Bob Poage Outlines Lot Of Legislature in Case Of Special Session

Below is a letter to voters of this county outlining probable work which will be taken up at the Special Session of the State Legislature if one is called, which at this time seems most probable. Senator Poage's letter follows:

Dear Sir:

During the past Session of the Legislature, I sent each of the papers in our District a weekly report on the activities of that Body. At least some of the papers seemed to feel that this weekly letter was of some interest and used it in whole or in part, as they saw fit. Others, of course, had no place for it and no use for it, but where it went in the waste basket no harm was done.

It appears that the Legislature will soon be in session again, and it has occurred to me that the people of the District might be interested in one or two of the problems that must of necessity confront the Called Session.

With the passage of the Old Age Pension Amendment to the State Constitution, we are brought face to face with the unpleasant realization that the Legislature cannot pay pensions to anyone without levying taxes on some one else to get the money. Of course, whatever the Legislature does about this matter will be unsatisfactory to both the recipients of the pensions and to the taxpayers.

The first class will think that the Legislature is too niggardly, and that we should deal more liberally with them. The second class, who must pay the bills, will think the Legislature is too generous with their money, and, of course, that the Legislature has levied the wrong kind of tax, but the problem must be solved, and the obligation of the State to its dependent old must be met.

I do not think that the Leg-

SCOUTS MAKE LONG HIKE TO COLORADO RIVER FOR WEEK

Approximately fifteen Gatesville scouts left last night for Towls Crossing on the Colorado River where they will camp for a few days, returning here Friday. Scoutmaster J. M. Witcher accompanied them.

Those making the trip were "Fish" Culberson, Jim Miller, John F. Post, Jr., Esteen Poston, "Badger" Hinesley, Duncan Kirkpatrick, Bayne Blankenship, Wayne Strickland, Danny McClellan, and Thomas Richardson.

Tom Easley, colored "Chef" of many a hike accompanied the boys to see that they got their "refills" regularly. Mothers here may write their sons, addressing their mail to McAnnaley's Bend, so we are told by Scoutmaster J. M. Witcher.

FIVE PISTIC FELLOWS FALL FRANTICALLY IN FIASCO

The night was hot! Lamps over the roped arena sent their unmerciful glare, and heat, down on the semi-stripped warriors. Centered with weapons drawn, and the battle was on!

Battle 1, amateur, and "Sonny" Hair, escaped by a hair of being knocked cold.

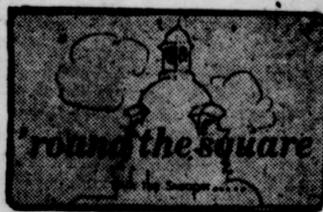

Battle 2, amateur, Albert Dickie, heard the "Dickie" birds sweetly singing.

Battle 3, amateur "Cotton" Davis saw the "cotton" canvas come up and kiss him in the face.

Battle 4, amateur "Goat-milk" Rutherford, got something stronger than "goat-milk," and—

Battle 5, amateur Royce Davis, dreamed sweetly of rolls—"Royces," the aftermath of a solid punch.

All of which was the tragic ending of a frolic of these boys to Waco last week during one of the Amateur Nights, in their endeavor to emulate Joe Louis, Jack Dempsey, Braddock and others of like ilk.

Luke Walker is in the back of his tailor shop "dying," was the report received at this office yesterday. They do say it was clothing! We believe it was poisonous gas from Otis Chambers, noted local Automobile salesman, from a local Auto House. Jim (J. M.) Ward and his cronie, Mr. Gentry, tangled up in a two box checker game, around at P & B's Farm Implement, representatives. One calls for another, and another says Me, Too! Referring to G. L. Derrick of Turnersville, and Jim Painter of Jonesboro, and one spoken of by some as His Honor, the Mayor of Ames, Charlie (have to look it up) Liljeblad, and Joe Han'na, farmer-rancher-merchant, with customers and salesmen.

IRVIN McCREARY ASSUMES DUTIES AS STATE BANKING COMMISSIONER

Irvin McCreary, Vice-president of the Guaranty Bank & Trust Company left for Austin Friday of last week, where he assumes his duties as State Banking Commissioner immediately, to which position he was appointed.

ed by Governor James V. Allred.

In leaving Gatesville, Mr. McCreary assures the News that Gatesville and Coryell County will continue to be his home, and that his relations with local citizens have already been most pleasant with the people he has been pleased to serve in any capacity in this county. After his work with the state is completed, he expects to return to Gatesville and Coryell county, making this his home as it formerly was.

