Coryell County Basketball Tourney Begins This Afternoon at 3 O'clock

This afternoon at 3 o'clock Coryell county's Basketball Tournament will swing into action on the local gym floor. The teams that likely have a chance of winning the tourney is the strong Gatesville Hornets, who won the Boys' Invitation Tournament held here the 25 and 26 of January. Turnersville, at team that was runner-up in the Boys' Tourney, and a team that sent local to their feet several times when they played the local cagers in the Tournament, also have an even chance of copping honors in the County Tournament. Pearl, a team that local fans have been waiting to see pitted against the Hornets, will also be in the thick of the fight for honors.

Waco Nosed-out Locals 22-19 in Thrilling game Here Saturday Night

PLAY TWO EXTRA PERIODS

The Waco High School Tigers came to Gatesville Saturday night determined to hand the locals their second defeat of the season, and they did, 21-19.

The Tigers have played the strongest teams in central Texas and have won. In Lumpkin, the Tigers have a center that did not do as well against the Hornets as he has been doing in games with other central teams. He was covered most of the game but when in the open with the oval, it was a sure two points. He carried away honors however, making eleven points.

Playing as if stale, the locals lagged all of the first half. The first period ended with Waco leading 5 to 3. The half terminated with Waco leading by a margin of seven points, 13-6. In the third period the local cagers began to snap-out-of-it. Ward and McLarty were unable to hit their stride throughout the game, but played a defensive game of ball that any coach would be proud of.

With one and a half minutes to play and the Hornets leading 17 to 15, Lumpkin managed to get in the clear and make four points before the local quint could cover him. After playing two extra periods, the Tigers pulled a nice play to win the game.

Fellowship Club Meets With Mrs. Powell.

On February 1 the Good Fellowship Club members and guests met at the home of their president, Mrs. Jack Powell, for an all day affair. A very pretty quilt was quilted and nearly enough pices were pieced for an improved nin-patch quilt.

A very attractive plate lunch was served at the noon hour.

At two o'clock the business meeting was held. The minutes were read, and Mrs. Dick Payne suggested a new plan called the "Pie Plan." Its origin is meant to collect some money for the club's benefit. One member bakes a pie, sends it to another member, with it the membership enrollment, and a little bank. She eats the pie and puts as much money as she feels she can spare in the bank and scratches the lady's name from the enrollment, who sent the pie to her (in this way no one will get one twice) then she bakes a pie in two or three days and sends to another member till every member has gotten a pie. This plan was adopted.

We had a grand attendance of 15 members and 8 visitors, quite an improvement since the bad weather started. We have on an attendance contest and much enthusiasm was seen among everyone.

Delicious refreshments were served late in the afternoon.

The club meets at Mrs. Tom Chambers on February 15 for an all day meeting. All visitors are cordially invited to each meeting.

By Mrs. L. Young

Winter months are speeding fast
January's past and gone,
February sleet and snow
Lies up-on the field and lawn.
Through our skies be dull and grey
In our hearts we gayly sing,
For at close of every day
We're one day nearer Spring.
Nearer to the April breeze
Flowery May and sunny June,
Singing birds and leafy trees
And a golden harvest moon.
Like the months, Life's speeding on,
We shall sleep beneath the sod,
Like the flowers when winter's gone,
We shall rise to meet our God.
Pain and death shall pass away
We shall mount to heights unknown,
At the close of every day
We are one day nearer home.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC TICKET

The word comes from Washington that President Roosevelt wants John Garner to be renominated for the vice presidency in 1936. Although there had been some talk from Washington that a Middle-Westerner might be chosen, all good Texans had no doubt but what the President's logic would overcome his political scruples. Certainly Mr. Garner is no liability to the administration. On the other hand, Garner cannot be surpassed in his practical handling of legislation and skillful steering of desired measures around all the pitfalls of opposition. He is a power for the President in his strong hold on the Democratic membership of the house and senate. Barring unforeseen eventualities, Mr. Garner will be on the ticket in 1936 and will help it win a great victory.

