BAPTIST CHURCH TO HAVE NOTED SPEAKERS AND MUSICIANS SUNDAY

The Revival Meeting at the First Baptist Church closed Sunday night, with 53 additions to the church. The evangelist Dr. C. Y. Dossey left for Glade-water to conduct a revival.

The singer Mr. Joe Trussell, accompanied the pastor, Rev. Clarence A. Morton, to El Paso where Rev. Mr. Morton will preach and Mr. Trussell will sing in a two weeks' revival.

The pulpit of the local Baptist church will be supplied Sunday morning by Dr. F. M. McConnell, editor of the Baptist Standard of Dallas. Dr. McConnell conducted a great revival in the Baptist church here a number of years ago, and it is expected a large audience will greet him Sunday.

While here he will be entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan E. Graves, who will present the speaker Sunday morning.

Sunday night at 7:45 Miss Bessie Farris, one of the most prominent young women ever to go out from Gatesville and now head of the English Department of San Marcos Baptist Academy, will bring to the Baptist Church one of the greatest programs of the year. In addition to the regular Sunday night program, Mr. Edgar Franks, chairman of the Board of Deacons, will preside. The program will consist of a chalk talk by one of the most gifted of chalk talk artists of San Marcos Baptist Academy, pictures of the San Marcos work. Prof. Lindsley head of the department of voice, will sing a boys' quartet from the school will render several numbers, a girls' sextet, which Miss Farris states is unsurpassed, will sing, and the address of the evening will be delivered by Dr. Cavanaugh, president of San Marcos Baptist Academy.

This is a program to which the general public is most cordially invited to hear.

ARNOLD ELECTRIC COMPANY NOW LOCATED NEXT TO CHAMLEE'S

R. M. Arnold Jr., electrical contractor has moved his stock from the Brown & Gordon Drug Store to his present location, next to Chamlee's Garage in the building formerly occupied by Mrs. J. B. Graves, florist.

Mr. Arnold will use this location only as a temporary place and will move to the Arnold building now occupied by the Post Office as soon as that office is moved to the new federal building in July or near that time.

We are assured that Arnold Electric Company will be modern in every respect, covering a badly needed link in the future business and home life of Gatesville.

of (by the femininity) hombre in this fair city has dropped back into the ranks of the unspeakables.

Blame Beulah! She telephoned a certain tonsorial artist, and using wirecutters, a muzzie, 3 locals, and either with an extra force of shine boys to dispose of the debris, J. R. lost his locks.

150 MEN ATTEND THE FIRST MEETING; IN DEAD EARNEST FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

One hundred fifty or more business men of Gatesville met Tuesday evening to form some sort of an organization which will tell the story of Gatesville and Coryell County to the world and would "work for and sponsor the business and civic interests of the city of Gatesville." It was voted that an active Chamber of Commerce would be organized.

Although there was some interruption and petty haggling, the body voted that the temporary chairman Floyd Zeigler appoint a committee composed of chairman Horace K. Jackson, Dr. H. T. Hall, Leake Akres, Dan E. Graves, Bythel Cooper Lewis Holmes, J. M. Witcher, Hurl McClellan, Boone Gordon, Mat Jones and Pat Holt, which would have the duty of submitting a plan of organization, financing and in a general way the purpose of the organization which will be presented to the business men who will again meet on Tuesday evening, May 4, to accept or reject the plan that may be submitted.

Chairman Jackson was out of town at the time of going to press on this paper, but was stated he would be back some time Friday afternoon (today) and would probably call the members of the committee for a meeting when he returns.

Among those who spoke to the assembly were Horace K. Jackson, Dan E. Graves and Leake Ayres, their talks being build-ups to what was to transpire later.

Great interest was shown for some kind of organization that will fully represent the entire business interests of the city.

Younger business men mingled with the older and tried ones, and manufactured more enthusiasm apparently than their elders, who in their calm manner told of the trials and tribulations of the past, and the absolute seriousness of the present.

LEAIRD HAS A STREET CAR FOUNTAIN; YOU STEP ON IT

The latest wrinkle in drinking fountains is here! Barring one, Leaird's Department Store will be the mecca for the thirsty this summer, just as soon as the peepul learn of the new street-car drinking fountain manufactured by a well known electric company, which is on Leaird's first floor.

Nearly concealed at the bottom of the "rite-hite" fountain is a dinky little "foot-feed" which accelerates the water into your waiting mouth from a "sanitary" (note House committee) faucet.

