DOWN'S REMAIN SAME AFTER SPECIAL ELECT'N

City Sec. 4 Trustees Quit, Forcing New Officers

REQUEST MADE BY FEDERAL GOVT. FOR STORM SEWER AT NEW P.O. SITE

At a meeting of the City Council yesterday afternoon resignations were received and accepted from City Secretary and Attorney Robt. W. Brown, and four members of the school board, Richard Dickie, C. C. Sadler, Pat Holt and Mrs. O. G. Gilder.

Replacing the vacancies on the school board G. W. Byrom, Reid Powell, Francis Caruth and Elgin Davidson were appointed and approved by the Council. So far, no authorized announcement has been made in reference to the new City Attorney. However, Assessor-Collector Eiland Lovejoy will assume the duties of City Secretary with no additional pay.

Retaining their places as members of the school board were Ben West, Dan McClellan and Edgar Franks.

In order to improve the site for the new Post Office building, the government requested the city to construct a storm sewer from the site to carry off the water during heavy rains.

Other action taken by the Council was checking the results of the special election, swearing in and installing newly-elected city officials.

ALL-SCHOOL FREE PROGRAM TO BE HELD MAY 22

The second and last all-school free program is to be held in the Gatesville high school gymnasium on the evening of Friday, May 22. Special features of the program will be a style show by the home economics department, a presentation by the Future Farmers, music by the rhythm band, and the high school band and a play by the dramatic club.

This will be a program of varied interests and will be good throughout. Some explanation of current school procedure and practices will also be made.

School busses will run on the regular routes for the occasion and no charges will be made for the program or for transportation.

The first such free program was put on last fall and was attended by a crowd that practically filled the gymnasium. Interest in this one is expected to be equal to the first.

Committees of County Teachers' Ass'n. Are Announced by Pres.

President Virgil Jones of the Coryell County Teachers Association announces the following appointments for service in the Association so that those who are named may begin their duties at once.

This seems especially needful, Mr. Jones states, since so many of the teachers here plan to be in college thru the summer. The Association's interest can be kept in mind as Committeemen come in contact with teachers from mother parts of the state and nation.

The committees are as follows: Executive Committee: Frank L. Williams, J. C. Culwell, C. A. Barton, M. Tharp, P. T. Lemons, and Curtis Humphries.

Legislative Committee: C. D. Bover, R. B. Forrest, S. M. Anderson, Earl Worley, and James D. Carter.

Curriculum Committee: Frank L. Williams, A. R. Pointer, Mrs. J. E. Huddleston, H. Earl Culp, Mrs. Ouida Richardson, and Sidney Pruitt.

Professional Library Committee: L. A. Holmes, E. D. Shelton, W. F. Stiles, W. B. Teague, A. W. Ellis, and Mrs. Carl Eubanks.

Rural Library Committee: Mrs. K. R. Adams, Miss Maud Aylce Painter, Mrs. W. F. Stiles, Mrs. A. R. Whisenunt, Morris Webb, and Miss Lizzie Denby.

Mr. Jones adds that letters to the State Board of Education urging an additional appropriation of $2.50 per scholar for the present school year might help to get this aid.

ALTERNATE "ONE-TWO" GETS FARMER MORE MONEY

Farmers Must Sign Up In Conservation As Deadline Has Been Set

Farmers who have not yet filled out work sheets for the new farm program are urged to do so at once as the State Soil Conservation Committee has set the dead line for signing up.

Lloyd Williams, chairman of the County Soil Conservation Committee states that the sign up in Coryell County has progressed very satisfactorily, however, many farmers have not yet been signed up. The program is built strictly to aid the farmer to conserve and build up his soil and for that reason Mr. Williams urges each producer in the county to contact the committeeman of his district and secure full explanation of the program.

A Work Sheet should be filled out for every farm in Texas. We want to point out to Coryell County farmers that it is only good business for all farmers to turn in Work Sheets. It costs nothing, and does not obligate the farmer, but it does put him in position so he can always apply for a grant later if he finds that his farming practices for 1936 has made him eligible.

EMPLOYEE OF TEN YEARS HELPS OPEN NEW AUTO SUPPLY STORE HERE

J. H. Decker of the Western Auto Supply Company of Dallas arrived this week to assist W. T. Hix with the installation of fixtures and merchandise at the new Western Auto Supply Store at 604 Leon street, south side square, which will be open for business Saturday, May 16.

Mr. Decker has been with the company for almost ten years and can tell very interesting stories of its growth from the original one small store in Kansas City to the present chain of more than 170 stores in all principal cities of the United States.

He is also very enthusiastic about the future of the new store here which will be operated by Mr. Hix. These stores are all independently owned and operated, but handle all the well-known brands of merchandise of the company, and share in the price advantages made possible by the buying power of the organization.

Although the company has only started the associate stores a few months ago, there are already almost 110 operating, with plans on foot to make it possible for enterprising men to open up their own business of this kind in all of the many thriving business communities of Kansas and surrounding states.

NEW DEAL OUTPOINTS BOTH OLD GUARD AND INDEPENDENTS COMBINED.

And the election judges could have said, "and the down remains the same. Play Ball!"

