Local Centennial Heads Plan Celebration Here In May Before Opening

Coryell County is to have its Centennial Celebration in May just prior to the opening of the exposition in Dallas, June 6, according to Mrs. Tom Mears, County Chairman, and newly elected President.

Mrs. Mears stated yesterday, the tentative plans were a pageant at night, depicting the history of the county, and this is to be followed the next day by and "Old Settlers' Reunion." More definite plans are to be worked out, and Mrs. Mears asks that service clubs of the city, along with the women's clubs of the city and county assist in every way in putting over this worthwhile movement, designed to revere our forefathers, plan for the future and incidentally to give the county and city a little neglected advertising.

At the meeting, due to the absence of the former Chairman Ayres Compton, who is now with the Publicity Department for the Centennial, new officers were elected besides Mrs. Mears, were F. W. LOCAL "FIRE BUGGY" RUNS WILD WEDNESDAY

The local "fire buggy" can still "dish it out." Amid the racing cars, running people, mixed with yells, the "fire extinguisher" (almost a memory) raced to the scene of action on Fennimore Street where the home of Will Robertson was in flames. Mr. Robertson had just moved to our fair city from Ballinger, now employed at Alvis-Garner Store here. The fire caught under the house, doing very little damage. It was of unknown origin.

The second fire of the afternoon was a grass fire at the Meyers home on Saunders street. Both fires were extinguished before very much damage was done.

GRASS BURNERS

Gatesville's fire record is going up! That is, if we don't get rid of some of this dry, dead grass. Let's keep the home-fires burning, but not the homes. That dry grass around your home, or on the vacant lot next to you, is a perfect fire hazard, waiting for a burning cigarette, or a carelessly flung match to start the fireworks.

You'll probably say it's the smoker's fault! Which it is in part. But you are just as guilty of committing a nuisance, and disturbing the peace and tranquility of the community by letting this grass go unburned. Wet a couple of tow sacks and let's have a real grass burning, before the burning grass burns you.

"PARKING"

No, readers, we're not talking about parking on "Park Avenue," that beautiful 5-plus mile stretch of Texas beauty running east from our little city.

This time, it happens right around our square, down our main streets, and in the side streets near the business district. Folks, you're parking anti-which-away, along-side, headed-in, and any other angle the old bus happens to roll in to the curb.

Now, not that we care, but drive up any of these streets and look for a place to park. If the cars were properly parked, you wouldn't have to drive to the Baptist church to park. Most of the cars take up space in which two cars could be parked, so consequently, you do considerable driving before you can find a place to park which is close to where you are going.

Of course, the city officers could mark your car for improper parking, but that would cost you, and you'd have to make another trip to the City Hall to pay off, probably. So, as a group, instead of a single man having to do it, let's try to park our cars with a little respect to the next "parker" who comes along. Drive into the curb at the correct angle (about 45 degrees)—then, and only then, can full benefit of the parking facilities be used. Think when you park, as well as when you drive!

SHOTS AT THE BASKET

Monday evening in the Commercial League Levita won over the Merchants in a very closely fought contest by the margin of a single point while the CCC and Conoco teams broke into the win column for the first time with victories over Pearl and Flat.

The schedule for Monday night in the order the games are played is as follows: Merchants vs. Conoco; CCC vs. Levita and Flat vs. Pearl.

Tuesday evening in a game with Flat the Hornet sextet won by a score of 17-15. Both teams took numerous shots, but few of them found the hoop.

For Gatesville, Bates and Clemons stood out on the offense while Sellers played a good defensive game as did Rutherford. Stars for Flat were Ora Hamilton on the offense and Margaret Hamilton and Stovall on the defense.

The score at the half period stood 8-6 with Flat in the van.

The feature game of Tuesday evening saw Gatesville bombard the bucket from all angles and by every means swamp Killeen 48-to-19.

The Hornets led by Turner and Schaub, a boy who was starting his first game, quickly ran up a lead and never relinquished it at any time. At the end of the first quarter the locals led 13-4 and at the half had ran the total up to 21-10.

