McLENNAN COUNTY HAS FEW JUVENILES FOR REFORM SCHOOLS

McLennan county's record of delinquent juveniles at the state reform schools is still low, despite the fact that he has had to carry several local boys and girls to them recently, says County Probation Officer Arthur Stout. The reason, he believes, is that hard times are still pretty hard with a number of people, inciting the youngsters to more than average petty thefts and criminality.—Waco News-Tribune

Much Progress Shown
In Work of Home
Demonstration Agent

Miss Gladys Martin, Coryell county home demonstration agent, brings a very splendid report of accomplishment thus far in her work. During the present week four training schools have already been held in as many communities. The first was with the Priscilla Club on Monday. Purnela was the second place of meeting on Tuesday. Carden was the Wednesday point and Thursday the agent met with the club at Coryell City. Ten clubs were represented in the first three meets and probably three or four in the Thursday meeting.

Miss Martin is at Pidooke today and will be at Turnersville Monday, at Copperas Cove Tuesday and at Flat Wednesday.

The first council meeting will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 23, in the courthouse here. Two representatives from each of the clubs of the county make up the council.

W. A. Gilmer, 64, died in Temple Tuesday morning from a heart attack. Funeral services were held in that city at 5 p. m. Wednesday at the Memorial Baptist Church, with Rev. B. B. Blaylock, pastor officiating, assisted by Rev. Joe Sprout of Killeen. Burial was at the North Belton Cemetery.

ALLRED COMING TO GATESVILLE

The Hon. James V. Allred, Attorney-General of Texas, comes to Gatesville and Coryell County Saturday of this week in his own behalf. Allred, presently a candidate for the gubernatorial office of this state, will speak in Gatesville tomorrow.

Indications are that a large crowd will be present to hear the wisdom of this young man. Allred will have the distinction of being the first gubernatorial candidate to speak publicly in this section. That fact alone will be worth a great deal to his candidacy in Coryell County.

James V. Allred has many friends in this vicinity. Through their united efforts they have already begun an active campaign in his behalf.

The local Allred forces have deemed it more suitable to place the bulk of the candidate's publicity elsewhere than in the Coryell County News, however, the News is desirous of boosting the coming of Allred to Gatesville as much as possible, because this newspaper thinks as many voters of this section who can should hear what this worthy man has to say regarding the affairs of state when he speaks here Saturday.

IN TERMS OF THE PAST, TODAY IS A FAILURE

One of the strangest things about modern America is the fondness everybody seems to have developed for looking back at the past.

You get samples of this everywhere. It ranges all the way from the collection of antiques to the desire to look at photographs of the pre-Spanish War era.

In one city there was held recently a grand reunion of people who had been public schoolmates half a century ago. Thousands of them turned out for an elaborate picnic and sat about talking over old times. And they seemed to be just about unanimous in the belief that "people had more fun" in the old days.

They talked about sleigh rides in the winters, about oyster stew suppers at farm houses, about children who bummed free rides on horse cars, about spelling bees and Sunday School picnics and other diversions of the youth of 50 years ago.

They felt rather sorry for their children and grandchildren, who have to grow up in the modern world and miss all those little pleasures that used to be.

Now this attitude, to repeat, is an extremely common one nowadays; and it testifies, not so much to an idyllic quality in American life in the past as to a deep and fundamental dissatisfaction with the American life of today.

We wouldn't keep looking back over our shoulders so much if we found the life about us all that it ought to be. It is the comparison that makes the past look so attractive.

Somehow the present hasn't lived up to our expectations; and this is not solely the fault of the depression, because we had very bad depressions in those good old days.

To understand it, you have to look at the whole development of American life in this century; the nation's emergence as a world power, the spectacular growth of great cities and great industries, the arrival of the automobile age, and the World War.

All these things held out great promise; and in no case has the reality been quite as nice as what we had expected. Life has grown more eventful, perhaps, but hardly richer.

