigsburg has been landed and is entrenched on the banks of the river. Both these entrenchments and the Koenigsburg itself have been bombarded by the Chatham but owing to the dense palm groves amid which the ship lies it is not possible to estimate the damage done. Pending operations for her capture or destruction, colliers have been sunk in the only navigable channel to the river and she is now imprisoned and unable to do further harm. The fast vessels which have been searching for her are thus released for other service.

Emden Forced To Fight.

"Another search by fast cruisers of the German cruiser Emden has been for some time in progress. In this search, which has covered an immense area, the British cruisers have been aided by the French, Russian and Japanese vessels working in harmony. The Australian warships Melbourne and Sydney also were included in these movements. Yesterday morning news was received that the Emden which had been completely lost sight of after the action with the Russian cruiser Remytchug had arrived at Keeling or Cocos Islands and landed an armed party to destroy the wireless station.

"Here she was caught and forced to fight by the Australian cruiser Sydney, Captain John Gosset. A sharp action took place in which the Sydney suffered the loss of three men killed and fifteen wounded. The Emden was driven ashore and burned. Her losses in personnel are reported as very heavy. All possible assistance is being given to the survivors by the various ships which have been dispatched to the scene.

"With the exception of the German squadron now off the coast of Chile the whole of the Pacific and Indian oceans is now clear of the enemy's warships."

Conditions Along Aisne Expected To Be Terrible When Winter Weather
Sets In

By Associated Press.
London, Nov. 10.—Modern fighting strategy, at first rather helpless before the aerial and artillery factors, is beginning to adapt itself to the new conditions and along the great Aisne battle front many fertile brains have been busy devising schemes to meet these problems. Probably the most useful work of the aeroplane has been the location of positions and consequent direction of artillery fire by a heliograph can be operated at a distance of two miles by means of a telegraph wire. This heliograph begins to send out messages purporting to emanate from headquarters staff and believing they have located the brains of the British army the German artillery directed its attention to the spot marked by the flashes from the heliograph. Some times the heliograph is destroyed, usually the operator comes down when the fire becomes so heavy that staff in the vicinity would remain in the vicinity. A new apparatus is set up in some position where the staff would be likely to remove should it be driven from the first selected place.

Along the front where the opposing trenches are within a few hundred yards of each other the allies have devised a system of tormenting the enemy by keeping them awake at night. Regular skirmish details in a thin selected edge of light and in a thin smokescreen they advance as close as possible and pour in a rattling fire. The response is almost instant and in such volume as to indicate that the Germans believe a general attack is beginning. Several times during the night these tactics are repeated.

Officers Go Insane.

The surgeon who has just returned from the front reports that contrary to the usual belief the trenches are not very wet, but he believes that with the coming of the heavy winter rains conditions along the Aisne will become terrible. The tension is already so great that many have reached the snapping point until the instant ward at Netley is filled with officers and soldiers who have lost their reason when disease is added to the terror of battle. One of the optimistic features of the situation is an improvement in the transport of the wounded from the battle front to hospitals in England. Two weeks ago it often took three weeks to get the wounded from the scene of the fighting to Southampton and now the same trip is made in from three to four days. This speeding up has resulted in a great acceleration in the recovery of the dangerously wounded, for they reach the hospitals within the period of infection.

GERMANS REPORT RUSSIANS REPULSED

DECLARE INVADING FORCE WAS STOPPED AT EASTERN BORDER

NEW BIG BATTLE IMPENDING

Will Rival in Effect and Importance
the Conflicts in Western War
Area

By Associated Press.

Berlin, Nov. 10.—Another Russian repulse on the blood drenched and trench scarred hills on the eastern frontier of Prussia has been reported to Berlin from Gombennin under date of November 8. Simultaneously with their operations against the main German army under General Von Hindenburg on the line of the Warthe the Russians attempted to break into East Prussia by the old route south of Wirballen, but they were met on the frontier by General Von Morzen's army and after very heavy fighting were driven back across the frontier.

No intimation regarding the strength of the forces engaged have been published here, but there must have been considerable, inasmuch as the Russians are reported as having left 4000 prisoners in German hands. The fighting was on the old battle ground where the Germans met the Russians in the earlier days of the war and which since has been the scene of repeated engagements.

The tides of invasion and counter-attack have swept back and forth across the frontier. Nothing new has been heard from the Russian operations against the German position on the Warthe since the Russian cavalry division which followed the Germans in the retirement from Warthe found the Germans were making a stand behind this river. No report of new developments has been received concerning the line further south on the Polish frontier, and an Austrian communication which followed the Germans there has been no fighting on their part of that battle front.

Expect Important Engagement.

According to the opinion of Berlin observers, however, this frontier will be the scene of very important action in the next fortnight. The Germans are making ready to defend their eastern frontier vigorously. The western area of hostilities which has been getting more than its fair share of newspaper attention must not be allowed to distract attention from the struggle in Poland and Galicia. This change in the center of interest is reflected in today's German bulletins, which reports merely the continuance of German gains, slow and indefinite as they are, in the vicinity of Ypres and the easy repulse of the Belgian attempt to drive northward along the coast highway between the inundated region and the sea beyond Nieuport.

NEGRO, BARRICADED, STANDS OFF POSSE

IS FINALLY WOUNDED AND THEN TAKES OWN LIFE, AFTER HOUR'S FIGHT

KILLED TWO OTHER NEGROES

Had Also Wounded Negro and White Man Before Being Surrounded in House

By Associated Press.

Louis, La., Nov. 10.—Louis Friar, a negro, barricaded himself in a cabin here about daylight today and stood off a posse of eight officers and several volunteers for more than an hour. He killed himself after being mortally wounded. The trouble started when Friar killed two negroes and wounded two other men, one of them white. He killed Willie Brown, a woman with whom he lived and also killed Tom Allen, a negro who tried to protect her. Irishman Thomas, a negro and H. C. Gosman, a white night watchman who was still on duty in the neighborhood heard the shooting. Friar shot Gosman in the head and Thomas in both head and arms; both are expected to recover. Friar then barricaded himself in the Brown woman's house; more than 200 shots were fired into the building before the negro killed himself.

SOME GLIMPSES OF LIFE IN TRENCHES

GRASS BEGINS TO GROW ON
HEAPS OF UPTURNED
EARTH

MASKED BATTERIES LOCATED

Sometimes Very Effectually Concealed
However, Transfers of Troops
Are Made at Night

By Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 10.—Contentment and confidence prevail among the hundreds of thousands of French, British and Belgian troops engaged along the extended battle line from the North Sea to Switzerland who are endeavoring to dislodge the invading forces from a strong hold on French and Belgian territory according to the French officers arriving at the capital today from the front.

Apart from the fierce encounters in Flanders, both armies during the last week have maintained their positions. The combatants steadfastly stood in their wet trenches, occasionally indulging in the only possible maneuver, a night attack. At other times the slightest sign of life brings a hail of rifle bullets. The two armies have been so long dug in at the same spots that the upturned earth of the trenches is nearly everywhere covered with a short growth of grass or weeds.

The relief is made in the dark hours of the long autumn nights with as little noise as possible and the sight of great masses of men marching along the country roads to the trenches makes a weird aspect to the neighboring districts.

Always Plenty of Food.

The men coming off duty are covered with mud and look almost dead, but as they proceed to their places of repose, usually in the open under the trees of a forest or in a field, they are quickly covered by overcoats, falling asleep at once. Some of them are better off, since their commanders have built straw hatched shelters for the men and horses where they can rest in comfort.

One thing this war has shown, military men and it is that the commissariat and ammunition supply service have made the carrying on of hostilities much easier. Never, except in the case of isolated detachments has the food supply been lacking. Clothing is handed out quickly and the men are not allowed to be without their coats. A spectator looking over the present gigantic battlefield every part of the countryside in the immediate vicinity of the actual battle line was found to be a complete desertion. As far as the eye can reach on both sides all is still. Every minute or two comes the tearing sound of a great shell, whistling through the air and this is followed by a close, whooping and quickly seen and it is impossible to locate the position of a battery which in most cases is hidden by branches of trees.

Rheims Cathedral in Danger.

In the central part of the battle line not far from Rheims a French battery was hidden and its position remained undiscovered for several days. Then German shells began to drop around it and shortly afterwards the major in command found that white linen had been hung right behind his position, ostensibly to dry, but in reality placed there by a German spy to indicate to the German artillerists the exact location of the French guns. A supposedly unaccounted for woman was caught and was found to be a German spy. She suffered the usual fate of spies.

The city of Rheims itself still suffers considerably every day from bombardment by the Germans. Last Friday alone 250 shells fell into the city, though no French troops were stationed there. The ancient and beautiful cathedral whose entry was strictly forbidden, seems to observers of the bombardment there, to be a point for the German gunners' aim. All the buildings around the edifice have suffered terribly while the cathedral itself presents a shocking aspect.

AMERICANS IN TURKEY DECLARED IN NO DANGER

Ambassador Morgenthau Reports
Porte Will Show Non-Combatants
Every Consideration

By Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Americans in Turkey have not been molested in any way since the outbreak of the war and are in no danger Ambassador Morgenthau reported today. The Turkish minister of war informed Mr. Morgenthau that Turkey was anxious to conduct the war with every possible consideration and courtesy to non-combatants but that if England and Greece attack any unfortified towns, reprisals would follow in the detention of their subjects.

ATTACKS OF MARKED VIOLENCE

Both French and English Troops Are Declared To Have Held Ground
Firmly

By Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 10.—The French official bulletin, given out at Paris today says that yesterday the action continued with great severity between the sea and the region of Armentieres. The text of the communication follows:

"The action continued all day yesterday with the same intensity that has characterized the previous fighting between the sea and the region of Armentieres. The encounters were of particular violence for the reason that the opposing forces alternately were taking the offensive. Summing up it may be said, that the day was marked by the checking of a German attack in considerable force to the south of Ypres and by perceptible progress on the part of the French forces in the vicinity of Dixchoute and between Ypres and Armentieres. Equally, on the front of the British troops, all the German attacks were repulsed with energy. Along the major part of the front from the canal of Labassee as far as the Woivre, our troops made secure the results attained.

"In Loraine there is nothing to report. In the Vosges fresh attacks on the part of the enemy directed against the heights of the south of Mount St. Marie and southeast of Thann all have been repulsed."

JUST ONE MONTH'S WORK BY AGRICULTURAL AGENT

J. W. Campbell Files Report of Activities
Showing He Covered
Much Ground

By Associated Press.

Over twelve hundred miles were traveled by Demonstration Agent J. W. Campbell in his work last month, according to his report filed with the department of agriculture, the Chamber of Commerce and the Commissioners' court by whom he is jointly employed. Of this mileage 326 was by rail and 873 by automobile. His activities are summarized as follows: Talked with 104 farmers about reducing their cotton acreage next year, with good results; visited four schools; visited 32 boys and 46 girls individually; talked with 46 business men and 13 bankers relative to the "peculiar" conditions that exist relative to the cotton crop on account of the war; spent a week in connection with the Chamber of Commerce getting up prizes and holding an exhibit of the products of boys' and girls' club members; visited 74 demonstrators and 5 co-operators; mailed 400 letters to club members; wrote 87 letters; distributed 46 bulletins from the department at Washington; spent one day with the agent at Verona; brought entomologist from the A. & M. College here to investigate the turnip louse, spent part of two days with District Agent Ganver, inspecting plants and inspecting livestock.