Every Hornet played a creditable game but to Schaub must go the plaudits of the evening. He played a swell floor game and rang up 11 points for second high scorer and by his play made possible several points scored by his team mates. Turner was high with 14 points. Hall and White held down the guard positions in near flawless style while Hall tallied 10 points. Curry performed well while he was in the game and accounted for 8 of the Gatesville total. Jim Gilbreath played at center in a way that doubt even surprised him. He didn't break into the scoring, but his game otherwise was O. K.

For Killeen, Reid, the only man back from the great team of last year, led his team in every department. He scored 7 points and played well at his pivot position. He was helped in his efforts by Riley, who made 6 points.

This evening* on the local gym floor the Hornets take on the Baylor Cubs, and it looks like a hard day for the locals cause.

Wednesday's plays saw two upsets more or less when Evant defeated Turnersville 37-25, and Liberty won over Jonesboro 23-11. The upsets were not that Turnersville and Jonesboro lost, but the manner in which they lost. If the locals intend to repeat their win of last year, they will be forced to find a way to stop the ram-paging Elks.

The Evant lassies defeated the Turnersville sextet 23-18 to make it a perfect evening for the Evant partisans.

HORNETS TO PIT SPEED AGAINST HEIGHT IN GAME WITH B. CUBS

This evening at 8:00 the Hornets meet the Baylor Cubs in a basketball game in the local gym.

The Cubs always have a strong team and this year is no exception. The visitors will present a line-up sprinkled with tall boys and if the Hornets entertain any thought of victory, they will have to overcome their handicap of lack of size by fast and speedy play.

The Cubs no doubt have outstanding basketeers from strong high schools all over the state and as they are coached by Warren Weathers, a varsity star of a few years back, they will undoubtedly give the fans a good view of how basketball should be played and regardless of the outcome, the locals will ing played such an aggregation. receive untold benefit for having.

There will probably be an interesting preliminary game, and lovers of the cage game from all over the county should be here.

TEMPLE JUNIOR COLLEGE DEFEATS PEARL 32-30

On the High School court at Temple Tuesday night, the Dragons battled the much larger Cat team to a 32-30 decision. The game was not so well played as both teams were off form. The lead changed many times with Pearl holding it at the half 13-12. The Dragons, a bit excited showed power in defense as they halted the tall boys' attempts many times.

Superintendent Procter of Temple, asked each boy on the Dragon team his age and stressed the fact that only one would be eligible under the 18 year rule. Each school should vote that has an interest in athletics.

The above is from Coach Tharp of the Pearl team, who like the writer, is whole heartedly against the 18 year rule and like Tharp we urge every school man to send in his vote to the league.

How's Your Etiquette?

What tips are given in a restaurant?

Ten per cent of the bill to the waiter, except in some fashionable places where more may be required; ten cents usually to the hat and dressing room attendants. Those who frequent a restaurant or demand special attention may tip the head waiter. Some restaurants, following the European custom, now add 10 per cent for service to the amount of the check; and in such cases no tip is given.

"HOLD EVERYTHING" TITLE OF PLAY PRESENTED IN GYM JAN 31

HOLD EVERYTHING! This is the command which will bring you to the High School Gymnasium on January 31, two weeks from tonight. If you do not obey the command it will truly be your loss for on that night will be presented one of the most amusing plays ever written. This play by the well-known dramatist, Austen Goetz, was conceived and written in a tourist home on the Honeymoon Trail. It contains thrills—laughs—romance, all intricately woven into a most enjoyable evening.

Have you ever stopped over at a tourist home?

Come and see what really could have happened had you rubbed elbows with crooks, bankers, runaways, potential movie stars, all bent on escaping from each other. Never was one night so full of excitement and thrills—and the strange part of it is, romance goes blissfully on. In "Hold Everything!" the Senior Class has selected a play which requires careful rehearsing of delicate situations. The action mounts to such a pitch as to make you wonder how the story can end satisfactorily. All the time you are wondering what will happen next you are holding your sides with uncontrollable laughter. Critics all over the country have been lavish with their praise of this irresistible play. Now come and see it performed by the players you know so well.

