Little Theater Will Hold General Meeting In Courtroom Tonight

BIG ATTENDANCE EXPECTED

If the apparent interest in rumors is any indication it is likely that a large number of local dramatists will be present tonight when the Little Theater holds its general meeting in the district courtroom.

All old members of the organization are urged to be present together with prospective members. Regardless of whether local residents wish to take an active part in the presentation of plays everyone who is interested in maintaining and promoting the work of the Little Theater in Gatesville is invited to attend the meeting, according to word from officers of the organization.

COOKERY EXPERT TO CONDUCT A SCHOOL

New angles on the age-old problem of preparing the family meals will be presented Wednesday and Thursday, August 29 and 30, when Mrs. H. E. Loader conducts a free cooking school at Gatesville under auspices of Texas-Louisiana Power Company. The class will get under way at 3:30 p. m.

Mrs. Loader will discuss modern cookery and demonstrate the latest scientific methods in kitchen management. She will introduce a number of new recipes and show homemakers of Gatesville how to prepare every day foods in appetizing ways. Other features of her demonstration will include economy in meal planning, waterless cookery, grilled breakfasts and luncheons, full-oven meal cookery and child feeding.

The school is free to Texas-Louisiana customers and local residents. All are cordially invited to be present.

Thirty-Five Gridmen Leave for Training Camp at State Park

PROSPECTS LOOKING GOOD

The school bus and three private automobiles loaded with about thirty-five prospective football players left Gatesville early Monday morning for the Lampasas State Park where they will enter a pre-season training camp lasting until Saturday of this week.

The Gatesville athletes were accompanied by Sup't Frank L. Williams, E. D. Shelton and Doyle Baldrige. Coach Maurice Ewing will join the camp today.

Twelve new men enlisted for the training period, who recently moved to Gatesville from rural schools in the county. Three or four others who will probably be on the grid roster this fall were unable to leave their jobs for the camp.

Gatesville is a member of the Class B District No. 19, composed of Gatesville, Itasca, McGregor, Mart and West.

Ed Preston Defeats Ed Huckabee in Race For Commissioner 1.

FILLS LAST VACANCY

Ed Preston was chosen commissioner of Beat One in last Saturday's run-off primary to fill the last of the vacancies in the Commissioners Court. Preston polled a total of 492 votes as compared to the 398 votes cast for his opponent.

There will be three new faces in the court when its first meeting in January comes as three of the incumbents were defeated in either the primary or the run-off. Dick Payne, the fourth member of the court, was unopposed for his office.

Coryell County Agent D. W. Sherrill Honored By A. A. Associates

PRESENTED GOLD WATCH

D. W. Sherrill, county agent, was the recipient of a white gold watch and chain which was given him by members of the AAA staff of Coryell county in an impressive program following a barbecue at the Gatesville Golf Club last Friday evening.

After a delightful supper made possible by the central cotton committee, community committeemen and other workers of the local Agricultural Adjustment Administration department, C. E. Alvis, president of the Gatesville Chamber of Commerce, in a speech commending the splendid work of the AAA workers of Coryell county headed by Mr. Sherrill, made the surprise presentation.

Impromptu speeches by Dr. W. A. Smith, Fred G. Prewitt, John Morgan and Judge Rob't W. Brown were made during the course of the program.

D. W. Sherrill came to Gatesville in July 1933 as an agricultural emergency expert. He was later employed by the Commissioners Court as county agent for Coryell county and has served diligently in that position since that time.

JUDGE CROSS HEARS ELECTION CONTEST

Judge R. B. Cross, district judge of the 52nd judicial district, has been serving as judge of the Gayle-Alexander case in Waco, in which Gayle contested the first primary election, claiming irregularities in election procedure. Returns gave Alexander a small lead over Gayle in that election.

Judge Cross exchanged benches with Judge D. W. Bartlett, who has been hearing civil cases in district court here.

Allred Carries County and State

EAGLE SPRINGS VOTE LAST TO COME IN; ALL BUT TWO BOXES REPORT BY 10 O'CLOCK SATURDAY NIGHT.

Unofficial returns from all of the thirty-three voting boxes in Coryell county showed Reese, White and Witcher conceded winners in the run-off primary.

With the shorter ballot this time returns began coming in shortly after seven o'clock and by ten o'clock all but two boxes had been heard from. Returns from Spring Hill and Eagle Springs were tabulated Monday. Balloting was only about 350 votes short of the number polled in the first primary.

