

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

The address of Colonel Frank Knox at Chicago accepting the Republican vice presidential nomination so far overshadowed that of Governor Landon at the Topeka notification ceremonies in forcefulness of delivery, clearness of thought, and appeal to the man of the street that Knox is scheduled to carry the burden of radio and stump speaking throughout the campaign with Landon making a few key addresses in certain sections of the country.

Knox, at Chicago, left not a vulnerable spot of the New Deal Administration untouched nor did he fail to set forth in straightforward simplicity the aims and policies which the Republican administration would pursue should the ticket be elected in November.

The radio appeal of Knox was especially convincing and with a little more assurance the Chicago publisher might rival Roosevelt with his fireside addresses.

As a result of appearances in New England and in the Middle West, Governor Landon will conduct a front-porch campaign similar to the first McKinley campaign, when the nominee remained at home, receiving delegations and making addresses to visitors, while large group of speakers spread the gospel of the party to the nation at large.

"Hysterical experiments," "a campaign of abuses and vilification of business," "regimentation in industry," "coercion of Congress," "regimentation of agriculture," were typical phrases of the Knox barrage. A blast was made at the Democratic charge of a "reactionary" Republican platform formulated at Cleveland when the vice-presidential candidate said the Republican party recognizes changing social economic conditions call for increased Federal activities.

"The issue before the country is the preservation of free enterprise. On this issue, the Republican party appeals to the whole people," he said. "The Republican party does promise a fair and honest Government. It does promise that the Government will be as economical and efficient as it can be made. It does promise to make every effort to install sensible and practical measures to help in the solution of the problems of trade and industry and agriculture, the problems of poverty and insecurity."

The speakers' bureau of the Democratic National Committee, of which Representative Sam Rayburn of Bonham is chairman, will blanket the Nation with from 2,000 to 3,000 speakers, including Senators, Governors, Representatives, Ambassadors, and Cabinet members.

In each of the Nation's 3,000 counties Democratic county chairmen will direct the activities of workers for the "case" and the national committee will provide an adequate compliment of speakers.

At least two prominent Texans, Senator Tom Connally and Governor Allred, will speak for the ticket, probably in the Midwestern States where Landon is particularly strong.

The party's sixty-eight Representatives in the upper house of Congress in addition to the 41 Democratic Governors will carry on an intensive campaign not only in their own States and among their own constituency but also in neighboring States.

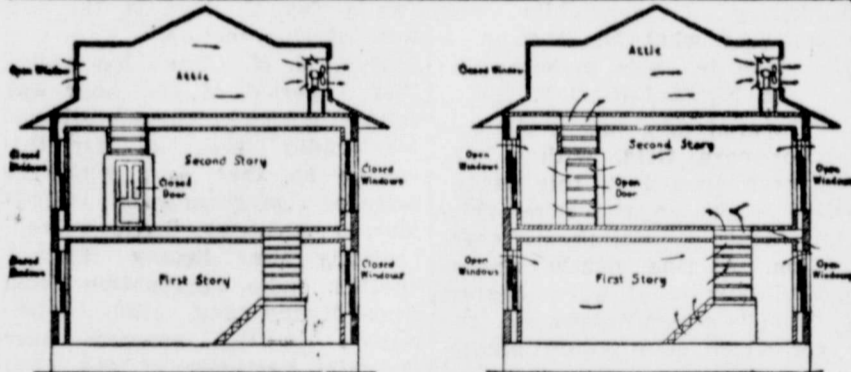

A special appeal will be made to the foreign vote, in particular that of the negroes. The national committee will have a bureau of distributing information in foreign languages in Chicago, and a bureau to work among Negro voters in that section. Representative Arthur W. Mitchell, of the First Congressional District of Illinois, the only colored member in Congress, will direct the activities of the committee.

The National Committee expects to raise $2,000,000 as a war-chest to carry on the fight for the re-election of President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner. Republicans will have campaign funds estimated at from $3,000,000 to $12,000,000.

Practical Hints On How To Make Your Climate To Order

Simple regard for attic temperatures makes all the difference between comfort and discomfort in the rest of the house.

AN engineering discovery of peculiarly timely value to millions who will perspire through the next few months is illustrated in the above diagram. This discovery directs attention to the attic in a house, as a means of keeping the entire house more comfortable in temperature.

The attic, being the enclosed part of a house most exposed to the beating rays of the sun, is naturally the hot spot. You know how the heat strikes you when you go upstairs on a baking July or August day. Good tactics obviously tell you that if you can do something to cool the attic, the rest of the house will benefit.

Placing so simple a device as an air circulator in an open attic window helps markedly, the General Electric Air Conditioning Institute points out. This is basically a fan, built to move air silently and with high efficiency. It runs on standard electric current. Put it in front of the window so that it blows air out. In the daytime, when the attic is hotter than outside temperatures, close the door leading down to the house, but leave the window open on the other side of the attic from the air circulator. Thus, it moves the heated air out of the attic and heat leakage to the lower floors is minimized.

In the evening and at night, when it is cooler outside, open the door up to the attic, close the attic window opposite the air circulator, and open the windows on lower floors. The circulator, moving air out of the attic, draws the cooler outside air up through the house. This simple procedure can make all the difference between comfort and discomfort.

MAKING GRAPE JUICE IN THE HOME

(As suggested by Miss Sidney Gale Gibson)

This is the harvest season for grapes. The juice, either fresh or bottled, is a refreshing and festive beverage.

According to J. F. Rosborough Extension Horticulturist, the accepted method of extracting the juice involves:

Wash the grapes and crush into aluminum, wooden or earthenware vessel. Do not use tin, iron, or steel containers.

Heat the crushed grapes to 160 degrees F. with constant stirring. Extract the juice by straining or pressing. Filter the juice through a cotton flannel bag. Pour into bottles, filling them to necks.

Pasteurize pints 30 minutes, quarts 35 minutes, gallons 60 minutes. Lay bottles on sides after removing them from the water bath to test for leaks and to sterilize caps.

Place in cool, dark location until all settling has taken place (4 to 8 months). If perfectly clear juice is desired, uncap bottles, filter, rebottle, and pasteurize.