"Hold Everything!" The Senior Class presentation of 1936.

A BUSY HINT FOR BUSY HANDS

Cold weather is rough on hands—especially hands which are kept busy washing dishes and scrubbing floors day by day. The constant dipping in water is partly to blame, but more often it's the "what's" used with the water which ruffles up soft, sensitive hands and makes them irritable.

Here's a little preventative measure—and really a beauty measure, too—one which you will find "handy" to pair up with your favorite hand-lotion cure for use on winter hands.

If you use a cleansing agent which promises to be safe and scratchless for cleaning your sink, your floors, and even your Sunday-best chinaware, then you may know that this cleanser will be kind to your hands, too. It's really a case of "like me, like my dog." Use the scratchless cleanser made with seismotite; it is excellent for all cleaning purposes and your busy hands will be lovely bridge-playing hands, too!

Presbyterian Church

The year 1936 means much to the Southern Presbyterian Church in Texas. It is known as the Centennial Jubilee Year, celebrating 100 years of Texas Independence and 75 years of the Southern Presbyterian Church. The first great objective of the year is the enrolling of 100,000 members who promise to read the Bible each day of the year. To date, there have been about 25 per cent of our local membership who have enrolled. It is desired that others of the membership turn in their enrollment cards at once. The second objective is the observance of January 19 through 26 as Assembly Home Mission Week. The ladies of the Woman's Auxiliary will observe this week with special prayer services of 30 minutes each morning, 10:00 to 10:30, at the home of Mrs. W. C.

Bradley. This week of special prayer will culminate with a special program at the church on Friday at 3 p. m.

We are glad to announce that Miss Mary Louise Woodson, Director of Religious Education for Central Texas Presbytery, will be with us over Sunday.

There will be preaching at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. next Sunday. At the morning hour, the pastor will speak on "Our Home Mission Responsibility." Every member of the church is urged to be present. The public is most cordially invited to worship with us. You will receive a hearty welcome at

Fight Colds with UNIFORM TEMPERATURE

Any sudden CHANGE IN TEMPERATURE as you go from a warm room into a cold one disturbs the heat regulating apparatus of the body and makes it susceptible to cold germ attacks.

Protect your family against becoming overheated or chilled. Give them the benefit of healthful, pure, warmed air THROUGHOUT the HOUSE.

If your home is inadequately heated... if you "huddle" in one or two rooms. SUDDEN TEMPERATURE CHANGES ARE UNAVOIDABLE. Your family goes from a heated room into a cold hall or adjoining room.

Then, snivering and chilled, they return to the heated room. This happens many times a day, and each time they have unnecessarily subjected themselves to conditions that make them susceptible to highly communicable diseases. America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, finds a fertile field in inadequately heated and poorly ventilated homes.

Keep comfortable temperatures and adequate ventilation THROUGHOUT YOUR HOME. You will find that it will add to your happiness as well as assist you to protect your health and that of your loved ones.

JOHN BOLES and GLADYS SWARTHOUT in ROSE of the RANCHO

Serialized by Wallace West from the Paramount Picture of the same name.

SYNOPSIS
Shortly after California's admission to the Union, Joe Kincaid, an American land-grabber, begins to plunder Spanish ranchos and fle claims on them under American laws. He is opposed by a band of Spanish vigilantes led by a mysterious Don Carlos. When Jim Kearney, a secret government agent traveling incognito, rescues Kincaid from a vigilante hanging party, he wins the latter's confidence and becomes a member of his gang. Later, he meets Rosita, daughter of a high-caste Spanish family, and falls in love with her. In an encounter with the vigilantes, Kearney suspects that the mysterious Don Carlos is none other than Rosita in disguise. Meanwhile, Kincaid finds out that Kearney is a government agent and plans to kill him when they raid the ranch of Rosita's father.

CHAPTER IX.
THE Castro ranch house was blazing with light. A party was being held there for the purpose of announcing Rosita's forthcoming marriage.

