The OPS Orders Affect Producer and Consumer Alike

Pictured below are the pens of Pete Buske, Friona cattleman; with cattle in the pens and on the ranges locally, everyone should find out the facts in the recent OPS orders affecting the meat industry . . . the economy of our own communities is involved.

With so much comment on the street and in the press regarding the OPS orders affecting the meat industry, the Star this week asked a local cattleman to outline his views on the situation.

The comments by Pete Buske follow:

In regard to the cattle situation, as I see it, cattle are dangerously high, but they are not very much out of line in comparison to other commodities.

It is a pitiful situation wherein we have men at the control who understand so little about so important a thing as the meat industry, especially when the whole world faces so great a crisis as is faced today.

Controls will not solve the problem any more than would a dam across the Mississippi river stop it from flowing in the main channel; it either breaks the dam or goes around the spillway, creating new channels, which we might call our black markets.

I am not an alarmist or a pessimist, but

I do think it is time that we all wake up to the fact that we are in a condition where we need to get in contact with our representatives and congressmen and let them know just where we stand and what we want.

When we have men to take the stand our OPS chairman has taken, together with others, and wish such dogmatic statements as they have made, these men won't last long. So, for that reason, I am not worried if we do our part. Write congress today and let it know how you feel in being discriminated against.

In this great country you can still get all you want from the best filling station in the world—your own dining room.

The car's speedometer doesn't always reveal how far a couple has gone.

By the time the meek inherit the earth, taxes will be so high they won't want it.

Weekly Book Review

By Corinne Jennings

"Sun in Your Eyes" by Oren Arnold Is Easy Reading and Delightful Reading For the Student of Southwestern Lore

EDITOR'S NOTE: Corinne Jennings, book reviewer for the Star, recently won high honors on the writing contest sponsored by the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society. Knowing and loving the history of the Palins as she does, we can readily see why Mrs. Jennings could well qualify for such honors. The book reviewed this week is typical of the literature she loves and recommends.

"Sun in Your Eyes" by Oren Arnold is a book made up of bits of interesting information sketches, history and amusing bits of the southwest, especially of New Mexico and Arizona. Written in an easy readable style and authentically—as well as amusingly illustrated by Lloyd Lozes Goff—it makes a perfect pick-up book or one for bedside reading.

Beginning with the prologue, sun country, one gets the feeling of the book and its aim—the lure of the southwest; kinship with the colorful characters who live there and though the country is full of excitement and adventure there is the quiet life of peace if desired.

As one reviewer wrote of it, "Here's one to read into the wee hours, then go back to, and to quote often, and most certainly send to your best friends."

Your own reviewer liked the part of the book titled "Red Hot Record" which tells of cowboys, ranches and as the one above indicates, branding. The "Brand Primer" explains briefly and simply the heraldry of the range. Even a tenderfoot after reading this chapter could read some brands. Examples are given which offer entertainment and study as one might work out a cross word puzzle.

The actual tryout of what you have learned after reading this chapter is called, "Let's Play 'Round-Up'" and try your hand at reading the ones they have chosen for a test of your ability.

Then there is a chapter "Ranching for Romance" which tells of the first man to establish a dude ranch nearly a century ago. Bringing it up to date, there are suggestions to where you can find such ranches today if you care to visit one as a guest, also what to wear while there, you may expect to be entertained and other hints on what to expect from your host and what he in turn may expect from you as a guest.

No one ever misses a rodeo they are from the east and in the vicinity of one, westerners love them and tend them, as well as often part in them throughout the southwest, whether in a professional manner or just in an amateur, depending on what type rodeo it is and it is being held. There are a few notes on how to enjoy it, just in case you do not know how to relax and do that. Square dancing has revived on the dude ranches throughout the country each section has its own favorites and interpretations of it. But if one has ever danced any sets at all it is very easy to soon fit into the picture of any place you may happen to stop or happen to be invited to attend. One chapter is devoted to this art and fun.

All who have loved to read of lost treasures, real or legendary, will find some real stories of where such treasures are supposed to be still buried, and other bits of very interesting data about lost mines, ghost towns and ghost gold in one part of the book.

Sun Land Souvenirs is the heading of one chapter and will give you leads on how to tell the real from the copied by machine, work by the Navajo silversmiths. The author gives you some insights, too, on how the Indians use their jewelry as money.

Other headings are, the "hungering herd" which is about western foods, Mexican and others; "I would like to build here," (if you should there is even plan of the suggested building of the southwest most popular); a list of books for suggested reading before you visit or to take along while there concludes the book. The chief of which we suggest this one as your guide to a visit in the southwest.

