County sheriff's office getting new radar systems

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

The Howard County Sheriff's Office will be getting four new radar systems to help patrol school zones following county commissioners' approval of a $4,000 expenditure Monday morning.

Commissioners voted unanimously to approve the purchase following a presentation by Sheriff Dale Walker and Chief Deputy Gary Pritchett.

Pritchett said the radar systems are necessary for deputies patrolling the county's school zones.

"Some of the ones we have now are just flat worn out. You can't even fix them because parts aren't available for them."

—Gary Pritchett, HCSO chief deputy

"We have three school zones in the county that we cover," said Pritchett. "Forsan, Elbow and Coahoma. And all of those school zones have highways running right through them, which is a major concern to us. The safety issue for the kids going to and from school is mainly why we need these new radar."

Pritchett said the older model "hand-me-down" radar systems the sheriff's office has been receiving from the local Department of Public Safety office have seen better days, and without the purchase of the four new systems, could leave deputies empty handed while trying to enforce traffic laws in the school zones.

"We've had radar in all the cars, and technically they're hand-me-downs from DPS," said Pritchett. "The county used to furnish local DPS with radar, and when they got new ones they would give us their old ones. The county has gone to a leasing system on the DPS radar, so they get rotated out every two or three years."

Arts Center construction on schedule, trustees told

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Construction of the new Howard College Performing Arts Center is on schedule, with final planning of a visit from Lubbock architectural consulting firm Freese and Nichols in the works.

That was the message delivered during Monday afternoon's meeting of the Howard College trustees, as the group moves forward with the infrastructure master plan.

"Things are coming together extremely well," local architect Phil Furqueron told the trustees of the construction of the performing arts center. "We're very pleased with the contractor at this point and things are flowing along smoothly."

"We met last week and they tell me they're currently two days behind, but with an artificial schedule like we have here, it could go two days either way. They're right where they need to be right now to complete the building on schedule. I feel like we're really going to get a good building from these guys."

Furqueron told trustees the project is on two different timelines right now — money and time — which don't necessarily coincide.

WAKE UP TO A DRUG FREE LIFE

Moss Elementary fourth-grade teacher Shelley Gomez watches as three of her students, Zach Crabtree, right, Catherine Harris and Connor Steel tie a red ribbon around their classroom door in recognition of Red Ribbon Week. If the trio seem dressed more comfortably than normal, it's no trick. The school celebrated the first day of Red Ribbon Week with "Wake Up to a Drug Free Life" as its theme, with the students dressing in the pajamas.

Big Spring, Forsan bands receive Division I rating

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

After having wowed the judges at the regional level, the Big Spring and Forsan high school marching bands will now try to earn a ticket to the state marching contest.

The BSHS and FHS marching bands garnered nothing but high marks at Saturday's Region 6 Marching Contest at Odessa's Ratliff Stadium. Those performances qualified both bands for this weekend's Area Marching Contest, scheduled for Saturday at Lowery Field in Lubbock.

Both bands received Division I ratings (the highest possible) from the three judges at Saturday's regional contest in Odessa. Bands which earn Division I ratings at regional competition automatically qualify for the area contest.

Coahoma High School, competing at regional competition in Abilene, scored a Division II rating from the judges. Stanton High School also narrowly missed qualifying for area contest, earning a Division II rating Saturday.

"We got a lot of compliments from the judges," BSHS Band Director Rocky Harris said. "And we got a nice ovation from the crowd — not just the Big Spring people, but everybody."

"The kids were absolutely fantastic that day," Harris added. "They performed beautifully."

Forsan and Big Spring now advance to Saturday's area competition in Lubbock, with a spot in the state marching contest on the line. The top three bands in each classification qualify for the state contest, which will be held early next month in Austin.

FHS will be trying to qualify for state for the first time in two years, while BSHS will be trying to make state for the first time in four years.

Harris admitted the job will be a tough one — Big Spring will be one of 19 Class 4A bands competing for three state contest spots.

"Without a doubt, these are the best marchers I've ever had, but to go on to state, it's out of my hands," Harris said. "Their execution will just have to be better than the other bands."

Rosa Parks, civil rights pioneer, dead

By BREE FOWLER

DETROIT (AP) — Nearly 50 years ago, Rosa Parks made a simple decision that sparked a revolution. When a white man demanded she give up her seat on a Montgomery, Ala., bus, the then 42-year-old seamstress said no.

At the time, she couldn't have known it would secure her a revered place in American history. But her one small act of defiance galvanized a generation of activists, including a young Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., and earned her the title "mother of the civil rights movement."

Mrs. Parks died Monday evening at her home of natural causes, with close friends by her side, said Gregory Reed, an attorney who represented her for the past 15 years. She was 92.

Monique Reynolds, 37, a native of Montgomery, Ala., called Mrs. Parks an

GETS A KICK OUT OF IT

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Darby Lentz was a little preoccupied when an announcement was made during her high school's homecoming football game that she had been crowned homecoming queen.

She had to accept the honor in her football uniform. Lentz, 17, is the field goal kicker for the Harrison County school's football team. While she has yet to attempt a field goal, she has made 14 of 16 extra point attempts this season.

Lentz, a senior, already has been named prom queen. The homecoming queen title came earlier this month.

POPCORN BALLS TRADITION CONTINUES HALLOWEEN

For more than 25 years, Bettye Parrish in Coahoma has been making popcorn balls for Halloween. The tradition will continue Monday, Oct. 1, as Bettye, her daughters, granddaughters "and anyone we can wrestle into helping" will be making and handing out the sweet treats, said Connie Murley, one of her daughters.

"Last year we bagged up 1,206 popcorn balls," said Connie. More than 1,000 were passed out to Howard County residents from Bettye's residence at 410 College St. This year, family and friends will begin making the balls early Monday morning.

"We want to let people know we'll be doing it Monday, not on the weekend," said Connie.

Everyone is welcome to partake of the goodies. Just look for the two-story house beside the city water tower. People are welcome all day, but after 1 p.m. is best.

Private companies show interest in leasing toll roads

HOUSTON (AP) — Investment banks and private toll-road operators have shown interest leasing Harris County's 83-mile toll system for $2 billion to $7 billion — numbers that have got the attention of county officials.

Harris County Judge Robert Eckels said such leases could replace the need for road bond referendums, and the interest could be used to pay for street construction, repairs and other transportation needs, such as commuter rail lines.