RETREAT OF GERMANS IN BELGIUM REPORTED TODAY

Fall Back From Bruges To Ghent—
Russians Meet Turkish Opposition—Two Naval Incidents

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 10.—The movement of retreat of the German army in Belgium continues, according to a telegram received by the Exchange Telegraph company from its Rotterdam correspondent. Thirty-five thousand men and 100 guns have left Thield in the direction of Ghent and forty-eight wagon loads of munitions have left Bruges in the same direction.

The famous German cruiser Emden has met her fate. The Koenigsburg, another German scourer of the seas, has been bottled up.

Germany's renewed attempt to break through to the English channel has brought on a fearful struggle, still to be decided.

Along Eastern Prussia, both German and Prussia claim successes. In the near east the Russians are meeting unexpectedly stiff resistance from the Turks.

The Emden, active to the last, cut the cables leading to Cocos Island in the Pacific Ocean. There the Australian cruiser Sydney caught her.

On European battlefields, the fighting is fiercest along the line from the sea to Armentieres. The present German attack is probably the severest, since the allies are meeting attack with attack. Today's French official statement reports the fighting is especially violent, that the German advance south of Ypres has been checked and that further to the south the French have made some progress. All accounts agree, however, that it is slow work. The troops are fighting in a dense fog.

The Turks, apparently officered by Germans, massed large forces for an attack near Erzerum and it was only by hard fighting that the Russians were able to defeat an attempt to envelop one of the flanks.

GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY'S WAR PRIMER

Joinville—A town of northeastern France, charmingly situated on the left bank of the Marne, 15 miles southeast of St. Dizier, and 22 miles south of Bar le Duc. The place was erected by Henry II into a principality in favor of Francis, Duke of Guise and was later bequeathed by Mlle. Guise to the House of Orleans. It has been the birthplace of many characters famous in history, among whom was Cardinal Charles of Lorraine. The town has a population of less than 4,000 and is but little larger than it was a century ago. It possesses glass furnaces and iron foundries and toy, hosiery and textile manufactures. Wine is a prominent article of commerce. It has a church some seven hundred years old and a hospital with a history of nearly four hundred years.

Revinny—A town of northeastern France, eight miles west of northwest of Bar le Duc and about 12 miles south of the Forest of Argonne, on the Ormain River. Its population is about 2,000. Much exploration for phosphate fossils has been carried on in the neighborhood. The making of matches is the principal industry. A beautiful church of the 15th century is still standing. Revinny suffered severely when it was attacked by the Swedes in 1640.

Doullens—An ancient industrial town of northern France, a Roman station in the Middle Ages, at the foot of a hill, 18 miles north of Amiens and 20 miles southwest of Arras, on the Authie River. It is a fortress of the third class. The town has had more than its share of vicissitudes. Dismantled by Louis XI in 1475, the place was burned by the Imperialists in 1525, sacked by the Protestants in 1567, burned again in 1612 and captured in 1814. Its magnificent citadel, built by Vauban has held many political prisoners and is now used as a prison for women. Coarse hempen cloth, leather, sugar paper and cotton yarn are manufactured. The principal commerce is in grain, hemp and cattle. The population is close to 5,000.

La Chalade—A northern French hamlet, on the eastern border of the Forest of Argonne, five miles south of southwest of Varennes and 15 miles west of Verdun on the Bliesme a small affluent of the Aisne. A narrow passageway entering the Argonne Forest is located near the town. The principal landmark is an oak abbey built in 1128. The town has a population of about 600.

Thillemont—Situated in the pretty valley of the Rupt de Mad, 23 miles northwest of Nancy and nine miles from the Lorraine border, this little town of northeastern France has a population of about 1,400. Its picturesque chapel was erected in the 15th century. The town is known principally because of its red wine which has a wide popularity.

Iseghem—A town of West Flanders, Belgium, with a population of about 13,000 situated in a fertile region seven miles north of Courtrai on the Mandel, contains numerous linen, calico, hat, ribbon, brush and soap factories and has an active trade in linen and cattle. Shoe making and the manufacture of lace are also carried on to some extent. Flax and tobacco are extensively cultivated in the environs.

Langhemarcq—A town of West Flanders, Belgium, six miles north of Ypres, on the railway to Bruges, and on the Haembeck, an affluent of the Yser. It is located in one of the most fertile districts of Belgium and in recent years has experienced great prosperity. It has many factories of lace and silk and many spinning mills. A large manual training and domestic science school for girls is located there. The town's population is about 8,000.

Knoeke—One of Belgium's numerous seaside resorts, one and a quarter miles from the North Sea and nine miles north of Bruges, with a population of about 2,000. A life boat station and lighthouse are located there, and a monument to the celebrated Belgian animal painter Alf. Verwee, has been erected. The town is but six miles from the Holland border.

Moorlede—A town of West Flanders, Belgium, eight miles east of northeast of Ypres and an equal distance northwest of Courtrai. Its inhabitants, among the most cultured in Belgium, number about 7,000. Moorlede is an important linen producing center and other products are chicory, leather, oil and beer.

Marianne or Ladrones—A group of islands in the Pacific ocean, 1,350 miles east of the Philippines, of which all but Guam, owned by the United States, are German possessions. The name Ladrones, meaning thieves, was given to them by the sailors of Magellan, because of the inclination of the early natives to steal. Excluding Guam, there are 14 islands, of which only seven are inhabited. Volcanoes are scattered over the ten northern islands, while the southern members of the group are coralline in structure and fringed with coral reefs. Their total area is about 250 square miles, and their population close to 4,000. Climate and soil lend themselves readily to agricultural pursuits, but the inhabitants have failed to realize their opportunities in this regard. Coffee, sugar, cotton, tobacco, cocoa, mother of pearls, sweet potatoes and coconuts are produced and copra, the dried meat of the coconut is exported. Germany paid Spain approximately $4,000,000 for the archipelago, with the exception of Guam, in 1899.

Novorodonsk—A town of Russian Poland, 34 miles from the German border, 25 miles west of south of Piotrkow, near the Warta River and in the line from Warsaw to Cracow. The place has an active trade and manufactures leather, furniture, lumber, and iron goods. An ancient Franciscan convent is located there. The town has a population of about 16,000.

Novogeorgievsk—One of the units of the Polish Quadrilateral, forming with Warsaw, Lvangorod and Brest stovsk a series of powerful fortifications in central Russian Poland. The fortress is 15 miles northwest of Warsaw, at the confluence of the Vistula and the Bug, and in recent years, has been strengthened by a circle of eight powerful fortifications erected in a perimeter about ten miles from the center works. It is supposed to prevent the turning of Warsaw by an attack from the direction of the lower Vistula. The place was formerly called Modlin, by which name it is still known by the Poles. Napoleon first fortified Modlin in 1807 and it was subjected to several sieges in 1813 and in 1830-31.

Lowicz—A Russian Poland town, 45 miles west of Warsaw and 33 miles east of south of Plock on the Warta with a population of about 13,000. The town is known for its large cattle farms, which attract stock raisers from all parts of Poland. Lowicz manufactures linen and leather and has large weaving and bleaching establishments.

Pamang—A British possession in the Straits Settlement to the west of the Malay Peninsula and separated from it by a channel from two to ten miles wide. The territory is 15 miles long and has an area of 107 square miles. Its climate is healthy, although hot; it is mountainous in the north, and in its other portions wooded and picturesque. Pepper, indigo, cotton, coffee, sugar, tobacco, coconuts and rice are produced, and tin is mined near the base of its mountains. The capital, of the same name, has an European aspect, with pretty houses surrounded by shady fruit arbors. It has an excellent harbor, an arsenal and barracks, and civil, leper and contagious hospitals. The town is just to the north of the town.

Bailleul—A small French town, eight miles east of Haverouck and 15 miles north of west of Lille. The place is tolerably well built and has the aspect of an old Flemish town. While a large portion of the inhabitants are engaged in the making of hand made lace, the town also manufactures thread, sugar, linen, tacking, tape, pottery, leather, beer and brandy. A species of cheese which is much esteemed is peculiar to the town. Its population is about 15,000.

Vouglers—A town of northeastern France, 32 miles north of east of Douai and 24 miles south of Mezieres, in the left bank of the river Aisne. With a population of less than 4,000 the town has not increased in size. 500 inhabitants in the last half century. It is situated in a fertile district and has an extensive trade in grain, wine and iron. The town is near the northern border of the Argonne Forest.

Cossack And Hussar Ideas In Early Styles For Winter Wear

New York, Nov. 7.—The most popular of all trimmings for dresses adaptable for street, motoring, or evening wear is fur, fur—and again fur. Fox, wolf,itch, mink, caracul, chinchilla and different kinds of lambs' wool, from the wide, fluffy kind to the tight, curly kind, are used for different costumes. But among the most popular of these furs is beaver, possibly because one or two of the famous Parisian couturiers were using it when the war broke out.

Nutria is often used in place of beaver and so closely resembles it that only those very familiar with furs are able to tell them apart. This nutria is the fur of a South American aquatic animal resembling the otter, and called a coypou. The North American otter is also being used for those who can afford such a luxury, a coat of otter costing a small fortune. As a novelty, African monkey fur continues to rank first. It is a long-haired fur, and when Cossack silhouettes, which I have spoken of in the fore part of this letter, may be noted. The closeness of the coat at the shoulders and the flare at the bottom show the latest cut for coats. Skunk fur is used for the rolling collar, the cuffs and the bottom of the coat. Frogs add the military note which is so popular on coats of many styles.

This same style may also be seen in coats of fur and fur-cloth, while the bands in this case are of contrasting fur. A long-haired fur on the short, close fur, or a fur of merely contrasting color, are combined into a coat of luxurious warmth and good style.

Although the dresses with the exaggerated waistline, or no waistline at all, are very much the rage, it has not taken away from the style of the more conservative frocks, whose waistlines remain normal. I have chosen for one of my illustrations a dress in style—unexaggerated, but cut on the late lines. The armhole is small, the shoulders close fitting, the tunic flares in the latest manner, while the rather wide belt is at the normal waistline. The only trimming of this dress is a braided design which is applied to the belt, the cuffs, the collar and the bottom of the tunic. A jaunty little hat which bespeaks comfort in all kinds of weather is worn with the costume.

The small hat vies with the larger hats for the popularity of the majority and the honor seems to be pretty evenly divided. The women who find comfort combined with jauntness in the small hat hesitate to change for the larger hats, but those who have made the change find that the larger hats are conservative enough in size not to cause the discomfort of those worn four or five years back and called the "Merry Widow" and "Peach Basket" hats. From such, Dame Fashion please deliver us.

In winter hats the Cossack shape, as well as the Hussar, are very smart. The latter are rather high and flat on top, made of cloth, velvet or fur and trimmed with jaunty fancy brushes of black or white horse-hair. An ornament is usually placed where this or-finishing the bottom of a tunic, the edge of a hat, or bottom of the sleeves looks like an irregular silk fringe.

The wide bands of fur which are used on the bottom of the full skirts or tunics, are a strong reminder of the costumes of the Russian, the Pole and the Cossack. With this as a beginning, the designers have harked back for inspiration to costumes of Russians and Tartars of the Middle Ages. Wonderful evening coats are made like the costumes of bartering Tartar tribes. The material is a heavy brocade, almost of the texture of silk tulle, while the figures scattered across its surface are Oriental in origin. The garment is cut very close fitting at the shoulders, and with sleeves set in, which flare at the bottom where they are finished with a band of fur. A wide band of fur adds weight and richness at the bottom of the coat, which flares out in deep godet ripples.