The Law & You

By Robt. (Bob) Kirk

DO YOU KNOW whether or not "Sunday laws" are still part of the statutes in Texas?

"Sunday Laws" are the statutory regulations prohibiting the working or selling goods on Sunday. Generally they prohibit all work or selling of goods and merchandises on Sunday. There are certain exceptions to these laws. The penalty for violating these laws is a fine.

These laws which were passed many years ago, and were probably strictly enforced in the beginning, are still part of the laws of the State of Texas. Apparently there are very few prosecutions for violation of the same at the present time, judging from the cases reported in the law books which refer to these statutes. The original laws on this subject, which are still in force today were enacted in 1863, and amended in 1871 and 1887. Thereafter these laws remained unchanged until the present time, except for amendments in 1926 and in 1931, which permitted certain additional exceptions to the general prohibition against working or operating a business on Sunday.

A mass meeting was to be held on Saturday night. This meeting was of great importance as it was called for the purpose of getting a voice of the people as the manner and means for providing more room for the housing of our rapidly growing school.

To a stranger in the Panhandle the weather conditions of this week might be convincing that this is one of the wettest parts of the land, and he would not be far from right so long as this week is concerned.

Monday afternoon late, rain started which seemed to cover the area, Tuesday was warm and fair and that night started raining again, Wednesday light showers fell nearly all day and a heavy shower in the evening.

Probably the first letter delivered at the Friona Post Office by Air Mail was received by Dr. McElroy from his son. The letter came in a No. 10 envelope, and bore the "red, white and blue stripe across the full length of the front, which is the distinctive mark of Air Mail Service.

Fashioning the poppies which the public will be asked to wear next Saturday are John E. Hall, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, Clair G. Young, of Crawford, Oklahoma, Wilmer B. Reed, of Corpus Christi, Texas and Jack Stan, chief of Elgin, Texas, all patients in the Veterans Administration Hospital at Legion, Texas. The poppy, a memorial flower to those who gave their lives in America's service during the World Wars, is fashioned by the patients in the Legion Hospital and in numerous wards at the Veterans Administration hospital at Waco. The making of the poppy is recognized by the doctors at these hospitals as worth while occupational therapy.

You will recall that a few weeks ago I told you that a showdown with England was long overdue and should not be very far in the future. Events in the past few days have confirmed that information and the work of Congress toward that end. This will develop measurably and will in my opinion result in England recognizing the folly of her ways and in cleaning her own linen. If she fails to do this, you may well expect some effective and immediate addition to the legislation that this week passed the Senate. Trade with China by countries accepting air from this country is the most intolerable thing I have ever heard of, and India can certainly expect this point to be raised and prosecuted fully when the question of sending food grains to India comes before the House. If I have my way, this country is not going to furnish food or any other materials or commodities to any country where they may be used for the purpose of spilling the blood of our youth. Certainly there is a humanitarian problem concerning starving peoples, but in my opinion this must be weighed from a realistic standpoint, and so far as I am concerned will be so weighed. The question of whether or not to send food grain to India could be much more serious than realized at first glance. Whether this is to be a grant or is to be paid for by India will be a hotly debated question. This operation, if carried out, would involve an expenditure of approximately $200 million dollars by this country, whether it be on a grant or loan basis. You will recall that in most of the loan transactions we have had with other countries, the notes are still unpaid. The Committee on Veterans Affairs, of which I am a member, is now considering legislation that would be of great benefit to many disabled veterans and their dependents, to the widows and children of veterans and to dependent parents of veterans. Some reasonable benefits could be afforded these people by an additional expenditure of less than $200 million dollars, and in many cases would mean the difference between some of these people living in poverty or having enough to eat, even a sufficient amount to wear. In this period of definite economy trends on the part of Congress, many of us could well be driven to an absolute choice between sending the grain to India or providing these small additional benefits to these folks who are the victims of wars. I am wondering what the people would want me to do in such a case. I think I know, but I would like to hear from you on the question. I will tell you frankly that the choice would not be too hard for me; I would help the veterans.

APPROPRIATIONS

The departments, boards, bureaus and agencies are becoming greatly concerned over the many sizable cuts that the House is making in non-defense appropriations. Many of these appropriations bills have been amended on the House floor to provide that for every four employees who are released by a department during the coming fiscal year only one employee can be replaced. This simply means that if a department loses 100 employees during the fiscal year, there will only be 25 that can be employed to take the place of these 100. This is intended to stop the growing Federal payroll, and although it is not as effective as I would like to see it, it is at least a step in the right direction. It was placed on legislation by former Congresses but has always been taken off before final passage of the appropriations bills. Whether or not it will remain in the law upon final passage by this Congress, I do not know, but I will say there is going to be a terrible fight before it is taken out.

