Producers Must File Tax Exemption Claim Prior to Allotments

REMNANTS ARE TAX FREE

Ginners of Coryell county who have remnants left over from last year many gin this cotton and receive tax exemption tags for the old cotton since the tax applies only to the 1934 crop, according to a telegram received from Washington by D. W. Sherrill, county agent.

Mr. Sherrill also informed the press that many farmers are becoming anxious about their allotments under the Bankhead Law and states that it will be impossible for some time to give out individual allotments. Application forms will be mailed to the various county agents within the next few days.

Applications for tax exemption must be made by all farmers who have cotton and all of these must be in the hands of the agent before the Commission and State Board of Review can issue individual allotments and tax exemption certificates.

Farmers are urged to read the News for further details.

The Corn-Hog contracts are in the process of adjustment and producers will be notified as soon as the work is finished.

The local friends of C. H. McGilvray have requested the News to make mention of the fact that they have obtained the consent of the prominent real estate man to place his name on the official ballot for the office of Democratic Chairman of Coryell County.

The many friends of Mr. McGilvray in this county will no doubt be glad to learn this.

Mr. McGilvray has been a resident of Coryell county for the past several years, during which time he has made many friends in this vicinity. He is a staunch supporter of the Democratic party.

Donkey Business

Men on beasts played a scoreless tie under the lights on the softball diamond here Saturday night when Gatesville played Flat. The "donkeys" persisted in their attitude of contrariness and balkiness as usual. If the spills had been counted as points the Firemen would have won by a landslide.

Dentist Otis Ray and his trusty steed agreed on a bill of divorcement and as a consequence of the separation the dentist is unable to "dent" this week.

The Firemen were profuse in their regrets that Hamilton called at the last moment and cancelled the game which they were to have played.

WOMEN PROXIES TO HAVE SOFTBALL DUEL

Proceeds from a small admission will go to the Methodist Women's Missionary Society.

First-Monday Crowd Welcomes McDonald's Address at Gates'ille

SPEAKS IN COURTHOUSE

Resorting to the district courtroom with loud-speakers on the courthouse lawn, the Hon. C. C. McDonald, candidate for Governor, was able to direct his campaign message to the throngs of people from all over Coryell county who listened attentively to the address of the candidate Monday afternoon.

Mr. McDonad was introduced by Hon. T. R. Mears, of Gatesville who received a hearty applause when he said "I do not hesitate to say that I am going to vote for this man and I want you to vote for him."

"In order that I might not offend any person within the sound of my voice I will not even so much as mention the name of any one of my opponents in my message this afternoon," were among the opening remarks of Mr. McDonald's address.

Beginning with a short biographical sketch of his life the candidate next briefly outlined his eight-plank platform, appealing to grandfathers, "who with their votes only could elect him the next Governor of Texas."

Mr. McDonald placed great stress on his old-age pension plan and his proposed program for the relief of farm and home tenants, through a state relief measure. Regarding old-age pensions and the poor farms; he said, "May the day come when we will see the closing of one highway, the road to the poor-house."

Concerning his advocacy of repeal he said; "Home training from sober father and mothers, and not laws, will promote sobriety and temperance among the youth of the land."

Mr. McDonald closed with a summary of his educational policy.

will also be included in the trophies.

The loving-cup, having been won for the past two years by Emmitt Stewart, will be the most coveted trophy of all. Should Stewart win the cup again this year it will be his for keeps. Many of the local club members will make strong bids for the cup in the championship flight.

Climaxing the round of tournament play Wednesday will be a watermelon supper for members of the club and their guests. This social affair will take the place of the barbecue which has heretofore been a part of the annual program.