Secondary only to fur comes braiding. The popularity of this is no doubt due to the war abroad. For all we may talk of the barbarity of war, our hearts go out to the soldier who is fighting for his country, whether he be English, German, Russian, Austrian or French. There is a glamor abroad about war to the uninitiated which is reflected in the trimming and cut of our clothes.

Wide braid is used on the bottoms of skirts and tunics in place of fur. Narrow braid binds the edges of tailored costumes and soutache, Hercules, and round braids are used for braiding dresses, belts, panels, collars and cuffs in attractive designs. Wider braid and cord are made into frogs and buttons for the closing of coats and down the fronts of dresses, giving the military effect. Even modified epaulettes, made from black or blue braid, are seen on frocks.

Close in the wake of braiding comes beading. Many handsome frocks have belts which are beaded in some attractive design in colors rich and dark, which adds snap and smartness to the entire frock. One blue dress made after the popular Mogen Aye style had a belt which widened in the front and dropped rather low. This was entirely covered with a beaded design in bronze beads, with now and then a bead which served to accentuate the center of the conventionalized flowers. Color combinations of small beads may be used most effectively to add the touch which tells upon an otherwise somber dress.

Embroidery is also used to a great extent this year. Not the fine small embroidery, but the large sprawly variety, which is done in more or less coarse silk or wool and is most effective.

In the illustration of the coat the ment is fastened, as in the real Hussar hat the insignia of the regiment is usually placed there, as may be seen in the hat worn by the Kaiser's Death Head Hussars, which is a skull and cross-bones. Not cheerful, but certainly apropos to the results of war.

MOTHER SUPERIOR ROSARY HILL HOME
Tells How Vinol Restores Strength and Vitality to the Weak, Worn out Ones in Her Charge.
Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N. Y.—"I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years and whenever I have used Vinol for run down, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly creep to my door for aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. I supplied Vinol to her liberally and in a month when she returned to thank me I hardly recognized her. She was strong, her color charming and her cheeks rounded out. These words are uttered from my heart, in order that more people may know about Vinol, as there is nothing makes me happier in the world than to relieve the sick."—Mother M. Alphonso Lathrop, O. S. D., Hawthorne, N. Y.

Such disinterested and reliable testimony should convince everyone of the merits of Vinol, our delicate cod liver and iron tonic to build up health and strength for all weakened and nervous conditions, whether caused from overwork, worry or chronic coughs and colds. If Vinol does not benefit you, return your money to Miller Drug Store.
Note—You can get Vinol at the leading drug store in every town where this paper circulates.

CITIZENS OF TALGO OBJECT TO TWO PHONES

Oklahoma City, Nov. 10.—The Oklahoma Corporation Commission was to hear today complaint of the citizens of Talgo, Okla., that business men of this place are compelled to subscribe for two telephones, one would be adequate and afford better service. They ask for an order whereby the two systems—Dewey County Telephone Company and Independent Telephone Company—shall maintain and operate one exchange which will give subscribers access to each of the lines and free service to all points where free service is now being maintained by either company. The decision in this case, it is believed, will affect many larger places in Oklahoma.

I'll Make Your Meat Money Go the Limit!

Most People Realize that It Isn't the Fault of the Retail Meat Man When Meat Prices Soar

But there are a few who believe that every time beef or pork goes up a cent or two per pound that their particular dealer is making that much more money. As a matter of fact every advance cuts down the retailer's profit because we can't advance every time the wholesale market advances and what's more our percentage of profit gets smaller as prices advance. It takes the utmost care in buying and handling and cutting meats to more than break even these days in the meat business. I'm stretching points all the time to help my customers get the most for their money. It's volumes of sales that counts these days. For these two reasons I want your business. I'll help YOU make your meat money count, your trade will help me make a little something during each month. That's co-operation. Let's begin co-operating at once.

TOOK POSSESSION OF HOUSE

Crowning Eccentricity of Englishwoman's Life, That Was Filled With Eccentricities.

In an old book published in Paris under the title of "Le Journal d'un Voyage au Levant," there is an amusing account of the way in which Lady Hester Lucy Stanhope, the eccentric English traveler, took possession of the house at Djoun, where eventually she made her permanent home. She was picniced with the house and its surrounding gardens, and accepted an invitation to dinner. As she sat after dinner, with the owner, a Christian merchant, he said to her that if she liked the place, he should be glad if she would stay the night. When she said that she liked it so much that she would stay there the rest of her days, he took it as a polite figure of speech but a fortnight later, as she still prolonged her visit, he suggested that Europe might be expecting her return. "I do not intend to return," she replied, carelessly. "Ah, then you intend to build a palace in the neighborhood?" said he. "No, this house suits me very well." "But I cannot let it or sell it, madam." "I do not wish to hire it or buy it, but I intend to keep it," was the starting reply. In this dilemma the merchant dispatched a messenger posthaste to Emir Beshlyr, who sent word to Lady Hester that she must give up the house. Lady Hester, however, wrote to Constantinople, whence a courier came to the Emir, bearing the order, "Obey the princess of Europe in everything." So the disgusted merchant fled, leaving her ladyship in possession. There for 29 years she lived the life of a recluse, growing more and more withdrawn from the world, and more accustomed to dwell in a mental and spiritual realm of her own creation, until she died, and was buried in the garden of the house that she had usurped.

SUCCESS MUST BE EARNED

Earnest, Intelligent Effort, With Industry, Will Set One Well on the Path to the Goal.

Most men who have amounted to anything started with nothing but ability and determination—a combination which recognizes no man-made limitations. Any kind of work is better than idleness, which is directly responsible for most of the unhappiness in this world. Idleness is a dangerous thing; it may grow into a habit that might stick to you after you get back in harness, and the man who loafs on his job is only fooling himself.

Eternal, intelligent effort is the price of commercial growth, and where there is no progression there is bound to be retrogression. Business is something like an airplane; to stop is to drop, and to drop is generally to bust. Pin your faith to the law of compensation, but don't take any stock in the law of chance; there's no such thing. Waiting for something to turn up in the belief that things are bound to come your way eventually is throwing dice with fate. Many a good dog never got a decent bone until his teeth were gone.

Troublesome Gender.
The trouble that Latin gender gives to American boys and girls who are struggling with the rudiments of that tongue should inspire in them a sympathetic feeling for a small descendant of the race of Attila who found the sender of our English nouns and pronouns a stumbling block. A solid little figure trudged up to the librarian in the children's room. "That little boy," he declared, indicating the rest of the room vaguely with his thumb, "he hit me."
The "libery teacher" followed him back across the room until the accusing thumb halted near a table where sat a guilty looking child about half the size of the plaintiff.
The accuser explained: "That little boy, she hit me. That little boy is a little girl; but he has short hair, and when I point at him, she hits me."
—Youth's Companion.

How Customs Change.
If some of the notables of ancient times were living now how differently they would act!
Noah would charter an ocean liner. Nero would step into the parlor and turn on the phonograph while Rome burned and the heathen raged. Ben Hur would pilot a 60 horse-power racing car and spin around saucer tracks. Jason would hire the great detective to find the Golden Fleece, instead of going after it himself. Icarus would mount to the sun in a Bleriot monoplane without fear of its wings melting off. Napoleon would invade Russia in a Pullman palace car. Demosthenes would go on the Chastauqua circuit. Cain would plead circumstantial evidence, self-defense and emotional insanity.

Discoverer of the Pacific.
The discoverer of the Pacific ocean was Vasco Nunez de Balboa. On the early morning of the 25th of September, 1492, Balboa, and a small party of men, made their laborious way up the densely covered face of a steep ridge from the summit of which they were rewarded with the vision of the great "South sea" which, up to that time, had never been seen by the eye of a white man.

"GIRLS TRAINING SCHOOL" WEEK IN STATE OF TEXAS

This is the week in which a special effort will be made to raise the necessary funds for the establishment of the state training school for girls who have had no chance, and in this week an appeal will be made to every citizen of the State and the women in particular, through the press and through soliciting mediums in order that the needed amount may be raised. It is rather pitiful to think that in this State, which leads in the Union in size and ability, there is no place for a girl to learn to be a good citizen, no place for the girl who is ignorant with the exception of a church institution which is for girls who have fallen. There are a large number of girls, ignorant and unskilled, who are in danger of ruin because of their ignorance, who are not really bad and it is given at the proper time will in all probability never be bad. It is for these girls, as well as for those who have already made a mistake that this home will be established. Mrs. M. M. Add is a member of the special state committee on finance and Mrs. J. W. Lee is chairman of the women's work in Wichita Falls. At a meeting of the special committee plans for the collection for this week were made and put in a systematic form. The interest of the entire city will be aroused and the managers and proprietors of the social theatres have been interested to the extent of giving a benefit at their places of amusement. The progress of the work will be announced from day to day and it is hoped to raise one thousand dollars in Wichita Falls.

MISS CECIL MCCURDY'S TENTH BIRTHDAY SATURDAY

Saturday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McCurdy entertained a merry crowd of children at their home on the occasion of the celebration of the tenth birthday of their daughter, Cecil. The house was very prettily decorated in yellow and white chrysanthemums with a quantity of ferns in pleasing contrast. Various childish games were enjoyed throughout the afternoon and delicious cake and punch were served. Toasts by the small guests were given and were highly amusing. Mrs. McCurdy was assisted in caring for the children by her mother, Mrs. Cecil and sisters, Mesdames Wright, Weaver and Adams. The guests enjoying the afternoon were: Frances Gerock, Dorothy Zischle, Orr, Mathie, Milhas, Sadie Milhas, Lina Russell, Hunter Russell, Norman Adams, Petway Conn George Taylor, Oscar McCurdy.

"BIRTHDAY PARTY" MONDAY PROVES QUITE A SUCCESS

The "birthday party" given Monday afternoon by the ladies of the M. E. Church, South, at the home of Mrs. E. P. Greenwood was a complete success. The afternoon was ideal the pleasant weather bringing out a large number to attend the affair. As the name of the entertainment would signify, each lady paid one cent for each year of her age and quite a substantial sum, something over twenty-five dollars was realized

As the money was paid each guest told their native state and it was found that twenty-three were born in this state and almost every other state in the union was represented. Musical numbers, both instrumental and vocal were given by Mesdames Carpenter, John Chambers, Lester Jones and George Thorburn, and readings by Mesdames A. M. Hartsock and Lowenstein were also much enjoyed. Delicious ice cream and cake was served at the conclusion of the delightful afternoon. About seventy-five of the ladies of the church were present. Mesdames Ernest Lee of Panama and Mrs. Bone being the only visitors.

EPISCOPAL GUILD MEETING HELD MONDAY AFTERNOON

The Guild of the Good Shepherd met in regular session at the Episcopal rectory Monday afternoon. The regular routine of meeting was carried out and a discussion of the coming bazaar was entered into. The members present were: Mesdames Datson, Shaw, Simmons, Warner, Fontaine, Popenohl, Gates, Japhel, Allen, McElroy, Akin, Kennedy, Seymour and Bibb.