A bushel of grapes will yield about 2 gallons of juice.

Stone from the houses of parliament in England will be sent to Ceylon for use in the new state council building.

STUMPIN' THE STATE

With the Spectator

Few changes in the organizations of the Democratic and Republicans are expected at their State conventions this year. August 11 the Republicans will meet in San Antonio and the Democrats will meet at a now undetermined site Sept. 8.

The Democratic convention will go through the formality of nominating candidates for state offices, although the nominees will those chosen at the July 25 and August 22 primaries. Will Allred administrator returned to power, the State Committee will remain intact in so far as known. Myron G. Blalock of Marshall will continue as state chairman. The National Democratic Committeeman is Vice President John Nance Garner and the National Democratic Committeewoman is Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier of Corpus Christi. Vann M. Kennedy of Austin will be retained as Secretary of the State Democratic Committee.

R. B. Creager was reelected at the National Republican Convention as Republican National Committeeman from Texas. The Republican Committeewoman is Mrs. Lena Gay Moore of Brownsville. A change in the State leadership will be made, necessitated by the illness of T. P. Lee of Houston, State Chairman. Other officers of the Republican State Executive Committee are Dr. F. L. Thomas of San Antonio, treasurer; Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, general counsel; John W. Philips, director of organization. Bullington and Philip are former Republican nominees for Governor.

The Republican convention will nominate a slate of candidates in convention to oppose the nominees of the two Democratic primaries. John Grant, Houston lumberman, is in line for the gubernatorial nomination. Orville Bullington, the 1932 nominee, was the choice of the rank and file of the party but he has indicated he would refuse the nomination if it were offered at San Antonio. In 1932 Bullington set an all-time record for G. O. P. office seekers in Texas when he polled 317,807 votes against Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Democratic nominee, who received 528,986. The largest total prior to this election was that accorded Dr. Geo. C. Butte in 1924, when Mrs. Ferguson was the candidate. Butte received 294,970 to Mrs. Ferguson's 422,588.

Of the three Congressional run-off races, that of the seventeenth district between Thomas L. Blanton and Clyde E. Garrett by far overshadows the others. For the first time in his 20 years Congressional service Tom Blanton trailed, an opponent in the first primary and failed of election. He faces a battle between now and August 22 in which he must win at least 5,250 of the 6,000 votes cast for Fred O. Jaye of De Leon, the third man in the race. Garrett, County Judge of Eastland, led with a plurality of 4,500 and carried Blanton's home city of Abilene.

The South has sent many fire-eaters to Congress, including Tom Watson of Georgia, Cotton Tom Heflin of Alabama, and Pitchfork Ben Tillman of South Carolina, but seldom have they survived politically as long as Tom Blanton's two decades of control in the Seventh District.

In part his poor showing in the primary was due to his efforts to set himself up as boss of his district, but the Congressman's explanation is that "Washington interests that seek to defeat me have poured huge sums into the district for that purpose."

Persecution is a favorite battle cry of politicians with their backs to the wall, but the canstistency of his district has not forgotten his row with "damned doctors" and the patronage scandal with the Chief of Police if the Capitol Building.

The lay passed by the Forty-Third Legislature requiring election officers to tabulate votes promptly and to advise county chairmen of the complete but unofficial returns in the cast of party primaries proved a complete failure in the July primary.

The Secretary of State's office was unable to obtain a quick unofficial but complete count of the results of the election of State and district races.

County chairmen were directed to transmit the information to the Secretary of State by telegraph or more expeditious means. The Secretary of State was ordered to prepare tabulations daily until the returns were complete. The cost of filing the returns was placed on county party funds.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Beverly Chamlee sang "Until" accompanied at the piano by Miss Orpa Mayo who also played the wedding marches and accompanied Miss Jacquelyn West who played softly on the violin during the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in an exquisite creation of white lace over white satin, a model made on long lines which depended on its simplicity of fashion for its great beauty. The filmy finger-tip veil, which was caught at the head with an off face cap was adorned with a crown of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white sweetheart rosebuds and a shower of III-

The couple had eight children and before he died in 1906 and Mrs. Jayroe in 1911, they had a large family including grandchildren and great-grandchildren, for Mrs. Jayroe was only 13 years old at the time of her marriage and was only 16 when he husband (who was 13 years older than herself) was called to join the Confederate army, in which he fought to the close of the war.

The Jayroe family needed "lots of room" for their reunion and so chose a spot in the Cameron Park, Waco.

The Exposition is preparing to handle the gayest and largest crowd in its history.

LOCALS TO PLAY LAMPASAS AND WACO SOFTBALL TEAMS

Wednesday night Doc's softball team, bolstered with one or two members from the other League teams, will play the Lampasas all-stars at Lampasas. The Lampasas team has only been playing a short while and the chances of the locals winning seem rather bright. The playing field at Lampasas is exceptionally good while reports state that the lights are also highly satisfactory. The biggest drawback the locals will encounter will be the use of the small ball.

On Friday night the same team of locals will meet the Calvary Baptist team of Waco on the diamond at McGregor. The Waco crew was taken into camp on the local diamond a few weeks ago by a score of 3-1 and will be out for revenge Friday, so the Sandwich team will be in for a tough time.

WACO BASEBALL TOURNA-MENT PROVED SUCCESS

Sunday night the State semi-pro Baseball Tournament, being held in Waco, came to a very successful end, especially for Mount Pleasant who won the title by defeating the Sun Oilers of Longview in two games, one in the afternoon and again in the evening. The score of both games ended 2-1.

The entire tournament was a success from all angles and the officials of Waco are to be commended on their efforts in giving the fans of central Texas the type of baseball that the tournament afforded.

The Mount Pleasant club will represent the state of Texas in the National Tournament to be held in Wichita, Kansas, and the hopes and good wishes of every fan in the state should be with them and whether they lost their first games or go on to win the title, representatives of the other states will realize that Texas was well represented.

"JOHN NANCE GARNER DAY" PROCLAIMED BY GOV.

