WORLD COMMENT

 BY JOE BURNS

Britain and Italy have reached an agreement to maintain the status quo in the Mediterranean and still a tension has kept relations between the two powers the conquest of Ethiopia by the Fascists.

Both powers made concessions which they hitherto had declared would not be forthcoming under any circumstances. Britain, along with France, extended de facto recognition of Premier Mussolini's conquest. Both powers simultaneously transformed their Legations in Addis Ababa into Consulates General.

Reciprocating, Italy temporarily at least renounced the Fascist aim of making the Mediterranean an Italian lake, and gave assurance it will respect the status quo of the Mediterranean particularly in regard to the Balearic Islands, adjoining Spain.

The Spanish Loyalist Government has charged that General Francisco Franco's rebels, already recognized by Italy and Germany as the legal government of Spain, have promised concessions in the Balearics to Italy in exchange for military aid.

Both Britain and Italy welcome a peaceful settlement of their differences. Traditional friends, it is not to the liking of either London or Rome that the two powers should not be on the friendliest of terms. Britain faces unrest in India, a challenge to its interests in the Orient by Japan, and a war-like Germany threatening to break the peace in Western Europe. Downing Street will breathe easier with the life-line to the East assured.

To Italy, it was an impossible task to build its navy to the size of the British fleet. Mussolini realizes also that Italian capital and initiative had best be concentrated in Ethiopia for years to come rather than in fighting Britain in a war of which was ascertained before the first shot could be fired.

Implications of the strange drama that is being enacted in China are yet to be made apparent. Whether international intrigue with Soviet Russia or Japan at the forefront is responsible for the capture of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek by a rebellious warlord is yet to be ascertained.

For world peace it is to be hoped that the daring kid-napping-scheme originated in the famous brain of Chang Hseuh-Liang, former warlord of the Chinese province of Manchuria, now the Japanese puppet state of Manchukuo, are extremely difficult to control when conditions narrow down to acts emanating from Moscow.

At this writing it is generally accepted that General Chiang is alive, but when and how his release will be affected is another case in point. Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, Christian wife of the Chinese leader, has flown by airplane to Sianfu, center of Marshal Chang Hseuh-Liang's revolt, to negotiate for his release.

Marshal Chang is said to be demanding a huge cash payment for his prisoner's release and assurances of a safe conduct from China to Europe. These conditions can and will be easily

Snow-bound

When Whittier wrote his immortal poem picturing the beauty and the terror of winter, the isolation of the farm dweller was real and menacing, not only in the poet's New England but in all America.

Today, thanks to the telephone, the scene is different. The telephone banishes rural isolation. It promotes neighborliness. It binds together the family and its absent members. It is a protection in emergencies.

Among all the conveniences which add to the comfort of modern rural life, nothing contributes so much—for so little—to the farmer's security and tranquillity of mind as the telephone.

SYNOPSIS

Ossie Merrill, All-American full-back at Sierra and Paddy O'Riley, second string quarterback at Green Ridge, a small eastern college return to Bellport, their home town, in the summer preceding their senior years at school. Both were rivals for the affections of Cheers Reynolds, Bellport belle, but Ossie's ardor has cooled now that he meets movie stars. Paddy will have nothing to do with Cheers because of her fascination for Merrill. Despite Merrill's disparaging remarks about the "chick" football team at Green Ridge, the outfit starts its season with a bang by bowling over some of the best teams in the East.

"THIS isn't going to be any push-over," Soapy told Doc in a low voice as they sat on the bench at the end of the third quarter of the Pitt game and stared at the scoreboard which read: "GREEN RIDGE 7-0-0; PITTSBURGH 0-0-7."

Paddy dived head first—and recovered!

"Whew!" gasped Susie as she and Cheers sank back into their grandstand seats.

"O'Riley's paws need a little glue on 'em," remarked a nearby Pitt fan.

"You'll wish he had glue on his feet," snapped Cheers.

"Who knows—maybe he has," was the airy reply.

Meanwhile Green Ridge came up to the line, shifted and shifted again. The ball was snapped. The resultant turmoil seemed meaningless, but out of it Paddy came sideling through the opposing players, just escaping their clutching hands. By a miracle he escaped the pack and faced only the safety man. He ran toward the sidelines

"Ossie sure started something when he suggested 'il Oscar," Dutch commented as he patted the mascot which he carried under his arm.

"Yep," Paddy chimed in. "Let Ossie have the women. We've got Oscar."

"And what goes on Oscar," Dutch indicated the scores. "What woman has things like that printed on her?"

"There's always tattooed women," chuckled his friend. "But then, I'd still rather have Oscar."

"I don't think it's funny!" an icy voice cut in on them.

"Well, I'll be . . ." cried Paddy delightedly. "It's Cheers! How . . ."

"I said I don't think it's funny," the girl repeated as she walked toward the little group.

"You mean Oscar?" Paddy was at a loss.

The horn-toting delegation from Bellport went wild as Paddy came sideling through the opposing Pitt players.

"No. These birds all have got nice square heels," answered his assistant.

"Why don't they send in Paddy? Cheers was demanding half-hysterically of her sister at about this same time.