BAPTIST ALLIANCE HOLDS IMPORTANT BUSINESS SESSION

The various divisions of the Baptist Woman's Alliance met in joint session at the First Baptist Church Monday afternoon. Business matters of considerable importance were to be transacted, preparatory to the state Baptist convention to be held next week at Athens, Ga. W. N. W. convention to precede the general meeting. After the business session the divisions held a separate meeting to collect the free will offerings and hear the various reports, re-assembling later for the mission study class, conducted by Mrs. Miller, the study being concluded at this meeting.

MRS. WILLIARD HOSTESS TO PRESBYTERIAN LADIES

The Ladies Aid of the Central Presbyterian Church met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Williard as hostess. Devotionals were led by Mrs. Dickson and the lesson from the "King's Business" led by Mrs. Pittman proved to be most interesting. A business meeting was held, plans being made for the coming bazaar. One of the most important steps taken was the subscription of five dollars to the fund for the Girls' Training School. The hostess served a refreshment course at the conclusion of the meeting. Mrs. Soule was a visitor for the afternoon and the members present were: Mesdames Dickson, Kerr, White, Reed, Phil Kerr, Smith, Weir, Wilson, Minnerly, Egan, McFarland, Pittman and the hostess, Mrs. Williard.

GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY'S WAR PRIMER

Joinville—A town of northeastern France, charmingly situated on the left bank of the Marne, 15 miles southeast of St. Dizier, and 22 miles south of Bar le Duc. The place was erected by Henry II into a principal city in favor of Francis, Duke of Guise and was later bequeathed by him, Guise to the House of Orleans. It has been the birthplace of many characters famous in history, among whom was Cardinal Charles of Lorraine. The town has a population of less than 4,000 and is but little larger than it was a century ago. It possesses glass furnaces and iron foundries and tanneries and has an article of commerce. It has a church some seven hundred years old and a hospital with a history of nearly four hundred years.

Revinny—A town of northeastern France, eight miles west of northwest of Bar le Duc and about 12 miles south of the Forest of Argonne, on the Orain River. Its population is but 2,000. Much exploration for phosphate fossils has been carried on in the neighborhood. The making of watches is the principal industry. A beautiful church of the 15th century is still standing. Revinny suffered severely when it was attacked by the Swedes in 1647.

Douleins—An ancient industrial town of northern France, a Roman station in the Middle Ages; at the foot of a hill, 13 miles north of Amiens and 29 miles southwest of Arras, on the Authie River. It is a town of the third class. The town has had more than its share of vicissitudes. Disturbed by Louis XI in 1475, the place was burned by the Imperialists in 1525, sacked by the Protestants in 1567, burned again in 1612 and captured in 1814. It is a magnificent citadel, built by Vauban has held many political prisoners and was used as a prison for women during the Revolution. The principal articles of commerce are leather, sugar, paper and cotton yarn are manufactured. The principal commerce is in grain, hemp and cattle. The population is close to 5,000.

La Chalade—A northern French hamlet, on the eastern border of the Forest of Argonne, five miles south of southwest of Yverdon and 11 miles west of Verdun on the Meuse, a small affluent of the Aisne. A narrow passageway entering the Argonne Forest is located near the town. The principal landmark is an old abbey built in 1128. The town has a population of about 600.

Thiangeourt—Situating in the pretty valley of the Rupt de Mad, 23 miles northwest of Nancy and almost from the Lorraine border, this little town of north-eastern France has a population of about 1,400. Its picturesque chapel was erected in the 15th century. The town is known principally because of its red wine which has a wide popularity.

Izeghem—A town of West Flanders Belgium, with a population of about 12,000 situated in a fertile region seven miles north of Courtrai, on the Meuse, an affluent of the Lys. The town contains numerous linen, calico, hat, ribbon, brush and soap factories, and has an active trade in linen and cattle. Snow-making and the manufacture of lace are also carried on to some extent. Flax and tobacco are extensively cultivated in the environs.

Langemarck or Langhenarck—A town of West Flanders, Belgium, 8 1/2 miles north of Ypres, on the railway to Bruges, and on the Haembeck, an affluent of the most fertile districts of Belgium and in recent years has experienced great prosperity. It has manufacturing of lace and silk and many spinning mills. A large manual training and domestic science school for girls is located there. The town's population is about 8,000.

Knocke—One of Belgium's numerous seaside resorts, one and a quarter miles from the North Sea and nine miles north of Bruges, with a population of about 2,000. A life boat station and lighthouse are located there, and a monument to the celebrated Belgian animal painter Alf. Verwee, has been erected. The town is but six miles from the Holland border.

Moorlede—A town of West Flanders, Belgium, eight miles east of northeast of Ypres and an equal distance northwest of Courtrai. Its inhabitants, among the most cultured in Belgium, number about 7,000. Moorlede is an important linen producing center and other products are chicory, leather, oil and beer.

Marianne or Ladrones—A group of islands in the Pacific ocean, 1,350 miles east of the Philippines, of which all but Guam, owned by the United States, are German possessions. The name Ladrones, meaning thieves, was given to them by the sailors of Magellan, because of the inclination of the early natives to steal. Excluding Guam, there are 14 islands, of which only seven are inhabited. Volcanoes are scattered over the ten northern islands, while the southern members of the group are coralline in structure and fringed with coral reefs. Their total area is about 250 square miles, and their population close to 4,000. Climate and soil lend themselves readily to agricultural pursuits, but the inhabitants have failed to realize their opportunities in this regard. Coffee, sugar, cotton, tobacco, coconuts, mother-of-pearl, sweet potatoes and coconuts are produced and copra, the dried meat of the coconut is exported. Germany paid Spain approximately $4,000,000 for the archipelago, with the exception of Guam in 1899.

Novorodonsk—A town of Russian Poland, 34 miles from the German border, 25 miles west of south of Piotrkow, near the Warta River and on the line from Warsaw to Cracow. The place has an active trade and manufactures leather, furniture, lumber and iron goods. An ancient Franciscan convent is located there. The town has a population of about 16,000.

Novogeorgievsk—One of the units of the Polish Quadrilateral, forming with Warsaw, Lvangorod and Brest Litovsk a series of powerful fortifications in central Russian Poland. The town is 15 miles northwest of Warsaw, at the confluence of the Vistula and the Bug, and, in recent years, has been strengthened by a circle of eight powerful fortifications erected in a semicircle about ten miles from the center works. It is supposed to prevent the turning of Warsaw by an attack from the direction of the lower Vistula. The place was formerly called Modlin, by which name it is still known by the Poles. Napoleon first fortified Modlin in 1807 and it was subjected to several sieges in 1813 and in 1831.

Lowicz—A Russian Poland town, 45 miles west of Warsaw and 23 miles east of south of Plock on the Buzze with a population of about 13,000. The town is known for its large cattle farms, which attract stock raisers from all parts of Poland. Lowicz manufactures linen and leather and has large weaving and bleaching establishments.

Panaga—A British possession in the Straits Settlement to the west of the Malay Peninsula and separated from it by a channel from two to ten miles wide. The territory is 15 miles long and has an area of 107 square miles. Its climate is healthy, although hot; it is mountainous in the north, and in its other portions wooded and picturesque. Pepper, indigo, cotton, coffee, sugar, tobacco, coconuts and rice are produced, and tin is mined near the base of its mountains. The capital, of the same name, has an European aspect, with pretty houses, factories, linen and leather works. It has an excellent harbor, an arsenal and barracks, and civil, leper and convict hospitals. Fort Cornwallis is just to the north of the town.

Bullies—A small French town, eight miles east of Havrebourg and 5 miles north of west of Lille. The place is tolerably well built and has the aspect of an old Flemish town. While a large portion of the inhabitants are engaged in the making of sand made lace, the town also manufactures thread, sugar, linen, ticking, tape, pottery, leather, beer and rye. A species of cheese which is much esteemed is peculiar to the town. Its population is about 15,000.

Vouziers—A town of northeastern France, 32 miles north of east of Reims and 21 miles south of Metz, on the left bank of the river Aisne. With a population of less than 4,000 the town has not increased in size for 500 inhabitants in the last half century. It is situated in a fertile district and has an extensive trade in grain, wine and iron. The town is near the northern border of the Argonne Forest.

Is Something That Will Stop Headache

If headache develops while shopping at business just step in any good drug store and ask at the fountain or Dick's Capoline, which is so successful in relieving headache because it removes the cause, whether from cold, heat, nervousness or grip. Don't liquid and pleasant to take. Don't ever suffer with headache when this remedy stops it so quickly. Take a little more. The druggist has it in 25, 50 and 100 sizes.

Cossack And Hussar Ideas In Early Styles For Winter Wear

New York, Nov. 7.—The most popular of all trimmings for dresses available for street, motor, or evening wear is fur, fur—and again fur. Fox, wolf,itch, mink, caracul, chinchilla and different kinds of lambs' wool, from the wide, fluffy kind to the tight, curly kind, are used for different costumes. But among the most popular of these furs is beaver, possibly because one or two of the famous Parisian couturiers were using it when the war broke out.

Nutria is often used in place of beaver and so closely resembles it that only those very familiar with furs are able to tell them apart. This nutria is the fur of a South American aquatic animal resembling the otter, and called a coypou. The North American otter is also being used for those who can afford such a luxury, a coat of otter costing a small fortune. As a novelty, African monkey fur continues to rank first. It is a long-haired fur, and when Cossack silhouette, which I have spoken in the fore part of this letter, may be noted. The closeness of the coat at the shoulders and the flare at the bottom show the latest cut for coats. Skunk fur is used for the rolling collar, the cuffs and the bottom of the coat. Frogs add the military note which is so popular on coats of many styles.

This same style may also be seen in coats of fur and fur-cloth, while the bands in this case are of contrasting fur. A long-haired fur on the short, close fur, or a fur of merely contrasting color, are combined into a coat of luxurious warmth and good style.

Although the dresses with the exaggerated waistline, or no waistline at all, are very much the rage, it has not taken away from the style of the more conservative frocks, whose waistlines remain normal. I have chosen for one of my illustrations a dress in style—unexaggerated, but cut on the late lines. The armhole is small, the shoulders close fitting, the tunic flares in the latest manner, while the rather wide belt is at the normal waistline. The only trimming of this dress is a braided design which is applied to the belt, the cuffs, the collar and the bottom of the tunic. A jaunty little hat which bespeaks comfort in all kinds of weather is worn with the costume.

The small hat vies with the larger hats for the popularity of the majority and the honor seems to be pretty evenly divided. The women who find comfort combined with jaunty in the small hat hesitate to change for the larger hats, but those who have made the change find that the larger hats are conservative enough in size not to cause the discomfort of those worn four or five years back and called the "Merry Widow" and "Peach Basket" hats. From such, Dame Fashion please deliver us!

In winter hats the Cossack shape, as well as the Hussar, are very smart. The latter are rather high and flat on top, made of cloth, velvet or fur and trimmed with jaunty fancy brushes of black or white horse-hair. An ornament is usually placed where this or-finishing the bottom of a tunic, the edge of a hat, or bottom of the sleeves looks like an irregular silk fringe.

The wide bands of fur which are used on the bottom of the full skirts or tunics, are a strong reminder of the costumes of the Russian, the Pole and the Cossack. With this as a beginning, the designers have harked back for inspiration to costumes of Russians and Tartars of the Middle Ages. Wonderful evening coats are made like the costumes of bartering Tartar tribes. The material is a heavy brocade, almost of the texture of silk tapestry, while the figures scattered across its surface are Oriental in origin. The garment fits very close-fitting at the shoulders, and with sleeves set in, which flare at the bottom where they are finished with a band of fur. A wide band of fur adds weight and richness at the bottom of the coat, which flares out in deep, soft folds.

