District Court Still in Session Here in Mid-February

District Court is still grinding on what seems to be a Marathon race, with two cases disposed since our last issue and one going on at this time.

During the past term, some 25 felony cases have been disposed of from this term's court, and four or five others which were held over from the last term was handled.

This week's cases were D. H. Culberson vs. Universal Auto Insurance Company. In this case, the jury was discharged and judgment entered for the insurance company, and the verdict was accepted, and notice of appeal was made to the Court of Civil Appeals.

Ex-Parte application of Gravel Cliff Graham to remove disabilities was granted.

The case of Ira Baker vs. U. M. Baker et al is now being tried, no verdict having been reached at this time.

Commercial Light-Power Rate Reduced in Gatesville

Effective immediately, commercial light and power rates for the City of Gatesville have been reduced by the Community Public Service Company. The City Council was advised of this fact Tuesday night of this week, and immediately approval.

Formerly, the rates were: 10c for the first 100 K. W. Hours.

8c for the next 200 K. W. Hours.
5c for all over this amount.

The new rates, effective on the March 1st bills (those which will be due March 1) are:
10c for the first 25 K. W. Hours.
7c for the next 75 K. W. Hours.
5c for the next 100 K. W. Hours.

4c for the next 100 K. W. Hours.
3c for all above.

If your light bill was formerly about $10.00, the new rates in effect will make the same about of "juice" cost you approximately $7.75, giving a plus amount to your credit on your ledger of $2.25. And $2.25 is a whole lot of something.

DAVE GETS THE DOUGH; SOME 80 GRAND IN TAXES PAID

Eighty thousand dollars went over the counter into the County tax coffers, according to Tax Collector Dave H. Culberson, in the recent hurry to fill the golden mouth of the tax monster.

Included in this was only 2650 poll taxes; about 50 per cent; since last year the number paid was 4007. That was during January. About $1,000 more in delinquent taxes were paid than during last year.

Well, anyway, we're glad that's over with!

Next thing that comes along is the yearly "numbers" game. This year they begin with 410-210 and go on up. Receipts are here now and the rush has started in this business which lasts until March 31. Register your car now.

GARY GLENN GRAF VISITS DONORS IN STORK CONTEST

Glenn Gary Graf, accompanied by both "Ma" and "Pa" was a welcomed visitor at the News Office as well as the businesses of the other sponsors in the recent Stork Derby Contest conducted by the News. "Mister" Graf didn't have much to say, as he had been up the night before, and incidentally, had kept "Poor Pa" up too, so he was sleeping.

Regardless of how many "ohs" and "ahs" that were uttered on his "personal appearances," he remained in the arms of Morpheus, showing his unsuspected nonchalance toward any efforts

TOTAL FLOOD FUND NOW $809.86; NO CLOTHES WANTED

Coryell County's donation to the Flood Sufferers has mounted to $809.86, since "our last writing," and donations are still slowly coming in, according to Dawson Cooper. Donors are Bertha Whaley, and a "no name" donation of $16.50 from Evant.

Dailies in other cities have stated that the Red Cross and other "food agencies" did NOT want clothing, canned goods, and other articles as has been erroneously stated. It seems the freight, cleaning, repairing and handling of these articles costs more than clothing can be bought for in the vicinity of the flood area.

Those who have been so generous to donate their clothing and have left it with the News, may have it by calling at the office, as it is in the same packers that it came in.

"A BANQUET THAT WAS A BANQUET;" FIREMEN'S VERDICT

Those young women of the First Methodist Church who "threw the feed" for the ravishing firemen on Tuesday night of this week, may have to do it again, so well did the "No. 1 Eaters" of this organization like the "victuals."

Some 30 Firemen, either their wives or their girl friends, the city council, city secretary, and others enjoyed the bounteous spread, at which time, under the direction of C. E. Alvis, Jr., the M. C. of the afternoon, Rev. M. M. Chunn delivered the principal address.

Unnoticed, unsung, and underrated, "Bugs" Jones held the entire assembly spell bound by his flatulent verbosity and flowing rhythm of wordage. Some of the unnamed other new members also helped in the build-up of one of the most amusing programs witnessed within the city walls.

Some few remarks were made by Mayor C. E. Gandy, and City Alderman Lewis Holmes, expressed his thanks to the organization for their splendid service and requested that they present their bill to the city for the entire feed.

