BERLIN, July 4.—Germany's "sturdy oak," President Paul von Hindenburg, refused today to bow before the will of Adolf Hitler, and the president's protegee, Franz von Papen, kept his place as vice chancellor.

Three Prisoners Jump Jail at Goldthwaite Headed for the Hills

SURPRISE JAILER'S WIFE

Three prisoners broke jail at Goldthwaite, Wednesday celebrating their Independence Day, after one of them had knocked down the wife of the jailer, Mrs. W. H. Lee.

Oran Conway, one of the fugitives, succeeded in slipping out of his cell and climbed atop it. When the jailer's wife came into the cell corridor with some medicine for another inmate, Conway leaped upon her, knocking her to the floor.

He seized the keys and liberated two other prisoners, John Dingus of Oklahoma and Gordon Langford, a Goldthwaite resident.

The three prisoners ran out of the jail, taking the jailer's pistol with them, and escaped in a small car belonging to S. P. Morris, which was parked near the jail. The license number on the car was 764-592.

They sped away to the west. Officers were inclined to believe they were heading for the rugged country around Brownwood.

According to information released through the Associated Press of the nation, there were one hundred fifteen casualties on the Fourth in the United States this year.

Deaths were small in comparison to the years that have past recently and to the millions of individuals who took part in some way in the celebration activities of the Fourth.

Only one person was killed from fireworks and several injured. The celebration is this respect was milder and saner than ever before.

Automobiles and drowning were responsible for the majority of deaths. The early figures showed the following holiday deaths:

Fireworks 1; autos 44; drownings 48; accidental shootings 2; other causes 20.

Three inmates of a penitentiary and 56 others were injured when a grandstand collapsed, and five persons were burned to death when an airplane crashed.

No Local Mishaps

So far as has been learned there were no local casualties or serious mishaps in Coryell County. Demonstration with fireworks was scarce. The swimming pool, creek banks, golf course and skating-rink attracted the most holiday attention.

WIN FIRST DIVISION OF SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Bob Arnold's independent team won the first division of the local Softball League with .809 per cent.

Arnold's club won seventeen games and lost four. The closest rival to the winning team was the Fire Department club with .762 per cent. Arnold won a cinch on the first division two days before the first half closed.

In the first part of the first division indications were that Ward's team would land on top but both Arnold's and the Firemen rallied unanticipated strength to overcome Ward's early lead and run the favored team to third place before the division ended.

Of the groups there will be a division of boys and girls of the grammar school. Anyone not already graduated from the grammar school will be entered in this class. There will also be a high school division for boys and one for girls who have not graduated from high school. The third will be the adult division for men and one for women. There will probably be no mixed division.

There will be an entrance fee of ten cents for each of the school divisions, per entry, and twenty-five cents for each adult in each division. All those wishing to enter the tournament may register at the High School or either of the three local drug stores. Entries will close at 6:00 o'clock Monday afternoon, July 9. C. L. Thompson is manager of the tournament.

Land reclaimed from the Pontin marshes, the former malarial tract near Rome, has yielded 132,000 bushels of grain on the 7352 acres cultivated this year.

Mrs. Fred Prewitt's disposition is exceeded only by her generosity—buying drinks for her friends. Ed Lengefeld should have been in some political race this year, with that pleasing manner of salutation. Mrs. Mabel Gardner's truck and tire troubles shouldn't worry her now that the matter has been given her attention.

'round the square

By
The Snooper

I hardly knew John Gilmer when I saw him yesterday, but he is the same old boy with a few additional pounds in average. Mrs. R. E. Meeks was seen 'round the square several times Thursday morning, checking up on the milk situation in Gatesville. That aristocratic looking pipe Billy Nesbitt was smoking amost disguised the smoker but a second look assured me it was he. Mason Crawford picking potatoes on the square; can you imagine that? He happened to be picking them in a grocery store window, however. When I see Hiram Swindall with a stack of papers under his arm I never knew whether he is going to call them the Standard, the Advocate or the Forum. From that usual smile on Freda Weaver's face she must have enjoyed her "Fourth"; not too much though.