Secondary only to fur comes braiding. The popularity of this is no doubt due to the war abroad. For is no doubt may talk of the barbarity of war, but hearts go out to the soldier who is fighting for his country, whether he be English, German, Russian, Austrian or French. There is a desire abroad, about war to the uninitiated which is reflected in the trimming and cut of our clothes.

Wide braid is used on the bottoms of skirts and tunics in place of fur. Narrow braid binds the edges of tailored costumes and soutache, Hercules, and round braids are used for braiding dresses, belts, panels, collars and cuffs in attractive designs. Wider braid and cord are made into frogs and buttons for the closing of coats and down the fronts of dresses, giving the military effect. Even modified epaulettes, made from black or blue braid, are seen on frocks.

Close in the wake of braiding comes beading. Many handsome frocks have belts which are beaded in some attractive design in colors rich and dark, which adds snap and smartness to the entire frock. One blue dress made after the popular Moyen Age style had a belt which widened in the front and dropped rather low. This was entirely covered with a beaded design in bronze beads, with now and then a red bead which served to accentuate the center of the conventionalized flowers. Color combinations of small beads may be used most effectively to add the touch which tells upon an otherwise sober dress.

Embroidery is also used to a great extent this year. Not the fine small variety, which is done in more or less coarse silk or wool and is most effective.

CITIZENS OF TALGO OBJECT TO TWO PHONES

Oklahoma City, Nov. 10.—The Oklahoma Corporation Commission was to hear today complaint of the citizens of Talgo, Okla., that business men of that place are compelled to subscribe for two telephones where one would be adequate and afford better service. They ask for an order whereby the two systems—Hewitt County Telephone Company and Independent Telephone Company—shall maintain and operate some exchange which will give subscribers access to each of the lines and free service to all points where they service is now being maintained by either company. The decision in this case, it is believed, will affect many larger places in Oklahoma.

MOTHER SUPERIOR ROSARY HILL HOME

Tells How Vinol Restores Strength and Vitality to the Weak, Worn out Ones in Her Charge.

Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N. Y.—"I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years and whenever I have used Vinol for run down, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly beg on a friend's aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. I supplied Vinol to her liberally and in a month she returned to thank me I hardly recognized her. She was strong, her color charming and her cheeks rounded out. These words are uttered from my heart, in order that more people may know about Vinol, as there is nothing makes me happier in the world than to relieve the sick."—Mother M. Alphonso Lathrop, O. S. Wladyslawow—This Russian town of about 5,000 inhabitants lies across the Prussian border, 45 miles north of Suwalki and 42 miles north of east of the city of Lublin. The Szeszuppe river, which for some distance forms the boundary line between Russia and East Prussia, separates it from the Prussian town of Schwintz. Several breweries are operated, and an extensive commerce in fine cloth and hides is carried on. In the environs, near the village of Blahoslowienstow, are dense forests containing many of the ancient sacred groves of the pagan Lithuanians. The town was named for King Vladislav IV, and at one time it belonged to Prussia, under the name of Neustadt.

Gostynin—A town in Russian Poland, 14 miles southwest of Plock, on the Seryya river, an affluent of the Vistula. The town has a population of about 7,000. Demetrius Schusky, deposed Czar of Moscow, was confined in the citadel of Gostynin until his death, at the beginning of the 17th century.

I'll Make Your Meat Money Go the Limit!

Most People Realize that It Isn't the Fault of the Retail Meat Man When Meat Prices Soar

But there are a few who believe that every time beef or pork goes up a cent or two per pound that their particular dealer is making that much more money.

As a matter of fact every advance cuts down the retailer's profit because we can't advance every time the wholesale market advances and what's more our percentage of profit gets smaller as prices advance.

It takes the utmost care in buying and handling and cutting meats to more than break even these days in the meat business. I'm stretching points all the time to help my customers get the most for their money.

It's volumes of sales that counts these days. For these two reasons I want your business. I'll help YOU make your meat money count, your trade will help me make a little something during each month. That's co-operation. Let's begin co-operating at once.

IN THE SPHERE OF WOMANKIND

Crowning Eccentricity of Englishwoman's Life, That Was Filled With Eccentricities.

In an old book published in Paris under the title of "Le Journal d'un Voyage au Levant," there is an amusing account of the way in which Lady Hester Lucy Stanhope, the eccentric English traveler, took possession of the house at Djoun, where eventually she made her permanent home.

She was pleased with the house and its surrounding gardens, and accepted an invitation to dinner. As she sat at the dinner, with the owner, a Christian merchant, he said to her that if she liked the place, he should be glad if she would stay the night. When she said that she liked it so much that she would stay there the rest of her days, he took it as a polite figure of speech; but a fortnight later, as she still prolonged her visit, he suggested that Europe might be expecting her return.

"I do not intend to return," she replied, carelessly.

"Ah, then you intend to build a palace in the neighborhood?" said he.

"This house suits me very well."

"But I cannot let it or sell it, madam."

"I do not wish to hire it or buy it, but I intend to keep it," was the starting reply.

In this dilemma the merchant dispatched a messenger posthaste to Emir Beshyr, who sent word to Lady Hester that she must give up the house. Lady Hester, however, wrote to Constantinople, whence a courier came to the emir, bearing the order: "Obey the princess of Europe in everything."

So the disgusted merchant fled, leaving her ladyship in possession. There for 20 years she lived the life of a recluse, growing more and more withdrawn from the world, and more accustomed to dwell in a mental and spiritual realm of her own creation, until she died, and was buried in the garden of the house that she had usurped.

RECIPE FOR FRENCH DRESSING.

(As demonstrated to Home Economics Club by Miss Albert.)

One-fourth cup of vinegar, one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon of butter, one-fourth teaspoon of mustard and salt, one and one-half tablespoons of sugar, one egg, one-half cup of milk. Mix flour, butter, mustard and salt, add vinegar and cook until thick, then add sugar, beaten egg and milk and cook again until of the proper consistency.

"GIRLS TRAINING SCHOOL" WEEK IN STATE OF TEXAS

This is the week in which a special effort will be made to raise the necessary funds for the establishment of the state training school for girls, who have had no chance, and in this week an appeal will be made to every citizen of the State and the women in particular, through the Press and through soliciting mediums in order that the needed amount may be raised. It is rather pitiful to think that in this State, which leads the Union in size and ability, there is no place for a girl to learn to be a good citizen, no place for the girl who is ignorant with the exception of a church institution which is for girls who have fallen. There are a large number of girls ignorant and unskilled, who are in danger on account of their ignorance, who are not really bad and if aid is given at the proper time, will in all probability never be bad. It is for these girls, as well as for those who have already made a mistake that this home will be established. Mrs. M. M. Adickes is a member of the special state committee on finance and Mrs. J. W. Lee is chairman of the women's work in Wichita Falls. At a meeting of the special committee held for the collection of funds for this week were made in a systematic form. The interest of the entire city will be aroused and the managers and proprietors of the local theatres have been interested to the extent of giving a benefit at their places of amusements. The progress of the work will be in a "house" from day to day and it is hoped to raise one thousand dollars in Wichita Falls.

SUCCESS MUST BE EARNED

Earnest, Intelligent Effort, With Industry, Will Set One Well on the Path to the Goal.

Most men who have amounted to anything started with nothing but ability and determination—a combination which recognizes no man-made limitations.

Any kind of work is better than idleness, which is directly responsible for most of the unhappiness in this world.

Idleness is a dangerous thing; it may grow into a habit that might stick to you after you get back in harness, and the man who loaf on his job is only fooling himself.

Eternal, intelligent effort is the price of commercial growth, and where there is no progression there is bound to be retrogression. Business is something like aeroplaning; to stop is to drop and to drop is generally to bust.

Pin your faith to the law of compensation, but don't take any stock in the law of chance; there's no such thing. Waiting for something to turn up in the belief that things are bound to come your way eventually is throwing dice with fate. Many a good dog never got a decent bone until his teeth were gone.

Troublesome Gender.

The trouble that Latin gender gives to American boys and girls who are struggling with the rudiments of that tongue should inspire in them a sympathetic feeling for a small descendant of the race of Attila who found the gender of our English nouns and pronouns a stumbling block.

A solid little figure trudged up to the librarian in the children's room. "That little boy," he declared, indicating the rest of the room vaguely with his thumb, "he hit me."

The "liberty teacher" followed him back across the room until the ascending thump landed near a table where sat a little looking child about half the size of the plaintiff.

The accuser explained: "That little boy, she bit me. That little boy is a little girl; but he has short hair, and when I point at him, she hits me."

MISS CECIL McCURDY'S TENTH BIRTHDAY SATURDAY

Saturday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McCurdy entertained a merry crowd of children at their home on Burnett in celebration of the tenth birthday of their daughter, Cecil. The house was very prettily decorated in yellow and white, characteristic of the birthday of the young girl. With a quantity of ferns in pleasing contrast. Various childish games were enjoyed throughout the afternoon and delicious cake and punch was served. Toasts by the small guests were given and were highly amusing. Mrs. McCurdy was assisted in caring for the children by her mother, Mrs. Cecil and sisters, Mesdames Wright, Weaver and Adams. The guests enjoying the afternoon were: Frances Gerock, Dorothy Ziskind, Mabel Scott, Emily McCulloch, Elsie Orr, Mattie Milnas, Sadie Milnas, Lima Russell, Hunter Russell, Norman Adams, Petway Conn George Taylor, Oscar McCurdy.

"BIRTHDAY PARTY" MONDAY PROVES QUITE A SUCCESS

The "birthday party" given Monday afternoon by the ladies of the M. E. Church, South, at the home of Mrs. E. P. Greenwood was a complete success. The afternoon was ideal the pleasant weather bringing out a large number to attend the affair. As the name of the entertainment would signify, each lady paid one cent for each year of her age and quite a substantial sum, something over twenty-five dollars was realized.

The Ladies Aid of the Central Presbyterian Church met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Williard as hostess. Devotionals were led by Mrs. Dickson and the lesson from the "King's Business" led by Mrs. Pitman proved to be most interesting. A business meeting was held, plans being made for the coming bazaar. One of the most important steps taken was the subscription of five dollars to the fund for the Girl's Training School. The hostess served a refreshment course at the conclusion of the meeting. Mrs. Soule was a visitor for the afternoon and the members present were: Mesdames Dickson, Kerr, White, Reed, Phil Kerr, Smith, Weir, Wilson, Munnery, Eain, McKellden, Pitman and the hostess, Mrs. Williard.

It may be that the American soldiers and sailors have no business at Vera Cruz, but threats by Carranza or others is not calculated to hasten their withdrawal. Our own guess, from the way things look now down that way, is that Carranza and his entire cabinet will be seeking the protection of the American troops at Vera Cruz before another month passes.

The tabulated election returns of Wichita county which appear in another column in today's Times, show that less than one-fourth of the qualified voters of the county took enough interest in the election to go and vote. It was that way in nearly every county in the State. The total voting strength of this State, as shown by poll tax payments, is more than 500,000. If other counties in the State took no more interest in the election of November 3rd than the people in this county, the total vote polled will be considerably less than one-half of the total voting strength.

