Six Negroes Loot Local Store Saturday Eve And Get Diamonds

Six "visiting" negroes raided Flentge's Drug Store and Davidson Bros. Dry Goods Store Saturday evening about 6 p. m. garnering loot amounting to 9 silk slips, a $125 diamond ring and a wedding set valued at $35.00.

Quick work by Ed Flentge, in phoning neighboring towns made the "catch" easy and they were caught at McGregor by the officers and return to jail here.

Working together, they entered the stores, got the clerks busy showing small articles while the other negroes pilfered what they wanted.

Their car was parked in the alley back of Washburn's Garage. The sextette included 3 negro women, 2 men and a 15-year-old boy, who said they were from McLennan County, San Antonio and Caldwell.

"HEADED FOR HELL" IS SUBJECT OF PASTOR'S SERMON SUNDAY

"We hang on the brink of hell again, clouds of war hang all over nations, the Prince of Peace has been refused, we fill places of amusement and play about gambling devices," was the gist of Rev. M. M. Chunn's sermon at the First Methodist Church Sunday.

"We are in another war, millions of men and women will die like rats and poverty will again stare us in the face.

"The hell of war is here: Italy, Japan, Germany, the aggressors while France is the line. God pity us! Unless America falls to her knees in repentance and gives Christ a chance it is hell again. "The gates are open, the armies of hell, which is war, march upon us; only Christ can close that gate by reigning in the hearts of our people. It is a revival of religion—or hell!"

FAMOUS "LEAVENWORTH CASE" IS BROUGHT TO THE SCREEN

Every once in a while, following the success of some current motion picture, other organizations begin a barrage of vehicles fashioned after the feature, and start a trend. A few of these productions are good but after awhile, they cannot be called entertainment.

During the past several months a series of mystery-detective features have been released. All were either adapted from some current best-seller or written by a capable writer. But for the first time in history, a screen company digs back fifty years and adapts a corking good mystery for the audience. Republic Pictures have done this in "The Leavenworth Case" scheduled to open in Thursday at the Regal Theatre with an all-star cast.

The author of this novel, Anna Katherine Green, began the trend toward mystery and detective stories with this book more than fifty years ago. Despite the fact it has survived a half century, the novel still sells 2,000 copies yearly. It has sold more than 1,000,000 copies.

"The Leavenworth Case" isn't the usual type of a mystery picture. It depicts how a successful crime can be executed intelligently and without detection. Fast moving with loads of suspense, some of Hollywood's leading actors were given leading roles in the feature.

A millionaire is found murdered. Suspicion is immediately placed on all intimates of the late Silas Leavenworth. Police are unable to find the slightest clue. But unlike ordinary murder mysteries, "The Leavenworth Case" introduces an entertaining formula for a plot, and contrary to the usual run of detective picture, it reveals to the audience the secret of who the actual murderer was, and the ingenious manner in which he carried out his crime.

Donald Cook, popular young star, is seen in the leading role.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
 Director, Physical and Health Education
 New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

SAFEGUARDING ATHLETICS

With more boys and girls going to high school and with the increase in athletic activities today, there is one important thing we mustn't forget. I refer to the strenuous nature of some sports and the unknown existence of certain defects and health conditions in students.

The sports are all right and they are needed. They do a piece of educational work which is not so well accomplished in any other way. But too frequently the procedure is wrong. Perhaps it is a case of over-enthusiasm. At any rate there are boys and girls playing on school teams who have no right to be there. Sometimes tuberculosis is present, or there may be an obscure disease of the kidneys or the heart. Hernia is another defect not always known to the person afflicted with it. Poorly healed injuries and operation scars should also be considered.

Fortunately, high school principals and coaches are increasingly recognizing the importance of having every candidate for an athletic team examined by a physician, which is the point I want to recommend. Such an examination should be given to the entire squad before the start of practice. It should be extensive in scope and thorough in quality. Preferably the examination should be conducted by school physicians. It is seldom as successful when left to parents and family physicians. But regardless of who does it, perfect health should be one inflexible requirement in athletic competition.

Bringing school and home together will be discussed next week by Dr. Ireland.