Putting their feet under, and not on top of, the Firemen and their wives or else, devoured the following: roast turkey, dressing, giblet gravy, candied sweet potatoes, English peas, cranberry jelly, home-made hot rolls, hot coffee and ice box cake.

It is said that what should have been hot, was hot, and what should have been cold, was cold.

by Miss Lizzie Lockard.

The Intermediate Department, taught by Mrs. B. H. Melbern.

The Young People's Department taught by Mrs. J. O. Brown.

The Adult Department, taught by the Pastor, Rev. Clarence A. Morton.

Co-operation of all members of the church is expected in this campaign.

"A great man . . . one who did much to make this a great country, one who will live forever in the hearts of the American people. It's an honor for a nation like ours to have the inspirational figure of Abraham Lincoln to look up to, and to set aside each year the day of his birth for the remembrance of his ideals.

"Lincoln had faith . . . in his country, his fellowmen and in the cause for which he fought so gallantly and determinedly . . . a faith that made him a great man."

We say "them's great words" to be said about any man, and they won't be said about "any man." Just men with ideals, faith, leadership and gallantry shown by this humble woodcutter. He is equally honored in the south as in the north, as the south has learned that he bore no "ill will" toward it, but was merely trying to keep this glorious country and countrymen together. For this effort of his, today, we are thankful.

"IT'S HOUSE CLEANING TIME WITH LOTTIE"

"With the first signs of Spring Sue, I was looking over my cleaning equipment, and while I was at LEAIRD'S this morning

Mr. Leaird told me he had something in the Cleaning Line he knew I would want, Sue. Well, I want you to know, Sue, Leaird's have some Rebuilt Hoover and General Electric (GE) Sweepers that look like new machines.

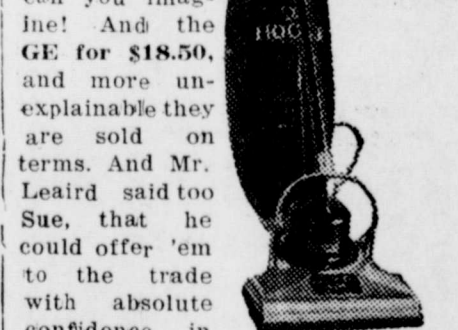

The shipper told Mr. Leaird that "each and every one of our machines are perfectly constructed to the point where they are equivalent of brand new cleaners in every detail, and are ready for many years of uninterrupted service.

"Sue, Mr. Leaird is selling the Hoover for $19.95 — can you imagine! And the GE for $18.50, and more unexplainable they are sold on terms. And Mr. Leaird said too Sue, that he could offer 'em to the trade with absolute confidence in their really outstanding value.

Yours for better bargains, LOTTIE.

P. S.—Above prices, Sue, are just a small part of what a new one would cost you.

WITH Congressman
W. R. (BOB)
POAGE

The outstanding feature of the last week in Congress has not been what Congress had done so much as what the President has proposed. The President has sent to Congress a proposal to reform the judicial system of the nation and to nearly double the number of judges on the Federal Courts. Of course it is pointed out that this will "put new blood in the courts," but most important of all it will give the President the power to appoint six new members of the Supreme Court. I can sympathize with any effort to speed up actions of our courts and I am sure that many of the suggestions contained in the message are good, but I look with more fear on any policy trying to hand-pick the membership of the Supreme Court with a view of trying to secure a majority of any particular viewpoint. This was done by the Republican Party during the Reconstruction days, when they increased the membership of the Court for the purpose of securing a reversal of a decision previously rendered, and their action then was so thoroughly disapproved that from that time to this no party has ever thought it wise or right to influence decisions by changing the number of the court. And, of course, we must bear in mind that while we can increase the number we can not reduce the lifetime of the judges and the expense of the judiciary would be tremendously increased by such a move. I shall be inclined to go very slowly in that direction. Certainly it seems to me that before we try to replace judges in this manner Congress might do well to provide a retirement fund for members of the Supreme Court as is now provided for all other federal judges. I am advised that last session such a bill was introduced and defeated in the House. I would personally be glad to support a bill making a retirement fund available to members of the Supreme Court and thereby giving them an opportunity to retire when they feel they should.

