It's Spring!

MARCH 20

It's fun . . . being around Prosperity Corner again, isn't it? We all knew it would come, sooner or later, but we weren't sure . . . even after Dad bought a new chariot and Mother had the kitchen "done over." Not really sure . . . until Christmas!

That settled it once and for all. It was a toss-up, wondering whether it was more fun watching those who'd gotten used to griping struggling for something to gripe about . . . or splurging on things just for the thrill of having something to feel swell about.

Now it's Spring . . . and if ever there was a Spring that deserved the old dress-up-and-going-places feeling, this is it!, True, we have had some time to get used to the feeling . . . there's no denying that it's still fun to splurge on a new hat . . . to wear a new suit that hasn't yet met a March wind . . . to dress the youngsters as they've never been dressed before . . . and not have to worry about any of it! We've rediscovered the grand feeling that goes with knowing that even tho the best things aren't always free we're still able to afford our share of them.

No doubt about it! It's time to forget the cares of the past few years, to throw off winter worries, to make the most of what Spring has to offer . . . it's time to join the Parade of Progress that Gatesville Merchants are providing this Spring, for Easter, which is March 28th!

Hub of the Lone Star

(Editor's note: In the March issue of the Farm and Ranch appears an article dealing with the agricultural aspect of central Texas, and including Coryell County. We are printing this article in six short chapters, for we feel that it will be of interest to our readers.)

The geological forces of the ages predestined Central Texas to support great populations in comfort and plenty. The calcareous rocks which rose out of prehistoric seas broke down into fertile soils, and by nature's own incomparable alchemy the reciprocal effects of plants and animal life created a scene "where every prospect pleases and only man is vile." Undulating swards of grass so dense that weeds had no chance covered the uplands. The rains fell, gentle or violent, in their seasons, trickled slowly down the slopes or seeped into the lower strata to reappear in bold and limpid springs. The buffalo's annual migration mowed the pastures close but left most of their fertility where it had been browsed. Pecans and plums thrive in the valleys and glades, and the recent uncovering of ancient camp sites proves that mankind has occupied the country from time immemorial.

The five counties of Bell, Bosque, Coryell, Falls, and McLennan constitute the "Hub of the Lone Star" from the standpoint of population. Add the adjoining counties and for our present purposes we may call it the "Waco Region, since Waco is the metropolis and principal wholesale supply mart. It is said that Waco is fourteen miles nearer to every county seat in Texas than any other city, and the center of population has been within a few miles of Waco for a generation, although, the geographical center is farther west (McCulloch county).

A stranger following U. S. Highways 77 and 81 might think the county devoid of scenic interest except as such picturesque points as Belton and Salado, but as they say in California, "You haven't seen anything yet!" Cameron Park at Waco combines the best art that man can devise. The "Falls" near Marlin have been viewed with pleasure for a century and Marlin has a handsome city park besides. There is Mother Neff Park on the Leon, Clifton State Park on the limpid Bosque, and Lake Waco on the South Bosque, framed in a setting of verdant hills, offers the combined attractions of water and shade.

Travel State Highway 67 up the winding Bosque, 7 through Gatesville, 53 west out of Belton, or 22 through Cranfill Gap, or wander along the country by-ways almost anywhere—there cedar breaks spattered with the pink of rosebud in spring and the dark red sumach in autumn, towering pecans and other water-loving trees along the watercourse to delight the artists eye or soothe the wracked brain of the tired businessman. The people of the prairies do not have to go romping off halfway across the state for a day's picknicking, or for a leisurely drive in which the scene changes with every curve of the road—and the curves are many, so don't hurry.

Three of the principal upland soil types of Texas cover most of this region—the black waxy, the Grand Prairie and the Cross Timbers—besides the large areas of alluvial soils along the creeks and rivers. Numerous local modifications of these major soil groups occur, and it may be safely said that there is a soil for every garden and field crop adapted to a temperate climate and a 35 inch annual rain fall. Good roads and the automobile are opening up new possibilities for commercial orcharding and gardening, and the farmer who has even a small surplus of fruit and vegetables over the amount needed for home use now finds customers, if not at his front gate, at least within a short drive. These perishables were greatly handicapped when railroad shipment offered the only outlet, and carlot loading was essential to secure economical rate.

IN MEMORY OF TERRELL PATTERSON

The hearts of a host of loved ones and friends were shocked with grief when the message came o'er the wires of the passing away of Terrell Patterson in Sugarland Hospital at 12:09 a. m. on March 5, 1937, where he had lain only a few short days, very ill of pneumonia. His wife; little daughter; mother, Mrs. Luther Patterson; brothers, B. T., J. F., and Mrs. S. B. Patterson, and one sister, Mrs. Jno. Hagan were at his bedside when the end came.