Tuesday's City election results read, with a few alterations, from the allegedly "Independent" influence, the same as the regular election held on April 7, last. Here's the official count, as given out by City Assessor - Collector, Eiland Lovejoy:

Alderman, Ward 1
W. I. W. 2
R. L. (Bob) Saunders	146 225
Dr. Jno. T. Brown	77 135
F. F. (Fuzzy) Chamlee	54 54
Assessor - Collector
Eiland Lovejoy	211 272
Sherrill Kendrick	18 58
Jimmie Stevenson	8 12
Fred G. Prewitt	44 69

In checking the totals, Bob Saunders was elected by a majority of 151 votes over his two opponents, the score being, for Saunders 471, Brown 212, and Chamlee 108; total of Chamlee and Brown being 320.

In the Assessor-Collector's race, Lovejoy totalled 483 in both Wards, Kendrick 76, Stevenson 20, and Prewitt 209, giving Lovejoy a count of 65 votes more than twice as many as the other three received. A veritable New Deal landslide!

Reviewing the previous election, it can readily be seen that the above results were no fluke. For Mayor, Gandy received 348 votes in both wards, to Lowrey's 166.

In the Alderman's race, Ward 2 race, Routh got 289, Hamilton 176, Cunyus 33.

NEW RULINGS ON FARM PROGRAM AGTS. OFFICE

Oats may be harvested if followed by legumes only to the percent of cotton acreage diverted. Example: The producer desires to divert 20 per cent from his accepted cotton base and, therefore, may harvest oats from the number of acres represented by this 20 per cent, provided legumes are planted on the stubble.

County Agent Guy Powell urges each producer to be sure this point is clear before attempting to harvest oats from land which he desires to be listed as diverted acreage.

Sailing time of mail ships between England and South Africa is being reduced from 17 to 14 days.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

Discontent within both of the major parties is rife but no secession moves have been made as yet. The Republicans are divided sharply between liberalism, personified by Idaho's Senator Borah, and conservatism, of which former President Hoover and the Hilles crowd of New York are the leaders. Borah is carrying his fight for a liberal platform and liberal candidate to the people but within the party in opposition to the conservatives.

The reverse situation exists within the ranks of the Democrats, where the conservative element objects to the liberal tendencies of the first Democratic President since Woodrow Wilson. Many former leaders, including two former party standard bearers—Al Smith and James Cox—are in violent opposition to many of the policies of the President.

A schism within a party always results in the election going to the opposing party, the records show. The first example of this since the organization of the Democratic and Republican parties was in 1860, when the Southern wing of the Democratic party refused to accept Stephen Douglas of Illinois as their candidate, bolted the convention assembled at Baltimore following the nomination of Douglas, and nominated John C. Breckenridge of Kentucky at a new convention which met at Richmond. The election went to the Republicans as a result and one Abraham Lincoln entered the White House. Should the Democrats have nominated a candidate acceptable to both factions of the party, it is cenceivable that they might have won the election and prevented the Civil War.

"My hat is in the ring." The declaration of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 sounded a death knell for Republican chances of victory in that year. William Mowad Taft won the G. O. P. nomination with ease at Chicago, but "T. R." not to be daunted, organized his Progressive (Bull Moose) Party and ran independently. The Democrats won their first election since 1896 with Woodrow Wilson as their candidate.

These are the outstanding examples of where party defections have changed the course of history. Others too numerous to mention but of a lesser importance have occurred, as in 1896 when the question of free silver split the Democrats and deprived William Jennings Bryan of the presidency in his third party.

Just what would happen within the two major parties today should, for instances, the Republicans nominate Borah, and Roosevelt be re-nominated in opposition to the conservatives is a matter of much conjecture, with the conventions only a month or so hence.

In the presidential election of 1932, 40,721,806 Americans went to the polls to cast a ballot for Herbert Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt, or five minor candidates. Only 1,149,754 voted for one of the five candidates which they knew must go down to defeat.

In each national election since 1860, when the Democratic party was split over the choice of Stephen A. Douglas as its nominee, a number of minor parties have entered candidates. Seven political groups in addition to the Republicans and the Democrats are now preparing to take an active part in the political struggle of this year. The Socialists, Farmer-Laborites, Communists, Prohibitionists, Socialist-Laborites, and the American Commonwealth Party all seek the chief executiveship to further their political programs.

It is a significant fact that in 1932, in the midst of the greatest financial crisis the country has ever undergone, that the parties favoring a change in the system of government of this nation scarcely reached the million vote mark with their totals combined.

The Socialists, with Norman Thomas as their candidate, received 881,000 votes four years ago, considerably below their peak of 1,000,000 polled by Eugene V. Debs in 1912. The Communist vote totaled 102,785 in 1932, more than doubling the 48,000 total of 1928. None of the other minor parties polled 100,000 votes.

Rumors of other possible third parties composed of insurgent groups within the leading parties have proved to be without foundation. The main inspiration behind a third party was supplied by the late Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, who, before his assassination, was expected to lead a movement against President Roosevelt in the South.

Minnesota's Farmer-Labor Party and Wisconsin's Progressive Party both draw their support mainly from the farm belts.

The Hornets Nest

FINAL EDITION

The last three years have witnessed the emergence of Gatesville High School from a rather mediocre school of learning to a top ranking position among high schools of its size in the state.

At the close of 1935-1936's school year a review of the term shows it to have been a highly successful one in every respect. Enrollment for the high school is 392, which is 29 greater than last year. Two new bus routes were added this year to bring students from the rural communities of the county. Five new forty-passenger busses are now in operation, bringing in 125 students daily from the Jonesboro, Purmela, Plainview, Arnett, Ames, Ewing, Leon Junction communities.