In conversation with Mr. McCreary Friday morning one could tell from talking with him that Mr. McCreary, after spending a large part of his life in Coryell county and Gatesville, and knowing its citizens and problems as intimately as he does, that in leaving, he is reluctant to part with those who have been his friends both during the stormy years of the depression and the good years before the depression, and that his leaving is far from being all joy.

As for the people of Coryell county, his remarks to us assures us that he thinks and honestly believes Coryell county people are not to be excelled in any land.

Mrs. McCreary and Ray Virginia, their daughter, are also leaving with him, and they are making their home in Austin.

The News joins the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. McCreary in congratulating Mr. McCreary on the honor bestowed upon him by Governor James V. Allred in his selection of Mr. McCreary as State Banking Commissioner.

NEW GIN MACHINERY

In conversation with Mr. Manning, part owner of the Manning and Elam Gin of Pearl, he informs us that they have given their gin plant a general overhauling preparatory for this season's run.

The principal improvement was the installation of Continental Cleaner feeder and bur machine which will make a clean sample of the dirtiest cotton. New saws and ribs have been added to their four gin stands and a hydraulic pump to the press.

ELEPHANT FALLS, KILLS EMPLOYEE OF CIRCUS

Coffeyville, Kan., Aug. 25.—A falling elephant killed a circus employe tentatively identified as Wayne Fish, 54, of Bedford, Ind., as a truck lurched at an intersection here early today, hurling both to the ground.

POPULATION DECREASES!

Five men left here one day last week for a destination. They'll be guests of the State for a while, at least—all of which means Bud Russell, or one of his men were in town.

They make it their business to furnish free (the tax payers pay it) transportation for those who are tired of livin' at home. "Bud" has the same reputation as the Northwest Mounted Police—he always gets (or has someone to) get his man.

REVIVAL CLOSERS AT THE GROVE WITH MARKED SUCCESS

According to letter from Rev. O. F. Williams, pastor of the First Baptist Church at The Grove, the revival that just closed at Moffett was a great success with 20 additions to the church, and 13 of these being by baptism. Large crowds attended and it was a great meeting.

THE TEACHER

By VIOLA WOLF
Evant Correspondent

Next Monday morning the doors of many public schools will swing open to welcome the finest and greatest army that treads American soil, the army of boys and girls seeking wisdom and light to lead and guide them into the paths that will help them lead the most useful and at the same time the richest existence that come to the race.

Thrice blessed that individual called teacher! (I mean the type of christian teacher whose heart throbs with sympathy and understanding, and from whose soul wells a pure stream of love that envelops each subject).

If there is one class of people whose life and conduct should be above reproach it is teachers. They are much more closely watched by their public and their student body than any Minister or any other public officer. The American teacher is wielding a much greater influence than the President, or Congressman or Senator, for she has the happy privilege of "rubbing elbows" daily in the classroom and on the play ground with the rich, the poor, the maimed, the high, the low, the fearful and courageous of all types and personalities. She knows their troubles, joys, sorrows, hopes, defeats, discouragements, weaknesses and aspirations. The wise teacher listens patiently to it all and gives and gives, for it is her function to get hold of the uncommon, rare, valuable and beautiful things and bring them into the lives that are narrow, and pinched, and impoverished and starved, mentally and morally and physically.

The teacher who gives purpose, inspires confidence and rouses ambition is the one who lives on in the memory of his pupils, rather than he who dazzles with his brilliant intellect, or classroom technique; and most important of all, life's ideals and the highest truths are never seen perfectly by youth except when embodied in a personality and that personality is usually a conscientious, faithful teacher.

"A boy or girl who has been taught to love a beautiful picture, a sun set, a rose bush, a robin, a sky full of stars, a fine old song, a courtesy, a generous deed, or a good book, is better educated than a boy or girl could be without them, even if he could work all the sums of algebra and parse everything in Virgil."

"It is written man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God," says the greatest of Teachers. Plant faith in God and you have done all.

World Comment

By JOE BURNS

EMPEROR Haile Selassie's belated effort to forestall an Italian invasion of Ethiopia by leasing half of his kingdom to British and American oil interests is doomed to failure. The British Government has refused to recognize the deal made by Francis M. Rickett, the secretive Englishman who is a mystery man even to his wife. His Majesty's Government pointed out that such a transaction could not be made without consultations among Italy, France and Britain under the tripower treaty of 1906.