SLIGHT NEWS STORY BRINGS RESPONSE FROM SEVENTY-FIVE PER CENT OF THOSE AFFECTED

It is encouraging when a newspaper finds concrete evidence that its readers really read the paper. Such a case has come to the ears of one of the News force and it is impossible to refrain from doing a bit of crowing.

In last Friday's issue of the News there appeared an article referring to the financial condition of the schools of the county. In the body of the article was a section, not referred to in the head, which told of the fact that transportation aid money had arrived.

There were only nine lines on the subject.

According to information received from reliable sources there are 250 families effected by the transportation aid in this county. Within 48 hours after the release of the paper more than 75 per cent, or 190, had gotten in touch with the county superintendent about the matter.

The News was the only newspaper to carry the information and no other agency was used to spread the word.

EDITORIALS IN BRIEF

It was not until after the News had gone to press late Monday afternoon that any of its force knew that at the same time the wheels of the press were turning Bill McCraw; candidate for Attorney-General of Texas was addressing a crowd at the courthouse. The editor was present at the mass meeting addressed by C. C. McDonald. As soon as McDonald's speech was concluded, he hurried back to his desk to report the high points of the Governor candidate's message in order that it might "make" the late issue. He did not know that McCraw had planned to be in Gatesville Monday afternoon and we doubt very seriously if anyone knew of his coming. We admire Bill McCraw and would have liked very much to have heard the worthy candidate. We hope no other candidates will slip up on us and deprive the News of a good story. Our motto is "Giving Its Readers News While it IS News," and we want to live up to that slogan.

Here is a good one; we hope our advertisers and local merchants (who do not advertise) will read it: A smart editor (not your own) of a New York paper has pointed out the fact that people read newspapers because they want them. People pay for it and whole families quarrel good naturedly over it and anxiously await their turn to read it. Door to door salesmen use all kinds of ingenious devices to get inside the home, but the newspaper is a welcome guest. Door to door handbills are callers but it is the newspaper that is invited in. The newspaper is so much a part of the family that its pages constitute the finest advertising medium yet devised.

By the time this reaches its readers there is no telling what might have happened in the meantime regarding the situation in Germany. Even the daily papers have that handicap; things are happening so fast and furiously there under the Hitler dictatorship. The latest news of any consequence is the fact that the government has continued to postpone publication of an authentic list giving the number that have been executed at the instance of Hitler's ruthless suppression of revolt in Nazi ranks.

The absence of firecrackers on the Fourth of July in this section has always been a puzzle, especially to those who have seen the annual Independence Day demonstrations elsewhere. We understand that particularly in the East the Fourth of July is always a day of much noise and excitement, firecrackers and like fireworks being the order of the day. In this section of the country the situation is somewhat reversed inasmuch as Christmas is the day when toy explosives are most popular, while in other parts of the country Christmas is not the popular day for such means of celebration. We do not know which locality is wrong but somebody has the cart before the horse.

It has always been a question of controversy as to the most popular movie star in Hollywood. The News is of the opinion that the only legitimate way in which to settle this question would be for the President to create a new department with an elective secretary at the head. It would be interesting to see whether the men would put in Garbo, Harlow or Lupe Valez, or the women would demand a Gable, a Montgomery or Jimmie Durante.

STUMPIN' THE STATE

WITH THE SPECTATOR

Editor's Note.—This column is published by the News as a news feature because of the interesting comments of this writer upon politics. The views expressed are those of the writer and should not be interpreted as reflecting the editorial opinions of this newspaper.

TOM CONNALLY opened his campaign for reelection to the United States Senate at Greenville Saturday night, before a crowd of 5,000 people. The Senator gave his stand on several important policies recently challenged by Congressman Joe Bailey and recounted his part in the recovery measure of President Roosevelt.

