KNOWING BURGLARS NET NUMEROUS "NIPS" IN COURTHOUSE JOB

Audacious burglars entered Sheriff Joe White's office via a broken window route early Tuesday morning and took some 6 or 7 cases of liquor, leaving some six cases on the west steps of the courthouse, when disturbed by Mason Crawford, who was lighting the heating system in the basement.

So far, no one has had the "job" pinned on them. Nothing else was touched in the Sheriff's office, and it is reported a truck was used to haul the liquor loot away.

It is thought the burglary happened after the nightwatchman went off duty about 5 a. m. and the lights in the business district were dark.

Hornet-Bulldog Clash Causes Word Clash of Sports Ed.-Teacher

On the eve of Gatesville's big game, with the McGregor Bulldogs, probably the biggest game of the season for both Gatesvillites and McGregorian alike, word clashes, as usual, are rife, and the air has been literally full of "forward passes, laterals, skirmishes, end runs," climaxing in a lot of rapid thought, calls by phone, telegrams and letters, probably the only ones actually benefiting by same are the phone, telegraph and the post office.

Such epistles have been received, starting late Tuesday p. m. when we were called by a party at McGregor requesting a connection with the Sports Editor, who was out.

This morning, we are informed, the Sports Editor, got a letter which was followed by a "wire" which was also followed by another wire.

All of which, does no particular harm to either parties, and does help to work up a lot of interest in a game which is now about as historical (to this section of the country) as the Yale-Harvard game is to the elite east.

Below was the lineups for both the Bulldogs and Hornets which were sent in by The Hornet's Nest and Principal Harold Jenkins of the McGregor Public Schools, which arrived, too late for Tuesday's edition, of which we are sorry. It was the intention of the News to "come out" after the game, but a taste of turkey ruined all these plans, and after a "huddle," it was decided to take our turkey and Thanksgiving with the others, mailing the paper out at the usual time, but finishing up sometime early Thursday morning.

NOTES FROM THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE

The State Supervisor for District No. 15, Mr. A. M. Tate has given out the information that he will be in Coryell County for the purpose of visiting schools and working out State Aid Applications beginning Monday, November the 30th. He made the statement that he hoped that school boards would be able to be present when each school was visited. The school business is one of the very greatest importance and will go right much more often if all concerned are interested sufficiently to meet with those who study the school work most dilligently.

The State Department has been very liberal with Coryell County Schools. This will be continued in proportion to the amount of actual good that is derived from the money spent. An understanding is one of the most economical acts of man.

It is hoped that teachers and trustees in schools that need state aid will meet requirements rather than argue to "just let us by this time." Study the score card in schoolman's Calendar and Guide.

Many school people and school children visited the Centennial in Dallas during the last few days. There is much of the best thinking of the times represented in the instruction given out about the materials collected in Dallas at this time. Some who visit the Centennial

Yes Siree, Santa Claus will be here Thursday evening of next week with his bag full of candy to give away to the kiddies. He will make his initial appearance at 6:30 on this eventful evening, when all the merchants will have their windows and store interiors decorated, toyed, and gifted for the Christmas Holiday Season. Also, electricians, wood-cutters and others have been preparing for Old Santa's coming out party since last Monday, and the "main switch" will be turned on Thursday evening at 6 p. m. and the festivities will continue until 8 p. m. or later.

Merchants of the city, in co-operating with other local agencies have gotten 150 cedar trees to provide the "green" for the occasion, and the electricians and others have "crowned" the courthouse with a myriad of lights that will be touched off Thursday evening. Garlands are to be strung artistically throught the downtown district and around the square, in order to give a more hearty welcome to the thousands of kiddies from 6 to 60 who are invited to be present on this auspicious occasion.

A special request has been given to all merchants to do their decorating early, so that things will be in shape for this opening. At a meeting of various business men and others Monday morning, plans were formulated for this work, and a committee composed of Horace K. Jackson, Eiland Lovejoy and C. H. Wallace was named as an arrangements committee.

Gatesville is usually decorated for the holidays, but this year it is expected that the city, merchants and all others interested will surpass whatever effort that had been made in the past, giving the city a colorful, festive appearance for the holidays.

A CORRECTION

In the items which have previously appeared concerning the Coronation of the Queen at the Gatesville High School Gymnasium last Thursday, the names of some of the most important participants were omitted. Miss Maxine Lovejoy was the Junior Maid-of-Honor to the Queen and Princess from the Gatesville Elementary School. She won the election by a large majority. Her escort was Tommy Lasseter, and she wore a lovely orchid taffeta frock with rhinestone trim and rhinestone tiara.

Miss Rosylene Anderson, representative of the Junior Class was maid of honor to the Queen and wore a lovely taffeta dress of intense blue with a coronet of rhinestones.