Terrell was born Aug. 9, 1889, nine miles southwest of Gatesville where he spent his childhood, and most of his young manhood, until his country called him to the World War in 1917, where he served in Company M, 43rd Inf., in the 36th Division from October until the Armistice was signed. He served over the sea and one time in service on the front. Here he proved a true and faithful soldier loved by war veterans as they endured the hardships "over there" together.

When the war was closed he came home and was married on May 7, 1921 to Miss Ethel Douglas of Gatesville. To this union was born two little daughters, Neva Lou of Sugarland, and one dying in infancy.

He was converted at the age of 17 years and united with the Methodist Church where he remained a true and faithful member until his death. He was a true devoted husband, a kind and affectionate father and a faithful devout Christian.

He was always ready to help unfortunate and to cheer the sad and lonely. Though he is gone his life shall live on in the hearts of others. To know him was to love him. He had been an employee of the Sugarland Co. as carpenter for the past 12 or 14 years, where he had won a host of friends and neighbors.

Funeral services were held at 3 p. m. Friday at the Hyde Park Funeral Home in Houston with Rev. H. B. Sparker officiating. The body was conveyed to Gatesville and funeral services were held at Union Church, 9 miles west of Gatesville with Rev. J. S. Baker, Methodist pastor at Union and Rev. M. M. Chunn, pastor of the Gatesville Methodist church, officiating. The body was laid to rest in Union Cemetery beneath a beautiful bed of flowers to await the coming of our Savior.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ethel Patterson; daughter, Neva Lou Patterson, of Sugarland; his mother, Mrs. Lucy Patterson of Gatesville; five brothers, B. T., J. F., S. B. of this county, and A. B. and O. E. of Blackwell; two sisters, Mrs. Jno. Hagan and Mrs. R. E. Sexton of Gatesville.

Those out of town to attend the funeral here were; Mrs. Ethel Patterson of Sugarland, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Henery of Houston, and Mrs. Sam Wallace and daughter of Waco.

"IN OUR

Mr. Mat Jones
Editor Coryell County News
Gatesville, Texas

Dear Mr. Editor:
The writer was in your office during his recent trip to Gatesville, but you were out and in your absence I was entertained by your personable and charming young assistants, George Witt and James Read Saunders.

I had just returned from a trip to New Orleans, accompanied by my brother, Reid, and that celebrated philisopher, Glen Hendrickson and wanted to tell you all about it.

We visited many points of interest in this quaint city, the like of which is not to be found elsewhere on this continent. It is like a slice of the old world that has been transplanted in modern America. Everyone should see New Orleans at least once.

The most interesting place visited was the Cibaldo, so called by the Spanish, and by the French, Place De Armes. The Cibaldo faces Jackson Square, in the center of which is an equestrian statue of Andrew Jackson, the hero of the battle of New Orleans, which was fought in 1814, two weeks after the war was officially closed. Here was signed the treaty of the Louisiana Purchase between the United States and France. Many interesting paintings hang on the walls and many relics can be seen, including the death mask of Napoleon I. The Cibaldo was also used a prison, once holding the notorious pirate, Jean Lafitte, according to a card on one of the cells. Peering out through the bars of the cell at me, my companions looked not unlike the blood-thryst Lafitte and one of his daughtly followers, which I did remark to them.

The return journey was made through the picturesque Evangeline and Bayou Teche country in southern Louisiana. Flowers were blooming everywhere and the air was heavy with their fragrance.

As we rolled along a modern highway there was unfolded before us a panorama of the old South. Stately old colonial mansions with slave quarters in the rear, were encountered frequently. An old time stern wheel steamboat was steaming up the Bayou Teche. All too soon we emerged from this delightful country into the prosaic modern world.

THIS OIL BUSINESS

Oil is Texas' major source of wealth. Unheard of 50 years ago, the Texas oil business today contributes directly or indirectly to the success of every other business activity in the state. The Humble Company is in the oil business; it produces oil, refines it into motor fuels, motor oils and other products, and markets these through Humble service stations and Humble dealers. It knows what this oil business means to Texas, but more than that—it realizes what Texas means to this oil business. The appreciation of this fact stands behind Humble's policy of continuous improvement, behind the unexcelled service the Texas motorist finds in Humble service stations.

4-H GIRLS ACTIVITIES

Each year certain goals are selected to be accomplished by 4-H Club Girls. According to a recent check the following results have been sent in by seven of the fourteen 4-H Girl's Clubs of Coryell County.