Others question whether privatizing the toll road system would allow more secrecy about its operation.

"Many, many members of our organization are concerned the accountability will be less if the toll roads are run by a private company," said Robin Holzer, chair of the Citizens Transportation Coalition.

The Commissioners Court is expected Tuesday to approve a study to determine the pros and cons of fully or partially privatizing the toll road. The plan includes asking certain investment banks to submit proposals.

21-year-old mother charged with murder

OLMITO (AP) — A 21-year-old woman was charged with murder Monday in the death of her newborn daughter whose corpse was found in a suitcase in her bathroom.

Jacqueline Lee Reich of Laguna Vista was charged with one count of murder and one count of injury to a child. She did not enter a plea. Magistrate court Judge Patricia Hernandez set bond at $1 million on the murder charge and $250,000 on the injury to a child charge.

Reich's family found the baby Friday and her stepfather took it to the Port Isabel Police Department that day. Police said the infant was in a plastic bag inside the suitcase and may have been dead from two weeks to a month.

Preliminary autopsy results indicated the baby was carried to almost full term, Sheriff Omar Lucio said. He said Reich's arrest Sunday night was merited by the discovery of a body and "the defendant's statements."

According to court records, an autopsy determined that the baby was born alive Sept. 7 and did not have any birth defects, The Brownsville Herald reported in its Tuesday editions.

Reich originally told investigators that the child was stillborn but said in a second interview with deputies that she knew the child was born alive but took no action to notify anyone or seek medical attention for the baby, the newspaper reported.

Reich told authorities that she put the baby "in the suitcase and forgot about it," according to the report.

Perry signs property rights bill into law

WACO (AP) — Gov. Rick Perry signed the eminent domain bill into law in Waco, saying the legislation will "close a door the Supreme Court jarred open."

Perry had officially signed the law Sept. 1, but had to postpone the ceremonial signing in Waco because of hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

Texas was one of at least 31 states to review eminent domain laws following a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that backed governments' power to take private land for economic development as a way to increase tax revenue.

"We believe government should not encroach upon the private property rights unless there is an eminent public need," Perry said Monday at the Waco Association of Realtors office. "Eminent domain for public use is a necessary power. Eminent domain for private use is a great threat."

The Texas Association of Realtors, who endorsed Perry's 2006 campaign last month, made the bill one of its top priorities this year.

Son arrested in parents' death

ROYSE CITY (AP) — A 19-year-old Heath man was being held on two counts of capital murder Monday in the shooting and stabbing deaths of his parents last week in Hunt County.

Brandon Dale Woodruff, a part-time student at Abilene Christian University, was arrested Monday at an aunt's home in Texarkana, Ark. The funeral for Woodruff's parents, 43-year-old Dennis Woodruff and 42-year-old Norma Woodruff, was held in Texarkana, where the family has relatives.

A friend found the bodies of Dennis and Norma Woodruff on Oct. 18 in the home they were moving into northeast of Royse City.

PARKS

inspiration who had lived to see the changes brought about by the civil rights movement.

"Martin Luther King never saw this, Malcolm X never saw this," said Reynolds, who now lives in Detroit. "She was able to see this and enjoy it."

In 1955, Jim Crow laws in place since the post-Civil War Reconstruction required separation of the races in buses, restaurants and public accommodations throughout the South, while legally sanctioned racial discrimination kept blacks out of many jobs and neighborhoods in the North.

Mrs. Parks, an active member of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was riding on a city bus Dec. 1, 1955, when a white man demanded her seat.

She refused, despite rules requiring blacks to yield their seats to whites. Two black Montgomery women had been arrested earlier that year on the same charge, but Mrs. Parks was jailed. She also was fined $14.

U.S. Rep John Conyers, in whose office Mrs. Parks worked for more than 20 years, remembered the civil rights leader as someone whose impact on the world was immeasurable, but who never sought the limelight. "Everybody wanted to explain Rosa Parks and wanted to teach Rosa Parks, but Rosa Parks wasn't very interested in that," he said. "She wanted them to understand the government and to understand their rights and the Constitution that people are still trying to perfect today."

Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick said he felt a personal tie to the civil rights icon: "She stood up by sitting down. I'm only standing here because of her."

Speaking in 1992, Mrs. Parks said history too often maintains "that my feet were hurting and I didn't know why I refused to stand up when they told me. But the real reason of my not standing up was I felt that I had a right to be treated as any other passenger. We had endured that kind of treatment for too long."

Her arrest triggered a 381-day boycott of the bus system organized by a then little-known Baptist minister, the Rev. King, who later earned the Nobel Peace Prize for his work.

"At the time I was arrested I had no idea it would turn into this," she said 30 years later. "It was just a day like any other day. The only thing that made it significant was that the masses of the people joined in."

The Montgomery bus boycott, which came one year after the U.S.

Supreme Court's landmark declaration that separate schools for blacks and whites were "inherently unequal," marked the start of the modern civil rights movement.

The movement culminated in the 1964 federal Civil Rights Act, which banned racial discrimination in public accommodations.

After taking her public stand for civil rights, Mrs. Parks had trouble finding work in Alabama. Amid threats and harassment, she and her husband, Raymond, moved to Detroit in 1957. She worked as an aide in Conyers' Detroit office from 1965 until retiring Sept. 30, 1988. Raymond Parks died in 1977.

Mrs. Parks said upon retiring from her job with Conyers that she wanted to devote more time to the Rosa and Raymond Parks Institute for Self Development. The institute, incorporated in 1987, is devoted to developing leadership among Detroit's young people and initiating them into the struggle for civil rights.

"Rosa Parks: My Story," was published in February 1992. In 1994 she brought out "Quiet Strength: The Faith, the Hope and the Heart of a Woman Who Changed a Nation," and in 1996 a collection of letters called "Dear Mrs. Parks: A Dialogue With Today's Youth."

She was among the civil rights leaders who addressed the Million Man March in October 1995.

In 1996, she received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, awarded to civilians making outstanding contributions to American life. In 1999, she was awarded the Congressional Gold Medal, the nation's highest civilian honor.

Mrs. Parks received dozens of other awards, ranging from induction into the Alabama Academy of Honor to an NAACP Image Award for her 1999 appearance on CBS' "Touched by an Angel."

She was born Rosa Louise McCauley on Feb. 4, 1913, in Tuskegee, Ala. Family illness interrupted her high school education, but after she married Raymond Parks in 1932, he encouraged her and she earned a diploma in 1934. He also inspired her to become involved in the NAACP.

