

Funeral Services Held for Couple Killed in Murder-Suicide Tragedy

Double funeral services were held at Copperas Cove Sunday afternoon for Joe Deen Blankenship, 22, and his wife, Bernice, 20, who died from wounds inflicted by a pistol at the home of G. H. Middick, a farmer who resides in the Antelope community.

Several hundred attended the services, which were conducted by Rev. O. Turner assisted by H. W. Hinson. Burial was in the Copperas Cove Cemetery.

The shooting occurred on the back porch of Mr. Middick's home, at about 10:30 o'clock Friday morning, where the young couple had been living for some time, it being the home of Blankenship's grandfather. Mrs. Blankenship shot and killed her husband with a .32 calibre pistol then turned the gun on her self and put a fatal bullet through her own head. Mrs. Blankenship died instantly; her husband lived for some twenty minutes.

E. R. Goodson, justice of the peace, at Copperas Cove investigated the double deaths and returned a verdict of murder and suicide. It is supposed that a quarrel preceded the shooting but to date the cause of their quarrel has not been learned, although the gun was found in Mrs. Blankenship's hand.

Blankenship is the son of Mrs. Ethel Blankenship of Dallas and Jim Blankenship of Temple. He also is survived by a sister, Fern Blankenship, of Dallas.

Mrs. Blankenship's family name was Davenport. Her family lives in San Angelo.

Mrs. Blankenship formerly was Miss Bernice Davenport of San Angelo, daughter of William E. Davenport, an attorney there. Her husband was reared in this community. They were married in Wichita Falls, Nov. 29, 1933, and a short time later came to live on the Middick property.

OBJECTIONS RAISED TO EXPUNGE OF BEEF

Complaints have come to the office of the county agent indicating that condemned cattle are not being properly destroyed by the owners, causing offense to others.

It is to be understood that there will be no "check" for those who fail to abide by the provision of the contract which states that condemned cattle must be destroyed by burial or by burying. In case of burial, the cattle must have their paunches slashed and then be buried under two feet of dirt.

The cooperation of cattle owners is sought and it is hoped that no more trouble of this nature will be made.

Shipping of cattle in this section has been temporarily discontinued due to congestion in the stockyards, however, apprais-

Still Taken in Raid; Owners Face Charges For Liquor Violation

FEDERAL MEN MAKE ARREST

J. C. Robinett and John Lew Allen were arrested on the former's farm five miles southwest of Ireland Wednesday evening and carried to Waco by federal officers, where they were charged with violation of laws regarding the manufacture of liquor.

The arrest was made by federal men assisted by local peace officers upon information reported at Gatesville.

A still of 400 gallons capacity was confiscated together with 600 gallons of rye mash and 60 gallons of whiskey in barrels and open containers. A number of shipping kegs were also taken by the officers.

There is some question as to the time the still had been in operation.

Continued Showing of Oil in Ireland Well At 1,000 - Foot Depth

SECOND WELL SPURRED-IN

Oil operations in this section are being continued daily with constant showing of oil and gas in the Pugh-Pace Doyle No. 1, located on the Doyle Ranch north of Ireland in Hamilton county.

The Doyle well, started a few months ago, is down to a depth of more than 1,000 feet. Unmistakable showings of oil were found last Saturday week as several barrels of dark fluid were bailed out of the hole. Such indications have continued to be prevalent since that time.

The Sunrise Oil Company, of Fort Worth, spudded-in the latter part of last week in their shallow-well test. Down to about one hundred and twenty feet to date, the drillers report satisfactory results on the new test. This well is located in Coryell county about three miles east of the Pugh-Pace location.

It is said that there are 100 different kinds of games played with sticks. But there are more than that number with golf sticks.—Pontiac (Mich.) Press.

Allred's Brother Brands Hunter Rumors False in Address Here Saturday

ASSAILS "TOM'S" PLATFORM

Hon. Ben Allred of Boston, Texas, brother of James V. Allred, spoke in the interest of the Attorney General's candidacy for governor on the courthouse lawn Saturday afternoon before a large crowd.

Allred preceded Senator Tom DeBerry of Bogata, who spoke here for the Attorney General Monday, August 13.

The speaker announced it was his intention to discuss the platforms of both of the gubernatorial contestants and offer proof against what he termed the "yarns" made by Hunter against Allred.

He said Hunter, his brother's opponent in the runoff contest, had declared that Allred had lost every suit filed against the major oil companies. He then presented a check for $1,073,000 which he said the Attorney General had won from one of the big Harris county oil concerns. Hunter, he declared, was saying that the suit was filed by Allred's predecessors and he then offered a letter from R. L. Bobbitt of Laredo, Allred's predecessor, and an affidavit from former Attorney General Claude Pollard showing that the suit was filed and prosecuted by the present incumbent, James Allred.

He branded as false Hunter's assertion that his brother was supported by the oil companies of Texas. He said that Hunter was vice-president of the Hunter Oil Corporation, a large producer, and that Jacob L. Waters, head of the Texas Company, T. H. McGregor, general attorney for the Humble Company, and other big producers were supporting Hunter.

