CARS COLLIDE AT EIGHTH AND MAIN; LITTLE DAMAGE

Two cars had a run-in at the corner of Eighth and Main at about 6 p. m. yesterday, one being driven by a driver from the Mity-Good Bread Company and the other by Mrs. Lizzie Mayberry (col.) with only small damage to the cars, and none to the occupants.

Crossed signals seemed to have caused the mishap, as one was backing, or stopped, the other apparently ran into the first. Bent fenders and running board and door were the only damages to the Mayberry car. There was no damage to the bakery car.

WACO GIRL SUES CITY FOR $10,000 INJURIES

Suit was filed in District Court last week against the City of Gatesville for $10,000 by Lillie Mae Hooten of Waco, who is alleged to have received injuries in Raby Park last summer while riding in the Ferris wheel which was built for the entertainment of children.

According to the papers filed, she was thrown out of the Ferris wheel to the ground and is alleged to have injured her spine, causing much pain, since the vertebrae were splintered and broken, according to the allegations, necessitating extensive medical treatment and hospitalization.

Miss Hooten is represented locally by Robert W. Brown, and by Bryan and Maxwell of Waco, and Jim Weatherby also of Waco.

Details of who would represent the City were lacking, but the City Council met Monday afternoon to discuss the matter, but no information was given as to what transpired.

Previously Gatesville had a City Attorney, but as far as is known there is none at this time. The case is due to come up in the July term of District Court.

THE OLD WEST TO LIVE AGAIN JUNE 4 AND 5

Actual construction work on the chutes and pens for the Rodeo, Gatesville's super-celebration and home-coming, starts today on the Athletic Field, according to Horace Galloway, contractor.

Due in Gatesville today are Emmett Digsby and Doc Spence, rodeo ring-masters, who are returning from a trip to South Texas where they have been selecting the wildest of outlaw horses and bad-tempered steers of the southern ranges to thrill audiences from all over this portion of the country.

Prize lists containing information about the many cash prizes to be awarded have been mailed out to rodeo performers throughout the State of Texas. Officials state that more than a hundred daredevil riders are expected to flock to Gatesville next June 4 and 5 to risk their necks in the competition.

Additional plans to make the Old West live again in all its traditional color and vividness are being formed by committees who have settled down to work in earnestness. By the opening date there will be ready for Central Texas crowds a show that will be entertaining from one breath-taking moment to the next.

Shows Racks for Shoes, Hats

Miss Nerine King, Clothing Demonstrator of the Plainview 4-H Club, showed her hat stand and shoe rack to the club members stating, "I made them out of scraps."

She explained that the shoe rack requires only a pattern for the ends, old broom handles, and scrap lumber. It may be painted in the color scheme of the bedroom or it may be varnished. It has advantages over the old-fashioned shoe bag of being more permanent, dust proof, inexpensive, and portable.

Her hat stand is made from two shingles. In making it she used the pattern furnished thru the Extension Service and sawed out the two shapes and fitted them together, making a stand which is not easily tipped over and holds its shape. Nerine explained that the material for the hat stand can be beaverboard, heavy cardboard or apple box ends.

As clothing demonstrator, Nerine is carrying on her plan of work efficiently and passing information on to the other club members.

Foods Demonstrator Practices Judging

"I scored my mother's canned tomatoes and some commercially canned tomatoes and found that the commercially canned tomatoes were better products because there were fewer seeds free in the juice," stated Miss Elwanda Tabor, Foods Demonstrator of the Slater 4-H Club.

According to the scoring directions compiled by the Extension Service, canned tomatoes should be "even, rich, red color; packed in their own juice with only a few seeds visible."

Judging canned products is being done by 4-H Girls all over the state of Texas this year and one member of a 4-H club is eligible to enter the contest," continued Elwanda in explaining the contest to the club members. As foods demonstrator, Elwanda is practicing judging preparation for the contest.

Better quality home canned products is the aim of 4-H Girls.

COMPATIBILITY

That's to be the theme of the business men's meeting which has been called for the City Hall this evening at eight o'clock.

This meeting is of vital interest to every citizen in Coryell County, and more especially in Gatesville.

It is a meeting to cement the minds of Gatsville business on problems that have long been sadly neglected, and to come out of that meeting with some form of organization, which will cooperatively put Gatesville in its rightful place with the other wide-awake towns and cities in this part of the State. It will not be a "love" meeting, but a cooperative meeting, and love will be used if necessary, to carry out the idea of the meeting.

The seriousness of the situation regarding Gatesville and Coryell County is gradually being realized, and action is necessary at this time to forestall a continuance of this seriousness. It is an acute situation which must be handled correctly and with finesse without further ado. Every business should be represented there.

NATIONAL BABY WEEK

April 25 to May 1 is National Baby Week. City papers are well aware of the fact, and have everything for both mother and baby advertised. Besides being an advertising week, as for that matter, all others are, these papers pay tribute to Baby and Mother, by recognizing that they are of supreme importance in the life of civilization.

Two years ago two of Coryell's finest won places in a nearby city's photographic contest. There were two very proud mothers here. Of course it cost them a little, but what did mother care, or father for that matter, when

Egg Goodness Is Decided By Kitchen Testing

Housewife Determines Quality of Eggs By Several Tests.

Any housewife who wishes to check on the quality of eggs she buys can do so fairly accurately right in her own kitchen. By breaking an egg into a dish and picking up the yolk with the fingers, the amount of thick white, the amount of thin white, and the firmness of the yolk, can be determined.