Mrs. Parks was a beloved aunt to 13 nieces and nephews.

"She wasn't the mother of the civil rights movement to me," Susan McCauley, one of her nieces, said last year. "She was the woman I wanted to become."

"Time-wise, the project is at about the halfway point," said Furqueron. "Maybe a little more than halfway. However, in the terms on finances, it's still in the early stages. The timeline for money looks a little different. It's more of an S-shaped curve to it, with the cost peaking out more toward the end."

Trustees unanimously voted to approve a $3.59 million bid to construct a new Visual and Performing Arts Center in December 2004, ending a four-year effort to bring the center to life. The facility is expected to be completed the first part of 2006.

Trustees were also asked to look over a schedule of meetings for an upcoming visit from Freese and Nichols, the architectural consulting firm currently working on a master plan initiative. The initiative includes the Big Spring campus, along with the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf and the college's San Angelo campus.

OUR VIEWS

Be sure to get registered for the Angel Tree

It may seem much too early in the year for thinking about Christmas gifts, but that's exactly what the Salvation Army in Big Spring is doing these days as it begins taking applications for the annual Angel Tree program.

Capt. Russ Keeney and his staff have begun the task of providing presents for children that might not otherwise have a merry Christmas.

The Salvation Army began taking applications from parents needing the holiday assistance Monday.

Keeney and his staff will take applications at the Corps building, located at 811 W. Fifth St., from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day this week through Friday. Registration will resume at 9 a.m. next Monday and continue through Wednesday.

After that, there will be no late registration because the Army's personnel have to get everything written on cards and get them distributed to the various Angel Tree sites.

The list of documents applicants need to bring with them to apply is rather lengthy, but applicants will be able to know whether or not they are approved on the spot.

Keeney said the application process is still simple, and for some area children it could be the difference between waking up with gifts under the tree Christmas morning and waking up to nothing.

Those seeking to apply should bring a picture ID for all of the adults in their household, Social Security cards for all household members, birth certificates for children 12 and under and some proof of income like a payroll check stub from work or forms provided by food stamps, AFDC, TANIF, HUD etc. They must also provide a copy of all of their expenses, as well as a list of what their children might want for Christmas, including clothing and shoe sizes.

Once the names and gift ideas are collected and put on the trees in the form of cards, area shoppers will have the opportunity to brighten a child's holiday by choosing one and purchasing items for them.

Although the Angel Tree program is a large part of the Salvation Army's holiday spirit, it's by no means the only one. The local corps office staff is also gearing up for the Thanksgiving holiday, as well as the annual canned food drive.

For information concerning any of the Salvation Army's community programs, call 267-8239 or stop by the corps building.

And remember to be reasonable in what youngsters ask for. If a child asks for a 60-inch television, chances aren't very good they're going to get it. A doll or Hot Wheels car ... something along those lines is a wish someone in this community can grant.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

Take the lead in our life, Lord, as You know the end results.

Amen

George Bush, who promised to be a unifier and not a divider, has unified the left and right in this country with his nomination of Harriet Miers to the Supreme Court.

Both sides are dismayed. Aside from people being unsure of her ideology, the chief complaint seems to be that she is not excellent. She is not distinguished. She is no genius.

But so what? What have the "genius" choices that Bush has made for his administration gotten us besides enormous deficits and a quagmire in Iraq? Miers is ordinary (a more kind word than mediocre), and I think Bush wanted ordinary.

The Democratic leader of the Senate, Harry Reid, D-Nev., is considered just ordinary by some, and he likes Miers and recommended her for the job.

Shouldn't ordinary people have a representative on the Supreme Court?

"I picked the best person I could find," Bush said of Miers.

He did not say he picked the best person that America has to offer, or the best legal mind in the nation. No, she merely is the best he could find. (How hard did he look? Well, that is another question.) I saw an interview on CNN with one of Miers' friends, Rena Pederson, who is an author. When asked about Miers' qualities, Pederson said: "She holds Christmas dinners in her home. And she has a big family!" And when Miers' mother was ill, Miers would fly to Texas on weekends to care for her and then fly back to Washington. Also, Pederson said, Miers played tennis in college and was on her law firm's softball team. She also reads, when she can, "a variety of novels and non-fiction."

Is this ordinary or what? Some sticklers may think holding family dinners, being nice to your mom, playing sports and reading is not enough to be a Supreme Court justice. Even those who have never been accused of greatness themselves are demanding it from Miers.

U.S. Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., said of Miers on MSNBC: "Is she qualified by her experience? Is she the most qualified person? Clearly the answer to that is 'no.' There are a lot more people, men, women and minorities, that are more qualified in my opinion by their experience than she is."

So why did Bush pick her? Well, maybe he sees some of himself in her.

Take his reply at a recent press conference to a question about Hurricane Katrina.

"Is there anything that you, yourself, personally, could have done, or would have done, differently now?" a reporter asked.

Bush replied, in part: "And there was some bureaucracy, some rules that prevented the debris from getting removed right off the bat. ... Because they didn't want to be moving federally paid dozers on private property. Imagine cleaning up the debris and a person shows up, and says, where's my valuable china? Or, where's my valuable art? So we had to work through all this."

Is that a terrible answer? No. Just mediocre. Just ordinary. Some presidents might worry about really large issues after a devastating hurricane, like whether America is prepared for a truly national disaster.

But George Bush worries about china and Hummel figures.

In a Gallup poll last week, Americans were asked what they thought of Miers' nomination to the Supreme Court.

Some 44 percent think she is an excellent or good choice, and 41 percent think she is a fair or poor choice.

Which is a pretty ordinary result.

But is being ordinary so bad? It may be like what Lincoln said of common-looking people: They are the best in the world. That is the reason the Lord makes so many of them.

Let them call her 'Hillary the Hawk'

The crowd across the street was dressed in pink, the new color of protest. They chanted as the guests arrived on the warm fall day. I couldn't help it. I waved.

The target of their protest was the junior senator from New York, the woman who is most likely to be the first to break the ultimate glass ceiling of the presidency. The attack came from her left, not her right. Ultimately, it was a testament to her savvy and her strength.

Hillary the hawk, I heard one of them say, and I laughed.

Where are the cameras when you need them?

Could someone bring them back in November 2008?