70 members have sewing boxes. 45 members have clothing boxes. 61 made aprons. 73 planted gardens. 63 planted tomatoes. 64 are checking a health chart weekly.

The 4-H Girls are keeping clothing books which include an inventory, a plan, and an account.

Of first consideration is the inventory which is every article of clothing on hand, listed under the following classes: Outer, Under and Sleeping, Headwear, Footwear, and Accessories and Cosmetics. After putting the clothing in good condition the girl is able to plan to fill her needs.

As she adds needed garments to her wardrobe she keeps a clothing account which tells about the article purchased; its cost, make, date bought, date discarded, and remarks.

WORLD COMMENT

Something to Think About

A problem as serious in its complexity as the Supreme Court issue and neutrality is unemployment. This is a problem about which little was heard before the war, except during the periodic depressions which swept thousands out of work.

Unemployment has been combated since 1920 by three Republican Presidents and by one Democratic President, and none has found a permanent and satisfactory solution. So it may be safely assumed as it was not in 1932, that no one individual or party is responsible for the problem which has been but slightly alleviated in the last 17 years.

Any attempt here to enumerate the causes of unemployment in a country so richly endowed would be both useless and boring, but two primary causes do stand out in my mind: The first is technological unemployment, or that which is responsible to machine-saving devices. The second is to the precipitate influx of women into jobs formerly held by men during the World War period, and the steady influx which has been in progress since 1920.

In illustration of the first cause, I can cite from a conversation I had with a painter the other day. He was explaining why it was necessary for the members of his trade to organize a painters' union.

"When I started painting 30 years ago," he said, "It took three times as long to paint a house as it does today with spray-guns. Today, if it were not for union strength, we (the painters) would get just one-third of the wages we did thirty years ago."

The forecast of a permanent army of 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 unemployed is rather astonishing at first, but it must be remembered that 2,500,000 persons were unemployed in 1929, the peak year of prosperity for the nation and for the world. If industry, commerce, agriculture and business could not absorb this surplus labor in 1929, can it do so in the future?

From the economist viewpoint the answer is no. Since the beginning of time, and since the formation of the thirteen colonies into a united nation, there has been a group which can not find employment. Darwin's evolutionary theory and Adam Smith's "laissez faire" theory were both based upon overpopulation of the world, and such seems to be the case not only in this country but in all parts of the world today as it was then.

Granting that there are several millions of Americans who can not find permanent employment, it has always seemed to me that the burden of caring for this group should be borne by the county and municipality, with the State perhaps lending aid. Only under such a system can the inequalities and injustices and misrepresentations which have marked federal relief be abolished. Only with the direct supervision of unemployed possible in the local government sub-division can there be permanent reductions in the relief load.

It is my sincere belief, and I say so only after a careful check of relief problems and conditions as the now exist, that the cost of relief in this country could be cut in half by transferring the care of the unemployed to the state, county and city. If the financial burden is too great for local government to carry, the federal government may make relief grants, but let the supervision be exercised by the local authorities.

In many of the heavy industries, such as steel, rubber, and automobile, machine-saving devices have not only brought about a decrease in wages but have thrown men entirely out of work.

Not much has been said of unemployment since Mr. Roosevelt assured us during the campaign that the depression was definitely over, but this week we have been brought face to face with the issue again.

Federal Emergency Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins has advanced a plan to influential members of Congress to make a permanent WPA be devoted to Works Progress Administration on a two and one-half billion dollar annual spending basis. This would be for the purpose of coping with forecast (by Mr. Hopkins) for semi-permanent unemployment of 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 persons.

Mr. Hopkins suggested that a permanent WPA be devoted to socially valuable and permanent projects but undertakings which would not encroach upon the field of public works proper. A permanent WPA, he suggests, might clear forests for recreational purposes, build dikes, straighten flood-menaced streams or engage in minor public improvements in cities, perform road improvement, and, possibly, aid in construction of school houses.

The problem is thus thrown into the laps of the people, a disconcerting problem for those who hope for a balanced budget in the near future and a reduction of the relief burden to the point where local governmental units may shoulder the burden.

If such an expenditure to care for the unemployed is necessary, it will mean that heavy reductions in the expenditures of other government departments must take place, whereas since 1932 general increases have been the vogue in all departments.