Many useful improvements on the school building have been made this year or last summer in preparation for the new school year. A complete new science department was established with modern equipment and apparatus. The Vocational Agriculture Department was fitted out with equipment of its own.

Next year promises to be even more successful than the closing one. The new Junior High School building, to include the sixth, seventh, and eighth grade, will probably be completed in time for the opening of school in September, or soon thereafter. This will permit an enlargement of facilities in the high school for a better accommodation of the other three grades. The Elementary School, which will then include five grades, will be in a better position to provide for the increasing enrollment there. The new building will include a library, office, class rooms, basement, and garages for school busses.

The present school year found G. H. S. climbing to one of the top positions in football ratings for this district. Climaxing the season was a thrilling 6 to 0 win over the McGregor High Bulldogs at McGregor. The new football field located south of the square near Raby Park, will be ready for use next year. It will be lighted for night games and will have a seating capacity of several thousand.

With eight lettermen back and numerous squadmen back in addition to a number who will be playing their first year, G.H.S. is looking forward to its best year on the gridiron in a decade. The popular and able young coaches who guided the destiny of the team last year will again be at the helm next year in the persons of Earle Worley and Maurice Ewing.

Junior-Senior Banquet

The annual Junior-Senior banquet will be held at the gymnasium tonight, May 15, at 8:00. The program committee of the Junior class arranged the following:

Welcome to Seniors, John R. Colgin.

Response, Erle Powell.
Junior Trio, Belva McCoy, Nelle Goodall, Bertha Stewart.
Reading, Miss Lawrence.

Melody of Texas Songs, Jack Reising.

Texas Songs, Jack Pearson.
The Roundup, Edwin McDonald.

The Juniors are preparing plates for about 160. Fifteen Sophomore girls have been selected to serve. The Juniors are working hard to make it the best banquet ever presented.

Sport Shots

The spring training for the Hornets has been discontinued for this season. The coaches worked and scrimmaged the candidates for several hours and these sessions should prove valuable next season.

The Hornet schedule for next season is as follows:

Sept. 25, Moody at Gatesville, (night game).

Oct. 2, Bruceville - Eddy at Gatesville (night game).

Oct. 9, Valley Mills, at Valley Mills.*

Oct. 16, Clifton, at Gatesville, (night game).*

Oct. 23, Mart, at Gatesville, (night game).*

Oct. 30, West at West.*

Nov. 6, Mount Calm, at Gatesville, (night game).*

Nov. 11, Hamilton, at Hamilton.

Nov. 28, McGregor, at Gatesville.*

(* denotes conference game).

All the teams, with the exception of Mount Calm, were played in 1935. There will be six conference games and four of them will be played at home. The officials showed good judgment when the Mart game site was changed to Mart the past season. This means the Hornets will meet then on home soil this season and under the lights. Both coaches were reelected and will be directing the grid destinies of the Hornets for another term.

The new stadium will be ready for use by September and will be dedicated September 25. At that time the wearers of the Black and Gold will meet the Moody Bearcats.

In their announcement to the press, the coaching staff stated that the prospects for a successful season were extremely good. When a coach puts out information like that, it means that he is highly optimistic and the chances for a champion eleven next season is not improbable.

Goodwill Picnic Sponsored by Future Farmers

A large number of boys and girls gathered in Raby Park Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock for the general purpose of having a good time. The picnickers included the faculty members, Future Farmers, Home Economics girls, and friends of the students.

The time was spent in playing various games until Mr Lasseter called "Come and get it!" The students then stepped forward to receive their share of hot dogs, marshmallows, and iced tea.

The real purpose of this picnic was to have a last gathering of the Future Farmers before closing of school, and to give students who will attend this school next year an idea of what the F. F. A. is like. There were students from ten different schools present.

The History of Coryell County

By FRANK E. SIMMONS

Authorized by County Commissioners, as Official History for Texas Centennial Celebration.

RICHARD G. GRANT, FATHER OF GATESVILLE

One of the most conspicuous figures in the early settlement of Coryell County was Richard G. Grant. He was born in Tennessee, where he early engaged in business, moving to Mississippi. In 1848 he moved to Red River County, Texas, and a short time later he moved down into Rusk County. In 1850 he moved to Peugh Branch in Coryell County, and a short time afterward on up to Fort Gates. He brought the first herds of cattle and hogs to the county, consisting of 700 cattle and 200 hogs. Many of these he sold to the Government for use of the soldiers then stationed at Fort Gates.

Mr. Grant established a trading house near Fort Gates soon after his arrival in the county. In 1853 he moved to what later became known as Stillhouse Creek, within the present confines of Gatesville. Here he established his trading house and a whisky still. Nearby on the Leon River he built a brush dam to furnish the power with which he operated a sawmill, which for years did a thriving business.

When time came to locate and establish a seat for the newly organized county, Mr. Grant's liberal offer of town site and money was accepted, and Gatesville became the county capital. Mr. Grant was liberal in donations for the establishment of a public school.

The first mercantile business firm in the new town was that of Alsop and Grant. The business thrived and Mr. Grant's business activities was extended to other counties. Mills were established in Bosque and McLennan counties. Merchandise was brought from the coast and centers in East Texas by ox wagon.

At one time Mr. Grant served Gatesville as Postmaster, and the county as Treasurer.

Mr. Grant died in 1858, leaving his name stamped permanently in the annals of Coryell County. Walter Grant, a grandson, now resides in Gatesville and owns a considerable part of his illustrious Grandfather's estate. It is doubtful whether any other pioneer contributed more to the development of early progress of Coryell County than did R. G. Grant.