SOUTH TEXAS JOINS FOLK LORE MOVEMENT

Dallas, March 5.—Miss Gertrude Knott, who returned to Dallas this week after a 12-day trip into South Texas in behalf of the National Folk Festival, which will be held in Texas this year and of which Miss Knott is director, was highly pleased with the reception given her in the communities visited.

During her brief trip to South Texas Miss Knott found Fredericksburg, Austin, San Antonio, San Marcos, Houston and Galveston, beginning elaborate plans to produce local folk festivals featuring the lore of their respective localities.

Fredericksburg plans a festival that will feature German singers from several communities in South Texas, May 9 and 10. Austin will hold its festival in connection with the Texas Folk Lore Society in April. San Antonio will feature things typically Mexican and Spanish, including dances, songs, and some of the early prayer chants. In Houston, the program will include singing games, square dances and old harp singers. From the Galveston docks will be featured the negro work songs and sailors' chanties. Bandera and Huntsville have also announced initial plans.

The population of the Kentucky state prison is 1110, about double the number its buildings were constructed to house.

 PIE—THE FAVORED WINTER DESSERT

Modern cooks have contrived so many variations on the old-time pie recipes that a lover of this delectable dessert may go on almost indefinitely without repetition. Here are some old favorites with new and luscious twists that would have surprised the pie lovers of an older day.

PRUNE PIE

One and one-half tablespoons quick cooking tapioca, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-third cup sugar, 2½ cups chopped cooked prune pulps, 1½ cups prune juice, pastry.

Combine the tapioca, salt, sugar, prune pulp and fruit juices. Heat to the boiling point and remove from the heat. Let stand while the pastry is being made. Line pan with the pastry, add the filling and arrange lattice strips of pastry across the top. Bake in a 450-degree oven for 10 minutes and then reduce the heat to 375 degrees and bake 30 minutes longer. Serve cool with or without whipped cream.

ORANGE ICE BOX PIE

Four egg yolks, 1 whole egg, three-fourths cup sugar, 1 pint whipping cream, 5 tablespoons orange juice, 1 grated orange rind (small orange), ½ teaspoon lemon juice, sponge cake or 2 doz. lady fingers.

Put the white of 1 and the yolks of 5 eggs in the top of a double boiler with the cup of sugar. Set white and yolks over hot water and beat gently with a rotary egg beater while they cook gently for 10 minutes. Then beat the cream very stiff. Slowly beat in the orange juice and grated orange rind and lemon juice and set aside about three-fourths cup of the mixture. Mix the remaining flavored whipped cream with the egg mixture. Line a mold with slices of sponge cake (or lady fingers), put the egg mixture on top of this and top that with the reserved whipped cream and set in the refrigerator for several hours until filling stiffens and then serve. By saving the whites of the other four eggs you can make another dessert.

LEMON MERINGUE PIE

One can sweetened condensed milk, ½ cup lemon juice, grated rind 1 lemon, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, unbaked crumb crust.

Blend together sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, grated lemon rind and egg yolks. Pour into an 8-inch pie plate lined with unbaked crumb crust. Cover with meringue made by beating egg whites stiff and adding sugar. Bake until brown in a moderate oven. Chill before serving.

MARBLE TOP PIE

One-half cup sugar, 2 egg yolks, 4 tablespoons flour, three-fourths cup milk, few grains salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 and one-fourth cups apricot pulp. Baked pie shell, 1 cup cream, 1 square unsweetened chocolate.

Mix sugar and flour together and milk, beaten egg yolks and apricot pulp. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add salt and butter. Pour into a baked pie shell. Cool. Beat cream until stiff, add a little confectioner's sugar and vanilla. Add melted chocolate to one-third of whipped cream. Put whipped cream on top. Streak chocolate with a spatula into the white to give a marble effect.

APPLE BUTTER PIE

One-half cup brown sugar, 3 egg yolks, ½ cup apple butter, ½ cup milk, 1 cup water, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, one-eighth teaspoon cloves, 1 tablespoon gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 3 egg whites beaten stiff, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar.