Plenty of car crashes. On last Thursday afternoon a car, driven by Mrs. Tump Grady, collided with Perry Hale's truck at the corner near Dalton's garage. Mrs. Grady's collarbone was fractured and Mrs. S. W. Martin received severe bruises about the head. Mrs. Grady was rushed to the Provident Sanitarium. The car was badly damaged, but at this writing Mrs. Grady has returned home. Chas. Vandiver's car was in collision with another car a mile west of town. R. V. Sullens and Ted Vandiver ran their cars together on the new highway west of town. In the latter two crashes the cars were the only casualties.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Karen and Martha, graduated from Eastern Women's College, decide to open a private school in an old farmhouse. Karen is alone in the world, but Martha is burdened with her aunt, Mrs. Mortar. Their venture begins smoothly, save, perhaps, for the difficulty they have with one of the pupils, Mary Tilford, a malicious child. Karen falls in love with Dr. Cardin — who has helped them with the school — and he with her.

Chapter Three

The news of Karen's and Dr. Cardin's engagement was broken to Martha. She gave no outward sign of being affected save that her congratulations were a little forced. All were serene at the farmhouse when Dr. Cardin one evening came to pay a visit to Karen. He poked his head into the door, and seeing no one began to call softly. Martha came out of her bedroom, paintbrush in hand, and called down to him.

"Karen went into town for supplies. She'll be back later. Stop

"I heard a strange crash," she said breathlessly. Suddenly she noticed Dr. Cardin. "It was me," he said pleasantly. "I was wrestling with myself." Mrs. Mortar was not amused. "You're a late visitor, aren't you?" "Oh, no. I've really been here for four days. I was hiding in your trunk. Goodnight. 'Night, Martha." "I hope I'm not hurrying you," said Mrs. Mortar acidly. "Not any more than usual," he answered briskly.

Mrs. Mortar was not the only one who had responded to the crash, and placed a suspicious interpretation on the scene. Mary Tilford had been awakened, too, and had heard enough of the conversation to awaken her interest. She heard Martha crying after Mrs. Mortar had left. This fact, too, she stored in her malicious little head for future reference.

The next day, Mary arrived late to Mrs. Mortar's elocution task. But she was not embarrassed in the least. When Mrs. Mortar began to upbraid her she held out a bunch of wild flowers.

"I went to get these flowers," she said. You told us you loved flowers and I walked so far to find them for you." Her voice broke, even as she turned to wink to the making such a row and come on up and help me paint a table." But when Dr. Cardin entered her room he flung himself at once on the studio couch.

"Whew, I'm tired." "How's the hospital?" Martha inquired, instantly solicitous. Cardin yawned. "Just the same. No money, bad laboratory, everybody growling at everybody else." He stretched himself. "So quiet here. Is it late?" "No," said Martha. "But the girls are in bed, and Aunt Lily is worn out from doing nothing." Cardin shook his head in sympathy for what Martha had to put up with.

"You must have had a fine childhood," he said. She had indeed! Eagerly, with a sudden release of reticence, she began to tell him all about it. Cardin was tired and sleepy, but made polite efforts to listen.

"I went to sixteen schools altogether. Every time the stock company would move, I'd move with it. . . . And at night, I'd have to do my homework sitting on a dirty box backstage, jumping up to help Aunt Lily change from a blowzy costume to an even blowzier one. I used to be so alone and so sorry that I couldn't have what other little girls—" She broke off suddenly. "I'm running out of paint. Want a glass of milk?"

But Cardin was asleep. Martha approached the couch and stroked his arm tenderly. Then she turned off the light above the couch, leaving only a small light by her chair. She tiptoed to the chair, picked up a book, but did not read. Her eyes, tender and affectionate, rested on Dr. Cardin.

An hour later, Martha was still in the chair, and Dr. Cardin was still sleeping soundly. The chimes of the clock in the hall downstairs struck eleven. Cardin moved restlessly, and his arm hit the glass of milk, overturning it. A bowl of fruit dropped to the floor with a crash. Cardin jumped up bewildered. Martha was already by his side, picking up the bowl and wiping up the spilled milk.

Dr. Cardin began to apologize, wiping the milk that had spilled on his tie and shirt, and on his coat. The voice of Mrs. Mortar broke in suddenly.

other pupils.

Mrs. Mortar was completely mollified. Mrs. Mortar entered the room at this juncture, however, and was at once struck by the flowers.

"Where did you get the flowers, Mary?" she asked. "Near Conway's cornfield," said Mary slowly.

"It wasn't necessary to go that far," said Karen sternly. "There was a bunch exactly like that in the garbage can this morning." The class gasped, but Mary stuck to her lie, in the face of all upbraidings, scoldings and pleadings. And when Karen threatened to punish her by taking away her recreation periods, she suddenly gasped and staggered back.

"My heart! It's my heart! It's stopped or something. I can't breathe. I—I can't—" She let out a choked scream, and fell to the floor.

