Wednesday, with Eiland Lovejoy, City Secretary, Mr. Fritz visited the WPA office in Waco where the project was presented. At present the favorable prospects are that the project will be started sometime in early April.

The re-surfacing of Main and Leon streets is the Number One project of the street improvement program. Other projects include storm sewers, drainage structures, curbs, gutters, and grading.

The estimated cost of the re-surfacing projects will come between six and seven thousand will be paid by the WPA.

Rev. Marcus M. Chunn, local pastor, will speak tonight at 7:30 o'clock in "The Choice That Shook the World" and Bro. Edwards will assist in the song service and special music.

The young people will meet in a group meeting tonight in the basement of the church for their final meeting during the revival. Bro. Edwards has a special message to bring at this time and urges all young people to attend.

CITY BUYS LAND AS ADDITION TO CEMETERY SITE

The city has secured land, approximately 90x100 feet, on the south side of the cemetery that will be blocked up into lots and become an addition to the City Cemetery.

When originally laid out, the City Cemetery had ample space, but with the passing of the years it has become crowded to capacity. The new addition will be a much needed improvement.

TO PATRONS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF GATESVILLE

Since the terrible calamity that happened to the New London school in East Texas, no doubt the patrons of our schools are wondering if the buildings and heating system of our school plant are safe.

A short time ago we had two competent Government Engineers to check the Grammar school building, which is the oldest building, and they reported to a joint session of the City Council and School Board that while this building was in need of repairs to bring it up to date, it was safe and sound and with the necessary repairs would last for many years, the gas heating system has recently been checked and pronounced safe.

With the new building, which will soon be erected according to plans and specifications as outlined by the School Board, places the Gatesville public school system in good shape.

Signed: C. E. Gandy, R. L. Saunders, J. O. Brown, L. S. Holmes, Eiland Lovejoy, Reid Powell, Edgar Franks, G. W. Byrom, J. E. Davidson Jr., B. W. West.

James A. Farley Speaks At Waco and Temple On Trip to This State

Central Texans were permitted to hear one of the greatest political organizers in the history of the game Tuesday when Postmaster General James A. Farley spoke at Waco, and later in the day at Temple.

"Big Jim" was the central figure at the dedication of the new Waco post office and was no disappointment to the thousands of Texans who had gathered to hear him.

Later in the day, at Temple, the Postmaster General spoke again to a large crowd. Others on the program of the banquet in Farley's honor were Lieutenant-Governor Walter Woodul, Harry Hanes, Senator J. Manley Head, Congressman Bob Poage, and John Wood.

Senator Head brought forth his vocal talents and sang two songs, "Old Man River" and "Without a Song," for the guests, thereby earning for himself the title of "The Singing Senator."

Those attending the dedication of the Waco post office or the Chamber of Commerce-Board of Developments banquet in Temple from Gatesville were Mr. and Mrs. Joyce Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Holt, Mrs. Byron Leaird Jr., Gene Alvis, Mr. and Mrs. Mat W. Jones, J. Hurl McClellan, Rufe Brown, Joe Hanna, and J. T. Garren from Turnersville.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT OCCURS NEAR OGLESBY

Tuesday, returning from Waco, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Bates of this city narrowly escaped injury when their car skidded on the slick black dirt near Oglesby.

Their car careened and slid into a concrete abutment, bending their bumper, but it had been slowed up enough so there was no other damage.

POSTON BROS. ATTEND CONVENTION IN DALLAS

H. E. and R. O. Poston, owners and operators of Poston Bros., International Dealers here were in Dallas, Tuesday of this week where they attended the convention of the International Dealers of Texas, some 350 strong.

Besides the business sessions which were held in the Adolphus Hotel, the company tendered the dealers a sumptuous banquet in the Adolphus Tuesday evening, at which the announcement was made of the new International Trucks which would soon be on display.

Those will be seen in Gatesville early next week, according to the Messers Poston.