ROPER ON BUSINESS

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, writing in "Today" magazine, gives some interesting and encouraging figures which show what the New Deal has done for business in the last two years. We find that in 1934 industrial and manufacturing production was up slightly more than 23 per cent over 1932 and within 20 per cent of their 1923-25 activity. Automobile production in 1934 was just about double what it was in 1932. The lumber industry, dangerously low in March, 1932, was up 28 per cent in 1934. Other gains noted in this group include cement, boots and shoes, leather, rubber tires, textiles, and tobacco. Cigarette consumption for 1934 totalled 125,000,000,000. Despite widespread unemployment, Secretary Roper points out that more work is being done in factories and on construction jobs. Further, we are shown that factory employment during 1934 showed a gain of 22 per cent over 1932, and factory payrolls increased 32 per cent. Construction contracts increased 14 per cent. But residential construction was off, giving proof of the wisdom of the administration in planning increased housing activities. All of which tends to prove that we are at least definitely on the road to prosperity.

GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Senator Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina sounds a grim warning against government spending. The bottom of Uncle Sam's barrel will eventually be reached, he says, and the pay-roll will have to come. The Senator warns that the government's credit must be conserved in order to prevent six million jobless and their families from starving. We are inclined to agree with Senator Bailey. The Federal Government already owes 28 billion and is committed to to borrow 4 billion more. Can it safely go beyond 32 billions of debt? Its interest account is nearly a billion a year at present. Add to this the indebtedness of states, cities, and counties, not less than 18 billion. Manifestly we are near the danger line. The credit of the Government maintains that we cannot come through the depression on borrowing and spending, for, when we are once out, the debt will keep us from staying out. We don't want hungry citizens. But we don't want a bankrupt treasury and hungry citizens to boot.

World Comment

By JOE
BURNS

"The ladder of life is full of splinters, but they always prick the hardest when we're sliding down.—William L. Brownell.

THE SENATE voted 53 to 36 against the U. S. entering the World Court last week. Although direct pressure was exerted from the White House, only a few Democrats could be mustered by Floor Leader Robinson to vote for the measure. George Norris of Nebraska led the opposition to the measure and Hiram Johnson, independent Republican and heretofore supporter of the President, led the debate against the proposal. Robinson attributed the defeat of the bill to radio talks made against it by certain notables, among them were Father Charles Coughlin of Detroit. As a result of these talks over 40,000 telegrams were sent to senators by their constituents asking that they vote down the measure.

HUEY LONG is really cracking down on his opponents in Louisiana. The Senator left Washington secretly Thursday and immediately after his arrival at the state's capital, Baton Rouge, ordered the arrest of the leader of the Square Deal organization, founded to establish constitutional government in Louisiana. Long is encountering more real opposition than he ever has. Heretofore his opponents have consisted of business men and manufacturer, such as the Standard Oil people, who hesitated before resorting to Huey's pet method of force to accomplish their ends. But the Kingfish is now up against a group of enraged workers who were left out of the oil concerns because of the excessive taxes Huey's henchmen levied on them. Huey still has the state government and the army but when the people desert him he must make his exit.

OPPOSITION already to Senator Sheppard and one week after we said the Senator was going to have trouble in 1936. Rep. Joe Eagle of Houston, veteran of 12 years in the National House, who has announced that he will be a candidate on an anti-dry platform. Eagle had not been counted among the potential candidates but he is now in the race "until the last ballot is counted."

THE SENATE Friday voted 30 to 0 for the "probe everything bill" by which lawmakers have to divulge the names of their employers and tell not only what outside pay they are receiving but who gave them campaign money, how much they spent and everything pertaining to their office. Governor Allred has been an ardent advocate of the bill and threw his support behind the measure which he had promised the people he would pass.

JAPAN now wants an alliance that would make the Nip-ponese absolute rulers of China. Other nations back and fill, move left, move right, says Arthur Brisbane, while Japan goes straight ahead, makes plans, discusses them after she has carried them out, usually suggesting that they happened. It has frequently been said, especially during the last few years, that the Yellow Races will one day rule the world. And if Japan gains control of the Chinese army, which now numbers more than 2,000,000 men, the West can say good-bye to its possessions in the Orient.

Economic Highlights

According to the old saying, "The mills of the gods grind slowly—but they grind exceedingly fine."

That adage can be accurately applied to the present Congress, as it considers the President's new recovery and relief program. It is moving slowly, it is talking a good deal, and it is gradually grinding out legislation toward the two principal projects of the White House—social security, and an unprecedentedly vast public works program, designed to eliminate the dole.