Don Luis was dancing with his betrothed. His thin face was beaming with happiness, but hers was sad despite her efforts at gaiety.

"Look at my young people," cried Castro, as he watched the couple and swayed his head to the music. "Happiness shines from them."

Don Luis was dancing with his betrothed. His thin face was beaming with happiness, but hers was sad despite her efforts at gaiety.

"Humph!" sniffed Dona Petrona. As Rosita passed her after the music stopped, she stopped the girl and demanded brusquely: "Are you going through with this?"
"Of course I am! Why not?"
"Haven't you any of my blood in your veins?" cried the old lady angrily. Haven't you any courage? You are in love with that American, aren't you?"
"He is a liar and a traitor. And I hate him." Rosita's eyes flashed.
"Pish-posh! He is the man you love and if you were worth your salt you'd go to him, if you had to crawl on your knees."
"But you didn't like him. You hate Americans."
"I'm not your age. They say the brutes make good husbands."
The dispute was interrupted by a guest who came into the room leading Phineas and Pancho.

"Are you Rosita?" asked the latter. "Well, we just came to tell you that the devil has accepted your invitation. He's coming to the party tonight."

Her face white and her hands trembling, Rosita slipped away from the crowd to rally her Vigilantes. But for once her frantic messages remained unanswered. Her former followers considered her a traitor to their cause and refused to gather as before.

Desperately the girl dressed in her masculine garb, mounted her white horse and rode forth to rally the clan personally. First she located Gomez, but he flatly refused to call the others.

"They do not trust you, Senorita," he said slowly. "They will not come."
"It isn't just a meeting, Gomez," answered Rosita, almost ready to break into tears. "It's the rancho . . ."

showed that one of the horses was white.

"Carlos!" gasped Kearney, as he whirled his horse around and spurred it forward.

"Now's your chance," yelled Kincaid. A moment later a bullet whined past the Federal Agent's head. He ducked, looked back, muttered a curse as he realized that the shot came from behind.

Rosita caught sight of the approaching horseman almost as soon as she had dismissed Gomez. Immediately she spurred her horse in the opposite direction.

When Kearney reached the top of the little hill, he stopped for a moment, at a loss as to which rider to follow. Then the flash of Rosita's white horse gave him the clue and he thundered forward.

Rosita was unhampered by skirts so she rode fast and well, leaning over her mount's neck and urging him forward by every possible means.

our rancho . . . Kincaid is coming!"
"In that case, Senorita, they will come."
"Go get them, then!" she cried as she set spurs to her horse. "Bring them to the rancho before it is too late."
While Rosita and Gomez were talking, Kincaid and his followers had been approaching the Castro home at a steady trot. They rode in dense formation with their leader and Kearney in front.
"Why're we going in this direction?" asked Jim at last. "You don't expect to find him near the Castro place, do you?"
"I thought you said you didn't ask questions," grunted Kincaid as he winked at one of his men who grinned appreciatively. Suddenly he stopped his horse. "Look," he whispered hoarsely.
On top of a little hill not far away could be seen the silhouettes of two horsemen. The bright moonlight

Realizing that he was in danger of losing his quarry, Kearney at last jerked his horse back on its haunches, snatched a carbine from its saddle holster, took steady aim and fired.
Far in the distance he saw the white horse stumble, then fall, throwing its rider over its head. With a shout of mingled delight and regret, the American urged his own horse forward until he reached the spot where the supposed Don Carlos had fallen.
Rosita's hat had been thrown off and she now lay in a pool of moonlight, one arm under her head as if asleep, with her luxuriant dark hair spread out over the ground like an aureole.
His heart beating madly, Kearney leaped from his horse and stooped over the unconscious girl. She did not move. He pressed his ear against her breast but the thump of his own arteries prevented him from discovering whether the girl he loved was alive or dead.
"Rosita!" he cried frantically.

WORLD COMMENT

BURNS

THE ADMINISTRATION faces the necessity of raising at least $480,000,000 as a result of the Supreme Court's order to return 200 millions in processing taxes to rice growers, and to pay farmers for contracts made last year.