In the race for Governor James V. Allred lead Tom Hunter in Coryell county by 543 votes. Latest returns over the state showed Allred leading by 50,000 with only a few precincts to be heard from. In the county Allred polled 2,474 votes to Hunter's 1,961. In the state Allred has approximately 490,000 to 440,000 for Hunter.

Flentge Loses to Reese

Tom F. Reese, of Comanche and Harry Flentge, of Coryell sought the Hamilton county neutral vote in a hard fought race for the office of district attorney, with latest returns giving Reese the lead with 6125 votes to 5877 for Flentge. Reese's votes in Coryell total 1328 against Flentge's 3059. Reese carried Hamilton county by 620. In Comanche county Reese got 3035 to 1676 for Flentge, according to unofficial returns.

White Defeats Burleson

Joe White, present deputy, won by an unofficial margin of 82 over John Burleson for sheriff in what appeared to be the most popular of the local races. White's votes aggregate 2,247 to 2,165 for Burleson. Running neck-and-neck in the two Gatesville boxes all day long, with only a dozen or so votes between them, a last minute spurt gave White a thirty vote lead in the county-seat when final returns were tabulated. In the entire county White carried 20 boxes as Burleson copped 11. Two boxes gave tied votes.

Witcher Commands Race

Rallying the support of his former fellow-townsmen, J. M. Witcher ran up a lead of approximately 575 votes in Gatesville to get the first and final hold on the county superintendent's race against W. D. Stockburger,

I will think—talk—write . . . Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas' heroic past; my confidence in its glories that are to be.

EDITORIALS IN BRIEF

The election is over, thank goodness! All of its trials and tribulations, its heartaches, its glories for the chosen lot, is all that remains to tell the story of the 1934 Democratic primaries. The experiences which many have just gone through will never pass their way again. A few however will probably be longing for the same life two years from now. They will choose it, get it and be sorry again. The recent election has preached many a sermon to quite a few. Many unconscious innocent minds have learned their lessons from politics, and the consolation is that experience once more has played the role of the maestro. We are thinking just now of some substitute for the evils of politics and wonder why it isn't possible to let qualifications alone place men in the official positions of our government. Why not place the matter on a plane similar to civil service requirements and let the candidates prove their ability to hold office? We can readily see how a world of misrepresentation and falsehood would be positively eliminated. We doubt, however, that we shall ever live to see the day when such will come about.

* * * *

It is likely that the merchants and business people of Gatesville will be called upon this week to contribute toward the expenses of the football camp which opened at Lampasas yesterday. They should have no hesitancy in doing their share. The camp will be a good thing for the high school youngsters. It will be conducted upon a high plane and strict morality will be encouraged. Many boys from over the county who intend to enter Gatesville high school this fall and participate in athletics will be given the opportunity of an outing and a week of physical training, due to the efforts of school authorities and the financial support of local business men. Unfortunately Gatesville did not have the calibre football team desired last year but local residents still want a good team. With prospects good for this season the fans can have this year what they wanted last year by lending a little support.

* * * *

It's just about time to give a little attention to some of the unpaved streets of Gatesville. We can imagine that it would be much easier to make the necessary improvements while they are slight than to wait until more expense would be incurred to put them in shape. Most of the bad places it seems are at the intersection of paved and unpaved streets where constant wear and winds have left chug-holes in the gravelled streets. A few loads of new gravel would take care of such rough spots as these.

World Comment

By JOE BURNS

In point of position, SAM RAYBURN should not receive the House speakership but in point of experience—he can't be surpassed. Although Byrns and Bankhead have much better claims to the position, Rayburn is said to have received a nod of the head from the liberal New Dealers—and that means a lot in Washington these days.

Rayburn will be handicapped in his campaign by the fact that a Texan—John N. Garner, preceded Speaker Ranley and is now Vice President. Texas also has its full share and more of committee positions.

It has been rumored that Rayburn will get the floor leadership if he doesn't get the higher position. He has been close to the President and the New Dealers during the last session and will probably have a good chance, especially if he sees fit to throw his support to one of the candidates for speaker, as Floor Leader Byrns did at the last caucus.