We regret very much these omissions. It was entirely unintentional on the part of the directors of the ceremony and of those who wrote the accounts.

will be able throughout their lives to think better, live better, and be better after their visits. Others may have visited with less constructive thinking and therefore will derive less benefit from the investment.

Many Coryell teachers will attend the State Teachers Association at Fort Worth Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

GERMANY enters the winter facing an acute food shortage. With the normal food deficit of 20 per cent increased by poor crops, meat, butter, eggs, and fat are being rationed by storekeepers to anxious housewives under the watchful eyes of government food supervisors.

Butter is selling at 57 cents a pound, sugar at 14 cents a pound, and eggs at 54 cents a dozen. And the average German worker's weekly wage is about $11.

Since 1933, when Hitler assumed the chancellorship, taxes have soared and the worker's burden has been further increased by numerous compulsory donations to the Nazi party.

To the German housewife, the outlook for alleviation of the food shortage is poor indeed. Imports of foodstuffs are prohibited, as all available capital must be used to finance the importation of raw materials for the factories and for the army.

Wherein lies the solution of Germany's vexing economic problem? Hitler has obviously not solved it, although in many respects the German people are better off than they were in the republican days.

The war post-war inflation shattered the economic system and burdened the nation with debt. Coupled with the scarcity of natural products, foreign animosity to the Nazi regime, and the efforts taken by other nations toward economic self-sufficiency, these constitute a barrier over which the Germans have been unable to hurdle in the last eighteen years.

Would the return of the imperial colonies relieve this situation? There is no reason to believe such action would constitute a solution to the home problems, as East Africa, Togoland, Kameron, Southwest Africa and the Oceanic Islands were a source of expense rather than profits under the Kaiser.

Supplementing our report of last Friday as to the possibility of Governor Allred accepting a Federal judgeship comes an authenticated report direct from Austin that by next June the chief executive will be either a Federal district judge or a member of the United States Senate.

Texas, it is said, is sure of an additional judge and Allred is in direct line for the post unless Senator Connally should intervene and seek the judgeship himself. In the latter contingency, Allred would be appointed to Connally's vacated Senate seat.

Although Texas now has the vice presidency and the chairmanships of six major House committees and one major Senate committee, indications point to the election of Representative Sam Rayburn of Bonham as the next Democratic leader in the House.

To be chosen by the 334 Democratic members acting in caucus shortly after the January 5 convocation of the House, Rayburn has as his opposition John J. O'Connor and James M. Mead of New York, John E. Rankin of Mississippi, and Patrick J. Boland of Pennsylvania.

O'Connor is the most formidable foe of the Texan, but it is not believed he can garner all of the New York delegation, as he is at outs with Tammany and is opposed by another member of his state's congressional delegation.

Rayburn has the support of the entire Texas delegation of twenty-one members and also the backing of California, Pennsylvania is expected to swing in line due to the fact that Representative Boland would succeed Rayburn as chairman of the rules committee should the latter be elected.

The nations of Asia and Europe might well look to the American Continents where there is today no strife nor conflict, and where there is in progress a conference for the promotion of peaceable relations among the twenty-four nations of the two continents.

At Buenos Aires, representatives of all the American republics and commonwealths seek to forestall such situations as now exist in other parts of the world and to prevent armed conflict in this hemisphere to eternity.

President Roosevelt has taken one of the greatest steps toward the promotion of peace since the establishment of the League of Nations in personally attending the Buenos Aires inter-American peace conference. The stamp of approval of a great people and of a great nation has been placed upon the peace efforts of the peoples of the two American continents, and upon such action certain European and Asiatic nations must indeed look askance.

President Roosevelt may go down in the familiar history as one of the world's greatest peacemakers. In his first term he dissipated the widespread feelings of mistrust harbored among the peoples of Latin America toward this nation and righteously inspired by the actions of this country's leaders for thirty years. The Platt Amendment, under which the U. S. frequently interfered in Cuba, was abrogated and the Marines were withdrawn from Nicaragua. "Equality" was the watchword sounded in all relations between Washington and the nations of Central and South America. And those nations generously responded to the extended hand of friendship. The result is the Buenos Aires meeting.

"ADD ANOTHER PEE, BOY" MORE COTTON IN COUNTY

Mr. W. R. Goodson, Special Agent for the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Census, in his November 24th report, reveals the facts that we're quite a bit ahead in cotton production this year, and would say, "Boy, put on another pee."

The count, according to Mr. Goodson, is 18,183 bales up to November 14, compared with 13,869 this same time last year. This puts us on the "black" side of the ledger to the tune of 4,314 bales. Now take this, to make it even, 4500 bales, times 500 pound bales, at 12 or more cents, and we have at least $270,000.00 more dollars in this county than there was last year.