WEST SIDE WRECKING CO. BUYS OUT GEORGE MILLER

Otis Harvey, manager of the West Side Wrecking Shop which was formerly "across the river," has just bought George Miller Produce company out and will continue the produce business as well as the wrecking shop and spare parts company he formerly owned.

This business is now located at the old George Miller stand and will be glad to meet his friends there. An associate in the business is Mr. Summers.

Mr. Miller, who has been in the produce business here for longer than you can probably remember, will retire at his home on South 5th street.

GATESVILLE BAKERY INSTALLS "DOUGH-BRAKE" IN BAKERY

Gatesville Bakery has a new gadget, a dough-brake. This "mangler" (if it was a laundry), squashes the air out of the bread, making the holes smaller, and more uniform, which in turn, it is said, makes the bread better, and, at least so much air is not sold.

The bread is kneaded and worked by this machine until it has the proper texture, before it is then weighed, cut and put in the oven to bake.

It takes improvement in machinery to make improvements in products, someone has said.

PAY CAR LICENSE BEFORE APRIL FIRST

The State Highway Department has advised this office that all Highway Laws and regulations are to be strictly enforced regarding the registration of cars and trucks, and calls especial attention to the law requiring that car owners register their cars and trucks in the County Collector's office, and this office will appreciate the observance of this notice.

We are in position to register your car for you at anytime and we have established a separate department for the registration of cars where the owner brings his last year receipt, thereby insuring instant service, as it requires some delay to look up your Numbers in case you do not have your papers, however, we will continue to do this also.

Please remember the last day for registration without penalty is Thursday, April 1, 1937. Thanks!

—Dave H. Culberson, Assessor-Collector.

Coryell County's school children were the stars of the firmament at the pre-Easter County Meet which started Wednesday evening with the "brain trust" in action in the first events. "Grunt and Groan" articles, "tendon stretchers," and the boys on the "flying trap-eeze" began their fling Thursday with a series of events which included tennis, and playground ball, Track and field events, the old stand-by, basketball, what little is left, and all others start today. Choral singing was held last night.

Although some reports have come in from the athletic events there was a "sit down strike" as far as information about the intellectuals were concerned.

Results so far, as outlined by J. R. Saunders, News sport scribe, and Norman Basham, editor of the Hill Crest, Pearl High School paper, are given below:

Tennis singles for boys were won by Gatesville High school, when Duncan Kirkpatrick copped the junior crown, and C. H. Wallace won the senior event. Cotton Adams and Cobb Hall of Copperas Cove took off honors in the double division. Kirkpatrick then downed Wallace for the county championship in singles.

Copperas Cove grammar school beat Gatesville High's softball team by a score of 13 to 6 for the County championship. The GHS junior team took Pearl into camp by a top-heavy score of 19 to 3 for the Class A championship. Mound won the rural pinship. Mound won the rural victories in succession.

Flat and Osage girls teams will play for the county championship Monday.

Busy Bee Club Union

On the afternoon of March 30, the Busy Bee Club will meet with Mrs. L. Kemp and daughter. All members are urged to be present and visitors are welcome.

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

NOTES

Patients at this time in the hospital are:

Mrs. Foster Mitchell,

Mrs. Laurence Herring and young daughter, Wanda.

Gatesville To Have Junior High Building Soon

Bids are being asked in this issue of the News for the construction of a Junior High School building for the city of Gatesville, covering all necessary material, machinery, equipment, superintendence and labor.

No specified amount is given, since this is to come or be named by the contractors on the job.

It is assumed this building will be constructed under the direction of the WPA, since this government agency has approved a proposed project for a building of like nature here.

The proposed building is to have one floor, with study hall, class rooms, rest rooms and other necessary equipment on the this floor. Beneath the building is the truck garage and service station where the various trucks and busses used to carry children to school will be serviced and housed.