"I thought you came to bawl O'Riley out—not cheer him on."

"Oh, I'd like to see them put him in so he could go on his face."

Susie grinned, but was careful that her little sister did not see her.

"Pitt's ball—second down—four to go," boomed the loudspeaker. And, after the teams had unscrambled themselves on the next play—"No gain. Third and four."

"O'Riley," said the Green Ridge coach, turning to his best bench warmer. "You know what we need."

As Paddy trotted out on the field to replace a winded quarterback, Susie gave a sidelong look at Cheers. "Mind if I give a cheer—a very small cheer?" she inquired. Then, cupping her hands, she belted "Hurrah for O'Riley" and pretended not to notice that Cheers had done the same thing.

The teams lined up. Pitt's full-back dropped back for a punt. Paddy also backed up, gauging the approaching ball. He reached for it—and the oval slid through his arms. He made a rush for it as the Pitt players did the same. But to escape this lather. There he suddenly stopped, pivoted, and, as the safety man dived past him, was off to a touchdown, on an eighty yard run.

The crowd from Green Ridge, as well as a healthy delegation from Bellport, went wild at this brilliant performance. But a moment later they were silenced as a linesman, standing at the point where Paddy had evaded the safety man, pointed down and shook his head.

"Ball called back," the loudspeaker thundered a moment later. "O'Riley went out of bounds on the Pitt 39."

"Yes, and his eyes need attention," the Pitt fan remarked to Cheers.

"You mean the official's eyes," she snapped. Then to Susie she added spitefully. "I told you O'Riley would pull a boner!"

"Well, make up your mind," was her sister's good-humored answer. "Are you for him or again him?"

As the teams went into action for the next play Green Ridge shifted, then seemed to explode into action. The line opened up a wide hole for Dutch, and, with good interference, he went bucking through to a touchdown which could not be questioned, just as the final gun cracked.

An hour later the tired Green Ridge team were standing on the Pitt campus, waiting for the bus which was to take them to the train.

"I mean I don't think the letter you had Dutch write me is funny." Dutch gulped and started to ease away. Paddy shot him a murderous look.

"What do you mean, 'had Dutch write to you?'" he demanded.

"I'm sure he couldn't have thought it up all by himself," she was becoming more and more furious. "You haven't written to me for months, and . . ."

"But you didn't want me to write, did you?" Paddy was bewildered.

"No! And I didn't want to hear of you through your friends, either. And I don't want you or your friends discussing me!"

"Who said I ever discussed you?" "You just were—when I came up. You said—'Ossie can have the women!'"

"Do you think you're the only woman I've ever known?" Noting the grins of his teammates he decided to brazen it out. "And you're jumping to conclusions as usual. If you'll remember, that's always been your trouble. Look, I don't know what that lug wrote you, but if I've got anything to say to you—I'll let you know—if I've got anything to say."

"You'll never have anything to say that I want to hear," she answered through clenched teeth, and hurried away before he could see her tears.

met by Nanking authorities. Earlier demands of Chang provided that the Nanking government combine forces with those of the Chinese Communists for a war of expulsion against Japanese invaders.

Acquiescence to such demands was obviously out of the question as acceptance would have provoked immediate moves on the part of Japanese arm forces. These demands brought forth assertions that Moscow was responsible for the capture of Chiang.

General Chang holds the whip-hand and can name his own terms if they are not of a nature that will provoke international complications. For China's sake it is fervently hoped that Chiang Kai-Shek will be released unharmed.

Death has taken a heavy toll among veteran members of the Senate in the last two years.

Senator Norbeck was born on August 27, 1860, the son of an immigrant Nodwegian Lutheran minister. He went into business as a well driller when 25 years old and his first venture into politics resulted in his election to the state senate 1908.

GRAND JURORS CALLED FOR JANUARY TERM DISTRICT COURT

Accidents Mar Otherwise Perfect Xmas; No Deaths in Coryell County

Christmas spirits were dimmed to a few households in Coryell County, six wrecks being reported with a number of injuries, but no one being seriously hurt.

Starting with the pre-Christmas time, Ed Burton, an employee of Coge Brothers, contractors on Highway 7, driving a light car turned over into a ditch at the first railroad crossing on Highway 7 Wednesday damaging his car considerably but escaping unscathed himself.

Thursday when she started to Trinity, Miss Sidney Gibson, County Home Demonstration Agent, crashed headlong into another car, driver unknown, at Rocky Branch, 3 miles east of Gatesville, damaging both cars but injuring neither party.

Christmas Eve night, Newt Pruitt of Turnersville, Barney Smith and others in one car, and Mrs. Leroy McCutcheon and family in another ran together near B. E. McCoy's Station on the Jonesboro highway No. 36, about 9:30 p. m. Mrs. McCutcheon was taken to Milton Powell Memorial Hospital where she was examined, her injuries not proving serious, he was released the next day. Pruitt received first aid treatment for an injury in the head by a local physician. Others received only minor scratches and bruises. The car attempted to turn into the station when it met the other coming toward town, causing the accident. Both cars were badly wrecked.

