NOTICE: Any erroneous reflection upon the character of standing of any person or firm appearing in its columns will be gladly and promptly corrected upon calling the attention of the management to the article in question.

WHAT NOW?

First, "Thanks" to each and everyone who helped in any way to make our Coryell County Day at the Texas Centennial the big success that it was. The co-operation from every part of the county, as well as Gatesville, and in fact, everyone concerned was very pleasing to all of us. The trip was a grand success!

Now, we did things then, and before this year is over, there is one other thing Coryell County should do, especially during 1936 Centennial year, and that is a County Centennial fair, exposition or celebration of some nature.

A local committee for the promotion of this fair has already been named, and their idea was to have the fair in the Fall when crops are harvested, and the displays of farm products and other articles can be more extensively shown.

Our idea in this suggestion is that the movement of organization, promotion, publicity, committee work, arrangements and what not, cannot be done in a day or overnight, and that it is high time something is done to get the necessary machinery in motion.

Folks, let's talk Centennial Celebration in every community, and get the important event started. There's no question—in our minds—about having one; the question is when and how! So talk it in you respective neighborhood and town, and let's get this Centennial celebration started and going.

Every county around Coryell has, or is to have, a Centennial celebration of some sort. Certainly Coryell is! What do you say?

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

An unexpectedly large number of voters marched to the polls Saturday in the broiling heat to vote on the two State run-off races and for the numerous district, county and precinct offices. In spite of the lack of interest in both State and local races and predictions by many observers that the total vote would not exceed 600,000, there were 800,000 registered voters balloted and returned to office the two incumbents seeking re-election to State office, one Congressman, and elected two new representatives to the lower house of Congress.

The 800,000-vote total was only 200,000 short of the all-time record of 1,071,372 set in the July 25 primary and lacked only 150,000 of equaling the 998,000 mark of the second primary of 1934, when run-offs for five state offices brought out what was an unprecedented number of voters for the second race.

For the first time since 1918 the August ballot did not carry run-off races for governor and United State Senator. In July Governor Allred smothered to an overwhelming victory over four opponents and Senator Sheppard won with an equally top-heavy majority over five opponents.

Saturday the majority control of the State Railroad Commissioners C. V. Terrell and Ernest O. Thompson was approved when Thompson smashed to victory over Frank S. Morris, Dallas attorney, who received the support of Commissioner Lon A. Smith, opposed to the policies of Terrell and Thompson, and of the three candidates who lost out in the first primary. Late returns to the Texas Election Bureau from 227 out of 254 counties, including 119 complete, shows Thompson to have 441,265 and Morris 287,421. Morris entered the second race in the fact of a huge plurality given Thompson in July. The incumbent received 461,413 votes in the first primary and only 19,678 short of a majority over four opponents.

The New Deal's farm program received an indirect endorsement with the nomination of Commissioner of Agriculture J. E. McDonald over George B. Terrell, former Congressman at large and critic of Roosevelt while in the House (1933-35). McDonald had 413,680 to Terrell's 295,120 on the basis of incomplete returns.

The Seventeenth District Congressional race, which had attracted nation-wide attention, resulted in the defeat of the "Watchdog of the Treasury," blatant Thomas L. Blanton, veteran of eighteen years' service by Judge Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland County, Garrett led with a majority of over 12,000.

In the Eighth District, vacated by Joe H. Eagle, unsuccessful candidate for the senate seat of Morris Sheppard, Albert Thomas, former federal assistant attorney general, defeated Houston's three term mayor, Oscar Holcomb, leading by 9,000 votes.

Representative W. D. McFarlane ran 2,500 votes ahead of his opponent, district attorney Ed Gossert of Vernon.

July saw the victory of State

Senator Bob Poage over two opponents for Congress from the 11th District, including Coryell County. Two House members, W. A. (Son) Shofner of Temple and J. Manley Head of Stephenville, entered the run-off from this district for the State Senate seat vacated by Roy Santerford. Saturday Head amassed a comfortable majority of 2,500 votes over Shofner.

Little progress has been made by either side during the last week in Spain's bloody Rightist and Leftist civil war. Claims and counter claims of victory flow in a continual stream from the headquarters of the respective armies but there has been little change of territory controlled by each party to the conflict.