EARLY PIONEER CUSTOMS

By B. L. MONTGOMERY

(Author's Note—The following letter to Mrs. J. P. Kendrick written by a man who has lived in the County all his life is so illustrative of the early pioneer customs that we reproduce it just as written in the words and expressions that lend color to those early day customs.)

Dear Mrs. Kendrick,

Yours of Feb. 19, asking for some pioneer history of Coryell County to hand. My father was one of the first settlers, coming to Fort Gates in 1853. He lived in Fort Gates until the county was organized in 1854, and in Gatesville for several years. He later took up a homestead on Plum Creek near where Levita is located. I was born there in 1862, the 2nd year of the Civil War. When I was 4 years old he moved to Camp Branch where Fred Rattan now lives. I can remember that move.

This country was a wilderness. The Indians came in almost every light moon and stole horses, and after the war things were demoralized. There was very little settled until 1872.

There were no churches but there were some local Methodist and Baptist preachers who held services at times, mostly in private homes, and there was a Methodist Missionary who looked after some 6 or 8 counties. I can remember my first church service. I think I was 4 years old when a neighbor took his family and my father's family, or part of them. I think I was a little embarrassed, as I wasn't used to seeing so many people (I think there were 12 or 15 present). After a time a man stood up and was talking. I was sitting by my mother and I began talking too. My mother gave me a hard look and told me to hush, and I could see she meant it, so I hushed, but I couldn't see why I shouldn't talk when the other fellow kept on. I guess I believed in personal liberty. We came home in the evening the heel flies got after the oxen and they ran away. The wagon climbed saplings and the driver used some language I hadn't heard before, so the day was impressed on my mind.

Our closest neighbor, Mark Short, was a ranchman. He would round up his cattle in the Spring and brand the calves. As he came in the herd would be more than a mile long. It took 8 or 10 hands to hold them. Most of the cattle were wild and hard to handle. Mr. Short would herd them and pen them at night for several weeks. The cattle ranged over two or three counties.

The first settlers in this section hunted for a spring of water and built near the spring, clearing up a few acres for garden and a patch of corn.

People's hogs ran at large and would fatten on acorns. These hogs were wild razorbacks and would dress from 125 to 150 pounds at one to two years old. Most people would pen them and feed them on corn for few weeks as it made the meat better. The settlers would pen and milk any cows they could find, and the owners said it made the cows and calves gentler. The grass grew 2 to 4 feet high all over the hills and valleys and was burned off in the spring.

No one seemed to think it would ever be a farming country, but almost everyone plowed up a few acres for a garden and a corn patch. The corn was used for bread and to feed the saddle horses in winter.

About 1868 a log school house was built on Camp Branch. It was called the Montgomery School house and was used for school purposes for 6 or 8 years and there I got my education. The school term was three months long, I think. I attended 4 terms. It was called a subscription school, each pupil paying (in this case) $1.50 per month. My education didn't cost Texas a dime. We never had teachers who could teach arithmetic further than decimal fractions, and we had 3 to 5 spelling lessons each day. We did not learn much else, but we did learn to spell.

The first houses were built of logs. A great many of them were one room, but there were some rather comfortable log houses with 4 to 6 rooms. There were three houses built of lumber in this section, the lumber being hauled by ox wagons from Calvert, which was our nearest railroad town.

Our county began to settle pretty fast in 1872. Up to that time there had been no cotton raised here, but after that time we began to raise it. The land was fresh and there were no insects to bother, so we raised big crops. One bale per acre was very common. At first we had to haul a long distance to have it ginned but in a short time we had gins near us. The first gins were run by horse-power, with a capacity of from 5 to 8 bales per day. At first we made two trips to haul one bale of seed cotton to the gin. Not that our teams couldn't pull that much, but our wagons wouldn't hold it, and then some genius thought to make the wagon beds larger. For several years the cotton was marketed at Waco. A trip requiring 4 or 5 days with ox wagons for each. The farms were fenced with rails and rock at first.

After the Cotton Belt railroad built to Gatesville our county settled and developed rapidly. The invention and introduction of barbed wire and the use of well drills meant a lot to the development of our county.

THREE GREAT STARS JOIN IN DRAMA OF ADVENTURE

Wallace Beery—Barbara Stanwick—John Boles. These three great stars, together for the first time, enact their greatest roles in 20th Century's roistering, romantic "A Message to Garcia," the picture coming tomorrow (Saturday) to the Palace Theatre.

Inspired by Elbert Hubbard's immortal essay, the picture has a plot written about one of history's most fascinating exploits.

Boles is the man who carries the message to Garcia in the jungle interior, a message that will change the destinies of three nations. For a companion, he takes Wallace Beery, an amusing rogue who is half traitor, half hero.

When they discover that the man who was to guide them to Garcia has been killed, they take his daughter, Barbara Stanwick, to show them the way.

Hardship, peril, adventure, faced together in the treacherous jungle, draw Boles and Miss Stanwick to each other. But, when she is wounded Boles carries on bravely with his mission, leaving her behind in the care of Beery.

The taut and nerve-scraping climax of the picture approaches when Beery reappears and leads Boles into what he mistakenly thinks is Garcia's camp, actually the stronghold of Boles' enemies.

A heroic charge led by Beery frees Boles from the clutches of his captors, makes possible the rejoining of the lovers and brings to a happy close.