Cook brown sugar, egg yolks, apple butter, milk, 1 cup water, salt and spices until thickened. Soak gelatine in ½ cup cold water and when it begins to congeal fold in egg whites which have been beaten with 2 tablespoons granulated sugar. Pour into baked pie shell and chill. Serve with whipped cream, unsweetened, flavored with vanilla.

"OUR FIRST ANNE"

Nothing of the sort, mind you! A year ago the 12th, the reins of this paper changed hands. We have one year of effort behind us. That's why it's Anniversary No. 1.

During this time, changes have been made, features added, and we have honestly endeavored to make this a CORYELL COUNTY newspaper.

To our subscribers, advertisers, friends and acquaintances, we can do no more than thank you for your kind patronage, encouragement, discouragement, pats on the back, slaps in the face, and any other words or deeds of commendation, recommendation, denunciation, or defamation have handed us. They all help!

A lot of times, running a thing down is better than helping push and put over the same thing—it simply makes the ones making the effort try harder, instead of getting the "big-head" and that "self-satisfied" opinion that deteriorates and destroys.

In conclusion, we will say, we're not satisfied, and our pledge for next year, and next year, and next year, is to still strive to merit your approval by giving you the very best we possibly can in the next 104 issues of this, YOUR Coryell County News, as we have during the past 104.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

The complacency of British authorities at the recent German actions indicates that the London and Berlin governments had some understanding preceding the march of the Reich's troops into the demilitarized Rhineland. All European chancelleries deplored the action of the German dictator except London—and no condemnation was forthcoming from there, although Britain was a signer of the Locarno pact which Hitler scrapped.

Mr. Eden, the British Foreign Secretary, addressed the Commons on the situation and expressed the hope that Britain, France and Germany might be drawn together by a mutual understanding.

"There can never be permanent peace in Europe as long as suspicion continues between France and Germany," he said. "The only hope lies in achievement of a tripartite peace and friendship between France, Germany and ourselves."

Britain wants peace first of all; desires Germany to re-enter the League and is willing to admit that the Reich is entitled to its full sovereign rights over German territory. This Eden made clear.

France feels that it has been betrayed by the British. When Paris appealed to London to join it in military sanctions against Germany, which would mean driving Hitler's troops out of the Rhineland, the only promise they could enact was that the British would help France if Hitler attacked. And all sensible European statesmen know that Hitler is not prepared for war yet and does not want to fight.

In the opinion of both the civil and military authorities of France, war is coming in two years so why not fight the Nazis now before they are prepared. Therein lies the seriousness of the present crisis. France is willing to fight because it realizes it will have a much better chance to win now than it will two years hence, when Hitler's military plans will have been completed and he may have made new allies.

Gen. Maurin, the War Minister, reported to the French general staff that if four military classes were recalled France would have an army of 1,000,000 strong and could take and hold the Rhineland.

The Paris government is deeply chagrined at the British refusal to take firm action against Hitler and has threatened to resign from the League. Obviously France has long based its security upon unilateral and bilateral treaties with European states and not upon the framework of the League.

Backed by promises of help from Russia, Poland, Italy, Rumania and Czechoslovakia, France feels strong enough to use the mailed fist against the Nazi chieftain to make him back down. This leaves Britain—and Germany—isolated among the European powers. What a strange reversal from pre-war alignments!

Desire for peace primarily prompts such a stand by the British. In British opinion Germany is entitled to exercise its full sovereign rights, recognizing the unfairness of the Versailles treaty. If Germany can be pacified with some minor concessions by the other powers, is it not better to concede than to fight? reason the British.

Today, Germany is in desperate need of British friendship and the hand of friendship extended from London must be a welcome one. No longer do the Germans have powerful allies on the Continent as they did in 1914. Then, Austria-Hungary and Turkey, militarily two of Europe's strongest states, were in alliance with Berlin and fought with the Hohenzollern standard in the war. Now, Austria-Hungary is no more and the petty states carved from the old Hapsburg empire are controlled by France or Italy.

Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Yugoslavia, which were either created from the Austrian domains or profited by territorial acquisitions by the peace treaties, are strong supporters of France, and Austria and Hungary, now separate states which occupy the remaining territory of old Austria-Hungary, are dominated by Fascist Italy. Poland, believed to be in sympathy with German plans to conquer the Ukraine, has returned to the French fold after a lapse of several years, promising military aid against the Germans. Thus the ring of steel is strengthened around the Nazi state.

The spectre of German troops across the Alsatian border looms much larger before a Frenchman's eyes than an Italian protectorate over far-away Ethiopia. It now looks like the acts of one Fascist dictator may serve to resume another from the noose of League of Nations sanctions and the stigma of possible defeat in the equatorial jungles of Africa. For France has now expressed its willingness to call off sanctions against Mussolini for his "punitive expedition" against bearded, little Haile Selassie's negro empire.

A diplomatic victory for one dictator—and diplomatic isolation for another! That's European politics for you. If I!

PLACE NAMES

Leon River, the largest stream of Coryell County, was named for Alonzo de Leon, who was sent to Texas by the Viceroy of Mexico, to exterminate the French settlement at Fort St. Louis on Matagorda Bay. This was in the 1680's of the 17th century.

Chas. H. and Geo. W. Straw, in 1875 moved from McLennan County to Coryell and bought the old Cox Mill, which had been established by J. M. Cox, who settled the adjacent land in 1856. The Straws made extensive improvements, and had a fine flour mill and carried a large stock of general merchandise. The place became known as Straw's Mill.

John H. Hurst, born Nov. 25, 1829, in Indiana, settled in Lampasas County in 1856, removed to Hurst Springs in Coryell County in 1865. Here he built a rock house and erected a steam gin. Hence the name Hurst Springs.

H. B. Pidcoke, born in England in 1824, came to the Cowhouse valley in 1850, where he established a ranch. Later came the village that bears his name. There is also a part of the City of Gatesville known as the Pidcoke addition.

J. R. Pancake, born in Virginia in Jan., 1836, came to Coryell County in 1858 and established the Pancake ranch. He also established a general merchandise store and cotton gin. The Pancake and Bobb cattle business grew to large proportions, but with the settlement of the country, ranching gave way to agriculture.

W. M. Oglesby, for whom the town of Oglesby is named, came to Coryell Creek in 1853 and established a ranch. He later exchanged his holdings on Coryell Creek for the J. N. Davidson survey on the prairie. When the Cotton Belt R. R. entered the county in 1882, Mr. Oglesby gave the townsite and the town, founded on the site of the old village of Hill Top, was named Oglesby in honor of the donor of the land for the townsite.

Whitson was named for "old Grandpa Whitson," who came there before railroads entered Central Texas and established a cotton gin and flour mill. Mr. Joe Lynn also had a cotton gin, and Mr. Haynes had a general merchandise business. Capt. Ellison Burch at one time had a legalized whiskey still just below Whitson on the spring branch. Whitson was a flourishing pioneer town.

A village on Highway 7, a mile west of Coryell Creek, is so named because in the olden days when only horse and ox drawn vehicles were had, it was a hard pull to reach the place from any direction—Pulltight.

Blackfoot (Davidson) school and Blackfoot Mountain are said to be named because a band of Blackfoot Indians once camped there. They are located on the road leading up Coryell Creek valley from Highway 7.

A steep hill on Highway 7, a few miles west of Oglesby, is named for Dr. Ashby who settled a valley farm near this before the Civil War and who died on his farm during the war. Many of his descendants still live in Coryell County.

Carter's Peak, a mountain overlooking Coryell Creek valley named for an early pioneer.

Shook Crossing—a crossing on Leon River, on land now owned by the Martins who opened by the Shook brothers about 1865.

Ross Crossing—Named for Reuben Ross, who settled a League and a Labor of land there in 1854. He owned slaves and opened a large plantation. His descendants, the Greens, Rosses, Walters, and Caseys, still own most of the land. Four generations of the Ross' descendants have successfully lived on the land. Mr. Ross was born in Kentucky, brought with him a love for fine horses. It is said that he furnished many horses for use in the Confederate army.

In 1839, Major Erath found many wild Mexican hogs on a creek that rises in Coryell County, so he named it Hog Creek.