A good baking and poaching egg contains mostly thick white that clings to the yolk when the raw egg is picked up with the fingers

There should be more thick white than thin. The yolk should be firm and lemon colored. When the yolk is picked up with the fingers, the thick white should cling to the yolk and the thin white should separate and remain in the dish. The more thick white the better the egg. Thin whites mean watery eggs.

Yolk Can Be Bounced in Hand

To test the egg further, the yolk should be subjected to the "pitching" test. Eggs produced by hens fed on high quality feeds contain yolks that may be bounced up and down in the hand without breaking. When the white is removed the yolk should remain unbroken even when tossed from hand to hand. When an egg stands up under this test the housewife can be pretty sure that she has a good egg.

Another kitchen test of eggs is the making of angel food cakes. The amazing difference in the rise and fluffy smoothness of cakes is due to the thickness of white or eggs used in baking. Eggs with thin whites result in flat, soggy cakes that lack the fluffiness and smoothness of cakes made with eggs having thick whites.

But perhaps the most exacting test of an egg is its appearance after poaching. Because the white of the high quality egg is thicker and stands up higher on the yolk very little is lost in the water. There are no big pieces of white floating around in the water when a quality egg is poached. With an ordinary egg as much as 25 percent of the white may be lost in cooking.

Hen Makes Egg From Feed

How to judge the interior of egg when buying them is a perplexing problem. It is only when the housewife knows how the hens that laid them are fed that she can be sure of what the interiors are like. Feet determines entirely the color of the yolk, and to some extent the amount of thick and thin white in a fresh egg.

Practical poultry raisers and scientists agree that since the egg is made entirely from what the hen eats, "control feeding" must be practiced if eggs of uniformly high quality are to be produced. In the Purina laboratories and on the Purina experimental farm, an all-in-one laying mash that gives controlled interiors has been developed

Hens fed on this complete feed produce eggs with a wholesome delicious flavor, lemon colored yolks and whites that stand up well when cooked.

To obtain such eggs go to the local feed merchant handling Purina checkerboard feeds and ask him for the names of his customers using this Layena mash. Poultry raisers who feed Layena to their birds produce the kind of eggs the American housewife is seeking.

G. S. Vickers, of the Ohio Poultry Improvement Association, reports that Ohio Poultry Farm Records show that poultymen whose pullets lay more than 36 eggs during October, November, December and January, make money. Poultrymen whose pullets lay fewer than 36 eggs during those four months, lose money. Only pullets that get what they need during the growing period to make strong, vigorous bodies can be expected to go above the 36-egg profit line. Small undersized, knotty pullets can't make the grade. Their bodies are still immature and under-developed. They have to use laying mash as a growing feed while birds that had a complete growing ration during the summer months start laying immediately after being put into the laying house.

Three teams have notified the News that they are ready and anxious to start the spring baseball season in Coryell County.

Purmela was the first to report, Berkley Laxson dropping by to say that their team will soon organize and be ready to enter a County League.

The Gatesville CCC Camp will also have a team, First Sargent Laney tells us and will be glad to organize with a County league.

Leonard Huff, of Osage reported Saturday that his community is organizing their club and waiting on the formation of a league to start their playing season.

The sooner the managers report then the sooner an active league can be started Who will be the next to report?

WE INTERVIEW A KILLER

There we were, lying on our back and staring up at the ceiling with a wistful look, wondering if flies have as many worries as humans when a terrific thump, thumping on the counter woke us from our reverie.

There he stood, with a look of mayhem in his bloodshot eyes, none other than "Goatmilk" Rutherford, the junior hamburger king of Coryell, known sometimes as "The Horrible Hasher."

Without preliminary palaver he launched into his trade, thumping his chest with every other word and speaking in his peculiar broken English he informed us, and all others within three blocks, that he was the best fighter that ever drew the leather on within the four corners of Coryell County. Just a little bewildered by his verbal barrage we timidly advanced the question as to what that made us and learned that it made us the medium through which all the ambitious leather pushers of this territory would know to prepare for war.

"I'm tired o' pooshing da hamburger across da counter," the amateur said. "I wanta poosh somebody's face in. But if I go arounda pooshing punk's faces in, da Cossacks collar me and throw me in da jug. But if I pull on da leather mittens and shake hands before I start my molder act, den da cops can't touch me. I'm clean wit de law, see. Ya get what I mean?"

A "little puzzled" by the change of accent, but very anxious to please, we assured "The Hasher" that we got what he meant "Who's your manager?" we queried, and received the answer that Handsome Jack Wiggins was taking care of all the routine details.

"Just gettum in ring with me. I scalpem. Ugh! Big Chief Rutherford has spoken." (By this time he had become the Apache Apollo.)

When questioned about particulars of his fistic career the Chief broke down and admitted with tears in his eyes that he had been knocked out once in the many moons he had been in the fight game. It was his first time to ever draw the gloves on, and some bully took advantage of him. When questioned further he admitted that he hadn't been back in the ring since.

Our human curiosity aroused we made bold to ask why all this malicious malarkey to annihilate the human race?

"They laughed when I stepped into the ring," he said, "but I'll make 'em scream before I'm through. Scream for mercy," he added sotto voice.

"Quit speaking sotto voice," we advised, and received the merry quip that he couldn't; "It's the animal in me," he said as he made his waddling exit.