And now for the fireworks in this senatorial race! According to J. P. Rice, state-wide campaign manager for the junior Senator of Texas, Connally will deliver half a dozen or more addresses, one or more in each section of the state. Apparently Connally is not going to make a county-to-county campaign such as Bailey has done.

Bailey has proposed that a debate be held tonight in Houston on their votes on the independent offices appropriation bill. If these two gentlemen meet, you can bet that there will be a discussion of much wider topics than the independent offices appropriation bill.

The presence of C. C. McDonald in the gubernatorial race keeps alive the Ferguson and anti-Ferguson issue, as McDonald is vigorously supported by Ferguson and his paper, The Forum. Ferguson has indorsed McDonald as the candidate who will carry out the family politics and apparently McDonald is willing to carry that label.

The Ferguson and anti-Ferguson issue will not be raised to a great extent, in your correspondent's opinion, in the first primary. Of course, if McDonald enters the second primary that will be the chief issue. If Allred were to enter the second race with McDonald, the liquor question would probably be discussed as much as the Ferguson issue. However, the columnist that goes predicting who will be in the run-off will without doubt call the wrath of the supporters of five gubernatorial candidates on his head, so we had better stop here.

JOE BAILEY is fighting hard for the rural vote of the state, according to his speech at Conroe July 1. Here Bailey told of his advocacy for readjustment of the tariff, permitting expansion of foreign trade, and providing for the creation of millions of jobs.

Supporters of Tom F. Hunter held an impressive rally at his home town, Wichita Falls, July 2. Delegates from as far away as Waco and Big Spring, together with groups from San Angelo, Abilene, Fort Worth and Childress attended.

WILLIAM MCGRAW of Dallas, candidate for Attorney General, took occasion here Monday to declare that "the big corporations are fighting me . . . Texas must drop sectionalism and fight the depression . . . my opponent is an employe of the utilities." McGraw is a brilliant speaker and campaigner and would make Texas a good Attorney General but he is undoubtedly spending too much time attacking his opponents.

Marcus M. Chunn, Pastor

German Bethel Baptist Church

"Many of the great men of history earned their fame outside of their regular occupations in odd bits of time, which most people squander" are words of a great writer. Whether it shall be your lot or mine to earn fame in odd bits of time or by a general perseverance to one particular line is not given the writer to say, but great improvements can be made by sacrificing just a little time, should there be no spare time. Thank you brethren! Your efforts are appreciated. The sparrows never carry in their nests with one effort, but keep everlastingly at it until the job is done; and we may learn from; but if we can not keep everlastingly at it our spare moments or odd bits of time are of so much value when rightly used. May God bless your every effort!

Last Sunday we were somewhat disturbed in our services by heat, rain and muddy roads, but we are very thankful for such disturbances as they work together for good. May it please God to send us more of those refreshing rains.

Next Sunday our services will be as usual, the Lord willing.

Sunday school 10 a. m. with classes for old and young and most of the young peoples classes use the English language. Preaching service at 11 a. m. in German. 7:15 p. m. The B. Y. P. U. service, 8:15 preaching service, which are both in the American language. All are welcome to worship with us. The pastor expects all of the members in each of the services. Further announcements will be given Sunday.

W. H. Buening; Pastor.

Presbyterian Church

On last Saturday afternoon, the pastor and the six girls and two boys returned from a week in camp near Belton. This is the seventh year of this Intermediate Camp of Central Texas Presbytery, and this year was the largest in the history of the Camp. There were 100 boys and girls from all over the Presbytery. Not only was this the largest camp in number, but the most enjoyed.