THANKSGIVING

By Bellmay Bellecor

The best of His best, in replica giving,

To this feast of the day, is not truly Thanksgiving
But the throb of the heart for His blessings to impart,
His manifold giving and undiminished reserve.

Our faith in His bounty, our faith in His trust,
A willing adventure and repetition of labor
Dedicating ourselves to His service, wholly, not in part
We the gainer, but He, the gracious Giver.

Spreading the feast; His love, mercy and greatness to show
With faith; He will do in the future, what He has done in the ago.

Yes, even more for He is not limited, His store-house not explored

Likewise our minds that He has sieved
There are maps to trace and plans to make
And patterns to fit to fill the space.

Economizing and utelizing, no tid-bits to waste
And ah! even more wonderful than designs in fabric and lace.

The greater the effort the greater the prize

The reward is as sure as the day's sunrise

The fruits of our toil in chemistry from soil

Demonstrating His promises to the big and little

No fear of the ages, His engineer is true

For He made in His plan a plentiful land,

And with this His commandment to man-subdue,

Real Thanksgiving means obedient response.

Dominion to gain that peace may reign

Thankful that the world is our's

The land, the trees, the grass and beautiful flowers

To fill, to grow, to sow and then gather.

We reapers from life He has given

We His children of His promise

Never forsake us nor leave us alone

Thanksgiving to Him and for Him.

F. F. A. INITIATES FIRST YEAR WORK THURSDAY AT GYM

The Gatesville Chapter of Future Farmers met last Thursday morning, Nov. 19, in the local gym with the purpose of initiating all first year future farmers to the degree of a Green Hand.

To become a Green Hand there are certain requirements that a boy must meet, such as: learn the future farmer creed. After all boys had said the creed, the initiation was carried on by second year boys and their advisor, W. E. Lasseter.

Each officer was placed at some particular position in the gym. After the opening ceremony was gone through and the house was properly open for business the boys who were to be initiated were brought in and led by Foy Wicker and Harry Voss to the various officers. These officers had different parts to say, telling the boys how important farming is and what a great responsibility a farmer has.

The advisor, W. E. Lasseter, showed the boys a Green Hand pen and explained what each symbol on the pen meant. The boys were then declared Green Hands and the meeting closed with the regular closing ceremony.

SYNOPSIS

Carrie Snyder operates a rendezvous for the town's gay blades in small Crebillon, La. A youngster of eleven, Paul Darney, looks upon her as his best friend. Carrie is forced to leave town by the council. Paul runs away from home and takes refuge with Nick, a tramp river fisherman. He rescues Lady, an orphaned six-year-old girl, from a train wreck and brings her to Nick. Carrie hears of their plight and brings the two children to New York. She goes into the dry-cleaning business and is successful. The children get the best of everything. Lady is in love with Paul but he doesn't know it. Complications set in when Lill Eipper, sister of a fellow whom Paul accidentally killed, sets her cap for Paul.

CHAPTER VII

ON the train for St. Louis Paul told me a little about Lill Eipper, and it wasn't too reassuring. Franz and Lill were orphans, he said. Lill, who worked as a nurse, was about twenty-five, and had made her own way since leaving high school. Franz, several years older than she, had never earned his sense of guilt, and had finally blazed out at him: "All right, be noble, then. Be a softie with chronic irritation of the conscience. If you ask me, you and your conscience are a damned nuisance."

Paul had looked hurt and helpless at that. He didn't know that the object of her wrath was not himself but Lill Eipper.

She arrived finally, and Paul, who met her at the door, introduced us. There was a faint smile in the drooping corners of her bitter mouth as she took my hand. She was a small woman, but mature. "She's closer to thirty than twenty-five," I said to myself. "Clothes all right but she doesn't wear them easily. Still, I suppose she wears uniform most of the time, so that doesn't mean anything."

At dinner that night an odd thing happened. The dining-room was crowded, and the waiter so busy that he served coffee without removing she get from Macy's to Franklin Simon's? Where was the best place to buy shoes? Couldn't he have lunch with her?

Then the Lady volcano began erupting by wire from Baltimore. What was the Eipper doing with Paul? Why didn't I write oftener and say more?

When I got home, late the following Saturday afternoon, I found Lady and a large light-haired boy she introduced as Mat, having cocktails in the living-room. They'd driven up for the weekend, Lady said, so she could get a look at the Eipper.

Mat was a good-looking boy in good clothes, and it was plain to the eye that he was in chains and that she didn't care a hoot whether he was or not.

After a little Lill came in. She dismissed Mat with one quick glance and began studying Lady, and Lady, while she talked a blue streak with enough to be able to help her much, but he was devoted to his sister and wrote to her regularly and often.

"Even before Franz's death," he finished, "Lill had a rotten break of luck. She may not want to talk much about herself. I can't say any more than that. But I hope you'll be good to her. She's the little sister Franz would have done things for if he hadn't—if he had lived."