Neither will the United States become embroiled in the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel because of oil interests in Ethiopia. The Standard Oil of New Jersey and the Socony-Vacuum companies are parties to the lease with British interests. President Roosevelt is known to be firmly opposed to action against Italy, irrespective of the fact that Italy has been branded by the world as the aggressor.

And, most important to the King of Kings, Benito Mussolini, with 800,000 troops under arms and 200,000 reservists being called, proclaimed to the world during the weekend that no oil concession or other political maneuvers will halt his course in Africa. Duce is preparing his Nation for any eventuality during the forthcoming African war. Five hundred thousand troops last week fought a mimic war at the Brenner Pass—Italy's gateway to Austria—as a solemn warning to Adolph Hitler that Duce will tolerate no foolishness along his northern border as he goes south to conquer Ethiopia.

The Italian chief has served notice on Britain too that it must keep the Suez Canal open and maintain a hands-off policy in the dispute. His fleet of 600 submarines is being assembled off the Italian island of Sicily to throw a line from there to Italian Africa, cutting the Mediterranean in half. The Italian fleet is being held in readiness to block the canal if Britain tries to close it. A dangerous situation is thus created because of the action of the British Admiralty in shifting the Mediterranean fleet and units of the Atlantic fleet to Suez and Malta, the British island south of Italy.

Wednesday the League of Nations Council will convene for decisions on the African dispute. Britain wants "sanctions" to be taken against Italy for her aggressive course against the African kingdom. That mystifying word "sanctions" in Article XVI of the League Covenant means penalties imposed on any member resorting to war. The penalties are, first, breaking off trade and financial relations with the aggressive power. Also, all financial, commercial, and personal intercourse will be prevented between the Covenant-breaking State and any other State, League member or not. The British apparently will be alone, for no other European nation has expressed a willingness to incur the wrath of the Fascist dictator by condemning his course in Africa.

The French will enter the Wednesday meeting in a difficult position. First of all, if other League members join with England in applying "sanctions" against Italy, Mussolini is sure to resign from the League. The Duce says he will pursue his aims "with Geneva without Geneva or against Geneva," and that "whoever applies sanctions against Italy will be met with the armed hostility of our country." Obviously, if Italy does resign from the Geneva body, the latter will have very little excuse for existing. Italy and Germany comprise half the population of Europe, excluding Russia, and Japan, the greatest power in the Orient, and the United States, the leading Western power, are non-members. If Italy goes out the League will be a misnomer. The point is that France has, since 1918, kept Germany in check thru the League. Hitler walked out, to be true, in 1933 but the threat of united action by League members has kept him from starting another war. France knows it and realizes it will be left alone to face a united and strong Germany if the League dies, as it surely will if Italy resigns. In fact, the prediction is heard that if Italy withdraws, England will seek an understanding with Germany, a non-league member.

The French, while striving to save the League, will also attempt to maintain the united front established against Germany at Stresa by Italy, Britain and France.

The "front" was weakened by the Anglo-German naval pact, which alienated France from England. Now Italy and England are at outs over the African quarrel and France is in a quandary. French officials explain that they must subordinate their sympathy for Ethiopia to their concern for the safety of France. This is a round-about way of saying that France will not join Britain in applying sanctions against Italy. France wants to resolidify its friendship and ties with Britain while strengthening its new friendship with the Fascist State. But London is unwilling to agree to anything that looks like legalizing Italy's African campaign, and Mussolini appears determined not to listen to international jurists reading the law to him at Geneva. So there stands the League, France, and perhaps the destiny of the world. Watch Wednesday.

W. R. HEARST'S proposal that Alfred E. Smith lead a constitutional Democratic ticket against President Roosevelt was received with little enthusiasm by so-called "constitutional" Democrats. Hearst issued the first call for a bolt by anti-New Deal Democrats. Among the conservative or Jeffersonian Democrats whom he proposed should be aligned against Roosevelt in 1936 were, in addition to Smith, Senators Byrd and Glass of Virginia, former Gov. Albert Ritchie of Maryland and Senator Tydings of Maryland, and Gov. Eugene Talmage of Georgia, all of whom have been bitter in their criticisms of New Deal policies. Byrd, Glass and Tydings formed the bulwark of the anti-New Deal bloc among Democrats in the Senate. Ritchie was defeated. (Continued on Page 6.)