SUMMER SPORTS

BROUGHT TO YOU

BY TRUMAN BLANTON

NEWS' SPORTS EDITOR

Softball

In the opening games of the season Tuesday evening the Merchants and Firemen won over the Blues and the Reds respectively.

In the first game the Merchants won by a score of 9-4. Save for one bad inning at which time the Camp team had a brain storm, the game was well played and very close. Ivey was in the box to start the game for the winners and was replaced by Sasse near the end, while the receiving was taken care of by Gilbreath. For the Blues, McFarland caught and Grisam toiled on the mound. McFarland, first man up in the first inning for the Blues hit a home run while McDonald duplicated the stunt for the Merchants later on in the game.

The second game, which went only 4 innings because of the time, saw the Firemen shellac the Reds 12-2.

Ray tossed for the smoke eaters while Miller worked behind the plate. Yoas was the losing pitcher and Franks handled his efforts. Yoas had difficulty in finding the plate the first inning and walked in enough runs to enable the winners to coast in.

offerings in the third inning and slammed it out for a triple.

Tonight in the first game, the Whites tackle the Reds while Doc's crew plays the CCC Blues.

When this was written the results of Thursday's games were unknown, but will appear in Tuesday's issue, as will be the case each week.

Hornet Football Schedule Completed for Coming Season

The Gatesville High School football schedule for the approaching season has been completed. Out of the nine games scheduled, six are to be played on the local gridiron with five of the six to be played under the lights. Mount Calm, a team never before on the local's schedule, will be played here Nov. 6.

The schedule is as follows, with * denoting conference game:

- Sept. 25, Moody, at Gatesville, night game.
- Oct. 2, Bruceville-Eddy, at Gatesville, night game.
- *Oct. 9, Valley Mills, at Valley Mills.
- *Oct. 16, Clifton at Gatesville, night game.
- *Oct. 23, Mart at Gatesville, night game.
- *Oct. 30, West, at West.
- Nov. 6, Mount Calm, at Gatesville, night game.
- Nov. 11, Hamilton at Hamville. The schedule maker is to be complimented on his arrangement of games, as the number of home games is rather unusual when you consider the number of games played here last season.

Baseball Banter

County League reports of last week's games came in better this week, but we still failed to hear from some of the managers so the team standings are still incomplete.

(and does Jack Hearn like honey!) Al Dickie's party wasn't entertaining. Frances McCoy and Mike Woodall were welded in fun Saturday night. (Just after Mike had taken his bath.) Johnny Post will squire Jean Patillo to the delayed Freshman party and Orunalong

Joe Satterfield thinks next season's grid team is the '36 district champs. (Champs or caumps?) John Frank had the role of a sissy in the Freshman play and he's the chap responsible for the Ethiopian orbs of Earl Scott. It jusgoestoshoyuh Tribble Campbell hasn't been absent or tardy since she started to school. Anybody with a record like that deserves the title of "Old Faithful." Nomination for the best speaker of the year in GHS—Mrs. Dawson. And Tommie Robinson squired the little Wiegand gal at the banquet. Neal Chapman chaperoned Arlene Bates. Perry Hale, J. C. A lad in the triple C is now singing "Margie, I'm always thinking of you, Margie!" (It's a lot to think about, eh, Miss Flentge?) Dave Culberson dropped a 25 pound boulder on Milly Gandy's toe last Sabbath. (It would have been less inurious if it had been her head.) The Press Club may publish their own paper next semester. Miss Worthy may not be the English instructor in GHS next semester. She's displaying a diamond which means she may be cooking the meals of an attorney. Miss Durham divides her time between the dentist and the banker. She prays for a toothache and pay day. Wonder why Jane Thomson is being so nice to Miss Kinsey. We thought she was interested in Coach Ewing. Miss Carlil has a heart of stainless steel. (She's flunking us on plane geometry). Brack Curry seems to be absorbed in Mound. Maybe Mound, but her initials are A. B. Sara McCall (shesa Latin from Temple) terrified Miss Kinsey by throwing spit-balls. The reelection of all teachers was not just a little surprising. We wonder if Miss Kinsey wasn't humming, "I've got my fingers crossed," when she gave Dot Franks that fatal detention hall. Miss Durham, bless her little heart, butchered our column this year. We've tried to make this column interesting this year, and those who like it and have said so, thank you. To those who have criticized—well, you don't matter anyway!

PROMINENT PREACHER DIES
WEDNESDAY, MAY 13

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock, at the Jonesboro Baptist Church for Rev. Benjamin Franklin White, who passed away Wednesday morning at 2:15, at his home in Jonesboro. Rev. C. A. Morton, and Revs' C. L. Conoly and A. Loper conducted the services. Burial followed in the Jonesboro Cemetery.

Benjamin Franklin White, son of Rev. and Mrs. A. H. White, was born October 6, 1855, in Belton. At the age of fourteen he was converted and baptized into the Baptist church by his father. On December 2, 1889 he was married to Miss Mary Aharp of Hamilton county. To this union were born three children.

He was ordained to preach by the Levita Baptist Church on March 12, 1893. Practically all of his ministerial work was in Coryell and Hamilton counties. He had been pastor at Turnersville, Jonesboro, Blue Ridge, Mt. View, Agee, and Arnett. Rev. White was moderator of the Leon River Baptist Association for eleven years. He was a member of the Baptist Church for 66 years and an ordained minister for 43 years.

Truly one of the greatest Baptist preachers who has labored for 43 years in Hamilton and Coryell counties has passed away.