EDITORIALS IN BRIEF

The News considers it an opportunity to commend most favorably the Gatesville Board of Education on its recent definite action relative to the construction of a combined gymnasium and auditorium which, it is understood, will include a complete home economics department. It is also understood that actual construction on this modern edifice will begin within the next few days. This project is a long felt need in Gatesville and will probably be ready for use by September 1. The News regrets to advise its readers that the action of the school board on the building project was not made known to this newspaper, which explains the fact that no mention was made in the Friday issue as to the decision of the board.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

It seems a pity that there will be no Fourth of July celebration in Gatesville similar to the activities that will take place in other municipalities over the country. About all local people have to look forward to is a day of rest for business employees and employers or the prospects of a trip to some other town where they might find some sort of celebration and recreation and incidentally spend a little Coryell County money.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

"Are you better off than you were last year? Are your debts less burdensome? Is your bank account more secure? Are your working conditions better?" These are some of the direct questions put to millions of radio listeners by the President of the United States in an address over a nation-wide hook-up last Thursday evening. The text of the President's speech was such that its simplicity could not be mistaken by the most questionable mind. His address was received with much interest and approval. Mr. Roosevelt could not have chosen more stirring words for his conclusion than those which he used, "Overseas they used to call this 'God's country'. Let us make it and keep it 'God's country'."

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

With the announcement from local Relief headquarters many local farm landowners should be getting busy signing up on the dotted line for some of the gratis repair work the relief commission is going to put out on the farm shacks that needed repairs even before this thing called "depression" came along. If there ever was an opportunity for the owners of these farm houses that opportunity is present now. There may be a lot of red tape connected with the plan but whatever it is, improvement to farm property, at no cost to the owner, will most certainly increase the value of the property.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

Whether the local supporters or state campaign headquarters were responsible for the public appearance of Hon. C. C. McDonald in Gatesville yesterday afternoon, it was an ideal day and an ideal time. Speaking in the afternoon on "First Monday", two days before the Fourth when business houses will be closed, and following two other candidates for the same office, gave Mr. McDonald a wonderful opportunity to appear before the voters of this section. Mr. McDonald had a good turn-out and his audience was highly pleased with the message they were privileged to hear. The pleasing personality of the candidate together with his oratorical ability should have strengthened the esteem of his admirers.

STUMPIN' THE STATE

WITH THE SPECTATOR

Editor's Note.—This column is published by the News as a news feature because of the interesting comments of this writer upon politics. The views expressed are those of the writer and should not be interpreted as reflecting the editorial opinions of this newspaper.

THE "HOTTEST" RACE in the campaign at the present is the fight for the office of Attorney General, vacated by James Allred; who aspires to the Governorship. It is a three-cornered fight with William "Bill" McCraw of Dallas, Clyde Smith of Woodville, Tyler county; and Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman the participants. So far, most of the mud-slinging has been between McCraw and Woodward, with Smith conducting a strenuous but quiet campaign over the state.

This is one race that is beginning to boil, with charges and counter charges flying thick and fast, and it would not surprise your correspondent if it does not, to use an oldtime expression, "bile over".

Now, something about these gentlemen who aspire to become the legal representative of the people of Texas.

When the war broke out WILLIAM McCRAW was a red-headed youngster of 21 whose lawyer's shingle had been hanging up only two years. He was one of the first to reach France where he won distinction in the 132nd brigade of the 36th division.

After the war, McCraw returned to his home county and fought his way up to the highest honors his neighbors could bestow, serving three terms as Dallas county district attorney.

"The chief issue now is the election of an Attorney General free from entangling alliances with special interests," McCraw declared last week in an East Texas address.

Big and red-headed, with a driving force of personality and tireless energy, he has already traveled more than 30,000 miles and has personally met and talked with tens of thousands of voters since he launched his campaign in January.

CLYDE E. SMITH of Woodville is now serving his fourth consecutive term as district attorney of the 75th judicial district. Previously he has been county attorney of Tyler county.

Smith is a self-made man. As a boy he sold papers on the streets of San Antonio 24 years ago. In 1926 he was elected district attorney of the 75th judicial district and has been returned to office three times without an opponent since his first election.