Austin, — July 30. As a tribute to one Texas' outstanding sons, Governor James V. Allred has proclaimed August 5 "John Nance Garner Day," urging its observance by all Texans. The Texas governor also appealed to residents of the state to converge upon Dallas on that day, which has been designated as Garner Day at the Texas Centennial Central Exposition.

In his official proclamation Governor Allred heaped praise upon Vice President Garner and emphasized the significance of observing a day during Centennial year in honor of a distinguished son of Texas to whom he referred as "The greatest Vice President in the history of the United States."

"There is before us the opportunity of honoring a distinguished living son of Texas. His achievements and patriotic service to the State are worthy of a good share of the homage being paid the names of Sam Houston, Stephen F. Austin, Mirabeau B. Lamar, David Crockett, and other Texas immortals," said Governor Allred in his Garner Day Proclamation.

In his appeal to the patriotism of loyal Texans the Governor pointed out the distinguished record of Vice President Garner during his 34 years of public service from his election to Congress, to the speakership and thence to the high office which he now holds.

ple of the 52nd Judicial District expressed their preference for District Attorney. According to the official count by the Executive Committee of the three counties, I was nominated District Attorney for which compliment and your confidence I am grateful.

I desire to thank my friends for their work in my behalf and to assure the voters in the district that it will be my ambition to serve them in such a way that they will never regret their expression of confidence.

Regardless of your choice, I cherish no ill will for those that voted for my opponent, and will, to best of my ability, endeavor to make you a fair, capable and good District Attorney.

Again thanking each and every one, I am,

Gratefully,

Soft ball

Thursday night in the first game the Firemen, playing in such an improvised lineup that only the pitcher was in his usual position, defeated the Merchants 5-2. What appeared to be, prior to the game, an easy victory for the Merchants turned out to be a tight game in the details. Ray, hurling for the winners, sensed that all depended upon his work so bore down in fine style to keep the losers away from the plate enough to enable his mates to outscore them. Bradford, who started on the hill for the Merchants, pitched a very good game and it was Anderson doing the pitching and not Bradford when the Firemen scored the winning run. The Firemen gained an early 2-1 lead and held it until the sixth when the losers tied it up. However, the smoke eaters came right back to tally three more and put the game on ice.

In the second game the CCC Camp went into the League lead at the expense of Doc's Sandwich Shop by the score of 7-1. The Camp boys found Blanton's pitching to their liking and fattened their batting averages at his discomfort, especially in the early innings. However, they kept pecking at his delivery the whole game while the stick work of the losers was even worse than was the case against the Merchants on Monday.

The results of the games left the Camp in undisputed possession of the top with the Firemen and Doc's tied for second with the Merchants holding down the cellar position.

The Camp left no doubt but what they have the best team in the League at present but any one of the four teams could easily finish on top. The Merchants will be greatly improved this week with the appearance of Hair and Culberson who will return to the lineup after being absent for the past four weeks.

Thursday Schedule:

Fireboys vs. CCC Camp.
CCC Camp	3	1 .750
Doc's	2	2 .500
Fireboys	2	2 .500

FROSTINGS TO GLORIFY THE CAKE

After you've taken great pains to create cake that is fine and even in texture, light and fluffy and deliciously flavored you certainly want to finish your creation with a fine frosting. Here are some that any cake will wear with pride.

ORANGE LEMON FROSTING

Two teaspoon grated orange rind, 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 egg beaten, dash of salt, 3/4 cups sifted confectioners sugar, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Add orange and lemon rind to butter and cream well. Add egg and salt and blend. Add sugar, alternately with fruit juices, beating until smooth and of right consistency to spread.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

Two squares unsweetened chocolate, 1 tablespoon water, 1-1-3 cups sweetened condensed milk.

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add condensed milk, stir over boiling water 5 minutes until it thickens. Add water. Cool. Spread on cold cake.

CARAMEL FROSTING

One and one-half cups brown sugar firmly packed, 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar, 1 1/2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter.

Combine sugars and bring milk to a boil, stirring constantly. Then boil, without stirring until a small amount of syrup forms a very soft ball in cold water. Add butter and remove from the fire. Cool to lukewarm and beat till the right consistency to spread.

CHOCOLATE FILLING

Melt 4 squares of bitter chocolate in the top of a double boiler over boiling water, add 2 cans of sweetened condensed milk and cook for 5 minutes or until thickened. Add 2 tablespoons of water and spread between layers and on top of cake.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

SINCE Calvin Coolidge ceased to be President the boys in Washington have been re-telling a lot of jokes about how Cal saved up words at the White House.

One of the stories is about a newspaper man that met the President away from Washington, out in the Black Hills, maybe it was. This here reporter thought he might get the boss to talk a little when he was maybe off his guard, so far from home.

So Cal answered every question with, "No." Or he would say, "I can't say anything about that," or "Don't quote me."

Finally, when the reporter was about to go away, he says to Coolidge, "Say, Mr. President, ain't you going to give me anything at all to print?"

"No," says Coolidge, "and please remember that everything I haven't said it not for publication either!"

EARL HUDDLESTON THANKS VOTERS; SOLICITS HELP IN AUGUST PRIMARY

I wish to take this method of thanking every person in this district who supported me for Representative in the recent election. To those who saw fit to vote for any of the other gentlemen who were candidates for the office, I hold no ill feeling.

The returns show that I only lacked a few hundred votes receiving a majority of all the votes cast in the district, however, there will be a runoff between Dr. Livingston of Hamilton County and myself.

I desire at this time to solicit the vote and influence of the people of this district. It is my purpose to see as many people as possible but it will be impossible to see every person in such a limited time so I hope you will take this as a personal solicitation. If you think I am the man to represent you in the Legislature the next two years, I will appreciate your support and assure you that I will serve every person in the district to the best of my ability if re-elected.

Respectfully,
Earl Huddleston.

Cool, Refreshing Beverages Revive Tired Spirits During Hot Weather

Six Thirst Quenchers for Summer Entertaining

WHEN one sits down to luncheon or dinner, these hot summer days, nothing is more tempting to the eye and appetite, than a cool, refreshing beverage.