The House has spent most of the week debating the Reciprocal Tariff Bill, which would extend the power of the President to negotiate Reciprocal Tariff treaties with foreign nations in return for like favors extended to our goods. There are those who feel that these treaties allow too many foreign articles to come into the United States, but after all it seems to me that this is the only practical way in which we can secure a foreign market for our own goods, particularly cotton. We cannot sell to other nations if we refuse to buy from them and we in the South must sell cotton if we are to prosper. If we sell it we must lower our tariffs to a point where our customers can sell their products in the United States. I would like to see a general reduction of tariffs, but we cannot get this. We can, however, get a number of special treaties and I am for giving the President the power to negotiate them. The bill will not be voted on till Tuesday or Wednesday of this week, but the general debate is over. Today the House is working on the affairs of the District of Columbia. The Congress is the Legislature for the District of Columbia, and every Monday is "District Day" in the House. We have up a repeal for the famous "Red Rider" which was put on as an amendment to the District Appropriation Bill by Mr. Tom Blanton, former Congressman of Abilene. The Senate has already voted to strike it off and I think the House will do likewise today. I do not think this rider should have been placed on the bill as it is for practical purposes, prevents the teaching of any of the history of Russia or any other communistic country in the schools of the District of Columbia. I expect to vote to remove it, but realize that its repeal may be taken as an invitation to teach communism as a desirable form of government. I do not think that this should be done in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, but I know that you cannot destroy any political teaching by sticking your head in the sand and saying we will not mention it. I think we can most effectively create public sentiment against communism by showing its short comings and evils.

The House early last week passed the "Independent Offices Bill" which carried an appropriation of over a billion dollars for the support of governmental agencies, this together with the Deficiency Appropriation Bill makes two billion dollars already appropriated. When I think of the fact that there is already a very definite plan underway to put all of the people for whose salaries these government appropriations are made under civil service and continue them in office, I wonder where we are going. I can only say that the public should not be misled by most of the so-called reorganization bills. Most of them are little more than plans whereby existing office holders will hold their jobs in the future. Only when you see a bill that abolishes offices and jobs can you expect any relief.

The President has finally signed the feed-seed loan bill and the $50,000,000 appropriation is now available. I feel that this year this loan has been made available early enough to be of some real value to our people. The committee is still working on the home-ownership, or farm tenancy, bill; but may have something to report before long.

SPORTS

Braddock and Louis

Rumors are floating through the sporting world, saying that Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber of fizzling fame, and Jim Braddock, the former dock wallop will sign papers tomorrow for a 15 round bout to be held June 15 at Soldier Field in Chicago.

So far, however, these are idle rumors with nothing to back them up.

Some Chicago citizens have expressed disfavor at the idea of Mike Jacobs, of New York, being co-promoter with the Illinois Sporting Club. Jacobs holds the exclusive promotion rights of all of Louis' fights. However, Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, will meet Wednesday with the Mayor's centennial celebration committee, which hopes to make a heavy-weight bout the big attraction on the city's charter jubilee program next summer, so that rumor seems to be an idle one also.

The Chicago Park Board, which controls Soldier's Field met Wednesday to consider the request of Sheldon Clark, who offered Braddock $500,000 to meet Louis for a conference on rental terms. The usual fee for rent is 15 per cent of the gate, but a concession is likely in view of the ultimatum, "No Soldiers Field, no fight."

One Chicago paper insists that the papers have already been signed for the fight, and any other meeting will probably be merely a formality for the press. The paper states that the fight will be held in Comiskey Park, home of the Chicago White Sox, which only seats 75,000 compared to Soldier's Field's 130,000 capacity. On hearing this, Joe Giuld, Braddock's manager, let out a howl that is still reverberating.

Louis, meanwhile, is in training for a series of exhibition bouts in the middle-west and west. Louis will draw 17 1/2 per cent of the gate, if and when the articles are signed.

J. T. Carter of Richmond, Va., says he has kept a record of every cent he has earned and spent for the past 50 years.

IN MEMORY OF LOTTIE FERGUSON

Can it be true loving friends and comrades dear, that our darling Lottie is with us no more? How our hearts ache, and bleed, at this sad, sad thought. Surely it must be a dream, one long sad, sweet dream, which will know no waking until the Pearly Gates are open for us.