Karen, despite her skepticism, sent for Dr. Cardin. He confirmed her suspicions. The child was playing-acting, to escape punishment.

While the examination was going on, Martha was having it out with her aunt.

"The school is no place for you," she said firmly. Why don't you take the trip to London you've been dreaming of. I have the money."

"But Aunt Lily proved contrary. 'You only want to get rid of me,' she said nastily. 'Turning me out, at my age. I refuse to be shipped off. Next season I shall go back to the stage.'"

"No," Martha repeated. I want you to go sooner."

Mrs. Mortar smiled sarcastically. "I know why you want to be rid of me. I know what's going on. You were never smart about hiding things. Why, you're in love with him. Of course, I myself am a little old-fashioned and I couldn't help being shocked by what was going on."

Martha trembled with rage. "Be still, Aunt Lily. Be still! How can you—these shameful lies!"

But Mrs. Mortar persisted. "That night, when he was coming out of your room, I saw—" There was a sudden noise behind the door. Martha opened it suddenly, to find Evelyn and Rosalie outside. They had been eavesdropping!

SPORTS

Only five more days remain before the County Meet which comes off Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of next week. Few entries have been received so far, which is regretted as it throws all the preparatory work on the officials at the last moment when they are most busy.

In order to relieve some of the congestion of the Meet, the junior basketball games for all eleven grade schools will be played tomorrow, March 20, in the Gatesville gym, beginning at 1:00 p. m.

Johnnie Edwards is the director of the junior girls division, and here is the schedule for that group:

1:00 Jonesboro vs. Pearl
2:20 Copperas Cove vs. Gatesville.

3:40 Flat vs. Turnersville.
The winners of these three games draw, two teams playing at 5:00 p. m. The winner and the bye will play at 6:20.

Morris Bell is the director of the Junior boys division, and here is their schedule:

1:40 Gatesville Grammar School vs. Copperas Cove Grammar School.

3:00 Pearl High School vs. Turnersville High School.
4:20 Gatesville High School vs. Jonesboro High School.

5:40 Pearl Grammar School vs. winner of Gatesville G. S. vs. Copperas Cove G. S.

7:00 Winner of Pearl H. S. vs. Turnersville H. S. vs. winner of Gatesville H. S. vs. Jonesboro H. S.

8:00 Ward School winner vs. High School winner.

The games will be played in six minute quarters, excepting finals. Three minutes will be given between halves, and one minute for all other time outs.

Here are the playground ball rules which will be used in the Coryell County Meet:

1. A ball which strikes the batsman is called a ball and does not entitle the batsman to go to first base, unless it is the fourth ball.

2. No balks are called. A ball is called against the pitcher for offenses which would ordinarily constitute a balk.

3. The batsman is out when the third strike is called, regardless of whether or not the ball is caught.

4. Base-runners must not leave their bases until a pitched ball has reached or passed the batsman.

5. A runner who was on third base when the pitch started cannot score on any pitched ball which passes the batsman.

6. Bunting, or attempting to bunt is prohibited.

7. The ball is dead and not in play in all cases specified in regulation baseball and the following cases: On a bunt or attempt to bunt; when an overthrow touches the person of a coacher; when a block is declared, when an overthrow at first, third, or home base strikes an obstruction.

8. Question: Is a ball legally caught when it hits the body and then is smothered and held with the hands against the body?
Answer: Yes.

In the past years the County Meet has produced no special stars in track and field events, with one exception. Goff of Evant had a great deal of natural ability in the pole vault and attracted some attention with his tree-top jumping. The main reason for this scarcity is that track and field events are highly specialized contests and require a great deal of technical training and coaching, coupled with native ability. Very few boys in this county has the time or equipment to make a speciality of these types of athletic contests, and consequently few of them attract attention.

A majority of the track and state finals come from larger cities, where they have the distinct advantages of all sorts of equipment and special training. Boys from the rural districts, who run in tennis shoes and rolled up pants on a rough and uneven dirt track, can hardly be expected to turn in good time, but one thing can be assured. The County Meet is the annual gathering place of the entire county where contests are held in friendly fashion, and where goodwill is promoted. The real aim of the meet is accomplished, better scholastic standarts by competition.

Engineer Here Next Week to Make Preliminary Survey on City Streets

Announcement was given out from the City Hall yesterday that an engineer would be in Gatesville next week to make a preliminary survey on the city streets with the view of resurfacing pavement in the city.

So far, there is nothing definite about this, but the need of it has made it necessary to take some action, and estimates and advices as to the best way to handle the situation are to be gotten from the surveying engineer.