"All right," I said. "I've never mistreated one of your guests, have I, whether he was a battered old tomcat or a hami scribbler swollen with self-importance?"

His face cleared and lights began dancing in his brown eyes.

We went to the Statler Hotel, where Lill was staying, and engaged rooms for the night. She was out at the time, so we left word for her to call us when she came in.

Paul was fidgety as we waited. Was he wondering what she would think of the self-confessed half-murderer of her brother? I didn't know what he'd written her, but I was certain that in his determination to be honest he'd made himself out to be at least that. At home, whenever we'd tried to convince him of his blamelessness in the matter of the accident he'd refused to argue the question. Even Lady, who had come up for a weekend to see if she could help—I'd promised to keep her informed about Paul, so I had to write her about the affair—had been unable to make a dent in the spare silverware we hadn't used. Lill was talking as we all stood up to go. I saw her picking up her fishfork, her butter knife, and a couple of spoons. I looked at Paul. He shook his head. Leading the way, she walked up the main aisle and started to hand the silverware to the headwaiter, then drew back her hand, hurried back to the table, and laid the stuff down. She smiled grimly and her black eyes were furious as she rejoined us. "That's something we had to do in training school," she said, "and occasionally the old habit functions again."

So we brought her back to New York and installed her in Lady's room. When she heard of it, that calm and open-minded young person wrote that before she'd set foot in it again it would have to be fumigated and the mattress and bedclothes burned.

Life for the next few weeks was none too peaceful for me. Dennis Ringrose and Maggie, who had taken a violent dislike to Lill from the start, kept urging me to do something drastic. Paul was letting down in his work, they said, and though that in itself didn't matter, they were worried about a situation that would make him do such a thing. Maggie said that the Eipper—Dennis always called her that, sounding the word as if it meant some low scaly monster—was calling Paul up every five minutes to ask childish questions—How could Mat and me, was watching the Eipper and, I could see, hating her. Lill went upstairs after a bit to get ready for dinner, and Mat went out to put up the car.

"Who is he, Lady," I asked.

"Oh, he belongs to some Maryland white trash with lots of money. Papa's old Mat Burdon, a big shot in fish and oysters, wholesale. He's all right, too. Young Mat's in Johns Hopkins. May not look it, but he's got plenty on the ball. He's a sweet ox and I like him, but that's all. When's Paul coming?"

Before I could answer we heard the front door open, and then Lill's voice and Paul's. She'd evidently slipped downstairs to wait for him in the hall. We heard her telling him something about Lady. Her voice sounded intimate and assured.

Lady's face hardened.

After a moment Paul came in and kissed her, and she smiled and talked gaily and held her head up. But the lights that had gone on inside her when she heard his step were dark now.

Dinner went off better than I had feared, and I'd begun to breathe easily again. The whole thing could still be straightened out, I thought I'd talk to Lady that night. But when the demi-tasses were brought in Lady asked for coffee in large cups for Mat and herself. "We're driving back tonight, Mat," she said.

 Thanksgiving day is here again with turkey and cranberries too. And also the McGregor Bulldogs whom the Hornets are going to subdue!
 Last Turkey day was a memorable one—the six to nothing victory over McGregor made it a perfect day. Here's hoping there is another victory over the Bulldogs in store for the Hornet fans today. Orchids to

Sport Flashes From G. H. S.
 By Jack Straw

Thanksgiving Day is here again and so are the McGregor Bulldogs. The annual clash between the McGregor Bulldogs and the Gatesville Hornets takes place this afternoon. Many of the Hornets are playing their last game for dear old G. H. S. and they are going to play their hearts out to make their final game a great one. Also some of them are veterans of the game last year. The Hornets that played against the Bulldogs last year are: J. C. Byrom, Cotton Davis, Foy Wicker, and Clovis King. Some of the players that will be playing their last year are: John R. Colgin, Foy Wicker, Roy Adams, Clovis King, Royce Davis, Ted Brazzil, Joe Baker, J. C. Byrom, Douglas White. The record of the Hornets is more impressive than that of the Bulldogs, but one can never tell how a game will come out when it is played on Thanksgiving and between such two rivals. The Bulldogs come to Gatesville with a large line and a large and slow backfield.

Tuesday Assembly
 In his final appearance before he leaves for Troup, Bro. McLean of the Presbyterian Church made a very interesting talk at the assembly of the high school Tuesday morning. Bro. McLean, while he has been in Gatesville, has made several talks in the high school which were enjoyed by everyone who heard him. He was also a great athletic enthusiast and he will be missed by everyone who has had a chance to be associated with him.

