Ethel Johnson Case of State-Wide Import Opened; Six Jurors Chosen

Six jurors were chosen yesterday for the case of Mrs. Ethel Johnson, charged with the murder in the killing Mrs. Bernice Blankenship and her husband on a ranch near Copperas Cove in August, 1934.

Maury Hughes, prominent Dallas Attorney, and Candidate for Governor in 1934, is one of the principal defense lawyers.

Further developments in this important case will be carried in the columns of the News twice weekly.

IN MEMORY OF ONE WHO KNEW HOW TO FIGHT FOR A GOOD THING

Without malice, but with quiet conviction, Honest Abe pressed on toward his goal.

The going was rough... he had his share of bad breaks... but like all fighters he rather enjoyed the struggle, knowing in his heart that he was on the right side of the conflict. The fact that he was supremely victorious is of little consequence... for he was ever a winner in the eyes of God—win, lose or draw—like all men who fight for good things.

Daylight, streaming in thru the chinks of a wretched backwoods cabin, first touched him 125 years ago tomorrow. We should not celebrate this day alone. A martyr is honored on the anniversary of his death, and Abraham Lincoln died April 15, 1865, only partially conscious, in some pain, without reluctance. His fight was over.

We cherish, most deeply, the ideals and the courage of Abraham Lincoln, one-time President of these United States.

RUMORS of an impending conflict between Governor Allred and Senator Connally as to who will lead the State delegation to the National Convention at current at Washington. The Governor is said to feel that he should have the leadership of the delegation and the direction of the campaign for the re-election of Roosevelt and Garner in Texas. Senator Connally, a staunch Administration supporter, wants Congressman Sam Rayburn, appointed by Vice-President Garner to represent the National Committee in Texas, to direct the State campaign while Connally heads the delegation at Philadelphia.

Vice-President Garner, as National Committeeman and the State's most prominent Democrat, will be called upon to settle the difficult controversy. Myron Blalock of Marshall, chairman of the State Executive Committee, would direct the Administration campaign in Texas should Allred's contention that the State Administration direct the proceedings. Rayburn and Roy Miller of Corpus Christi, who directed the national campaign in Texas four years ago, will represent the National Committee in the campaign.

IN THE STATE, six candidates have announced for governor and four for United State Senator, with reports of others entering this month. Candidates for the gubernatorial office are James V. Allred, incumbent, Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton, A. E. Harding of Fort Worth, Judge F. W. Fisher of Tyler, A. U. Puckett of Kaufman County, and a person named Brooks of Dallas. Only Allred and Sanderford of the list are known in Central Texas.