James Elliott brought to The Times office today a copy of The Weekly Times of date August 18, 1893, more than twenty-one years ago. Unfortunately the newspapers published in Wichita Falls about that time and for several years later failed to preserve their files, probably from the fact that they changed ownership so often. This copy of The Times has some very interesting items of news of the day and time—especially to those who were residents of the city then and have continued to be since that time, but for the most part those whose names appear in that copy of The Times, either in the way of advertising or news items, have passed away or are no longer residing here. W. M. Tabb was the editor and proprietor of The Times at that time.

The public generally are expressing their satisfaction at the indictment and arrest of the New Haven railroad directors, which indictments were returned by a Federal grand jury under the criminal clause of the Sherman anti-trust law. But the defendants do not seem to be greatly disturbed, probably from the fact that no man ever yet found guilty under that act has ever served time or worn prison stripes. They generally got off with a fine. There is something wrong about the law somewhere that makes it impossible to reach the rich offenders. The New Haven directors are fully aware of this, and are therefore losing no sleep or worrying over the final outcome of the indictments. Some of them are old men, and the chances are will die a natural death before they are even tried.

By the time the reserve banks are opened the relief cotton farmers have been looking for is going to come. The cotton farmer, as a rule, wants to hold his cotton on the market. In order to do this he thinks he ought to get money on long time at about six per cent, and borrow $30 per bale on his cotton for one year. If this relief comes, and it now looks very much like it will, the problem of raising the price of the present cotton crop to something that will leave the producer a profit will be solved. It will beat the "Buy-a-Bale" movement. But if this prospective relief comes, cotton farmers should not and cannot, in fact, expect that it will be made permanent. They must take warning by what has happened this year, and cut down their cotton acreage. When that is done they will be masters of the situation, and a market for their cotton will be found at a price that they can afford to sell it for without holding or borrowing money on it.

For some time a strike of the railroad conductors, engineers and trainmen has been threatened on the St. Louis and Southwestern Railway (the Cotton Belt), but an order of the Federal circuit court, sitting at St. Louis, was granted yesterday at the request of six union men, members of the respective labor organizations, restraining the men from going out on a strike. The trouble was not shorter hours or more pay but was brought about by the discharge of a conductor shared by the railroad company with drunkenness. The officers of the unions contended the man was drunk, and insisted on his reinstatement. The company refused, contending that the discharged man was drunk. The court, in granting the injunction, found that the unions, in taking the strike vote, had presented to the members only one side of the contention—their own. The court said that both sides—that of the railway company and the discharged conductor—should have been presented before a strike vote was taken, and because this was not done, granted the injunction and issued the restraining order.

TURKEY IN THE WAR.

(Journal of Commerce, New York.) The reported entrance of Turkey into the field of conflict in Europe has been received with popular jubilation in St. Petersburg. This is not hard to understand, because since the time of Peter the Great Russia has striven to acquire Constantinople. Before that time Austria-Hungary was most persistent in her desire to become Turkey's heir. Up to 1699 the Turkish Empire extended almost as far as Vienna, and included Budapest. When the Turks threatened to overwhelm Europe they besieged Vienna, both in 1529 and 1683, and it was to Austria they owed their defeat. Hence it became Austria's aim to defend European civilization and gradually to conquer the Turkish Empire. Thus, while expanding eastward at Turkey's expense, Austria seemed in a fair way of reaching the Bosphorus when the development of Russia's power under Peter the Great, and Peter's victorious wars with the Turks, suddenly raised another claimant to the Turkish heritage. Russia's desire to possess Constantinople springs not only from historical and economic reasons. The Dardanelles are the door to Russia's house, and the Crimean War showed that a hostile power controlling the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus can attack Russia in a most vulnerable part. The most fruitful and most densely populated provinces of Russia are those in the south, which depend on the Dardanelles for an outlet. In other words, two-thirds of Russia's water-borne foreign trade depends on the free use of the Black Sea, and the closing of the Dardanelles might prove ruinous to Russia. Thus, whether Constantinople or not, it is clear that for political and economic reasons she can not allow the Turkish capital to fall into the hands of a strong European power.

The Turkish Empire is an unwieldy aggregate and not easily capable of defense. It is a thinly inhabited region, broken up by deserts, and extending from the Adriatic Sea to the Indian Ocean. Before the curtailment of its boundaries after the Balkan War its population was estimated at 26,000,000. But these comprised nearly a dozen different nationalities, speaking as many distinct languages, and further divided by the mutual hatred engendered by hostile proselyting faiths. The government is little more than an anarchy kept in repression by military despotism, in spite of the apparent triumph of constitutionalism and progress under the Young Turks. As it happens, the intelligence and industry of the population have been chiefly found among the races most hostile to the continuance of the Empire. The ruling race possesses the supreme virtue of courage, but it is utterly lacking in enterprise, in foresight, in perseverance and in administrative capacity. Asiatic Turkey is probably the least progressive part of the earth's surface at the present time, and all travelers agree in characterizing its aspect as being without example elsewhere. The Turks have, with apparent heedlessness, staked the existence of the Ottoman Empire on the issue of this war, and they have made it all but certain that Italy, Roumania and Greece will be drawn into the conflict, very much to the detriment of the cause which they have espoused. The treaty of Paris, which bound the great powers to respect the territorial integrity of Turkey, and in the probable event of the ultimate triumph of the allies, Turkey will finally cease to be a power in Europe and will be restricted within very narrow limits even in Asia Minor.

Whatever embarrassment the hostility of the nominal head of the Mohammedan faith may bring to Great Britain in Egypt and India may find a counterbalance in the satisfaction with which British statesmen will regard the change to wreck German enterprise in Asia Minor. At the end of 1899 Abdul Hamid promised, as a personal favor to the Kaiser, that a German company should receive the concession for an extension of the Anatolian railway from Konia to stretch to the Taurus, climb the mountains, cross the desert, bridge the Euphrates and Tigris, and descend along the bank of the latter to Bagdad, and thence to the Persian Gulf. Koweit was fixed upon as the terminus—a place partly under Turkish suzerainty, partly under British protection. When, in 1902, the Sultan issued an irade definitely confirming the concession for the Bagdad railway, negotiations began between the British and German governments by way of bringing about a friendly cooperation in its construction and management. These resulted in total failure, and the breach between the two governments on this question, kept widening. British interests in the Persian Gulf being declared to be as vital to the possession of the Irish Sea as the German interest in the Persian Gulf, it was decided to elect the Kaiser as arbiter. The Kaiser, as arbitrator, declared that these interests were such as no great power could surrender without a struggle, and that the acceptance of a complete diplomatic defeat would be a concession to the world that England's day was done. Now that this has been cast with other issues, into the sphere of military conflict, there is undoubtedly a sense of relief on the part of the government of India, as well as among the members of the British Cabinet.

TREES THAT ROB THE SEA

Palms and Mangroves of Sarawak Successful in Employed as Dredge and Land Builders. The river banks in Sarawak (British protectorate in Borneo) are lined with alpa palms and mangroves. At low tide you can see the mangroves standing on trestles of black woody roots, looking like snakes writhing in the mud. Upon these pedestals grows of bright green leaves, thirty to forty feet in height, form aquatic forests at the mouth of the rivers along the coast. Each branch is weighed down by fruit, when ripe, drops into the mud and starts a new tree.

The nipa palm, has matted roots, which easily retain the bottom and silt, carried down by the increasing current of the waters, and it is an aquatic fruit, which like that of the mangrove, sinks into the mud, germinates, and forms forests on its own account. The incessant action of these encroaching trees adds continually to the land. Indeed, there are certain aged natives who have been heard to say that part of the coast near Sirik, although exposed to the constant surf of the northeast monsoon, has encroached on the sea for two miles or more during their lifetime.

Effect of Environment.

The home, if it is to be an adequate preparation for life in the outside world, must have all the ingredients of the future represented, and in due proportion—privilege and duty, hardship and pleasure, discipline and reward. It may be a great playhouse with every day a holiday and every dish a dainty. Short-sighted love desires child life to be given every joy and sheltered from every pang. That home has probably the healthiest influence in which this is impossible, because a wholesome type of poverty obtrudes its kindly discipline upon the notice of every member of the family. A boy with daily "chores" has a better chance of becoming a personality than his little neighbor who accepts without question the luscious fruits of service without being compelled by ever-recurring necessity, laid upon him by circumstances, to render reciprocal service at the cost of genuine effort.—Bishop Brent in the Living Church.

HER ONE CHANCE

STORY 18 2538

By VIRGIE E. ROE.
Hedda bent above the glowing stove, turning this and stirring that with the pretised and delicate hand of an artist. From the rollway, across the sough, the men were coming noisily in to supper—their voices loud and sharp in the silence of soft rain.

The woman, raw-boned and capable, with a huge rope of pale hair coiled tightly on top of her head and every action spelling Sweden, regarded them out of hostile blue eyes. She knew what was coming with them—boisterous chaffing and good-natured jokes—and she hated them—every one! The best cook in the lumber region was Hedda, and she had no gift of tongue.

Now as she watched them come storming up the narrow, rain-soaked patch to the cook-shack, there leaped into her features a certain savage triumph, a fire of victory. "Hallo, Hedda, old girl," cried young Jack Baker, poking his curly head into the kitchen's steam and starting the customary pleasantries.

The cook paid him no heed whatever and another took up the fan. "Still unmarried, Hedda? Now ain't it funny that a pretty girl like you'd stay single so long when the hills' full of lonesome miners?" "Aye ban hate you!" she said passionately, and the laughter rioted.

This was the object of the baiting, this heavy rage, like the anger of a caged animal, harmless because of environment, and it tickled the humor of these men—simple as children in their narrow lives. But Hedda raised a great red hand for silence and they hushed, grinning. "Aye ban hate you!" she cried again, and Aye ban leave you so soon 'ready as maybe. Yust so soon as—"

She paused for effect, and there was something solemn in the light of perfect satisfaction that suffused her dull face. "Yust so soon as Yim Hendricks be come down from Quarter Creek again!" she finished dramatically. At last the impossible had happened. It was as Hedda had said. So soon as Jim Hendricks should come down from Quarter Creek again she was to go with him up to the lonely cabin in the hills.

bow, dipped the latter full of a savory soup left over from the meal. Then, tramping heavily into the pantry, she came back with a handful of crackers and sat down on a bench which she drew up with one motion of a big foot.

"Eat!" she ordered peremptorily, and without more ado, began plying the pretty pale lips with a huge tin spoon. Presently she chafed the small hands that were shapely and white despite their thinness and dirt, took off the outer rags that served as wraps, brushed out the matted hair, used hot water from the reservoir advantageously, and at last stood back and regarded her find approvingly.

"Now you ban go to bed," she ordered, and picking the girl up bodily in her strong arms, marched off to her own room. The next morning the men, storming in under the oil-lamps, fresh from the mist and outer darkness, red-checked and healthy, commenced their untiring baiting of the cook.

"When did you say Jim Hendricks was coming, Hedda?" Jim Anworthy inquired politely, "for we want to give the groom a wedding present. He deserves it. He's a brave man and no mistake." But Hedda did not even hear the remarks that at another time would have brought anger hot in her cheeks.

She hurried through with her work amid many trips to the mystery of her room, and at last, in the breathing space between breakfast and the beginning of dinner, she sat down by the bed and contemplated the white face on her spotless pillow. "It ban old trouble!" asked Hedda with clumsy tact.