Gatesville, according to a recent letter from the president of the School Board, is badly in need of some sort of arrangement for caring of the overflowing numbers attending school here, and the patrons of the school will be pleased with this announcement.

Prominent Osage Man
Passed Away Friday

Funeral services were held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Baptist church of Osage for Price Edwards, 54, prominent farmer in that section of the county, who died of heart attack Friday morning at 9:30 when enroute to Waco to see a physician concerning his ill health. He was in company of his wife and brother, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Edwards when the attack came and was immediately carried to Osage where further help was summoned. Reverends Clarence A. Morton, A. Loper, and M. B. Saases officiated when the last rites were said before a large concourse of relatives and friends.

Born at Osage, Dec. 7, 1883, Mr. Edwards located there immediately following his marriage to Miss Nobla Jenkins, 29 years ago and it was in this community that they raised their children. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards moved to Gatesville a few years ago and placed their children in the public schools in this city, having returned to the Osage community within the past two years. He is survived by his wife; two sons, Sterling Edwards of this city; Stanley Thomas of Osage; two daughters, Miss Jimmie Doris, who was attending Texas State College for Women in Denton when the message came, and Miss Dorabeth, of Osage; a mother, Mrs. J. M. Edwards; one brother, J. B. Edwards and three sisters, Mrs. Claude Etchison, Osage; Mrs. John Brittain, Valley Mills and Mrs. E. B. Vermillion of Oklahoma City, Okla.

He was a kind, gentle son, loving husband and father and respectful of his many friends. His place in the home will be sadly missed as will his place in the community and county.

Pallbearers were John L. Joe Bailey, Curt and Bill Edwards; Bob and Hill Martin. He was laid to rest in the Osage cemetery with Scott Funeral directors in charge.

Why do state highway departments warn the public: "Concrete pavement ends"?

Because it is universally accepted that speeds which are reasonable and safe on concrete become dangerous on other surfaces.

To save lives, to prevent accidents . . . demand concrete all the way.

True and even, it has no high crown—is usable to its full width. Brakes are at their best on its gritty non-skid surface. Its light gray color and sharply defined edges give high visibility at night. Any car is a better car on concrete.

And concrete saves money for motorists and for taxpayers. Insist on concrete for your roads.

Easter

SUNDAY

EASTER

Easter is one of the oldest events in the Christian world. Formerly, like many other festival occasions in use now, it was more of a religious celebration. Like Christmas, Easter has been considerably commercialized, but there is that feeling and sentiment as was previously connected that still permeates the harder crust of this ultra-commercialized civilization, and bring out its simple beauties and rites.

Easter, in the modernly concocted meaning, means new hopes, new aspirations, new ideals. It is the time when winter is definitely over, and we are looking forward to a glorious late spring and summer. The call of the out-of-door life, rug beating, house cleaning, fishing, golf, camping, travel, new homes, repairs to old ones, and a million and one other things that will and do happen in and around and after Easter.

But you don't want to listen to this chatter, you want to get out in the Spring air, doing whatever you choose and have a grand and glorious Easter. So, go to it! But don't forget to attend some church for Easter service Sunday.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

Europe's Deaf Ear Third Term for Allred?

Secretary of State Cordell Hull's suggestion to European statesmen that they get together and settle their differences at a conference like the recent Pan-American conference at Buenos Aires has fallen upon deaf ears. It is true that the dismal failure of the World Economic Conference in 1933 to take any worthwhile steps to alleviate the international financial crisis meant the doom of all efforts at cooperation by world or European powers, but if Europe's statesmen were to assemble in a true spirit of cooperation, there is reason to believe the tense atmosphere now prevailing in all nations might be dispelled.

It may be said with all certainty that the common people of the European nations want no war. It is also true that the masses wanted no conflict in 1914. But it is not a warlike spirit on the part of the masses, nor is it solely the blundering of statesmen that brings on war. In 1914 it was a world-wide spirit of FEAR which engendered the conflict.