May Gravel End of Main
Cooperation of the highway department and the city is evident in an attempt to get the portion of East Main street from the end of the new Highway 7 graveled in to the end of the pavement. Conferring with WPA officials in Waco, Elland Lovejoy, City Secretary, said they have expressed themselves favorable to this work, and it is hoped to be able to get this graveling done.

PAINTER'S IS BEST PLACE FOR "SIT-DOWN" STRIKE

It's Spring! And the best time we know of for a sit-down strike. Painter's is the place, especially with the new comfortable chairs which have just been installed in the shoe department there.

Time permitting, we expect to go on a "sit-down strike" ourselves, and park our carcasses up there some day, just for a snooze—that is if we are not wakened by either "R. P." or Cyril—which will more than likely be the case.

These particular chairs have one of those leather cushions in some fluffy spring color, and are what we ignorantly call "Century of Progress, or Texas Centennial Chairs."

NEAL HINSLEY BREAKS ARM DURING PRACTICE FRIDAY

Hinsley was a member of the Hornet football team this past season and unless the arm heals properly will be greatly missed by next fall's team, where his passing will be in demand.

County Meet Executive Committee Holds an Important Meet Wed.

The County Meet programs have many friends in the county. It has been one of the forces that has had a strong influence since 1910, for raising standards of school work. Interest shown by the teachers and enthusiasm shown by students in their competition with students from other schools working under competent judges creates excellent standards of work.

The executive committee with C. D. Boyer as chairman has worked diligently and wisely thus far in planning the program this year. The program committee met Wednesday and outlined a program for three days.

The thirty directors of different events met with the executive committee at a luncheon at the Cozy Cafe on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. Good food, good humor, and good cheer characterized the feast. Directors are busy people but the response to the call was met by those concerned. After luncheon all reported at once to the District Court room, where details of the program were worked out in detail. This program will be found in an early issue of the Coryell County News.

The Executive Committee met for a short session at 8:45 o'clock. At this meeting it was decided to have the Junior basketball teams from the 11th grade and Ward schools to play their contest down to the finals beginning at 1:00 o'clock Saturday March 20, at the Gatesville Gym. Admission to the games will be 10c a session. The Executive Committee adopted Spaulding's Softball Rules for the softball tournament, and since there are no copies of the 1937 rules off the press yet, a sub-committee has agreed to publish the essential points as found in the office copy. The children of Coryell County are accustomed to the softball rules as found in this copy.

TYPING TEAM WINS AGAIN

An undetermined number, with their teachers were injured in all varying degrees.

1937 FARM PROGRAM SIGN-UP BEGAN THURSDAY

Sign up in the 1937 Farm Program began Thursday morning, 18th, with committees and clerks being sent to the respective communities where interested farmers are being signed up. All farmers are urged to get their work sheets signed up as quickly as possible in order that analysis may be made for the county, and reports made back at an early date.

Those interested in signing up and participating in the Range Program are requested to sign a card at the County Agent's office, which does not obligate the signer in line for all range information as soon as it is obtained.

As quickly as sufficient information is on hand educational meetings will be held at vantage points in the county to explain to those interested in the workings of the Range Program.

Below is the schedule for the sign-up, beginning this morning, Friday, Thursday committeemen and clerks were at Ewing and Purnela.

- The schedule is:
- Pidcoke, Friday a. m. Mar. 19,
 - Coryell Friday p. m. 19th.
 - The Grove Friday p. m. 19.
 - Flat Saturday 20th.
 - Evant p. m. only Sat. 20th.
 - Pearl Monday 22.
 - Oglesby March 22.
 - Copperas Cove March 22.
 - Gatesville March 23.
 - Turnersville at Gatesville on March 24.

First meager reports gave the total killed at 760, but later reports have modified this, but still, not the horror of this quiet little East Texas community. No odor of collecting gas nor premonition of the disaster was given. Leaking gas collected under the building is evidently the cause of the explosion. It is reported there was no fire.

In the New London school it is reported there were some 1200 pupils enrolled with about 500 in the building which was wrecked by the explosion. 80% of these being dead and the other 20% seriously injured for the most part. Eighty-five are in Tyler in the hospital, and the undertaker there has 100 bodies in the morgue.

Hundreds of oil field workers have set to work clearing the debris with lighting equipment being furnished by the oil companies. Help is being rushed under the direction of the Red Cross from Houston, Shreveport, Waco, Dallas, Beaumont, Tyler, Longview and all other neighboring cities.