A Lightning-Change Artist

A can of corn, before it is opened, appears to be a comfortable-looking cylindrical tin container with an appetizing-looking label depicting and describing its contents, as it stands smugly on your pantry shelf. But the moment it's opened a can of corn becomes a lightning-change artist of many varied possibilities. It may become, according to your taste, a cake, a casserole, a chowder, a fritter, an omelet, a pudding, a salad, a scallop, a soup, a stuffing, or, in combination with beans, a succotash.

Of course you probably like corn just as it comes from the can, but you may want to vary occasionally from that. If you do, stir into the contents of a No. 2 can of corn two eggs, two tablespoons of flour, a teaspoon of baking powder, a dash of cayenne and half a teaspoon of salt. Pour in a buttered baking dish, dot with butter and bake, and you'll have an entirely different dish.

Here Are Some Roles

How does canned corn become a cake? Well, here's a recipe for Corn Cakes: Beat two eggs well, add half a cup of sour milk, one-fourth teaspoon soda and a cup of canned corn. Sift together one cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt and two teaspoons baking powder, and add. Add one tablespoon melted butter, and fry in small cakes on a hot griddle. Serve with pork sausage and gravy or with maple syrup.

Corn's lightning-change to a casserole is accomplished in the following

Corn and Mushroom Casserole: Sauté two tablespoons sliced onions and the sliced mushrooms from a 4-ounce can in one tablespoon butter for several minutes. Add the contents of a No. 2 can creamy corn, three-fourths cup grated cheese, three-fourths cup chili sauce and salt and pepper, and turn into a buttered casserole. Bake in a moderate—375 degree—oven for about thirty minutes. Serves six.

CHAPTER 2
WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jean Valjean, sentenced to five years in the galleys for the theft of a loaf of bread, serves his term of horrible torture and privation. Paroled, he is shunned by everyone and hounded by the authorities. He seeks refuge in the home of kindly old Bishop Bienvenu who treats him like a long lost brother. Jean is suspicious of such kindness; revenge for the wrongs done him is foremost in his muddled mind.

The Bishop's Candlesticks

The only dish on the table is a large tureen of ragout. The bishop and Mlle. Baptiseme are at opposite ends. Magloire sits opposite Jean, who keeps his eyes on his plate and eats as though he were famished. "I seem to miss something—the table looks bare," says the bishop. "When we have visitors we use the silver plates, but—" She eyes Jean suspiciously and seems to say "not when these kind of people are about." She looks at the bishop and then rises and gets the silver plates from the sideboard. They do not pass unnoticed by Jean. After the meal has been cleared away, Jean and the bishop are standing at the open door of the latter's room. The bishop is holding two silver candlesticks, both with candles lighted. Magloire passes and goes into the room carrying the silver unconcerned. "Well, well, well, what are plates, after all? We can just as well eat off tin." "How can we? Tin tastes." "Well, then, iron plates." "Iron's as bad." "Well, then wood—" "Who ever heard of a bishop eating off wooden plates?" "With a twinkle in his eye: "They'd probably be all the better if they did." There is a heavy knocking at the door. Magloire immediately registers apprehension. The door is already half-open when the bishop, unperturbed, again calls in his usual easy manner: "Come in!" Three gendarmes are there and between them is Jean, utterly dejected. "This man, Jean Valjean—we saw him running away. We stopped him and found he had this silver with your crest on it." "Now, what is all this? I'm very glad to see you again, Jean—" The gendarmes look astonished. Jean glares at the bishop. Is this some new trick? "Yes, because I gave you the two silver candlesticks, as well, and they're worth perhaps two hundred francs. How did you come to leave them behind?" Jean is too astonished to reply. The bishop turns to the police: "Didn't he tell you that the good priest with whom he passed the night gave him this silver?" "He said so, but naturally we thought—" "That was very clever of you. You do your work well. But it's quite a plates in a basket. She gives a furtive look at Jean as she passes. The bishop indicates the door opposite. "This is your room—the best we can do—hope you'll be comfortable enough—take this!" He gives Jean one of the silver candlesticks. But during this Jean's attention has been riveted on Magloire, who is putting the silver in the cupboard at the head of the bishop's bed. She sees him and comes to the door, shutting it. "She's afraid of me! And no wonder!" He looks at the bishop. "How do you know I won't murder you in the night?" "Well, how do you know I won't murder you?" is the soft-spoken reply. Jean's expression plainly says, "That's absurd." "You have faith in me, it seems? Then I must do the same by you, mustn't I? Good night." Jean stares at him, amazed.