There'll be at least one cold water spot in town this summer.

Crime Wave Here Continues in Full Force: Painter's Is Robbed

Juvenile City-County Officers Officiate For One Day; Wach Y'Step

If you get pinched, thrown in the local bastille, or have anything happen to you today, don't blame us—we're warning you!

Today is the day the students of the local high school are in charge of city and county offices. As the result of the recent election at the school, beware of these officers.

Mayor Jack Hestilow, City Secretary Jack Hearne, City Treasurer Rosylene Anderson, Alderman Ward 1 Alma Blanchard, Ward 2 C. H. Wallace, Ward 3 John R. Colgin, Ward 4 Treva Davis, City Health Officer Joe Ned Brown, Chief of Police Royce Davis.

Continuing: Constable E. L. Taylor, Night Watchman Kenneth Anderson, Dog Catcher Fish Culberson, Fire Chief Julian Smith, Water Works Danny McClellan, County Judge Byron Glibbreath, County Attorney Jane Thomson, County Clerk Esteen Poston, County Treasurer Zack Fore, County Tax Collector Douglas White, County Superintendent Wilma Franks, Sheriff Pat Hollingsworth, Deputy Sheriff Bruce Jones, District Judge Harry Voss, District Attorney Sidney Gregory, District Clerk, Pauline Turner, Commissioner Beat 1 Roy Adams, Commissioner Beat 2 D. I. Campbell, Commissioner Beat 3 Raymond Painter, Commissioner Beat 4 James Weaver, County Agent Clyde Boyd, County Home Demonstration Agent Anita Lowrey, Public Weigher Perry Hale, and Justice of Peace Joe Baker.

Some of the above candidates won their respective offices only by a narrow margin. Some of the closest races were as follows: For Constable, E. L. Taylor, 126 votes; Raby Alford, 124; For Foy Wicker 108 and Glynn White 106; and for Alderman 1 Alma Blanchard 164 and Burl Davis 162 votes.

Senior Class to Present Drama of the Old South May 6 in Hi School Gym

The Old South lives again when the Senior Class of Gatesville High School presents its annual play, "The Thread of Destiny," Thursday night, May 6, in the high school gymnasium.

Crinoline and hoop skirts, with black face comedy adding a lively touch, and the trials and tribulations of a Southern family are all combined to present a story of the Deep South during the dark days of the Confederacy. Villians and sweet young heroines, faithful old darkey servants and Union spies; all these and many more will tread the boards in the annual classic.

The cast of characters includes: Belva McCoy, Joe Baker, Ruth Hamilton, Patsy Olsen, Faye Jones, Bob Thomas, Francis McCoy, Jack Straw, Nell Routh, Bertha Lillian Stewart, M. H. Shepherd, Martha Bone, Madelyne Gosset, Lois King, Jack Reesing, Wanda Wicker, Lilly Mae Weigand, Mildred Witcher, John Rufus Colgin, W. J. Thompson, Jerry Franks, Edwin McDonald, Nelle Goodall,

TWO DOZEN DRESSES ARE TAKEN BY DOOR PRIERS AT PAINTER'S; NO CASH IS TOUCHED.

Following a seige of lawlessness, which has included burglaries, robberies, hi-jacking, and other crimes and misdemeanors, burglars again struck last night, prizing the front door of Painter's open and took two dozen dresses from the ready-to-wear department.

A pinch bar or tire tool was used to jimmy the front door, the light which usually is on was turned out, and yesterday morning's check up revealed no losses except the dresses. Mr. Painter said yesterday morning there was some eight or ten dollars in a cash register which was not touched. As far as was learned late yesterday, no clues were found.

Last week a truck load, or part of feed was stolen from C. E. Jones and his partner from a garn in one of the wagon yards. In this case the alleged culprits have been caught and are in the city bastille.

Burglaries, hi-jackings and robberies have been committed from the lepot thru town to stores on the west side of town across the river with great regularity during the past few months. Nothing has been overlooked and no one knows when they will strike again. Three night watchmen are on duty every night in the city.

LIONS CLUB ENTERTAINED BY FIVE SPEAKERS

On Wednesday at the regular meeting of the local Lions Club five Gatesville High School students were guest speakers. These were Miss Anita Lowrey, who spoke on "My Home-Town," Sidney Gregory and Zack Fore made political speeches concerning a recent political campaign, and Clyde Boyd and C. M. Cummings made talks pertaining to farming as a vocation.