Harry Carpenter Voss of Jonesboro early Saturday morning ran into the back of Walter Schaub's parked truck when blinded by the lights of an approaching car, wrecking the car he was driving. He received a number of cuts and was taken to the hospital where he was given medical attention, not being seriously injured, he was released.

J. R. Morris of Valley Mills, a relative of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Biffle of this city, died from injuries when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver while crossing the highway near Clifton at 1:25 Friday in the hospital there.

Funeral services were held from the Valley Mills Methodist Church at 3 p. m. Saturday. He was an employee of the Humble Pipe Line Company.

James Moss Composes March for "Bengal Guards" of Orange

James A. Moss, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Tom L. Mears of this city, has just recently published and given to Latcher Stark's famous Bengal Guards, a girls' band of Orange, Texas, an original composition entitled "Salute the Bengal Guard," and has received the following letter of thanks from that organization:

Mr. James A. Moss, Port Arthur, Texas, Dear Mr. Moss,

In behalf of our director, and members of the Bengal Guards, I wish to express our sincere appreciation for your original composition, "Salute the Bengal Guard," which you were so kind to compose and send to us. As we are having a short vacation until after the holidays, we have been unable to try it, but I wish to assure you that as soon as we resume our practice, we will be thrilled to learn your piece, and we feel flattered to have you dedicate it to us.

I hope that we will have the pleasure of having you come to some of our performances and hear us play your piece. As we have been organized a short time our repertoire is rather limited, as we have had to spend so much time on drilling. Again I wish to thank you for your kindness.

Very truly yours, Gertrude Harrison, Sec. of Bengal Guards.

Mr. Moss is a trumpeter of note and handles an orchestra besides doing his work of composing.

that the carriers may get the paper out on the routes Thursday and will not lay in the post-office over the New Year Holiday and be delivered Saturday. It will therefore be necessary to have all copy as near as possible by Wednesday noon, so that it will be ready for the mails Wednesday night.

Sheriff Joe White has been given the jury list. They are being notified in one way or another, and the January term of District Court for the 52nd Judicial District, opens here January 11 at 9:00 a. m., with Judge R. B. Cross presiding.

Graves of Oglesby; Dink Dyer, Gatesville; Willie Dreyer, Coryell City; Doyle E. Barnhard, The Grove; Carl Davis, Jonesboro; and C. L. Seward, Killeen.

So far as information is available, no inkling was given as to what cases would come up, but it is to be expected that these men will ferret out troubles enough for the petit jury to handle.

Copperas Cove May Get Streets Graveled by Federal P. W. A. Work

A $6,000 P. W. A. project to gravel all streets in Copperas Cove was offered the city last week according to G. L. Teinert, mayor, under such conditions to make it available almost for the asking.

Of the $6,000 expense the city will be required to bear only a small portion, the Federal Government bearing practically the entire burden. Copperas Cove also will be expected to furnish the gravel for the street, and Mayor Teinert is hoping those who own the gravel will volunteer to contribute theirs in order to assure the success of the project.

"Whether Copperas Cove accepts this offer, depends on the citizens," Teinert declared. "And good business dictates that we accept this offer to have our streets graveled, but the cooperation of the townspeople is necessary in order to carry it to completion."

Mayor Teinert pointed out that practically every cent of the money will be spent in Copperas Cove, approximately $3,500 go for salaries to local people, and the balance for material and miscellaneous items that will be obtainable locally.

The amount to be supplied by the city probably will be raised by donations, Teinert said. Already $25 has been subscribed by J. S. Clements, and other contributions are expected.

As the time is short in which to accept or reject the project Teinert is particularly anxious that someone offer to allow use of his gravel, as that will practically assure success of the project—Copperas Cove Crony.

COLVIN FAMILY SING OVER KTEM RADIO STATION

The musical Colvins, probably the title of the well known Coryell County family that is making its mark in the musical world by its singing. Singing in this family begins at the tender age of 2, since little Faye Colvin was featured over KTEM Temple radio station recently.

Only a short time ago, this family won the radio contest for amateurs held over KTEM, the prize being $5.00. This was on Thursday before Xmas as they had as competition entries from Cameron, Belton, Temple, Bartlett, Killeen, Eddy, Gatesville and others. Their program include two novelty song numbers and a number of others on their fifteen minute program. They ask those who heard them over the station to write in, as it will help them get other places on the radio programs.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McElroy of Odessa spent the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. John L. Roebuck of Jonesboro and other relatives.

Page Coryell County's First Baby of 1937! Boy! At least page him shortly after midnight, December 31, because he'll, or she'll, be winning lad or lassie, because the merchants of Gatesville are going to make it really worthwhile for this youngster and his honored parents.

To be in the money, so to speak, this youngster must be registered, named, addressed, a doctor's certificate must be gotten, certified, and sent to the Baby Editor, in care of the Coryell County News before 12:01 p. m. Thursday, January 7. The winner will be the ONE REPORTED! Big boy, or big girl, if you're born, but not reported by that time we and the merchants will just be sorry.