Inside, well over 100 well-dressed Californians munched on appetizers and awaited the arrival of the candidate. Formally, everyone was there to contribute to Sen. Clinton's 2006 re-election campaign, one event in a series of this swing in which Hillary captivated Los Angeles, from a Yom Kippur speech to a hospital charity gala, adding to the overwhelming advantage she holds over Jeanine Pirro, the New York Republican who has yet to break the $1 million mark in a disappointing first quarter fund-raising report. But other than Hillary and her staff, no one talked much about New York and 2006. Washington and 2008 is what people were focused on.

Dick Morris sounds like a broken record, more than one person said to me, referring to the latest hit job by the former Clinton aide who has been on the attack against Hillary since he was fired by President Clinton after his affair with a prostitute became public on the eve of the 1996 convention. In Hillary-land, "Hillary v. Condi" is seen as just another excuse to rehearse the same old tired lines against Hillary. Dick Morris is seen as an older, pudgier caricature of himself.

Will Condi Rice finally get angry about being used as a foil for a personal vendetta?

Why does she let him use her this way?

There will be more books. But how many books can be written about ancient history? If you can't attack her on her Senate record, on who she is today, you're just a broken record.

If Hillary were to face a challenge for the Democratic nomination, it would have to come from the left. But there is no energy, and no money, for such a challenge in this bright blue neighborhood of mine, even though most of the people here are probably far closer in their sentiments to the protestors across the street than the senator who came to address them.

"Security" was the first issue she addressed in her speech. Just as her husband, in 1992, established that before the Democrats could move on any other issue on their agenda they first had to prove to the country that they were tough enough to protect America against the threat of crime, so must Democrats first prove to Americans that we are tough enough to protect them against the threat of terrorism.

The crowd applauded. No, not applauded — cheered. It was precisely what they wanted to hear.

Something is happening among Democrats, and it is measured not by the number of protestors — not many, actually, compared to the number around here who probably agree with them — but by the reaction to them. Utter indifference.

The war is George Bush's problem, not Hillary's or ours. It saddens people enormously, but politically speaking, it is his tragedy, not ours. Let it divide them, not us. Let it bring down his house, not ours.

Democrats forced themselves to be pragmatic about John Kerry, but enthusiasm was hard to come by. His argument began with electability. For her, that's the final argument — the last issue, not the first one.

She's got to be tough to win, everyone agrees. Even here in the bluest of the blue states, the desire to win outweighs the desire for ideological purity. Hillary is actually liked, unlike Kerry or Gore before her. That gives her a great deal more freedom and flexibility than either of them had. Bill Clinton could disagree with Hollywood on a whole range of issues — including the death penalty — because he was liked.

She can be the real "Commander in Chief."

She is not as tall as Geena Davis. But she was not wearing pink. Tell them that in the red states. Let the protestors call her Hillary the Hawk. No one's complaining.

Some important Halloween safety tips to remember

Halloween's almost here! I can't help but feel like a child at this time of the year, when one of the greatest holidays ever dreamed up is right around the corner. The smell of burning leaves, grease paint and popcorn balls are in the air!

THOMAS JENKINS

I'm pretty sure I'm going to end up embarrassing my 6-year-old daughter this holiday. I'm not quite sure how yet, but it seems like a pretty solid bet.

So, with Halloween coming up, I've begun getting a barrage of related e-mails from my friends and family.

The majority of these missives are serious warnings, filled with do's and don'ts for the holiday.

You wouldn't believe what some people feel they need to warn us about. We're expected to strap yards of reflective tape to the costumes that took us hours to make them look semi-believable, not take candy from strangers and use those silly glow sticks instead of flashlights.

And who are these people throwing Halloween parties with the stipulation of "no scary costumes?" Who among us is wise enough to determine where scary ends and stupid begins? What's wrong with my little girl wanting to look like a demonic jack-o-lantern? What about Glenda, the good witch? Anyone thought about that?

In the end, however, people will celebrate the holiday in their own way, scary or filled with cheesy Shrek lookalikes. Hey, I liked the movie, too, so back off.

Here's a list of Halloween survival tips most horror movie buffs will appreciate:

Surviving Halloween
• When it appears that you have killed the monster, never check to see if it's really dead.

• Never read a book of demon-summoning aloud, even as a joke. Seriously.

• Do not search the basement, especially if the power has gone out. You're just asking for it.

• If your children speak to you in Latin or any other language which they shouldn't know, shoot them immediately. It will save you a lot of grief in the long run. However, it will probably take several rounds to kill them, so be prepared. This also applies to kids who speak with somebody else's voice.

• When you have the benefit of numbers, never split up or go alone. It's just dumb.

• As a general rule, don't solve puzzles that open portals to Hell. That's bad.

• Never stand in, on, or above a grave, tomb, or crypt. This would apply to any other house of the dead as well.

• If you're searching for something which caused a loud noise and find out that it's just the cat, get out! It's a trick!

• If appliances start operating by themselves, do not check for short circuits — just get out, quickly.

• Don't take anything from the dead, even if they offer it to you.

• If you find a town which looks deserted, there's probably a good reason for it. Don't stop and look around.

• Don't fool with recombinant DNA technology unless you're sure you know what you're doing.

• If you're running from the monster, expect to trip or fall down at least twice, more if you are female. Also note that, despite the fact that you are running and the monster is merely shambling along, it's still moving fast enough to catch up with you. I like to think of this as the Pepe Le Pew effect.

• If your companions suddenly begin to exhibit uncharacteristic behavior such as hissing, fascination for blood, glowing eyes, increasing hairiness, and so on — kill them immediately. Again, make sure you have plenty of ammunition.

• Stay away from certain geographical locations, some of which include Amityville, Elm Street, Transylvania, Nilbog — you're in trouble if you recognize this one, anywhere in Texas where chainsaws are sold, the Bermuda

Triangle or any small town in Maine.

• If your car runs out of gas at night on a lonely road, do not go to the nearby deserted-looking house to phone for help. If you think that it is strange you ran out of gas because you thought you had most of a tank, shoot yourself instead. You are going to die anyway, and most likely be eaten.

• Beware of strangers bearing tools. For example: chainsaws, staple guns, hedge trimmers, electric carving knives, combines, lawnmowers, butane torches, soldering irons, band saws or any devices made from deceased companions.

• If you find that your house is built upon a cemetery, now is the time to move in with the in-laws. This also applies to houses that had previous inhabitants who went mad or committed suicide or died in some horrible fashion, or had inhabitants who performed satanic practices. Also if your house ever tells you to "get out," do so immediately. Leave your stuff and go. A hotel may be better than the in-laws, however. That's its own kind of horror.