He is survived by his widow and three children: N. O. White of Kilgore, W. F. White of Terrell, and Mrs. Rosa Thompson; one brother, A. H. White of Waco, and one sister, Mrs. W.

J. Jones. Pall bearers were the deacons of the Jonesboro Baptist Church. Members from the churches Rev. White had served as pastor were present.

THANKS VOTERS

To the Voters of Gatesville: Thank You! Thanks to each and every one who gave me your unstinted support in the recent city election. To each of you I promise to merit your confidence by making you the best officer within my power during the tenure of this position.

Sincerely yours,
Eiland Lovejoy,
City Assessor-Collector.

GATESVILLE SCHOOLS RATE WELL ACCORDING TO STATE DEPT.

A report from the State Department of Education, following a recent visit by Mr. L. J. Garner, Deputy State Superintendent, is complimentary to the Gatesville schools. The report carried only one request, the raising of teachers' salaries, and that request was honored by the Board of Trustees at its last meeting.

Commendations offered in the report included a "well-managed school system and a good faculty." The report also gave notice of an increase in the list of affiliated subjects carried by the high school by the addition of one-half unit in typewriting to make that course now offer a full unit of credit. Latin American History was dropped from the curriculum last year and credit was requested. One and one-half units of credit have been allowed by the Vocational Agriculture Department for first year agriculture which is being taught as a new course this year. General home economics will also be affiliated this year. With the 29 units now held by this school the total affiliation will be 32½ units at the close of this year.

Marks of progress as shown by the Gatesville schools during recent years are the extension of the curriculum to include public speaking, vocational agriculture and a full commercial course, the construction of a gymnasium-auditorium and home economics department, the addition of five bus routes to transport high school students, the construction of a modern lighted athletic field, repair and reconditioning of all buildings, overhauling the science department, purchase of typewriters for the typing department, improvement of libraries and extensive work in the curriculum revision program. The school is in a good financial condition, due to good management of the school board.

County School Board Elects Officers And Trustees for Ensuing Year

The Coryell County School Board met on May 4th, in regular session. A. T. Humes of Turnersville was elected president for the school year 1936-1937. Other members present were S. A. Turner, Copperas Cove, H. E. Huckabee, Ireland, C. R. Graham, Oglesby and B. E. Morgan of Jonesboro.

The following trustees were appointed for Hubbard, No. 36: M. L. Tippet and J. D. Burgess. Mr. Taylor Young was appointed as trustee for Mount Zion district No. 81. Many other matters were discussed but since information must be had on them they were passed over to a call meeting or to the regular June meeting which will take place on Monday, June 1, at 2:00 p. m.

School matters that call for attention of the school board should be presented at this time.

Annual County Trustees Meeting will be held at 10:30 a. m. on June 1, if other arrangements are not announced in the meantime. Trustees where possible should be represented by members at this meet. Problems concerning all may be discussed. An understanding of school programs make it possible for all to work together for the best of all concerned.

CIVIL SERVICE TRAGEDIES

By J. E. Jones

Washington, D. C., May 14—It is estimated that more than a hundred political jobs are distributed through the political spoils system to every one position filled by the Federal Civil Service. Mr. Farley says that the Administration "hasn't time to wait" for the Civil Service and as the merit system has faded the spoilsmen have grabbed off Government jobs by the tens of thousands.

"On every front the spoilsmen are pushing forward," says the official publication of the Federal Employee. "The hordes of job seekers are being accommodated," it observes, and adds: "The pressure for jobs and the attitude of cynical indifference assumed in high places with respect to the Civil Service has made the situation more critical with the passage of time."

In his History of the American people, Woodrow Wilson traces the struggle to establish the Civil Service in the administration of President Garfield. First, he describes the political spoils system as follows:

"Worked out through its detail of local bosses, senatorial and congressional influence, personal favors, the placating of enemies and the full satisfaction of friends, it must always menace the successful party." Then he relates that Guiteau, the assassin, had said that "he fired shots for stalwarts that Arthur, their friend, might be President; and those murderous shots still rang in the ear of the country like a startling confirmation of all that the advocates of civil service reform had said. In August, 1881, while the President lay dying, various local associations which had been formed to agitate the question of the reform of the Civil Service were drawn together," and they formed the National Civil Reform League, through whose efforts the Civil Service law was enacted by Congress. Thus, as a direct result of the assassination of President Garfield the Civil Service system was established. Now the National Civil Service Reform League, speaks again to the American people, and here is a part of its writing:

"Spoils raids have been made in the guise of economy, and pay cuts, payless furloughs, layoffs and the loss of the security one believed to be the perquisite of public employment have left the morale of the rank and file at low ebb."

CENTENNIAL TRAIN WORTH $100,000,000 TO TEXAS IN TRIP EAST

Dallas, May 14. The Texas Centennial Special Train was worth $100,000,000 in ultimate benefits to Texas in its triumphant tour through the East and middle West, eminent economists estimated today as reports of its unprecedented success continued to pour in from many states. The train, bearing Governor James V. Allred, the University of Texas Longhorn Band, and fifty prominent Texans, returned to the Lone Star State late last week after a tour which extended through seventeen major cities of the country.

It was freely declared that no state has ever been the beneficiary of so much favorable publicity in such a brief space of time. The Texas party was accorded a rousing reception by the press throughout the country, and more than twenty-five radio broadcasts, several over national and regional networks, were crowded into the eventful ten days elapsing between the

UNICAMERAL LEGISLATURE EXPLAINED

BY SENATOR G. H. NELSON

ARTICLE VI THE PROPOSED BILL

It is my proposal that we shall take the Congressional Districts of this State as they were created according to the 1930 Federal census and elect from each of these, two men, each for a four year term, one to be elected each two years, thus creating a one-house Legislature with forty-two members.