In this issue of the News the following merchants have announced gifts for this First Baby in Coryell County in 1937. They are Morton Scott, Leaird's Department Store, Painter's, Regal and Ritz Theatres, the First National Bank, E. Price Bauman, Mrs. J. B. Graves, Florist, Jim Martin, Gambin's Dairy and the Coryell County News.

Others will probably place their prizes in Friday's (Thursday's) issue of the News, so be on the watch for these as well, and more power to the winner.

NOTES FROM THE COUNTY SUPT. OFFICE

Assistant Deputy State Superintendent A. M. Tate and Mrs. Tate are here during the holidays, and Mr Tate is winding up matters in the County Superintendent's office.

Supt. Witcher stated that the Bus and State Aid reports must be in his office at once, as it is necessary for same to be in Austin on January 15.

At the State-wide meeting of County Superintendents, City Superintendents, and County Boards of Trustees to be held in Austin January 4, two members of the County Board will go, and include H. E. Huckabee and R. E. Morgan, in addition to County Superintendent J. M. Witcher.

Mr. Witcher also announces the second meeting of the Coryell County Teachers' Association will be held in the regular meeting place on January 22, and that the program and further information relative to this meeting will be made in the News at a later date.

BURGLARS TAKE FLOUR IN RAID ON GUS A. KOCH'S STORE

"Flour for Madame," was the theme song of burglars who raided Gus A. Koch's store on the west side of the river on Highway Seven last Monday night. They had the turkeys probably and needed some flour to make the gravy. They took 20 to 25 sacks, according to Mr. Koch.

In addition to the flour Mr. Koch also lost in the deal three or four cartons of cigarettes and a few cartons of tobacco.

No trace has been found of the merchandise or the invaders. They gained entrance by breaking in a side door.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

For three years the Coryell County News has devoted space to editorial comment on national and international affairs under the title head of "World Comment." The response to this endeavor on the part of the many readers of the News has been most hearty.

As 1936 draws its last, feeble breath before passing into history, the author wishes to express his sincere appreciation to those who have manifested interest in this section of the paper. Comment upon "World Comment," whether of a critical or commendatory nature, is always welcome, we assure you.

At this time when resolutions are in order, we pledge continued efforts on our part to present to you in concise form comment and sidelights on the news of the day which will make your newspaper and magazine more enjoyable.

The entire newspaper profession of America received with profound regrets the news that Arthur Brisbane, dean of American newspaper editors and columnists, was dead. For such news marked more than the passing of a man; it marked the passing of a symbol, an idea which the entire profession has come to revere, respect and love.

Millions read the terse, simple column of editorial comment on the news of the day carried by all Hearst papers and some 200 other publications. "Today," syndicated column which yielded an annual salary of $260,000 to Brisbane, consisted of 800 words or less, yet topics range from international affairs to human psychology.

The career of Arthur Brisbane was amazing as one of the Horatio Alger success stories. In his twenties he saw service as foreign correspondent, managing editor, columnist and chief editorial writer of a New York metropolitan newspaper.

In 1897 he relinquished a $15,000-a-year post on the old New York World for an $8,000-a-year job on William Randolph Hearst's New York Evening Journal to gain more freedom for experimenting with his journalistic ideas.

In 1934 he gave up his last official title as publisher of the New York Daily Mirror and limited his field to editorial work for the Hearst Syndicate.

A note of ominous warning to Japanese militarists was sounded Christmas Day throughout China following the release of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Nationalist government. That a new spirit of nationalism has arisen, that the old spirit of fatalism and defeatism has been dissipated under the energetic leadership of China's great 400,000,000 millions that comprise the Chinese Republic.

Note these Associated Press dispatches which describe vividly the jubilation following the radio announcement that General Chiang was flying to Nanking with his wife and former captor, Marshal Chang Hseuh-Liang:

"What began as a gloomy Christmas for China changed quickly into rejoicing. Firecrackers, China's means of celebration for hundreds of years, began to pop in scores of cities.

"In the capital a hectic celebration continued until midnight. Crowds thronged into the streets which had been silent and deserted previous nights.

"The countryfolk in neighboring villages joined in the celebration, gathering at their schools or other meeting places and loosing off thousands of firecrackers.

"Students of various universities in the Shanghai area gathered on their athletic fields and began celebrations reminiscent of American football days of victory."

China has awakened from its centuries-old lethargy and is responding to stimulants administered by its dictator and his Americanized, Christian wife. One of the main contributions of General Chiang has been the connecting of all sections of China by rail, air or highway, resulting in a unification hitherto unknown in the long history that is China's.

In the past millions of Chinese have died in famines while in a distant part of the country grain would be rotting in the fields for lack of markets. Chiang and his associates are fastly eliminating the repetition of such catastrophic occurrences.

Criticism has been heaped upon the lithe shoulders of Chiang by numerous patriotic organizations for not asserting himself against Japanese encroachments which in the last five years have taken Manchuria, Jehol and Inner Mongolia from the sphere of control by Nanking. These organizations have been rigorously suppressed, their members executed or imprisoned, their literature and funds confiscated, at the demands of the resentful Japanese.