Frenchmen and English were aroused by fiery patriotic and diplomats against the Teutonic peoples; Russians were imbued by government and church with fear and distrust of Germany and Austria; the Kaisers of the latter two powers preached the danger of Pan-Slavism and the glory of their own empires.

Armaments were built up at an appalling speed while the seeds of hate were sown. Then the fateful moment came. The mobilization of the Czar's hosts was pictured as threatening the security of Germany—and Germans marched happily to battle to repel the aggressive Russia.

The same story, with slightly altered conditions, is being repeated in all its gruesome intensity today. European workers and farmers do not want to fight.

But the Frenchmen are told that the Boche are rearing for another fling at the Rhine! Germans are portrayed before young Russian Communists as the hereditary enemy of the fatherland; Hitler's Nazis shout with unending zeal that Communist hordes are preparing to invade western Europe, and so the story goes.

Again the seeds of hate are being sown. And again they will be reaped. European diplomats fear war; their peoples oppose it; but another Sarajevo will come, and with each nation literally bursting with guns, there will be another fight.

As before, statesmen of the major powers will find themselves embroiled up to their necks in obligations to other powers who are entangled; the people will go to war, to a war in whose making they had no part.

If Jimmie Allred has in mind winning the senate seat of Tom Connally, as all good Texans believe he has, the course he is likely to pursue is the startling one of seeking a third term as governor. Political precedent says this can't or hasn't been done—I don't know which, but Jimmie has toppled several precedents since he walked into the governor's mansion in January, 1934, after beating three of the State's best politicians.

The Governor's second term expires in January, 1939, and it will be nearly two years later when Texas' junior senator is approved or rejected by his constituency. Allred supporters fear that for their man to be out of office for two years before the 1940 contest would seal his defeat before the contest with Senator Connally began. Texans have a strange way of forgetting ex-office holders and of not returning to office officials who have once retired (Fergusons excepted, please).

Should the governor determine to seek a third term as chief executive, voters of this state would probably see one of the liveliest contests of the century. A battle royal between past masters at this job-seeking game would likely ensue that would set in the background the Sterling-Ferguson battle of 1932 and the Allred-Hunter contest of 1934.

Attorney William McCraw proved his ability as a vote-getter de luxe three years ago when

WASHINGTON WITH Congressman W. R. (BOB) POAGE

March 22, 1937. Again I have an opportunity to write to my friends from Waco. I came with Post Master General Farley and his party to take part in the dedication of the new Post Office building at Waco and to attend the State-wide rally held here today (Tuesday), also the banquet to be held at Temple tonight.

The longer one is away from Texas, the greater his pleasure at returning, and had it not been for the appalling tragedy that occurred in East Texas, I am sure we could not hope to have enjoyed any more pleasant opportunity to show Texas to our distinguished guests.

Mr. Farley is recognized in Washington as the man, who more than any other one man in the United States, brought about the election and re-election of our great President and the recent success of the Democratic Party. He is the active head of the greatest political party in the world—the Democratic Party—and of the greatest business organization—the United States

Post Office Department—and he has done a good job of both. Naturally he has very little time for visits over the country, so I feel that our people were peculiarly honored when he agreed to make a thirty-five hundred mile trip to especially visit our district and appear at Waco and Temple.

I did not leave Washington till Congress had completed its work for the week, most important of which was the passage of the McReynolds' Neutrality Bill. The general purposes of this bill are the same as those of the bill the Senate passed a few days previous, but it vests more discretion in the President.

The bill was opposed by a number of different groups, each with a different purpose. Some felt that the bill would hurt certain factions in Spain, some that it would destroy American trade, and the most active opposition was that voiced by Hon. Hamilton Fish of New York, the ranking Republican member of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Kirsten Flagstad to Close Regular Opera Season in Wagner's 'Lohengrin'

By KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD

Again we come to the end of a New York opera season. It makes me sad, for I have been very happy in my work this year at the Metropolitan. I know I shall miss its pleasant surroundings and the congenial company of my fellow workers. Still there is a measure of satisfaction in both opening and closing a successful season with a great Wagnerian masterpiece. Curiously enough, I am returning to my first operatic role, Elsa in "Lohengrin."