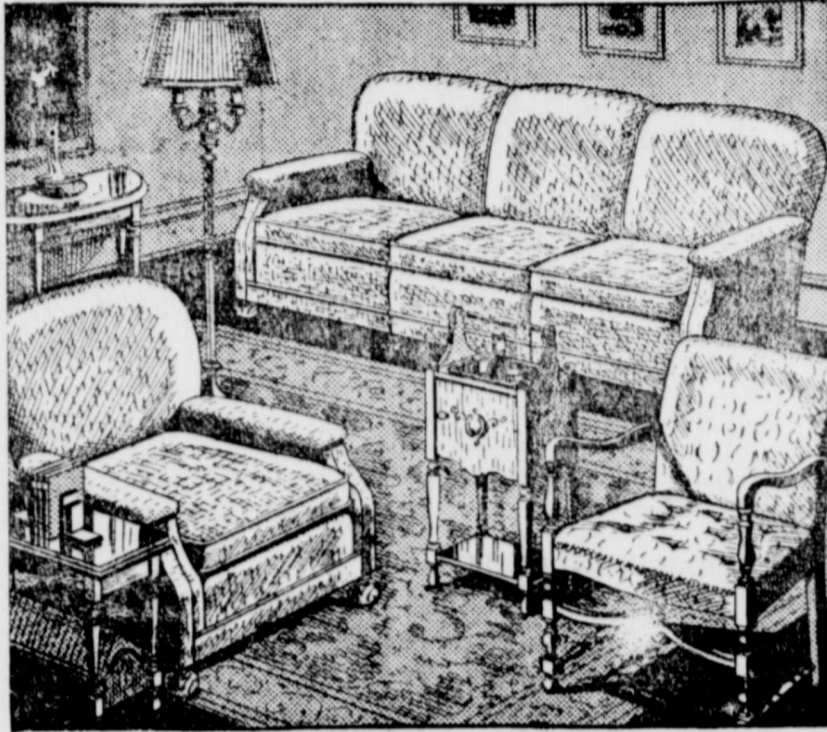

Others on whom daily discussion centers include House Speaker Coke R. Stevenson of Junction; Frank Scofield, Federal Collector of Internal Revenue at Austin, and Senator Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth. Unconfirmed reports say Tom F. Hunter, defeated by Allred in the 1934 primary and unsuccessful aspirant in 1932, will again be a candidate. It is known friends have conferred with the above regarding entering the contest, but none of them yet has said definitely whether he will throw his hat into the ring.

Senator Morris Sheppard has as announced opposition Congressman Joe Eagle of Houston, a wet; Joseph H. Price of Fort Worth, a Townsend plan advocate, and Guy B. Fisher of HIGHLIGHT of the week in national politics was William E. Borah's public bid for the Republican nomination. Climaxing several months of uncertainty as to whether the veteran Idahoan would really enter the primary elections, Borah announced he would campaign in Ohio for delegates pledged to his presidential nomination.

In formally declaring himself a candidate, the Senator served notice he would seek to carry forward his announced intention of freeing the party from what he terms the domination of the old guard.

Reaction of the "old guard" was immediately forthcoming in a statement from former Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio who headed the Republican National Committee in the last administration. Bespeaking the antagonism toward Borah in the conservative ranks of the party, Fess caustically declared: "If you are going to vote for a new dealer, why not vote for President Roosevelt?"

That there may also be a walk-out of G. O. P. conservatives of progressive Borah cops the nomination was threatened by Fess. "For Borah to be nominated," he said, would give new meaning to Alfred E. Smith's taking a walk." Will

FUN, FROLIC, FRIVOLITY

This beautiful scene will be the setting for the royal court of King Frivolous XIX, the climax to Galveston's annual Mardi Gras February 21-25, the first of the Texas Centennial Celebrations planned for this year—five days of fun, frolic and frivolity. More than 35 socially young women will represent as many cities as duchesses to the King's court. Three Texas beauties are shown in the insets. Miss Shirley Lege, duchess of Dallas, upper right; Miss Dorothy Lou Culton, duchess of Corpus Christi, lower left, and Miss Adelaide Polk, duchess of Fort Worth, lower right.

out the world are seeking definite information about the State of Texas and its Centennial year state-wide celebration.

During the 12 day period, ending February 6, approximately 15,000 requests for definite information and literature on the state and its celebrations were received in the offices of the state department of information for Centennial celebrations here. This total was reached before the national advertising campaign of the state department had been underway a full two weeks.

Incoming mail grows larger each day, indicating that as the campaign is continued, an unprecedented demand will be recorded for information on the Lone Star State. The mail comes from every state in the Union and already has included requests for information from Denmark, France, England, Mexico, Canada, and Panama. New York has sent in more requests than any other state.

The first of a series of advertisements of Centennial celebrations in magazines and newspapers with national and state-wide circulation appeared only two weeks ago. It, and succeeding advertisements, all including coupons on which interested persons may ask for information on Texas, resulted in the flood of mail which now is engulfing the state office here.

Requests are answered by direct mail with attractively printed matter descriptive of Texas and the Centennial which is being observed this year in scores of celebrations planned in all parts of the state. All celebrations definitely planned are listed on a calendar which is included in the literature.

Highlights in Speech of Cong. Cross

In his speech in the House of Representatives on January 28 on the subject, "Shall the people be Governed as Subjects by the Supreme Court, or, Shall They Govern Themselves as Provided in Their Constitution Through Their Chosen Representatives."

The speech in part follows: "Mr. Chairman, I have introduced H. R. 9478, the purpose of which is to deny to all inferior Federal courts the right to hold an act of Congress unconstitutional, and also to deny to the Supreme Court the right to hold an act of Congress unconstitutional in any cases coming before the Court on appeal. . . . Should this bill become a law, the only way an act of Congress could be attacked and held unconstitutional would be by a State filing an original suit in the Supreme Court.