Speaking of Vice President Garner, it is reported by a prominent Washington newspaper correspondent that propaganda is being circulated in the capital, the ultimate aim of which is to bring about the nomination of one of the Progressive Republicans in place of Garner. Henry Wallace and Harold Ickes—two good Progressive cabinet members—are mentioned in this category. Ickes is said to be the President's favorite cabinet officer—and at the head of the list in point of experience.

Nevertheless, unless Roosevelt expects to bring about a general party realignment, it would be an unwise move to replace Garner. His influence in the Senate could not be equalled by either Wallace or Ickes or any other man in Washington. One thing can be sure, Texas will stand behind Garner from first to last.

THE BRITISH usually know what's going on in Europe and they maintain that Hitler is on the way out. The recent German election, in which 5,000,000 voters refused to sanction Hitler's assumption of the powers of the late President Paul von Hindenburg and the fact that workers in one of Berlin's suburbs mobbed some of the Fuehrer's storm troopers when they attempted to arrest some of the workmen, substantiate such rumors. It would be a relief to most of the countries of Europe and especially France, ever afraid of a strong and nationalistic German nation, if Hitler were overthrown but what might follow throws fear into the hearts of every statesman on the continent.

When Americans send $3,000,000,000 abroad each year to foreign lotteries what is wrong with little Fiorello La Guardia's attempt to rescue New York City from the financial morass by such methods? A city lottery would materially help the financial situation of the metropolis and the money would be kept at home. How the little Italian will get around the constitutional limitations imposed on lotteries is another question, but if the people are going to gamble regardless of laws, limitations and other things impeding lottery operation, let's keep this money at home.

"Grass is the most effective thing known for retarding the run off of rain water and preventing the washing away of the soil. The fibrous roots of grass and the matted grass blades hold water back so well that nearly all of it soaks into the soil and the little that escapes does so gradually and cannot form streams and carry the dirt off with it," Merrill says.

SOFTBALL SYMPTOMS

By TEDDY

The Firemen turned back the Baptists 13 to 5 Friday night to break their long winning streak. These Firemen are doing everything in their power to bring this division into a three-way tie. If they do, they will win this division and possibly be the champions of the city. They can lick the Baptists when no team in the League can. They can beat Arnold's bunch easier than they can the Baptists. These Firemen have been greatly handicapped by injuries, but are getting in shape fast to close this division.

The Bachelors were greatly weakened by the absence of Baldrige Friday night, and fell before the strong Methodists crew 5 to 3. Both of these teams are due to be plenty tough the rest of this division.

—MY—DOPE—

Wednesday—The Baptists will defeat the Methodists, but will have trouble.

The Firemen will defeat the Bachelors, but will have to hustle.

The local all-stars will go to Temple tonight to meet Belfals. Manager, Otis Ray stated that he knew nothing about this club, but promises to give them a tough fight.