Born of a family of professional musicians, I naturally started my musical education early, although my parents had no intention of making me follow the musician's life. First I studied piano and I became aware that there was such a thing as opera. Soon I was raising my thin and childish voice in some of the great arias. It must have sounded rather silly, but I suppose it was only the desire of every child to live in an imaginary world. Then, at the very mature age of ten years, I laid hands on the score of "Lohengrin" and learned my first complete role.

That was long ago, long before I learned the meaning of Elsa. How could I, a child, understand the fear of this warm, dreamy woman that the happiness she had suddenly received might be suddenly snatched away? Many of you will be listening to this performance of "Lohengrin" when it is broadcast next Saturday by the National Broadcasting Company and the Radio Corporation of America. Perhaps you will understand it better if I tell the story in briefest outline.

Seated under the great Oak of Justice, King Henry summons the warriors of Brabant, but finds the vassal state in disunion. The young Duke Godfrey has disappeared and Elsa, his sister, is accused of his murder, that she might share his estates with a secret lover. Telramund, her accuser, himself claims the right of succession. He has married Ortrud, last of a princely line which has clung to the ancient gods, who possesses some power as a sorceress.

The King summons Elsa and decrees that ordeal by combat shall decide the justice of the charge. But where is Elsa's champion? She replies that heaven shall send her a champion, "a knight of glorious mien" who spoke to her in a vision.

KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD

"If in his heart he'll keep me," she declares, "I shall give him all that I am."

Trumpeters, placed at the four points of the compass, blow a summons to the unknown champion. None appears. Once more the call issues. "The heavens are silent," murmur the men of Brabant. "she is doomed!" Then, standing on the prow of a boat drawn by a swan, comes "a warrior full fair."

Lohengrin approaches Elsa, offers himself as her champion but exacts from her the promise that if they wed she will never ask his name, rank or race. In dreamy ecstasy she promises. Lohengrin steps into the circle paced off by six nobles and with a single blow strikes Telramund to earth, but spares his life. Ortrud stands ast at the failure of the old gods before this new power as Lohengrin and Elsa are borne away on the shields of king and warriors.

At the opening of the second act, Telramund, abject in defeat and disgrace, berates Ortrud for having led him to accuse Elsa. But Ortrud has divined that if anything compels Lohengrin to reveal his identity then his power is lost, his strength dissolved. Only Elsa, however, may put the question. "Then to ask him Elsa must be tempted," he declares, "she alone can break the spell."

Elsa appears on the balcony and Ortrud begs her compassion. Then she begins hinting darkly about the mysterious appearance of her betrothed. Perhaps—who knows?—he may disappear as quickly. Resist though she may, Elsa cannot still the doubts and fears implanted by Ortrud.

The third act opens. To the strains of the immortal Wedding March, Elsa and Lohengrin enter the bridal chamber. Alone with her husband, Elsa can be still no longer; she must know. "Tell me," she begs, "reveal thy name and race—all that befell thee. My power of silence thou shalt prove." He tries to stop her, but Elsa is driven on by a frenzy of fear. Telramund breaks in to kill Lohengrin, but he is struck dead.

Now that he has slain Telramund, Lohengrin must explain himself. Before all he proclaims himself the son of Parsifal, a defender of the Holy Grail come to right the cause of Elsa. Now he must return whence he came. Ortrud gloats over the victory of her magic and tells that it was she who transformed Godfrey into the very swan that has come to carry Lohengrin away. But she speaks too soon. Lohengrin kneels in silent prayer, then rises and loosens the golden chain from the swan's neck. The swan sinks into the river and Godfrey steps upon the bank. Lohengrin embarks in his boat and disappears as Elsa sinks lifeless to the ground.