"The first time the Supreme Court assumed the authority to hold an act of Congress unconstitutional was in 1803. . . . The next time an act was held unconstitutional was in 1857, when in the Dred Scott case, its constitutionality was attacked and declared so by the Supreme Court. Again in 1870 the Supreme Court, held the Legal Tender Act unconstitutional.

Today, many millions of industrial laborers, as well as the agricultural population of the Nation, are deeply stirred and troubled as a result of the majority of the Supreme Court striking down and holding unconstitutional the triple A Act. In this decision can be read the coming doom of other acts so essential to the welfare of our toiling millions. . . .

The acts of Congress in the interest of human rights are invariably attacked by some selfish interest ordinarily sponsored by corporate greed. These cases under the Constitution must originate in the inferior Federal court, and these Congress, under the Constitution has the power to regulate. . . .

"Today there is much inspired propaganda emanating from selfish interest against any amendment or law that would restrict and compel the judiciary to confine and limit its activities within the scope of the powers granted to it in the Constitution. This same selfish interest would have this Court defied and made a sacrosanct body haloed with the divine right of kings. They would prescribe as public enemies those who dare question its right to usurp the powers granted in the Constitution to the Legislative and executive branches of the Government. Let no man be deceived by being proclaimed and broadcasted by their hirelings and echoed and reechoed by their unthinking dupes. The fundamentals in the Constitution are as sound today as they were when that instrument was signed in 1787, and will continue to be democracy and to the rights of man what the Ten Commandments are to religion so long as we do not permit one department to embezzle the rights and powers given to the others.

"The Supreme Court, by appropriating the welfare clause of the Constitution, has throttled the legislative and executive branches of the Government and closed the door to progress. This bill if enacted into law will restore to Congress its prerogatives under the Constitution and again guarantee to the people their liberties through the ballot box. There are those who will oppose this bill because progress means change, and stagnant minds prefer to stand still and Chinese like nod in the darkening twilight of dead centuries. There were such in our grandfather's day and on back and to the beginning of recorded time, and there will be such in our grandchildren's day and on and on until time is no more. They are unhappy souls for whom no stars shine and to whom no rainbows beckon.

"But inspite of judicial usurpation, inspite of stagnant minds and subsidized propaganda, inspite of Liberty Leagues and organized greed, the urge of economic and social justice cannot long be stayed." (Applause, the Members rising.)

TRIBUTE TO FAYE HOPSON FRANKS

"Somebody did a golden deed, Somebody proved a friend in need; Somebody sang a beautiful song; Somebody smiled the whole day long; "Somebody thought, "'Tis sweet to live;" Somebody said, "I'm glad to give;" Somebody fought a valiant fight; Somebody lived to shield the right." The poet pictures the daily life of our dearly beloved Faye Hopson Franks. She was one who never turned back, she never doubted clouds would break, she never dreamed that wrong would ever triumph. She was a loving mother, daughter and wife. She was our beloved friend.

Frances Faye Hopson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hopson, was born February 13, 1908. She graduated from Gatesville High School in May, 1926. She was married to C. C. Franks, December 12, 1926. To this union were born two children, Ross Hopson Franks, born June 4, 1928, and Robert Jene Franks, born November 4, 1932. On January 30, 1936, after a short illness of six days, God called our dear one home. She is not dead, but is gone unto that school where Christ himself doth rule.

We know not why her life's work was done in so few years, but God is love and he will not leave us comfortless. Some day we shall see how all God's plans are right and how what seems reproof was love most true.

"Then be content, poor heart, God's plans like lilies, pure unfold. We must not tear the close shut leaves apart. Time will reveal the hidden cups of gold."

Facing burglars that broke into her home, Marie Slamova of Hlochot, Czechoslovakia, bit one so violently that his cries attracted the police, who arrested him and two companions.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

James Buchanan, wealthy car manufacturer, is anxious for one last fling before marrying Evelyn Fletcher. He meets Joan on a park bench, and she incites him into answering an ad for cook and butler. They get the job at Rossini Manor. Explaining that he is a struggling car designer, Jim is persuaded by Joan to let her sell his designs. Unknown to Jim, she takes the designs to the Atlas Motors Company, where she is arrested, for the president recognizes the Buchanan touch. Rossini bats her out, but meanwhile Jim has been prevailed upon by his friends to give up Joan. Heartbroken, he leaves a farewell note, but Rossini, after learning Jim's real identity, sends his men to kill Jim. Joan pleads with Rossini and rescinds the order, changing it to kidnap Jim and bring him back to Rossini Manor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VI

Jim stared at his abductors. "How much ransom do you want? We might as well get this over fast." Rossini entered the room. He gave

"You are," said Jim softly, "the most charming little girl in the world." (Posed by Herbert Marshall and Jean Arthur.)