A "Spain in Revolution" may released by "Time, Inc." pictures the rebels as being in control of Spanish Morocco, the two largest Balearic Islands, (which Mussolini will reportedly fortify for his navy and air force if the revolutionists triumph), and most of the northern and southern sections. Government forces hold Madrid, the east coast, part of the north coast and such important cities as Barcelona, Valencia, and Malaga.

Approximately "half 'n' half" is the peninsula divided between the two forces. No estimates can be had on the strength of the opposing armies, due to the large number of civilians who the fighting for the Government "Popular Front" forces, but in the general elections of the first year the two groups now classed as "Rightists" and "Leftists" polled each about 50 per cent of the total vote. On the basis of the popular vote, the Right won 4,910,000 and the Left 4,356,000 but the Left captured control of the Cortes (Parliament). Thus with the voting population divided almost equally between the two groups and with each controlling approximately half of the territorial limits of the country, the fighting is likely to be long and indecisive with years necessary for the suppression or extermination of either group.

Madrid, goal of the rebels and capital city, would probably have fallen weeks ago but for the large number of farmers, miners, and workers who swarmed to the ranks of the Government. A large part of the army—95 per cent of the officers and 85 per cent of the army as a whole—deserted to the rebel cause when the first outbreak took place in Spanish Morocco on July 17. The civil guards—traditionally non-partisan body corresponding to our national guard—are divided about 50-50 while the storm guards, another national armed police force, are about 75 per cent on the Government side.

CORYELL COUNTY RECEIVES $16,018 FROM HOME LOAN CORPORATION

Residents of Coryell County received a total of $16,018 from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation during the three-year period of refinancing operations which terminated June 13, 1936, according to the final figures furnished H. ## TELEPHONE LONG DISTANCE RATES MAY BE LOWERED BY COMPANY

If the Federal Communications Commission approves an application made by the Bell Telephone Company to further reduce long distance telephone rates on September 1st, it will be the seventh voluntary reduction in the last ten years, according to Mr. Bamburg.

The new reduction applied for will provide lower rates on all long distance calls between points more than 234 miles apart, and reduce overtime messages on "person-to-person" calls lasting more than 6 minutes.

Based on present long distance usage, it is estimated that the yearly saving to Texas customers will amount to $455,000. The reduction, if approved, applies to both "station-to-station" and "person-to-person" calls.

Overtime charges on all "person-to-person" calls will revert to the cheaper "station-to-station" overtime rate after the first 3 minutes of overtime. For example, on a 10 minute "person-to-person" call, the initial 3-minute period and the first 3 minutes of overtime will be charged at the "person-to-person" rate, the remaining four minutes charged at the corresponding lower "station-to-station" overtime rate.

Gulf States Telephone Company has always cooperated with the Bell Telephone Company in giving its patrons the benefit of these reductions in long distance calls, and, according to Mr. Bamburg, will do so in this instance if the Federal Communications Commission in Washington approve the reduction.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

A KID that was visiting at her classmate's house says, "Oh, it's raining!"

"Never mind," says Mrs. Friend. "I'll lend you one of Betty's old hats and her raincoat to go home in. Your mama would do that for Betty, you know."
"I don't think she would, Mrs. Friend," says the kid. "I think she'd just get out of it by having Betty stay to dinner and wait till the rain was all stopped."

Health in Summer

By SHIRLEY W. WYNNE
M.D., Dr. P.H.
Former Health Commissioner
New York, N. Y.

CLEANLINESS is always important but during the warm weather it takes on added significance in relation to health. Here are a few rules that should help in securing the fullest enjoyment from this delightful time of year:

Keep clean. Personal and household cleanliness through the plentiful use of pure soap and hot water is essential to good health.

Teach children not to put pencils or other articles in their mouths. Teach them the health habits of washing their hands thoroughly with a pure white mild soap and water before eating, after using the lavatory, after play and before retiring. Of course, the housewife should thoroughly wash her hands before preparing food and insist that all her household assistants do likewise.

Dress lightly and, so far as is practicable, wear washable clothing, changing it frequently. Wear no more than is necessary.

Eat plenty of fresh fruits and fresh vegetables. Drink a quart of milk a day. Cut down on fats, sugars and starches. Drink plenty of water. Don't eat when overtired or overheated. Clean up, rest and relax before meals.

Don't swim or bathe in polluted waters. Don't swim immediately after eating or when very tired.

Don't try to crowd a year's quota of exercise into a two weeks vacation. Don't try to acquire a tan in a day or a week. You will acquire a burn instead, which is neither healthful nor pleasant.