"When your turn comes, promise me you too will give!"

A Thief in the Night

Jean wakes with a start. His hand instinctively goes to his wallet. He satisfies himself that the 109 francs are there. Then the thought comes to his mind—the bishop's silver. The cunning, crafty look of the criminal comes into his face again. He gets out of bed quietly, goes to his knapsack—takes out an iron bar, feels it, menacingly. The door to the bishop's room is ajar. It makes him hesitate. It is too easy. He enters, regards the sleeping man with haggard astonishment, not unmixed with fear, then moves to the cupboard to pry it open. There is no need to use force—the key is already there. Again it seems too easy, and he glances suspiciously in the bishop's direction, then begins to pull out the silver, which is piled together in a basket. The bishop is busy writing in the dining-room. He looks up as he hears a scream from Magloire and the sound of running feet. "The silver is gone! I told you—that man! He went off without a word and he's taken the silver! Now we've no silver plate!" The bishop goes back to his notes.

mistake"; he turns to Jean, "the silver was his." "Then we can let him go?" "Why, certainly! And give him his knapsack!" When they are left alone together, Jean is almost overwhelmed. He begins to break down. "Is it true?" he stammers. "I don't go back to the galleys? You'll let me go free?" When is a Man Free? "When is a man free? I wish someone could tell me. Yes, you can go. And this time, of course, take your candlesticks." "You give them to me?" "Long ago, Jean," the bishop says gently. "I learned that life was to give—not take. Let me give. In turn, promise me you, in turn—will give." "I—" Jean is unable to speak. He drops to one knee. The bishop puts his hand on his shoulder. "My door is never closed. Don't use any other way—furtively, in the night. The door is the right way, and the right way, Jean, is always open to you." It is this view of the bishop that Jean carries in his mind forever after. Jean lifts himself to his feet and with his shoulders hunched for his knapsack stumbles to the door, his whole body shaking. He trudges along the road, shoulders bowed, his eyes vague and bewildered, trying to understand. As he trudges, the bishop's voice comes to him—"Life is to give, not to take—promise me, when your turn comes, you, too—will give." Slowly it comes to him that there is still someone with faith and trust in the world. He feels the world can still hold something for him—one man, at least, has trusted him. The trudge-rhythm changes, his head and shoulders become erect and he looks into the future with hope and determination in his eyes. Thus ended the first phase of the life of Jean Valjean.

MULES AND HORSES SCARCE IN COUNTY; STATE SERVICE HERE

By Roy Hayes
Caretaker of State Owned Stallion.

January 1, 1934 found literally thousands of farms and ranches over the State of Texas void of both mules and horses—other claimed a few brood mares but colts were a scarcity. Registered and high grade Stallions and Jacks were seldom found anywhere in the State. The breeding and raising of horse and mule colts had declined during the past few years until the Federal Census of 1930 gave the average at 18 years plus.

The above condition had not only affected the livestock industry, but had in a manner thrown the real farming program, on almost every farm, entirely out of order. Land that had been formerly used for pasturage and raising of feed was now planted to cotton—directly adding to the ever growing surplus and gradually bringing the price down to starvation levels.

It was obvious that something had to be done, not only for the livestock situation, but to help correct the program on Texas farms. And to this end Hon. J. E. McDonald, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, devoted days of time and hard work in bringing about relief; seeing in the future the bringing back of horses and mules to Texas farms and ranches and anawakening to the real farming program of diversification.

The opportunity came at the time of the passage of the Horse Racing Bill, and Commissioner McDonald demanded and received for use by the State Department of Agriculture, 25 per cent of the State Tax to be used for the purchase of jacks and stallions to be distributed over Texas.