"The oil companies have cast in their lot with Tom because Jimmie Allred has protected the people against them," he said. "The politicians at Austin are also supporting Hunter because Jimmie served the people and not them."

He said that everything in Hunter's platform was for taking the power of government from the people and giving it to "Tom". He is for the abolition of many elective state offices and wants to put their power in a cabinet of five men to be appointed by himself," he stated.

FRIENDSHIP CHURCH OPENS ITS REVIVAL

The revival meeting at Friendship Missionary Baptist Church began Friday night and will continue all this week, according to the pastor, W. O. Hopson.

Rev. Charles Parker, of Belton, is conducting the services. Everyone is invited to attend and help with the meeting.

Bankhead Deadline on Applications Extended to Wednesday, Aug. 15

Wednesday, midnight, August 15, has been set as the absolute deadline for receiving applications for tax-exempt certificates under the Bankhead Law, this being an extension of four days from the previous deadline date.

"Absolutely no applications will be taken after that date," stated county agent D. W. Sherrill.

Applications will be taken to College Station Friday night where they will be submitted to the State Board of Reviews. It is thought that it will take approximately three or four days to get the tax-exempt certificates back to the local office, or about August 25. Producers will be notified by card and through the press what to do to get their certificates.

In case a tenant or landlord is in doubt as to whether he has signed the application he should immediately get in touch with the respective committeeman in his area before the deadline date.

Cotton producers who are ready to gin and sell their cotton before the certificates arrive may deposit with the ginner a certified cashier's check for the federal tax, which amounts to about $30.00 per bale. This deposit will be refunded when the certificates arrive. It is suggested however that producers wait rather than sell their cotton now.

Three-fourths of the compliance certificates have been mailed to Washington for the second payment on reduction contracts. Signers who agreed to destroy cotton must do so by Wednesday so that committeemen may visit and approve the crop destruction.

G'VILLE WOMEN ON UNIVERSITY TOURS

SILVER SPRINGS, Fla., Aug. 9—(Spl.)—A party of 160 school teachers from 26 different states, touring Florida, arrived here today from St. Augustine in four buses with the University Tours of Oklahoma City and enjoyed the day sight-seeing and riding on the glass bottom boats. An additional 190 will arrive here via University Tours tomorrow.

The party is in charge of Floyd D. Focht, professor of history, in the University of Tours, which is really a traveling university for normal students, who get firsthand information on geography, history, art and other subjects. Others faculty members in the party were Harold Dobson, journalism; Prof. Meadow, astronomy; Silas Green, art; Dr. Pearce, psychology, and Miss Laura Miesner, American literature.

Included in the party from Gatesville, Texas, were Wilhelmina Cayce, 1102 Waco Street, and Aurora Yongue.

Fire Destroys Home Of Evant Physician During Early Hours

LOSS ESTIMATED $2,500

Early morning flames demolished the home of Dr. J. C. Gardner, at Evant shortly after 4:00 a. m. Sunday.

The Gardner home and all household furnishings were turned into smoke by the ravaging conflagration doing damage estimated at 2,500.00. Insurance on the dwelling amounted to $1,500 with $500 on the household goods.

There was no one at home when the fire broke out. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gardner left during the night before to join his father at Lleveland who has been residing there for several months. At the first sight of the fire neighbors turned in the alarm and despite of their efforts to save the dwelling the fire spread rapidly to consume the house and contents.

Neighbors and witnesses of the fire were unable to account for its cause or origin.

The Gardner home was bought by Dr. Gardner, Evant physician, who moved to Coryell county from Hearne several years ago. The house formerly belonged to Dr. V. A. Hartman.

DOUBLE-HEADER BILL SLATED FOR TONIGHT

Killeen, a neighboring city that boasts of much softball enthusiasm and a good team, will send a club of All-Stars to Gatesville for a double-header engagement with a local team of picked players here tonight.

On Thursday night the Gatesville club will play a return engagement at Killeen.

The game tonight should draw an appreciative crowd of fans

GROCERS PROFIT BY USE OF COLD STORAGE

H. Bauman and Son, progressive local grocers, have recently leased a commodious cold storage vault capable of containing one carload of merchandise.

Price Bauman, manager of the two local stores, in commenting on the recent improvement said, "We are now able to buy compounds, meats, vegetables and fruits in large quantities and still be assured that they will be fresh when we deliver them to our customers. Such service is impossible without cold storage space as compounds especially become rancid and turn yellow unless they are kept on storage or sold immediately."

NOTICE: Any erroneous reflection upon the character or standing of any person or firm appearing in its columns will be gladly and promptly corrected upon calling the attention of the management to the article in question.

Her Excellency, the Governor of Texas, has proclaimed the current week as Texas Centennial Week, during which every Texan is called upon to Think-Talk-Write Texas Centennial for 1936. The Governor's decree has been supported locally by a proclamation for the observance of Centennial Week in Coryell County by His Honor, Rob't W. Brown, county judge of Coryell county. Although this county has very little to offer comparatively in material of general historical interest it is hoped that the citizens of this vicinity will interest themselves in the forthcoming Texas anniversary. It is quite likely that something will be done toward placing Coryell county on the active list of Centennial supporters. A Centennial Advisory Board has been appointed here for that purpose. With the leadership of the Board and the combined efforts and cooperation of the residentship Coryell may contribute in at least a small measure to the ideals of the Centennial.