In short be clean and be moderate, so that your Summer may be pleasant, enjoyable and healthful. Remember that pure soap and water are your greatest aids to cleanliness, and that cleanliness is your greatest aid to health.

SYNOPSIS
Wahoo Jones, Sam (Polka Dot) McGee and Tall Jeff Hawkins are leading a merry career as hold-up men when the Texas Rangers begin chasing bad men out of the Lone Star State. Fleeing from a posse, Polka Dot McGee becomes separated from his pals. Jones and Hawkins continue their outlawry until they find that the Rangers are making the land a bad place for bandits. Hawkins decides that he and Jones must change their plan of operations.

CHAPTER II
JEFF HAWKINS' mysterious reference to "changed plans" was explained a few days later when he and Wahoo stood before Captain Stafford in the headquarters cabin of Company "D" Texas Rangers Frontier Battalion and solemnly took the membership oath.

They had just finished repeating the words which bound them to "sub-him. A moment later he stopped short, thumbed eagerly through the leaves and at last looked at Wahoo triumphantly.

"It's just like I said," he explained softly after looking around the yard of the camp to see that none of the other Rangers in the battalion were observing them. "Listen to this: 'Rangers are instructed to return all stolen cattle to their rightful owners.'" He paused to let this sink in, then read: "Whenever a Ranger is assigned to protect a shipment of gold..."

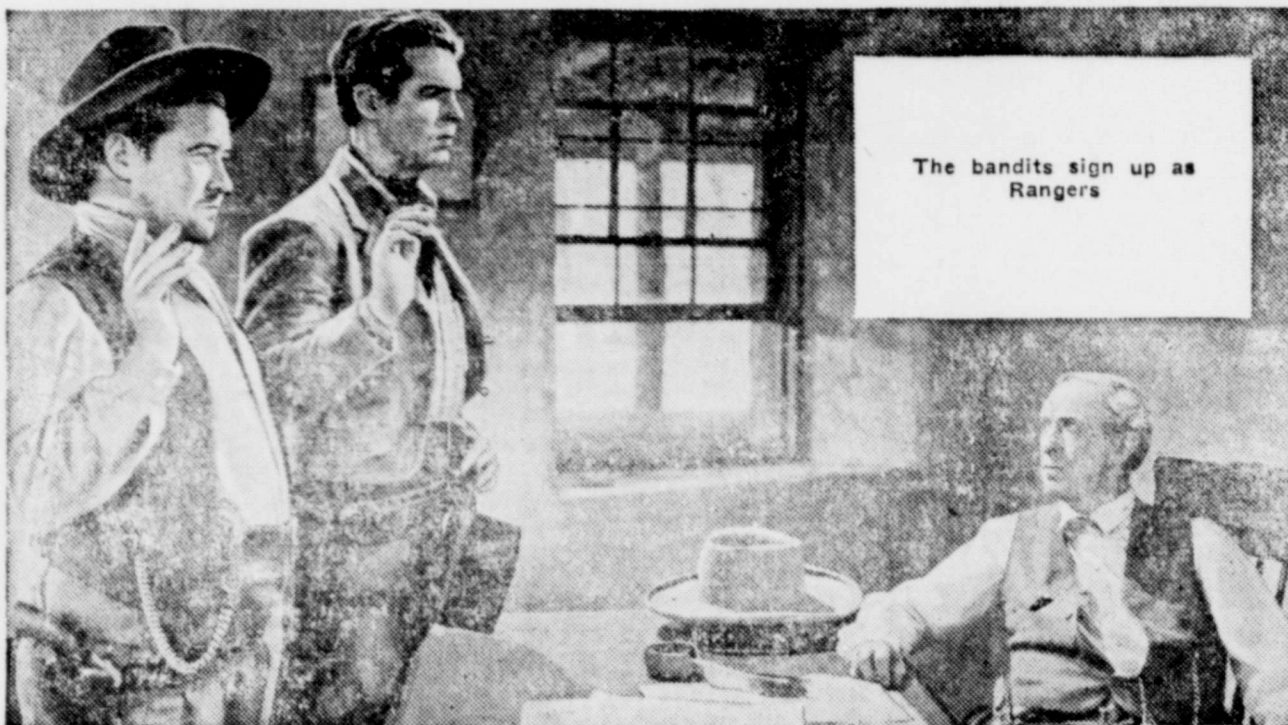

"I get it," Wahoo grinned all over his freckled face. "When you get around to it... deal me in!"