Martial law has been declared by Governor Allred, and the rescue work is in charge of officers of the Texas National Guard from Tyler and Logview, in addition to the Texas Rangers, State Highway Patrol and local officers. Broadcasts were given last night asking that people do not rush to the scene of the disaster, due to the confusion and choking of the highways so ambulances, which in many instances consisted of laundry wagons, and everything that could be commandeered to take care of the dead and injured.

Thirty-three teachers taught in the school, and it is reported ten of these are dead. The Superintendent W. C. Shaw was uninjured as he was in a nearby town at a business meeting for the school. His son, however, was in the ruins, and he rushed to the scene and immediately began the search for his son's remains.

New London boasted one of the finest rural schools in the world, having some six to ten buildings and a new stadium and gymnasium.

Radio broadcasting was commandeered for emergency broadcasting, and helping direct relief, and connect relatives with their loved ones. The explosion occurred in the high school building, the primary and intermediate having been turned out only a short time before. The athletic director had a number of students on the campus at the time of the tragedy.

New London is located near Tyler, Longview, and is 13 miles southwest of Kilgore.

HISTORY OF THE GATESVILLE Y. W. A.

by E. Lera Gregory

Good Ship Y.W.A. set sail
March 16, 1932,
With Admiral Morton
And ten members of the crew
Jouously hopeful
That the trip would be Profitable and long
On Life's Great Sea.

Captain Boykin, as their leader
They chose,
To direct them in battle and in Calm Repose.
She served for several months
Most valiantly.
Then gave place to next in command,
Captain Gregory.

The ten jolly sailors no time
Did waste
And took as their Sailing Song,
"O. Zion Haste;"
Their aim was to give others
The Happiness Key;
So they adopted the watch word
Daniel 12:3,

And endeavored to shine as
The stars above,
by telling lost souls of the
Saviour's love;
For they chose Him, their Pilot to be.
As the Good Ship set sail
On Life's Great Sea.

The sailors bro't others
On to the ship,
To go with them on their
Pleasant trip;

But Graves, Weigand, Rogers
Summers and Ogletree,
Left them, to enter the "Ship
Of Matrimony."

The dearest on deck we the Commodores three,
Stockburger, Benson and Bellamy.
They encouraged and helped
The crew,
By inspiring them greater things
To do.

Captains who have served
So faithfully,
Are: Rogers, Welch Smith,
And Sasse;
They worked and proyed
Year after year,
And guided the ship
On without fear.

Five Years of sailing
Happily along.
Five years of work, worship
Pleasure and song;
Joyous young sailors bound
Together by love,
Looking to Him, who Reigns above.

May you sail on and on and
Never stray
From the path which leads
To the Harbor Fair,
Where we'll shed no tears
And have no care.

of Baylor University, Waco, and Ex-Governor of Texas, was a

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND?

YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unsympathetic, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it.

When your back aches and your nerves scream, don't take it out on your husband. He can't possibly know how you feel.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Sentinels of Health
Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Brown Bread

in Bully Desserts

HERE'S a short cut to making two bully desserts which will not only vary your menus, but make your family sit up and ask for more. The first of these is Quick Steamed Pudding with Creamy Hard Sauce: Steam one pound can brown bread with raisins, remove from can and slice in eight slices. Serve with sauce made as follows: Cream one-half cup butter, add slowly one and one-half cups confectioner's sugar and continue creaming until light and fluffy. Add a few grains salt, one-eighth teaspoon almond flavoring and either one-half cup cream, beaten, or one beaten egg white. Serves eight.

A Boston Bon Gout

Boston Torte with Sauce Supreme: Steam one pound can brown bread with raisins as usual, and break into pieces the size of a small walnut, using a fork. Pile into parfait glasses and pour over the following sauce: Combine one cup sugar, one-third cup water, a few grains salt and a few grains cream of tartar and boil to 236 degrees or the thread stage. Pour the syrup slowly over two well-beaten egg yolks, and beat with a Dover egg beater until very creamy. Add a few grains nutmeg and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Just before serving fold in one cup cream, beaten. Serves eight.

WASHINGTON WITH Congressman

W. R. (BOB) POAGE

The House passed the Vinson Coal Bill last week after two days of debate. This bill is in effect a "rewrite" of the now famous Guffey Bill with those provisions that were previously held to be unconstitutional stricken out. It is astounding to me to hear members of Congress get up and state that they knew that the original Guffey Bill was unconstitutional when they voted for it but that they now believe we have a constitutional bill. I, at least, thing the present bill may be constitutional, although it is clearly on the line itself. However, I feel that a member should not vote for a bill unless he at least thinks it is probably constitutional. Certainly no member is in a position to give enough study to any bill to pass mature judgement on its constitutionality and if it seems probable that the bill is valid I give it the benefit of the doubt, but where there is no doubt I feel that I am forbidden by my oath of office from voting for a measure I know to be unconstitutional, yet I have talked with dozens of members since I have been here who openly state they voted for measures they knew were unconstitutional. This coal bill attempts to apply a kind of code to the soft coal industry through the establishment of a Soft Coal Commission. This commission will exercise a general control over the industry including the fixing of prices of that part affecting interstate commerce such as the Interstate Commerce Commission regulates and fixes rates of interstate common carriers. It does not affect our section very materially but it is of great importance to the East and as all sides seem to want this kind of legislation I voted for it.