M. H. Shepherd of this city was a guest for the occasion.

W. H. (BILL) CARTER, THE KILLEEN HERALD MAN HERE

W. H. (Bill) Carter, advertising manager of the Killeen Herald, was a visitor to our shop on his "day off," last week, and just dropped in, he says, to talk shop.

Jack Hestilow, and Nella Mae Colvin.

The proceeds of the play will go into the Senior Fund, from which will come the traditional gift to the school by the graduating class.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Potts Observe Golden Wedding Anniversary April 24th

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Potts, one of the city's most respected pioneer couples, observed their golden wedding anniversary on Saturday, April 24, and on Sunday, April 25, they were honored at a special service at the First Baptist Church of this city at which time Rev. Clarence Allen Morton, pastor, had many complimentary remarks to give them, their 50th year of married life together.

Mr. and Mrs. Potts were united in marriage at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. McGuire in the Caufield community on April 24, 1887, with Dr. R. J. Perry, a Methodist minister officiating. Mrs. Potts was the former Miss Jessie McGuire.

Mr. Potts, coming from King George County, Virginia, when 21 years old has been in the grocery business for the past forty-five years in this city, his first store having been located on south side of the Square. Both Mr. and Mrs. Potts are devoted members of the First Baptist Church of this city, having been so connected since their marriage. Both are in excellent health and hope to live to celebrate a seventieth anniversary.

Their three children, John O. Potts, Pat Potts and Mrs. D. R. Boone, are also residents of this city.

WOOL AND MOHAIR SHOW THURSDAY, MAY 6

Much interest is being shown in the Wool and Mohair Show to be held in Gatesville, Thursday, May 6th. The classes have been arranged so that they will be most attractive to the purebred breeders as well as commercial wool producers.

Classifications as follows give every sheep man an opportunity to take part in the wool show. The classes are:

Ram Fleeces: B and C type Delaine; B and C Type Rambouillet.

Ewe Fleeces: B and C type Delaine; B and C type Rambouillet.

Ram and ewe fleeces are limited to fleeces from rams and ewes previously shorn.

Commercial Wool: One class, no distinction made as to breed or type, entries limited to the first fleece of sheep.

It has been noted that the development of any industry within a locality is in direct proportion to the interest shown by those people who are closely associated with the development in question. With more than one-half million pounds of wool and mohair being produced in Coryell County annually the monetary return is of such magnitude that every person in the county, regardless of occupation, should put forth much effort to make the Wool and Mohair Show the outstanding event that it is entitled to be.

Sheep and goat men are heard to say that we do not have wool and mohair good enough to show. This is entirely wrong, because any producer should show his best fleece in each respective class, and in turn follow closely the reasons given by the judge for the placings in order that improvement can be made in next year's wool clip. HISTORY BEGINS AT FORTY

College President and Playwright Discuss Odd Facts About Making Famous Characters Be Their Age

THE outstanding American hits his first high in achievement at forty. So says Dr. Dixon Ryan Fox, President of Union College, and historian.

"Now I don't mean that men are at the zenith of their powers at 40, by any manner of means," he said, "quite the contrary. But it does appear that critical turns in American history were influenced by men whose 'average' age is forty.

"For example, let's take a few of the men whose lives have been dramatized recently on the air: Mark Twain was 40 when he wrote 'Tom Sawyer', Robert Fulton 38 when he launched his steamboat, Peter Cooper 39 when he built the 'Tom Thumb', one of the first steam-engines, Victor Herbert 44 when he wrote 'Babes in Toyland', Barnum 40 when he brought Jenny Lind to America, Sousa 38 when he organized his band, Horace Mann 44 when he was most active in bettering education in the United States, Elizabeth Blackwell 36 when she founded the first all-woman staffed hospital, Lincoln 39 when he was elected to Congress, Benjamin Franklin 42 when he gave up writing to devote his life to scientific research.

"And what manner of men are they? Well—statesman, musician, doctor, educator, engineer, inventor, author, promoter, a wide cross-section of American citizens who have contributed to the advancement of our industry and culture."

According to Kenneth Webb, Broadway playwright who works with Dr. Fox on the production of the "Cavalcade of America," making these people sound their age to the radio audience presents numerous difficulties.

"We spend a great deal of time studying records that will give us a clue to a man's speaking voice," said Mr. Webb, who has been author and co-author of many Broadway hits, including "One of the Family" and "The Gay Divorcee." "And odd as it seems, that sometimes gets us into trouble.