"I believe I have the ability to run the Attorney General's office because I have obtained 41 convictions out of 44 murder cases handled since becoming district attorney," Smith said in his opening speech.

Smith is a mason, a member of the Baptist church, and is president of the Tyler county Bar Association.

WALTER WOODWARD of

Say Swiss Prayers at Fair

Huddled about this peculiar shrine in the Swiss village at the World's Fair in Chicago, these native boys and girls make a picturesque sight for visitors. Fifteen villages in the Fair this year make possible a "tour of the world" in a single day.

Coleman has served his district in the State Senate for ten years. Before entering the Senate he practiced law in his home town, building up one of the greatest civil practices in the entire western portion of the State. This year he was urged by his friends to run for Governor, but he chose to run for Attorney General; saying he could serve his state better in that capacity.

he said in a recent address.

All his speeches so far stress high qualifications for Attorney General; his ten years in the State Senate; four as Coleman county Attorney, twenty-five years in active law practice and a term as Assistant Attorney General.

AUTHOR

ZANE GREY

It is something of an occasion when a newspaper obtains a Zane Grey story for serial publication and the News takes pride in offering "Robbers' Roost" to its readers, beginning Tuesday, July 3.

Do not miss it.

Though he was born in Zanesville, Ohio, and spent the early years of his life in the East, practicing dentistry in New York for a time after graduating from the University of Pennsylvania, the urge for a more active outdoor life caused him to abandon his profession and seek a home in the West. For many years he has lived in Arizona.

Mr. Grey began his literary career in 1904, with the publication of a historical novel entitled "Betty Zane." Since then he has written more than twenty books which have given him world-wide fame as an author of Western and outdoor tales.

Texas Press Pledges Aid to Texas Industry In Formal Resolution

The sympathetic assistance and encouragement of Texas newspapers to Texas industries were pledged in formal resolutions unanimously adopted by the Texas Press Association's fifty-fifth annual convention in Dallas last week. Recognition of the fact that industrial development of Texas is of prime concern to every Texan also was given in the following resolution presented by the Resolutions Committee:

"Whereas, A prime requisite to the future growth and development of Texas is the providing of employment for more people; and

"Whereas, We confidently believe the development of Texas industries offers the greatest possibilities for such additional employment; therefore, be it

"Resolved by the Texas Press Association, That we give our sympathetic assistance to Texas industries and our encouragement to the purchase of Texas-made products where price, quality and service are equal to those offered from elsewhere; be it

"Resolved further, That we realize that industrial progress is a matter of concern to every Texan, since it means not only employment for more people, but the creation of a balanced economic set-up in which agriculture, live stock, mineral production and industrial production each will contribute its part to the permanent prosperity of our great Commonwealth; be it

"Resolved finally, That we endorse the campaign of Progresssive Texans, Inc., to increase the sale and use of Texas products and services in the belief that it is of great value to the proper and balanced development of our State."—Progressive Texans.

ROBBERS' ROOST

CHAPTER I

ONE afternoon in the spring of 1877 a solitary horseman rode down the long, ghastly desert slant in the direction of the ford at Green River.

He was a young man in years, but he had the hard face and eagle eye of the matured in experience of that wild country. He bestrode a superb bay horse, dusty and travel-worn and a little lame. The rider was no slight burden, judging from his height and wide shoulders; moreover, the saddle carried a canteen, a rifle and a pack.

At length he rode into a trail and soon came in sight of the wide band of green cottonwood, willow and arrow-weed, and the shining, muddy river. On the far side, up on the level, stood a green patch and a cluster of houses. This was the town of Green River, Utah.

The rider needed to reach that town before dark. His food supply had run out two days ago. But unless there was a boat in which he could row across he would most likely not make it. His horse was too lame to risk the eddies of that heavy, swirling, sand-laden river.

Under a cottonwood, some distance ahead, the rider espied a saddled horse, head down, cropping the grass. He proceeded more slowly, his sharp eyes vigilant, and was certain that he saw a man on the river bank.