By doing this we will eliminate the cost of re-districting this State by the Legislature which has not been done since 1920, and which, according to the constitution of Texas, should have been done in 1930. In this manner each section of our State will be proportionately represented according to population, thereby giving to the cities and to the rural districts as well, their equal representation.

This system would provide a longer term for all of its members, thereby giving recognition to training and experience within the office, and at the same time would provide an opportunity for the people to speak every two years their mandates to both of their representatives.

Those two men being elected from the same territory by the same people will serve as a check and balance so much desired by the opponents of this plan. This would make a small deliberative body, and yet would strike a medium between both of our two houses as they now exist.

I propose further that each member shall be paid not less than $5,000 per year, and that each member shall be prohibited from taking employment from any person, firm or corporation during the tenure of his office, thereby compelling him to give his full time and his best efforts to his constituency as a whole. With the constitutional per diem of $10 per day for the days that the Legislature is in session, which amounts to $50 per month for your Legislators, are you to censure them if they, from necessity, are compelled to take employment from various interests, such as will and does influence them in their vote upon the various questions which arise in the Legislature? Can you expect to secure from your citizenship, men who are capable and anxious to render a public service to their people, to make such a sacrifice?

There are those who have said to me that they thought I was proposing a plan which consummated a saving to the people instead of increasing the costs of our Legislatures. In answer to this, I give you the following figures: For the 42nd Legislature there was spent for salaries of your Legislators $402,842.34; for traveling expenses of such men $47,123.27. The total cost for forty-two men at $5,000 per year for each two-year period would be $420,000. Then after allowing the same traveling expenses for each of these forty-two men as is now allowed for each of the One hundred and eighty-one men, we would have a clear balance for each two year period of approximately $10,000 from salary and expense fund alone.

My proposition likewise calls for one continuous term of the Legislature for each two-year period. This does not mean that the Legislature shall stay in session all the time, but that they may meet with or without the call of the Governor of this State, at such time as needed for further carrying on the business of this State, and when they do convene, that they shall stay in session, not for an arbitrary time, which permits the crowding of legislation to the last minute of the session thereby encouraging filibustering and the passage of hasty laws, but until their work shall be efficiently concluded.

There are those who say, let's wait and see what Nebraska does. Is this a good reason for waiting?

If the argument of the opposition is sound, then we should never adopt such a system, but on the other hand, if the conclusions herein drawn and the facts herein stated cannot be successfully disputed (then why should we wait for anyone. The general public throughout this State favor this proposition—saying if the people could only get a vote on the question there is no doubt but that the same would be adopted.

There is one way of securing the adoption of this proposal in Texas, and that is that two-thirds of the members of the House and of the Senate shall vote to submit to the people of Texas a constitutional amendment for their approval or disapproval after the regular session of the 45th Legislature. You can now discuss with your prospective Legislators who are now running for such positions their views with reference to this question, thereby letting them know what your desires in this regard may be.

If the people of this State desire to have this form of Legislature, then what Legislator is there who has the right to say to his constituent that he will not vote upon this proposition.

HOIST BITTER RACKET

A hoist-bitter is someone whose specialty is falling out of elevators.

One day, into the building where the girl had found new employment, walked the black moustached man, accompanied by a male companion. They got into another elevator. Quickly the girl went to the starter, told him she'd take that car. In it, beside the two men, was a movie cameraman. At the ninth floor the three stepped off.

Watch your step!" said the girl. Clinto's companion went stumbling to the floor!

"Gray that one!" yelled the girl, pointing at Clinto, and the cameraman obeyed. A policeman arrived. The man on the floor groaned. When an ambulance surgeon arrived, he made the interesting discovery that the leg which the man said had been injured by his fall was already bandaged.

Clinto got a ten-year stretch in Sing-Sing. The girl got a raise.

the girl was dismissed. She obtained another elevator job in a theatrical office and she didn't forget the man with the black moustache. What she didn't know was that meanwhile the officials of the Index Bureau System also grew suspicious of Jack Clinto.

HEALTH — LIFE — ACCIDENT

COMFORT

It is a part of the job of every man and woman to maintain comfort for home and family, to look into the future as well as provide for the present. A man may be a good provider, but if he has not taken care to insure for the days to come he has missed a big point in a very important job. It is a natural reaction to work hard from day to day, to strive toward a high place in the community, a spot in the limelight. It is a natural inclination to get ahead. But the job doesn't stop there. The lean days that might come in the future must also be taken into consideration. They MAY come.

SYNOPSIS

Scornful of a bloody feud that exists between the Tolliver and Falin clans in the Kentucky mountains, Martin Reed, young city engineer, arrives to build a railroad over their properties. En route to the Tolliver home, Reed meets June, Judd Tolliver's daughter, when he rescues her from a mud-hole. Later he performs an emergency operation on Dave Tolliver, June's fiance, and gets in the good graces of the Tollivers. He succeeds in signing up the Falins also. As the railroad gets under way, complications arise because Dave is jealous of June's attentions to Reed.