FIRST PROTESTANT CHURCH TO BE REBUILT

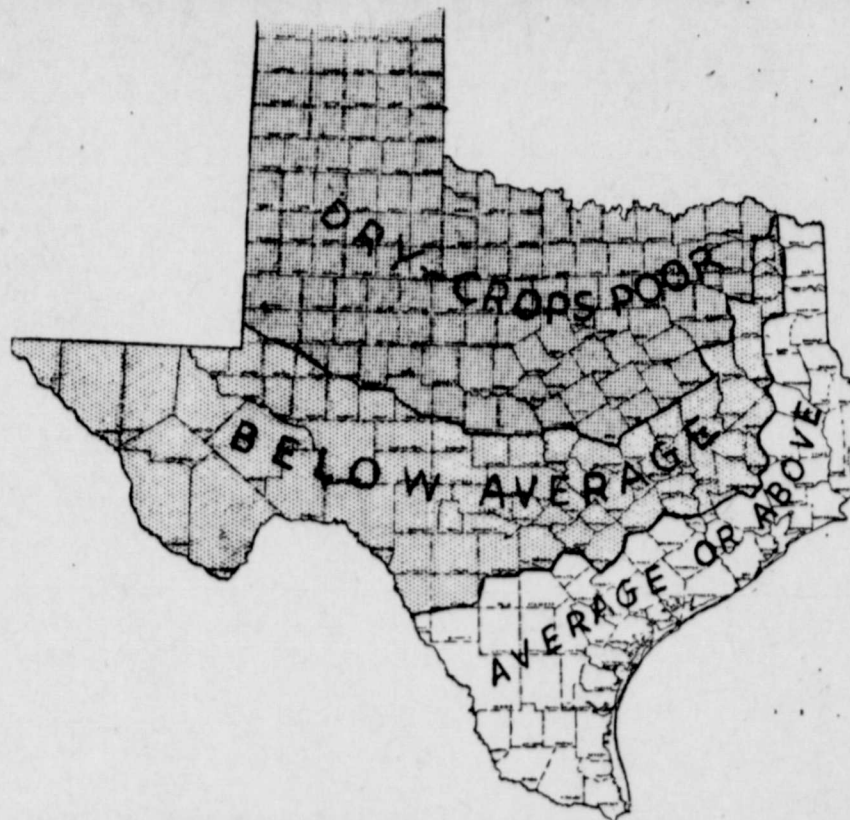

Said to be one of the first Protestant churches established in Texas, the old McMahon Methodist Chapel near San Augustine is to be rebuilt as a part of the contribution of that section to the Texas Centennial of 1936. In connection with the work it has been announced that Methodists of the State will be asked to contribute $12,000.

The chapel was founded more than a century ago by Littleton Fowler, said to have been the first Methodist preacher in Texas, who is buried beneath the pulpit.

The San Augustine section is rich in history, it being perhaps the first purely Anglo-Saxon community established in Texas. Mrs. U. D. Lynch, a member of the State Advisory Board, is leading in the movement to restore various historical spots there.

A small park in the town where was the first Masonic Lodge in Texas has been beautified and there is a movement to secure the site of the old San Augustine mission and fort and restore them as a Centennial project.

Drouth in Texas at a Glance

Here is a map of Texas prepared from the data and statistics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to show general crop and drouth conditions. It is not intended to give conditions exactly, as very scattered rains have changed the farm outlook somewhat, in spots, but in a general way the map shows how Texas is taking the drouth. (Texas News Photos.)

nial project. Mrs. Lynch said, "The people of San Augustine think that, as it is Texas' oldest town and the first to be reached by tourists traveling the Old San Antonio Trail, the town will attract many Centennial visitors as a stopping over place en route to the Centennial, if it is made attractive as it should be with the contemplated improvements.

That the loss of grass roots now will mean the loss of soil later when the rains begin to fall is pointed out by Louis P. Merrill, who has charge of the soil erosion work centering around Lindall, Texas.

PLENTY TOUGH

There are tough mules, and then there are tougher mules, but the toughest of them all belongs to Austin Doolittle, of The Grove, so it seems.

A day or so ago Doolittle's mule, weighing 950 pounds, went off a 20-foot cliff tied to a wagon, and still lives to bray and eat and occasional feeding of hay.

Someone found the wagon upside down with a coupling pole and an axle broken. The mule was still tied to the wagon, unhurt.

The accident occurred near the Wolff gin. The wagon started rolling down the hill and the mule, which was tied behind it, must have tried to stop the wagon when it got near the edge of the cliff but was unsuccessful.

A WORD FROM THE EDITOR Regarding the District Attorney's Race

In defense of my friend, Mr. Harry Flentge, and out of respect for the fair manner in which he conducted his recent campaign for the office of district attorney I wish to make a statement, mindful of the untiring efforts of his friends who devoted their time to his campaign.

Contrary to the report that Mr. Flentge brought a statement to me and requested that I publish same, I wish to state that Mr. Flentge knew nothing of the disputed news story, which has probably been called to your attention, until after same appeared in this newspaper. I made the statement as a news fact, based upon what I believed to be reliable information. Mr. Flentge was in no way responsible for its appearance.

Contrary to rumors that that particular issue of the Coryell County News was circulated over the district I will say that few if any extra copies were printed and the paper was sent to regular subscribers of this newspaper ONLY.

—THE EDITOR.

STATEMENT FROM THE OFFICE OF THE COUNTY ADMINISTRATOR

This is to advise the public that the County Relief Board has furnished no employees to the County Agent. The local relief office has received no instructions from the state relief office in regard to furnishing such employees, other than to offer co-operation in furnishing the county Agent a list of eligible relief clients upon the County Agent's request.

This office has no information in regard to the County Agent's instructions or methods in regard to his employees and has no statement to make in reference to the County Agent's method of hiring help in the departments over which he has control.

The County Relief Office assists only those to find employment who are in destitute circumstances and in need of immediate relief.