VISITORS FROM THE PANHANDLE

Kenneth Kendrick of Stratford was in the office this week. He was in Washington attending a meeting of the National Wheat Growers Association. These people, as well as most wheat farmers in the Panhandle, are disturbed, and rightfully so, about the green bug situation. I have discussed this matter with the Department of Entomology in the Department of Agriculture and tried to impress upon them the seriousness of the problem. There has been only one man from the bureau of Entomology working on this program and I have insisted that additional men be assigned to the work. I am afraid that most of the people of this country are failing to understand and I was certainly glad to have them visit me. I also had the pleasure this week of visiting with Townsend Dougless of Amarillo, who has been in Washington the past few days. Mr. and Mrs. T. H. McDonald of Amarillo also paid a visit to the office while I was attending a session of Congress.

Adequate Wiring Emphasized At Austin Conference

A. T. Ford, Electrification Advisor for the Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative, Inc., attended a three day adequate wiring Conference in Austin, Texas during the past week.

The first day of the Conference was devoted to electrical wiring terms, wiring methods and safety practices.

Mr. V. E. Moore, Electrification

Advisor for the Karnes Electric Cooperative gave a demonstration on overload conditions by using a panel board designed to demonstrate exactly what happens when a wire is overloaded and not fused properly.

Mr. Moore pointed out that the fuse size should never be larger than the ampere rating of the circuit or appliance it is desired to protect. By actually overloading a circuit, composed of 100 feet of No. 18 drop cord, which was not protected by the proper size fuse, Mr. Moore allowed the drop cord to become so hot that the insulation burst into flames. Moore further pointed out that the wiring in many homes and buildings was adequate 10 years ago but has outgrown its usefulness now, since so many more uses for electricity have become common on the farm. He showed a typical wiring layout designed ten years previous, on which, Moore said, a user was complaining because his bill for electricity was higher; yet his lights were poorer and his motors did not run as good. By placing an electric meter on each end of this layout, Moore showed that although a lot larger amount of electricity passed through the first meter, the system was so overloaded that the second meter only registered about three-fourths as much as the first representing a one-quarter loss through poor wiring.

W. W. Mills of A. & M. College gave a talk on safety practices and followed his talk with a movie which brought out the hazards of defective cords, ungrounded metal parts of appliances and careless handling of electric tools and devices. Mr. Mills said that three out of every four fatalities from electric shock are caused by using faulty devices. He further pointed out that, contrary to popular belief, twice as many people are killed each year by voltages ranging from 100 to 200 volts than are killed by higher voltages.

The second day of the meeting was devoted to planning of wiring jobs. Mr. Lewis Walker of San Marcos outlined the problems and uses of electricity which the group were to discuss and pointed out that the farm use of electricity as growing so rapidly that a central source with branch feeders capable of carrying large amounts of electric current were now necessary in any planned wiring layout. "This," said Mr. Walker, "is accomplished by placing a meter pole near the center of the farmstead buildings and running large feeders to each building."

Mr. Carroll Land, Manager of the Concho Valley Electric Cooperative, Inc. at San Angelo, followed Mr. Walker on the program and by using floor plans, led the group in planning a wiring system. Mr. Land stressed the location and number of convenient outlets and switches in a wiring layout.

Mr. Walker returned to the program to discuss sizes of various wire and the number of circuits required to adequately serve the requirements, which Mr. Land had outlined, and stressed the point that the main consideration in any wiring was the personal element. "A wiring job is never adequate unless it meets the needs of the people using it," Mr. Walker said.

James Eiland, electrification advisor for the Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc., at Stanton, Texas, gave a talk on farmstead building wiring, showing that each building would have separate fuse protection. "Including a good, separate ground for each building not only gives protection from lightning and eliminates dangers from electric shock, Mr. Eiland said, "But it also enables the wiring system to function properly." Mr. Eiland brought out the need, as a fire protection, for a separate service from the meter pole to the pump house or water source. Mr. Eiland cited a case in the Cap Rock area where the power to operate a water pump was cut off by a fire in the building through which the wiring to the pump was run.

The day's session was summed up by Mr. B. W. Chesser, Washington representative of REA. Mr. Chesser brought out that it is of the utmost importance that we use the information gained at this conference for the benefit of our Co-op members.