It seems only yesterday that she was only a girl, my dear dear pal, singing and giving cheer and sunshine to our home circle, and through her walk of life cheerful and thoughtful of others; ever patient, ever cheerful and always strewing sunshine and lending a helpful hand.

How merciful, how sweet and good God was to her; just as the night was passing unto a glorious Sabbath morn, he sent his Snowy Pinioned Messenger to transport her precious soul to its eternal home. God has relieved us all of worry and has given her the brightest of futures. God is so merciful, so good to her and took the flower of our home to transplant in his gardens above. Lottie was a true Christian character, so pure and sweet, and to know her was to love her.

Mrs. Lottie Ora Wilson Ferguson was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Wilson and a sister to A. G. Wilson and Mrs. A. M. McCallister of Gatesville; others surviving are, two sisters, Carrie Sellers of Lomesa, Mary Casselberry of Seymour; J. W. Wilson of Lometa.

She was born Feb. 8, 1887 at Turnersville and joined the Missionary Baptist church at the same place at the age of 16 in the spring of 1912. She was chef operator at Hamilton, where she lived until her departure. On July 5, 1913 she was married to George C. Ferguson and to this union 3 children were born; one dying in infancy leaving two to survive her going. George C. Jr., 19, in Ariz.; one daughter, Sarah Estelle in High school at Hamilton.

Now when darkness is o'er us in our gloomy pathless way, let us look to Jesus for he will comfort and He will soothe our broken hearts.

Written by her sister, Ester.

road companies. The date for the local road opening is Sat. nite 10:30, also Sun. and Mon. "Three Men on a Horse" is the side-splitting story of Erwin (pronounced Oiwin) a meek little writer of greeting card verses—who has the weird gift of picking winners in the horse races. He keeps that secret to himself, and as he rides to and fro to work from his home, he jots down in a little book his prognostications and imaginary winnings. His nagging wife finds the book, and denounces him as a philanderer, and browbeats him to the point of desperation. When his boss orders him to produce fifty Mother's Day greeting cards before the noon whistle blows—his troubles begin to pyramid—and drive him to a gin mill to drown his woes in drink. It is there that fate catches up with him.

Three gamblers are talking about horses and Oiwin timidly offers a tip. They laugh at him and bet on the favorite horse who loses. Seeing that the little man "has something"—they imprison him and proceed to get rich on his tips on the winners. They phone to his boss that he is sick and when his wife hears this—she rouses the police and a city wide search is instituted. Then begins an uproarious complication as ever set and audience chortling.

The cast is headed by Frank McHugh and Joan Blondell. Carol Hughes plays Oiwin's weepy wife. The trio of gamblers are played with loud gusto by Allen Jenkins, Teddy Hart and Sam Levene—the latter two from the Broadway stage production. Guy Kibbee is the greeting card manufacturer who drives Oiwin to his doom.

A surprise party was given for Helon Walley, who moved to Austin Sunday. Jean Patillo visited Helon and took her for a walk through the Park. When they reached the park a party of girls were waiting with all sorts of good eats for a picnic. In the midst of the feast, a paper sack was brought which was said to have been let behind. The contents of the sack were dropped in the center of the table and to Helon's surprise there were innumerable beautiful handkerchiefs for her. Those present were Jean Patillo, Rosylene Anderson, Jane Thomson, Anita Lowrey, Mary Ann Pose, Eloise Cook, Martha Moore, Gladys Marie Phillips, Frances Brown, Annie Ruth Witt and the honoree.—The Hornet's Nest.

WORLD COMMENT

Hitler's Reichstag Address

The response to Adolph Hitler's address before the German Reichstag revealed the critical international position of the Reich today. Not what Hitler said in his speech but what he failed to say brought condemnation of Britain, France, Russia, and the Vatican upon his head.

Britain's objection to the Reichsfuehrer's address came from the fact that he omitted any mention of a new Locarno treaty, one of the prime objectives of British foreign policy.

France responded with a warning that Hitler cannot expect French cooperation in any system of European security until he ceases attacks on Soviet Russia.

The Vatican's ill-feeling came from the Fuehrer's failure to mention future Nazi policies in regard to the Catholic Church, which has been subjected to persecution since the advent of Hitler.

Unlike the mighty German Empire of 1914, Hitler's Germany is virtually without friend or ally today. To such a perilous situation externally may be added a muddled and serious internal financial crisis and food shortage.