President Roosevelt admitted in his budget message that if court attacks on the AAA were sustained, "we will have to face the problem of financing existing contracts out of some form of new taxes." With forecasts rife after the Monday court decision that Congress will be asked to enact new revenue-raising legislation, one Representative put it this way:

"We are going to have to approve some new tax bill for certain now. I don't know where we could raise the money but some of us can't go home until we pay off the farmers."

But what about the folks back home that will have to pay that tax? And that is just what the harried Congressmen are worrying about. Everybody cannot be satisfied and somebody has to pay the bill.

Justice Owen J. Roberts, who read the fateful AAA decision, also gave the opinion in the rice growers' case. The court held that it was not necessary for the court at this time to pass on the question of attempts to recover taxes already paid into the Treasury. These total about 1 billion dollars in the last two years. Thus the larger and more important question of whether the Treasury must refund any of the billion it has collected.

The court refused to render a decision on the Bankhead cotton control act, due to a legal technicality. Lee Moor, a West Texas farmer, has brought suit against the act from the refusal of the Texas & New Orleans Railroad to transport his cotton to New Orleans without tags showing he had paid a penalty tax on all cotton produced in excess of a quota fixed by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Moor announced that he would pay $45,000 in cotton taxes as a result of the Monday decision, but that a new suit would be filed seeking to recover the taxes.

SHOULD THE SUPREME Court decree that the $1,000,000,000 collected by the processing taxes be refunded, the effect on Uncle Sam's finances might be disastrous. President Roosevelt in his budget anticipated a deficit of from 1 billion to 3 billions for "extraordinary" expenditures. Another billion will be needed to pay the bonus, which seems likely to pass. The national debt is now 30½ billions, largest in the nation's history. It is extremely doubtful that the domestic market can absorb 5 billions in additional securities, which must be done if a 3 billions deficit is to be met, the bonus paid, and the processing taxes refunded.

In his address to Congress the President asserted that we approach a balanced budget and that no new taxes would be required this year. But, as stated above, the outlook is now for new taxes to repay the illegal processing taxes and to meet the AAA obligations.

Once more, however, it is the regular budget that approaches balance, while the "extraordinary budget" will not balance by from 1 to 3 billions.

Receipts for fiscal 1937, which begins new July and runs to June 30 of 1937, were set at $5,600,000,000 by the President, which is more revenue than the U. S. Government ever had in any year except 1920. Only 5 billions will be needed for the regular activities of the government, according to the President's estimates, leaving a surplus of approximately 600 millions. But the item for relief remains.

Counting, therefore, on spending for relief is fiscal 1937 only $1,100,000,000, the budget will show a deficit of $500,000,000.

SHEET-LIKE rains in Ethiopia have brought a halt to the advance of the Italians and with it predictions of a retreat of the Fascist hordes. Since New Year's the "little rains" which precede the spring deluges have been falling and badly disrupting the Italian line of communications.

May or June marks the beginning of the big rainy season and postponement of further Fascist advances until next October.

Fifty-one millions of dollars have been given Mussolini this week to continue fighting in Africa, says Rome. That huge lump of gold must be used to house Italy's legions during the winter and from the chilly winds that sweep Ethiopian plateau and vale alike.

Sixty miles is the extent of the furthest Italian advance on north or south. Foreign military observers believe that Il Duce will have to withdraw his troops to Adowa or Makale, near the border of the Italian colony of Eritrea, to prevent their complete annihilation by guerilla bands of natives. Tanks and mobile troops cannot operate in the morass that is Ethiopia during most of one year.

European statesmen are jumpy. They know that Mussolini cannot maintain his 200,000 troops in Africa until next October in his present state of finances and with sanctions pinching at home. Revolt among the troops or disorders in Italy are feared if it is announced that the troops can go no further.

Europe is again a seething cauldron. At present, Mussolini holds the keys to war or peace.

To Germany and Japan, overcrowded, poor in natural resources, the sparsely settled provinces of Soviet Russia offer a logical outlet for excess population and for national expansion.