Following the theme of Mr. Chesser's closing remarks of the previous day, the last day was devoted to study of methods best suited to bring the information to the members.

The group was assisted in this study by Mr. Dave Shanks, Farm News Editor of the Austin American-Statesman and Mr. Morris Davis, professor of journalism at the University of Texas. Mr. Shanks said that he was very pleased to see the efforts being made by the REA Cooperative in Texas to render this service to their members through their news letters, their local newspapers and their own state paper, The Texas Co-op Power.

The session closed Thursday afternoon after the group had tried their hand at writing a news story under the supervision of Mr. Davis. Mr. Davis evidenced a great deal of surprise at some of the uses now made of electricity on the farm. The group was amused when he asked, "Now what in the world is an electric chicken de-beaker?" Mr. Davis said that although he was raised on a farm near Bartlett, Texas and had heard of dehorning cows, he did not know that they now de-beaked chickens.

Texas Venture
In Education • 1876-1951
Our first state college—Texas A. and M. is now in its seventy-fifth year

On the rolling plains of West Texas, where an annual average rainfall of 20 inches creates the most serious problem for agriculture, Ray E. Dickson will be long remembered as "the man who made water walk." In his 36 years as superintendent of the Texas Experiment Substation at Spur, this Texas A. and M. researcher led the way to full use of the country's precious rainfall through development of syrup-pan terraces. He learned and then preached that the rainfall of the plains country was sufficient, if properly conserved. He proved that water conservation is the quickest way to soil saving. On the basis of his pioneering much of the work of the national Soil Conservation Service was established.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ashcraft visited Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Saxon of Levelland, formerly of Friona.

Lunell McFarland will come home next Wednesday for the summer. She has been attending school at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo.

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bracken Sunday were their daughter, Mrs. J. B. Kemp of Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Beene are the proud parents of a son named Ramey Carroll born last Saturday and weighed 8 pounds 10 oz.

Messenger News

By Mrs. J. N. Messenger

I haven't heard anything over Radio or in any of the papers about the New Bridge floating down stream last Wednesday, week today. We had to go by J. T. Guinns to get to Friona. The Bridge was south of my house 1-4 mile. I have lived here since 1909 and this is the second time the draw has been so high.

The Highway 4 miles north is covered with water in several places yet. Several small bridge and culverts west of us are out. Mail Carrier has had to double roads every day for over a week now.

We received over six inches of rain during the different days from Sunday until Thursday of which we are so thankful.

YOUR NEIGHBOR COULD BE A CROOK

Suppose someone came up to you and whispered that in your ear. Maybe you had thought your neighbor an honest, respectable fellow who paid his bills and minded his own business.

But a statement like that would ring more and more.

Stop and think about it. The gossip didn't say your neighbor is a crook . . . and didn't give you facts to back it up. He didn't really say anything. Your minister could be a crook, but he isn't.

That's the way it is with a lot of the propaganda against rural electric systems. It doesn't come right out and say there is something wrong with our business. It just hints that there is. Maybe you hear these hints in some radio commercials or read them in magazine advertisements. Maybe eventually you begin wondering about us.

As a locally-owned, locally-controlled business, we want everyone in this community to know us . . . understand what we do and how we do it, what we believe in and how we operate.

ATTEND CHURCH SUNDAY

There was close kinship between the church and those men who fought for our country in both world wars.

Chaplains marched with the boys on every front, in every adversity, ready to lend a comforting word or assisting hand.

New testaments and prayer books long have been the ready companion of the soldier.

But foremost among the church's influences has been the memory held by the soldier of other days, of younger years when mother led him to his class each Sunday, later asking him what the text of the sermon was. And he had better know!

The influences of the church are not only community-wide, but are of world-wide scope, extending from generation to generation.

PLANT COTTON FOR DEFENSE

The Parmer County Cotton Improvement Association made up of Cotton growers desirous of increasing Future Parmer County Cotton Allotments, respectfully urges each Parmer County Farmer to consider the planting of a reasonable portion of his land to cotton this year.

Here is Why

1. Cotton is second only to steel as a National Defense Commodity.
2. Cotton fits a Diversified Farming Program on either dry or irrigated land.
3. Cotton is essential to our balanced economy.
4. Parmer County has not had its share of the Nation's Cotton Market.
6. Future controls and allotments are almost certain and any future allotments are likely to be based on current acreages.

Let's Make this a Banner Year FOR COTTON

Weed Control . . .