Jim an oily smile. "Well, fancy meeting you here! Just in time for a little wedding. And all you have to do to save your hide is to say 'I do' in the right places!" "Who's the bride?" asked Jim. "You know who she is!" "Jim's eyes widened. "You mean you're going to make me marry Joan?" "You guessed it!" Jim grinned happily. Rossini you're a genius. I couldn't have planned it better myself! It might cost me a million with Miss Fletcher, but it's worth it at any price. Thanks, old man!" Rossini sneered, entirely skeptical. He beckoned for Flash to bring Joan into the room. Joan came through the door, then stopped short. "Jim! But—but I thought you'd be married by this time!" The bewildered Justice of the Peace tried to be friendly. "He couldn't be married without the bride, my dear." Joan gasped. "So I'm the bride! Doesn't anybody ask me about it?" She swung to Jim. "Who said I wanted to marry you?" "Say—" Rossini was provoked. "It wasn't two hours ago you told me you loved him!"

Sunshine was on Jim's face. "She did?"

Joan smiled whimsically. "You just don't understand. I don't love him... he's James Buchanan. I was talking to you about Jim Burns." Joan turned and walked quickly from the room, the door slamming behind her.

"I think," said Rossini, "we all need a drink."

"I never drink," said Jim quickly, "when I've important business to attend to." Nobody stopped Jim as he ran after Joan. He finally caught up to her as she ran up the garage steps to the servants' quarters.

"Joan—you've got to listen to me. Listen—didn't you once say you wanted to marry a fellow like James Buchanan?"

Joan bridled. "So that's what you chased me for—to throw that up to me!"

Jim smiled. "Well, I'm as near James Buchanan as they come."

"That's right—but how about Jim Burns. He talked me out of James Buchanan—and I fell for him."

"I've solved it! Can't you commit bigamy—and marry them both?"

Joan looked up at Jim, then started to sob. The tears came fast—it might have been sadness, but they looked like happy little tears.

"I don't," she sobbed, "want to get married—I don't want to have anything to do with men—I don't want to marry anybody!" The tears came still faster, but now she was sobbing on Jim's shoulder. "Just leave me alone, I'm never going to get married!" B now she was nestling in Jim's arms and Jim was happily caressing her hair.

"You are," said Jim softly, "the most charming little girl in the world." To prove it, he pulled Joan closer, kissed her tenderly, then looked into her eyes for reciprocation. He found it.

This time, Joan kissed him.

Mrs. Clemons was confined to her bed with a severe cold, but her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Thompson was a gracious substitute hostess.

During the business session the members drew names or "pals" for the next three months.

Delicious sandwiches and coffee were served to the following members:

Mesdames Geo. Bamburg, H. N. Brown, Sam Chambers, J. M. Clemons, Homer Clemons, Lynn Jones, Willis Jones, Jack Powell, Sol Veasy, Misses Rebecca Clemons, Pauline Jones and the hostess.

The next meeting, Feb. 14, will be with Mrs. Willis Jones. The club members will spend the day and we will honor our "pals" with a Valentine favor. Miss Martin will visit the club during the day.

Bluebonnet Workers

Mrs. Otha Looper was hostess to members of the Hood Springs Club last Thursday, Jan. 30. Quilt scraps were cut and quilt blocks embroidered. The year books were given to each member. After refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and hot chocolate, a program of entertainment was planned. Sides were chosen, with Mrs. Bill Daniels at the head of one and Miss Otha Berry head of the other. This promises to make this community a livelier place. Unusual interest is being shown by both club and community.

One visitor, Miss Hilliard of Killeen was present. The club adjourned to meet two weeks from date with Mrs. R. E. Meeks.