Cold drinks, you will agree, depend for their appeal almost as much on sight and sound as they do on flavor. White frost should cover the outside of the glasses, and from inside you should hear the cheerful tinkle of ice. The plainest drink may be made impressive by using a few raspberries, cherries, sliced strawberries, or a sprig of mint for decoration.

In order to obtain the full refreshing flavor of the cooling beverage, especially those in which fruit juices are used, serve them as soon as they are prepared. By allowing them to stand too long, a loss of flavor often results.

Colored ice cubes, made by adding a little pure food coloring to water before filling ice trays will add a decorative touch to your beverages. A maraschino cherry frozen in the ice cube is another effective way of making a drink more attractive.

Six delicious thirst quenchers are shown above, any one of which will help revive you when your spirits alter on a torrid summer afternoon, and incidentally will spread your name as a hostess. Following are the recipes for each of the cooling summer drinks, from left to right:

Mint Julep
1 cup lemon juice
1 bunch fresh mint
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup water
3 pints ginger ale
Ice

Add mint leaves, sugar and water to lemon juice. Let stand 30 minutes. Pour over a large piece of ice and add ginger ale. Garnish each serving with a sprig of fresh mint dusted with powdered sugar.

Sherry Flip

1 1/2 jiggers domestic Sherry wine
1 raw egg
1/2 teaspoon powdered sugar
Shake well with shaved ice, strain into glass, dust top with nutmeg.

Old Fashioned Lemonade

4 lemons
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup water
Cut lemons in thin slices, place in a bowl, and cover with sugar. Mash thoroughly until all juice is extracted. Add water. Let stand one hour. Allow out or two tablespoons of the strained lemon juice to each serving. Pour into glass filled with shaved ice and fill with water. Garnish with maraschino cherry and slice of lemon.

Iced Coffee

Prepare coffee double strength and while still hot pour over crushed ice to cool. Sugar syrup and cream should be served as accompaniments to this beverage. If frozen coffee cubes are used in place of chipped ice, make the coffee for both the cubes and the beverage in the same manner as you would for every meal, using the usual proportions of water and coffee.

Grape Gingers

1 pint bottle grape juice
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 quart bottle dry ginger ale
Combine the grape juice and sugar, and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add the lemon juice and chill. Just before serving, add the ginger ale. Serves six.

Frosted Coffee

Make coffee according to your usual method. Chill. Put a small scoop of chocolate or vanilla ice cream in each glass and pour on the coffee. Stir until ice cream is melted. Serve at once. A topping of whipped cream may be added if desired.

ANN HARDING'S "WITNESS CHAIR" RANKS WITH NOTED DRAMAS

Showing at the Regal Wednesday and Thursday, the "Witness Chair," starring Ann Harding, promises to take its place among such noted courtroom drama success as "Madame X" and "The Trial of Mary Dugan." Miss Harding, incidentally, played the leading role in "The Trial of Mary Dugan," which enjoyed a phenomenal stage run throughout the United States.

Her splendid performance in the play caught the attention of motion picture producers, and now after a prolonged success in Hollywood, she is again cast in a photoplay of similar theme to her outstanding stage triumph.

Adapted from a short novel by Rita Weiman which appeared in the Cosmopolitan magazine, "The Witness Chair" projects Miss Harding as the chief witness in a trial in which her lover is accused of a crime she committed. Forced by a sensational series of occurrences to let him stand trial, she finally comes forth with the truth in a drama-packed climax to save the defendant's daughter's reputation, and offset the proximity of a death for her lover demanded by the law.

Departing from the current trend in motion pictures, which offers a series of resplendent photographic background before film audiences, "The Witness Chair" has fewer settings than the average screenplay, it relies on tense situations and excellent histories for its myriad movements of dramatic entertainment, practical all of the action takes place in a big city courtroom, but flashbacks denoting past action offer visual variety. These contrasting locales include the office of a large corporation, a business executive's private chamber and locations in an office building.

It is interesting to observe that the important parts in "The Witness Chair" are interpreted by players of outstanding stage ability as well as screen experience. Walter Abel, imported from Broadway for "The Three Musketeers," plays Miss Harding's lover.

P. M. POST THANKS VOTERS

To the Citizens of Coryell Co. I feel deep gratitude in my heart for the support given me during the first primary and hope to win the contest in the second. Unfortunately for me I was unable to make a canvass during the first, having recovered from a severe illness only a short time before, and cannot get out during the second for the reason the court is in session and I must attend to the duties of the office at this time.

I shall not appeal to you from the standpoint of sympathy, but I will appeal to you to give me a job at which I can work. I have my troubles and you have yours and I do not care to burden you with mine, but I will ask you to make inquiry and find who is in the most deplorable condition, my opponent or me, and if you will do that I will have no fault to find when you have rendered your verdict.

I understand that it is said I have plenty upon which to live. If those who tell this will locate either money or property that belongs to me I will split fifty-fifty with them. I do have a daughter who is in a hospital, and has been for three months, and I am informed that she will have to stay at least two years before she is completely cured of her ailment, and maybe not then.

I truly hope those who know me will take this message as a personal solicitation for your vote in the run-off, and whether I win or lose I shall ever be profoundly grateful to my friends. I get no assistance from any source, and am unable to get old age assistance.

Again thanking you and trusting you will remember me on August 22, 1936.

Truly yours,
PLEAS M. POST.

SURE-FIRE CURE FOR LEAF WORM GIVEN BY THE COUNTY AGENT

In a letter from R. R. Rappert, Extension Entomologist, to all County Agents, on how to get the leaf worm, is outlined as follows:

"The only poisons recommended by us as entirely safe to use are calcium arsenate or lead arsenate, the latter being so expensive as to be impractical so long as calcium arsenate can be obtained. Either may be dusted or sprayed. If dusted, from 5 to 8 pounds per acre of either should be applied, depending upon the size of the cotton. The best time for application is in the early morning when the dew is on the plants and when the air is usually quiet.

"If to be applied as a spray, 3 pounds of either material should be mixed with 50 gallons water and this mixture kept well agitated during the application.