Scrubs Win Second Game, 20-6
 The Gatesville scrubs, featuring the running, passing, and kicking of Badger (Sammy Baugh) Hinsley, humbled the Oglesby Bulldogs, 20-6. Hinsley, the triple-threat star of the Hornet attack, passed to Gilbreath and Fore for two touchdowns and carried the ball over himself for the third one. In the line Byron Gilbreath, Hornet end, stood head and shoulders above the rest of the field.

The scrubs had previously defeated the Copperas Cove team, 20-13.

Gatesville - McGregor Game
 The Gatesville Hornets and the McGregor Bulldogs will battle this afternoon on the Hornet's gridiron. These two teams are old rivals and this is always an interesting game. Coach Worley will use mostly seniors, unless he has to send in others to hold the Bulldogs, because of this being the last game of the season for the Hornets. While the Hornets are small and fast, the Bulldogs can show a large and slow team. The Hornets will be one weighed from 5 to 8 pounds to a man. The best back that McGregor can offer is Tubbs. He is a fine back and played in the game last year when the Hornets fought their way to a 6-0 victory.

We pick the Hornets to take the Bulldogs by 19-7. In doing this, we keep our fingers crossed.

Friday Morning Program
 The second year clothing class had charge of the program last Friday. They presented a style show which proved to be very interesting to the audience. Members of the class modeled dresses made from silks, linens, cottons, woollens, and prints which they had made during the year. Patsy Olsen gave a reading called "Ensemble" and Gracie Nell Byars, a member of the first year clothing class, gave a piano solo.

Howard Payne Home-Coming Held; Unveiled Monument to Pioneer Baptist Minister

Brownwood, Nov. 24.—Howard Payne College, in its annual homecoming exercise here Wednesday and Thursday of this week unveiled a monument to Rev. N. T. Byars, pioneer Baptist minister in Central Texas, in whose blacksmith shop at Washington-on-the-Brazos the Declaration of Independence of Texas was signed, March 2, 1836.

The speakers for the homecoming program included Senator Tom Conally, R. C. Campbell, Secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Texas; Dr. Karl H. Moore, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Brownwood; the Rev. J. M. Dawson, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Waco; and the Rev. Ben M. David, pastor of the Field Street Baptist Church of Cleburne. Dr. Moore and Mr. Dawson are present pastors of the two largest churches that were established by Byars.

The monument that was unveiled Thursday morning on the campus near the Administration Building is of Llano blue granite and is fifteen and one-half feet high. It was unveiled Thursday morning before a crowd of several hundred students, ex-students and friends of the college.

At the ten o'clock hour Thursday morning four Doctor of Law degrees and ten Doctor of Divinity degrees were conferred on fourteen outstanding friends of Howard Payne. The Doctor of Law degree was conferred on the following: W. W. Chancellor, Pastor First Baptist Church, Mineral Wells; Joseph Martin Dawson, Pastor First Baptist Church, Waco; Tom Connally, United States Senator, Marlin, Texas; Robert Clifford Campbell, Executive Secretary Baptist General Convention, Dallas. The following were honored by the degree of Doctor of Divinity: Anson David Foreman, Jr., Pastor First Baptist Church, San Angelo; Ewing Stanford James, Pastor First Baptist Church, Cisco; Benjamin Miner David, Pastor Field Street Baptist Church, Cleburne; Robert Elisha Day, Pastor First Baptist Church, Big Spring; John Frank Weedon, Pastor Central Baptist Church, Jacksonville; Charles Simon McKinney, Pastor First Baptist Church, San Benito; Oren Carroll Reid, Pastor First Baptist Church, Lawton, Oklahoma; McKinley Norman, Pastor First Baptist Church, Waxahachie; Lester S. Richardson, Pastor Central Baptist Church, Houston; Clinton Earl Lancaster, Pastor First Baptist Church, Pampa.

On Wednesday evening the surviving relatives of Noah T. Byars were honored by banquet at the Girl's Dormitory. Some 25 descendants of Byars were present.

The main addresses of the program were delivered by Rev. Ben M. David on Wednesday morning, Senator Tom Connally on Wednesday evening and by R. C. Campbell, Secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Texas on Thursday morning. The celebration was concluded Thursday afternoon with the annual football game between Howard Payne and Southwest-ern.

Ireland 4-H Club

With Thanksgiving in the offering and turkeys struttin' around in the barnyard, the Ireland 4-H Club Girls thought of Thanksgiving dinners and celebrated ahead of time with a "Chicken dinner" (chickens being more plentiful hereabouts). The dinner was given Friday evening at 6:30 p. m. at the home of their sponsor, Mrs. W. C. Taylor.

Members and guests were seated at small tables which were covered with white linen cloths centered with bowls of yellow chrysanthemums. The place cards and favors were miniature turkey gobblers with the 4-H Club insignia on the wing.