Somehow we must readjust our society so that

Meridian State Park Will Be Opened With Impressive Ceremony

No. 12, unit of Texas' new parks system, situated in the Bosque Hills three miles west of Meridian on Highway 22, will take place Saturday morning, June 16. Former Governor Pat M. Neff, father of the state parks idea, will deliver the dedication address, and high state officials and American Legion officers will participate in the laying of the cornerstone of the park community house, which will pen a two-day celebration and rodeo under the direction of D. E. Colp, of Austin, chairman of the State Parks Board, assisted by local committees.

The State Training School band of Gatesville will be one of four bands furnishing music.

In recognition of the veteran's work here, drum and bugle corps and national guard bands from Waco, Cleburne and other nearby cities will have prominent parts in the ceremonies.

The park covers an area of 600 acres, deeded to the state by the citizens of Meridian. According to L. J. Bryan, superintendent, the project will represent a total expenditure of $1,100,000.00 when completed. Construction work is under the direction of the National Parks Service and the State Parks Board.

A motorcade of Meridian citizens, headed by Supt. Bryan, has completed a tour of five adjoining counties extending welcome to the park opening.

Indications are that one of the largest crowds gathered in Central Texas in years will be present. Stroud's rodeos is attracting the interest of bronc riders for a hundred miles distant, who will compete for prizes offered in riding, roping and steer-bulldogging contests.

Laying of the Cornerstone 1897

(The following story is a reprint from an old local newspaper, giving a detailed description of the laying of the cornerstone in the present courthouse. This was one of the premier events of the times and attracted much attention not only in Coryell County but throughout this section of the state.)

Last Saturday Gatesville Lodge No. 197, A. F. & A. M., laid the corner stone of the new courthouse with the beautiful and ancient Masonic ceremony, assisted by members from all the other lodges of the county. There were thousands of people assembled from all parts of this and adjoining counties to witness the ceremony. A large platform had been erected at the northeast corner of the foundation, a part of which was occupied with tent cloth to serve as a stand for the speaker and musicians. Mrs. Shadden's orchestra, composed of herself, Mrs. O. F. Wells, Misses Shadden and Wells, Messrs. Fagg, Voss and Baker, rendered sweet music so soothing and soft that one almost imagined themselves in some enchanted clime.

At 2 o'clock the Masons formed their line of march at the southwest corner of the square and proceeded two blocks east on Leon street, thence one block north to Main street, thence west to the platform.

Rev. Sam Waddill opened the services with a beautiful and appropriate prayer, after which the orchestra rendered another beautiful selection. Past Grand Master Norton Moses then delivered an address, explaining the ancient custom and treating somewhat of the grand principles upon which masonry was founded, closing with a eulogy on woman that was sublime.

After the address the large, grey granite stone from Granite Mountain, which was suspended by block and tackle immediately over the spot where it was to rest was lowered to its resting place as the ritualistic ceremony proceeded in solemn and impressive manner.

The stone is blue-grey granite, weighing 1825 pounds, and is finely polished and beautifully engraved. On the north is engraved, "T. C. Taylor, county judge; J. M. Russell, N. A. Harper, R. E. Edwards, J. H. Grisby, county commissioners; W. C. Dodson, architect; Tom Lovell, contractor." On the east face is, "Laid by Gatesville Lodge, No. 197, A. F. & A. M., Oct. 2, A. D. 1897, A. L. 5897," with the square and compass in the center.

The procession of masons was the largest ever seen in this county and the ceremony one of the most imposing.

With the immense crowd in town, everything was very orderly. During the whole day, splendid order was maintained by the great throng of sightseers, and all in all it was a day that will remain fresh and green in the memory of our people.