SHOTS AT THE BASKET

By TED HARRIS News' Sports Editor

February 8 will long be remembered by Coach Maurice Ewing, for last Saturday on this date, while the county executive committee was finding his basketball team ineligible to participate further in the play for county honors, his hotel caught on fire making it necessary for him to make a hurried trip to the said hotel. The hotel was damaged, forcing Ewing to find another place to scatter his belongings. Coach Earle Worley came to his rescue and permitted him to use the Worley home, temporarily, as a place to leave his worldly goods. However, no one came to his or Worley's rescue in the other difficulty named.

The final basketball game next Saturday night between Jonesboro and Evant should be a honey with the outcome very much in doubt, and opinions rather varied. With the writer, as well as local fans, believing Gatesville had the best team seen at the meet, the gym should be crowded for this game as Hornet fans want to compare the play of Jonesboro against Evant with that of the Hornets, who beat the Elks in the first round of play last Friday night.

This writer as well as most of the fans, figured the school officials in some respect, responsible for the ineligibility of the Gatesville team. Also the player concerned was thought to be at fault. But on approaching the coaches of the local high school we found that both the officials and the boy were ignorant of the fact. It was disclosed that Curry, the player declared ineligible, as eligible, according to all available records save those on file in Austin. The records on his entry into high school at Plainview, which school he attended prior to his enrollment in the local high school, show that he is eligible for this year's play, but the record on file in Austin says he entered high school previous to what the entry record at Plainview shows. The principal of Plainview that year, without doubt, sent in Curry's name for that of his brother who did enter high school that year, but the Curry in controversy did not enter until the following year. There is proof enough of his eligibility everywhere save the right place. We are glad to have found those facts and wish to apologize to the officials and the boy for what we thought.

For next year we would like to make a suggestion to the County Executive Committee. The teams entering the County Meet should send in a list of the players expecting to be used during the meet to the committee at least a month prior to the meet and then thru the records on file in the County Superintendent's office, the committee could pass on the eligibility of each man before the meet ever takes place. This is merely a suggestion and might be impossible to carry out, but something should be done to prevent what has happened this year.

A railway just opened between Fevsi-Pasha and Diarbekr, Turkey, crosses the rich copper district of Ergani, and proposed extensions will take the line to the frontiers of Iraq and Iran.

EDITORIAL

This Week's Thought
by
VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

Life is a series of minutes.
Do not waste them.

"PITCH MEN"

Let us first define this term, and take it out of the vernacular of the saw-dust ring. A "pitchman" is a free lance who takes newly patented articles or any other clever new item to a community, puts up a table, uses the back end of a car or truck and using "barker" language, stunts, etc., sells his product to the people of that community only on busy days, such as Saturdays and First Mondays.

Now, this pitchman has to live the same as the rest of us. Granted.

However, he is not a community builder. He appears only on the very best days, selling some kind of article, pays no taxes, or practically none, makes a nice collection of money on the very best days, and travels on.

Last First Monday there were several here. Now, this town is not exclusive, and welcomes new and permanent businesses, but we believe merchants, business men, and those who are the "stuck" customers of the pitchmen, would rather they didn't come, or would stay here.

One merchant said, "well, they take out the hard-earned dollars from our customers, and the next day, some of the same pitchman's customers come to us and ask for credit, saying they are hard up and have to have a little credit. But, the pitchmen don't do credit or pay taxes to any appreciable amount, but goes on his way merrily with the cash."

That's a just complaint, we believe. Those merchants who furnish us credit, should also be given consideration when there is any cash to spend.

Some cities and towns bar these pitchmen, or make the "peddlers tax" so exorbitant that it is impossible for them to operate, thus clearing the way for the real tax paying merchants.

This, at least, deserves some consideration.

LETTER FROM SENATOR POAGE

The only outstanding development in State legislation this week seems to have been the belated discovery of an error on the part of the State printers eleven years ago.

In 1923, the Legislature appointed a commission to codify the statutes of this state. This commission, which was composed of some of the outstanding lawyers of the state, worked for two years and compiled all of the laws of the state, omitting those that had been repealed or become void for any reason, and omitting all duplications, in an effort to make it possible to determine what the law was in this state, and to reduce somewhat the tremendous volume of obsolete legislation that had to be gone through to determine the existence of any particular law.