The door is closed to Germany on the west by Britain, mistress of the seas, and by France, militarily one of the world's strongest powers. Deprived by Versailles of all her west and to the rich Russian colonies, Berlin looks to the Ukraine. To Japan, the untold resources of Siberia and the threat of the Soviet air fleet at near-by Vladivostok offer reasons for another war like that of 1905.

Reports of a recent Berlin-Tokio military agreement caused genuine fright in Moscow, where it realizes that some day a concerted attack from Germany on the west and Japan on the east must be met.

Fear of such a war caused Dictator Stalin to call off all Communist agitation in France and to sign a mutual assistance pact with the late French Foreign Minister, Louis Barthou, assassinated with King Alexander of Yugoslavia by a Croat terrorist.

This agreement recalled the famous Franco-Russian treaty of 1897, which resulted in the French coming to the aid of the Czar in 1914 following the German declaration of war against that nation. Last week French Premier Laval laid before his cabinet a proposal to lend Russia $53,000,000 to make her a stronger military ally.

This announcement came close on the heels of the launching of its third "vest pocket" battleship by Germany. Of 10,000 tons, the battleship cost $32,000,000 makes 28 knots, is run by Diesel engines. Thus Hitler rearms, while German housewives vainly seek eggs, butter, lard, and other necessities in groceries.

The History of Coryell County

By FRANK E. SIMMONS

Authorized by County Commissioners, as Official History for Texas Centennial Celebration.

JAMES CORYELL

James Coryell was a character about whom little is known; I have not been able so far to find any record of the date of his birth, or the country in which he was born. Those things may be recorded somewhere but I have searched vainly for them. He is described by an early writer as "a likeable young fellow."

Coryell belonged to the old reckless, adventurous type that sought adventure and room among the restless men who were moving the van of civilization farther into the unknown. He first appears in history at Fort Griffin at the Three Forks in Bell County. Here he joined a company of rangers being organized by Sterling C. Robertson in 1836.

At that time the first Indian wars were on and all the territory of the Cowhouse, the Leon, the Bosque and Brazos Rivers were in the hands of Rangers and Indians. There were no settlers and we find the records of only two surveys of land that had been made in what is now Coryell County; those of F. R. Fillett and James Hudson, made in 1834 and 1835 respectively.

We later hear of James Coryell as a member of Capt. Thomas H. Barron's Company and a little later in Capt. Geo. B. Erath's Company stationed at Fort Milam, near Brazos Falls, near where Marlin is now located.

It was while in the service of Capt. Erath on an expedition to the Leon River country in May, 1838, that Coryell received his headright covering the lands adjacent to the mouth of Coryell Creek. Whoever has been on this league selected for a home by the pioneer, sees at once that it was one of the finest locations in the Leon Valley on which to establish a home. The scenic beauty is unsurpassed. The natural resources if properly husbanded, are inexhaustible.

To many people Coryell has become a legendary character, and many are the fireside tales told of his exploits. There is a tradition current that Coryell and his party had been pursued by Indians, in the afternoon they had lain down under a liveoak tree to rest, and after some time Coryell said, "I will stand and draw the fire of the redskins, so we can locate them." He rose to his feet and was mortally wounded. This, I am told occurred near White Hall, near the Waco and McGregor road.

Another tradition says that while attempting to establish a settlement on his headright, he was killed by Indians near the mouth of Coryell Creek, and points to the fact, as proof, that three human skulls were unearthed there. There is still another story to the effect that he was killed by Indians high up on the head of Coryell Creek.

Relative to Coryell's death Capt. Erath has this to say, "While stationed at Fort Milam, Coryell, Ezra Webb and Michael Castleman made a sortie out from the Fort to cut a bee tree. It was while engaged in this work that they were attacked by Indians and Coryell killed. His comrades escaped." We are willing to accept Capt. Erath's version of the story, since it was under that rugged old warrior that Coryell was serving as a Texas Ranger.