• Dress appropriately. When investigating a noise downstairs in an old house, women should not wear a flimsy negligee. And carry a flashlight, not a candle, preferably a heavy flashlight. Wearing steel-toe boots would show great insight.

• Do not mention the names of demons around open flames, as these can flare suddenly. Be especially careful of fireplaces in this regard. You may not want to mention your in-laws, either.

• Do not go looking for witches in the Maryland countryside. That's just stupid.

• And finally, if favorite dolls or toys begin telling you things or playing with you, don't wait to see if they are going to turn evil. Nothing good has ever come of these situations. Go ahead and get rid of the things, preferably by fire or dismemberment. Wood chipper also tend to work well.

MR. MEANY AND JEANNIE, (A HALLOWEEN TALE)

Jeannie always loved Halloween. She loved to visit all of her neighbors' homes and trick or treat them. She would always get very tasty candy and fruits from them. They were all nice, except for Mr. Meany! Mr. Meany never had trick or treaters come to his home because all of the little kids thought he was really mean. He never came outside to play with the children. He never sat on his front porch and waved to the kids playing in their yards. He must really be a mean person, they thought.

This Halloween was going to be a little different for Jeannie. Mr. Meany, and all of the other neighborhood children! Jeannie had never seen Mr. Meany, and she had always wondered why all of the other kids called him "Mr. Meany." After all, Mr. Meany had never been really mean to her and she didn't really like calling him or anyone else, that terrible name. She felt so sorry for him! Maybe this Halloween, she would just go up to his front door and say, "Trick or treat" and then she would finally get to see him. Maybe the other kids would go with her!

Her Halloween night finally came. Jeannie put on her scariest costume and joined the other neighborhood kids in going trick or treating. The kids went to Mrs. Wilson's house and knocked on her door. Mrs. Wilson came to the door and when she opened it, all of the kids shouted "Trick or treat" at the same time. Mrs. Wilson laughed at all of the little children with their scary costumes on and said to them, "I will give you a treat because I don't want you to play any tricks on me!" She handed each child a pretty red apple. They all said to Mrs. Wilson, "Thank You", and then went on their way to the next neighbor's house and did the very same thing.

The children went all around the neighborhood that night, collecting candy and fruits from their neighbors. They were having a good time, laughing, giggling, and scaring their neighbors. It was a fun night for everyone until they came upon Mr. Meany's house!

Jeannie said to all of the other kids, "Let's knock on Mr. Meany's door and trick or treat him!" "No", all of the other kids said at the same time. "He is too mean and he will be grouchy and will not like us to bother him." "How do you know he will be mean?" Jeannie asked the other children. "Have any one of you ever seen him?" Has he ever really been mean to anyone here? What is his real name? It certainly isn't Mr. Meany! Still, none of the other children wanted to go to Mr. Meany's home and play trick or treat. Jeannie said to them, "I am going to knock on his door and meet him and see if he is really as mean as you think he is!" As Jeannie walked up to the door, she could hear all of the other kids, running away to their own homes, afraid of what Jeannie may find at Mr. Meany's home. Jeannie slowly walked up the five steps to Mr. Meany's front door. Just as she was about to knock on the door, she heard something. The thing she heard seemed to be coming from inside the house. It was! Jeannie knew what the sound was, for she had made the same sound many times before, like the time she fell off her bike, and the time she had a thorn in her finger from the beautiful rose bush in her mom's garden. It was the sad sound of someone crying!

Jeannie started to just turn around and go home, because this did not seem like a very good time to bother Mr. Meany. "No", she thought to herself, "I must do it now, or I will never do it!" She knocked on Mr. Meany's door!

Jeannie heard the crying stop, as if the knocking on the door are you crying? I was not going to really scare you! I am just playing trick or treat with my friends." Jeannie felt like crying herself! Mr. Meany looked at Jeannie and said, "I am sad because I can never go outside and play with all of the children! I love children! They all think I am so mean, and they don't even know me! Every year, at Halloween, I have candy and fruits right by my front door for the trick or treaters, and no one ever comes. I am sad because no one in this whole neighborhood likes me, even though I love them!" Jeannie, with a tear in her eye, said to Mr. Meany, "Wait right here, with your door open. I'll be right back!" Jeannie ran to all of her friend's houses, found all of her friends, with their trick or treat bags being not quite full, and told them of Mr. Meany. Suddenly, Mr. Meany didn't seem so mean anymore! He sounded like he would be fun to be around, even! All of the kids in the neighborhood ran to Mr. Meany's house just as fast as they could run. Mr. Meany was waiting for them with open arms. He just wanted to give all of them a great big hug! And he did! And they hugged him right back! And he gave them the very best candy and fruits they had ever gotten on a Halloween night!

Every Halloween night after that, guess who would be right in the middle of the trick or treaters, being pushed by each one of the neighborhood children, all of them waiting their turn to push Mr. Meany to the next house? Mr. Meany always loved Halloween after that, and so did Jeannie!

And if a group of children and one grown up person in a wheelchair ever come to your house while they are trick or treating, please don't call the grown up "Mr. Meany." Just call him Mr. Miller, for that was his real name! All of the kids in Jeannie's neighborhood and Mr. Miller say have a safe Halloween and "Good Night."

Sports Editor

Big Spring's cross country team took down two more opponents Saturday at its host duel meet against two schools from San Angelo. The Steers scored 22 points and dominated Central and Lake View as they prepare for the District 4-4A meet Saturday.

Michael Rodriguez again led the boy's team as he finished first overall with a time of 16:07. Chris Kade Parker was also 18th, while Mark Salazar finished 26th.

Mistie Aguilar finished fifth in the girl's race to lead Big Spring.

Packers lose RB Green for season

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Packers running back Ahman Green is out for the season with a torn thigh tendon, the latest in a string of severe injuries to befall Green Bay.

Coach Mike Sherman said Green will undergo surgery this week to repair his right thigh tendon, which was torn in the fourth quarter of the Packers' 23-20 loss at Minnesota Sunday. Sherman also said wide receiver Robert Ferguson will miss up to a month with a torn lateral cruciate ligament in his left knee.

49ers may be without Smith against Tampa Bay

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Alex Smith sprained his right knee in San Francisco's fifth straight loss, and the 49ers aren't certain their rookie franchise quarterback will play against Tampa Bay Sunday.