The Livestock Feed and Seed Loan Department, of which Mr. Walter Moore is in charge, and the caring for the government cattle after they are received at the shipping point are departments of the County Relief Board and handled through the relief office and are not departments of the County Agent's program.

This statement is made to the public for the reason that there seems to have been an erroneous impression that the County Relief Office was furnishing the employees to the County Agent and were disregarding the rules which they had sought to enforce in all other departments of the relief work in Coryell County.

Fred G. Prewitt,
County Relief
Administrator.

Misses Mary Lou and Sidney Edmiston of Hamilton are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Capt. Brown, and other relatives in this city.

Mr. John C. Mason, formerly of Jonesboro, has moved his residence to San Antonio. His departure will be greatly missed by his many friends in Coryell county.

THE STORY

CHAPTER VI.—The cattle drives to Grand Junction are started. Jim Wall finds himself falling in love with Helen. He coaches her in riding western style, and finally kisses her. She is angry and dismisses him, but relents and asks him not to leave the ranch. Hays' men return from the drive with the stolen cattle. The leader has sold the cattle and brought back the money. A quick getaway is imperative. Hays tells his men to go on ahead, that he will join them at a certain canyon. The riders arrive at the canyon and to their amazement and Jim's dismay, Hays and a lieutenant are sighted with Helen Herrick—a captive.

CHAPTER VII.—The gang is about to break with Hays over the abduction, but he explains that he robbed Herrick and stole Helen for ransom. Realizing that Helen will be worse off if she falls into Heese-man's clutches, Jim Wall rides on with Hank and his men. Heese-man's riders are discovered in pursuit. After a running battle in which Latimer, one of Hays' men, is wounded, Hays leads the gang into a canyon retreat, difficult of access and easy to defend—The Robbers' Roost.

"Money. Hundred-dollar bills. I tore a corner of the paper off. It was a thick an' heavy package."

"Ahh. So Hank went south with that an' the jewelry?"

"Yes. When he made the divvy hyar he give me his share of that sixteen thousand. It's hyar in my coat. You an' Jim air welcome to it. 'Cause where I'm goin'—I won't need any."

"Sparrow, it was a long story fer a sick man—an' hard to tell," said Smoky, feelingly. "Jim an' me will respect your confidence. An' if you pull through—as I hope you do—we'll never squeal. . . . But, pard, don't be surprised at what comes off."

Five days later Sparrowhawk Latimer died during the night, after a short interval of 'improvement' which gave his comrades renewed hope. He passed away alone, evidently in agony, to judge from his distorted face.

"Wal, I don't know but that Sparrow's better off," remarked Smoky, with pathos.

They buried him in his tarpaulin on the spot, and divided his effects among them by drawing lots.

"What'd you do with the money you found on him?" queried Hays. "We didn't find none. Sparrow gave it to me an' Jim some days ago," replied Smoky.

"Reckon you better divide it." "Ump-umm," rejoined Smoky, nonchalantly, his beady little eyes on the chief.

"Why not?" "Wal, Sparrow wanted us to have it, not, I reckon, because we took care of him when you forgot, but jest because he cottoned to us."

"Smoky, tell Hays the other reason," spoke up Jim.

"That'll wait, Jim. No hurry. An' I'm not so shore Sparrow wanted us to tell."

Hank Hays turned livid. "Ahh. Mebbe you'd both be wise to stay shet up," he said and left.

"Fellers," said Brad Lincoln, turning to the others, "I've had a hunch all along there was a hitch in this deal. Air you with me in demandin' a showdown from Smoky an' Jim?"

"We shore air," rejoined Bridges, and Mac and Happy Jack expressed like loyalty.

"Smoky, you're square. If there's anythin', we want to know."

"Mebbe we can slick it over," replied Smoky, smoothly. "If we win all the boss' money—an' he'll shore be easy now with that gurl on his mind—I reckon there won't be any sense in tellin' at all. Eh, Jim?"

"I don't make any rash promises,

Smoky," returned Jim. "I admire you a lot, Slocum, but I'm thinking you run this into the ground. In all justice these men ought to be told something."

"I say cards. You fellers can't keep it forever," rejoined Lincoln, darkly.

From that hour dated the grim and passionate gambling in which they all participated. With one man on lookout duty the others spent most of the daylight hours sitting at Happy Jack's table of cottonwood poles.