Chapter 3

On the McGregor prairie (McLennan county), where the center of Texas population now is, there was not a settler a century ago. A few daring souls returned from the "Runaway Scrape" of 1836 planted crops on Little River below the present Belton; a few others occupied Viesca, the new seat of the Robertson colony at the "Falls" where the river was fordable. Captain Barron's company of Rangers was stationed at the "Falls" of the Brazos a hundred years ago and were ordered to establish a fort at the Waco (Spanish, "Hueco") village thirty miles up-river. They had to cut a road through and build a bridge over Cow Bayou using three weeks coming up.

All this country, from the Old San Antonio road northward on both sides of the Brazos, was then included in Milam county, which before the revolution had been the Mexican municipality of Viesca, in December, 1837. On the Texas map of 1842 we see Robertson covering all the country between Trinity and Brazos north to Red River, and Milam stretching far orthwest to Paloduro canyon. The few settlers were in the extreme southern part of this vast region, while for several years Rangers and Indians played hide and seek over the remainder.

Into this empire, first as a Ranger, then as a surveyor, came one George B. Erath. He and his companions explored as far north as the present Hood County and as far west as Comanche and Brown counties. We might with justice call it "Erath's Empire," for he did more than any other one man to plant the banner of civilization firmly from Waco to the head of the Leon. It was he who named Meridian creek and Knobs, and was one of his extensive exploring trips in 1885 when the day came for Texas to vote on annexation to the United States and the adoption of the constitution. Having with them a copy of the chief justice's order for the election the polls were duly opened at their camp on Hog Creek (now in Coryell county), and the votes of the party were officially recorded. Returning toward headquarters Captain Erath found Neil McLennan, a former surveying companion, established on the South Bosque.

At the "Knobs" near the present city of Temple occurred the famous fight in which Captain Shapley P. Ross killed the Indian "Big Foot" in hand-to-hand combat. It is known in border as the battle without the firing of a gun, in which four Indians were slain and the four white men escaped without a scratch.

Not far away (below Belton) the Taylor family had made history in the fall of 1845 by successfully defending their home from an attack. Mrs. Taylor was the heroine of the occasion, ripping off the burning roof under fire from the enemy, and later blinding one of them with a shovel of coals. A wounded Indian fell under the meat hanging to the rafters and when the fire on the roof caused the hot grease to drip on his naked skin the famous stoicism of the noble red man failed, for he yelled with pain. "Howl, you yellow brute," taunted Mrs. Taylor who then proceeded to put the fire out with milk and home-made vinegar.

On Elm Creek, where the Soil Conservation Demonstration area now is, Captain Erath with only fourteen men attacked a party of 100 Caddos well armed with guns and enroute to raid the settlements below, early in 1837. They broke up the raid with the loss of two men, but they had shown more discretion in facing the odds against them. there is no knowing how many victims would have paid with

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
 Martha and Karen, who run a private boarding school in New England, are both in love with Dr. Cardin. But he loves Karen and they are engaged to be married. Mrs. Mortar, Martha's aunt, puts a bad interpretation on an innocent scene between Dr. Cardin and Martha. The quarrel that ensues is overheard by the pupils. Mary Tilford, a vicious child who is bored with school, spreads an ugly rumor and terrorizes one of the other children to support her charges.