Those present were Miss Sydney Gale Gibson, Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Taylor and son of Ireland, Misses Onie May Patterson, Georgia Jane Grubb, Eloise Squyres, Lillie Bunnell, Laura B. Hampton, Bernice Squyres, Donnaleta Patterson, Mable Meissner, Ethelyn Pagel, Jamie Lynch, Nannie K. Bunnell, Elaine Watkins, Irlada Austin, Alice Mae Stubblefield and Ruby Lee Robinette.

WOMEN OF BAPTIST CHURCH IN WEEK OF PRAYER

Beginning Monday, November 30 at 3 p. m. the women of the First Baptist Church will observe the Annual Week of Prayer for the Lottie Moon Offering for world wide missions. On each day of the week, except Wednesday the women will come to the church at three o'clock.

Mrs. J. O. Brown, as Chairman of Missions, for the local W. M. U. will preside at each of the meetings. Year by year as this season of prayer is observed the theme "Christmas for Christ" has come to have a new meaning to many women. Christmas Carols and other special vocal and violin numbers arranged by Mrs. E. H. Schloeman, as pianist, will be featured each day. On each of the four days Mrs. C. A. Morton will sing "God Leads His Children." Mrs. Evan J. Smith will give a review of the booklet, "Palestinian Tapestries."

"Teaching, preaching and healing" will be presented in programs developed by Mesdames Willis Jones, E. J. Smith, Paul Martin and Troy Jones.

Come each day and answer the question, "What is in your Christmas Offering Envelope?"

GOV. ALLRED ENDORSES CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE; ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS

Texas' first citizen, Governor James V. Allred, endorsed the 30th annual Christmas Seal Sale to fight tuberculosis in a statement to all Texas citizens today as Christmas Seals go on sale throughout the nation.

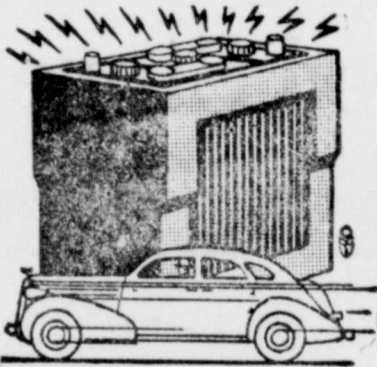

Governor Allred said, "The declining death rate from tuberculosis is ample demonstration that the state and national tuberculosis associations are accomplishing their purposes. Texas has been generous in contributing to the Texas Tuberculosis Association by the purchase of Christmas Seals each year. The thirtieth such sale in the nation presents a challenge to good citizens everywhere. As your Governor, I earnestly hope that the citizens of Texas will contribute to this cause this year to the limit that their means will permit."

Texans who purchase Christmas Seals this year will assist their state and local tuberculosis associations in a concerted drive planned for 1937 to reach more people between the ages of 15 and 45, where tuberculosis is still the leading cause of death, with those methods of diagnosis, prevention and cure which have reduced the death rate from tuberculosis more than two-thirds in the past thirty years.

FIRST TENANTS HELPED TO FARM OWNERSHIP

T. H. Scharff family, first of 200 in Texas to be accepted by the Resettlement Administration for its "farm tenant security project." The Scharff's are being helped to buy a farm in Grayson County with annual installments no greater than they were paying as rent on the same farm. In addition, the farm is to be terraced and fenced, a new house to be built with modern conveniences, surrounded by trees and shrubs. This is made possible by three percent interest and forty years in which to pay. Extension of this plan to a large percent of tenant farmers would be provided under the Bankhead Jones Farm Tenancy Bill, scheduled for action at the coming session of Congress.

afternoon. This will be the last time many of the girls will be in a stunt, as they are seniors, and the last stunt that the Pep Squad will put on this season. It is expected to be the best of the year.

The girls are divided into five groups. One in each corner of the field and one in the center at the sideline. On one end of the field two groups will form an M and an H for McGregor High school and on the other end two more groups will form a G and H for Gatesville High School. Then the group in the center of the field will form an S for school.

The Carnival

All of the advertising and work put forth on the carnival was certainly not in vain. It was a huge success and approximately three hundred dollars was cleared. This included the carnival and the race for the queen, which alone took in one hundred and thirty-five dollars. It is understood that two hundred dollars will go for the Annual which the seniors are hoping to edit. The remaining proceeds will go for things needed for the school. The two hundred dollars which is to go for the Annual cannot be used for that purpose unless two hundred books are sold by Nov. 30th. Seventy-five have been sold; therefore one hundred and twenty-five more will have to sell soon. Everyone that intends to buy an Annual is urged to do so soon.

Nicknames

We wonder if "Cookie" Cook is really as sweet as her name. Could it be that Gus Schloeman was the one who started the name "Snooks" Hayes? I wonder what "Jepo" Franks' address in Africa was. Marjorie Flentge is better known as "Betty-Boop." We shall always wonder why Zack Fore is called "Speckle." It would take a lifetime to figure out why Marshall White is called "Flirt." I've heard that Joe Baker is called "Scrub". Could it be true?