Jim had separated his money into two parts—one consisting of the bills of large denomination, and the other of small. The latter he kept out for gambling, intended to quit when it was lost.

But fortune was fickle. He did not lose it. Instead, he won steadily. There was no hope of his getting out of the game so long as he was ahead. He wanted to watch, think, plan. Luck changed eventually, and he lost all he had won. Then he seasawed for a day, before he struck another streak of losing, and lost everything.

"I'm cleaned," he said, rising. "But, by gosh, I gave you a run."

"I'm way ahead. I'll lend you some," offered Hays.

"No, thanks. I'm glad to get off this well. I'll go up to the rock and send Mac down. From now on I'll do most of the lookout work, I like it."

Jim was glad this phase of his connection with the outfit was past. He had played for days, won and lost, all in the interest of the scheme fermenting in his mind. He wanted to be alone. If nothing else intervened, this gambling would lead to the inevitable quarrel. Whether Hays won all the money or lost what he had, there would be a fight.

At once a restless, baffled, harried condition of mind seemed to leave Jim. To face those men hour after hour, day after day, hiding his thoughts, had engendered irritation. When the split came and the shooting began Jim wanted to be around. He would help it along considerably.

One day, when he was returning to camp, somewhat before sunset, he heard a shot. He listened for others. None came.

The moment he entered the oval, to see Hays striding for the cabin, his hair standing up, and his men grouped outside of the camp shelter, Jim knew that there had been trouble.

"What now, Smoky?"

"Hank did fer Brad."

"How? Why? . . . You don't mean Hays beat Lincoln to a gun?"

"He did, Jim," ejaculated Slocum. "He bored Brad. I was the only feller who seen it. The rest was duckin'."

"What was it about, Smoky?"

"Wal, Brad has been gittin' sorer every day, an' today we cleaned him. Brad opened up on Hank, no doubt meanin' to call him fer fair. But Brad didn't git goin' good before Hank went for his gun."

"Smoky, he had his mind made up," declared Jim, tensely.

"Shore. That's the queer part of it. Hank was not goin' to let Brad spit out much. . . . An' friend Jim, that's a hunch fer us."

"Hays can't beat me to a gun," rejoined Jim, with a cold ring in his voice.

"Nor me either. That's a safe bet."

They reached the camp. Lincoln lay face down over the table, his right arm hanging low, his gun lying near his hand.

"Lend a hand, some of you," ordered Slocum, peremptorily.

They carried Lincoln, face down, across the oval to the lower side of the cottonwood grove, and in half an hour he had been consigned to earth, and his possessions divided among the men who had buried him.

"Grave number two!" speculated Smoky. "Fellers, it runs in my mind that Robbers' Roost in these next twenty years will be sprinkled all over with graves."

"How so, when nobody has any idee where it is?"

"Heese-man will find it, an' Morley, an' after them many more," concluded Slocum, prophetically.

"Let's rustle out of the hole," suggested Bridges.

CHAPTER IX

IT WAS dark by the time Happy Jack called them to supper. Jim carried over an armload of brush to make a bright fire. By its flare Hays was seen approaching, and when he drew near he said: "Jim, did they tell you straight how I come to draw on Brad?"

"Reckon they did," replied Jim, coldly.

"Anythin' to say?"

"No. I don't see how you could have acted any differently."

"Wal, you've copped it with the ace. The second Brad jumped me I seen in his eyes he meant to egg me on to draw. So I did it quick. . . . Jack, what you got fer supper?"

By tacit consent and without a single word the men avoided Happy Jack's table that night and ate around the camp fire. Hays stood up, Smoky sat on a stone. Jim knelt on one knee, and the others adopted characteristic poses reminiscent of the trail.

"Cool after the rain," remarked Hays, after he had finished. And he took up a blazing fagot of wood. "Reckon I'll make a little fire for my lady prisoner."

Agents Wanted in Surrounding Towns

Giddings, Texas. August 20, 1934

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I notified the Cameron Mutual Life Insurance Association on Saturday night, August 18, 1934 of the death of my wife, who was insured under policy No. 1722-8, for $1,000.00, and on Monday morning August 20, 1934, a check for $1,000.00 was delivered to me by the company.

Am only too glad to recommend Cameron Mutual Life Insurance Association of Cameron, Texas, to any of my friends and acquaintances, as being prompt in paying its claims, and very fair and considerate of its members.

Will be glad to have anyone write to me concerning the above and I shall give them a prompt reply.