The codification commission did not have authority to change the law, but it was simply its province to write all of the law in a usable form, and it did succeed in bringing all of the statutes that had theretofore occupied a number of volumes into large volumes.

These were of course printed and were then introduced in the Legislature as two separate bills in order that the Legislature might officially act on the recommendation of the commission.

Of course, all bills that are introduced in the Legislature must be written and when finally passed they must be enrolled and signed by the presiding officer of each House and by the Governor. In this case the bills in question were so long, covering all of the written law of the state, that the printed copies were used both for introduction in the Legislature and for enrollment, and it was one of these printed copies that was finally signed by the then Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and filed in the Secretary of State's office as the permanent record of the Legislative Acts. These bills are generally known as the Code of 1925. Last week it seems that a law student who was studying the records found that a number of pages—thirty-two, I believe,—were missing from the official copy on file in the office of the Secretary of State, thus leaving the official record without any showing that this part of the Code had ever become the law in Texas.

Of course, the provisions which are omitted were in the law prior to 1925, but when the Legislature enacted the new Code in 1925 it repealed all other laws. There is no question but what the Legislature itself actually passed the sections that are omitted in the official copy, and that it is only by reason of a defective binding whereby these pages were left out of the book that this copy does not contain all of these provisions. The omitted provisions include a number of the Penal Statutes defining serious offenses, and it has of course raised the question, not only as to whether or not these acts are now offenses in this state, but further, whether those individuals who have been convicted within the past eleven years for the violation of any of these omitted sections can be properly held in the State penitentiary.

A test case is now being prepared, and I trust that before this is printed some convict will have applied for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that there was no law under which he could be convicted. I do not know what the courts will hold, as I do not think we have ever experienced this situation before. I hope, however, they will take the view that this is but an omission in the record, and that the Legislature having actually passed the laws, that the Secretary of State can correct his record so that it will correctly reflect what took place in the Legislature. If such an interpretation is not placed on the matter, a session of the Legislature could of course re-enact the omitted sections, but this would not remedy the situation insofar as those who have been convicted of any of these offenses are concerned.

The Austin printers have always been very expensive to this State. They have received vast sums each year for doing the public printing, and if this error, which seems to have been entirely the fault of the printer or binder of the book, rather than the Legislature or the Secretary of State, should actually require a special session to cure it, it will be the most expensive printing the State ever had done. Of course on the other hand, it may be the occasion of calling the Legislature and providing funds to pay the old age pensions, which apparently will not otherwise be provided.

Yours very sincerely,
W. R. POAGE.

3RD. OF SERIES ON E. C. W.
EXPLAINING WORK
AS OUTLINED

Control of erosion is the first and most essential step in the direction of correct land utilization on something like 75 per cent of the cultivated (and cultivable) area of the nation. If the soil is permitted to wash to a condition equivalent to skeletonized land there will be nothing to save. Failure to curb this insidious process will effectively and disastrously take care of all aspects of the land problem in numerous localities, both physical and economic.

In this connection, it is interesting, but certainly not very comforting, to look at production figures, which perhaps better than anything else, show how erosion has gradually deteriorated farm lands. It has been apparent to agricultural leaders that crop yields have been dropping during the last two or three decades. What do figures show? The yield of cotton declined from an average of 200 pounds of lint cotton an acre in nine Blackland counties of Central Texas for the year 1905 to 137 pounds in 1926. During the same period the state-wide average yield dropped from 170 to 134 pounds. In these nine counties the serious effects of erosion in stripping off the productive topsoil of many fields down to the substratum of infertile chalk, clay or marl, has brought about a reduction in yield ranging to as much as from one-half to one-fortieth of a bale to the acre. Yields of other clean tilled crops, such as corn, show correspondingly large declines. It is apparent also that there are corresponding declines in crop yields throughout most sections of the South.