While they were waiting for dinner the two newcomers wandered idly around the little encampment, halting for a while to watch a Ranger try to cross the river between Del Rio on the north and Eagle Pass on the south," said the officer briskly. "John and McBride, you're taking this north cut to Del Rio. Introduce yourselves to Marshal Bill Greet there. Adams. We suspect the Hamilton Land and Cattle Company. Pick up all information possible from them. Peters, Lee, Ditson—stake the country between Quemado and Pinto Creek. Hawkins and Jones—you'll patrol the river from Quemado south, a distance of twenty miles."

"Yes, sir," Jeff answered briskly as he winked at Wahoo. Then the two wheeled their horses and started off at a trot.

"I'll nail more rustlers'n you!" chuckled Wahoo half an hour later as they neared the bank of the river. "Bet yuh two bits!"

due hostile Indians, to make the peace and to preserve law and order" when Major Bailey, commander of the battalion, entered the room and stood surveying them thoughtfully.

He was a man of about sixty, drawn out long and lean like a buckskin thong. His piercing blue eyes made it plain that he was a disciplinarian, but there was something about his mouth which indicated that, beneath a blunt exterior, he was intensely human.

"Here are some rules and regulations you might care to study in your spare time," Captain Stafford said after the two new members had signed their enlistment papers.

Uncomfortably aware of the Major's scrutiny, Jones and Hawkins picked up the booklets and were making a hurried exit when the officer's sharp voice stopped them.

"Just a minute, men," their superior said very quietly. "I'm Major Bailey, in charge. Jeff Hawkins..." he shook hands with the former bandit. "Reuben Jones..." He did the same with Wahoo, then continued. "In this part of the world a man doesn't ask too many questions. So I won't inquire why you decided to join. I hope, however, it wasn't because you thought you were going to have an easy life. Some of us may have a lot of fun... but there's another side also." He turned, crossed to the window and stood staring out his back to the men.

"I've grown up in this service—thirty years," he resumed at last. "I've watched Texas grow. Rangers have done their share—but there are still tougher roads to travel. To be a good Ranger means something more than drawing your pay. You've also got to feel something. The Ranger service has created a fine tradition... That is all."

As the two new Rangers emerged from the cabin with cynical grins on their faces Hawkins glanced idly into the book of instructions which Captain Stafford had thrust upon shoe his horse, bantering with the old timers who treated them civilly but coolly as they went about their work of cleaning equipment and policing their log cabins.

As they were approaching the mess cabin eight men on horseback, led by Captain Stafford, came out of the corral gate.

"Hey, you," the officer shouted at the new recruits. "Get your horses. We're goin' out!"

"Who? Us?" Hawkins and Jones were flabbergasted.

"Yes, both of you," snapped the Captain.

"What do you mean—we ain't ate yet!" groaned Wahoo.

"Never mind that!" Stafford's voice sharpened. "Mount your horses."

Hawkins got the humor of the situation. Wahoo didn't, but there was nothing to do but obey. They hurried out to saddle their horses.

"You certainly get some great ideas... Texas Rangers!" grumbled the rawboned youth as he swung into the saddle. To emphasize his disgust he spat a stream of tobacco juice and made a bull's eye on the back of an unoffending little lizard which was surveying him from between the legs of the corral.

"You just wait and see," chuckled Jeff as he opened the gate and they rode out to join the others. "We're going to clean up here sooner or later. Now wipe that frown off your face and drop in behind the others."

Wahoo cast a quick, questioning glance at his friend, wondering what he had in mind, then grunted grudging assent.

The little picket rode for miles through the purple sage, sometimes quiet, sometimes chatting together, sometimes singing the Ranger song. At last Captain Stafford halted them at a division of the trail where four winding, dusty roads stretched away into immeasurable distances, like lonely ribbons.

"The Major thinks the rustlers will

"I'd take that bet," laughed Jeff. Then he reined in his horse sharply pointed toward the bank of the river and whispered sharply: "Hold it Here they come now!"

Wahoo followed the direction of his gaze and saw a group of Mexicans driving a herd of cattle into the water from the opposite bank. Several hundred head already were swimming across while shouting. Vaqueros kept them from drifting up or downstream.

Wahoo drew his revolver from its holster, but Jeff caught his arm.