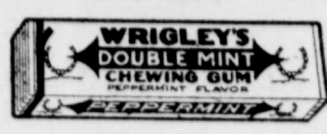

Such action is in part justified. China is not, has not been, prepared to engage in war with the well-equipped machine of Imperial Japan. General Chiang needs time to unite his people, to build an army and an air force, to carry out a general policy of reconstruction which must proceed slowly for lack of funds. A few hotheads must not control the destinies of a half billion people. China must not be precipitately drawn into a war with Japan in which it cannot hope to emerge as victor.

A Glimpse of Santa Claus' Work Shop

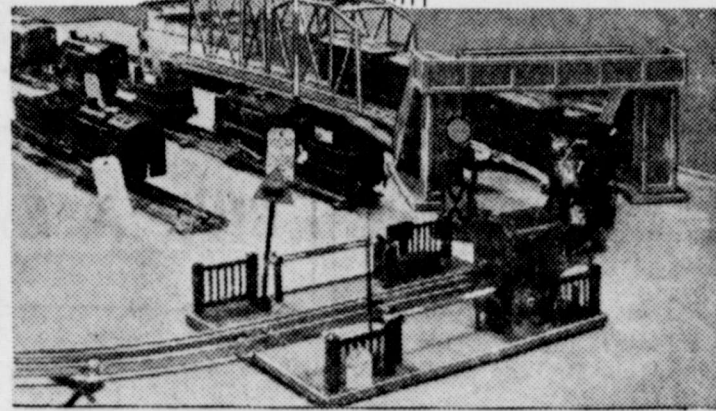

THE preview of the Christmas toys this year is reassuring. Never before have toys been more varied and fascinating. Working a year or so in advance, the toy makers seem to have anticipated the most exacting demands of every child in the world.

For hundreds of years toy makers have displayed their latest products at the Leipzig Fair, the world's clearing house for toys of every description. Imagine a thousand toy shops one after another where countless toys are wound up months ahead of time.

All the old favorite toys, as well as the latest streamline marvels will be found this year about the Christmas trees. For the air minded, the radio minded and the railway minded child there are fascinating mechanical toys as natural as life.

The greatest toy show in the world is a feature of the historic Leipzig Trade Fair, the great world market place. Today toys worth millions of

be held from February 28th to March 8th, 1937, will be its 1977 session. Toys of some kind were sold at the Fair in Leipzig before America was discovered.

Christmas festivities did not prevent several interesting sessions of the Hot Stove Club. J. R. Thompson became a member by purchasing fifty cents worth of the Coryell County News. The big drawings on Christmas were awarded prizes to Len Stockburger, Mrs. Jake Chairman, T. R. Bannister, Paul Plemmons, J. R. Thompson, Mrs. Willie Ferrell and others.

Now the Hot Stove Club believes that from henceforth, all free goods should be sold at auction the proceeds to go for hot coffee and cakes for the club members, for have not they neglected their business, their families and even some burning political issues all for the good of the club. It was the open minds of this club that saved Duke Ed from a life of remorse and melancholy. At the last meeting Sam Bass was exonerated, if that word means anything. Mr. and Mrs. Owen Parker of Port Arthur visited with the Stockburgers Christmas.

SPEED COOKING ON THE QUEEN OF SPEED

Steward-Host of China Clipper Adventures in Cooking-With-Soup to Save Time and Space.

HOW would you like to keep house while you are flying 10,000 feet in the air and going 150 miles an hour?

It's the sort of housekeeping a woman would have to catch her breath and think over, but Louis Honcock, one of the steward hosts of the China Clipper, takes it very casually indeed.

"As a matter of fact," he said, when interviewed recently before the plane took off for Manila, "I have the perfect set-up for the bachelor who likes to entertain. Fifteen delightful guests who are here around long enough to get tired with each other or to be bored with my entertainment. Plenty of thrilling sights to offer the ones who like excitement, and magnificent views and smooth sailing for those who want to rest as they travel."

Louis Honcock does a double-duty job of looking after the comfort of his passengers and preparing their meals. Like all hosts, he racks his brains to think up menus that are fun to eat and simple to prepare. "Only I'm more fortunate than the average house-keeper," he says, "because I have the advantage of meals planned scientifically by a staff of experts. And we try, you see, to match menus to weather and time."

Because of weight, most of the food is prepared in advance at the land bases in Hawaii, Wake Island, Guam and Manila, and packed in thermos containers. For on-the-spot cooking, special canned soups are carried on the lines.

Like the first meal aboard ship, the first meal on an airliner generally determines how much gastronomic fun the passengers will have for the next few days. So a light soup is a first-day-out convention on the China Clipper. To put dreams of Manila and the Chinese ports to trial and taste for his passengers, Louis Honcock heats two cans of consommé to the boiling point, gradually adds two well-beaten egg yolks and stirs constantly until the egg cooks into thin strings. This is served as a sort of high tea, an hour or so after the Clipper takes wing at 3 P. M.