The girl nodded. "Heart. The doctor—I couldn't pay him after I lost my job—said I might have a chance if I could get to the sea and live near it. But I'm tired. I don't care. I can't work, and how can I live?" "People look at me like I was a mad dog! I wish I'd die, here and now! You've been so good! It'd be a good finish. I tried hard, but I ain't near the sea yet, and I can't work when I get there, and who'll help me?"

"You ban awful near. Tree mals. You go to sleep now." And nodding wisely, Hedda departed into her realm. The world-beaten bird stayed secretly in the cage of the rag-carpeted room, and not a man at the lumber camp knew that anything unusual had happened in the lonely valley between the ridges.

Now and then she came weakly into the kitchen between times and sat in the rocker and told Hedda bits of a commonplace life, an innocent, hard-working girl life. And on Wednesday—that to which Hedda had been looking forward occurred. Jim Hendricks came down from Quarter Creek, big and awkward in his logger's clothes of flannel and deerskin, and knee-laced boots, and stood in the cook-shack door.

"Really, Hedda?" he asked. "I've got a packhorse, an' we'll go down to Toledo to the preacher when you're ready. Got to take up some grub—" "Aye," said Hedda, turning from her baking board and dusting her hands. "Aye ban want to talk to you. You come in."

He stepped gingerly in, hulking like an elephant in a china shop. "Yim," said Hedda straightly, "Aye ban change my mind." "What? Why?"

There was disappointment in the big fellow's tone. "Yaa, Aye ban want to work some more. Aye don't want to go into no hills, and dot cabin of yours, it ban too near the sea. Dot roar, roar, it make my head go round. But you listen here, Yim—Aye ban got you a syri all right."

And with a certain skill Hedda told him the story of the wail from Salem who was ready to die because she must get to the sea and there was no one to take care of her. "But," began the man, "but I don't know—maybe she'd be scared o' me."

"You big fool, Yim," said Hedda, "you come along." And she led him into the sanctum. The girl was asleep, a white flower drifting on the golden seaweed of her hair. The small sound waked her and she opened her gray eyes full upon him. Like twin mysteries they were, deep and half-frightened and tired unto death, and they appealed like those of a lonely child.

"Why—why—you poor little thing!" he whispered in the first wonder of awakening. "You want—you mother, closing his lumber-jack's fingers over the tiny, clawlike hand on the patchwork quilt. She was not frightened, neither was there any withdrawal from his clasp. It was as if she saw sanctuary in his face, and with the sure instinct of the young, accepted it without question. Of this Hedda saw nothing. She only saw her plan working out as it should.

"You ban got with Yim," she said confidently, "he got a cabin up in the hills and the sea it roar, roar, and the wind blow and you ban get well! Yim ban good man." And she left them together to look after some other mystery of the kitchen.

When a half-hour later Jim Hendricks came out and brought his packhorse close to the step, he took her big red hand a moment. "I'm mighty glad, Hedda," he said tactlessly, after the fashion of a man, "and I want to thank you. She's goin' with me. Why—why—I can't understand it—such a purty little thing—an' she—why me, such a big, overgrown brute!" (Copyright)

The Housekeeper is Right

Sometimes a housekeeper requires a quick leavening agent, and finds she has no baking powder.

What does she do?

She raises her biscuit by a mixture of cream of tartar and soda, or soda and sour milk. She may not get the proportions quite right, but she knows her food is safe. But does she ever use a mixture of alum and soda? Was there ever a housekeeper who bought alum and soda to make a home-made baking powder? Intuitively she feels it would be unsafe.

Then why use baking powder made from alum or the same mixture that the housekeeper would not dare to mix and use in her food?

Alum is alum, whether bought in the drug store or in baking powder.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

is made from pure cream of tartar and contains no alum, lime or phosphate. There is absolute safety in its use.

"Aah!" She Cried, and Recolled Grudgingly.

ACADEMY RESENTED AT BATTLESHIP EXERCISES

Miss Louise Benjamin Returns From Presentation Ceremony at Galveston

Miss Louise Benjamin has returned from Galveston, where she attended the presentation of the silver service to the battleship Texas, as one of the committee of fourteen which, with Miss Mary Colquitt, presented the service to the ship. Miss Benjamin represented the Academy of Mary Immaculate, this being the only school north of Dallas represented. The little maid so honored has quite a remarkable family history, her mother being very closely related to Archbishop Healy of Connaught, Ireland, while her father is a direct lineal descendant of Samuel Benjamin, of Revolutionary fame, the Benjamin coming to this country in 1632. Alex Albright of Dundee has purchased a new Buick, Model C, automobile from the Wichita agency and was in the city today to drive the car home.

She is also described by another writer as the "spiritual ancestor of every woman's alliance, indeed of every organization in the land for political or social or intellectual or religious conference and improvement." She organized the Woman's club, the first one being held in her house, and she talked so plainly that she was banished by Winthrop, and in March, 1638, went forth into the woods where she was finally killed by the Indians.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS OF COUNTY IN GOOD CONDITION

Report of County Treasurer T. W. McHam is Submitted For Quarter Ending October 31

The report of County Treasurer McHam for the quarter ending October 31 shows that the financial affairs of the county are in good shape when it is taken into consideration that the payment of taxes is now due and will start in some volume next month. The treasurer's report shows the following balances: First class fund (jury)—$629.05. Second class (road and bridge)—$459.58. Third class (general)—$76.44. Interest and sinking fund (road and bridge)—$3,972. Interest and sinking (rail)—$1496.45. Interest and sinking (bridge)—$1824.45. Special bridge account—$646.30. The bonded indebtedness of the county is $51,000. The county holds as assets $9,850 Wichita Falls city hall and school district bonds.

AT THE THEATERS

Just what would you say was the value of an ordinary cigar box that still bears the government stamp and that once held "two for five" stogies? Not of much value it would seem, but this week at the Lydia Margaret that very sort of a box is being closely guarded and there is insurance on it to the amount of $1000. This box belongs to "Karl, Wizard of the One String" and is his stock in trade, the instrument which he earns his very substantial livelihood. This cigar box violin was made years ago and has become so mellow of tone and of such extraordinary volume that it has made its owner a popular star of vaudeville. For generations the family of Karl has been a musical one, his father being Herr Theodore Von Scholtze, native of Berlin and a well known figure in grand opera circles.

The Gem.
Gertrude McCoy is featured in a two part drama, "Sheeps Clothing". From his earliest years, Thaddeus Craven had never allowed a consideration for any earthly thing to stand in his way. His heart was set on a wealthy girl, and after her death he set his little daughter, Lydia, up in an English boarding school to be id of her.

Years later a curious spasm of the parental instinct drove him to visit the school for the sake of seeing his daughter. A few weeks after her father left, Lydia, wedded by her petty persecutions of the boarding school mistress, decided to follow him to America. So, without saying a word to anyone, she stole away and boarded a steamer at Southampton. Craven was surprised to see his daughter, and by no means pleased. However, when an opportunity came to use her, he was by no means loath to take advantage of it. Knowing that she would be unsuspected, he gave her a box which he told her contained documents belonging to the government, and warned her to keep her possession of it a secret. The box actually contained a magnificent necklace which Craven had stolen from a wealthy woman aboard ship.

Craven's pals, suspecting him of an attempt to double cross them, succeeded in getting the necklace away from the girl, but she regained it, through the aid of the ship's detective and brought it safely to New York. After they had arrived in America, Craven's gang, convinced of his duplicity with regard to the necklace, determined to revenge themselves upon him. Accordingly they sent him a package of diamonds. Craven knowing that it was the first warning of death, shrieked and covered his eyes when he saw it. The next morning he received the knave of clubs. Frantic with terror, he attempted to avert the gang's wrath by sending them the necklace. But Lydia, whom he again used as an unconscious accomplice, innocently disobeyed his threats and when she came home with Peter Triff, a young man who had grown very fond of her, she found her father seated in the hall, the knave of spades clutched tight in his hand, dead.

The Victoria.
"Our Mutual Girl" day again and Margaret has one of the gayest times of all her gay young life. In spite of the fact that Baby Lily is in her care and that the breach between herself and Auntie Knickerbocker is widening, she goes to New Port, at its gayest season and enjoys herself to the utmost. Another picture of interest is a two part American, "The Redemption of Pal" featuring Winifred Greenwood, Ed Coxen, Geo. Field and Charlotte Burton.

Lane is converted to the cause of those less fortunate than himself by his instinctive selflessness. In a common dance hall, with her help, he founds a club in her district and

You Make Friends By Recommending
A Reliable Kidney Medicine
Your representative called at my door yesterday meaning to leave a sample of your noted Swamp Root and I am certainly pleased to see anybody connected with the firm who makes a medicine which has done so much for me and my family. A few years ago I was suffering from a terrible pain in my back and when I was up around the house I had to walk with my body bent nearly double. If you had placed a thousand dollars above my head I could not straighten up to get it.

Hearing of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root I sent you for a sample bottle and from the effects of that small amount I was sure it would help me. I bought one bottle and it has cured me.

Shortly after that my husband who was a coal miner, was suffering from kidney trouble and could not work and I sent for some of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root. He was in a terrible condition, but as the doctors had not given me any relief, I had more faith in Swamp Root and it was worth founded, for it did the work and after taking a few bottles he was completely cured.

I daily recommend the use of Swamp Root to my friends and neighbors. Sincerely yours,
MRS. JNO. NORDQUIST,
Galeston, Pa.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, this 14th day of May, 1912.

Prove What Swamp Root Will Do For You

Send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample size bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention the Wichita Daily Times. Regular fifty cent and one dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores. (Advt.)

The Majestic.
Today the wonderful picture "Shadows" will be shown in this eminent actor, King Baggot plays not only a dual role, but takes the part of each of the ten characters in the play.

Without entering into details, the story of "Shadows" is this: Cut off from the world, their comfortable home buried in a picturesque garden of trees and flowers, William Clark and his wife live the lonely life of a couple who have known sorrow. Their only servant is a Chinaman. Years before their only son, a wayward, but loving boy, had left them. At the opening of the story, this boy returns, like the proverbial son of old, to enjoy the fatted calf. But in this case the father dreads it a wiser course to send the boy on his way with enough money to start again in life.

The evening following the son's second departure from his father's house, a thief breaks in. He encounters the Chinese servant and assaults and robs him of his savings. Among the coins obtained are a few Chinese coppers. The old father, hearing the scuffle, starts for the kitchen. He is intercepted by the crook who accidentally kills him. Shortly after, Mrs. Clark discovers the awful tragedy and immediately notifies the police. King Baggot, the famous detective is put on the case.

In the search for a clue, King visits a tavern. He overhears a quarrel between the crook and his sweet heart; the latter throws the money he has given her in the crook's face. One of the coins rolls to where King is seated. Examination discloses it to be a Chinese coin.

In the meantime the son has been arrested, accused of the crime. Circumstantial evidence points strongly to him as the perpetrator. However, King believes the boy innocent. He visits the servant, who identifies the crook, but is unable to give a description of the thief. King hurries back to the tavern in time to take up the trail of the crook. He follows to a lodging house. The crook's strange actions convince King of his guilt.