Neff Spring, source of Horse Creek, is named for Noah Neff who settled there in 1855. This pioneer was Pat Neff's father. The Neffs own the land now.

This river, the Cow House, flows through the western section of Coryell County and was named Cow House because there were many rock shelters and caves in which range cattle sheltered during inclement weather.

Cave Creek, a small creek of the Bosque drainage system, so named because of the many caves in the limestone bluffs along its course. Famed as the scene of Joe Sappington's stories.

Owl Creek, as the name suggests, was named for the many wood owls found there. There is a fine valley or farming land. The adjoining hills are covered with forests of cedar.

Bertrand Branch, a tributary of Coryell Creek, named for Thomas Bertrand, who settled in the county in 1853.

King's Mountain was named for Crockett King who was among the first white men to establish in the Leon Country. The mountain is near Leon Junction.

Lookout Peak or Signal Mountain is a round peak standing to the left of Highway 36 on the way from Gatesville to Jonesboro. It is visible for long distances up or down Leon Valley. It is said to have been a fire signal station for Indians living in the Leon River Country.

Lime City is a village near Oglesby, whose population is engaged in the manufacture of lime. The lime produced at this place is nationally known for its high chemical qualities, and is extensively used in the treatment of oil, gasoline, and water.

"Mary Burns, Fugitive"

By Wallace West—Novelized from the Walter Wanger Paramount Picture of the same name.

SYNOPSIS
 Mary Burns, pretty owner of a roadside restaurant, is surprised to find that her lover, Don Wilson, is a noted desperado wanted by the Department of Justice. When Wilson calls on her one evening, G-Men surround the place, Wilson escapes but Mary is caught burning stolen bonds that he was carrying. Sentenced to prison, she breaks jail with Goldie Gordon, her cell-mate. Unknown to Mary, Goldie is working under cover with Harper, a Government agent, to get information about Wilson. Mary gets a job in a hospital and there she meets and falls in love with Barton Powell, a patient. Meanwhile, Wilson discovers Mary's hide-out and sends one of his gangsters to get her. The gangster is killed by G-Men but Mary runs away. She finds work in Salt Lake City. Wilson, who had trailed her, corners her in a church. G-Men come on the scene but they unwillingly let Wilson get out when he threatens to blow the church and everybody inside to pieces with a hand grenade. He tells Mary to meet him in Canada.

CHAPTER IX
MARY did not, of course, go to the Ajax Hotel. Instead she drove to Denver, where, after several days' search she found a job as a when the music stopped. "How about waltzing over to the manager's office. I want to have a long talk with you."

 "Yes, sir," answered Mary, almost glad that the long chase was over. "There's nothing to be afraid of," said Harper when they were alone in the dusty office. "I just want you to write a note to Wilson saying you'll be up at Powell's mountain lodge on the evening of the twenty-ninth. There's a parole in it for you if you'll actually go up there and wait for him."
 "And if I won't?" Mary eyed him miserably.
 "Fifteen years minus three months and no time off for good behavior."
 "All right," she quavered. "Send me back then. I won't stoop to a cowardly trick like that. I just can't."
 "But Wilson's a menace to society. You say you don't love him. He's killed four men and looted

"We're still after Don Wilson," Harper explained as he entered the spacious living room of the lodge and looked around appreciatively at the panelled walls with their handsome mounted trophies and shining gun racks. "Got a tip he's coming this way tonight. Maybe you could help us."
 "This is Canada, my dear fellow. Not the United States. I can't quite fancy myself engaged in a kidnapping over the border."
 "The Canadian government is cooperating," Harper was nettled. "What's the matter with you, man? Don't you want to help?"
 "I came up here for peace and quiet," grumbled Powell. "In fact I extended only one invitation. Now you ring in a mob of gangsters."
 "It might interest you to know that Mary Burns will be here in a few hours," clipped Harper. "I'm using her as a decoy."
 "You dirty skunk!" Powell rose

"There's a parole in it for you if you'll actually go up there and wait for him," Harper said.

"hostess" in the "Golden Arms" taxi dance hall.

The work disgusted her, but she refused to touch the money Don had given her. And she had to eat. Moreover she kept thinking of Powell's invitation to visit his hunting lodge in Canada. If she had enough money for train fare. . . .