"The Good Book says love your neighbor," he admonished. "We're only gettin' forty dollars a month for this job. It ain't worth it." He sat back in his saddle and started rolling a cigarette as the cattle poured up the bank and passed them unharmed. Suddenly he dropped the fat as an American voice rang out from the river bank.

"Jumpin' jellyfish," yelled Wahoo. "That's Sam McGee or I'm a liar. Come on." He put spurs to his horse and dashed away yelling "Yi-hoo! Yi-hoo!" at the top of his lungs.

The reunion between the three old pals was a hilarious affair. They pounded each other on the back and whooped deliriously.

"We been hunting all over Texas for you ever since that night the posse separated us," explained Wahoo as he tried to break the ribs of scrawny, red-headed Sam with a mighty bear-hug.

"There ain't two fellers in the world I'd rather see," grinned their long-lost partner. "But right now we got business. C'mon. Give me a hand with these cattle before the Rangers come."

"Say, whose outfit is this?" inquired Jeff.

"Oh, they're just some strays that took a notion to follow me across the Rio Grande," chuckled Sam. "The sooner we get rid of 'em the sooner we'll get our money and the sooner I'll see Maria."

Thursday night the CCC boys practically won the second half title when they came from behind to beat the Firemen. Although Doc's Sandwich Shop won their game from the Merchants the Camp still has a game lead with only two to play counting last night's games. The Camp will have to lose one of these remaining games and Doc's win both of theirs for the Sandwich team to get a tie for this half. The odds are that this won't happen. In case the half does win in a tie the two teams will meet in a three-game series to decide the second half winner. If Doc's does happen to tie the Camp for the title in this half and wins the playoff series they will be declared the full season winners. If they fail to win the playoff or fail to tie for the second half title, then they will meet the Camp in a five-game series to determine the season's winner. The dates of the games will be decided upon by the two teams.

The Sandwich team played one of their best games Thursday night in defeating the Merchants 5-0. The losers didn't connect for a real hit until after one was out in the final inning. The winners played brilliant ball afield and slammed out some nice hits while the losers were a little lax in the field and even worse at the plate.

The Firemen led the Camp team up until about the fourth inning at which time the smoke eaters defense crumpled which, coupled with some timely hitting on the part of the winners allowed the latter team to emerge victorious by a score of somewhere in the neighborhood of 11-7. The loser's play for awhile had the supporters of Doc's in a high mood for a loss by the Camp would have left them in a tie with Doc's.

JOHN E. MILLER THANKS VOTERS

To my friends who were so interested in my campaign and all who saw fit to assist me, I wish to thank personally but will have to take this method of extending my heartfelt thanks for all favors. I feel, as many others do, that a little more time before the run-off would have made a difference in my favor, but since the majority rule must have sway my hat is off to the winner.

Our Democratic Chairman is one of the most fair minded men I have ever known and I trust that no one will blame him for the late discovery of the error which placed me in the run-off at so late a date; it was just one of those unusual occurrences.

Respectfully,
John E. Miller,

Lets Talk About Clothes
TEXAS STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN (CIA)

Defton, Aug. 24. If you're going to college, your chief interest at the present time it a suitable wardrobe. Stores all over the country are cooperating to show the most suitable and smartest fashions that will find their way to colleges and universities this fall.

Suppose we look first at the street and sports clothes. Sweaters, jackets and blouses are tops on any campus—they are your first prerequisite. There are plain boyish models that can be slipped on and then forgotten, or you can select one of the twin sweater combinations with the new interesting belted back. For dress-up occasions, there are boucle sweater suits that will find their way to many informal open house receptions.

Skirts should be just as plentiful and varied as the sweaters. They can be plaids, checks, or solids, and you can make interesting combinations by wearing a contrasting jacket.

You'll certainly want a suit. The new town models have a short fitted coat over which is worn a tweed topcoat trimmed in a large fur collar. They are especially adaptable to the needs of college girls. Girls at Texas State College for Women (CIA) find them excellent for week end football games. In addition, you should have a sport coat for classes—something casual in camel hair or the like.

An afternoon dress that can be worn to teacher college functions, or for dinner in town is a necessary item, and some of the wool shirtwaist dresses are especially nice for dates and classes. Get them in bright colors and they'll look very nice under a neutral tone sport coat.

SAFETY AND PLAYGROUND APPARATUS

Learning situations abound in the use of playground apparatus. For this reason most schools provide swings, teeters, slides and other pieces. But provision alone is not sufficient, for accidents can and do happen. Like most accidents, however, they are to a large extent preventable, hence a definite responsibility falls to the school authorities, chiefly the principal teacher, and custodian.