Presently he rode out into an opening from which he could see a place where a ferry touched. Moored to the opposite bank was the ferryboat.

The rider sat on his horse, aware that the man he had observed had stepped behind some willows. Such a move might have been casual. Then the man moved into plain sight.

"Howdy," he said laconically. "Howdy," replied the rider. He became aware of a penetrating scrutiny which no doubt resembled his own.

The rider saw a striking figure of a man, gray with dust, booted and spurred, armed to the teeth. His wide sombrero shadowed a sharp bold face.

"Almin' to cross?" he queried. "Yes, I see a ferry boat over there. Lucky for me if I can cross on it. My horse is all in."

"Noticed that. Fine hoss. Wal, I've been hangin' around for an hour, waitin' to go over. Reckon he'll be along soon."

"Town of Green River, isn't it?" "That's the handle. You're a stranger hereabouts?"

"I am that." "Where you hail from?" "I suppose I might as well say Wyoming as any place," returned the rider, casually.

The other man relaxed with a laugh. "Shore. One place is good as another. Same as a name, Mine is Hank Hays." He spoke as if he expected it to be recognized, but it brought no reaction from his listener.

"You know this country?" queried the rider, and he too relaxed. "Tolerable."

"Maybe you can tell me whether I ought to stop or keep on travelin'?"

"Haw! Haw! I shore can. But that depends," he said, pushing back his sombrero.

"Depends on what?" the rider asked.

"Wal, on you. Have you got any money?"

"About ten dollars."

"Huh. You can't go in the ranch business with that. Not regular ranchin'. Lots of cattle between here an' the brakes of the Dirty Devil. Henry mountains, too. Some outfit over there. Air you a cattleman?"

"No," replied the rider, thoughtfully.

"Wal, that's straight talk from a stranger," replied Hays, who evidently took the blunt denial as something significant. "Hullo, another rider. . . . Shore the desert is full of strangers today."

Back up the trail appeared a short, heavy man astride a horse and leading two pack animals.

"I saw him a while back. And here comes our ferryman. Looks like a boy."

"Huh. You haven't them eyes for nothin'. Wal, we'll get across now."

The rider, after another glance at the approaching man with the horses, took note of the ferry. Boat and third traveler arrived at the bank about the same time.

Hays, after a sharp look at the man with the three horses, led his animal aboard.

"How much is the fare?" inquired the newcomer.

"Two bits."

"For man and beast?"

"Well, sir, the regular fare is two bits for each man an' horse."

Whereupon the stout man threw the packs off his horses and carried them upon the boat.

"Wal, now, what is this fussy old geezer about?" queried Hays, much interested.

It was soon manifest. He tied the halter of his lead pack horse to the tail of his saddle horse. The second pack animal was similarly attached to the first. Then, bridle in hand, he stepped aboard.

"All right, boy. Go ahead."

"But, sir, ain't you fetchin' your horses on, too?"

"Yes, but I'll swim them over behind the boat. Get a move on, now."

The ferry boy pushed off with his pole, and dropping that for the big oar, he worked the boat out into the current, which caught it, and moved it across quite readily into the slack water on that side.

"Didn't like that, did you, boy?" the rider said, as he led the animal ashore.

Hays slapped his mount, driving him off the ferry, while he watched the stout man lead his three horses along the gunwale of the boat, until they could touch bottom. Heaving and splashing they waded out, and their owner followed, carrying one pack.

"Fetch my other pack, boy," he called.

"Johnny, don't do nothin' of the kind," observed Hays.

"I reckon I didn't intend to," said the boy, resentfully.

Puffing hard the stout man carried his second pack ashore.

"You're not very-obliging," he said, gruffly, as he felt in his pocket for loose change. The ferryboy came ashore, followed by Hays.

Presently the stout man, grumbling, and evidently annoyed at the necessity of producing a fat pocketbook, took out a one-dollar bill. The rider, amused and interested from his stand on the bank, saw something that made him start. Hays whipped out a gun.