Local Girl Wins Scholarship

For several years the Camp has awarded two scholarships to the Young People's Encampment at Kerrville: one to a boy and one to a girl. To win a scholarship a boy or girl must have been in the Camp for three consecutive years, they must be good campers, they must do good work in the classes offered, and they must come with the highest recommendations from their home church. The adult advisors and counselors elect from those eligible the boy and girl best qualified. This year Fay Byrom was awarded the girl's scholarship, which will take care of her expenses to the Young People's Encampment at Kerrville next June. We are all proud of Fay.

Communion Service Sunday

Next Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service we will observe the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. It is not only the privilege but the obligation of every church member to be at this service. This is a service of consecration and dedication. We are expecting everyone to be present.

The public is most cordially invited to worship with us at all services. You will receive a hearty welcome.

Jas. M. McLean, Pastor.

Following business hours the hostess passed refreshments of chicken sandwiches and iced tea to the Club members and visitors.

The next meeting will be held July 6, in the home of Mrs. G. B. Walker.

Miscellaneous Shower Honors Recent Bride.

One of the most delightful affairs of the season was the beautiful shower given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Wilson on Friday afternoon, June 22, complimenting Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson. Mrs. Ralph Pierce, Mrs. Albert Strickland and Misses Berta Grant and Georgia Graham were joint hostesses to the occasion.

By two o'clock the guests began arriving, and at three P. M. the house was full. Music was furnished by Mr. Carroll Wilson, Misses Lucy Mae Wilson and Berta Grant. After a number of delightful pieces were played, Misses Ruth and Stella Cude sang "Yours and Mine."

The guests were then invited into a room where an attractive fish pond furnished amusement. Misses Myrtle and Audia Campbell were asked to fish with the bride, but the bride's catch was so heavy that her line broke. One of the guests came to her rescue, and found that she had fished a large basket of lovely gifts.

After admiring the gifts and registering in the bride's book, the guests were invited in the dining room where they were served ice cream and cake.

Nearly forty friends and relatives were present and attended the affair.

Party and Shower For Recent Bride.

A pretty party of interest was given Tuesday evening of this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Potts, honoring Mrs. Burt Larson, nee Miss Margaret McMordie, with Mrs. Lee Colwick, Mrs. Leonard Milner and Miss Buchie Wollard as joint hostesses.

Tables were grouped on the beautiful lighted lawn surrounded by fish ponds, greenery and other decorated attractions. A fourth of July patriotic theme was observed in table decorations and bridge appointments. Miniature silk flags served as favors.

Marble machine games, popular amusement of the season, were played during the evening. Miss Margaret Gandy, high scorer, was awarded handkerchiefs for her efforts.

Following a delicious and appetizing refreshment course, the bride was given a line and asked to fish in the pond. This she did, and to her surprise caught a gold fish bearing interesting directions which lead her to a large assortment of beautiful and attractive gifts. Forty attendants were there to admire the gifts and enjoy the occasion.

ROBBERS' ROOST

It was this speech of Red's that decided several things for Jim Wall.

"I want to look after my horse," was all he said.

"Take him round back of the barn. I'm dog-tired. Send that lazy Jake after my hoss."

This edifice was the last one on the street. The barn mentioned was some distance back, at the end of a pole fence. Upon turning a corner to enter the corral he encountered a loose-jointed young man.

"Say, are you Jake?" he asked.

"You bet," returned the other.

"There's a man out in front who calls himself Hank Hays. He wants you to come get his horse. Do you know him?"

The stable boy's reply to that was to rush off, his boots thudding.

"Enough said," muttered Wall to himself. "Mr. Hays stands well in Green River, as far as this outfit is concerned."

Wall sauntered back and before Hank Hays and the two individuals with whom he was talking were aware of his presence he had seen them. They turned at his slow, clinking step. Neither of the two with Hays was the man called Red.

"Hullo, here you air," spoke up Hays. "I was speakin' of you. Meet Happy Jack an' Brad Lincoln. . . . Fellers, this stranger to Green River answers to the handle of Jim Wall."