The public works program is of the utmost immediate interest. It will cost $4,000,000,000—the largest draft ever drawn against the United States Treasury for any single purpose. It will put about 3,500,000 men to work directly. And, if the President's hopes materialize, it will put another 3,500,000 to work indirectly, in jobs created by the spending power of the first 3,500,000.

Equally important are the promised principles upon which the program is predicted. All work is to be useful, in that it will either permanently improve living conditions or create new wealth. Pay for workers will be above the present "dole" level—but will be low enough so that the men employed will still keep an eye out for jobs in private business. Projects will be selected so as to use the largest possible amount of labor for the money spent. The money will be allocated on the basis of the greatest need—that is, a state which has 20 per cent of its people on relief will get more than a state which has but ten per cent on relief. It is said the public works program will avoid competition with private enterprise which is justifiably jittery about government activities in the industrial field.

The list of possible public works has not been completed, but a number are known. Public buildings will be one. Bridge building will be another. Soil conservation and sanitation will come in for their share, as will tunnels, flood dams and forest conservation. Road building will naturally be near the head of the list.

There was considerable dissatisfaction in Congress over the fact that the President wants the public works money under his control—Congressmen wanted to distribute it themselves. However, this idea seems to be definitely out—allocation of funds will be in the jurisdiction of the White House, though a board appointed by the President.

JAMES CORYELL

BY FRANK SIMMONS

James Coryell was a character about whom little is known; I have not been able so far to find any record of the date of his birth, or the in which he was born. Those things may be recorded somewhere but I have searched vainly for them. He is described by an early writer as "a likable young fellow."

Coryell belonged to the old reckless, adventurous type that sought adventure and room among the restless men who were moving the van of civilization further into the unknown. He first appears in history at Fort Griffin at the Three Forks in Bell county. Here he joined a company of rangers being organized by Sterling C. Robertson in 1836.

At that time the first Indian wars were on and all the territory of the Cowhouse, the Leon, the Bosque and Brazos Rivers were in the hands of Rangers and Indians. There were no settlers and we find the records of only two surveys of land that had been made in what is now Coryell county; those of F. R. Fillett and James Hudson, made in 1835 and 1836 respectively.

We later hear of James Coryell as a member of Capt. Thomas H. Barron's company and a little later in Capt. Geo. B. Erath's company stationed at Fort Milam, near Brazos Falls, near where Marlin is now located.

It was while in the service of Capt. Erath on an expedition to the Leon River country in May, 1838, that Coryell received his headright covering the lands adjacent to the mouth of Coryell Creek. Whoever has been on this league selected for a home by the pioneer, sees at once that it was one of the finest locations in the Leon Valley on which to establish a home. The scenic beauty is unsurpassed. The natural resources if properly husbanded, are in exhaustable.

To many people Coryell has become a legendary character, and many are the fireside tales told of his exploits. There is a tradition direct that Coryell and his party had been pursued by Indians, in the afternoon they had laid down under a liveoak tree to rest, and after some time Coryell said, "I will stand and draw fire of the redskins, so we can locate them." He rose to his feet and was mortally wounded. This, I am told, occurred near White Hall near the Waco and McGregor road.

Another tradition says that while attempting to establish a settlement on his headright, he was killed by Indians near the mouth of Coryell Creek, and points to the fact, as proof, that three human skulls were unearthed there. There is still another story to the effect that he was killed by Indians high up on the head of Coryell Creek.

Relative to Coryell's death Capt. Erath has this to say, "While stationed at Fort Milam, Coryell, Ezra Webb and Michael Castleman made a sortie out from the Fort to cut a bee tree. It was while engaged in this work that they were attacked by Indians and Coryell killed. His comrades escaped." We are willing to accept Capt. Erath's version of the story, since it was under that rugged old warrior that Coryell was serving as a Texas Ranger.

Whatever the facts may be, Coryell's name has been honored by having named for him Coryell county, organized in 1853, Coryell Creek, Coryell City, a pre-civil war town, and Coryell Missionary Baptist Church established in 1853, the first organized church to be established in the county.