Regarding of everything that has been said about the necessity of farmers making application for tax-exempt certificates on this year's cotton crop, it is surprising to learn that many producers still fail to comprehend. Non-signers of the 1934 Reduction Contract, many of them, are laboring under the false impression that because they are non-signers they are exempt from making application for certificates, which on the contrary is not so. At the same time there are many contract signers who seem to feel that because they did sign-up on the contract it isn't necessary for them to make application. However, it should be distinctly understood, as the county agent has said many times, "if a man raises as much as one stalk of cotton and expects to sell his cotton without paying tax to the federal government, he MUST make application for tax-exempt certificates. We feel that if the producers of this section will observe the instructions of the county agent through the press there will be no mistaken impressions about the program.

Neff Park will get a C. C. C. Camp at an early date, according to a recent news dispatch. The only delay in the project is the question of getting plenty of water. Fortunately McGregor has come to the aid of park officials by offering to drill a water well on the site large enough to supply the required amount of water. Work was begun Thursday. The beautiful wooded area was given to the state for the purpose of a park by Pat M. Neff, in memory of his mother. A large park of the park area is in Coryell county.

With the second primary rapidly drawing toward its climax it is surprising to note that bloc support for Tom Hunter for Governor has not come to the surface in Coryell county. The local Allred supporters who feel a bit more secure now since their man got into the run-off have come out stronger for the candidate who led the ticket in the first race. Hunter ran third in that contest in Coryell with 615 votes, hence we know that the popular candidate has some support in this section, despite the fact that he did not have a speaking date here. If Hunter's past reputation is enough to justify more than 600 staunch supporters in this vicinity we feel that with two candidates from which to choose in the run-off, he can be counted on to very nearly carry the county on the 25th, and we wouldn't be surprised if he does so.

SAN JACINTO

(Written for Texas Centennial Week)

"Remember ye the Alamo!
Remember Goliad,
And draw the sword for home
and Liberty!

Remember ye the Alamo! Strike
now redress your wrongs!
On, on to death or on to victory!

The San Jacinto gently flowed
'tween banks of gorgeous bloom.

Smiling down seemed April's
azure sky,

All nature dreaming drowsily
anear the mid day hour.

Was startled by the rallying battle-cry:

Remember ye the Alamo! Brave
Houston at the front.

Led on toward Santa Anna's mighty host,

And with that cry "The Alamo and Goliad!" They charged,

Spurred on by burning thought of what was lost,

Seared on their souls the memory of that Thermopylae
When Travis, Bowie, Bonham,
Crockett, all,

Held, 'till the last brave man
went down, the Alamo,

They shouted, "Let the sword of Justice fall!"

They fought as men immortal,
and ere the hour was done,
Had vanquished for and won the victory.

Out of defeat brought freedom
from alien Nation's power,
And gained for Texas peace and liberty.

Still flows the San Jacinto on
'tween banks of azure bloom.
Still bends above a cloudless,
summer sky;

Now, children hear the story
told in history and song
Of those heroic deeds which can not die.

They learn from them that tyranny goes down tho sore
the strife,

Tyranny is earth-born and must flee,

Liberty is sprung from God,
eternal, one with Truth.

The Truth by which man,
knowing, is made free.

Those noble dead no marble
need to tell their loyalty,
A monument is reared in every breast,

The heart of every Texan is encouraged and inspired
By honor and by valor—their bequest.

Sons of Texas, bring our heroes
loyal tribute, fair,

Not with roll of drum or martial
song,

Not with waving banners, loud
huzzahs and trumpets blare,

Shall we speak our love for them
the valiant, strong:

For not alone in that is praise,
Better would it be

To imitate their valor, live their creed.

To weave into our lives the
rugged elements of truth

Which made them great in word,
in thought, in deed.

Then do we laud them as befits,
and when life's conflicts rage

We'll dare to die ere Honor's fortress yield,

Remembering their heroic stand
within the Alamo,

And their victory on San Jacinto's field!

When the other fellow acts that way, he is ugly; when you do it, it's nerves?

When the other fellow is set in his way, he is obstinate; when you are, it is just firmness?

When the other fellow doesn't when you don't like his, you are simply showing that you are

HICO YOUTH KILLED IN TRUCK CRASH

Jack Williams received a message Wednesday morning stating that his son, Cecil Williams, was killed in a truck collision near Graham Wednesday morning.

Cecil left Hico Tuesday morning enroute to White Deer, Texas, where he had employment, and
was getting rides along the way.
He had caught a ride with a truck driver after which the accident occurred. An identification card in his pocket gave his name, address and age.

Grady Barrow, local undertaker, accompanied by George Christopher, left immediately upon receipt of the message for Graham to bring his body to Hico. Services had not been arranged at the time of going to press.