PRESERVE NUT MEATS BY HOT-WATER PROCESS

A new home method for keeping nut meats fresh—using a water bath canner such as many housewives use to process fruits—is announced by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Many farm families who make a winter industry of preparing shelled nuts for sale or home use, often take a loss when warm weather causes the oil in the nuts to become rancid. Commercial concerns avoid this staleness or rancidity, caused by light and heat in combination with air, by vacuum packing the nut meats.

The only equipment needed for vacuum packing nut meats at home, says R. C. Wright, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, who developed the method, is glass fruit jars to hold the nuts and the water bath canner to exhaust the air from the jars. He says:

"Fill glass jars with nut meats and adjust the glass lids and rubbers but do not tighten them. Set the jars in a water bath canner—either a clothes boiler or a big kettle with a rack on the bottom. Use enough water to reach almost to the top of the jars. Keep the water boiling for 15 to 20 minutes. Then seal the jars and leave them in the water until it begins to cool. Store the jars in a dark room or cover to keep them from the light. Thus processed; nut meats will keep fresh even during hot weather."

To study Soil Conservation plans and practices applied in the Gatesville Camp Area and to discuss means of coordinating the work in this district, staff members from the Dublin Soil Conservation Project and attached Soil Conservation Camps located at Denton, Brownwood and Dublin met at the Gatesville Camp, Saturday, November 21.

At a general meeting, Mr. W. R. Heizer, Soil Conservationist for the Dublin Project and Chairman of the conference, outlined the responsibilities of employees in the Soil Conservation Service and the obligations they assumed in cooperating with private land owners in establishing complete, coordinated, and practical soil conservation demonstrations.

Mr. Roy Gough, Technician in Charge of the Gatesville Camp, discussed the organization of work in the Gatesville Camp Area, the development of contour strip cropping methods adaptable to this area, and the use of pasture and meadow strips as permanent vegetative waterways for terrace outlet control.

At the group meetings informational and technical subjects and costs of established various erosion measures were discussed.

Lunch was served in the Camp Mess Hall.

The afternoon was devoted to a field trip on which the group studied conservation plans and inspected soil conservation work on 35 farms cooperating with the Gatesville Camp and soil conservation practices on numerous other farms.

Illustrations from the Wesley Ruggles production for Paramount, featuring Gladys George and Arline Judge.

SYNOPSIS

Carrie Snyder operates a rendezvous for the town's gay blades in small Crebillion, La. A youngster of eleven, Paul Darnley, looks upon her as his best friend. Carrie is forced to leave town by the council. Paul runs away from home and seeks refuge with Nick, a tramp river fisherman. He rescues Lady, a six-year-old orphan girl, from a train wreck and takes her to Nick's. Carrie brings the two children to New York. She enters the dry-cleaning business and is successful. Paul graduates from college and works in a literary agency. Lady attends a finishing school. When Paul becomes interested in a girl, Lili Eipper, Lady, who is in love with Paul, marries Mat Burdon in spite. Carrie, through a detective, discovers that Lili is an ex-convict. Lili leaves town but Paul follows her.

CHAPTER VIII

LADY'S strained visit and sudden departure had one good effect: it made Lili decide to find an apartment for herself and move into it. Where she got the money I don't know—from Paul, probably. Also it seemed to set Paul to thinking

"The poor kid!" I said. "The poor, proud, jealous hotheaded child! Maybe you couldn't help it, Paul, but you're responsible for this."

"I know it," he said, and turned and walked out, his head down.

There'd be no Paul and Lady dancing through the summer, everything made up between them, and two dark darlings. And I was an old woman, licked to a frazzle and creeping to bed before darkness came.

When the big car rolled up to our iron gate the next day Lady was out of it before it stopped. She was a lovely, spirited thing, standing there, gallantly making believe that all was well. Then she and Young Mat rushed in, Old Mat behind them.

Old Mat was a ruddy-faced pirate, not as tall or broad as the son, but with the same nice gray eyes and captivating grin. From the way he turned them on Lady, it was obvious the chances were she hadn't told him, I had reasoned.

The report on her had arrived the day before and I understood now why she had gathered up the silver that night in the Statler, and why she was picking up odd jobs of nursing instead of applying for work at the nurses' registry, as my doctor had suggested. It wasn't at the nurses' training school that she had to gather up her eating tools and hand them over to a superior; it was in prison!

I wanted to show the report to Paul, but I knew I must wait for the right moment to do it. It was going to be dangerous business at best.

In late August, Lady, back from Mexico, was staying at the Long Island cottage with me for a few days. I was taking a two-week vacation, the longest I could ever stand. Fighting Madame Mowbray was much more fun.