The first funds for this purpose became available in January 1934, and immediately the purchase and distribution of jacks and stallions was begun. The first seven months of the program found the State Department of Agriculture had delivered over Texas, one hundred and fifty registered and high grade jacks and stallions, consisting of Belgian, Percheron, saddle and Morgan Stallions, and high grade jacks. September 1st, 1935 find the State of Texas the largest purchaser of jacks and stallions in the United States; having purchased and delivered to this time, two hundred and twenty-four head, at an average cost of $376.00. In the 106 head of jacks owned by the State of Texas is to be found "General Linden," the three times Grand Champion Jack of Tennessee, and which at this time is one of the five outstanding jacks in the United States. Also prominent among the jacks owned by the State of Texas and which are proving their worth in many counties are "Black Hawk Chief," "Brigadier General," "Colonel Taylor" and many others. Eighty-six head of registered and high grade Draft Stallions are now located on Texas farms and ranches, through the efforts of Commissioner McDonald. In these stallions the foundation stock for more and better colts will be had for the raising of better brood mares is very necessary. In portions of the State needing Saddle type horses, Commissioner McDonald has placed thirty-two head of registered Saddle stallions. For the period ending August 31, 1935, approximately 11,000 breedings have been reported by the Caretakers of these jacks and stallions. Figuring on the basis of a seventy per cent colt crop there will be 7700 horse and mule colts grazing on Texas farms and ranches within the next few months at an estimated value of more than $450,000.00 increase in livestock for Texas. And it is evident that each year will find this program growing until once again Texas will find her vast acres used for the purpose for which it was intended, and Texas should within a few short years be one of the foremost livestock producing states of the Nation.

Figures show that in thirteen Southern States, sixty-five per cent of all work stock are mules. In some states eighty-five to ninety per cent are mules. With the exception of Tennessee and Kentucky, practically all work stock used in the South is raised outside of the Southern States. Statistics show that we have in 1935, two million one hundred and ninety-six or 26 per cent less work stock than we had in 1920.

Commissioner McDonald states that efforts will be made to place Jacks and Stallions in every County of the State as fast as funds accrue for this purpose, and to show the interest of Texas in this program, there is on file with the Department of Agriculture more than 2000 applications for jacks and stallions.

World Comment—

ed by Roosevelt in the Democratic convention of 1932.

Gov. Ritchie, in London, denied he would join a third-party movement. "I have never subscribed to third party movements," he said. Gov. Talmadge further blasted whatever hopes Mr. Heart may have for a new party when he said, "I'm a Democrat and it is my duty to fight for the principles of old line Democracy and try to help the party on to victory next year." Hooray for Talmadge, for once. Senator Byrd—"I have repeatedly said I would have no part in a third party movement." Senator Glass is known to feel as does his colleague.

SEPT. 12 DEAD LINE SET BY PRESIDENT FOR STATE PROJECTS

Waco, Aug. 29.—The urgent necessity for speed in submission of proposals to the Works Progress Administration was contained in an appeal to all governmental officials in District 8, embracing McLennan and 12 nearby counties, by C. H. Harrison, district director, here today.

"President Roosevelt has fixed Sept. 12 as the deadline for projects reaching Washington, and I have been advised by State Administrator H. P. Drought that he expects all districts to have proposals in the state office by Sept. 6," Harrison said.

County and city officials were requested to survey their areas and submit as soon as possible a list of proposals calculated to provide jobs for all employables on relief rolls in the district.

"The responsibility rests with the political subdivisions," Harrison declared, "to give us enough projects to make work for approximately 8,700 persons in this district for one year. The extent of the responsibility of each county in the district may be measured by the number of employables on relief in each county, which follows:

"Bosque, 217; Comanche, 300; Coryell, 511; Ellis, 1,723; Erath, 454; Hamilton, 479; Hill, 858; Hood, 107; Johnson, 1,196; Lampasas, 213; McLennan, 2,516; Mills, 80; Somerville, 26."

Since the government is willing to spend $600 on WPA projects for every man-year of labor provided, Harrison asserted this district in order to assure a year of work for its employables, should provide projects involving a WPA expenditure of $5,500,000.

How far short of this goal the district finds itself we reflected in the total of $219,978.55 of projects approved by the State WPA office and forwarded to Washington up to now.

Harrison also urged governmental officials not to be deterred in proposing projects by the fact that the state WPA office has requested approval of five state-wide projects totaling more than $37,000,000.

"I am advised that state-wide projects are being submitted only in anticipation of local sponsors submitting proposals for similar types of projects," he continued. "For instance, if the state-wide lateral road request is granted, individual county road projects will be received as usual and will be charged against the state-wide allotments for lateral roads."

The federal government definitely has set Nov. 1 as the date on which it will cease to issue funds to states for relief of the destitute. Local governments, therefore, which procrastinate in submitting work projects, may find themselves facing the responsibility of providing food and other necessities for the community's destitute people, it was predicted.