In placing apparatus, consider the ground surface and the proximity of ball fields. A rough stony surface may cause jagged dirty wounds, not to mention the devastating effect upon clothing. Thrown or batted balls are especially dangerous, so it is common practice to place apparatus as far as possible from game areas.

The teacher's job is the organization and training of pupils for correct use of the apparatus. Thoughtful behavior, proper habits, and a sportsmanlike regard for the other fellow are fundamental to all aspects of safety. Older children should be taught to safeguard the younger.

In some respects the custodian's job is the most important of all. He must insure safety of the apparatus itself. A worn rope or chain, breaking under strain, may give one a nasty fall. Splinters from slides and swing seats may cause severe puncture wounds. These and other possibilities can be prevented by frequent inspection and prompt repair, otherwise the apparatus should not be used.

"SANDPAPER" C. C. C. CAMP PAPER AT LAMESA HAS RAY CULP EDITORIAL

From "Sandpaper," CCC Camp at Lamesa, comes an editorial by Ray Culp, faculty adviser of the camp, which was sent us thru the kindness of Mrs. W. H. Culp, and which we are pleased to publish below:

One Hundred Years

Last week Texas opened her huge Centennial birthday party, to last until November 29—a colossal celebration of one-hundred years of progress unprecedented by any political state in the annals of history.

Whether or not we are privileged to attend any part of the giant exposition, we should, as Texans, take an active part by keeping up with accounts of the various events as published in newspapers and other periodicals, by listening to programs emanating from the different exposition centers by radio, and by posting ourselves on the history of the State. By doing this we should be inspired anew to become better Texans!

Citizens of the State, during the century just past, have become noted all over the world for their moral, spiritual, and physical courage, resourcefulness and democracy. These qualities are mostly responsible for our reputation for local color and individuality. Then, we should also observe this year as a period of checking up; we should take stock of our ambitions, aspirations, and ideals as not to become victims of spiritual inertia. We cannot stay still and rest on the laurels of Texans who have preceded us; we must perpetuate those ideals. Mentally, we are apt to become drugged by looking back; we must look forward and go forward with Texas, reinspiring ourselves for greater things as individuals and as citizens of a great State. The truth, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he," is equally as true in this respect as it is from a religious standpoint.

Let us rededicate ourselves to "the proposition that all men are created free and equal," and take new courage to make ourselves more worthy to be called Texans!

JOE E. BROWN IS COMING TO REGAL IN "SONS O' GUNS"

Joe E. Brown, the awning lipped comedian, promises to bring an unusually big package of laughs in his new Warner Bros. film musical romance, "Sons O' Guns" which is scheduled to open at the Regal Theatre on next Saturday night at 10:30, and showing Sunday and Monday.

The picture is based on the rollicking Broadway stage hit of the same title by Fred Thompson and Jack Donahue a colorful, mirthladen tuneful comedy of World War days dealing only with the bright and hilarious side of doughboy life in the A. E. F.

Four big specialty numbers in the production were staged by Bobby Connolly who put on the original stage play.

One number from the original play "Over Here" is sung by Joe and the Chambers Male Chorus of 32 voices. The new song numbers were written by Harry Warren and Al Dubin, especially for the picture, one of which "For a Buck and a Quarter a Day," is sung by Joe and Joan Blondell.

The other Warren and Dubin song "In the Arms of the Army Man" is sung by the musical comedy star, Winifred Shaw. The fourth number is a riot of fun and fast pantomimic action in which Joe and Frank Mitchell of acrobatic fame, dances the wildest Apache ever screened.

Joe, who has three sweethearts in the picture, has the role of a Broadway entertainer who just can't get mad enough to enlist.

Beverly Roberts has the role of Joe's fiancée, while Winifred Shaw is the vixenish sweetheart from whom Joe flees into the arms, first of the army, and later the arms of a chic French lassie, a part played by Joan Blondell.

Eric Blore plays the part of a former valet of Joe's who becomes his hard-boiled top sergeant. Craig Reynolds is the tough lieutenant who forces Joe to the front and Joseph King the father of Joe's fiancée.

Joe gets into same hilarious mixups at the front, finally being arrested as a spy. Before he is gathered into the arms of the Grim Reaper, however he stumbles into a surprising situation which brings a riotous climax to a series of funladen incidents.