Four years of Hitlerism have failed to win Great Britain to friendship with Germany. This was one of the cardinal points of Nazi policy. France sees in the rearmament activities across the Rhine a definite threat to its own security, and is now strengthening its alliance with Soviet Russia. If bold utterances of German and Soviet spokesmen are any indication, relations between the Reich and the U.S.S.R. are near the breaking point.

Only Fascist Italy and Imperial Japan profess friendship for Germany. A profession of friendship and good will in the part of Benito Mussolini carries behind it little more foundation than does a treaty signature of Adolph Hitler. Italy double-crossed Germany in 1914 when it refused to join the Central powers in warring on France and Russia. Hitler well knows that Mussolini would repeat this action in any crisis today if such action suited his purpose.

The alliance of Germany and Japan is built upon rather shaky foundations. So long as the militarists held the upper hand in Nippon, Hitler could count upon their help in any war against the Soviets. Now the conflict raging between the Japanese Diet (Parliament) and the militarist may render void the German-Japanese agreement, for the agreement was bitterly criticized in the Diet at the time of its promulgation as isolated Japan. A triumph if the parliamentary cause in Japan would deal a heavy blow to whatever designs Adolph Hitler might have against Russia.

As stated above, one of the cardinal points of Nazi policy has been the cultivation of the friendship with Britain and in lesser degree with France, in order to insure peace on the western frontier of the Reich when the long-heralded "push to the east" against Russia takes place. But German Rearmament in the air has been particularly alarming to the British because of the vulnerability of the British Isles to air attack from any aggressive and unfriendly power in Western Europe.

British hopes of an air limitation agreement were blasted into oblivion by Hitler's refusal to have any contact with Soviet Russia beyond any necessary political and economic intercourse. No air agreement or arms limitation pact could be concluded without including Russia.

Likewise the statement that each nation must be the judge of its own defense needs sounded a final warning to France that there will be no cessation of German rearmament efforts and that there will be no pact limiting the armed forces of the European powers.

In the viewpoint of the French the only logical course to pursue in view of this condition is to strengthen their alliance with the Soviets while building up their own arms as hastily as possible. Hitler thus seems to have condemned the world to

to a continuation of the armaments race while more effectively isolating his nation.

Hitler cannot under present conditions go to war against Russia, for France would be compelled by self-preservation and by its mutual assistance treaty with Russia to come to the aid of that power. Hitler is not prepared to wage war on two fronts as was Kaiser Wilhelm. If France is involved against Germany, Britain is certain to enter the conflict on the side of its traditional ally. The Triple Entente would be revived with all its potency and strength, while the Triple Alliance would be minus the services of Austria-Hungary and probably Italy again. Italy might be added to the side of Germany and could cause the Soviets considerable annoyance in Siberia.

If Germany cannot expand in Europe the logical place for colonies must be Africa, but the quest for colonies there has been unsuccessful. Germany lost 910,000 square miles of territory.

Huddleston Introduces Resolution in House to Give Source of Pay

Quoting The Austin American, the House Monday voted to invite Senate Colleagues to join its members in filing sworn statements of their employment and retainers.

"It adopted a resolution by Rep. Ross Hardin and Rep. Earl Huddleston, that since House Members were filing these reports, the Senators be requested to prepare similar information.

"The Senate defeated a concurrent resolution on this subject two years ago, by so loading it down with amendments that we had to kill it," Rep. Hardin reminded the House. "They seem to have forgotten the people of Texas are interested in this question.

Rep. Penrose Metcalfe asked him why he didn't propose a concurrent resolution, requiring a Senate vote. "If the defeat it, they will make a record," he said.

Senator Frank Rawlins two years ago amended the resolution to require such detailed and comprehensive data on so many subjects that the questionaire, members said, couldn't have been made out by members during the 120-day session.

THE 25-MILLIONTH

HAS JUST BEEN BUILT

IT HAS never occurred before in automobile history that 25 million cars of one make, bearing one name, have been manufactured under one management. The 25,000,000th Ford car rolled off the Ford Rouge Plant production line on January 18, 1937.

25 million cars since 1903 . . . more than one-third of all the cars ever built . . . enough cars to transport the entire population of the United States.