Sitting in a silent reverie and meditating thoughtfully after he had gone, we finally salvaged the fact that there is a prize-fighter, a follower of the Marquis of Queensborough, a fisticuffer of no mean ability in our midst.

You men of the tin ears, the battered noses, and the hamlike hands, here is your chance to match mind and muscle with a self-styled champion. Open to all comers in his approximate weight, Francis Rutherford, the "Gorilla of the Griddle," is ready to swap punches with any other ring-minded amateurs.

Always ready to help promote sports in this sector, your sporting editor is offering a beautiful, though slightly used, tin ashtray, as a trophy symbolical of the championship of the North Side of the Square to either Rutherford, or anyone who knocks him out. Here is a chance for fame and fortune for some lucky lad. Applications may be made here at the News office, to Handsome Jack, or to our hero at Doc's Sandwich Shop. Who shall be the first challenger to appear on the scene?

NUTS AND BOLTS

by RAY ALLEN

"Gosh! This Rush is Killing Me!"

Listen, Brother, you keep on doing that and you'll keep your appointments for the next few weeks in the hospital. There's a place for you to cross the street in safety. It's down at the corner, just a few steps away. No business is quite so important that you should risk your life to save a couple of seconds. Thirty-three thousand pedestrians were injured last year doing just what you are about to do—stepping out from between parked cars. More than 1,100 were killed that way. These figures are taken from Travelers Insurance Company records. Maybe in the rush of business you're forgetting to give enough attention to the business of living.

Entire walls constructed of glass bricks are being used in a new London health center to insure the maximum of sunlight.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

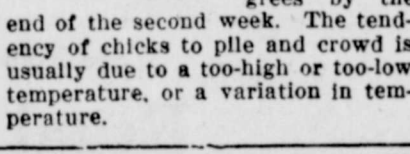

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

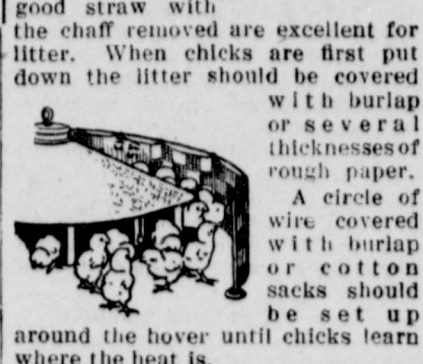

FIRST SIX WEEKS IN EIGHT ACTS

For the first two days after chicks are hatched the temperature should be kept at 90 to 92 degrees, and gradually reduced to 80 or 85 degrees by the end of the second week. The tendency of chicks to pile and crowd is usually due to a too-high or too-low temperature, or a variation in temperature.

The brooder house should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected with a solution of cre-so-fec before chicks are put into it. Peat moss, shavings, or good straw with the chaff removed are excellent for litter. When chicks are first put down the litter should be covered with burlap or several thicknesses of rough paper.

A circle of wire covered with burlap or cotton sacks should be set up around the hover until chicks learn where the heat is. The ordinary brooder house will handle from 250 to 300 chicks. A costly mistake is that of trying to raise more chicks than can be properly cared for. If a portable house is used it should be moved to fresh ground and cleaned and aired before chicks are put into it.

Plenty of fresh water is essential. The chill should be removed, and to aid in the prevention of disease and spread of infection, one-quarter level teaspoon of chloraen powder should be added to each gallon. (Or one measuring spoon to every 10 gallons of water.) Drinking troughs should be kept clean. Washing them in a solution of Purina chloraen is a safe method of preventing spread of disease through the fountains.

As chicks grow older they need more air, but drafts should never be allowed to blow on them. Chicks chill easily and need plenty of warmth the first few weeks.

One of the best ways to prevent crowding and piling is to provide low slatted roosts in the brooder house early and have chicks begin using them at three weeks. A roosting frame made of 1" by 2" material cut to the full length or width of the brooder house can be hinged to the wall at a height of 8 to 10 inches. It can be folded back against the wall when not in use.

During the first six weeks chicks need the best starting feed obtainable. By all means it should be fortified with puratene, that rich pro-vitamin A concentrate that gives extra vigor and vitality to chicks. The starting feed should also contain cod liver oil of proved quality. The soundest method of determining quality in cod liver oil is by feeding it to rats and chicks in actual laboratory tests. Inclusion of high quality oil in the starting feed protects chicks against rickets.

The starting feed should also be made up of ingredients that have been blended scientifically. Almost anyone can put two or more ingredients together to form a mash... but it requires years of scientific study to determine which ingredient should be included and in what amounts to get maximum growth, strong and sturdy legs, and deep yellow pigmentation in chicks. encouraged because their dogs are not getting all of them. But the proper feeding of dogs is no longer a mysterious complex business. Manufacturers of modern dog foods include in their products meat, proteins, vitamins, cod liver oil, salt, minerals, puratene, and dried milk. Purina dog chow comes in a compressed checker form which makes for a greater convenience in feeding. It is also a complete feed, which means that the dog needs only chow and water for a complete feeding. It is easy to feed and leaves no greasy dishes, a desirable feature in the eyes of the housewife.

HOGS DO BETTER WHEN KEPT CLEAN

Greater Growth, Fewer Losses, and Bigger Profits Result.

With humans, cleanliness is next to godliness. With hogs, cleanliness is the backbone of profits. Big dividends in the form of healthier hogs, fewer losses, greater growth, and minimum disease and infection are the results of keeping hogs clean.