Dallas Cowboys tight end Jason Witten (82) takes a hard hit from Kelly Herndon of the Seattle Seahawks, who breaks up the pass play and knocks Witten's helmet loose during first half action. The Seahawks defeated the Cowboys, 13-10, at Qwest Field in Seattle, Wash., Sunday.

Cowboys seeking answers after late loss

By PAUL J. WEBER
Associated Press Writer

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys kicker Ryan Harris smiled near the locker Monday, confident he would regain accuracy soon.

But coach Bill Parcells wasn't willing to wait.

Not after another unreliable kick, another collapse — and Parcells calls "a little more important" the looming Sunday game.

So the Cowboys tried fixing everything else that can be fixed with roster moves.

There were plenty of many erratic things Parcells said.

He was talking about the Cortez, who missed a 37-yard field goal.

quarter that cost the Cowboys crucial points in another close loss.

The Cowboys signed tight end Shannon Suiham to take his place, even though Parcells said he didn't know that he'll be on the field.

Parcells nailed that kid — his third miss in his last seven attempts — would have cost the lead that night.

Parcells said the Cowboys' seven games this season, four of them decided by one point or fewer. Another is a 19-14 loss at Oakland.

The defense has lost its first 29 total games in Philadelphia.

Parcells said the Cowboys' offense — the last were too many touchdowns allowed.

Parcells said the Cowboys were "under-performing" in the regular season.

Against the Redskins on Sept. 19, Washington scored both its touchdowns in the final 3:46 in a 14-13 stunner.

The defense insists it's not because players are simply running out of steam.

"We weren't fatigued," said defensive tackle La'Roi Glover, who is second for the Cowboys with three sacks. "Guys were feeling pretty fresh, to be honest with you."

For his part, Parcells can't say why his team has played in so many close games.

"Maybe we're not good enough to get separation," Parcells said. "I don't know that. We've been in a lot of close games. ... If you let a team like Seattle (hang around), who I think is pretty good overall, I think it's hard to hold them forever."

The loss knocked the Cowboys (4-3) from first place in the NFC East to last, a half-game behind the Eagles, Giants and Redskins.

Parcells said Sunday's game against the Cardinals carries a little more weight, since it's the last outing for the Cowboys before a stretch of three games in 11 days leading up to the annual Thanksgiving Day game.

Wide receiver Keyshawn Johnson said he thinks the offense will return to scoring more points before then. On the plane ride home from Seattle, Johnson said he told the offense he took responsibility for not scoring more points.

"I think we'll get it fixed this week," said Johnson, who caught the lone touchdown for the Cowboys. "I'll put the money on it getting fixed this Sunday."

Texas jumps past USC in latest BCS rankings

By RALPH D. RUSSO
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't panic, Southern California fans.

Swapping places with Texas in the Bowl Championship Series standings doesn't mean the Trojans are in danger of getting shut out of another title game.

Thanks to the computer rankings, Texas slipped into first by the slimmest of margins — actually THE slimmest between Nos. 1 and 2 in the eight-year history of the BCS. Texas' average of .9763 of a possible 1,000, was just ahead of USC with .9756.

The Trojans and Longhorns are still the odds-on favorites to play for the BCS championship on Jan. 4 at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif.

It's the first time Texas has been on top of the BCS standings, and first time in the last two seasons USC hasn't held first place.

"It's a compliment because it's a place we haven't been in a long time and it sets our standard even higher," Texas coach Mack Brown said.

USC is top-ranked in The Associated Press poll, the USA Today coaches' poll and the Harris Interactive poll. The coaches' poll and the Harris poll make up two-thirds of a team's BCS grade. A compilation of six computer rankings account for the other third, with the highest and lowest ranking for each team dropped. Texas was first in all but one of those rankings.

"I still don't know how the BCS rankings really work, except that computers are involved," USC coach Pete Carroll said. "And I don't know how you get mad at a computer."

Texas is second in all three polls, and gained a few points on USC from voters after a 52-17 victory over previously unbeaten Texas Tech on Saturday. Computer polls, however, weigh heavily on strength of schedule and the win over the Red Raiders gave Texas a boost.

USC's 51-24 victory over Washington (1-6) extended its winning streak to 29 games but did nothing to help the Trojans in the computer rankings. Struggling Arizona State (3-4) — which was ranked when USC won at Washington on Oct. 1 — is also helping the Trojans by its strength-of-schedule category.

USC was atop of the computer ranking and USC was in three other polls, but the computer had the edge.

Virginia Tech is still third in the standings behind Georgia and Michigan, which were next, while Texas moved up three spots to sixth, putting it ahead of six unbeaten teams in front of the BCS. Miami, LSU, Oklahoma and Florida State were out of the top 10.

BCS analyst Tom Izzo said the gap between USC and Virginia Tech in the polls is so big that the Hokies would have to be

The Big Spring swimming team hosted an invitational Saturday at the YMCA pool and several Steers participants finished in the top 10 of their events. The Big Spring girls' team took third overall, while the boys' squad finished 4th.

Senior Darrin Pike captured one of the team's first place finishes in the 100-yard freestyle.

Ashley Oliver and LaDon Stigler led the girl's team. Oliver finished 2nd in the 500-yard freestyle and 2nd in the 200-yard freestyle, while Sage finished 2nd in the 100-yard butterfly, losing only to a swimmer from Class 5A.

Alexandra and she also grabbed 4th in the individual Medley relay.

Camron also grabbed a medal in the 200-yard freestyle and finished in four positions behind his older brother in the 500-yard freestyle relay.

Red Raiders revamp special teams after loss to Longhorns

By BETSY BLANEY
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK (AP) —

Texas Tech's special teams struggled so much in the Red Raiders' first loss of the season that coach Mike Leach is planning an unusual move. Special teams blunders helped No. 2 Texas to an easy 52-17 win over the No. 17 Red Raiders on Saturday. Short and blocked punts set up Texas for scoring drives of 21, 8 and 23 yards. And penalties on kickoff returns kept Tech's offense in poor field position.

Texas Tech, ranked No. 10 going into the Texas game, was the only top-10 team to fall in The AP rankings. The Red Raiders dropped to No. 17 in the Bowl Championship Series rankings, while UT took over the top spot.

The problems started early for Tech (6-1, 3-1 Big 12).