"Paris Green or London purple are apt to prove injurious to cotton and are not advised if the other materials can be obtained. If they must be used, 4 parts of hydrated lime should be thoroughly mixed with 1 lb. of either poison or dry application, this amount to cover an acre, or 1½ pounds of the lime mixed with 1½ pounds of either poison in 50 gallons water as a spray.

White arsenic, a mixture of white arsenic and lime, or white arsenic boiled in water with soda or caustic soda, are almost certain to burn the cotton and the entomologists of A. and M. College strongly advise against their use.

The leaf worms reported to be working in Coryell county were working in the Turnersville area Friday, July 31. Farmers will do well to be prepared to apply control measures.

WACO MAN MAKES WEIRD FINDS NEAR SUGAR LOAF COMMUNITY

Following is an account of some of the weird finds of W. A. Matheny of Waco, near Sugar Loaf, on the oil McCullough Trill, story appearing in Waco newspaper:

Chained by the neck to a copper stake driven into the live rock, a seated skeleton discovered in an uncovered shaft of a cave over in Coryell county, gave mute evidence of one of the many tragedies which marked the Spanish mining operations in that section.

W. A. Matheny, 3190 Bosque boulevard, who knows about the discovery of the skeleton, which occurred about eight months ago and was never before made public, but he doesn't attach much significance to it. He is more interested in the cave itself.

Plenty of Bones Around.

"We've found lots of skeletons over there," says the Wacoan, who has done a lot of exploration in those hills.

About the time the Chief Yellow Wolf and Chief Yellow Hand made their last (and unsuccessful) stand out around Neff Park, many years ago, a little girl of 11 living in that neighborhood, now a grandmother in Oklahoma, got hold of a map of a cave, presumably used by the Spaniards for secreting treasure. Matheny now has a copy of that map, and in connection with his other word of exploration in the hills of Coryell County, has checked it against signs and other indications. It leads him to believe firmly that the map is correct; that a cave "several miles long" exists, entrances to which are generally pretty well blocked up. So far, he and his fellow workers, have not been able to penetrate far into the recesses of what he is sure is a long meandering cavern.

He Is Reticent.

Matheny is not willing to say a lot about the location of the cavern. "No use getting people all excited about it," he says. "I had hoped to get it opened and explored eight months ago, so we could have something else for centennial visitors to look at, but I didn't have the money or the equipment."

It is somewhere around the old McCulloch or McCollier trail, and somewhere near Sugar Loaf mountain, in an area "five miles long and ten miles wide," characterized by heavy undergrowth and much rock. "It's a jungle," says Matheny.

Matheny and another man, using the old map as a guide, uncovered a hole on top of a hill, but digging around all day among the brush and rocks. They couldn't get down into it, but they dropped a rock. They heard it bounce and echo until it went clear out of hearing.

Curious Water Well.

At another point indicated by the map as above the cave, a farmer bored a water well. When the wind blows from the north the windmill can hardly get the water up. When the wind blows from the south the water rushes up; and furthermore, that same south wind brings up green leaves and even half-grown squirrels, drowned. The wind from the well, when the breeze is south, will blow a hat away, and also creates suction. Just what all this means, Matheny is unable to say; but he supposes it indicates the

LOWER FREIGHT RATES ARE IMPERATIVE

The Texas Grain and Feed Dealers Association has launched a state-wide, active campaign for lower freight rates in Texas on grain, grain products, seeds and hay, basing their position on the fact that other states producing less grain than Texas, enjoy a much lower freight rate for the same mileage haul, thus Texas farmers are unjustly penalized when really with the enormous amount of grain produced in Texas, they should by all rights enjoy a much lower freight rate.

Of 8 states producing the bulk of grain products Texas is shown with the highest rate of 33c one the 400 mile haul and Minnesota the lowest with a 17-5c rate for same haul.

The U. S. year book shows production in 1,00 bu. units in the four principal grain crops of wheat, corn, oats and sorghums, Texas leads with a total of 220,251 bu. units and Kansas comes second with 145,473 in a list of five states, including Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas.

Thus, according to G. E. Blewett, secretary-treasurer, Texas farmers who last year raised more grain than any state are charged more freight rate for the same mileage haul than these other states, and even pays more than the mountain states of Montana and Wyoming. On the four commodities listed above the Texas farmer will this year pay about $400,000.00 more freight charges than the Oklahoma farmer and about $1,200,000.00 more than the Kansas farmer for the same amount of grain freight charges.

Blewett contends these excessive freight charges are forcing grain to move by trucks as well as retarding the movement of grain and if Texas rates were reduced in line with those charged in Kansas, Iowa, or Arkansas, it would tend to increase the movement by rail as well as save the Texas farmers millions of dollars yearly.

These high freight rates also burden the consumers who are forced to pay more for the products they buy, according to Mr. Blewett, as freight charges are added to the costs, hence the higher the freight rates, the greater the cost of the products.

Blewett also states there can be no just or equitable reason for any such discrimination as these rates show and it is the intention of the Texas Grain and Feed Dealers Association to obtain sufficient support and co-operation as to bring about an adjustment that will enable the farmers of Texas to obtain a greater return for their efforts and labors.

