The question of just how far government should go in providing medical care for veterans is a recurrent one—and it is also exceedingly controversial and thorny. It provides room for widely divergent yet equally sincere arguments.

The Hoover Commission report on the subject has been aggressively criticized. Some of the criticism may be well founded. Yet, by and large, the Commission pointed to abuses which could be eliminated without any way ending the beneficial effect of providing medical care to needy veterans. Care of in-home-service-connected disabilities is a case in point. While these may be impossible to declare, statements of inability to pay, the Veterans Administration is convinced, would result in delaying the problem. A careful study of the Commission is needed. The challenge is to find the proper balance between cost and benefits. The so-called 'cost' includes not only the money, but also the opportunity cost of raising taxes to pay for the care. The benefits, on the other hand, go far beyond immediate medical care. The most important benefit is the dignity of the service. We have millions upon millions of American veterans, and the dignity of the Vietnam veteran must be better understood.

Most important, in the long pull, is the fact that we have millions of veterans and their number will continue to rapidly increase. It is within the realm of possibility and even probability that efforts will be made to expand government medical care to all veterans. This is a consideration that the costs of providing care to veterans must be continuously weighed against the benefits. Regardless of what happened to them while in service, they are entitled to this care by the back door. We should get it even though the vast majority of American veterans included, don't want it. This point should be an over-riding consideration in any assessment of this issue.

YOU CAN'T WIN $64,000!

The radio-quiz program, "The $64,000 Question," has a large audience and enormous amount of publicity. Here's a fact that most people DON'T KNOW! You can't win $64,000!

You see, the $64,000 is an amount of money which is never paid out. It goes up so far and so fast that it would have to total $448,711 before he'd have $64,000 publicity. And here's a fact that most people don't know about. YOU CAN'T WIN $64,000!

There is another interesting fact which is often overlooked. It is that the $64,000 is a fiction, a made-up amount, never intended to be paid out. The purpose of the question is to make the contestants think that they might win a substantial amount of money. The program is designed to create an atmosphere of excitement and suspense, and to increase the public's interest in listening to the show.

This is not just a matter of semantics. There is a serious practical implication. If people believe that they can win $64,000, they will be more likely to tune in to the show and to try their luck. This will increase the program's audience and its profitability. But if people realize that they cannot win $64,000, they may be less likely to watch the show, and the program's rating may suffer. Therefore, it is important to keep the fiction of the $64,000 alive.

Do You Remember...?

23 YEARS AGO:

Leading the state-at-large ticket in the 1932 gubernatorial race, Wil­liam Blith Daniel was the choice of his fellow Democrats. In 19-year-old Clovis, N. M., the state's youngest voter, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stoutland went to the polls. They cast their ballots for Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith.

J. B. McLelland was trying to run as the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

Another possibility is that for­mer state legislator and long-time party worker Joe B. West could be a political force in the future. At present he says he has no political aspirations.

Two other candidates are Raymond Brown, a successful businessman, and R. E. C. Johnson, a former state legislator.

State Senator Jimmie B. Rogers of Clovis is being talked more and more about as a possible candidate for the governor's post.

Another candidate is Mr. T. J. Crawford, who is a retired teacher. Mr. Crawford has been active in Democratic politics for many years and has a large following in the area.

The Floyd Dunton family spent the Thanksgiving holidays in New Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams were hosts.

Washington Views:

MOSCOW

Washington is a city of tremendous beauty, a city that is the epitome of grace and elegance. It is a city where the people are more interested in what they are doing than in what they are saying. This is the essence of Moscow. The city is a place where people are more concerned with their work than with their appearance.

Another possibility is that for­mer state legislator and long-time party worker Joe B. West could be a political force in the future. At present he says he has no political aspirations.