The Deposits

The deposits in the corner stone were many as follows:

H. M. Barnhardt, a Hondur-ran dime; Ben Newland, a metal tablet showing the taxable values of the county; S. A. Chambers, a photo of the old court house; T. W. Kirkland, two boxes of medicine; Dr. U. M. Gilder, a box of pills; Mort Suggs, newspaper clipping; W. A. McBeth, a vial of Sodom salt; S. B. Hawkins, occupation tax receipt; J. C. Gouddy, copy of Dallas Morning News of Oct. 1, 1897; James Stewart, half penny sterling; M. L. Ayres, 5-cent piece, 1897; Fordyce Woodard, 3-cent piece, 1884; Wm. Rose, a bottle of whiskey; D. R. Hall, copy of the Gatesville Sun, Dec. 20, 1873, and copy of Gatesville Star, September 20, 1897; W. E. Brown, a thought; W. H. W. Jones, United States 25-cent treasury certificate; Owen Fauntleroy, a thought; Y. S. Jenkins, city and county statistics; Miss Felicia McVey, a list of W. C. T. U. officers etc.; A. J. Newton, a note congratulating the county on the new courthouse; C. F. Caruth, a history of the Gatesville Water Supply Co.; Honeycut & Jenkins, book of formulas; R. W. Bartin, copy of the Gatesville Messenger, Sept. 1, 1897; First National Bank, its card; T. D. Bone, bottle of whiskey; Crow & Anderson, a memorandum book; A. Matthews, a key tag; Ed Wesson, a rock from Lebanon; J. W. Saunders, a Chinese mill (one-tenth of a cent); P. B. Barnes, photo of the old court house; Committee on arrangement, program of the day's entertainment; T. C. Taylor, Columbian half dollar, 1893; J. H. Arnold, Columbian half dollar, 1893; Joe Gage, memorandum for posterity; Mrs. Joe Gage, Primitive Baptist paper; Felix Boyd, key tag; Masonic Lodge, Bible; Gatesville No. 197, A. F. & A. M., roster of membership; Unknown, 25 cents.

Notes

The copper box in which the deposits were placed is eight inches square, and was made and sealed by M. C. Bigham, the tinner. It just fitted the cavity in the rock and was a very neat piece of work.

The salt deposited by Mr. McBeth was taken from near the Dead Sea.

The document deposited by the ladies of the W. C. T. U. in the was an article taken from the Messenger's W. C. T. U. column, edited by Mrs. T. B. Saunders, about the first of this year.

The bottle of brandy deposited by Mr. T. D. Bone was a part of the bottle placed in the old corner stone of the old building when it was laid in 1872.

The cut used in this writeup is a design of the new building and furnished us through the courtesy of Mr. Tom Lovell, the contractor.

Three month ago the work of tearing down the old structure began, and while it would appear that a great while has been consumed in getting ready to lay the corner stone, it must be remembered that the foundation has been laid broad and deep and the corner stone was not laid until the walls of the ten-foot basement were completed. From now on the work will progress, apparently, more rapid. Much care has been exercised in the selection of material and this has served to delay progressed somewhat.

Many present wondered if they would live to see this stone taken out. There were many present who had witnessed the laying of the corner stone of the old court house twenty-five years ago, but there were still others that were not present. When we ask where are they? the answer comes back to us in echo,—are they. Some, of course in different parts of the world, some from age or sickness unable to be here on this occasion, but most of those whose absence were noted have, in the quarter of a century that has elapsed, passed over the river into that rapidly populating beyond where the buildings are not made with hands but are eternal, enduring forever.—Messenger.

'Riptide' Is New Vehicle For Norma Shearer at Regal Sun. and Mon.

One of the most fascinatingly varied functions among the elements is the action of ocean water—and it is this which contributed the title of "Riptide" to Norma Shearer's latest starring vehicle which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will bring to the Regal Theatre on Sunday and Monday.

The dictionary will tell you that a riptide is the condition when water becomes roughened by conflicting tides or currents. What is remarkable about this condition is that there is no resolution of the conflict until one weakens and is diverted to another direction. It is not a question of triumph; it is a question of weakening and disappearance.