Greetings were exchanged, but not one of the three offered a hand. To Wall the man called Happy Jack fitted his name. The only contradictory feature lay in his guns. Like Hank Hays, he packed two. The other, Lincoln, was some one to look at twice—a swarthy, dark, restless-eyed man, who, like Hays and his companion, had nothing of the cowboy stripe in his make-up.

"Let's have a drink," suggested Hays.

"Don't care if I do," responded Wall.

The interior, bright with lamp-light, proved to be more pretentious than the outside of the saloon.

The men lined up at the bar, to be served drinks by Red, who was evidently bartender as well as proprietor. Wall missed nothing.

"Cowpuncher?" queried Lincoln.

"Yes. But I've not ridden the range much of late years," replied Wall.

"You've the cut of it. Where you aimin' for?"

"No place in particular," replied Wall guardedly. "Might try riding here, if I can get on some outfit."

"On the dodge?" queried Lincoln.

"What might you mean by 'on the dodge'?"

"Anybody particular lookin' for you?"

"I daresay. More than one man." "So I thought. Friend, you have the cut, the eye, the movement, the hand of a gun-fighter. I happen to know the brand."

"Yes? Well, if that's so I hope it isn't against me in Utah."

Here Hays, who had heard this bit of dialogue, interposed both with person and speech:

"Wall, that's again a man anywhere in the West, generally. So many fools wantin' to try you out! But I reckon it's a ticket for my outfit."

"Your outfit?" questioned Wall.

"Shore. Don't mind Brad. Let's go an' eat. . . . Fellers, we'll see you later."

Wall followed Hays into a back room, where a woman waved them to seats at a table.

At the conclusion of the meal Jim Wall had to guard himself against the feeling of well-being resulting from a full stomach.

"Wall, let's go out an' talk before we join the other fellers," suggested Hays. They returned to the big room. It was empty except for Red, who was filling a lamp.

"They've all gone down to meet the stage. It's overdue now."

"Stage! From where?"

"West, so set easy," laughed Hays. "Thet one from east won't git in till next Wednesday. By that time you won't be here."

"No? Where will I be, since you seem to know?"

"You may be in the Garden of Eden, eatin' peaches," retorted Hays. "See here. Wall, you're a testy cuss."

Any reason why you can't be a good feller?"

"Come to think of that, yes, there is," returned Wall, thoughtfully.

"All right. Thanks for that much. I reckon I understand you better. An' I'd like to ask you some questions."

"Fire away."

"You said you was broke?" Hays began.

"I will be when I pay for this night's lodging."

"Thet's on me. I'll stake you to some money. You'll want to set in the game with us?"

"Any strings on a loan?"

"Wal, friend, the string is that I want to locate you. Bend over here, so I can get your ear," went on Hays, confidentially, and when Wall had complied he said: "I run true to form today when I held up that stranger. But it was a blunder, considerin' the iron I have in the fire. Now, listen. Lately I've got in with a rancher over here in the Henry mountains. He's an Englishman with more money than sense. Bought ten thousand head of cattle an' a lot of horses. There's some tough cowboy outfits over there, an' more'n one real rustler outfit. Wal, this Englishman—his name is Herrick—got the idee of hirin' all the hands available, cowpunchers, range-riders, gun-toters an' plain out-an'-out bad men. An' to throw this select outfit agin the whole country. Herrick took a shine to me, made me what he calls his superintendent, an' sent me all over lookin' for hard-shootin', hard-ridin' men. An' that's how you happened to run into me. I call it good luck for us both."

"You've taken me for one of the hard-shootin', hard-ridin' kind, eh?"

"Wal, I want you in my outfit," resumed Hays. "Brad didn't cotton to you, I seen first off. But he's a gun-thrower himself. All the same he's in my outfit an' I reckon you might get along. It's Heeseeman who sticks in my craw."

"Heeseeman. Who is he?"