A favorite dinner dish for the first night out is a real American vegetable beef stew, which the steward prepares on the spot. He simply opens a can of specially prepared vegetable beef soup, thickens it with butter and flour (two table-spoons each), tops with dumplings of biscuit mix and water and steams for 20 minutes. Out comes a rich flavored dish that makes dinner 10,000 feet above the ocean seem very cozy and homelike indeed.

These are the kind of recipes that help make the 5½-day trip over the Pacific such a palatable adventure. No wonder Louis Honcock says he'll take all bets against the fact that a mere man can juggle the contents of a couple of cans into as exciting appetite teasers as the fastest speed-cook who ever chased a man out of her kitchen!

THE NEW YORK TELEPHONE CO. is a member of 62 Rotary Clubs, 33 Kiwanis Clubs, 20 Lions Clubs, 12 Zonta Clubs and the Nut House Home Co. of Geneva, N. Y. The dues paid by the company to these organizations were going to be added to the phone rates paid by the public, but it seems the Public Service Commission is going to say nix. The commission says this is building up the rate at a great rate, and is inclined to think the practice is phony.

MISS ROSE MORRIS, whose name is to be found among the elite on page 288, line 4 of the Summer Social Register, is none other than a Pekinese dog. She belongs to Mrs. George L. K. Morris, wife of the artist, and how her name got there is causing a little embarrassment and chagrin on the part of the Social Register Association. It's no mystery to Mrs. Morris, who just filled out the Association's blank as a prank, with the name Miss Rose—the "doggiest" way she could think of describing a dog for the Social Register.

TWO OTHER DOGS became famous this summer. One is Brownie, a Brooklyn, N.Y. chow who chowed up three bandits after they held up and robbed his master of $12. Brownie followed the bandit's car and a police car followed Brownie. His owner was more afraid of Brownie's getting shot than of losing the $12, and can't figure out how the dog realized it was a hold-up in the first place.

THE OTHER DOG is Barry von Stotzenfels (sounds as though he ought to be in the Social Register 'stead of Miss Rose) and he "talks" —or is supposed to. If you ask him the time, he'll tap it out with his paw—4 taps followed by 4 taps means four minutes past four, etc. Similarly, he spells out words and names, using one tap for A, two for B and so on through the alphabet (spelling a name like Zinzer is a long, drawn-out business by this system). Barry is booked for Billy Rose's "Jumbo" show in Fort Worth according to his owner. He can tell you the names of the first and present Presidents of the U.S.—but not the name of the next President.

HALF A MILE or so of New York traffic was enough for 84 young British motorists who arrived on the Queen Mary with 33 automobiles to tour the U.S. and Canada. They decided unanimously, after driving around, to go afoot as long as they remained in the city. They were scared to death by New York's elevated pillars, taxis, playful drivers and crossings unprotected by lights, as well as having to drive to the right. London's traffic procession is more orderly, more courteous and more cautious—and gets to its destination almost as fast in the end. New York has more cars and more "quick-on-the-pedal boys"—narrow streets and the lowest auto-fatality rate of any city over 500,000 in the U. S. On the whole New York handles its traffic with remarkable efficiency considering the hazards.

The schoolboy interscholastic race for the state crown has finally wound up with the "University" of Amarillo in first place as usual. It's getting to be a habit with the Sandies to cop the crown, as this is their 4th one in three years.

Tivy High, of Kerrville, had a good team, in fact almost a great team but Amarillo took them as they have been taking them all season. And no small wonder; with the subsidy plan they use why shouldn't they have a championship team every year? Perhaps Gatesville High should seriously consider such a plan if the fans really want a good team.

Jumping to the Sugar Bowl, we pick L. S. U. to win. There is really nothing to base such a prognostication on in spite of Santa Clara's record.

Through no fault of their own Santa Clara had played no major threat teams until they met T.C.U. and then they went out like the much talked of eye of Lottie. When their schedule was made out Santa Clara had a formidable season ahead of them, but when actual playing time came all their opponents turned out to be just a shade weaker than a worn out powder puff; that is, all except the Christian Froggies. The combination of Baugh to Roach proved too much for them, and showed up their weak areal defense.

Louisiana State has a typical pile-driving, blasting team that should give the Brones plenty of headaches. Although their actual record of games isn't so impressive, they have played a much harder schedule in a more rugged conference than has Santa Clara. New Year's Day will see the South retaining the Sugar Bowl title.

Two of the nation's major Marksmen will inaugurate the Cotton Bowl clash at Dallas when Sammie Baugh, of the T.C.U. Frogs, matches heaves with Buzz Buivid of Marquette. How that game will result only those especial football gods, who sit high on their own Olympian heights, knctv. Marquette has only been beaten once this year, and that in their final game with Duquense.

Controversy over the relative passing merits of Baugh and Buivid is running high in the Southwest, headed by the venerable scribe Jinx Tucker, Baugh is supposedly the greatest heaver of the pigskin in the history of the game. But Pop Warner, one of the greatest living authorities says that Buivid is much better. So being as we never did like Jinx Tucker, we'll take Warner's word for it.

The game will draw one of the largest crowds ever to witness a football game in the Southwest, and should be worthy of all the ballyhoo being used to build up the game.