Besides his father, Cecil is survived by several brothers and sisters. His mother passed away about a year ago.—Hico News-

PEACHES GROW BIG IN LAMPASAS COUNTY

Mrs. W. S. Baird of Kempner brought one of her Gov. Lanham peaches to this office Monday.
This is one of the largest peaches the Record man has seen at any time. It weighs 13 ounces and measures 11x11½ inches in circumference. The tree on which this peach grew is in the back yard of the Baird farm house and has been watered some during the hot summer. The tree has about a bushel on it, Mrs.

Baird said.

These people have an orchard of some 95 trees, all well loaded, but the drought is preventing the fruit's maturing as it should.
The Bairds live 2 miles south of Kempner, on the Oakalla road—

Players, Faus to Select All-Star Team

Softball fans and players on the six competing teams will have a hand in selecting the News All-Star team. This decision was reached this week by the publisher and sports-editor of the county newspaper.

This issue of the News carries a ballot which may be used by softball enthusiasts to poll their selection for the All-Star team. A space is also allowed on the ballot for the "most valuable player" and the individual receiving the greatest number of votes will be accorded this single honor, and besides will be awarded a loving-cup at the close of the season, through the compliments of the CORYELL COUNTY NEWS.

Each ballot polled will be kept in absolute confidence until the formal selection is made.

The voting will be conducted by Ted Harris, sports writer for the News and supervisor of the local softball league. Harris will use the popular votes in determining his own selection, of the ten best players in the local league, to be published at the close of the season.

Be sure to cast your vote for the All-Star team and the most valuable player!

FRIDAY'S RESULTS

Arnold 9 vs. Roundtable 8.
Batteries: Arnold, Hair and Culberson; Roundtable, Baldrige and Olsen.

Baptists 4 vs. Methodists 3.
Batteries: Baptists, Wilson and Kirby; Methodists, Powell and Kirkpatrick.

SCHEDULE

Wednesday, August 15.
Methodists vs. Arnold. Roundtable vs. Gartman.

SOFTBALL SYMPTOMS

By TEDDY

Arnold's crew nosed out the Bachelors Friday night 9 to 8. Arnold's bunch has more trouble defeating the Bachelors than any team in the league. The Roundtable will make it plenty tough for any team out there, and are due to win a few games.

The Baptists gang trimmed the Methodists 4 to 3 Friday night. These Methodists were due to win, but got a bad break in the eighth inning. One man was out and the bases were loaded when K. Anderson came to bat and hit the ball to Blanton, Baptists hurler, who pitched the ball home, cutting a run off. The next man up for the Methodists was forced out at first. This game was filled with double plays and few errors were made.

The game was protested by the manager of the Methodists team.

My Decision

The Baptists won the game 4 to 3 as the score indicates. There was a man on first base, when a Methodists player hit the ball just over Wiggins' head, first basemen for the Baptists. The ball hit Wiggins' glove and then hit the ground in the field of play, but bounced out side of the playing field. When Wiggins tried to field the ball he did not intentionally knock it out side of the field of play. When the ball bounced out side of the field of play it automatically become dead, and the only way the ball could be put in play was by the pitcher. The base runner was allowed only two bases. He got his two bases and the game proceeded.

—MY—DOPE—

Wednesday — Arnold's crew will defeat the Methodists, but could make it tough for Bob and his boys.

Gartman's bunch will defeat the Bachelors, but this will be no "snap."

... Pledge ...

I will think—talk—write . . . Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas' heroic past; my confidence in its glories that are to be. . . .

Mrs. H. Y. Price and daughter of Lubbock are visiting her husband, Mr. Price, who is a telephone operator in Evant. Mr. and Mrs. Price were former residents of Gatesville and made many friends during their stay here.

All-Star Selection

Those who wish to pick their all-star team may fill out the ballot on page two and bring it to the News Office. Take into consideration the number of games the men have played. You may pick any man who has played either division, but consider the ones who have played both divisions.

THE STORY

CHAPTER V.—On his arrival at the ranch, with Helen, Jim is confronted by Hays, who betrays unusual interest in the coming of Miss Herrick. Jim tells Hays that Miss Herrick brought a Wells Fargo package, probably of money. Jim goes riding with the Herricks and greatly impresses Helen with his revolver shooting.

CHAPTER VI.—The cattle drives to Grand Junction are started. Jim Wall finds himself falling in love with Helen. He coaches her in riding western style, and finally kisses her. She is angry and dismisses him, but relents and asks him not to leave the ranch. Hays' men return from the drive with the stolen cattle. The leader has sold the cattle and brought back the money. A quick getaway is imperative. Hays tells his men to go on ahead, that he will join them at a certain canyon. The riders arrive at the canyon and to their amazement and Jim's dismay, Hays and a lieutenant are sighted with Helen Herrick—a captive.

In less than an hour the riders were on the move down the mountain. Packing on the deer Jim had slain occasioned a little delay for all, because Smoky kept them close together. At the edge of the timber belt he halted them again while he peeped out to reconnoiter. Then he called: "Come hyar, a couple of you long-sighted fellers."