"Heeseeman is the rustler of Dragon Canyon. None of the ranchers even 'round here know thet, but I know it. He's got a small outfit, but shore enough bad. An' in some way he got wind of Herricks' scheme. Darned if he didn't pack over to the Henrys with his outfit an' start ridin' for him."

"Heeseeman saw the same opportunity as you?" queried Wall, quietly.

"Wal, yes, I was comin' to thet," resumed Hays, gruffly. "I got the upper hand, though, an' I'll be the boss. Thet'll lead to friction. There'll be two factions sooner or later, an' the sooner thet fight comes off the better."

"I see. Less of a division of spoils."

"Wall, I'm no rustler," snapped Hays.

"Excuse me. If it isn't impertinent, may I ask just what you are?"

"Ever hear of Henry Plummer?"

"Can't remember if I did."

"Wal, Plummer flourished some ten an' more years ago, first in Montana an' later in Idaho. He was the greatest robber the West ever developed. Was an officer of the law while he was head of the biggest robber gang the frontier ever know. From Bannock to Lewiston he kept the miners, the stages, the Wells Fargo in terror for years. . . . Wal, I seen Plummer hanged. I was one of his gang, a young man then in years."

"Thanks for the confidence, Hays," returned Wall, in surprise. "You must have strong interest in me to tell that."

"Shore I have. But I don't care to be classed as a rustler."

"Too low down, eh?"

"It certainly ain't any two-bit cattle stealin'. . . . However, thet's not the point between you an' me. What I want to know is, will you take a job in my outfit?"

"That depends, Hays," returned Wall.

"Any scruples about it? Remember, I come clean with you."

"No. I broke jail in Cheyenne."

"What was you in for?"

"Shot a man. They were goin' to hang me."

"Ahuh. Was thet square?"

"I didn't think so. . . . Had to kill the jailer to get out."

"When was all this, Wall?"

"Some years ago."

"An' since then?"

"Been shooting my way out of one jam after another."

"Much obliged," replied Hays, feelingly. "Wall, you're a hunted man. You're broke. It's about where you cross the divide."

"One more question. What 'bout this Herrick's family?"

"Wal, he ain't got any," rejoined Hays. "We heard somethin' about a sister comin' out, but she never turned up."

"Sister? It'd be a h—l of a note if she did."

"Wal, this shore ain't no country for women."

It seemed to Jim Wall that this sally completed a definitely conscious feeling in his mind toward the self-confessed robber. If it had not been dislike and disgust before, it certainly fixed at that now. Wall sensed a gathering interest in the situation he had happened upon.

to fill with loud-voiced, heavily booted men.

Among them were Happy Jack, Lincoln and a giant of a man with Hays called for drinks and insisted on a handshake which he executed solemnly, as if it were a compact which implied honor even among thieves. Shortly afterwards the saloon gradually began a russet beard, whom Hays introduced as Montana. Then a man, undoubtedly a trapper, entered. He wore buckskin and seemed out of place in that crowd. The bartender, Red, did a thriving business.

"Seems to be no lack of money," observed Wall to the watchful Hays. "Where do they get it?"

"Wall, you're surprised, I see. So was I. This burg here is a stage stop for points in Utah an' west. Lots of travel. But there's big cattle ranges off toward the Henrys."

"I see. But at that bar there are half a dozen men who are not travelers or ranchers or riders."

"Wal, for thet matter, all men in these diggin's have got to be riders. It's a long way from one waterin' place to another. But you hit into things, at thet. There's four or five fellers I never seen before."

"Who's the loud feller—the one with the plaid vest?"

"His name is Stud somethin' or other. Seen him before an' ain't crazy about him."

"Let's play poker."

"Shore, but not just among ourselves."

"Got any money, Hank?" asked Happy Jack.

"Did you ever see me broke? Brad, go dig up some suckers. But not thet lombre they call Stud. He didn't get thet name playin' solitaire."