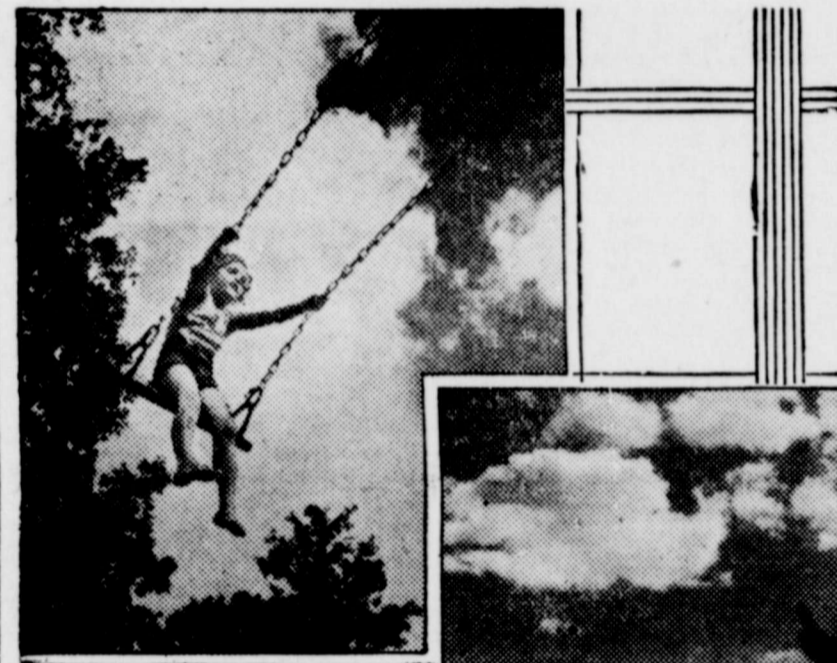

PANTRY DEMONSTRATOR AT HOOD SPRINGS HAD PLENTY FRUIT

"I have enough fruit to carry," stated Mrs. Arthur Denny, the pantry demonstrator of the Hood Springs Home Demonstration Club, as she showed her canned products to the club members Thursday. Her five shelves are a colorful array worth seeing.

Her stock of fruits includes 24 quarts of plums, 6 quarts of berries, 185 quarts of peaches, and 43 quarts of tomatoes.

She has not had an abundance of vegetables and has canned only 30 quarts of cucumbers, 12 pints of beans, and 10 quarts of kraut, and 3 quarts of beets.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD THE MAGIC OF FILTERS

The best cloud effects are obtained by using a yellow filter over the lens. A medium yellow filter, K-2, was used for the picture above, taken with a shutter speed of 1/100 second, aperture, f.6.3. A lighter yellow filter, K-1, caught the clouds in the right hand picture at 1/25 at f.11.

WITH all conditions seemingly perfect for a glorious landscape picture, how does it sometimes happen that those beautiful clouds are scarcely noticeable in the print and the distant hills just barely visible? Maybe because when we took the picture we did not use a small enough lens opening, but even that would not always be the answer.

The failure is more likely due to the fact that we did not use a filter, that magical little gadget of colored gelatine fixed between glass discs, which, when placed over the lens, changes the effect on the film of the different rays of the spectrum.

Just what is the property in a filter that so cleverly captures the beauty of clouds and helps to bring out distant detail? It is its color that makes the difference and generally yellow filters are used. The reason is that in photography the invisible ultra-violet ray of the spectrum and the violet and blue rays do most of the recording of images, and on all types of film their effect tends to predominate regardless of variation in the sensitivity of different types to different colors. Yellow, of a certain quality, in a filter will counteract these rays, holding them back and letting the other rays do their work on the film without interference.

Clouds and blue sky both are rich in ultra-violet, violet and blue. So, if we put over our lens a yellow filter to hold these rays back, the other rays will do the work and the clouds will be distinguished from the sky. They will appear whiter than the sky. Strange as it may seem, clouds also contain a certain amount of green and orange rays. So, if we use a film which is not very sensitive to the orange and green rays, (the chrome type) the contrast between clouds and sky will be emphasized.

A yellow filter also makes grass and the leaves of trees photograph lighter instead of appearing black. It also performs another valuable function. It gives sharper detail to distant objects by cutting through haze, which has an excess of blue light. Also in taking pictures of flowers, or of indoor furnishings, a filter enables us to achieve correct tone contrasts.

There are five yellow filters suitable for amateur use, each performing somewhat differently. Among them the K-2, which is a medium yellow, gives the best general color correction with the ordinary and the chrome type of film, and practically full correction with the panchromatic and panchromatic film. Exposure with a filter must be increased, depending on the density of the color. Instructions furnished with each filter tell just how to use it.

If you have never tried a filter, put a K-1 or K-2 over your lens some sunny day when there are tumbling white clouds over the horizon. You will be surprised at the difference it makes.

What is "Quality" Milk?

It is clean milk of uniformly low bacterial content, free from dirt and pathogenic organisms. It is produced from healthy cows, free from tuberculosis, Bong's disease, mastitis, and all other maladies, and it is handled by healthy employees, using sanitary methods and clean and sterile equipment and utensils. Finally such a safe milk must also be relatively high in nutritive values, with an ample content of butter fat and total solids, and an abundance of normal vitamins, the content of some of which in milk is definitely influenced by the ration fed to the cow.

SYNOPSIS

Arrested for the fourth time for speeding, Betty Winslow, madcap society girl, meets Lieut. Knox, handsome head of the Traffic Department. Knox is a crusader for traffic safety. Despite Betty's genius for reckless driving, Knox falls in love with her. At a party, Betty's young brother, Jackie, gets drunk. Betty tricks him into letting her drive him home. But when she gets out for some cigarettes, Jackie gets behind the wheel. Speeding at 75 miles an hour, they can't stop in time to avoid crashing into a school bus. To keep Jackie from taking the rap, Betty changes places with him at the wheel.

CHAPTER VII

"HELLO — General Hospital."

Betty was seated before the phone in the Winslow living room, while Jackie, the inevitable drink in his hand, was pacing up and down nearby. "This is Miss Winslow again. I'm calling about Bobby Sanborn. Has Doctor MacLaren finished operating? He has? Let me speak to him, please!" There was a slight pause, then: "Hello — Doctor MacLaren? How did it come out?"

As she listened to the answer the color slowly drained out of her face. Jackie gulped his drink and hurried to her side, just as she hung up the receiver.

"Well — what happened?" her brother demanded as Betty rose without a word and started to stumble out of the room.

"Bobby died on the operating table," she answered without looking at him.

"That means an indictment for manslaughter," gasped Jackie. "Oh, Lord!" He turned back to the cocktail shaker, then thought better of it. "Listen, Sis, he stammered. 'I'm going down to talk with Lieutenant Knox. Maybe we can straighten this out yet.' He tried to look reassuring but his hands were shaking as he poured another drink.

That afternoon, while the newspapers were shrieking "Betty Winslow Held on Manslaughter Charge," Jackie returned home, apparently in the best of humors.

"Well — it's all over and done with," he announced proudly. "I saw your friend, Mr. Knox."