Pertinent Title

And this, by strict parallel, is the story which Edmund Goulding has both written and directed in "Riptide." Norma Shearer, as an adventurous American woman who has married into London society, finds that the dullness and sobriety of English life is not enough for her, even though she relishes it to a certain degree and loves her husband moderately well. When a wild young American play-boy comes into her life, he does not displace her husband by any means; her love somehow encompasses both of them.

And, then, by natural selection, one of these joint and conflicting currents of love weakens of its own accord and the woman is free to continue in a single direction with her true companion.

Herbert Marshall plays the role of the husband in the new Shearer drama, and the part of the American play-boy is filled by Robert Montgomery. The impressive cast also includes the noted English stage star, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Skeets Gallagher, Ralph Forbes and Lilian Tashman.

Flame of the Border

CHAPTER X.—Sonya realizes she is in the power of El Capitan Diablo. In his stronghold she is committed to the care of an elderly Spanish woman, to await the arrival of the chief. A younger woman, Concha, views with apprehension the arrival of Stone, whom she loves, evidently a prisoner, with El Capitan Diablo.

CHAPTER XI.—At the Savarin ranch there is dire consternation over the disappearance of Sonya. Searching parties, working diligently, are unable to find any trace of the girl. Her horse, arriving home riderless, is the first indication of harm having come to her. With Serge, Marston visits the village store, the last place where Sonya is known to have been, but finds no clues. Her Navajo friends, remembering all they owe Sonya, take the trail, finding evidence of the presence of an airship where Sonya might presumably have been seized.

She walked down the long dark passage, cool with the night's freshness, and into the great main room of the casa. Here there were many men and a few women, who all seemed waiting to look at her, which they did with thoroughness in silence. There were men here who had burned and raided and shot, who thought no more of killing a human being than of slaughtering a sheep; women who followed them and wore things they looted. Their eyes were hot and cold at the same time, if one might so describe them, flaming with all the varied lusts of lawless folk, devoid of mercy or compassion.

The senora passed before them and out at the door which stood open at the south, Sonya following close behind her with her head up. Here in the stone flagged yard sat her judge.

El Capitan Diablo, in a huge chair behind a long table made of crude slabs and undressed wood set on sections of saplings peeled and weathered. Here too was Manuel, that dapper slim pilot who had brought her across the Border. Manuel, second in power, in value, in ability, to that one whom the master had brought home to answer for his sins.

The sins of lingering too long about that master's business, of doing his bidding less and less eagerly, or that most heinous crime of all, loving a good woman.

El Diablo hated a good woman. Of all things on the earth he feared and hated most a good woman. What power this one might hold against him, what secrets she might know for his undoing, he did not know. What Quince had told her in the softening urge of love he furiously suspected. Evil himself, lost to all standards of loyalty, a double-crosser of double-crossers, he trusted no one, believed in no one.

And now he had the whole thing in his hands, thanks to Quatro; the man who knew his ways and works as none other living knew them; the woman of another world who might wreak his ruin if she chose.

That great structure of blood and raid and contraband which he had built for himself from Mazatlan to New York city stood toppling in the hands of these two—and El Diablo would not have it.

He looked at the slim girl before him, his thick nostrils dilating.

"So," he said, "we meet again, senorita."

"So it would seem," said Sonya Savarin.

A great concourse of people was gathering swiftly in the grove, all standing back at a respectful distance. But nowhere was there a tall man with bronze hair and wild blue eyes that shone. The girl looked earnestly around, and El Diablo smiled.

"Not just yet, senorita," he said, "presently. In all good time."

Manuel rose and coming around the table, brought a chair and placed it for her. Sonya nodded but did not sit down. It seemed to her that she was on trial here, as indeed she was, though with the issue a foregone conclusion, and she must take it standing. The injustice, the insult of it all was making a fire in her soul, and she was not afraid.

"I think, sir," she said sharply, suddenly, "that you will answer to my people and my country for this abduction of myself. You cannot hide it long."

"So? You think not? Well, well, has El Diablo lost his cunning?"

He had changed his speech to Spanish, and for a moment Sonya hesitated as to whether or not she should show she understood. Then she decided that he probably knew she did and accepted the issue.