The probable outcome of the game may depend upon the two lines, and if such is the case we like the Froggies. If it is only sour grapes we still shout to the high heavens that T.C.U. should have won the Southwestern title, because they had the best team.

Houston will see big-time football next January 2 when the Chicago Bears, professional club, meet an all-star aggregation of Texas players . . . NEW YORK'S FAIR ADOPTS THEME OF MAN'S WELL-BEING

Exposition to Cost $125,000,000 Will Point Way To Better Future

NEW YORK . . . The theme and the design of New York's $125,000,000 World's Fair of 1939, which have been guarded for some time as profound secrets, were made public for the first time by Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation. The theme is entitled "Building the World of Tomorrow." The theme, according to Mr. Whalen, will light the way to the well-being of man, the betterment of life. It will be carried out in the exhibit zones, in the amusements, and in a beautiful "Theme Tower."

The design, the fruit of months of effort on the part of architects, engineers, and artists, a simple and practical one, based on the idea of giving the visitors the utmost, was unanimously approved by the seven members of the Board of Design, the most prominent men in the world of architecture, before it was submitted by Mr. Whalen to the Board of Directors for its official endorsement.

It cuts the main section of the fair grounds into ten major zones, or sectors, which will be devoted to exhibits of clothes and cosmetics, shelter, education, government, and public and social services. In each of these zones there will be a key exhibit in which the story of the sector will be dramatically portrayed, and some idea given of development for future advancement.

In the "Theme Tower" there will be a magnificent panorama depicting the progress America has made in the 150 years since George Washington was inaugurated as first President in the City of New York.

The opening of the Fair, April 30, 1939, will mark the 150th anniversary of that day. The panorama will point out the interdependence of the 48 States that grew out of the 13 Colonies, and show the interrelation of urban and rural communities.

The exhibit zones will cluster about the Theme Tower, so that Fair-goers will not have to walk until they are tired to see everything. Incidentally, Mr. Whalen said, there will be thousands of benches for the weary—benches in the shade of trees. And there will be buses outside and inside the gates so that one may explore the entire park with a minimum of walking.

Each sector will stand alone. Space will be allotted to exhibitors in a scientific, planned, and orderly manner. No exhibits of clothing, for instance, will be found outside the clothing zone.

The only exception to this rule is in amusements. There will be an amusement center along the main lagoon a mile or more long. But amusements will be sprinkled around the exhibition zones. Also restaurants will be everywhere—and fountains, and garden spots—and trees. At least 10,000 trees are to be planted.

The site of the Fair, Flushing Meadow Park, in the geographic center of the Metropolis, comprises 1216 acres—the largest area ever given over to a fair.

President Whalen estimates that perhaps $125,000,000 will have been spent on the Fair and in collateral improvements before the gates open. This sum has never been approached by any Fair in history.

The expenses will be borne by the City of New York, the State, the Federal Government, and the Fair Corporation, and various exhibitors and concessionaires. The Fair Corporation figures its probable expenditures at $30,000,000. It expects to float a $27,500,000 issue of debenture bonds. Governmental agencies and exhibitors will provide the additional millions in the form of buildings, exhibits and public improvements to make ready for the Fair.

Some of the buildings, and the roads and bridges to be constructed will be of a permanent nature, as the site will become, after the Fair, a municipal park.

A tremendous amount of work is necessary to redeem and transform the site into a Fair Grounds that is expected to attract fifty million people. Seven million cubic yards of debris must be shifted. Depressions must be filled in. Bridges must be built. A river must be canalized and dammed. Two unlovely swamps must be dredged and made into beautiful lagoons. Flushing Harbor must be developed. There will be a yacht harbor there eventually; a channel thirty feet deep will be dug to accommodate ocean liners carrying visitors to the Fair; and docks must be built so these visitors can come down the gangplank directly onto Fair property.

Automobile roads must be constructed, or widened, or extended; and two miles of subway must be built. Three subway lines and the Long Island Railroad already serve the vicinity. When the Fair opens they will be able to discharge 160,000 passengers an hour at the Fair Grounds.

Preparations are being made for a parking space that will take care of 70,000 cars, and for a camp big enough for 8500 trailers. Bus lines from all over the country will be used to transport thousands to the Fair—and the project of building a large airport—or of developing North Beach airport, to take care of visitors from the clouds, is being discussed.

The style of architecture that will characterize the main buildings of the Fair is to be decided by a Board of Design. The aim will be to introduce a new form of fair architecture. Young and unknown architects are taking part in a contest for the designing of a typical building which may have an influence upon the ultimate plan. At present it has been decided only that the height of buildings will be restricted mainly to one story.

Efforts are being made to obtain new kinds of entertainment, something that will not duplicate either Broadway or Coney Island, something that will offer wholesome amusement without being vulgar. Shows of various sorts will be held in a huge amphitheatre to be built on the north shore of the main lagoon and there will be water sports on the lagoon.

The New York Fair it is said will be the greatest show on earth.

The 1936 Oklahoma eleven tied three games, and thereby equalled the records of two other Sooner teams. The 1919 11 and that of 1922 each played three ties.