That the hog is naturally a dirty animal is disputed by most hog raisers and swine specialists. The old expression "dirty as a pig," they say, should be blamed on hog raisers rather than on the animals themselves. Hogs, without the help of their owners, are unable to clean up their surroundings, and consequently are forced to accept filthy environment.

Clean Hogs Pay Profit

The responsibility of keeping hog quarters clean rests on hog raisers. Like all other animals hogs do better in clean surroundings. A few simple rules of sanitation and cleanliness go a long way in producing money-making hogs.

"Sanitary precautions should be taken before pigs are farrowed," says Ellis Hamel, swine specialist with Purina Mills. A few days before farrowing time the farrowing pen should be thoroughly cleaned. All loose dirt and dust from the ceiling and walls should be brushed down, and all old litter and manure scraped off the floor. The entire farrowing house should be thoroughly disinfected with a solution of one half pint of cre-so-fec in about ten quarts of water. Watering and feeding equipment should be scrubbed in the same solution several times a year, but should be particularly well cleaned before pigs arrive.

Straw Makes Good Bedding

"The best bedding is made from clean, dry straw covering the floor of the farrowing pen. If the straw is finely chopped and scattered as a thin carpet on the floor, little pigs will not get tangled up in it.

"But cleaning just the pen is only half the story in successful hog sanitation," Hamel points out. "The sow herself must be cleaned for the occasion. Several days in advance of farrowing time, the sow should be brought into the farrowing pen and thoroughly washed with soap and water. Disease germs and worm eggs may escape soap and water," Hamel says, "so to play doubly safe, the entire body should be disinfected by a thorough scrubbing with a third of a pint of cre-so-fec in ten quarts of water.

"These precautions insure young pigs a clean start in life and eliminate a great deal of the danger of infection. The possibility of pigs getting worm eggs from the sow is also prevented."

Move Pigs to Pasture

"On a warm sunny day about two weeks after farrowing, the sow and pigs should be moved to a pasture that has not been recently used for hogs. If it is necessary to use the same field year after year, the ground should be plowed in the fall and planted to a good pasture crop," the Purina swine specialist advises. "The sow and pigs should be kept on clean pasture for at least the first four months, and for the entire feeding period if possible.

"At five to six weeks, pigs should be vaccinated for hog cholera. An ounce of precaution is worth more than a pound of cure in this instance, since cholera when it strikes in the hog lot, takes both pounds and profits.

"Pigs bothered by lice should be confined in a small pen and sprinkled with a solution of one pint of cre-so-fec, 3 pints of kerosene and 4 pints of crank-case oil in 4 gallons of water. Lice don't stand a chance against this mixture," Hamel says.

Pigsules Destroy Worms

"Worms, arch enemies of the hog pen, should be fought with pigsules containing oil of chenopodium, tetra-chlorethylene, and a vegetable purgative. Pigsules containing these recommended drugs may be had from the local merchant handling Purina feeds.

"Pigs should be wormed when they are about 10 weeks old. A patented water gun and jaw spreader for administering the pigsules are kept by the local Purina feed merchant. Worming costs less than one pound of pork per pig when done in this way," Hamel points out, "and makes a whale of a difference in the way pigs grow. A rob of feed and poison their systems, thereby cutting down gains, and in some cases causing death. Feeding hogs is a profitable business. Feeding worms isn't."

Big pullets are the money-makers of the flock. They lay more eggs and bigger eggs, and they have a stamina that carries them through without breakdown. Knotty little pullets "go to pieces" because they lack the strength and weight to keep up production. From the time chicks are taken off starting feed until they are ready to go into the laying house is the "development" period that determines what kind of layers they will be. It requires a balanced growing feed like Purina Growena to build profitable pullets in those fourteen weeks.

In any discussion of poultry diseases two things must be remembered: First, that poultry is hardy and healthy if given a chance; second, it is much easier to prevent disease and control parasites before they get started than afterwards. Disease organisms and parasites must be kept at a minimum if poultry is to pay a profit. An effective means of keeping poultry houses clean is by periodically disinfecting with cre-so-fec, an inexpensive and powerful germ killer, obtainable where Purina feeds are sold.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

A recommendation of Connecticut's governmental reorganization committee should prove of interest to those opposing the assumption of traditional state functions by the federal government.

After a detailed study of the inefficiency and graft in state governments as at present constituted, this commission proposed constitutional amendments which would place directly upon the governor full responsibility for executive branches of government.

The chief executive would have a four year term and would have the power to appoint a cabinet similar to that of the president, the members of which would head all the important departments, bureaus and commissions of the state government.

Connecticut's study of possible improvements in state government was prompted by the shifting of responsibility and the lack of coordination and cooperation which breed inefficiency. Texans have a first hand example of these conditions right on their own doorstep, where educators and sociologists have long been advocating changes in the state government through constitutional amendments.

The Connecticut proposal, if instituted in Texas, would create a four year gubernatorial term with a provision prohibiting a second term. The governor's cabinet would consist most likely of a commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of the general land office, comptroller of public accounts, superintendent of public instruction, state treasurer, highway commissioner and railroad commissioner.