"But these people want work. They don't want a dole," Harrison declared. "It is up to the counties and communities of this district to give them a chance to earn a living. All we need is initiative on the part of our cities and counties and school districts. We can give them jobs and at the same time receive valuable permanent benefit for our communities at a fraction of what it would cost if these projects were undertaken without federal aid."

FILE GRANT REQUEST

Fort Worth, Aug. 27.—Julian Montgomery, acting state PWA director, said today that the state's preliminary application for a $46,354,058 loan and grant to build a natural gas pipeline from the Texas Panhandle to Detroit, Mich., had been sent to Washington.

PREPARING FOR SCHOOL—III

The third step I advise you to take in preparing your child for school is to consult your family physician or local health department regarding the 'tuberculin test.' Perhaps you know it as the 'Mantoux Test.'

It would be surprising if you are not already familiar with the test and its values. The story has been told repeatedly in all the parents' and household magazines, in newspapers, and over the radio. Many school districts have introduced it as a routine measure. And, unquestionably, many more will do so this year.

Remember what I said last week about overconfidence? Most parents are too sure when they think, "My child can't have tuberculosis." I say, "too sure" because seldom do you really know. You are merely guessing. The psychologist would say you are hiding a fear. Think that over, and see if it applies to you.

Now, being afraid and doing nothing about it is ridiculous. More than that, it's the worst kind of neglect and inexcusable. If you fear tuberculosis, isn't it more sensible to meet it with every defense at your disposal? Bring it out in the open. Don't let it work in the dark. In short, be prepared. And in the case of children, the "Tuberculin Test," is right at hand. It is simple, harmless, and very accurate.

Afterward you will be able to sigh with relief and say, "Ah, that's better. Now I know where I stand."

islature will embark upon a program of paying pensions to everyone above the age of sixty-five. On the contrary, I feel sure that it will restrict this form of bounty to those in actual need, with the idea of co-operating with the Federal Government to assure our worthy old people that they will not spend their last years in want or on relief roll, but even though, the Legislature throws far-reaching restrictions around the pension, it will cost the State many millions of dollars. Of course, no one can tell just how much until we know just what provisions will be made, but I think that it is a safe guess that it will add from ten to fifteen million dollars per year to the State's expenditures.

At the same time, we are faced with this added cost of State Government, we are compelled to recognize the justice of the demands of our property-owners, citizens that real property, in particular, be relieved of at least some of the load of the taxation that it is carrying. Rather than looking to the Ad Valorem Tax as a source of new revenue, we must look for some other sources to replace this time honored backbone of the State Tax System. The Ad Valorem Tax now produces approximately twenty-two million dollars per year for all State purposes, including schools, Confederate pensions, and general revenue.

We are, therefore, left with but three outstanding forms of taxation reasonable available to this State. They are a State Income Tax, a State Sales Tax, and a Natural Resource or Severance Tax.

All incomes have been so reduced that an income tax would not be very productive. Moreover, the Federal Government has already exploited this field of taxation to such an extent that there seems to be nothing left for the State along this line.

A State Sales Tax has very powerful backing of all of those interests that fear an income or severance tax. It cannot, however, be denied that a sales tax falls heavier on those least able to pay. It ignores both of the fundamental maximums of taxation. First a tax should be in proportion of the ability of the taxpayer to pay, and, second, it should be in proportion to the benefits received by the taxpayer from the Government. There are, of course, conceivable situations where a sales tax might be justified, such as in time of war or in those communities where there are no other sources of revenue. Fortunately, this State has other sources to which it can turn.

We now collect in Texas from our natural resources about eight million dollars per year. This is accounted for almost entirely through the tax of two cents a barrel on crude oil and fifty-five cents a ton on sulphur. This amounts to about two per cent of the value of sulphur. I know of no reason why our natural resources should not pay at least ten per cent of their value at the time of severance. This would produce approximately forty-four million dollars a year at the present rate of production, and at present prices. This tax is only paid once, whereas, a tax on land, buildings, and so on, is paid over and over again every year for generations. Once these resources are severed from Texas soils they are forever lost to this State, and in that connection, we find, what, to my mind, is the strongest single argument in favor of this form of taxation. It is passed on to the citizens of other states and countries. All other taxes are paid by our own citizens. An Ad Valorem, Income, or Sales Tax producing forty-four million dollars a year would reduce the usable income of Texas citizens by exactly that amount, but not so with the natural resource tax. Approximately ninety per cent of the products of our mines and wells are consumed beyond the borders of this State. The Severance Tax would unquestionably be passed on as other taxes are, and added to the cost of the product when finally sold, but these resources are finally sold in New York, Berlin, or Buenos Aires.