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Temple reports as follows on declining crop yields in the Blacklands:

"The decline in yield of cotton in the Blackland region is principally due to the fact that a great deal of the fertility of the soil in this section has been removed by erosion. Perhaps the principal limiting factors for cotton production in the Blackland region are root rot and erosion. While there are few accurate records available as far back as the accompanying chart extends observations indicate that root rot was plentiful and exerted a limiting influence on the production of cotton at that time. All records, however, indicate and observations by thousands of close observers confirm the fact that the results of erosion are much more noticeable now than they were twenty years ago. There are now large bodies of land in Bell, and other Blackland counties which are practically useless from an agricultural standpoint, and which are reported to have been making excellent yields of all crops twenty years ago. In a single season, all close observers have seen relatively large bodies of land forced out of cultivation, due to the excavation of large ditches by run-off water from the fields. These same observers have also noticed over a period of years that much of the Blackland region is getting lighter in color, due to the fact that the black and fertile top soil is gradually being washed away by sheet erosion, leaving the lighter subsoil to be farmed. Subsoil produces poor crops."

"The present soil saving campaign is at least twenty years late for the Blackland region, as a whole. However, the fact that it is late cannot be remedied. The thing to be kept in mind is that further soil erosion MUST be checked, first, to prevent further deterioration of productive land, and second, to enable the rebuilding of land which has been taken out of profitable production, on account of erosion."

Such reduction in crop yields, as sighted above, is even more astounding in face of the fact that expenditures for commercial fertilizers have increased more than ten-fold during the past three decades. Thus, it is evident that regardless of the amount of money spent for fertilizers, it is impossible to permanently build up and increase the productivity of fields from which erosion has removed the topsoil. It is also a well founded statement of fact that erosion removes 21 times as much fertility as does crop growth. It follows, therefore that erosion losses must be checked if crop yields are not to decline to the point where profitable production is impossible.

Again, coming to our very own doorsteps—to the Texas area with which the Region 4 staff of the Soil Conservation Service is most directly concerned—presented below are figures which will give some idea at least as to the seriousness of the erosion problem which has been brought about in Region 4 by improper farming practices of the past fifty to one hundred years.

Erosion in Texas

Total land area covered by reconnaissance survey, 168,000,000 acres, 100 percent; Area with little or no erosion, 38,597,844, 22.8; area affected by sheet erosion, 92,430,413, 54.6; area affected by gullying, 78,027,402, 46.1; area affected by wind erosion, 21,405,624, 12.6.

Evant-Jonesboro Meet in Final Game Sat. Nite

GATESVILLE AND PEARL RUL'D INELIGIBLE AFTER FIRST ROUND VICTORIES.

Friday and Saturday saw the county basketball meet go off about as it should as far as dope is concerned. The only thing to mar an otherwise splendid meet was the ugly appearance of the "bugga-boo" ineligibility. Gatesville, according to the play of the other entries, was the favorite to win the meet after defeating Evant 35-27 in the first round of play. But the Hornets along with Pearl, who had also won their game, were found guilty or using ineligible men. After being reinstated the Evant quint came back Saturday night to win over Turnersville 26-20 and Flat 42-19 to win the class A division and the right to meet Jonesboro, the class B winner, in the finals to be staged next Saturday night.

The other results of the tournament are as follows: 1st round: Flat 25, Pearl 28. Pearl was found to be ineligible and Flat was reinstated. This was a class A game. In a class B game New Olive lost to Plainview 29-44. Another B tussle saw Jonesboro shellac Ewing 34-14. These were all afternoon contests. Friday evening games found Copperas Cove holding Oglesby, in a class A mix-up, to 9 free throws and winning 41-9. In the feature game of the first round and the second game of the evening Gatesville beat Evant 35-27, but had to forfeit and Evant was given a new chance which they readily took advantage of. In the final game of the first round Levita won over Pidcoke in a B game 30-18.

Saturday afternoons play pitted Copperas Cove against Flat with the latter quint winning 33-30. This was a class A game. In the semi-finals of class B, Jonesboro won over Plainview 26-10.

Saturday evening at 7:00 Evant defeated Turnersville in the semi-finals of class A 26-20 while in the second fray Jonesboro won the B championship by overwhelming Levita 43-13. In the final game Evant beat Flat 42-19 to cop the A class honors. This left Jonesboro and Evant to fight it out next Saturday evening for the county cup.

"MARY BURNS, FUGITIVE" FOLLOWS "IF YOU COULD ONLY COOK"

"Mary Burns, Fugitive" is a fugitive, because her boy friend said, "If You Could Only Cook," but she had to answer "no."