"What happened?" His sister gripped his arm tensely.

"Everything's okay!" Jackie's broad grin seemed a trifle forced and unnatural but she did not notice that.

"You—you told him—?" She could hardly believe her ears.

"You mean about how I was driving the car—instead of you?" he inquired brightly. "Well no—I didn't tell him that." Then, as he saw hope on Betty's face slowly dying, he rushed on almost gaily. "Don't get me wrong, Sis. I was all set to be noble and tell everything but I didn't have to. He's got it all fixed for you already."

"Fixed?" She stared incredulously. "How could he?"

"Listen," Jackie was vague but knowing. "A guy like that has a lot of angles to work on we don't know anything about. I don't know what he's got up his sleeve, but you can bet one thing: when he gets on that witness stand, the whole case against you is going to fall to pieces."

"Why—how marvelous!" Betty's face became radiant. "I'm going to call him up right now and tell him how wonderful he is."

"I wouldn't do that if I were you," cried Jackie almost in a panic, as he stepped between her and the phone.

"Why not?" She looked up at him, startled and alarmed.

"Well—as a matter of fact—" Jackie was thinking fast. "He told me to warn you about that—not to call him up or anything. . . . You never can tell when somebody might be listening in—and it wouldn't look so good."

"Oh! Of course." She smiled softly to herself, then her eyes filled with tears. "Oh, Jackie—" she whispered brokenly. "Isn't it swell of him—to do this . . .!"

"That means an indictment for manslaughter," Jackie gasped. "I'm going down to talk to Lieutenant Knox. Maybe we can straighten this out yet."

"Sure!" said her brother uncomfortably as he came over and patted her shoulder. A moment later she was sobbing in his arms. Her face buried against his coat she could not see his half-ashamed, half-furtive expression, as he muttered with forced cheerfulness: "Don't cry, Sis— Everything's going to be all right."

It seemed that all of Haverstock had crowded into the courtroom to attend the manslaughter trial of "Mr. Winslow's daughter."

The first hours of the case were commonplace enough as photographs of skid marks and the wrecked cars as well as diagrams and charts, were introduced as evidence.

The examination and cross-examination of Dodie Sloan then provided a bit of relaxation for the tense audience.

"Your evidence is strangely contradictory, Mrs. Sloan," the exasperated district attorney said at last. "You admit that you saw Miss Winslow's car pass you on the road. . . ."

"Did I say that?" exclaimed Dodie innocently.

"Yes, Mrs. Sloan, you did," the D. A. answered ironically. "Yet at the same time you say you were thinking of something else. Now just what were you thinking about, Mrs. Sloan?"

"It had nothing to do with this case," Dodie tossed her head tartly. "That will be all," growled the discomfited prosecutor.

"Sergeant Sanborn," he called the next witness. As the burly cop strode toward the stand, Betty winced and looked appealingly at Anderson, her defense lawyer, who shrugged and shook his head.

The sergeant testified grimly that he had arrested Betty four times for speeding within the last two months.

"Very interesting," purred his questioner. "Do you recall accurately any of the speeds at which Miss Winslow was travelling when you stopped her?"

"Once she was going eighty-five; another time seventy-two."

"On the occasion when you stopped this young lady what did her attitude seem to be?"

"At first she tried to laugh it off, then she got sore."

"Sergeant Sanborn," the prosecutor began in a changed voice. "You had a son, didn't you?"

"I object!" Anderson shouted as he leaped to his feet. "The question is immaterial and irrelevant and put only to prejudice the jury."

"Objection sustained," ruled the Judge. "Clerk, strike the question off the record."

"That will be all, Sergeant Sanborn," said the District Attorney as he noted with satisfaction the effect which this interchange had had on the jury. "Sergeant Maloney, will you take the stand?"

After being duly sworn, Maloney testified about the brake-testing incident. When direct examination had been completed, Anderson rose to his full height of six feet three and began a rapid-fire cross-examination.

"Sergeant Maloney," he snapped, "in making a brake test you first mount the running board of the car. You then order the driver to start the motor. You watch the speedometer until the car has reached the speed of thirty miles an hour and then order the driver to stop. Is this correct?"

"Yes, sir."
"The driver is then supposed to jam on the brakes as hard as possible and the result of the test is judged by the distance the car travels after this has been done?"

"That's right."
"In other words, the results of the test depend considerably upon the co-operation of the driver, don't they?"

"I don't quite get you, sir."
"If the driver did not press down the brakes as forcefully as possible, the car might travel a considerable distance—without the brakes necessarily being defective; is that possible?"

"Well . . . Yes, sir," Maloney was bewildered.

"Now you have testified that Miss Winslow did not seem willing to co-operate in making the test, and that you kept your eyes on the speedometer until the car reached thirty miles an hour. In that case you could not be sure whether she was applying full pressure on the brake pedal."

"Well . . . I . . . No, sir. I couldn't," admitted Maloney.

"That will be all," smiled Anderson who had scored his biggest point.

"Lieut. James Knox, please take the stand," the prosecutor requested. (To be continued)