They all rode out to join him, where he sat his horse, pointing to a faint blue on the purple valley floor. "Is that dust?"

Most of the Riders inclined to the Opinion That It Was Just Haze.

Most of the riders inclined to the opinion that it was just haze.

"Ten miles or more back and hard to make out," spoke up Jim. "If this was my range I'd say it wasn't haze or smoke."

"Wish I had Hank's glasses. My eyes are no good any more fer long shots. Wal, let's mosey."

When they reached another turn from which it was possible to look back for five miles or more Smoky halted while the others caught up.

"Jeff, you hang right hyar," he said, "an' keep your eyes peeled on the back trail. I ain't so shore that gray patch back on the valley was haze. It sort of moved to me. An' there wasn't a lick of wind. Wal, from round this corner you can easy see the cedar grove where we'll hang up fer the boss. An' if you ketch sight of any more'n a couple riders on the back stretch you come ridin' h—l bent fer election. Don't stay long after noon."

Jim tied his horse in the shade of a cedar, and climbed a jumble of rocks so he could command a better view. Almost at once he sighted riders coming down a wash about a mile away, and he had opened his mouth to shout the good tidings when something checked him.

He rubbed his eyes and looked again. Three riders! Assuming that two of them were Hays and Latimer, who could the third be? They disappeared behind a corner of bank. Jim sank down in a cold sweat. Perhaps these men were Indians or strangers from Hankville, or prospectors. But he had not seen any pack animals.

After a long anxious watch he saw the three reappear in the wash, considerably closer. The one in the middle rode a gray horse and otherwise contrasted sharply with the dark mounts and dark clothes of the other two. A second time the trio disappeared. Smoky was peering about in a desultory manner, but he was too low down to sight the riders. Jim was now shaking. An awful premonition attacked him. He had met it and almost overcome it as another unaccountable attack of nerves when the foremost horseman emerged from the bank. He recognized the stalwart figure, the wide, black sombrero, the poise in the saddle. That was Hank Hays.

Jim scarcely dared shift his gaze back to the second rider, but he was irresistibly forced to. A slight figure in tan, drooping in the saddle!

"So help me!" he whispered, and sank down on the stone. That center rider was Helen Herrick. For a moment a hell riot in Jim Wall's breast. How he cursed himself for a vacillating idiot! His intuition had been right. He had seen through this robber leader's behavior at Star ranch. But like a fool he had not trusted himself. Jim grew cold to his very marrow. Yet his intelligence did not wholly succumb to his fury. He strove to think. This hound had gotten Helen, just how, it was useless to conjecture. But to kill him then, on the spot? That gave Jim Wall pause. Hays' men would roar at this deal, involving them in the abduction of a woman, still they would hardly go so far as to resist him. Jim crushed down his deadly impulse. He would wait.

Well indeed had it been for Jim to spy this trio long before they reached him. He had time to recover to think what was best. If Hank Hays had come upon Jim suddenly it would have been his doom.

One of the pack animals neighed shrilly and then all the horses stuck up their ears.

"Say, I heard a hoss-shoe ring on a stone," called Mac, who had ears as keen as a horse.

"What's that?" queried Smoky, sharply. He leaped up.

CHAPTER VII

"LOOK! Riders comin'!" exclaimed Brad Lincoln.

Jim leaped off the rock, crashing down behind the watching men, startling them. "Smoky, it's Hays. I saw him a mile off."

"Why didn't you say somethin', then?" retorted Slocum gruffly.

"I was too flabbergasted," replied Jim, coolly, as he joined them.

"It's Hank all right," said Mac. "Shore, I see him now. That's Hank."

"Jim, what flabbergasted you?" demanded Smoky.

"Three riders!" flashed Jim. "Wal, . . . So I see. What you make of that?" ejaculated Slocum.

The three emerged clearly from behind the cedars. A blank silence ensued. Jim at last got the tigerish nerves under control. His thoughts were whirling.

"Humph. Little rider in between," commented Lincoln.

"That's Sparrowhawk behind."

"Who's the third party?"

"Somebody with a mask on!"

"An' a long slicker."

"Fellers," rasped Slocum, "that's a woman with a veil!"

Jim thought the moment had come. "Men, Hank has double-crossed us. He's stolen Herrick's sister!"

Hank Hays led his two followers to within a few feet of the cluster of riders. Jim's lightning-swift glance took the three in, their dust-caked horses, and flashed back to fasten upon Miss Herrick. Her features were not visible through the veil. The linen coat showed the wear and tear of contact with brush. She had on riding boots and overalls.

"Wal, you're all here but Jeff," began Hays.

"Jeff'll be comin' by now," replied Smoky. "Whar you almin' fer?"

"Brakes of the Dirty Devil."

"I take it you've fetched Herrick's sister."

"You're a bright boy."

"Hank Hays, after all you double-crossed us," roared Smoky. "You're a liar. You're a cheat. You think you can drag us in on a deal like this. I thought you acted powerful queer. So it was this gurl you tricked us fer? . . . You!"

Jim Wall strode forward and aside, his swift action menacingly significant.