Twenty-five states already elect their chief executive for 4 years. Some prohibit a second term by statute. It is apparent to all that the evils of the two year term for the governor far outweigh the advantages. Scarcely is the governor seated when he must direct his attention toward another election. Often he must perform acts against his better judgment during his first term in order to secure support for his second campaign. Inevitably in Texas, as elsewhere where the two year term system prevails, the second term for a governor is more productive than is the first term.

How efficient, how productive of good results, would the executive branch of the federal government be if the ten departments were not responsible to the president and to him alone during good behavior. Suppose the Secretary of State, the Postmaster General, the Secretary of Labor were elected by the people and were responsible only to the people.

State government is of course more capable of functioning under the present system than would be the federal government but in a large measure the responsibility and politics prevalent in state government is responsible to this setup.

Last year Texas voters approved constitutional amendments which will in the future materially better conditions in the executive branch of the government. Why not follow these with amendments providing for a new constitution and a reor-

Exposition Esplanade

Set amid luxuriant sub-tropical vegetation bordering a reflecting basin, over which a myriad array of colored lights will play by night, exhibit buildings at the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition will be patterned after the colorful edifices of ancient American cities. Opening June 12 for a run of 142 days, the Exposition will be the only international event in the Americas for 1937.

Flags waving, bands playing, pretty girls in bright Pan American uniforms and costumes—a blaze of color—will front the George Marshall entertainment features of the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition.

Mr. Marshall, the international fair's $100,000 a season entertainment director, makes a habit of these things, and for a reason. They are box office attractions. He believes in the theory that people want to go where beauty, life and color are rampant.

His official staff set-up at the international fair includes Bob Humphrey, a ranking official of the Amateur Athletic Union and World Olympics Association. James Stewart, athletic director of Southern Methodist University, will assist Humphrey as overseer of Pan American Games, an international field meet.

In introductions to the Games will include a marathon footrace 1400 miles from Mexico City to the gates of the international fair, and will divide a $10,000 purse four ways. This race is timed to bring the finish to Dallas on opening day, June 12. Then comes the auto races within the Exposition grounds for a purse of $10,000 or more. A third contest to attract international attention is an airplane race, to begin and finish at the Exposition.

The sports program is getting only half of director Marshall's attention. The other half is devoted to the Pan American Casino, a huge air-conditioned theater. Here on opening night and for the next six weeks will be presented the dance team of Veloz and Yolanda, the world's highest paid dance combination, and the muse of Ted Fio-Rio. Following these show world headlines will be Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees, Phil Harris and his orchestra, and Broadway favorites of stage, screen and radio. Marshall's proof to patrons that he knows show business will be the predominance of color.

branch? Nebraska, disgusted with the bicameral legislature, has adopted the unicameral legislative plan, discussed before in this column. Better pay for legislators, bringing more intelligent lawmakers into the legislative branch, lesser expenses for the legislative branch and definite placing of responsibility on a small number of legislators, are only a few advantages of the one-house legislature.

Connecticut, home of states' rights advocates for decades, instituted its committee to study state government reorganization with one eye directed toward finding a solution to the inefficiency of state government which has caused Washington to assume powers in order to deal with banking, financial, labor, agricultural and commercial problems.

If the powers of the states are not to be further encroached upon in the years ahead, when the increasing complexity of social, economic and political problems will necessitate ever-increasing assumption of state administration machinery must be forthcoming.

STORE IMPROVEMENTS COST LITTLE BRING INCREASE IN BUSINESS

The expenditure of only a few hundred dollars will often bring a big return on the investment by attracting more people into the store, besides increasing the value of business property. A greater rental or a higher selling price is in nearly every case traced directly to modern store improvement. Numbers of cases have been reported from all over the country where a new plate glass window, or a modern glass store front, or perhaps new glass cases or shelving has increased the profits of stores more than 25 per cent. It pays to build with structural glass, the material that is everlasting.

600,000 POUNDS OF JUNK IS SHIPPED OUT OF COUNTY

Coryell County has practically been cleaned up! 600,000 lbs. of junk iron, scrap, bones old batteries and a thousand and one other pieces of other unused articles have been bought and sent out of the county to match the hundreds-of-thousands of tons of junk now at Gulf ports for loading for foreign ports.

The junk's gone, but the county is richer by 25 to 35c a hundred pounds which has been paid for this material, according to Messrs. Warner and Saval of the Gatesville Junk Company. Most of this junk has moved by rail, some eight car loads being shipped out in the past two months, and the average load bought by these men has been, 1,000 lbs.

From 1931 through 1935, the Rice Owls won every one of the five Rice-Arkansas grid games.

Winkler Asked to List His Idea of Pecans Best for This Country

Andrew Winkler, citizen of The Grove, and prominent in the Texas Pecan Grower's Association which had a recent meeting at Mother Neff Park and which the principal pecan growers of Texas attended, has been asked to list what he considers the best varieties of pecans.

Mr. Winkler's selections are, among the seventy-five varieties, and he has included 10 to 15 varieties in his list, heading it with No. 60, which he states is the best keeper, and the Clark, second. Others are Onliwon, Burkett, San Saba Improved, Jersey, Mahan, Western Schley, Spuifrel Delight and Nuggett.

He is now testing the Ideal, Zenith, Garner, Humble and Frake.

The No. 60 is very prolific, along with the Clark, and they run about 65 per pound with more than 60 per cent kernel.