CHAPTER V

DAVE thought better of his idea to ask June what Martin Reed meant to her but he became more and more disturbed as he noticed her daily visits to the railroad camp. The girl, however, was having the time of her life bedeviling the big engineer. She hung around his cabin

"Woman, you're a nut," he said. "Good! I like that," she replied. "Bein' a woman, I mean. Up till now you been sayin' I was a girl."

"I'm not trying to hurt your feelings," he continued in a milder tone. "I think you're a swell girl but if you were ever in a city once—just once—you'd understand what I mean. I'm talking for your good and Dave's. Yes, and your father and mother too. I'll take what you told me yesterday: None of you could read that check. But from now on Dave and your father will be getting letters repeatedly. Don't you see?"

"I ain't goin' to no town to school," her tone was sullen. As she spoke the telephone rang. "Hello—hello!" answered Martin. "Reed talking, operator . . . Lewis? What's on your mind, partner? What? . . . You're talking silly! I can't be away from this job for a month . . . Yeh . . . Yeh . . . But . . . Did you tell Overton . . . Yes, I suppose so . . . Okay. I'll leave in an

"Oh, I talked to Dave," lied the girl as she saw triumph ahead. "He says it's a mighty fine idea." And she dashed into her room to pack. When Dave arrived home from his farm work that night and discovered what had happened his face went white with fury.

"'Course June didn't talk to me," he grated. "It was him that done it! Him that said he was our friend. That's why he give us money. He took her away! He's been wantin' to take her away but he was afeered. He thinks now maybe the money'll keep us from tellin' him that we're up here don't let nobody take our women." He turned to the fireplace and pulled down his rifle.

"Where you a-goin'?" asked Judd, although he knew well enough. "Huntin'" was the bitter response.

Meantime June had waited best—the road to Gaptown until Martin passed by in his wagon, and he had, of course, picked her up, although he was much surprised at the way she had suddenly fallen in with his suggestion.

"Now see here," he expostulated. "I meant what I said to you about getting an education . . . sincerely meant it. But you're up to something phoney—people don't just get an idea and then go."

"You ever stand under a fallin' tree or watch a pole-cat back up?" she inquired meekly.

"That's not funny. What did your father say about it? And Dave?" "They was most agreeable . . . specially Dave. He said, when the checks start a-comin' in . . ."

"I said that." "All right—I'll walk," June started to jump from the wagon but Martin pulled her into the seat. A faint smile of triumph crossed her face as she settled back primly and rode on in silence.

hour." He slammed down the receiver.

"Well, June, it looks like . . ." he began. But the girl, suddenly realizing that her hero was planning to leave the Ridge, had fled. Martin watched her dashing wildly down the path toward home and shook his head in puzzlement.

Arriving at her log cabin, June immediately started her campaign to be allowed to go to school in the valley.

"The mount'ins is good enough fer us," Judd objected angrily . . .

"They're good enough fer you too. You ain't goin' to no town. The idea. Gettin' close to marryin' time an' wantin' to go to school. If you say another word I'll get my razor strop and fix you proper."

"You kin use it till the blood comes, but I won't change my mind," cried the girl. "You an' your mount'ins ain't goin' to make no dried-up cornstalk out o' me. I . . . I'm goin' to think. I'm goin' a-be smart and help David when all them checks come traipsin' in. I'm not goin' to be jus' a cull, like mammy."

"June!" thundered her father, jumping to his feet.

"She knows what I'm drivin' at," June turned to her mother and kissed her tenderly. "She jus' stayed here and got old and dried up."

"I was born old," sighed Melissa pathetically.

"Listen, June child," Judd was considerably chastened. "I ain't no mean father. If Dave says it's right fer you to go to town, go ahead."

Dave arrived at the railroad camp and questioned Thurber but the latter swore that June had not left camp with Martin. Convinced that the Englishman was lying, Dave started out of the tent en route for Gaptown. But at the door he met Wade Falin, who had seen his enemy enter the camp and had come "a-gunnin'" for him.

Dave dived under the other's rifle barrel and they came to grips while the railroad workers left their shovels, spades and muleteams to run up and watch the fight. Tater, the minstrel, also crowded in.

The Tolliver fought with deadly ferocity and Wade was no match for his flailing fists. Finally the latter started to retreat.

"Take my women, will he?" gritted Dave as he knocked his enemy to the ground. "I'll git 'im! . . . I'll go down an' git 'im! I'll break 'im in two!" Suiting the action to the word, he raised his foot and brought it down on Wade's arm. The latter screamed in agony as the bone snapped. Dave paid no attention but stalked blackly away.

"I'm quittin', Mr. Thurber," said Tater as soon as the fight was over. "If this fight gets to town afore I tell it Jinkins, the blacksmith, 'll lambast the hide offen me. I sort o' promised to tell him things."

"But it's over. There's nothin' to tell him," cried his boss.

"Biggest fight o' the year—the one comin' up. Wouldn't miss it."

"My goodness!" Thurber saw the light as he dashed for the 'phone.

Fourth Grade

The Fourth Grade pupils have just completed a contest which proved to be very interesting. The girls made doll dresses and the boys, airplanes. First place for the airplanes was won by the last meeting, and the club has decided to learn something about him. Billie Mac Ritchie, president of the club, brought some interesting newspaper articles about nature, which were read to the group. The bird calls were given by Dilbert Williams and Monroe McCorkie, and the members of the club guessed what they were.

Junior Orchestra

The Junior Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Diserens, presented a very interesting program before the fifth, sixth, and seventh grades Tuesday. Jimmy Dick Thomas, and Lee Etta Hopson won first place for the doll dresses.