"Throw Up Your Hands!" Suddenly Yelled Hays.

"Throw up your hands!" suddenly yelled Hays.

"Wha-at's this? R-robbers!" the stout man gulped.

Hays reached for the man's wallet. Then he stepped back, but still with gun extended.

"Get out of here now," he ordered. "Pretty well heeled, for an old bird."

"You'll hear from me, you glib-tongued robber," replied the other, furiously, as he rode away.

Hays sheathed his gun. He did not need to turn to face the rider, for, singularly enough, he had not done anything else.

"How's that strike you, stranger?"

"Pretty neat. It amused me," replied the rider. "The stingy old skindint deserved to be touched. Wasn't that a slick way to beat the boy here out of six bits?"

"It shore was. An' that's what riled me. Reckon, though, if he hadn't flashed the wallet I'd been a little more circumspect. Wal, I'll be ridin' along. Air you comin' with me, stranger?"

"Might as well," returned the other.

"Stranger, what'd you say your name was?"

"Call me Wall, Jim Wall," rejoined the rider.

Hays' nonchalance reassured Wall as to the status of Green River.

"Any dance hall in this burg?" asked Wall.

"Nary dance hall, worse luck any weakness for such?"

"Can't say it's a weakness, but the last two I bumped into make me want to steer clear of more."

"Women?" queried the robber.

"It wasn't any fault of mine."

"Wal, women ruined me," returned Hays, sententiously.

"You don't look it."

"Humph! Wal, here we air," replied the robber, halting before a red store building.

A red-whiskered man appeared in the doorway that led into a saloon and lodging house.

"Howdy, Red."

"Howdy, Hank."

"See anythin' of a fat party, sort of puffy in the face? He was ridin' a roan an' leading two packs."

"Oh, him. Sure. He rode through town yellin' he'd been robbed," returned the man called Red, grinning.

"The devil he did! Who was he, Red?"

"I dunno. Happy was standin' out here, an' when the feller stopped bellerin' that he wanted the sheriff 'cause he'd been robbed, why, Happy up an' says, 'Hey, my friend, did he leave anythin' on you?' Then the feller up, an' rode off."

FOR

District Attorney

TO THE VOTERS OF 52nd JUDICIAL DISTRICT:

We, the undersigned attorneys of Comanche County, take pleasure in endorsing Tom F. Reese's candidacy for District Attorney of this District.

Mr Reese has spent his entire life in Comanche County. He has served this County three terms as County Attorney, and has proved himself to be an able, fearless and vigorous prosecuting attorney; and is a lawyer whose ability, integrity, honesty and courage cannot be questioned.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE

SOFTBALL SYMPTOMS

By TEDDY

If you will notice there is no Team Standing as yet published in the News. Beginning in the next issue we will carry the team standing throughout the second division. We will also have the complete schedule in next issue. We hesitate publishing the schedule due to misunderstanding.

I will keep the score on every game and the batting average of all players. This will not be published in the News, but you may call the News office in case you wish to know your batting average.

There are six teams starting the second division. I would like to call your attention to the rules passed by the managers Friday afternoon:

The games will be played on the nights of Monday's, Wednesday's and Friday's.

The first game each of these nights will start at 8:15 and end at 9:15. The second will start at 9:30 and end at 10:30. There are exceptions to this rule, according to the score of the game when that time comes.

All rained out games will be played when suitable.

No player that signed up with a team in the first division can transfer to another team for the second division unless his team has disbanded.

Teams playing their first game must give me their list of men. This list is not to be changed without the consent of all managers.

These six teams that compose the league are stronger this division than last.

I am in receipt of a letter from some "Fire-fighter" stating that the Baptists stole the game from them played on June 25. He thinks the score should have been 4 to 2 in favor of the Fire Boys.

Thanks for the letter "Old Toughy." I am sorry that the game turned out like it did. If you will recall it upset my dope, but I kept score on that game.

SCHEDULE