"Hays, your jig's up. She goes back!"

"Wait a minute," the robber replied, stridently. "Stick or quit, if you want. I fetched this gurl fer ransom. She come willin', 'cause if she hadn't I'd killed Herrick. He'll pay twenty-five, mebbe fifty thousand for her."

Jim interposed again: "Hays, you're a dirty liar. You didn't steal this girl fer ransom," he called out fiercely. Then, turning to the dejected figure on the gray horse: "Miss Herrick, is he telling the truth?"

"Yes, he stole me for ransom," she replied, with emotion. "They broke into my room—one through the window, the other at the door. They threatened me with guns. . . . If I screamed they'd kill me. If I didn't come with them they'd kill my brother! . . . I agreed."

"We tied Herrick up before we got the gurl," said Hays. "An' after, we made him promise to pay handsome. An—"

"That's enough," snapped Jim. "Give me a man or two. We'll take her back and get the money."

"Hold on. That was somethin' I had in mind," drawled Hays. "But it didn't work. I had to kill Progar. An—"

"Who's Progar?"

"Wal, he's Heeseman's right-hand man. Now it happens that foxey Heeseman was plannin' the same trick I pulled. Progar an' another feller ketched us takin' the gurl out. The other feller got away."

"That's wuss than ever!" screamed Smoky. "Heeseman will find out."

"Huh. I should smile in particular that he will. We seen his outfit on your trail!"

"Shet up! Hosses comin'!"

The ensuing rush was quelled by Smoky's ringing order. "Hold on! It's Jeff!"

An opening in the grove showed Bridges plunging upon them.

"Heeseman's outfit trailin' us," he announced. "Back about five miles when I left my post."

"Fellers, grab your rifles an' take to cover," yelled Smoky.

Hays made a dive for his horse and, mounting, leaned over to take up a rope halter round the neck of the horse Miss Herrick was riding.

"You lied—to me," she cried, angrily. "You assured me that if I'd come without resistance you'd soon arrange for my freedom. Here we are miles from Star ranch."

Hays paid not the slightest attention to her, but started off, leading her horse.

"Jim Wall, are you going to permit this outrage?"

"I'm powerless, Miss Herrick," he replied, hurriedly. "If Heeseman catches us you'll be worse off."

The leader headed down the slope, dragging Miss Herrick's horse. Jim could hear the girl's protestations. The other riders made haste to line the pack horses. Smoky brought up the rear.

Jim kept unobtrusively working ahead until there were only three pack horses in front of him, and he could see Hays and the girl at intervals.

Hays yelled back for his riders to hurry. He pointed to the left wall as if any moment their pursuers might appear there.

The next sign from Smoky was a rifle shot. Jim espied something flash along the rim, high up and far back, out of range, if it were a pursuer.

"Rustle!" shrilled Smoky. "I seen riders. They ducked back. They'll aim to head us off."

Hays bawled back an order and pointed aloft.

Suddenly riders popped in view back on the point of an intersecting canyon. Hays and Latimer opened fire with their revolvers. The riders began to return the fire with rifles. Jim saw Latimer knocked off his horse, apparently not badly injured. He raced ahead after Hays, who rode fast, dragging the girl's horse, and at the same time shooting at the riders until he passed around a corner of the canyon. Latimer soon disappeared after him. Then the riders above turned their attention to the rest of Hays' outfit.

Jim had a quarter of a mile to ride to pass the corner ahead to safety. The pack horses were scattered, tearing up the canyon. Jim gained on them. Then he began to shoot.

One of his first shots hit a horse, and his second connected with a rider, who plunged like a crippled rabbit back out of sight. The others of Heeseman's outfit took alarm, dodged here and there to hide, or ran back.

Jim hauled Bay to a halt, and soon the pack horses galloped by, every pack riding well. Lincoln dashed into sight first, closely followed by Mac, Happy Jack and Jeff, all with guns smoking. And lastly came Slocum, hatless, blood on his face.

"Jest barked," panted Slocum. "Load yer guns—an' ride on!"

Around the next turn they came upon Hays and his two riders. With another big intersecting canyon on the right, it looked as if their pursuers were held up.

Deeper and deeper grew the canyon. Mid-afternoon found the fugitives entering a less constricted area, where sunlight and open ahead attested to the vicinity of a wider canyon, surely the Dirty Devil. And so it proved.

Hays waited for his riders and the pack animals to reach him.

"Hank, air you almin' fer thet roost you always give us a hunch about but never produced?" asked Slocum.

"I've saved it up, Smoky, fer jest some such deal as this."

Jim, over the back of his horse, watched Miss Herrick. She was tiring and her head drooped.

The robber took up her halter and, straddling his horse, he spurred into the muddy stream.

An hour later, he turned into a crack that could not be seen a hundred yards back, and when Jim reached it he was amazed to see the robber leading up another narrow gorge, down which ran another swift, narrow stream. Jim appreciated that a man would have had to know where this entrance was, or he could never have found it.

This gash wound like a snake into the bowels of the colored, overhanging earth. Presently they reached a bottom from which weird, black, bold walls stood up, ragged of rim against the sky.