"There comes an end to all things, senor," she said.

"Yes, to life even," the bandit said smoothly, looking at her.

"To life, even," said Sonya calmly.

A little whisper of admiration murmured through the silent crowd. She had courage, the young white woman from beyond the Border. No one had ever met the master so, word for word and eye for eye.

"You remember, senorita," El Diablo said, "that once I took my lieutenant from your arms on a dance floor. That should have been a warning. A sufficient warning. Yet you did not heed it."

"Why should I have heeded it?" said Sonya steadily. "Who were you that I should fear you to such an extent?"

"You saw that Quince feared me."

"Yes. And knew there must be a reason. He is no man's coward."

"Then you should have known the reason to be good."

"I did."

"And tried to find that reason out, I have no doubt?"

"Assuredly."

"And did?"

"No, senor, though I tried hard."

"You shield the man."

"No."

"You lie to me, senorita!"

"And so do you!" flashed Sonya.

"Carramba!" swore Diablo. "You tell me that?"

"You told me that. In my country a man does not speak so to women."

The man who ruled his little world with blood and steel half rose, his dark face purple with a mounting rage. In that wavering second Sonya Savarin was nearer death than she had ever been.

"You Are Well Schooled, Senorita," He Sneered.

Then he sat down again and smiled. That smile was deadly as an adder's grin.

"So," he said, "we shall proceed. And Quince did not tell you that I meet the ships from China at Mazatlan?"

"No, senor."

"Nor that I bring into Mexico and along the Border merchandise of great value?"

"No, senor."

"Nor that that merchandise crosses into the United States by my little gray ships of the sky to be sent to New York on the railroad?"

"No, senor."

"You are well schooled, senorita," he sneered. "I make bold to compliment you both. You did not know that Quince is—or was—my ablest man in both countries? That he knows as much of El Diablo as El Diablo knows about himself? That he can do anything connected with my business—from sealing the sea at low tide for floats, tied to sunken contraband, to flying a plane? You did not know all this?"

He was leaning forward now, searching the girl's face with boring eyes to catch the faintest change, the slightest flicker of betrayal.

"I did not, senor," she said.

"H'm," said El Diablo savagely, "and when you so quickly stooped and picked from the floor that small brass can which Senor Parks dropped from his pocket, you still did not know what you were finding?"

"No," said Sonya, "and would not now if Manuel there had not told the Senora about it—called it a five-tael can of 'black molasses.'"

Manuel leaped from his seat, talking swiftly, facing his master. And somewhere behind her a woman stifled a scream. But Diablo was on his feet, his fist on the table.

"So!" he thundered, "my people talk behind me, do they? They mention that which is never to be mentioned? I shall deal with you—and you, senorita—later. Now bring me Quince."

At that Sonya felt the world go round for one terrible second. She clutched the chair back tightly.

And from somewhere at the right there came the sound of marching feet, the swift step of men obeying a master. Through the dappled shade cast by the poplar trees five figures moved into her line of vision, four who walked abreast in twos and in their midst a fifth—Starr Stone as she had seen him last, in cowboy boots and dungarees belted at his lean hips, a faded denim shirt.

Clarence Allen Morton, Pastor

Presbyterian Church

Were you in your place last Sunday? There was a large number absent, and they were greatly missed. You are always missed when you are absent. An absent Church member is a reflection on themselves, on their pastor, on their church, and on their Christ. By constantly absenting your-self from the church services you are impeding your spiritual growth. Make a special effort to attend church.

We are glad to welcome several new members into our midst. Yet there are a number of others who should place their membership in the church. This ties one to active church work.

The Intermediate Camp, near Belton, will open Monday, June 25. We are expecting a large number of boys and girls to go from Gatesville. The fees this year are $5. We are glad that we will be able to help all the boys and girls from our church who wish to go this year. Through the generous help of the Woman's Auxilliary, we will be able to pay nearly half of each fee. Three dollars is all that is asked of each boy and girl who are regular in their attendance in our S. S. The registrations must be in by the 20th. Please see that your child's fees are in the hands of the pastor by next Tuesday. The ages are 12 to 15.