After going three-and-out on their first possession, Alex Reyes — who entered the game at No. 11 in the nation with a 45-yard per punt average — shanked a 19-yard kick. That gave Texas the ball on the Red Raiders' 43 and six plays later the Longhorns went ahead 3-0 on a 40-yard field.

Three possessions later and leading 7-3, Tech was forced to punt again. Reyes got distance this time — 42 yards — but Texas' Quan Coshby returned the punt 38 yards and Texas started from the Tech's 8-yard line. It took four plays for Texas to score and go up 10-7.

After Texas went up 17-10, a Tech holding penalty on the ensuing kickoff put the Red Raiders at their own 28, rather than at the 44-yard line where Shannon Woods had returned it.

But the worst mistake came at the end of that drive. On fourth-and-five, Tech failed to draw the Longhorns offside and got pushed back five more yards. When the snap came to Reyes it was off to his right and he bobbled it.

Once Reyes gathered it up, he attempted to get off the punt but Texas' Michael Griffin blocked it and the Longhorns recovered the ball at the Tech 28. Three plays later, Texas quarterback Vince Young threw a 15-yard TD pass to give Texas a 24-10 lead.

if the Hokies close some of the gap in the computer rankings if they win.

But unless a large group of voters in the Harris and coaches' poll move the Hokies past USC and/or Texas in the polls, coach Frank Beamer's team is still looking at being the odd team out.

Being No. 1 in the polls though not in the BCS is nothing new to USC. The Trojans finished the 2003 regular season atop the AP and coaches' polls, but were third in the BCS standings behind Oklahoma and LSU and left out of the BCS title game.

College football had split champions that season when LSU beat the Sooners in the Orange Bowl and USC beat Michigan in the Rose Bowl — the first time since the BCS was implemented and exactly what the system was created to eliminate.

After USC was crowned by the AP media pollsters and LSU by the coaches, the BCS decided to change the formula for calculating the standings, putting more emphasis on the polls.

Falcons take down Jets

By PAUL NEWBERRY
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Michael Vick had a terrible game. He didn't have to feel too bad about it.

His team still won. The same couldn't be said for Vinny Testaverde and the New York Jets.

Vick scored on two short runs and the Atlanta Falcons capitalized on three fumbles by Testaverde to beat the Jets 27-14 on Monday night.

Vick threw a career-high three interceptions and had the lowest passer rating of his five years in the league.

Still, the Falcons managed to win, getting 155 yards rushing from Warrick Dunn and scoring 17 points off Testaverde's fumbles.

Dunn broke off a 65-yard run in the second quarter when the Falcons (5-2) were backed up on their own 5. That set up a field goal for a 20-0 lead.

The first 17 points were handed over by Testaverde and his feeble offensive line, which has only one player starting in the same spot as Week 1.

Testaverde fumbled a snap from replacement center Pete Kendall. That led to the first of two 1-yard scoring runs by Vick.

Testaverde's three fumbles tied a career worst. He also threw an interception as the Jets (2-5) dropped to 0-4 on the road this season.

at least four spots ahead of the Trojans in each of the six computer rankings to catch them in the standings.

"USC has nothing to worry about, as long as these poll margins stay the same," Palm said, "and (Nos.) 1 and 2 are as solid as we've ever seen in the BCS at this point in the season."

USC plays Washington State (3-4) on Saturday, then finishes the season against four teams with winning records — Stanford (4-2), No. 24 California (6-2), No. 22 Fresno State (5-1) and No. 8 UCLA (7-0).

"USC is in the middle of a lull in the schedule," Palm said. "Texas is about to hit a lull."

The Longhorns finish the regular season against Oklahoma State (3-4), Baylor (4-3), Kansas (3-4) and Texas A&M (5-2).

Virginia Tech's next two games are against No. 13 Boston College (6-1) and No. 6 Miami (5-1), so it wouldn't be surprising

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS Everything about Jupiter is a big deal. It's the biggest planet in the solar system, and when it enters a new sign, it infuses that sector of human activities with its abundant energy. Jupiter transits through Scorpio, the realm of secrets, over the next 13 months. Undercover activities grow to conspiratorial proportions personally and globally.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You've been thinking far into the future, which serves to keep you on track. If you continue in this productive manner, your legacy will be sublime. Your industriousness is not bad for the present either.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Knowledge gives substance to your work. Being accomplished in your field gives it sparkle. You may not know everything there is to know about your job, but you are respected when you show your credentials.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll attempt much.

There are many objections to what you're trying to do, but luckily, you won't have to overcome them in order to move forward. You will, however, have to listen to them.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You're called on to be empathetic. It's easy to have compassion for your fellow man. All you have to do is review your own list of personal sins, and soon you'll be feeling mighty forgiving.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). It seems that suggestions are whispered to you wherever you go — not that you were asking! Take it as a sign from the universe. When you go where providence leads, you wind up most delighted!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Your aversion to drama is admirable. A regular and orderly daily life allows you to be outrageous and sensational in your working world, especially if you're in a creative field.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Too many rules destroy art — and love is an art. Be easy-going with your loved ones. Make it comfortable to be with you. As a result, you'll enjoy an abundance of affection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You're being enticed. Consider who the enticer is and what he or she has to gain. If someone you usually trust is the one trying to persuade you, then go out on a limb. After all, that's where the fruit is.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). People borrow from you. This is a compliment. But when they don't return your goods or they don't credit you, it certainly doesn't feel like a compliment. Fight for what's yours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). What you know counts to you. But if nobody knows what you know, it hardly counts to the rest of the world. Today, you'll be walking that fine line between being an annoying know-it-all and merely sharing your knowledge.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You seem to have a built-in device that directs you to where the "cool" people are in every environment. Use it today to network. You'll soon be glad you made some new contacts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Outside forces affect an organization you belong to. Your leadership is needed. Sometimes critical blows to a group are galvanizing events. You have a way of helping people get the most out of a situation.

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I am a 15-year-old girl. Last weekend, I went on my third date with my boyfriend, "Shawn," also 15. When the movie ended, Shawn kissed me, and the next thing I knew, he was sticking his tongue in my mouth. I got scared and immediately pulled back. Shawn apologized, but a few minutes later, he kissed me again, and although I kept my mouth shut, I could feel his tongue against my lips.

This is not the first time Shawn has kissed me, but he has never tried to make out with me before or done anything to make me upset. Shawn is my very first boyfriend, but he has had many girlfriends before me.