"Most people think a great man's voice should have dignity. Too, they associate his accent with the part of the country he comes from. When we produced a script based on the life of Victor Herbert we ran into all sorts of snags. Herbert, you see, was born in Ireland of German parentage. German was always spoken in his home, so, quite naturally, when he was with Germans he spoke with a German accent—when with Irishmen, with a brogue. Consequently his German friends believed the brogue was a fake and people who instinctively associated him with Ireland were as staunch disbelievers in the German accent."

Radio, according to Mr. Webb, has one great advantage over the legitimate stage when it comes to re-creating famous characters.

Dr. Dixon Ryan Fox
"... their average age is 40"

People resent the failure of an actor to measure up to their preconceived ideas of a favorite hero's appearance. On the other hand, hardly anyone has a very definite conception of the voice of a man he knows only through history books. A nervous, impetuous person would be represented by a high-pitched, quick-spoken voice, a thinker would be slower of speech, deeper of voice—that's about all most of us demand in the interests of reality.

"Of course another generation or two and that will be changed," says the playwright, "for recordings of voices make it just as possible for us to be accurate in imitating them as portraits do for us to represent a man visually.

"Right now, though, we find it difficult to achieve variety from one program to the next when we are constantly creating major scenes played by men of approximately the same age. It means a radical change in casting each week and a strenuous effort to match the voice and personality of the actor to the part he must play.

"I'll tell you another strange thing—over the air a man of twenty-seven often sounds much more like a man of forty than the man of forty himself. It all depends on the timbre of his voice."

bride, who before her marriage was Miss Frances Austin.

Bouquets of rosebuds were used throughout the party rooms and refreshments were served the following guests: Mesdames Mable Gardner, C. E. Alvis Jr., L. K. Thomson Jr., Marion Burleson, Lee Colwick, Leonard Milner, Wesley Ford, Jim McClellan, Floyd Zeigler, Charlie Smith of Honey Grove, Miss Pearl Brown and the honoree, Miss Buchie Wollard and Mrs. Lillian A. Saunders of Belton were callers. High score award went to Mrs. Leonard Milner. A guest prize was presented Mrs. Charlie Smith, and a lovely gift was given the honoree by the hosts.

Post-Nuptial Courtesy Honors Mrs. J. T. Brown.

A personal shower, which took the form of a post-nuptial compliment for Mrs. John Thomas Brown who, before her recent marriage, was Miss Frances Austin, was given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. R. B. Cross at her home on North Lutterloh avenue. The party rooms were beautifully decorated with bouquets of cut roses, and refreshments were served from the dining table which was laid with a handsome cut-work cloth, centered with a novel arrangement of pastel shades of sweet peas with tall white tapers burning on either side. A miniature pink wedding bell was fastened between the tapers by streamers of white ribbon and tiny bells hung from the tops of the candles. Miniature colonial bouquets were used for table markers and tally cards, and other decorations carried out the pink and white motif.

In games of bridge high score prize went to Miss Pearl Brown and second high award went to Mrs. L. S. Holmes. The hostess presented the honoree a lovely gift and immediately following the refreshments she received a shower of useful personal gifts.

Those sharing the courtesy other than the honoree were Mesdames Lee Colwick, Marion Burleson, I. F. Johnson Jr., J. E. McClellan, Leonard Milner, Jim J. Brown, Rufe Brown, Mable Gardner, H. K. Jackson, L. S. Holmes, Francis Powell Sherrill Kendrick, Billy Nesbitt, Misses Katherine Gordon and Pearl Brown. Callers were Mrs. Lillian A. Saunders of Belton, Mrs. Robert W. Brown and Mrs. Clay McClellan.

Mrs. Woodland Meador of Stephenville has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Laura Rayford, and grandmother, Mrs. T. P. Priddie, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Brown were guests of their daughter, Mrs. Howard Key, and husband in Houston over the week end. While there they motored to Galveston for "Splash Day."

Mr. and Mrs. W. Mat Jones, Mrs. J. B. Graves and George Wymer went to Ranger late Tuesday night to be at the bedside of the latter's brother, Robert Wymer, who was seriously ill with pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Graves returned Wednesday and George Wymer remained with his brother, who is reported as improving at this time.

Rice Fritters Are Welcome at Any Meal

Jelly Adds Zestful Flavor

Do the "ohs" and "ahs" from your family thrill you when a new recipe clicks with success? If this is the case you'll find there will be many exclamations of delight for these new Rice Muffin Fritters. This attractive hot bread has all the advantages of quick preparation true of muffins, yet that crispness so characteristic of fritters. The jelly on top adds eye appeal that never fails to tempt the lazy appetite, and the flavor of this new creation can only be described as exquisite.