She was dancing with a beery-breathed salesman and thinking of these things late one Saturday night when her eyes happened to wander to the door. Framed between the bedraggled portiers stood Harper, his keen eyes searching the floor.

"Oh," gasped Mary to her companion. "Excuse me. I have to go. . . . A telephone call. . . ."

"No you don't," the salesman protested, hanging onto her arm. "I paid for this dance, and by. . . ."

"Pardon me," Harper's brittle voice broke in. "You are mistaken. This is my dance." Before the other could shake the beer fumes out of his head and think up an appropriate comeback the G-Man had taken the trembling girl in his arms and was steering her across the room in a graceful fox trot.

"Listen, Burns," he said casually heaven knows how many banks and payrolls. You'd be doing your government a great favor by writing that note—in addition to getting that parole."

 "I can't." She shook her head stubbornly.
 "All right." Much to her surprise Harper grinned like a boy. "Then I'll have somebody forge the note, using your handwriting. Now all you have to do is to go up to the lodge and act as decoy."
 "No. . . ."
 "Listen, Burns," he said easily. "You're my and Uncle Sam's prisoner. See. You'll go where I say. Now get on your hat and coat and come along with papa like a good girl."

 "Mr. Harper?" Powell eyed his visitor coldly. "I don't believe I've had the pleasure. . . ."
 "Yes. I talked to you in the hospital before they took the bandage off your eyes. Glad to see that they're all right again, by the way. As for our talk. . . . it was about Mary Burns, or Alice Brown as she called herself. Remember?"
 "Oh! You're the federal agent." Powell extended his hand. "What can I do for you way up here?"

from his chair and advanced toward the other in a fury. "Why don't you stop hounding that poor girl? You've followed her all over the United States. She must be about crazy by this time."
 "I'm as sorry as you are about it," answered the G-Man calmly. "But it happens that she's our only contact with Wilson. Now get this straight. Wilson's no ordinary crook. He's a devil. He'd as soon kill a man as shake hands with him. He uses women and children as shields, and he's as slippery as an eel. We've had him cornered twenty times and he's wormed his way out."
 "How do you know he won't do it again?" Powell was wavering.
 "Listen. We've got this lodge surrounded with armed officers. A mouse couldn't get through either way without our knowing it. When Wilson comes he'll be nabbed or shot down before he reaches the front door."
 "Then what are you telling me all this for?" Powell grinned.
 "Oh. . . . because. . . . something might slip," the detective grinned back. "Just thought I'd tip you off so you could stick a gat in your pocket. And also so you'd take good care of Mary. She's a nice kid."

TWO UNUSUAL MEAT DISHES FROM NORWAY

Norwegian cooking is unusual in the unique blending of flavors employed. Spices are blended in familiar dishes so that they assume a new and delectable guise. This distinctive blend of flavors is used most notably in meat dishes. The two recipes given here are typical examples of Norwegian cookery.

NORWEGIAN MEAT BALLS

One and one-half pounds ground round steak, 1/2 lb. ground lean pork, 1 large onion, grated, 2 even teaspoons cornstarch, salt and pepper to taste, 2 teaspoons ground mace, 1 cup milk.

Blend the above ingredients thoroughly make into balls and fry in butter, turning constantly till all sides are an even brown. Then cover with hot water and let simmer, covered, for one hour. The gravy should then be thickened with flour. Serve with whole boiled potatoes and green beans.

PORK BALLS

Two pounds ground pork shoulder, 2 even teaspoons cornstarch, salt and pepper to taste, 1 teaspoon sage, rubbed fine, 1 cup milk, boiled and cooled.

Form into balls, roll in flour and brown on all sides. Cover with hot water and simmer until done.

SPICED MEAT BALLS

Another version of the beef and pork combination is as follows. These meat balls are ideal to serve hot at a buffet supper as they may be prepared in advance and baked at the last minute.

Two pounds ground round steak, 1 lb. ground lean pork, 1 cup mashed potatoes, 1 cup milk, 1/2 teaspoon allspice, 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, ground, 1 tablespoon brown sugar.