I now feel extremely pressured to make out with him — something I'm not sure I want to do. And I'm afraid that if I do start making out with Shawn, he'll want to do more intimate things. I have no idea what to do. Please help me. — Rachel

Dear Rachel: Shawn has more experience than you, and apparently, he'd like to show you everything he's learned. Since you're not ready for that (and good for you that you're not), you need to make it clear to Shawn. Don't be afraid to tell him "no."

If Shawn cares about you, he will back off to where you are comfortable. You are smart enough to know that if he pressures you, it means his interest is mostly physical, and you don't need any boyfriend who puts his own needs above yours.

Dear Annie: I've been friends with "Cindy" for

KATHY MITCHELL MARCY SUGAR

25 years. Two years ago, we became friends with "Alice," and recently, Cindy told her all about my abusive marriage, my deeply troubled daughter and numerous other very personal things. I also discovered that she's given this information to several other acquaintances.

I have always considered Cindy to be like a sister. When I asked her to please stop telling people about my personal life, she became angry and has not spoken to me since. I do miss our friendship, but I don't know if it can be saved. What do you say? — No Name but Deeply Hurt

Dear No Name: Cindy has a big mouth, and she owes you an apology. If you want to salvage the friendship (and we're not sure it's worth it), call and tell her you'd like to put this behind you. However, we caution you not to give Cindy any more personal information, because you can be absolutely certain everyone in town will hear about it.

Kids get a new diet guide

Can a computer game help kids eat a healthier diet? The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) thinks so. They have made that just one part of their health guideline for kids called, MyPyramid for Kids. The new program is designed to get kids exercising more and eating more nutritious foods.

BLASTING OFF TO BETTER HEALTH

In the interactive MyPyramid Blast Off game, kids fuel up a rocket ship with exercise and healthy foods in order to take off. If they fuel up with the wrong kind of foods and too little activity, the rocket ship stays on the ground.

"This is a fun approach to addressing the very serious problem of childhood obesity," said Agriculture Secretary Mike Johanns.

Johanns said the game demonstrates the guidelines of MyPyramid for Kids. Those guidelines suggest eating fewer solid fats, added sugars or sweeteners, and fewer high calorie, high fat products. The plans also recommend more fruits, vegetables, lean proteins like turkey and seafood, and fiber-rich whole grains. In April, the USDA introduced MyPyramid, a similar health guideline for adults.

Johanns said on top of eating right, exercise is a necessary way to stay healthy. In the past 30 years, obesity in kids and teenagers has more than doubled. The USDA said that kids need an hour of exercise each day.

CAN THE GOVERNMENT DO MORE?

Some people say the government needs to do more to help kids stay healthy. They say the USDA also needs to work to get junk food away from kids.

"If the government really wanted to improve kids' eating habits, it would get junk food out of schools, it would ban junk food advertising on television," said Michael Jacobson, of the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

Who the Dickens?

A look back at the life of the literary giant who wrote 'Oliver Twist'

What do Jessica Alba and Charles Dickens have in common? Give up? Both have movies that are in theaters.

While Alba sizzles on film in an underwater adventure, it's Dickens' classic images of the lives of the Victorian-era British poor that float across the big screen in the movie "Oliver Twist," an adaptation of his classic tale directed by Roman Polanski.

The new film is not intended for the younger set, rated PG-13 for disturbing images. For those old enough to enjoy it, however, the film serves as another testament to the longevity of Dickens' remarkable literary legacy. His short stories and essays began appearing in periodicals in 1833. "Oliver Twist" was published in 1837 — more than 165 years ago.

"Oliver Twist" tells the story of the title character, orphaned and forced to live in a workhouse headed by the awful Mr. Bumble, who cheats the boys who work there out of their already low pay. Oliver decides to escape to the streets of London, where he meets a pickpocket, played by Sir Ben Kingsley, who lures him into a world of crime. Kingsley's character, Fagin, becomes Oliver's crime mentor.

Several of Dickens' works have been adapted for film and television, including 2002's "Nicholas Nickleby" and 2000's "David Copperfield." And several versions of "A Christmas Carol" have entertained audiences for years.

We thought this would be a good time to take a look at the man behind the words and see what kind of experiences helped shape and influence one of the best-known writers of all time.

What was Dickens' childhood like?

Dickens was born Feb. 7, 1812, to John and Elizabeth Dickens. When Dickens was 12, his father was sent to prison for unpaid debts. As the oldest boy in the family, Charles became the head of the household. To help support his family, he quit school and got a job at a boot-blackening factory. He hated his job — an experience that would fuel some of his future writing. He once wrote

The quotable Dickens

Charles Dickens has given us some of the most memorable — and often-repeated — lines in literature. Here is a quick look at some of his most famous lines:

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times..."
("A Tale of Two Cities")

"Bah... Humbug!"
(Scrooge in "A Christmas Carol")

"God bless us, every one!"
(Tiny Tim in "A Christmas Carol")

that he wondered "how I could have been so easily cast away at such an age." He wrote about his feelings of alienation and betrayal in "David Copperfield" and "Great Expectations."

After three months, his father was released from prison and Charles was able to go back to school.

In 1827, he left school to work as an office boy for a lawyer. This was when he decided to pursue a career as a journalist. He found freelance work and published his first piece, "A Dinner at Poplar Walk," in 1833. Three years later, he married Catherine Hogarth.

What kinds of topics did he write about?

In his novels, Dickens touched on several important issues. He addressed the Poor Law Amendment Act of 1824 in "Oliver Twist"; the French Revolution in "A Tale of Two Cities"; and social reform in "Hard Times."

One of Dickens' best-known works is the first Christmas book he wrote — "A Christmas Carol" (1843), featuring the memorable character Ebenezer Scrooge.

When Dickens died on June 8, 1870 — a day after suffering a stroke — he left one unfinished work, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." He was buried at Westminster Abbey on June 14, 1870.

Is it true that Dickens was paid by the word?

This is a popular myth, but he was paid by the installment.

His novels were published serially, appearing over a period of many weeks or months. Most of his novels, including "Nicholas Nickleby," "Little Dorrit" and "Our Mutual Friend," appeared in monthly parts following a very specific formula developed by Dickens and his publishers.

The formula was introduced with the 1836 publication of Dickens' first full-length novel, "The Pickwick Papers," which appeared in 20 parts over 19 months. The last part was a "double issue" that included parts 19 and 20.