No, it isn't anything so tragic. Just our way of letting our readers know, that "If You Could Only Cook" strikes out with this issue, and "Mary Burns, Fugitive" comes to the bat.

This latter story, novelized from the Walter Wamger Paramount picture, starring Sylvia Sydney, starts Friday. She got into trouble with some gangsters, thinking one of them was a good looking football player, with whom she's fallen in love—but you read it! Starting Friday in the News.

Muleshoe—"This year we have made and laid 1800 feet of tile and have raised more and better vegetables on less ground than ever before," Mrs. E. L. Smith, farm food supply demonstrator of the West Camp home demonstration club in Bailey county, told Miss Alma Stewart, home demonstration agent.

"I have canned 865 containers of food of 57 varieties, and I have dried and stored 1000 pounds. My pantry is valued at $230.90," Mrs. Stewart said. She has recently added 50 feet of shelves to her pantry which were made from scrap lumber.

IN MEMORY OF J. D. FEATHERSTONE

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of Mrs. B. D. Clary, for her father, J. D. Featherston. Friends and loved ones gathered at this time to pay their tribute of love and respect to him.

Just as the sun set brings the close of a beautiful day, the sun set of life went down on the beautiful life of our dear daddy.

It can truly be said that his was a beautiful life. He never tired of doing for his friends and loved ones, a friend in him, was a friend in deed.

As I look over his life, it seems as near faultless as one can find in an earthly being. His love and devotion was in the silent as far as spoken words were concerned. He never did good deeds for the outward appearance, it was solely for the comfort of the one he did it for.

He attended church and Sunday School regular, until misfortune of ill health hindered him. He not only went himself, but urged his children to go.

He had been a member of the Missionary Baptist Church for sixty-two years. His faith never faltered in his church. At the time of his death he was seventy-four years old, he had spent forty-five of these years in Coryell County. Being here in early days, he helped to make Coryell County what it is. He was a booster of his home county and town, never finding another he liked better. Dad had been active most of his seventy-four years. He had very little sickness to hinder him. Leading such an active life made the last four months he lived seem hard, as he was confined to his room the entire time. But was able to sit in his chair part of the time.

He was so devoted to his children and grandchildren that he told his visitors part of his affection for them.

We will miss him so much, in so many different places. As the time nears for him to come home, we will look for the form that is no more.

Since his companion went away he was never content at a place long at a time and he visited with us all, often. It grieves our heart, and we feel the choke in our throat as we look for him and he can't come. But we should not grieve as he had suffered so much. It should be a pleasant thought to know there is a land of no suffering, and where we'll never grow old.

We miss him from his place beside the fire—and oh! so many places. But we are happy that we know he fought the battles of life squarely, and ever stood for the right as he seen it.

When lean times came he never lost faith, but pressed forward to meet them the best he could. I have such love and such confidence that I think he could say like the Prophet of old: "I've fought a good fight, I've finished my course, and have kept the faith." Therefore I believe there is a crown layed up for him. He has lived a life that has earned this for him. His earthly possessions were few, but the Lord doesn't count this against him, for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.

He was born in Van Zandt County, Texas, in 1861, in early manhood was joined in matrimony to Sarah Frances Worsham, of this union 11 children were born, two dying in infancy. The other nine children survive, with forty-four grandchildren and eighty great-grandchildren. All nine children were present, namely: Charlie of Athens, Fain and Dave of Gatesville and Dennis of Avoca, Texas. Mrs. B. D. Clary, Mrs. C. A. Holcomb, Mrs. Robert Moore and Mrs. Sallie Massingill, all of Gatesville. Mrs. Ira Moore of San Benito, Texas.

Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Clyde Childers, who paid a beautiful tribute of love and respect to his memory. He was gently laid to rest beside his wife who preceded him in death seven months. Three of his grandsons and three close friends that had helped with him during his sickness, acted as pall bearers. They were: George, Robert and Willis Featherston, Marvin Edwards, Cleveland Beck and Snooks Adkison.

He was interred in the City Cemetery. He was a little old fashioned, but grew sweeter each day. I adored his plain features and his silver locks of grey. There's a beauty around him that no others could see, but he is forever sweetest! Daddy to me.

—His daughter, Mrs. B. D. Clary, Gatesville.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood
YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained. Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset. Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.