The figures represent a remarkable contribution to the social welfare, the industrial stability and the general progress of our country.

People respect Ford efficiency. They know Ford uses fine materials, the best workmanship at good wages, the most exact precision measurements. They know these things are passed along to purchasers in the form of extra value. Naturally, they like to do business with such a company. That is the only reason it has been required to produce 25 million cars.

Naturally, too, they expect more of a Ford car, more this year than last year — more each year than the year before. They have every right to. The experience gained in building 25,000,000 cars enables Ford to produce today a really superb motor car at a really low price — with the Beauty, Comfort, Safety and Performance of much more expensive cars.

The 1937 Ford V-8 combines advanced design, all-steel construction, extra body room, and brilliant brakes with a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engines — the most modern type of power-plant on land, sea, or in the air.

The 85-horsepower engine provides top performance with unusually good economy for its high power.

The 60-horsepower engine gives good performance with the greatest gasoline mileage ever built into a Ford car — and wears the lowest Ford price tag in years.

People expect more of a Ford car because it's a Ford — and they get more, for the same reason. It is undeniably the quality car in the low-price field.

SYNOPSIS
 Wild Bill Hickok, the fighting plainsman, is mustered out of the army and is en route to Leavenworth on the Steamer Lizzie Gull. On board, he meets Buffalo Bill Cody, his old pal, who is returning from a honeymoon trip with his wife, Louisa. When Cody loses money playing poker with some river gamblers, Wild Bill takes a hand in the game. The situation gets tense when Bill accuses the gamblers of cheating.

CHAPTER II

THE barroom had frozen. Slowly the gambler dropped his cards, and taking off his hat brought it to the level of the table, while surreptitiously he reached for his own gun. "All right, Mr. Jayhawker!" he sneered.

"The name's Hickok!" came coldly.

A gasp ran through the room. At the bar, the snaky figure of Jack McCall, who had watched all this with a strange fascination which he could not understand, bent forward, his eyes staring, his mouth agape. The gambler had forgotten all thought of gunplay.

"Not Wild Bill Hickok, the famous killer?" he asked. "Why—er—of course, Mr. Hickok!" He pulled five cards from the sweatband of his hat and tossed them on the table, a losing hand. "You know, Mr. Hickok—"

"Sure, I know," drawled Wild Bill, as he raked in the stakes. "Just a friendly little joke. Now while you're at it, you might pay back that money you hornsoggled out of Bill Cody!"

At the bar, Jack McCall did not hear the by-play. All about him was the buzz of excitement, engendered by the near duel—Wild Bill was the most famous gunman the West ever had known. A queer thought ran through the head of Jack McCall:

"It'd take a real man to kill Wild Bill Hickok!"

At the door, watching with the wide eyes of a frightened Tenderfoot, Louisa gasped to her admiring husband.

"Will, does he really kill people like they say he does?"

"Undertaker's best friend!" answered Bill Cody.

As for Wild Bill Hickok himself, all this passed unnoticed. He had merely done a good deed for his friend, Bill Cody. He thought no more about it; besides the next morning, when the Lizzie Bell, two hours late, docked at Fort Leavenworth, Wild Bill had many other things on his mind. He was helping the Codys to unload.

Louisa had the bird cage. Buffalo Bill was burdened with bags. Wild Bill's arms were cupped about what he had thought was a cargo of feathers until Cody had told him they were hatboxes. Through the hurly burly of the levee they moved slowly toward the Overland Stage, where a small figure in a soldier's uniform fretted about the horses.

Wild Bill glanced in that direction and blinked. Then he looked the other way, just in time to see a hulking form striding toward a bunch of negroes who sweated under heavy boxes of farming tools. Wagons were waiting to load them. The burly man was shouting orders. Suddenly, Louisa, mincing along the ratty levee, screamed with fright. The big man, angered at the slowness of a negro workman, had lunged forth, knocking the colored man to the ground. Instinctively,

"Bill!" she shouted. "You old cyard sharp!"

"Oh for—Oh, lemme alone, will you, Calamity!" he exclaimed dourly. "Can't you see—"

Hatboxes or no hatboxes, she had come straight for him, literally climbing to his shoulders that she might plant her lips to his. Wild Bill Hickok gasped with embarrassment. By a miraculous action, he managed to raise the back of a hand and ruefully he wiped his lips. Calamity Jane Canary, perhaps bet-

John Lattimer surveyed him. Between these men there seemed to pass a lightning flash of dislike, wariness.