The Senate was not in session much last week as it had started hearings on the Supreme Court Bill. I have not had an opportunity to hear any of the proceedings but I understand they are drawing large crowds and many members to Congress are giving little attention to any other business regardless of its importance. As one of the national legislative offices reported to its members "The present congress started off with a bang, real progress was expected, then came the question of the Supreme Court and something happened, activity in all other directions ceased, and from present indications, will remain dormant until this question is settled. It is for this reason that I cannot report more favorably on the legislation in which we are all vitally interested." And I feel very much as he does. I think it is most unfortunate that we should allow the Court question to hold up action on such questions as home ownership and farm tenantry, but that is what is happening and I am afraid that we may be here all summer before we have an opportunity to act on such important legislation. However, not anyone has taken off to listen to the Senate. The House has started debate on the Neutrality Bill and I trust it will pass this week. It will then go to a conference committee. In the meantime the committees are still working. Last Thursday night I attended a meeting with a rather small group especially interested in the tenancy question and listened to Dr. Alexander of the Resettlement Administration. After his talk we all asked questions and I am sure that the Resettlement Administration has in mind a great and complicated set up whereby the government will buy land and then parcel it out to clients in a manner that will cost the government hundreds of millions of dollars, enriching a few people who have land to sell and provide good jobs for a large force, but I fear that it will do little toward helping a tenant buy the place he wants to buy. I think we should be more interested in loaning the tenant money to buy the home of his own selection than in providing good paying government positions for men to buy large blocks of land at fancy prices, but the first thing many of the bureaus and departments seem to think of is "how many new positions will you create?"

4-H CLUB NEWS

Travis Harper of Flat 4-H Club exhibited a fat Hampshire pig at the Ft. Worth Stock Show this week. Harper's pig was declared by the judge to be carrying a most excellent finish, but was light in the ham. The pig was placed well up in the money in a class of 44.

Harper's pig was bred, raised and fed on their farm. The pig was given free excess to a self-feeder containing clean shelled yellow corn and protein supplement, composed of equal parts of cotton seed meal and tankage, along with additional supplemental feed by hand. By using this method an unusual gain was realized.

4-H CLUB WORK

Taylor I. Young Jr., sold his 4-H Club calf in Fort Worth during the week of the stock show for 9 1/2 cents a pound. The calf weighed 830 pounds and along with other calves offered the same day was heavier and showed a firmer finish. This was Young's first year in club work. The calf was put on feed in May 1936.

All 4-H Club boys who grow their own feed this year and have that feed on hand will be offered financial aid in buying beef calves to feed out for market on home grown feed.

It is now planned that these calves will be brought together at a show in Gatesville in the spring of 1938.

EXPLOSION

The PTA was holding a meeting in one of the nearby buildings, and these mothers and fathers rushed out immediately after the explosion to see a campus strewn with the remains of their little ones, many others being in the ruins with injured dying and the dead lying everywhere.

Press reports call this the greatest tragedy since the Chicago fire.

DICK POWELL SAYS FAREWELL TO HIS LITTLE MUSTACHE

That small mustache which Dick Powell grew recently and which he continued to sport in "Gold Diggers of 1937," the Warner Bros. musical showing at the Regal Theatre, Saturday night 10:30, Sunday and Monday, caused no end of controversy in the state of Arkansas among his fans.

People down in Arkansas take Powell's personality, private life and sartorial habits very much to heart, inasmuch as he is a prized native son of that state. Constructive criticism from Arkansas comes in the mail to Dick at the rate of about four hundred letters a week.

Even the men voiced their opinions pro and con. An Ozark mountaineer wrote Dick that if he (Dick) ever showed up in his neck of the woods with a silly-looking soup strainer like that he'd shoot it off with a double-barreled shotgun.

"—And I ain't missed my mark in forty years," he added.

That threat may have had nothing to do with it—but anyhow, when the picture was completed and Dick married Joan Blondell and started for a New York honeymoon, the mustache was gone!