Discussing Johnson grass, Jones says the same sterilants are used as for bindweed, but different rates of application are practiced. Rates are found on the container; best time for application is when the grass is actively growing or in the boot stage.

It should be remembered according to Joe Jones, that some of these sterilants are fire hazardous, and care should be taken during application.

Blueweed Eradication

For blueweed control, good cultural practices will aid greatly in eradication, as in bindweed and Johnson grass. Blueweed spreads 99 per cent by the roots. Jones says if farmers will clip the tops of this weed each time they appear, stands can be reduced. Blueweed, although spread chiefly by roots, do not spread readily by cultivating through them and dragging roots to other parts of the field, as do bindweed and Johnson grass.

For best control other than cultural practice, use of two lbs. of amene 2-4D acid, 1 gallon of diesel fuel mixed with 5-10 gal. water as a carrier, can be used per acre. It will be necessary to use some substance such as Drefl to make oil and water into emulsion, he says. It should be remembered that blueweed should also be growing actively at the time applied; and as a precaution to remember not to apply 2-4D in or near cotton field or other crops, which are susceptible to 2-4D. Equipment in which 2-4D is used should not be used in applying insecticides to cotton, fruit trees, gardens, etc., the county agent warns.

The equipment can be cleaned of 2-4D but it requires a special cleaning compound and extreme caution should be exercised, Jones concludes.

Bovina Eastern Star Installed Officers Thursday

In a regular meeting, election of officers of the Bovina chapter of the Star was held Thursday night.

Officers elected were: Worthy Matron, Katie Ellison; Worthy Patron, Hubert Ellison; Associate Matron, Lillie Fuller; Associate Patron, Troy Fuller; Secretary, Evelyn Macon; Treasurer, Nettie Rhinehart; Conductress, Gertrude Potts; Associate Conductress, Mae Bonds; Chaplain, Lorena Brock; Marshal, Julia Leake; Organist, Leola Williams; Ada, Alice Moore; Ruth, Gladys Everett; Esther, Ona Pesch; Martha, Annie Derrick; Electa, Margaret Charles; Warder, Mary Jane Wilson; and Sentinel, Woodie McDermott.

NO SUNDAY SERVICES

There will be no morning or evening preaching services at the local Methodist Church this Sunday, according to Bro. J. E. Tidwell. Sunday school service will be held at the regular hour. The pastor will be attending annual conference at Abilene.

Cooperation of Fire Departments Is Noted

Shown here are Friona and Hereford firemen battling the blaze at the fire which last week demolished the high school auditorium here. Frionans on this hose have been identified as John Gaede, Troy Kemp, Bill Smith, Raymond Jones, and Roy Hollis.

Firemen from the local department were almost instantly on the scene after alarm had been sounded, and they had the fire well confined to the northern section of the school when the Hereford department arrived to help in bringing it under complete control. The Hereford truck arrived in less than 40 minutes after being called.

To the optimist it is a rose bush, but to the pessimist it is a bush of thorns.

KITCHEN MEMO BY JEAN CLARKE

YUMMY is the word for Poppy Seed Cheesecake! Crush 1 1/2 cups Zwieback crumbs. Cream 2 tbs. butter, 2 tbs. sugar, blend into crumbs. Grease sides and bottoms of 9" spring form pan. Press crumbs onto bottom and sides saving 3 tbs. crumbs. Mix 2 tbs. flour, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 1/2 tbs. poppy seeds. Cream 5 1/2 pgs. cream cheese (room temp.), beat in sugar mixture. Add 4 beaten egg yolks, 1 tsp. vanilla, 1 cup heavy cream. Fold in 4 stiffly beaten egg whites. Top with remaining crumbs. Bake in gas oven at low heat (325°F.) 1 hr. Turn off gas, open oven door, let cake stand to cool at back of oven.

The sediment which inevitably collects from water passing through pipes into the water heater should be drained periodically through the convenient outlet provided for that purpose on all automatic gas water heaters.

Onion Zip: 1 tsp. grated onion to 1 qt. casserole dish of macaroni and cheese. Lifts the flavor.

For easier asparagus cooking: Boil in frying pan over low flame. To drain, hold pan cover over the top and tip liquid into bowl.

Overloading the automatic gas dryer with too many wet clothes is as bad as overloading your automatic washer. The clothes just don't dry properly. Consult your owner's guide for hints on weight of dryer load.

When glass cooking pans become clouded from the minerals in water, remove film, by adding 2 tbs. vinegar to about one qt. water, boil over high flame for a few minutes.