Dennis, too, was away on vaca-

Lady was a lovely, spirited thing, standing there, gallantly making believe that all was well.

more about Lady, and high time it was, too. She was coming back soon for the summer vacation—her last before graduation.

The night before she was due, Paul and I were having a quiet evening at home. He'd brought along a manuscript to read and I'd laid out the cards for my usual solitaire, but we fell to talking instead.

At about eight the phone rang, and Paul answered. "It's for you, Aunt Carrie," he said. "Baltimore calling."

"That will be Lady," I said, "celebrating the end of school by a long-distance call." It was Lady, but she wasn't celebrating. Her voice, after the first few words, dropped almost to a whisper, as if failing under the thing it had to tell. "What's wrong, Lady?" I said. "Tell me." Then it came:

"Mat and I were married this afternoon, Aunt Carrie."

I said, "Just a moment, Lady. Paul wants to speak to you." I couldn't talk or listen any more.

After a while Paul came back and stood leaning his head and shoulder against the doorway. Knocked to pieces he was, too, his usually tight, alert body slack and sagging. He said, "I talked to Burdon, too. They're coming up tomorrow on their way to California and Mexico. His father's coming with them this far and going back by train. I'm going out for a bit now, Aunt Carrie, if you don't mind."

that she'd captured him, too. I liked both Mats, and things seemed right enough except for the high strained notes of Lady's laughter that would have made a quick man want to kill himself.

After dinner, when Lady went upstairs to prepare for the trip, I followed her. "Is everything all right, Lady?" I asked.

"It was a brainstorm, Aunt Carrie. But I've got to see it through."

We heard Paul's step on the stairs. He came and stood close to Lady.

"Are you mad at me, Paul?"

"I'm mad at myself, Lady."

She was looking into his eyes now, and there was nothing and nobody between them. I slipped away. "Those two, God help them," I said to myself. "They both know it now, but it's too late."

They came down presently, and old Mat started back to Baltimore while young Mat drove up the river with Lady. Lili phoned that she was blue and lonesome, and that took Paul away.

I was glad to be alone, though, and have time to think. In an attempt to solve the Eipper problem—it was just after she'd left us to live in her own apartment—I had put a private detective on her trail. If Paul wouldn't give me the low-down on her I'd get it myself, before she got him, I'd determined. Besides, if it was anything really bad, tion, and Paul was staying in town in order to have more time at the office. Lady said the one and only reason he stayed in town was to avoid her, but she called him up every day. Their conversation always ran to considerable length, and there were tones in her voice that turned my heart upside down to hear them.

He was to spend the next weekend with us, and on Saturday morning Lady was up with the dawn, rushing about the house, planning the dinner, seeing that everything was in order. Before lunch she dragged me out for a drive along the shore. We got back shortly after twelve, and there on the front porch was Maggie Devlin, sitting straight and stiff in a rocking-chair. To Lady's shouted greeting she made no answer. "She looks like one of the Fates," whispered Lady, leaping from the car and running up the steps.

"You won't be hugging me," I heard Maggie saying as I came up, "you won't be hugging me when you hear what's happened. Paul is gone. There was a letter from the Eipper in the morning mail, and when he'd read it he put on his hat and said he had to go away—might be gone for several days—and that he'd wire us from Jefferson City, Missouri. That was the postmark on her letter."

"Yes," I said, "and that's where the state prison is."

FARMERS DEMAND CONTOUR STRIP CROP LINES

In an effort to serve farms cooperating with the Gatesville Soil Conservation Camp and in order to get fall strip crops planted between rains, the Camp Staff has been called upon to run one hundred twenty-seven miles of strip crop and terrace lines during the past two weeks.

The staff assisted by CCC enrollees ran fifty-seven miles of these lines during the week ending November 14, 1936, and seventy miles during the week ending November 21, 1936.

Practically all of the strip crop and terrace lines have been run on farms cooperating with the Soil Conservation Service in this area.

Cooperating farmers are planting these erosion control strips to winter oats and winter wheat and as soon as seeding operations are completed more than 6000 acres of crop land will be protected from erosion by contour strip cropping, contour tillage, and terracing where necessary.

The Great Texas Centennial closed last Sunday.

TEMPLE FARMER QUALIFIES FOR AAA WITH STRIP CROPPING

Farmers attending the Soil Conservation Field Day through the Elm Creek watershed Dec. 12 will witness a striking example of how a farmer has controlled a 3,100 foot slope with terraces, supplemented with strip crops and permanent meadow strips.

The farmer is Charles Ocker, 13 miles east of Temple, who in one year and without losing a crop, has established two permanent meadow strips in little blue stem grass. At the same time he is using a plan of strip cropping with oats, clover and grain sorghums which qualifies him for soil building payments under the AAA program.