Wild Bill's hands went into a clawing motion, as if to reach for his guns. But he could only continue to juggle that double armful of hat boxes. He contented himself with:

"So you're John Lattimer, eh?"

"My name's on those boxes," the burly man answered.

"Operate out of Hays City?" asked Wild Bill narrowly.

"Yes. What of it?"

"They didn't have any use for farming tools, the last time I was there."

John Lattimer surveyed him. Between these men there seemed to pass a lightning flash of dislike, wariness.

"I freight what they send me. And I don't—"

He did not finish the sentence. A shriek of happiness had come from that slight figure in soldier blue beside the stage horses. Now it was speeding forward. The soldier cap was tossed aside, revealing tousled hair. Arms extended. This was not a soldier. It was a girl in uniform—the girl whose face was beside that of Wild Bill Hickok in the beloved watch which played "The Bluebells of Scotland."

ter known as the Sweetheart of the West, stood back and laughed.

"You four-flushin' mule!" she jeered. "You're not wipin' it off. You're rubbin' it in!"

The Overland Stage pitched wildly along a rutty road toward the straggling little frontier settlement of Hays City, Kansas.

Long ago, civilization, as such, had been left behind. Here there was little but sagebrush, tumbleweed and worn gulleys. For the crew and two of the passengers, this was an old story. For two others, however, it was quite new.

One of them, Jack McCall, tried to look at it with the blase eyes of a widely travelled man. Tin horn that he was, he moved often as the law forced him onward. Perhaps he could find kindred spirits here in the West.

Louisa Cody's clasped hands had hardly left the big arm of Buffalo Bill. This, for her, was a terrible ride. Once she had asked:

"Will, are all the roads in Kansas like this?"

He had looked at her seriously.

"No, Honey," came finally, "some of them are pretty bad."

World Comment—

000 square miles and 12,000,000 inhabitants in Africa by the Treaty of Versailles, and not one square mile of this territory has been returned or relinquished by the so-called "mandatory" powers—France, Britain, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Japan has added the former German Pacific Islands to her own empire and has no intention of returning them to the Reich in spite of the friendly attitudes prevailing between the two states.

This attitude toward the returning of the German colonies is entirely unjustified on the part of the British and French. It is a known fact that the impoverished condition of the German people is responsible to the efforts of the Nazi to build up a huge army, navy, and air force, but some alleviation of this condition would inevitably result from a return of the former imperial colonies, and Hit-er might be diverted from a mad scramble for Russian territory. Nothing is to be accomplished by starving the people of Germany; such action will only result in driving these noble people into a frantic war for possession of the coal fields and wheat fields of the Russian Ukraine.

In spite of the bold talk of Hitler before the Reichstag and the rejoicing of the German people at their freedom from the shackles of the Versailles treaty, present conditions in Germany point to some mad move on the part of the Nazis as suggested above, or an abrupt about-face on the part of Hitler as to the matter of an arms limitation agreement.

"The Dallas Morning News" has this to say in its editorial columns about food shortage in the Reich:

"Germany faces this year a food shortage that may force a large proportion of the people to tighten up their belts. Pork, the chief item in the German meat diet, has had its market supply cut in half. Beef herds have been reduced twenty per cent, and the underfed animals yield less meat than formerly. The cheaper kinds of fish have doubled in price. Eggs and cheese are scarce and are priced beyond many family incomes. The food supply is under strict regimentation, and ration cards are predicted.

"Germany, an overpopulated country with poor soil, produces only 70 per cent of her food, yet recently the government has taken five per cent of the country's grain acreage out of cultivation to make space for army training grounds, broad military roads, air plane landing fields and the zones of secrecy surrounding them. Germany cannot import food advantageously because she had little money with which to buy. Her principal exports are commodities that other nations are trying to produce for themselves; and then she does send goods abroad she is likely to receive only a small proportion of the money, the remainder being applied to German debts on which payment has been delayed or refused."

rounding hem. Germany cannot

With these conditions prevailing, it will be impossible for Germany to continue her efforts to build the world's greatest fighting forces. When Hitler reaches the end of his resources, where will he turn?