New York, N. Y. — The Paris Exposition leads the long list of extraordinary attractions in Europe this season. . . . Music festivals at Bayreuth, Munich. . . . Fairs, carnivals, sports meetings. . . . summer-long schedule of Coronation events in Britain. . . . It's the year of years to visit Europe! . . . Visitors to Paris will benefit by the measures of a new bill adopted by the French Chamber of Deputies providing for government stabilization of hotel and restaurant prices. . . . The new bill regulates prices not only in the first grade Paris hotels, but also in the smaller but acceptable hotels and in the many boarding houses that abound in Paris. . . . The bill provides a scale of prices running from approximately $2.00 per day for room and board. . . . consisting of three meals a day in the small modest hotels. . . . to more than $12 a day for room and table d'hote board in the luxury hotels. . . . Between these two extremes are fourteen distinct classes of hotels. . . . Reduced rates amounting to a saving of fifty per cent under two plans also will be offered to tourists by the French railways during the exposition period. . . . The choice of plan will depend on whether the travelers are going singly or in groups. . . . New York World Fair, please copy. . . . The most temperamental group of people on the continent. . . . the thirty-six outstanding bridge players of the United States and Canada—will take their places at nine tables in a series of suites on the 17th floor of the Park Central Hotel, Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, to begin the most important bridge competition of the year. . . . The National Masters' Individual Tournament (entries by invitation only) will decide who is the best bridge player of the 20,000,000 who play the game in the United States. . . . Two million people in the country play duplicate bridge and only 275 of them are qualified as "masters". . . .

Eleanor Sheridan walked into the Rainbow Room show as a feature singer last Thursday night, after having been signed that afternoon at four o'clock. . . . She not only entered the show on practically a moment's notice, but she more than made good, and thereby guaranteed herself a career as a single entertainer. . . . This is more than satisfactory to the pretty twenty-three year old girl. . . . because for many months she had sought a job in numerous small and obscure supper clubs. . . . and had been told to come around when she had more experience. . . . The fact that she had been a chorus girl in many successful Broadway shows seemed to count against her. However, after a successful debut in the Rainbow Room of Rockefeller Center, Miss Sheridan can now sit back. . . . and wait for the managers of other clubs to seek her services. . . . because at one jump she vaulted beyond the realm of the obscure little places. . . . where she was pleading for a chance only a few weeks ago. . . . Col. Stoopnagle's yacht, "Mr. Boop II," is being readied for Budd and him to commute from their respective homes in the near future. They live on opposite sides of Long Island Sound. . . . First to congratulate Don Voorhees on his assignment to direct the music for "Between the Devil," new Broadway show, was Joe Cook. . . . Their friendship dates back to 1928, when Don was pit bandman for Cook's hit musical comedy, "Rain or Shine." . . .

SYNOPSIS

Princess Olga of Sweden, who is in reality an American showgirl posing as royalty to get a film contract, meets and falls in love with King Mandini, the Concertina King, aboard the S.S. Aragon bound for America. Darcy, a black-matter, who has received money from the bogus Princess, is found dead in her room after a ship's ball. Notified, Mandini moves the body to an empty stateroom. Meanwhile, a group of international detectives en route to a New York convention are searching for a runaway murderer, Merko, who is a passenger on the ship under the name of Petroff. They link the killing of Darcy to the missing Petroff. One of the detectives, Steindorf, is murdered under mysterious circumstances in Petroff's stateroom.

CHAPTER VIII

THE Captain and the four remaining detectives were having another one of their innumerable conferences.

"Both Mandini and the Princess our government, we will ask to be protected, we will demand aeroplanes, submarines—battleships!"

"Battleships! Highness!" choked the miserable Captain. "I assure you it won't be necessary. I will personally guarantee that you will not be subjected to more indignities."

"Very well; we trust you." The Princess melted as she realized that she was putting it over on the group. "We are only a weak woman—but we are not afraid. Truth crushed to the earth shall rise again."

With a regal gesture, arm extended, palm pointed downward, not upward as in pleading, she swept from the room.

"What a woman!" whispered Morevitch admiringly. "A blonde tiger cat."

"This Merko—suppose he is a woman?" Kawati dropped a bombshell in the little group.

"Well, you know that I and my band are invited to play in the ship's concert tonight. I'm going to notify the captain and the detectives that as soon as the show is over I will reveal the name of the murderer."

"Really," she gasped, gripping his sleeve. "Tell me how you found out."

"I haven't found out," he grinned. "Then how can you tell them?"

"I'll know by twelve tonight. Steindorf said he knew, didn't he?"

"And then he was killed." Her face paled.

"He was out of luck. All I've got to do is to stay alive—and then tell 'em who tried to kill me. A clack."

"But why are you doing this?" she asked softly.

"Save both of us a lot of trouble, won't it?"

"I see. Please believe, we appreciate what you have done for us. You have been very gallant, and we will never forget."

"That's fine." He eyed her coolly. For a long moment she looked back at him. Then she burst out with great sincerity: "No, it isn't, King. I can't go on with it. I can't let you put yourself on the spot, thinking you're doing it for a fairy princess. I'm no princess, really."

"Go on." His voice was casual but he turned toward her with interest.

"I come from South Brooklyn," she continued quietly. "Chorus, vaudeville, cheap night clubs. Looking for a break and never getting it. I met Gertie in a boarding house in London. There we were—a has-been and a never-waser. We read in the paper about a Hollywood scout who'd come over looking for titles. Well," she shrugged her slim shoulders. "My parents were Swedish. So—we fooled him. We fooled everybody."