Checks due producers have been unavoidably delayed. Because of this delay there are many that have deferred buying their winter wearables and household necessities. For the past two years we have co-operated with the producers in extending to them the privilege of buying their needs on a very low cash basis, same to be paid on receipt of such checks.

Again we are extending this courtesy to producers. You know, and we know that the checks will come, as to the exact date we are unable to determine.

IN MEMORY OF J. R. RIVERS

On last Saturday night, Dec. 19, when the clock pointed to the hour of 8:20 o'clock the Death Angel hovered over our city and stopped at the home of J. R. Rivers and called his spirit away to a life beyond where death and sufferings are unknown. Mr. Rivers was a young man only 29 years of age—just in the prime of life. He was a man of great prospects and high esteem and a man whom everyone loved. He was a true Christian who loved and served his God. He was a faithful husband, a loving father and a dutiful son who will be missed.

The deceased was sick only a week, but when God calls the summons must be obeyed. No mortal hand can stay his call though it seems hard to give our loved ones and to see them cold in death. We can not understand why one so young and useful has to go God's ways and not our ways.

Mr. Rivers leaves a wife and a daughter to mourn his going; also a mother and father, three brothers and two sisters, besides a host of friends. We offer our deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones.

SHE STARTED SOMETHING

HISTORY would be richer if we had record of the first person who ever bought a commercial airplane, who ever drank a coca-cola, or the first to climb up a commercial stepladder—but those "firsts" are lost. Here is a first—one Miss Emily Horn of Elmwood Park, Ill.—that won't be lost to history. Miss Horn drove her car around the corner to a service station and was the first person to buy one of the new glass-clad batteries. Since that time, less than three months ago, nearly 100,000 more of these batteries have been purchased by housewives, doctors, grocery clerks, lawyers and others in every walk of life. They were originally designed to operate drawbridges, battleships, submarines and airplanes, but have been adapted to automobile use under the name of kathanode, and are guaranteed "as long as you own your car." They have been purchased to revive everything from a 1914 Pierce Arrow to late model low priced cars.

NEW POST FOR GUARD—The Country Home Magazine, national farm publication, announces the appointment of Samuel R. Guard as Contributing Editor. He is one of best known agricultural writers in America and owner of the Breeder's Gazette.

PEARLS AND VELVET—The most glamorous combination through the ages and now the highlight of the season's fashions. Anita Colby, screen star, took four strands of pearls, twisted them and used them as a band on a high-crowned black velvet hat. She carries out the idea in her black cocktail frock.

ROSA PONSELLE MARRIES—Rosa Ponselle, opera star, and Carle A. Jackson, son of the Mayor of Baltimore, shown after they were married in New York.

TAKES LIFE AFTER SLAYING—Hope Morgan, who killed her best friend, Elizabeth Goltner, bride-to-be and daughter of the dean of Michigan State College, as the result of a pent-up urge to kill. Photograph was taken a few hours before Miss Morgan committed suicide in her cell with a noose made of her pajamas.

New Grouping Increases Light and Air in Home

A DECADE or two ago, houses all over the country began to sprout sun-porches. Countless outside porches were glassed in, insulated and used as an extra living-room by the entire family. When a suitable porch did not exist, an additional room was often added for this purpose. Chintz, wicker and cages of canaries brightened every neighborhood.

The joys of plenty of sunlight were found, after a while, however, to have certain drawbacks. Pleasant by day, these rooms were discovered to have the traditional privacy of the goldfish bowl after dark. Under electric light, either every one of the many shades had to be drawn or the whole neighborhood and casual passersby had a spot-lighted view of the family life. Also, being entirely of windows, these rooms were hard to decorate in an attractive way.

The corner grouping of windows was a logical compromise and so successful that they are rapidly increasing in popularity. This arrangement of windows is not confined to any one room in the house. It is suitable for living room, dining room, bedroom or breakfast nook. It provides an adequate but restricted area of unobstructed light and air without disturbing the functions of the room as a whole. There are two types of application for the living room. One is the placing of two groups of French doors at the corner of the room as illustrated. These provide air and light and also give easy access to the outside garden or terrace.

Another is to have two groups or two or more regulation casement windows. Broad window seats on one or both walls, will provide a place for reading or resting as well as a grand play-space for children, with storage space for toys inside the seats. Here children can play in sunlight while mother mends, goes over her accounts and yet keeps an eye on what is going on. In a home with a separate nursery, the same plan can be worked out there.

The breakfast nook is a particularly pleasant place to use this double grouping. Nowhere is it more pleasant to have plenty of sunlight and air than at the breakfast table. Too often these spaces are dark and totally devoid of any circulation of air at all, and just a little planning would make possible this change. You will find too, that you use this alcove for many purposes outside breakfast.

In building a new home, this type of grouping is, of course, easy enough to arrange, but you will be surprised to find how simple it will be to work into remodeling plans. Consult your local architect or builder and he will tell you how.

Try having a sun-corner and then wonder how you ever got along without one.

BRITAIN FAMILY OBSERVE ANNUAL XMAS DINNER

The annual Christmas festival of the Osage community was the Christmas spread at Granny Britain's home on Christmas Day.