Chapter Five

The day that followed was a nightmare for Karen and Martha. Without notice, and without explanation, mothers began calling for their daughters or sending their chauffeurs to bring them home. The children were as bewildered as were their teachers. Karen and Martha finally learned from one of the chauffeurs what had happened. He was a broadminded chauffeur. "If you ask me," he said, "it's none of the old ladies' business truth, she was forced to say that she had seen certain things peering through a keyhole, the keyhole to Martha's room. Martha rose to her feet. "There is no keyhole in my room!" she said. Mary tried to remedy her error. "It wasn't her room. It was the other room, I guess. She was out, and . . . . " "And how did you know anybody was in Miss Wright's room," Cardin demanded. "Cause we heard you. I heard you and . . . . " "My room is on the first floor at the other end of the house," Karen explained to Mrs. Tilford. "It's impossible for anybody to hear anything from there." Cardin turned to leave. "We are finished here," he said. "We can go home now." But Mrs. Tilford stopped him. "Please," she begged. "Wait a minute." And she turned angrily to Mary. "Stop that crying. I want the truth!" Mary, at bay, became a dangerous person. "All right," she said, and her face was bright and earnest once more. "It was Rosalie who saw them. I just said it was me so what goes on after the kids go to sleep. Dr. Cardin, who had overheard, rushed forward. "Get out of here!" he yelled. "Get out of here quick!" Karen began to cry. "Don't, darling," Cardin said. "I know; I've heard." Martha leaned helplessly against the door. "What's happened to us?" she asked desperately. "What are they doing to us? We're being kicked around by crazy people!" Dr. Cardin straightened up. "We've got a fight on our hands," he said. "And it's got to be the best fight we know how to make. Come on!" And together with him the two girls went to Mrs. Tilford's home to demand an explanation. Mrs. Tilford received them politely but coldly. "I don't think you should come here, Miss Wright. I was going to see you tomorrow to explain my position in all this. I am deeply sorry that you had to be involved." "I think we had better understand each other," said Karen quietly. There is nothing for us to explain!—she made a gesture that included the three of them—"and I very much dislike your sympathy." Dr. Cardin, too, was indignant. "What were we expected to do, Mrs. Tilford? Were we supposed to lie down and grin until you finished kicking us around with these lies?" Mrs. Tilford refused to be moved either by their threats or entreaties. She believed the rumor and she had her duties towards innocent children. But Dr. Cardin persisted. "When three people come to you with their lives spread on a table for you to cut to pieces, then the only honest thing to do is to give them one last chance to come out alive. We want that last chance. If you are honest, you'll give it to us." Mrs. Tilford pursed her lips, but then nodded. "Very well," she said slowly, and ordered Mary brought into the room. Mary faced the gross examination boldly at first, answering the questions in a sweet, clear and innocent voice that drove poor Martha almost insane. But as Dr. Cardin persisted in his questioning certain discrepancies appeared in her stories. Mary was unable to explain definitely some of the vague hints that had worked so well with her grandmother. And once she was tripped up badly. Pressed closely for the

I wouldn't have to tattle on Rosalie. You just ask Rosalie. She said it was when the door was open and she told us all about it." They all stared at Mary. But Mrs. Tilford crossed the room and called Rosalie. "Mrs. Tilford," Karen said softly. "You deserve whatever you get." "I don't know," said Mrs. Tilford brokenly, "maybe it's what I do deserve." Rosalie proved a reluctant witness. She had seen nothing, she had never said she had seen anything. And when she was about to explain the whole thing, Mary cut in abruptly. "You're trying to get out of it. I remember the day Helen Burton's bracelet was stolen, and nobody knew who had it and Helen said if her mother found out she'd have the thief put in jail." Rosalie's manner changed suddenly. She stared fascinated and fearfully at Mary like a small wild animal hypnotized by a cobra. Mary moved quickly to her grandmother. "Grandma," she said. "There's something I've got to tell you about that bracelet that . . . ." Rosalie threw herself on the couch with a shrill cry, and began to weep hysterically. "Yes, yes, I did see it. I told Mary. What Mary told was right. I said it. I said it!" Mary patted down her dress with smug satisfaction. Martha was stupefied. Karen moved towards Cardin and stood holding his arm very tightly. Mrs. Tilford viewed them all gravely, regretfully justified. It was the day of the slander suit brought by Karen and Martha against Mrs. Tilford. The jury composed of solid New England citizens had just brought in its verdict. The judge leaned forward and spoke in cold measured terms. "I cannot but agree," he said, "with the verdict that the jury has brought in and to add here a few words of my own. I feel strongly that this case should never have been brought into court. At best, slander cases are slim and dangerous suits. But in this instance, it has been shameless to witness a spectacle of two innocent children, dragged, day after day, through a story that they should never have known at all. Slander suit against Amelia Tilford brought by Joseph Cardin, Karen Wright, Martha Double is dismissed. Plaintiffs to pay costs!" (To be continued.)