The manufacturing States long ago learned that they could tax their mills and pass the tax on to people of the agricultural and natural resource State like Texas, and they have been doing it very successfully. We have no manufacturers that we could use as an instrumentality for passing our tax burden, but the people of the States and Nations of the World must buy our oil, gas, and salt and sulphur.

Of course, I know that the objection is immediately urged that were we in Texas to levy a tax of ten cents a barrel on crude oil, no more Texas crude would be sold, but that the Eastern and Foreign market would be supplied by Oklahoma. It is true that Oklahoma could produce enough oil to supply these markets, at least, but what are the facts in regard to getting it there? In order to reach the markets of the world, Oklahoma oil must pass through Texas Ports. It costs twenty cents a barrel, including gathering charge to move a barrel of crude oil from Gladewater or Kilgore to shipside at Port Arthur or Houston. It costs forty-two and one-half cents per barrel, including the gathering charge to move a similar barrel of oil from Oklahoma City or Tulsa to the same ports Oklahoma now has a four cents per barrel tax on crude oil. (Louisiana has, by the way, a graduated tax, ranging up to eleven cents per barrel, and Louisiana oil still moves in the commerce of the world). That makes a total cost of transportation and tax of forty-six and one-half cents a barrel tax, we would still only have a thirty cents fixed charge on our oil at the same points. This would leave Texas oil with a sixteen and one-half cents advantage over Oklahoma oil on the world market.

Does it not seem that with these God-Given resources and unequalled transportation facilities, this State should be able to abandon the State Ad Valorem Tax entirely, and still take care of our needy old people from a Severance Tax. Figure it for yourself, a ten per cent Severance Tax will produce forty-four million dollars. The present Severance Tax produces eight million. The present Ad Valorem Tax produces twenty-two million. This leaves approximately fourteen million dollars with which we could pay pensions, if we could make this change.

Of course, tax bills cannot be introduced in the Senate. I will not, therefore, be able to sponsor this measure, but I expect such a measure to be entered in the House, and expect to support this change in our tax system. It will, of course, have the opposition of all of the big oil companies, as well as most all other out-of-State concerns, but the people must now determine just how they are going to pay for their Government.

Yours very sincerely,
W. R. POAGE,
Senator, 13th District.

Hornets Start Training Under Their New Coach

LOCALS WILL PLAY TEN GAMES; FIVE DISTRICT GAMES, TWO OF WHICH ARE AWAY FROM HOME. PREDICTIONS ARE THAT WORLEY WILL HAVE FAIR CLUB.

Approximately thirty football men answered Coach Earle Worley's call yesterday and started working out for the 1935 season. The locals are to play a ten-game schedule this season, and fair material is on hand, despite being handicapped by size.

In the early training for the season we find Sonny Hair, diminutive blonde, at the barking post with all of his 130 pounds, along with his mate in size, Albert Dickie at one halfback position. In the pivot position is Dave Culberson, who promises to fill that position in a very capable manner. Neal Chapman and Donald Weaver are slated to hold down the guard positions, however, somewhat better than they did last year. McDonald and Myers are two other lettermen of last year who are the mainstays in the Hornet line-up this season. Coach Worley is undecided as to where he will place the two men this season, however, both are fair ends. McDonald will probably work out some in the backfield in an effort to put more weight and power in the Hornet machine. Myers will probably hold down a tackle position. Francis Rutherford, letterman of last year, will see service at a halfback post.

Several football men from over the county are training now and several more will report when school opens the 14th. Worley stated yesterday that approximately forty men would be out by the time school opened.

The locals will play 10 games this season, five district and five non-district which are as follows:

- Oct. 4, Lampasas, here.
- Oct. 11, Clifton, there.

HORNET CLUB WILL MEET TONIGHT AT 8 P. M.

Members of the local Hornet Club are called to meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the gym. As the season will soon open and many important matters are confronting the organization, all members and football enthusiasts are urged to be on hand in the interest of the Hornet squad this year.

In an interview with Coach Earle Worley yesterday, he expressed himself as wanting to get the fans talking football, and increase interest throughout the coming season.