You will find this recipe to be one that adapts itself equally well to a breakfast, luncheon or supper menu. It's a sure cure for menu monotony, and the success of this recipe is assured before you start—it never fails.

The jelly topping will add a zestful flavor to the hot muffin fritters. It is advisable to choose a jelly that has a tart flavor, such as currant. If you wish to vary the flavor a bit—whole kernel corn may be substituted for the cooked rice in this recipe.

Rice Muffin Fritters with Jelly

1 egg
1 cup milk
1 cup cooked rice
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoon baking powder
12 strips thinly sliced bacon
Currant jelly.
Beat egg, add milk and rice; mix thoroughly. Add flour sifted with salt and baking powder. Line 12 muffin tins with the strips of bacon. Fill with batter. Bake in hot oven at 425 degrees about 30 minutes. Turn upside down to serve, and top each with a spoonful of currant jelly. Serves 6.

SET DESIGNERS RECREATE LIVELY HONKY-TONKS OF WILD WEST

Memores and actual replicas of lively honky-tonks which were so prominent in life and activities of the Gay '90's figure in the picturesque production given Laurel and Hardy for the Hal Roach-M-G-M feature comedy of "Way Out West," opening at the Palace Saturday.

The expensive set, built at the Roach studios after weeks of research work and collecting the furnishings, was gay and festive during the weeks that Laurel and Hardy were enacting the uproariously comical sequence of the wild and wooly West.

The stage, bar, balconies, the games of chance, etc., were reproduced from a number of honky-tonks that were widely known and patronized in their time. Many features incorporated in the places of such old-times as Steve Brodie and Chuck Connors on the New York Bowery were copied and attracted wide interest from the visitors allowed on the set.

Such marked improvement has taken place in equipment with the old relics discarded and destroyed that it took diligent search to unearth the spigots that are shown in the picture.

The honky-tonk set provides one of the interesting physical mountings of "Way Out West," which presents Sharon Lynne and many other noted characters of this class of scenes.

Are You A Nagger?

How To Make Your Home Life Happier

- Don't nag.
- Don't try to make your partner over.
- Don't criticize.
- Give honest appreciation.
- Pay little attentions.
- Be courteous.
- Read a book on marriage.

THESE are the seven rules for making your home life happier pointed out by Dale Carnegie, author of today's best seller, "How To Win Friends and Influence People," who will discuss the secrets of marital bliss when speaking as a guest on the "Heinz Magazine of the Air," April 19th, over Columbia's network.

"It is an astonishing and alarming fact that one marriage out of every six in the United States ends in divorce," said Carnegie, "and if that number are actually wrecked in the divorce courts think of the number that must be unhappy but don't end in divorce because of children, religion or economic reasons."

"My advice to a wife seeking greater happiness is to first ask herself why her husband married her. She'll find that it wasn't because he expected her to nag or criticize him. We have many famous women in history who ruined their happiness by nagging."

"Mrs. Abraham Lincoln tried it and failed. She was always complaining, always criticizing her husband; nothing was ever right. She complained that there was no spring to his step, that he was stoop-shouldered. She didn't like the way his huge ears stood out at right angles from his head."

"Mrs. Lincoln's jealousy was so foolish, so fierce, so incredible, that merely to read about some of the disgraceful scenes she created in public makes one gasp with astonishment. All this nagging only made Lincoln regret his marriage and it made him avoid her presence as much as possible.

"Marie Eugenie, the Countess of Teba was once called the most beautiful woman in the world. Napoleon III of France, nephew of Napoleon Bonaparte married her. They had health, wealth and power, faith, beauty, love, all the requirements for a perfect romance.

"Napoleon could make Eugenie an empress, but neither the power of his love or the might of his throne could keep her from nagging. The wife of Count Leo Tolstoi was another who discovered the deadly poison of nagging when it was too late," added the famous author.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

THE American public is awfu critical of musical shows that ain't musical shows. I mean that the folks are critical of just music in an entertainment. If there are some regular show-girls in the cast, and the skirts ain't too long or ain't at all, why the show may get by all right, even if there's a cracked voice or two.

But a guy that handles a glee club or a choir or a religious chorus or something like that has got to be a good one, and not too sensi-tive. Well, one fellow was directing a chorus of fifty or sixty, and not a pretty girl in the lot. A reporter says to him, "Why, do you haul such a big chorus around with you? The traveling expenses must be awful."