"Hyar we air," called out Hays. "Throw saddles an' packs. Let the hosses go. No fear of hosses ever leavin' this place."

Jim's night-owl eyes discerned Hays lifting Miss Herrick off her horse and half carrying her off toward the rustling cottonwoods. Jim, making pretense of leading his horse, followed until Hays stopped at the border of what appeared a round grove of cottonwoods impenetrable to the sight.

"Oh, for G—d's sake—let go of me!" gasped the girl, and sank down on the grass.

"You may as well get used to thet," replied Hays, in a low voice. "Do you want anythin' to eat?"

"Water—only water. I'm—chokin'."

"I'll fetch some, an' a bed fer you."

Little did Hays realize, as he strode back to the horses that Jim stood there in the gloom, a clutching hand on his gun and mad lust for blood in his heart. Jim knew he meant to kill Hays. Why not now? But as before he had the sagacity and the will to resist a terrible craving.

By JOE BURNS

The minds of the people of Texas should be opened to the potentialities of the 1936 Centennial celebration. Contrary to the general belief, the taxpayer will be faced with no additional expense in the holding of the Centennial as it will be a self-liquidating project.

The celebration offers an opportunity to develop a much-needed tourist trade in Texas, which will in turn aid our school and road system. Colorado attracts 1,390,000 visitors annually with nothing but beautiful scenery and a healthful climate to offer. Should not Texas, with a colorful celebration to offer in addition to scenery, a vigorous climate, and splendid highways attract as many or more in 1936 and the years that follow?

Coming closer to home. The Centennial, if located at Dallas or Fort Worth, will materially aid Gatesville and Coryell county. Seventy-two per cent of the visitors who attend the celebration will go by automobile. Those who do will spend money on the trip for gasoline and car upkeep, hotel and tourist camp accommodations, food supplies and for other sundry purposes. Many visitors from points west such as Brownwood and perhaps Coleman and Comanche and even farther west will follow highways 7 and 36 respectively in reaching the Centennial and thus Gatesville should receive a substantial amount of tourist traffic.

Kepner, Stevens and Anderson—Luck brought them down safely from a height of approximately 60,000 feet after they had "bailed out" of the huge stratosphere balloon in which they attempted to break all records. The big bag ended with a resounding thud in the black dust of a parched corn field in Nebraska. Anyhow, if the Nebraska corn-huskers couldn't get a little rain out of the heavens they could at least get a little excitement.

Tom and Jimmie are at it again. Of course, Tom has been after Jimmie's scalp for the last two months, as he saw Jimmie was the man he had to beat to get to be Governor. You know, Tom has the advantage of Jimmie, in a way. Jimmie has a "record" and those records are certainly bad things to have when it comes to running for office in the good old Democratic state of Texas. Somebody can always find something "bad" in a public record in Texas, whether its good or bad, whether the "holder" is conscientious or a crook. But Jimmie has a record and Tom can hop on Jimmie's record to his heart's content, but the one-sided thing is that Tom hasn't any record. Nevertheless, we prophesy Jimmie polling a nice sized vote and, you can't ever tell, may be

Governor of Texas for a term or two regardless of that everlasting "record."

Millions of people have laughed and cried with Marie Dressler. The favorite actress of stage and scree for more than forty years is gone—never to return. Marie Dressler was beloved by old and young of American and English audiences, becoming a film star at the age of sixty-one. It was she who made us laugh over "Old Marthy," "Tug-Boat Annie," "Min and Bill," and many other hilarious sketches. Miss Dressler died at her Santa Barbara home less than a week ago after a prolonged illness.

The assassination of the son of an Austrian peasant alarmed every chancellery in Europe and evoked an Italian troop concentration. Englebert Dollfuss, Austria's "Little Chancellor" and inveterate foe of the Nazis, was killed by 144 Austrian Nazis July 25.

The Nazis "got their man" but the opinion of the world as to their brutal act was ably expressed by an editorial in the London Times (said to be officially inspired) which said the full story of the murder of Chancellor Dollfuss was "making the name of Nazi neauseating in the nostrils of the world." This is an apt expression applied to brutal murderers who murdered an innocent man in order to accomplish their political aspirations.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Pruned and staked tomato vines in the garden of Mrs. W. B. Harkness, pantry demonstrator of the Kaufman home demonstration club, bore heavily; pruned but not staked the production was not so satisfactory; neither pruned nor staked the production was practically nught.

A 30 bushel to the acre yield from corn planted was obtained by W. F. Green of Mound in Coryell county, contrasting handsomely with the 20 bushel yield of the corn planted on every row on similar land.

One-half acre of strawberries returned $360 to Dr. J. H. Loving, Brooks county farmer having strawberries for a hobby. Proper preparation of the soil, barnyard canure and cover crops are the secret of his success. Dr. Loving says that while he can make $300 profit on half an acre he doesn't fool himself into thinking that he can make $3000 on five acres.