TIPS FOR THE HOME

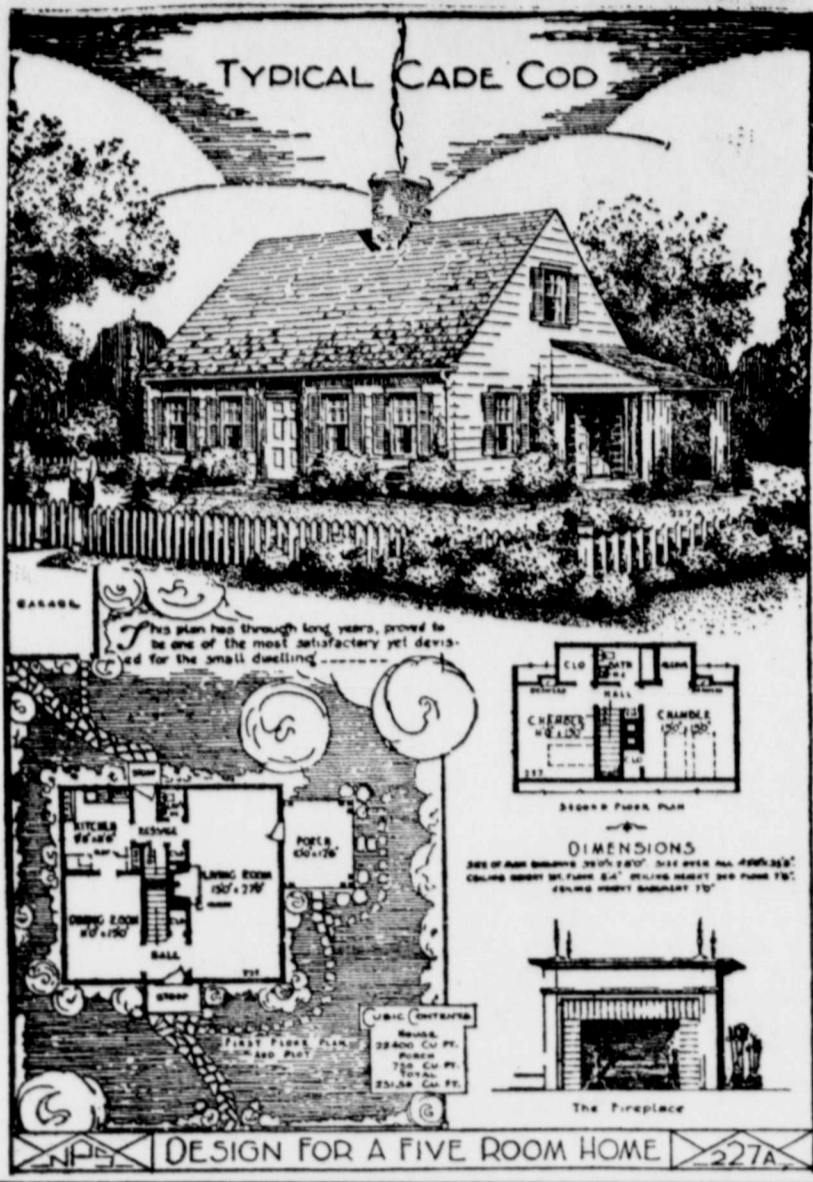

By HOUS N. HOM

TYPICAL CAPE COD WITH FIVE GENEROUS ROOMS

One of the best plans ever evolved for the small home is that used by the early settlers on Cape Cod. Like other examples of Colonial architecture, the lines are simple, and every feature is carefully scaled to the size of the house. In spite of its small size, the house retains much of the dignity of the early designs through carefully spaced door and window openings, a central chimney and an unbroken roof line.

Economy is a particular feature of houses of this type. Square, simple walls facilitate construction, and the absence of unusual angles in walls and roof assure a home that is easier to heat and maintain.

The plans for this house deserve careful attention. The small central hallway, a feature always associated with this type of house, results in greater privacy for the living and dining rooms than is customarily found in houses of this size. Doors from the living room and kitchen, opening into the rear passage, offer easy circulation, a definite aid to the housekeeper. The living room, twenty-seven feet long, is of a size and shape that will lend itself well to attractive decoration and easy entertaining. Wall space is carefully planned, and the fireplace, since it is on an inside wall, can easily be made the focal point of this room.

The dining room, eleven by thirteen feet in size, is adequate for dining purposes, yet no space is wasted. Wall space will take care of all necessary large pieces of furniture. Built-in cases distinguish the kitchen. A small cupboard next to the sink, a larger cupboard and work table at right angles to it, and a storage cupboard over the refrigerator provide necessary shelf space and assure an attractive workmanlike room.

Closet space on the first floor includes a coat closet off of the front hall, and a utility closet, ideal for vacuum cleaner, brooms and cleaning equipment, opening into the rear passage. The small lavatory at the rear of the house is convenient to both living room and kitchen.

On the second floor, hall space has been cut to a minimum to allow for two large bedrooms. Each of these rooms is large enough to accommodate twin beds, and additional space is provided in one of them for an alcoved dressing is provided for each of the table or desk. A large closet rooms, one of them with a window. Further storage space is provided in the bedrooms by built-in drawers, cleverly making use of the ordinarily wasted space under the eaves. The linen closet, located in the hall, is convenient to both bedrooms.

The bathroom, centrally located between the bedrooms, and opening into the hall, contains a medicine cabinet and modern fixtures. A shower can be built-in over the tub, if desired. All plumbing has been carefully concentrated, in the rear of the house, a feature that results in greater economy in the installation of this equipment.

The basement, not shown here, could contain a large recreation room with fireplace, in addition to laundry, storage and heater room, if a full basement is used. A smaller excavation could provide for necessary heater and laundry, and would mean some saving in construction cost.

The house contains 23,150 cubic feet, including the porch. Dimensions of the main house are 32 by 28 feet. Plans call for ceiling heights of eight feet four inches on the first floor, seven feet six inches on the second, and seven feet in the basement. Wide siding or shingles would be most appropriate for the exterior walls, with stained wood or composition shingles for the roof, and a brick chimney and foundation.

Interior finish, depending on the amount spent on the house, can vary considerably. Painted woodwork and painted plaster walls, painted woodwork and wall-papered walls, or pine walls given a natural finish and waxed or varnished, are all possibilities.

Interior woodwork and hardware should be of colonial design. These designs are obtainable in stock sizes at most lumber yards, in careful reproductions of early American designs. Mantels, stair rails, corner cupboards and bookcases are manufactured, in addition to the better known equipment, kitchen installation.

Lighting fixtures of pewter or brass, designed along the lines of those used in New England homes during the eighteenth century, are also available, and would be most appropriate for a house of this type. Suitable fixtures for living room, dining room, halls and bedrooms can be obtained thru local electrical supply dealers.

A house of this design, accepted as a standard for generations, and with its comfort and economy proved through the years, cannot help but prove a sound investment. Add to that the convenience of the plan, and you've found the home you want!

Housing experts warn the public that ferry-builders are active, offering extremely low bids for work and then providing such unsatisfactory results as poor foundations, use of green lumber, bad paint jobs, and impractical house designs.