SOFTBALL SYMPTOMS

By TEDDY

Gartman's crew nosed out Arnold's gang Monday night 6 to 3. This was a great game from start to finish. Bob Arnold is making a real hurler out of Sonny Hair. Gartman has practically the same team that he started the first division with. His team is doped to go high toward winning the second division, if he continues to get them out.

The Baptists, with revived interest and much enthusiasm, downed the Firemen Monday night 12 to 4. Dr. Ray, being out with an injured arm, proved a lose to the Fire fighters. Alvis pitched a good game, but often went wild. These churchmen will make it plenty "tuff" for the other five teams in the league before this division is over.

—MY—DOPE—

Today—The Baptists will defeat the Methodists with ease. Arnold will have no trouble defeating the Bachelors. Monday—The Firemen will defeat the Bachelors.

The Baptists will defeat Gartman's gang, but will have trouble.

McCoy Film Is Filled With Fire-Fighting In Action Thriller Movie

The latest of Tim McCoy's adventurous exploits on the silver screen involves a series of thrill-packed; exciting escapades as a member of a large metropolitan fire fighting force in the new Columbia film, "A Man's Game," opening today at the Ritz Theatre for a two-day run.

Written especially for McCoy, the film relates the tale of an adventurous young scion of great wealth who enlists in the fire department when his father disowns him following a serious automobile accident. Summoned to a factory fire; Tim and his friend, Ward Bond; rescue a young girl—and immediately afterwards the two start intense rivalry for the girls' affections.

Complications of high dramatic intensity set in when Tim secures a job for the girl in his father's office and a rascally cashier frames her to make it appear that she absconded with funds in his possession.

The film is climaxed by a sensational fire, the scenes of which were secured in Los Angeles recently when the huge Crystal Palace Ice Rink was destroyed in flames at a loss estimated at $100,000.

MARIA SCHOENEWOLF BLOHM

Mrs. Fred J. Blohm, nee Schoenewolf, died at her home in Temple, Texas last week, Friday, June 22, at the age of 47 years 6 months and 23 days. Mrs. Blohm was well known here, more particularly in the German Bethel Baptist community, being a daughter of the late Martin and Maria Schoenewolf. Mrs. Blohm had been poorly for some time and in the last few months suffered much until the good Lord took her into the home above, where suffering is unknown.

Maria Schoenewolf Blohm was born in Oberkaufen Germany Nov. 29, 1886. She came to Texas with her parents in 1894. At the age of 13 years she was converted and in that same year she was baptized by the Rev. F. Sievers and united with the German Bethel Baptist church. On April 23, 1905 she was united in holy wedlock to Mr. F. J. Blohm and soon after their marriage they moved to Temple, and from that time Mrs. Blohm with her husband has been a member of the Memorial Baptist church at Temple. "Mrs. Blohm was a noble christian woman, a devoted wife and a truly great mother" are words of one who knew her for many years.

She is gone but not forgotten. She leaves to mourn her untimely passing, her husband Mr. F. J. Blohm and her son Carl of Temple and a daughter Mrs. Chas E. Fuller of San Bernardino, Calif., a son-in-law and a daughter-in-law, one sister Mrs. Fred Kock of Gatesville and four brothers: Theo., Chas., Martin and August Schoenewolf all of Gatesville.

Many from the German Bethel community attended the funeral last Sunday. The German Bethel male quarett sang at her request. Rev. B. B. Blaylock; her pastor, officiated.

powerful drama by the noted French playwright, Jacques Deval, and depicts the effect of a murder on a woman of fine instincts and delicate sensibilities who kills an unscrupulous rival because she is wrecking her home. Not that the picture is purely a psychological study by any means, for there is plenty of action, beginning with the slaying of a popular musical star in a theatre during rehearsal, the chase and capture of a criminal in the files, and winding up with a climax that is said to have one of the most novel twists ever conceived for the screen.