From a nearby telephone he calls the police station and gives instructions to have plain clothes men sent to assist in the arrest of the murderer of Clark. On the arrival of the detectives, King breaks in the door. A terrific fight ensues; King pursues the crook up the stairs and onto the roof. Then follows a thrilling pistol duel. The crook is finally shot and falls with a well directed shot and pistol in the rear of the ground, several stories below. He lives long enough to clear the son of suspicion.

The story closes with the son leaving the jail on the arms of his aged mother, and King showing the satisfaction of a deed well done.

The Lydia Margaret.
The vaudeville bill for the first half of this week, opening yesterday is more than entertaining. Paden and Reed comprised the opening act and put over a good line of singing and talking. Their voices are good, far above the average. Paden does the straight work and wears his clothes well making an extremely good appearance, while Reed in blackface does the comedy work. He has a number of clever parodies and the act is a laughing success. "Karl, Wizard of the One String" on his cigar box violin, closes the extraordinary bill. The music which he draws from his quaint instrument is wonderful. There is quite a story attached to his violin also, but in the words of Kipling, "that is another story."

A two part Lubin drama will be seen here tonight, "The Twin Brothers Van Zandt" also a comedy reel.

"ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE" BOOKED FOR THURSDAY

The next attraction booked for the Wichita Theatre is "Alias Jimmy Valentine" the clever production which made such a hit here last year. It is scheduled to show here Thursday night and is said to be one of the season's best offerings.

MAY BAR FOREIGNERS FROM GERMAN UNIVERSITIES

Subjects of Nations Now at War Will Probably Be Allowed to Continue Study

By Associated Press. 10.—The question whether in future subjects of nations now at war with Germany shall be allowed to study at German Universities has aroused much comment especially among German medical men and in the professional press. In the Medizinische Klinik, Prof. Eischig deals with this question in so far as it affects the exclusion of Japanese. He demands that no Japanese shall be allowed to study at German Universities. A similar attitude, he continues, could not be observed with regard to students of other nationalities now at war with Germany. Many common interests unite these various countries. Prof. Eischig's opinion is that German medical science would not lose anything if we limit the mutual relations with other now hostile nations and if we after the war restrict these relations to those nations only with whom it will be possible to live in peace.

This article by Prof. Eischig has brought forth answers from Prof. Orth. He points out that he must deny one principle that a nation can isolate itself from the others with regard to scientific and especially medical relations. "I do not under rate our German medical science," he said, "but could it have reached its present greatness without the mutual relations with the medical science of other nations? Have we always been the givers and never the receivers? Shall we, because England has become the best hated enemy, remove the picture of Lord Lister from the wall of our Langenbeck Hospital; shall we forego for all future time all relations with the English or any other country's medical science?"

With regard to Japan, Japanese medical science has been till now together with German genius has presented German medicine and the whole world with one of the most valuable medical acquisitions. If after the war a long lasting peace—also with Japan—comes the war in science could not be continued. The political enemies of today can be the best friends tomorrow. If we wish to maintain our power in the world, for which this war is waged, also after the war, we cannot isolate ourselves but we must remain in touch with the whole world and if the relations are partly interrupted we must restore them.

"That we shall treat the various nations differently is a matter of course. Our present allies will occupy a privileged position. After the termination of the hostilities a certain feeling will remain against our enemies, especially against England, Russia and Japan and it will take a long time and continual good behavior on their part before the good old relations can be restored. But after the war the relations of our universities with all the hostile foreigners must be again corrected."

Mayor Cured; Skin Cleared By D. D. D.

Mayor Chapman of Ellis, Kansas, courteously says he will answer any letters written him relative to his truly marvelous cure of skin trouble with the D. D. D. Prescription.

Mayor Chapman writes: "I think how I suffered last winter, how I could not work, how I was covered with terrible blotches, sometimes weeping, sometimes raw, sometimes itching, sometimes raw, sometimes itching. It was only accidentally that I learned of the famous specific for what D. D. D. has done for me."

Results from the use of D. D. D. are immediate. The face, neck, back, and the feet are gone! Eruptions, rashes, dandruff, discharges, itching, hard crusts, and scales, raw scorching sores, salt rheum, tetter, no form of skin disease resists.

All druggists have this famous specific on hand. This is the only one that it will reach your case or your money refunded. You also to judge. Ask also about D. D. D. Skin Soap, best for under skin.

JAPAN WILL SEND NURSES AND WORKERS TO EUROPE

Will Take Active Part in Red Cross Work Both at Home and Abroad

By Associated Press. Tokyo, Nov. 10.—Another tie has been established between East and West by Japan's offer to send detachments of Red Cross workers to Russia, England and France. Delegations will leave soon for Europe carrying with them a large amount of medicine, bandages and other requirements. An impressive scene was witnessed when 12,000 Japanese women in flowing kimonos and carrying pennants gathered in the open air at Hibiy Park for the annual meeting of the Ladies' Patriotic Society. A special pavilion was erected to receive Princess Kan-in and others of royal blood. This society works with the Red Cross and is now engaged in sending comfort bags to the soldiers, and in caring for families at home. The reports show a membership of 800,000 the past year's increase being 20,000.

FEMALE LABOR IN JAPAN'S FACTORIES IS VERY HEAVY

Situation Having Its Effect On Social and Economic Conditions and is Being Investigated

By Associated Press. KARUIZAWA, Nov. 10.—More damaging to the health and morality of the Japanese than even a serious war is the yearly toll exacted from the 200,000 girls who are recruited from the factories of the Empire, says G. M. Fisher, the American general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association for Japan who has made an exhaustive study of economic and social problems here. He set forth the results of his studies at the special school at Karuisawa.

As good breeding places of disease, as germ culture trays in a biologist's laboratory. The hours of labor in silk factories run from 13 to 15 hours and in weaving factories and cotton mills from 10 to 12. Two thirds of the women workers in Tokio factories receive under 15 cents a day and only one-sixth from 20 to 30 cents. These are figures gathered by the Tokio police.

Two hundred thousand girls from various country districts are enrolled in the factories each year for the first time. Notwithstanding the efforts of the factories and recruiting agents it is said that any given district is likely to be exhausted of girls in three years.

Mr. Fisher concludes: "The personal ministry already undertaken in behalf of factory workers and the local regulations in certain cities such as Osaka are good as far as they go, but they do not touch the heart of the problem. Nothing but a nationwide uprising by intelligent physicians, teachers and leaders of opinion will suffice to end this blot upon Japan's good name and this menace to the future."

"In 1911 the Imperial Diet after warm debate passed a factory law, but it has not yet been promulgated. Its provisions were gradually so watered down by exceptions and qualifications that even if put into operation it would give but very partial relief. But still it may be the best that can be hoped for at the present. It is devoutly to be hoped that it will be promulgated and put into operation without further delay."

HARRIS BARELY GETS BY IN TYING NUPITAL KNOT

New County Judge Has To Perform Ceremony Shortly After Being Sworn In

A half an hour after County Judge Harvey Harris was sworn into office he was called upon to perform his first marriage ceremony. The couple were Edwin T. Coffield and Mrs. Addie St. Clair of Aiva, Okla. The county judge's office was crowded with officers-elect awaiting to be sworn in and the new judge was more embarrassed than the nuptial pair. He called County Attorney Bruce Greenwood aside and the latter instructed him in the knot-tying formula but witnesses say Judge Harris forgot most of it when he attempted to repeat it, but he got them married all right. He confessed afterwards that he had witnessed only two marriages in his life.

Defective eyesight is an appalling handicap in every walk of life, yet it is a fact that an extremely large percentage of children suffer in one form or another from eye trouble, and it is a further remarkable fact that a wonderful change in the physical and mental condition of the child is effected the moment such defects are corrected.

Many a "short-sighted" boy deliberately conceals his infirmity and suffers unmerited punishment and humiliation from teacher and companions alike because of it. Parents should appreciate this condition and discover for themselves whether their children's eyesight is perfect or otherwise.

When You Have Forgotten:

The virtues of your deceased friends or loved one, go out to the cemetery and read thereon, engraved with skilled hands, the name and dates of the one you knew so well. You forget their failures and their human frailties, while you remember their good deeds, their kindly acts of love and tender sympathy. Their virtues stand out before you in visions of gold to remind you of higher and better things.

Should there be no such SACRED TABLET to bring you these tender memories, let us place one for you. You will be better and happier for duty well done.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CAFFEINE

That coffee is a healthful, mildly stimulating and most beneficial beverage, is a fact of world-wide acceptance. And the very "soul" of coffee is caffeine. Its aromatic and tempting essence is caffeine, the essential oil which has never been discovered in the green bean, but which invariably develops in the roasting. This hidden combination of caffeine and caffeine in the great laboratory of Nature resulted in coffee. This inimitable product is unlike any and all other fruits of orchard or garden. The only thing in the world that smells like coffee, tastes like coffee, and is as refreshing as coffee—is coffee. It stands alone; unrivaled in excellence, unsurpassable in its delicious aroma, ever comforting and satisfying. For a cup of good coffee there is no substitute; nothing that even approaches its natural and inherent virtues. As was written in ancient days—"Good wine needs no bush," surely in these modern times; for good coffee properly brewed to either serve or drink there need be no apology. The steaming and bracing cup tells its own story of matchless flavor and goodness to all the world. And yet there are those who do not interpret that interesting message to tired humanity aright. They do not perceive that for mankind in the mass, coffee is the one table beverage most widely needed. On land or at sea, at the quiet home table or on the tented field, coffee is welcomed for the comfort and benefit it confers. Coffee being one of Nature's rich and perfect gifts, those who attempt to beat Nature's creative handiwork in the beverage line, have a long and disappointing road to travel. There can be no substitute for the real thing, nor anything "just as good" to those who love and are benefited by this cheering cup. CAFFEINE IS AN ALKALOID Caffeine is an alkaloid. Caffeine is found in coffee, tea, cocoa and "mate" (Paraguayan tea), also in the kola nut, in differing quantity. In coffee it is caffeine; in tea, theine, and in cocoa a similar element is called theobromine. From the latter is prepared both chocolate and cocoa. The world's most enjoyable and popular table beverages all contain caffeine. Caffeine is used medicinally; it is found in all drug stores and hospitals. Caffeine is the only known heart stimulant or tonic without reactionary effect. It is also an antidote for opium poisoning. Caffeine is a mild, refreshing stimulant, and in no sense habit-forming. Caffeine, an distillation, crystallizes (with one molecule of water) into slender, white, silky needles. Caffeine is a cardiac stimulant and a diuretic, and this is why hot coffee is so valuable in many types of headache. Coffee is an antiseptic, an internal germicide and a most effective disinfectant in the sick room, when finely ground and sprinkled on a hot metal pan or plate. Caffeine is used, in some form, by every civilized race, because the caffeine drinks are found healthful, helpful natural stimulants, without reactionary effect. Your personal experience tells you that this is true.

The Dollar

Is the standard by which values are measured in this country. But do you always get a dollar's worth for your dollar? The dollar is the measure used in our cleaning and pressing department. To call and get your suit, clean and press it and return it to your home is the dollar's worth at our shop. We do it for a dollar. Not because we have to for we don't. We could get more but we feel in our bones that a dollar is just right. And our cleaning is just as RIGHT as the Dollar. No dingy rings where the spot was. No grease spots show up the third wearing. We made the price a dollar. We made a dollar the price. And we give you more for your dollar than you can get elsewhere. You don't have to phone us but one time about your suit.