The record for speed on corn as seed planted, to seed harvested and planted again, is probably held by Texas with Honey June sweet corn as the crop. In Starr county Georgia Guerra in March planted his sample of the new sweet corn developed by the Texas Experiment Station. In Rusk county a business man tried to get a sample but was too late, it had all been planted. He then offered a dollar for an acre of it sufficiently mature to plant by June 25. On June 23 Mr. Guerra mailed him an ear of corn and received the dollar.

Ballinger—Three loads of sudan hay were put in the space formerly occupied by one load on the farm of George Kemp, dairyman in Rannels county, according to Elmo V. Cook, farm demonstration agent. Mr. Kemp just ran the hay through an ensilage cutter, which blew it into the barn, thus saving labor, space and time required for loose hay. The cut hay is also left in a more convenient form for use in mixing dairy rations.

Archer City—Forty bushels of barley to the acre were harvested on the farm of Lish Herndon of Archer county, according to G. R. McNeil, farm demonstration agent. His large yield was due to the fact that the barley was planted on land that was planted in cotton last summer and then plowed up during the plow-up campaign. Mr. Herndon stated that he listed and relisted the land after the cotton was plowed under. Later on the beds were pulled down and the barley seeded. His land being well worked held the moisture and made a good yield.

Anahuac—Paper shell pecans should be more plentiful in Chambers county in the next few years if the farm demonstration agent, R. H. Mathis, is successful in his attempt to convert native seedling pecans into the more desirable thin shell varieties.

By mans of a simple knife operation known as the "patch bud method," Mr. Mathis is removing dormant buds from paper shell pecan trees and transplanting them into the bark of young native pecan seedlings. From these inserted pecan buds new limbs are expected to come forth that will be of the paper shell variety. As these new limbs get larger the old native limbs are to be cut back until the tree has an entirely new top that will bear only paper shell pecans instead of the small native ones for which there is very little market demand. To date a total of 125 native pecan seedlings have been successfully budded with paper shell pecan buds.

Industry in Poland continues to show a marked improvement over last year.

Armour Beauties Work at Fair

Visitors to the new World's Fair in Chicago during Farm Week, Aug. 11-18, will have the opportunity of seeing several phases of packing-house operations. Here are the red-headed girls in the Armour exhibit slicing chipped beef. Swift and Wilson also have exhibits which will add much of interest and value to the producers' knowledge of what happens to his hogs, cattle and sheep after they leave the farm for market. Each packer shows a different phase of work.

Hunter-for-Governor Club Elects Officers

At a meeting of supporters of Hunter's candidacy for governor here Thursday, the following men were elected to look after Mr. Hunter's race in Comanche county.

Hilton Burks, general chairman for the county; Tom Holmsley, of Comanche, chairman of the Comanche section; W. C. Lightfoot, of De Leon, chairman of the De Leon division; Burgess Rudd of Comanche, secretary of the organization for the county.

It is expected that a meeting will be called early next week by Mrs. Burks, asking that all Hunter supporters of the county, who can possibly do so, be in attendance at the meeting, at which time plans will be outlined for instituting an extensive campaign for Tom Hunter.—Comanche Chief.

Two Comanche Youths Face Burglary Charge

Charges of burglary and theft were filed in Justice R. B. Waldrop's court Saturday by Sheriff Dwight Brightman against Gilbert Amos and Thomas Wilson, Comanche youths.

The youths are said to have been arrested by the Sheriff of San Patricio at Aransas Pass when they attempted to sell a 1933 Ford roadster at what was reported to be a low price.

The ownership of the car is said to have been traced to Brownwood where it was reported stolen and the youths were taken there where charges of automobile theft are said to have been filed against them. They are being held in jail at Brownwood pending the execution of bond.

Clothing and other articles said to have been taken from the car in which Amos and Wilson were driving was brought to Comanche Thursday by local officers and through that source four burglaries were cleared up, officers stated.

Following the identification of the articles, additional charges were filed against the two

MASONIC ORDER PLANS TO BOOST CENTENNIAL

The Masonic order in Texas is planning to observe its Centennial in Texas in 1936 along with the Texas Centennial.

A meeting recently was held in Fort Worth for the discussion of plans. A committee has plans in charge for the cooperation of the Masonic order with the Centennial movement.

Alva Bryan, Waco, past grand master, heads the committee. Others on the committee are W. Steve Cook, grand master; Jewel P. Lightfoot, past grand master, and George R. M. Montgomery, past grand master.

AMERICAN LEGION BEHIND CENTENNIAL MOVE

From all parts of Texas comes the reports that the various posts of the American Legion are squarely behind the Centennial movement, and this is a cause of great gratification upon the part of the publicity committee.

Membership of the American Legion, always standing for the best in public life, and patriotic in all things, wields a tremendous influence, which the publicity committee is finding invaluable in its present work.

LIMESTONE COUNTY DEMOS HEAR OF CENTENNIAL

The Democratic county convention of Limestone county, held at Groesbeck, heard a 15-minute address from Lowry Martin, chairman of the Centennial publicity committee, following which it unanimously endorsed the Texas Centennial.

Mr. Martin was heard by an audience that filled the large district court room in the Limestone county court house.