Blend ingredients into small balls and roll in flour. Brown on all sides in butter. Place in baking pan and set aside until about one hour before needed, when they should be covered with 1 pint of cream and baked in a moderate oven for one hour.

WAX BEAN SALAD

One quart wax string beans, 1 egg yoke, 1/2 pint sour cream. String and wash the beans. Cut into short lengths and boil in salted water until tender. Drain and cover with dressing made of beaten egg yolk, cream and paprika. Chill and serve on lettuce.

BUTTER COOKIES

One cup butter, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 cups flour, 2 raw egg yolks, 1 lemon (juice), 2 hard cooked yolks, mashed fine, 1 tablespoon brandy.

Stir butter and sugar, then the cooked yolks, add flour and raw eggs, alternately. Roll thin, cut round and bake in greased tins in moderate oven 10 to 15 minutes. Place chopped almonds, sugar and cinnamon on top of each cookie.

CORYELL COUNTY HISTORY—

Evant is located near the west line of Coryell County, on Highway 7. It was founded in 1879 by Evant Brooks. An excellent school, a newspaper, and several business establishments, with several churches adorn this excellent community.

The Grove is an inland village on the highlands between Owl Creek and the Leon River. It has an excellent school, cotton gin, churches, and a number of business establishments. Named for the groves of fine trees that were there when the first settlements were made. This village is in the heart of a fine stock raising and agricultural country.

Landford's Cave is in the valley near Evant, named for Perry Landford, who established a ranch there in pioneer days.

Turnover was named by a story to the effect that when the soldiers were moving west from Fort Gates that some of the supply wagons were turned over at this place, and it has been called Turnover since that time.

Osage, an inland village near the east line of Coryell County, quite probable received its name from the Osage Indians, or the Bois'd Arc trees found there by pioneers sometimes called Osage Orange.

Caufield Mountain, the church and school are named for Tom Caufield, who came to this county in the early 50's. He was at one time Justice of the Peace at Gatesville.

Nathan Halbert came to the Leon River in the early 50's and took a grant of land across the river from what is now Mother Neff Park. He opened a ford crossing at that place which has since borne his name.

Collard's Bluff—a place of wonderful scenic beauty on Station Creek. Named for Rev. J. H. Collard, who in the 50's owned the land. Rev. Collard was one of the first members of Station Creek Methodist Church organized in 1855.

Blackwell's Branch, a mile west of Oglesby, a small wet-weather creek that flows under Highway 7. On this creek Dick Blackwell settled in the 50's. During the Civil War Dick served with the Rangers on the frontier. When he moved away in later years, he left his name permanently attached to that small stream.

Flat—a rural village in Coryell County, was so named for a flat strip of country near by, that was covered with mesquite timber. At first it was "Mesquite Flat," but about 1895 a post office was established. It was found that Texas already had a post office named Mesquite Flat, so the name became just Flat.

Mound, a village on the Cotton Belt R. R. in Leon Bottom. Old White Mound School stood half a mile away when the railroad was built into the county. A post office was established and named "Mound" in memory of the old pioneer school.

(In next Friday's issue of the News' an additional number of "Place Names" will appear.)

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

BRINGING SCHOOL AND HOME TOGETHER

The school health program will not do all we claim for it until parents, teachers, and health specialists get together.

Surely there is common ground, for the child is the principal concern of all. On that ground then we should join hands.

One way of doing this is the parent's conference following the annual inspection by the school physician. Where tried, the success has been promising. Through it the physician, dentist, and nurse can explain the health conditions they find and the parents can ask questions. Of course, the discussions are general. Individual cases and names are not mentioned. It is sufficient to interpret gross findings such as nutrition, tonsils, adenoids, skin diseases, teeth, and health habits.

This is also the opportunity for discussing such topics as—when to keep a child at home, the value of the milk lunch at mid-afternoon and the hot lunch at noon, how to help the child form health habits, among others.

Conferences may be held for an entire school, for a grade, a room, or they may be held in conjunction with the regular meetings of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Children are the "raw material" of the future. Dr. Ireland tells how to safeguard them in his next article.