Mattresses Provided For Needy of Texas

AUSTIN, Aug. 24—Thousands of needy Texans will get mattresses upon which to sleep, hundreds of women will receive employment and some surplus cotton and cotton products will be taken off the market as a result of the Texas Relief Commission's new mattress making project, scheduled to get under way in 28 plants by the latter part of next week.

The project was designed after a survey among relief workers indicated thousands of the state's destitutes in many cases had no beds at all and were sleeping on the bare floors of their homes, if they had homes.

Efforts to absorb some of the state's idle women workers will be partially rewarded, as the average plant will employ from 15 to 25 persons, most of whom will be women. Twenty-four of the factories will be strictly hand-labor plants and the four others are idle commercial plants, rented by the relief commission.

Cotton and ticking for the project are being supplied by the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation, which proposes to supply Texas plants with 2,640 bales of cotton and 250,800 yards of ticking this month. The allotment for September is approximately 3,040 bales of cotton and a proportionate increase in yards of ticking.

These, factories, according to R. L. Taylor, examining engineer of the relief commission, under whose supervision the plan was developed, will turn out mattresses at the rate of 1,000 per day. They will be distributed by the commission's surplus commodities department in much the same manner that canned beef and fresh meat are being spread over Texas. It was emphasized that these mattresses will not be charged against the budgets of the clients who receive them.

Relief officials are hopeful that personnel in the plants may be increased as the workers learn the business and that many who learn the trade will earn permanent jobs as the nation effects economic recovery.

Cotton and ticking orders already have been accepted by the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation and materials already are on the way, Taylor said.

ON TEXAS FARMS

In four terracing demonstrations conducted by the farm demonstration agent in Red River county in July, 324 acres of land went under the protection of terraces, one-half of which were rented acres formerly in cotton. The county tractor is being called into service. Testimony of farmers who terraced last year is encouraging new terraces because crops are 15 per cent to 20 per cent better on terraced land this summer than on unterraced, due to conserved moisture. Red River county is out to break terracing records next fall and winter.

In Fayette county the home demonstration agent gave a demonstration in pickle making—2526 containers of pickles on home pantry shelves resulted. She explained and illustrated the method of canning sandwich spread and forthwith the home demonstration club women put up 600 containers to be used in their children's school lunches.

Lampasas—The cotton plow-up campaign paid Walter Walker, a farmer in Unity community in Lampasas county, in 1933 and is still paying him, according to W. P. Graham, farm demonstration agent.

In 1933 Mr. Walker signed a cotton contract and was paid cash for plowing under green cotton stalks. This year he was paid again by the increased yield of oats on the land where the cotton was plowed under. Sixty-six bushels per acre were harvested on the land where the cotton was plowed under, while only 40 bushels per acre were harvested off land that had previously grown grain.

Jefferson—In the midst of the worst drought on record in this part of Texas, Homer Wurtsbaugh, Marion county farmer, has been using water from Cypress river to irrigate four acres of ribbon cane growing on land only a few hundred feet from the river, according to John H. Erickson, farm demonstration agent. Before the can was planted levels were run with the help of the agent so that each row would carry the water through the entire field. The water is carried through a two inch pipe to the land and the ground is thoroughly soaked. The cane averages more than head high and shows no ill effects of the drought.

Haskell—That good seed and green crops turned under give profitable results has been proved on the farm of Paul Frierson of the Midway community in Haskell county, according to R. H. Maxwell, farm demonstration agent.

The yield per acre for the Nor-Tex variety of oats was 60 bushels, the yield for the Spivey variety was 50 bushels, while the yield for the common Texas Red oats was only 30 bushels per acre.

After harvesting the cotton crop the land was one-way disced and the seed drilled in during October. The Nor-Tex oats were planted on "plow-up" cotton land where there was a good growth of green cotton which served as a green manure crop, but otherwise the land had the same preparation. On 20 acres Mr. Frierson harvested 1189 bushels of Nor-Tex oats and netted $380.

Sees First Rain

Born May 10, 1934, Little Jane Mathes is pictured as her older brother, Curtis, initiates her into the mysterious knowledge of rainfall. Except for a few scattered drops, a brisk 20-minute shower in one part of Fort Worth last week is the only rain that has fallen there during Jane's lifetime. Luckily she lived in the small area that received precipitation. (Texas News Photos.)