"Okay, Wanda," King grinned admiringly.

"What did you say?" She whirled on him.

"I said, Okay Wanda. It's inside your ring." He produced the emerald and held it out to her. "I told you it was practically in my pocket."

"Why didn't you say something about it?"

"I wanted you to tell me yourself," he answered gravely.

"I'm not going to let you take this risk for me," she cried. "I'm . . . I'm going to the Captain! I'll tell him everything!"

"No you won't." He grabbed her shoulders and whirled her toward him. "You get this straight—you got a pretty good opinion of yourself thinking I'm doing this for you."

"Then why are you doing it?"

"Why, I'm . . ." He hesitated, his bluff wearing thin, then, as an idea struck him, added, "I'm doing it for publicity. I'm only interested in Mrs. Mandini's boy—if you're Princess Olga and I help you out of a spot—it's front page news for me too—see?"

"So—I'm just going to be a background for you?" She was hurt.

"Take it easy." He thrust out his square chin. "If you keep your head there's a fortune for you. Let me handle this my way. You're Her Royal Highness Princess Olga and you don't talk to the common people, the Captain, or even international detectives."

"And if you're successful, I'll owe you my life from now on. No thanks," Wanda said firmly. "I'll play ball—but if we come clean out of this—you go your way and I go mine."

"Okay, Princess," he answered gently as he handed her the ring. As she took it her eyes filled with tears. Then she hurried away without a backward glance.

must be investigated," Cragg was saying.

"Not the Princess," answered the Captain firmly.

"At least we must immediately communicate with Stockholm and . . ."

As he spoke the door was flung open and the Princess stepped inside, indignation smoldering in her blue eyes. She was wearing a frock and a cape which enhanced her regal appearance.

"Your Highness," cried the Captain as he and the others scramble to their feet. "To what do we owe the honor of . . ."

"Honor!" purred the Princess, entering "upstage right," as Lady Gertrude had done a few minutes before. "You talk of honor! And you treat a Highness like a criminal. I demand to know of what you dare to accuse me!"

"I assure Your Majesty," began the Captain, overawed.

"Not Majesty," she snapped.

"Highness, I mean. Please—may I ask . . ."

"Questions, questions," Olga raged. "Ve who are of royal blood do not answer questions. Ve ask them! Vat reason have you to connect me with these murder?"

"I don't, Highness. Personally I don't believe . . ."

"Not you; but these detectives . . . vat proof they have?"

"They have no proof, Princess. Only theories—some perfume . . ."

"Just as ve thought." She paced up and down the cabin for a moment, apparently trying to control herself. "Ve are insulted with theories. If there is any more, ve send radio to Sveden, ve will notify Flushed with her triumph, the Princess went on deck and found King leaning disconsolately against the rail.

"Mr. Mandini; hello," she called lightly.

"I'm beginning to get on to your system," he replied ungraciously. "It's just every other time we meet that you don't speak to me."

"Ve are happy because it is a beautiful day. Therefore ve speak," she teased him. "The ocean is smooth—the sun shines. . ."

" . . . And we are suspected of murder," he finished.

"But no!" she laughed. "I am not suspected. The Captain says so."

Here she was interrupted by the Captain himself, who hurried up, a radiogram in his hand, and his brow furrowed with worry.

"Your Highness," he stammered. "I don't know how to express my regret. I have just received this message from the owners of the line."

He handed the message to the Princess. "I must proceed at once with the investigation."

"Ve have told you," she answered, bluffing it out although she realized that the message had destroyed her immunity. "Ve shall notify our government."

"I suggest that you do so as soon as possible," he replied coldly.

"Bad news, eh?" asked Mandini quietly when they were alone.

"Yes," she answered dispiritedly, ready to cry.

"Show a little royal blood, will you then," he said sharply. "They haven't counted you out yet. Pull yourself together—I've got an idea."

"What is it?" Her face brightened hopefully.

KNOW TEXAS

Although interest in the military set-up does not run riot in Texas as in European countries today, the history of this state makes this phase of its government well worth observation.

Active military establishments in Texas seem rather small in number in comparison to the hundred of old abandoned forts scattered around during the five different eras passed through by this part of the country. In each of these eras, the Spanish and Mexican period, the era of the Revolution and Republic, the years before the Civil War and during the war and after that time, new forts were constructed at the changing vantage points.

At present there are nine forts in use which, with the exception of a few old timers, date from the post Civil War period or World War days. Those are located on the coastline at Galveston, Bolivar Peninsula, Galveston Island and Brownsville; on the border at El Paso, Brackettville, Laredo, and Rio Grande City; and at San Antonio, which is the only fort in the central part of Texas.

San Antonio is also the home of four military flying fields, including the well-known Randolph Field, Brooks and Kelly fields, all established during the World War, and Dodd Field, which is attached to Fort Sam Houston. The two training camps of Bullis and Stanley, and Normoyle Quartermaster Depot, at which place supplies are stored are placed near the same city.

In Dallas is another flying field, established in 1928 and named for Col. William N. Hensley. The military hospital in the state, Beaumont General Hospital is situated in El Paso and attached to Fort Bliss.

Altogether 107 volcanoes are known to exist in Iceland, with thousands of craters great and small.

Uncle Jim Says

Everybody knows that when farmers in one section make a poor crop, merchants, business men, and laborers suffer. The same thing is true in the national picture. When farmers over the county make poor crops or fail to get living prices for their products, business men sell fewer automobiles, fewer farm implements, less fertilizer, and less of all the things farmers buy.