There will be the usual services on next Sunday, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. The Woman's Auxilliary meets each Tuesday at 4 p. m. The public is most cordially invited to worship with us at all services. You will receive a hearty welcome.

The Woman's Auxilliary of the Presbyterian Church will have its regular Bible study at the church next Tuesday afternoon, June 19, at four o'clock. The lesson on the Miracles of Jesus, as recorded in Mark's Gospel will be discussed by Mrs. J. P. Kendrick. Visitors are cordially invited.

Jas. M. McLean, Pastor.

German Bethel Baptist Church

An officer came into camp in a rollicking mood and said: "I have such a rich story, that I want to tell you. There are not no ladies present are there?" General Grant was sitting nearby and reading his paper, but hearing what the officer said, answered: "No, but there are gentlemen present." It is the glory of a man to have clean lips and a clean mind. It is the glory of a woman not to know evil, even in her thoughts. In Philippians 4:8 we have this from the mind of the great Apostle Paul: "Finally, brethren, what soever things are true, what soever things are honest, what soever things are just, what soever things are pure, what soever things are lovely, what soever things are of a good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." This is the great goal of the folk who worship at the church with the friendly smile; come and worship with us! There are heights ahead we have not reached, but we are on our way. "Follow where the Saviour leadeth."

The Sunday services will be as usual.

10:00 A. M. Sunday School. 11:00 A. M. and 8:15 preaching services.

7:15 B. Y. P. U. Preaching and the B. Y. P. U. service in the evening will be in the American language.

Come to church and hear the further announcements, which will, the Lord willing, be given then.

W. H. Buening, Pastor.

Arnolds crew had plenty of trouble defeating the Baptists

Monday night 9 to 6. These churchmen are going to up-set a team or two before this first half is over.

The Methodists kept the dope true to form Monday night, defeating the Road-gang 9 to 5. This Methodists team has started another winning streak, but I am afraid it was started a bit too late.

The Firemen's club defeated the State Tuesday night 9 to 1. The State tallied their only run in the sixth inning. The Firefighters are going to make it plenty "tuff" for Arnold's crew, holding their own, to win this half.

Ward's crew played their poorest game of the season Tuesday night against the Bachelors that are tied with two other teams for the cellar. The more games Ward's gang plays, less interest they seem to show.

They came from behind to defeat the Roundtable 11 to 10.

—MY—DOPE—

Today—The Baptists will defeat the State with little trouble.

The Bachelors will defeat the Highway, but will have trouble.

Monday—The Baptists will defeat Ward's crew.

Arnold will have no trouble defeating the Highway.

The woman's club from Car-den defeated a like team from Gatesville Wednesday night 13 to 10.

Boy Scouts in Camp Near Belton Explore New Discovered Cave

A cave discovered several weeks ago by workers on a CWA project at Spicewood Springs, the Boy Scouts camp near Belton, will be opened and explored this week by the sixty-three scouts attending the first period of the Heart O'-Texas Council camp which started Monday.

Visitors are impressed by the various activities of the campers. Here, to the throbbings of an Indian tom-tom a group moves in rhythmical dances to old Indian chants; there gathered around an able instructor may be seen boys working busily on Indian head-dresses and bead work. In another spot flying arrows denote the presence of future Robin Hoods and William Tells, and ever and anon cheers rise as some favorite ball player upon one team or another slams out a "home run" across the spacious pasture where once Indian arrowheads fell, and where today, the same arrow heads are gathered and classified by delighted collectors. Camp fire at night, swimming in the beautiful pool fed by the historic Spicewood Springs, leathercraft, campercraft, woodcraft, hikes—all add to the satisfaction of

A. J. Lawrence, scout executive, is in charge of the camp, assisted by Robert Kirk and James Downer of Waco, John Calvin Haygood of Cameron.