Lets Talk About Clothes
 TEXAS STATE COLLEGE
 WOMEN (C.I.A.)

Denton, March 22.—The chill March winds and April rains make practical-minded women a little fearful about venturing out in their new light-weight spring finery. The problem of achieving a stylish appearance and also perserving comfort is perplexing but not impossible to solve.

The trick can be managed by combining some of the warm, dependable numbers from your wintry wardrobe with gay new accessories that announce spring. For instance, that dark suit, which still feels good on biting days, can be transformed with a fresh, new-looking striped blouse, or perhaps a dotted one in bright colors will suit the taste better.

Next comes the dark crepe dress, another winter hangover which can be revamped. Be sure that the sleeves are short, and add to it one of those string, hemp or woolen belts plaited in wild colors. Then invest in one of the shining patent leather bags that come in so many shapes and styles. Get one of the smart new shades, and it will give you good service all summer.

As finishing touches to this early-season affair, try a pair of beige, white or light-colored gloves that will contrast with your dress or bag. Now perch on your head one of those small dark straws that are guaranteed not to blow off and you're ready to start out. If an icy blast suddenly comes your way, you can don the heavy coat without ruining your outfit.

BOB POAGE

I gathered that he was simply against anything that the Democratic Party favored. Mr. Fish is an able man, but he did not have much influence in this case. Some of the gentlemen who were so alarmed about Spain are sincere and honest "liberals" and I am sure that the bill will not help their cause in Spain, but I feel that our first duty is to keep Americans out of war and I know of no more likely method of getting into war at this time than to take sides in the family fuss in Spain.

As for those who objected to the bill because it would hurt American trade, I am sure that everyone will agree that this bill would restrict American trade, and in case of foreign war, would cause some losses to the American shipping business. But inasmuch as the United States Government holds a lien on practically every American merchant ship for purchase money, I can not conceive of the Government saying: "Send our security into the war zone and if it is destroyed, nothing will come of it." On the contrary, if we are to keep out of any wars, we must make some sacrifice and forego some prospective profits, but how insignificant these sacrifices are when compared with the ghastly sacrifices of useless war. For my part, I am ready to make whatever financial sacrifices as necessary to keep us out of war and I voted for the bill.

"Baby" automobiles now lead in popularity in New Zealand.

World Comment—

he swamped veteran campaigner Walter Woodward, then in the State Senate. And Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson has twice won what were seemingly hard contests with big pluralities.

These are the two gentlemen any candidates for the office of governor is sure to face in 1938, Austinites say, and Governor Allred may be included in this category. McCraw will have served four years as Attorney General, and would gain little by seeking a third term in that office. Friends say he has been aiming at the governorship since he entered the political arena in 1935. And Commissioner Thompson has long had his eye upon the executive mansion, we are told.

Should Governor Allred run again, he would have one of the smoothest running political machines behind him this state has ever seen, the Fergusons not excepted this time, if you please. Added to this would be the governor's known ability to garner votes on his own right. Pitted against this combination would be another top-notch campaigner, McCraw, and not far behind Commissioner Thompson, with a machine and large personal fortune to aid him.

Two forces would be set in opposition to the governor's plans. One would be the opposition to a third term which would cost him many thousands of votes, and another would be the animosity of the Connally forces, who would seek to drive Allred out of office before he could take a whack at their leader.