The result is that there is less business for industry, less work for labor, and lowered profits and wages all around.

The Agricultural Conservation Program helps Texas farmers by enabling them to build up the fertility of their land, by stabilizing prices, and by insuring them a minimum income through benefit payments for soil-conserving crops and practices. The increased farm income helps everybody.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRLAND
Director, Physical and Mental Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

In and Out the Spotlight

It used to be the custom for a board of school visitors to conduct periodic tests and recitations. This was a dreaded ordeal for the children except for the one, perhaps, who happened to be the star pupil.

Recently I heard of something similar to this practice. I believe it was a "parent's night" at school, which in itself is alright of course. But this happened to include a stunt which threw the spotlight on certain pupils and kept others wholly in the dark.

There were about forty pupils, ranging, as in any class, from the very bright to the very dull. But in the way the stunt was conducted, only the very bright were allowed to show their talents. Everything centered around them, while the others merely filled the seats.

Dorothy, let us say, always knew the answers. Bright snappy, confident, she won the crowd. I can hear them gossiping on the way home, "that Dotty is a smart one." But what do you suppose Dotty thinks about herself? I wonder. Just proud or stuck up?

Henry was not called on. He just sat. But the visitors saw him and probably said and probably said of him "that Henry is dumb; will never amount to anything." Now what does he think of Dorothy. How will he classify himself? Will he be discouraged and want to quit school?

The possibilities of intense mental and emotional upsets are great. In such a situation, personalities are formed. And the answer is simple. Let each child demonstrate something in which he can succeed. Simple it may be. But let him have his moment of pride and confidence.

Let him know the spotlight, too. Can roller skating be made a safer sport for children? Dr. Ieland points the way in his article next week.

TEXAS STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN (CIA)

Denton, April 26.—Blouses! Tailored ones, fluffy ones, loud ones, demure ones, but at any rate your wardrobe will need several to be complete. They're too clever this season to pass up.

First take a look at the dress parade specialties. Made of fragile nets and organdies and complete with lacy frills, tiny buttons, the smallest pin tucks and even little bows, they'll give you that frothy, delicate look that blends so well with spring twilight. The old difficulty of their transparency has been solved by the manufacturers, who now supply plain camisole tops fastened inside the blouse.

The ever popular shirtmaker affairs are still holding their own, and even if you crave something for the more sporty occasions try one of these short-sleeved models of masculinity. Then there are the white linens, either with mushroom tucks in the heavier weaves or with bright colored edges in handkerchief linen.

Important details in the snappy, wear-anywhere blouses are giddy color combinations which make them match any skirt or suit you put with them with rows of rick-rack braid and jaunty patch pockets. Prints are as good in blouses as in everything else, so have at least one figured linen, challis, silk or cotton to touch up a simple suit.

Girls at Texas State College for Women also demand that striped blouses not be left out of the picture. The shops are showing them in clear striped silks and in narrow striped piques, and some of them boast as many as five contrasting colors in one pattern.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

THERE were some girls that had got past thirty years old and hadn't got married. They all worked in the same neighborhood, so they kinda got to talking it over at lunch. Then they decided to make up a sort of clinic and talk ways and means.

After a club had been formed, the girls had a big secret meeting, and they all talked about the whys and outs about catching a man. One of them was speaking. "Of course," she says, "it's my opinion that a blonde has got a better chance than a brunette anyhow." "I object to that," says a real determined lady in a back row. "This girl is talking about something she knows nothing about. Blonde and Brunette ain't got nothing to do with it. I been both twice, and it didn't make any difference!"

NEW LONDON MEMORIAL TO BE ERECTED: PEOPLE TO DONATE

Announcement was made today by Governor James V. Allred of the formation of the New London School Memorial Committee composed of Mrs. M. A. Taylor of Bonham, president of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers; Drury M. Phillips of Huntsville, Commander of the American Legion of Texas; George Clark of Austin, to represent the Governor; Mrs. Fay Beidleman, President New London Parent-Teacher Association; and Mrs. H. R. Whittington, President of Rusk County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Contributions may be mailed directly to the New London Memorial Committee in care of the Governor's Office in Austin. The Committee appointed by the Governor will handle funds received for this memorial.

Mr. Phillips has already asked commanders of legion posts throughout the state to begin their activities immediately.

"Hundreds of letters and telegrams have been sent to me," the Governor said, "asking information as to where contributions might be made for the purpose of erecting a memorial to the memory of the school children and their teachers. I have determined upon this state committee as the proper central organization for the handling of these funds. I appreciate deeply the proffered services of the State Parent-Teacher Associations and the American Legion in this connection.

"I think it only proper that the voluntary contributions from the citizens of a stricken state and nation be accepted for this purpose. The horrible catastrophe touched not only the families and immediate friends of the victims, but has reached out and shocked every home in America. Everyone has felt a sense of personal grief and has mourned with the bereaved parents.

"The State Memorial Committee will not conduct a drive for funds but will have an organized setup in every town thru the Parent-Teacher Councils and the American Legion posts. These organizations will be available to those who wish to contribute any donation, small or large, as their expression of sympathy.

"The memorial will serve a two-fold purpose as a tribute to the passing of these boys and girls in the full flush of inspirational youth and as a perpetual resolve that no such disaster shall ever again be visited upon any community in Texas.