Whatever the facts may be, Coryell's name has been honored by having named for him Coryell County, organized in 1853, Coryell Creek, Coryell City, a pre-civil war town, and Coryell Missionary Baptist Church established in 1854, the first organized church to be established in the county.

have been pastured at night since January 1935, according to A. J. McKenzie, county agricultural agent.

A part of the land was covered by trees and brush at the start, and all except enough trees for shade were cut and moved. The weeds were cut in the summer. In spite of the number of animals kept on the pasture, a large quantity of hay was cut in September and the grasses have grown up since it was cut.

The widely-praised George Raft-Joan Bennett comedy-romance, "She Couldn't Take It," will open its local engagement at the Regal Theatre starting Saturday night at 10:30. Raft, who first won the heart of American audiences in a series of gangster portrayals in "Scarface," "Hush Money" and "Quick Millions," reverts to this type of characterization in "She Couldn't Take It" for the first time in over a year. He is seen as the ex-rum runner Ricardi, repenting his sins in the federal penitentiary, where he meets Walter Connolly, millionaire financier serving time for tax-evasion.

Connolly is impressed by the young felon's earnestness and determination to go straight, so that when death comes to him in his prison cell, his last words are a plea to Raft to act as executor of his estate and guardian of his petulant family.

What happens when Raft takes charge of the family and fortune, despite the vigorous protests of the tempestuous Miss Bennett, her playboy brother, James Blakely, and her count and poet patronizing mother, Billie Burke, accounts for the vivid and amusing screenplay which has won such spontaneous popularity.

RHUBARB AND ONION PICKLE

One quart cubed rhubarb, 1 quart chopped onion, 1 pint water, 2 lbs. brown sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon ginger, one-eighth teaspoon cayene, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon each of black pepper, cloves, mace, nutmeg and cinnamon.

Boil all together over moderate heat, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking until it reaches the consistency of chili sauce. Then seal in bottles and jars.

PICKLED SMALL ONIONS

Four quarts small onions, 1 cup salt, 1/2 cup whole cloves, 2 cups sugar, a few peppers, 2 tablespoons mace, 2 tablespoons bay leaf, 2 whole peppers.

Peel onions and cover with hot water and salt, making a strong brine. Let them stand 24 hours and cover with another hot brine. Next day drain and make a fresh brine, heat to boiling point, add onions and boil 3 minutes. Drain and put onions in jars with bits of mace, bay leaf, a few whole peppers, a few cloves and slices of red pepper. Fill jars with hot vinegar, allowing one cup of sugar to four quarts of vinegar. Seal at once.

PEACH BUTTER

Scald peaches, dip into cold water and slip skins. Remove pits and put into preserving kettle with just enough hot water to prevent burning. Cover and cook until fruit is tender, stirring to prevent sticking. Rub through a coarse sieve and measure pulp with its juice. Put sifted fruit in preserving kettle and add as many cups of sugar as there are cups of fruit. Bring to the boiling point and boil fifteen minutes, stirring constantly with a long-handled spoon. Pour into hot Sterilized jars and seal.

CURRENT AND ORANGE CONSERVE

One orange, juice and rind, 3 cups sugar, 1/2 cup California walnuts, chopped, 1 quart currants.

Peel the orange and cut the rind in thin strips. Cover with water and allow to stand over night. The next day cook until the peel is tender and the water nearly evaporated. Stem and wash the currants. Add the sugar, orange peel and orange juice to the currants. Cook until the mixture is thick and clear. Add the nuts and cook until they are heated. Put into hot glasses and seal with paraffin.

Rinse and drain and split the cucumbers lengthwise. Place them in a large kettle and add 2 cups of vinegar and enough water to cover. And 1 pint or a large handful of green grape leaves or horse-radish leaves, 1 teaspoon powdered alum and simmer for 2 hours (do not allow the pickles to boil). Drain away the liquid and place the pickles in a stone jar. Heat 3 pints of vinegar with 3 pounds of sugar, 1 ounce whole allspice and 1 ounce stick cinnamon. Pour this syrup over the pickles and let stand 24 hours with a weighted lid.