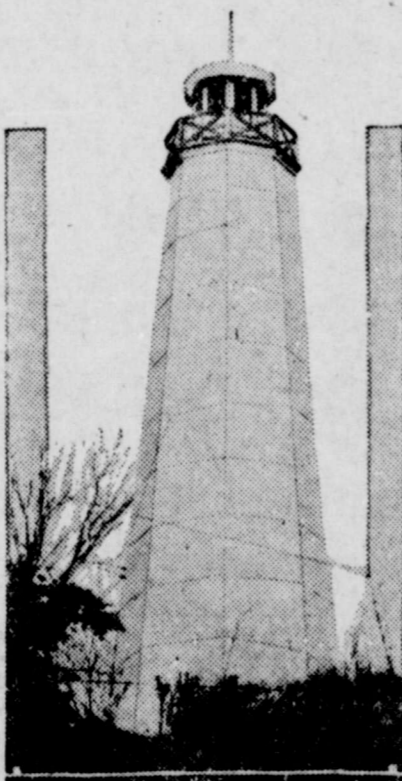

(Note: This is the last of a series of articles written for the State Park Board, having been appointed to this work by D. E. Colp, chairman of the State Park Board. Representative Huddleston of Coryell county and Judge Robert W. Brown of Coryell county.—F. E. S.)—McGregor Mirror.

The Mark Twain beacon light at Hannibal, Mo., was recently lighted when President Roosevelt turned a golden key at Washington. The lighting of the beacon started the year's celebration of the Mark Twain centennial in the little town where Mark Twain spent his boyhood.

THE STORY OF CANCER CONTROL

Written Especially for Women, with Special Emphasis on Preventability and Cure.

OPTIMISM REPLACES PESSIMISM IN CANCER CONTROL

Pessimism no longer has a place in cancer control. The 24,448 individuals who have been cured and have remained free of the disease for from 5 to 25 years prove this statement. This army of healthy persons was reported recently by a relatively small group of physicians at the American College of Surgeons' Chicago meeting. This fact is all the more remarkable when one realizes that very few cases of cured cancer were recorded prior to 1920. And to this large and impressive group the fact that the Memorial Hospital in New York this month announces that their records show over 1,000 cancer patients alive and well five years after treatment, it is readily seen that there is cause for optimism and new courage on the part of both the laity and the medical profession. The same optimism prevails in other countries. Doctor H. Beckworth Whitehouse, noted English surgeon, states that in his country 60 per cent of all cases treated early in the progress of the disease have been cured; while but 6.7 per cent had been cured after delay in securing treatment. This emphasizes the imperative need for early diagnosis. In probably no other disease is the element of time so vitally important to life.

Medical opinion is convinced that our present day knowledge of cancer is adequate for the competent treatment of early cases of cancer of the breast and reproductive organs. However, the best surgeons and radiologists in the world, aided by the most extensive and up to date facilities, can make only a relatively mediocre showing against the established menace of LATE cancer. In order to give these surgeons and radiologists even a reasonably fair chance for successful treatment, cancer must be brought to them early. No one except the patient herself can accomplish this result—and no one can be more influential than the patient herself in increasing the total number of cured cases in this country. In spite of unceasing educational efforts, 80-85 per cent of cancer patients still apply for relief in advanced stages of the disease.

The responsibility for curing cancer and the opportunity to save lives is placed on you who read this message. Your doctor is ready and willing to help you. Make him your confidant.

Willington—As a part of her bedroom improvement work for the year, Mrs. John Jones, bedroom demonstrator for the North Willington Home Demonstration Club in Collingsworth county, improved her clothes closet by adding linen storage space and an extra rod for clothes that are out of a season. Her closet had only two shelves in the back and one rod for hanging clothes, so that practically three-fourths of her storage space was lost.

Lets Her Employees Run Her Shop

Having turned over her business to her employees in order to "do just as she darn pleases," Mrs. Oliver C. Grinnell, fifty-seven years old, is here shown looking over a fishing reel she will use when she goes angling off the coast of Florida.

By adding new shelves and a new rod, Mrs. Jones has organized her space to that she has room for her clothes, accessories and linens. Lumber already on the place was used, and as Mr. Jones did the work there was no cash expenditure for the improvement of the closet.

Artificial Throat to Save Baby

Dr. P. Insley of Baltimore is shown with little Miss X, three-day-old baby, who was born without a throat. X-ray pictures disclosed an abbreviated esophagus, which instead of leading into the stomach only led as far as the collar bone. Undaunted, Doctor Insley, and his assistant, Doctor Bay, inserted a rubber tube down the child's throat through which she is now being fed, while they seek to extend the esophagus by the grafting of living tissue.