"Yes," says the director, "it costs a lot of dough. But in a singing organization like this you've got to have a lot of them singing at once, so that the blame won't fall too heavy on any one or two of 'em."

CONTROL SCREW WORMS IN SHEAR CUTS

Stock owners are cautioned that it is important to prevent screw worms from building up big population in injuries resulting from shear cuts, earmarking and docking. These operations are well ahead of the early occurrence of cases of screw worms, and it is very important to continue to keep them in advance of the pest. Stockmen are urged to use dehydrated pine tar oil on all wounds to prevent infestations from gaining a stronghold on any ranch or farm.

Dr. S. H. Miles, District Supervisor, Screw Worm Control Supervisor of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, reports that he is obtaining splendid cooperation from stockmen and county agents in Coryell, Bell, and Lampasas Counties. He says that a little extra effort on the part of every stockman to prevent screw worms at this season of the year will avoid serious trouble later on.

County agricultural agents and persons employed in screw worm control work are being provided with lists of manufacturers of and wholesale dealers in benzol and pine tar oil. Dealers who care to handle these products in different towns may obtain the lists and learn of a number of places where they may purchase these materials.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FRIDAY AFTERNOON FOR MRS. ELI WILLIAMSON

Mrs. Eli Williamson, age 76, passed away at 9:20 o'clock Thursday evening at her home on the Pidcoke road about one mile southwest of this city, following a few days' serious illness, although she had been in failing health for the past two years.

Mrs. Williamson, who before her marriage, was Miss Josephine Sims, was a member of the Methodist Church and lived a devoted Christian life.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the First Methodist Church of this city with pastor Rev. Marcus M. Chunn conducting. Interment followed in the City Cemetery.

Deceased is survived by her husband and the following children: Ben Williamson, Lubbock; Gibbs Williamson, Amarillo; Mrs. Sebe Stribbling, Pecos; Mrs. Roy Hayes, Mrs. May Carroll, Abb and Holmes Williamson all of Gatesville; Marvin Williamson, Pidcoke, and Miss Minexa Williamson of the paternal home.

COLOR AND ACTION IN NEW PICTURE AT REGAL

Warner Bros. who gave talking pictures to the world, invented the screen musical and created the vogue for film biographies, have done it again. This time they have taken Technicolor and made it natural. The result is an almost unbelievably beautiful production of James Oliver Curwood's famous novel, "God's Country and the Woman" which opens at the Regal Saturday night 10:30, continuing Sunday and Monday.

Taking his cast, headed by George Brent and Beverly Roberts in the great woods district of Washington, Director William Keighley transferred the thrilling romance and stirring action of the novel to the screen. The millions who have delighted in the novel will get an entirely new thrill when they see this picture, for the color photography is far more beautiful and natural than anything ever filmed and the director and players, including hundreds of real lumberjacks used in the melee, have caught the spirit of the book and become, not merely competent actors, but living personifications of the authors characters.

Steve Russett, as played by George Brent, is the happy-go-lucky playboy partner of the Russett Lumber Co. His brother Jeff, portrayed by Robert Barrat as a rough and ready lumberman without the proverbial heart of gold, has Steve kidnaped and brought to the lumber camp in the woods, after Steve has upset a crooked deal by which Jeff had hoped to possess himself of the Crown Timberlands, his biggest rivals.

Escaping from his kidnapers, Steve finds his way to the Crown Timberlands, where he meets and falls in love with Jo Barton, the capable young woman who heads the rival company, played by that fast-rising newcomer to the screen, Beverly Roberts. In an effort to save Miss Barton from the ruinous plots of his brother, Steve takes a menial job in her camp. Without her knowledge, he thwarts a good many of Jeff's plans, but when Jeff tells her who Steve really is, she fires him as a spy.

With true devotion however, he continues to work in her interests. At last, when he almost loses his life in his efforts on her behalf, she realizes that she has found the man that she has been waiting for.

A PRACTICAL SOLUTION

No one can say what the outcome of the court controversy will be. In spite of the fact that supporters and opponents of the President's plan appear as irreconcilably at odds as when the hearings of the judiciary committee began, there are evidences that out of the welter of compromise proposals submitted will come an agreement suitable to both sides.

It is known that the Wagner labor act decision measurably weakened the administration's stand. Opponents of the bill actually hold a majority of committed senate members on their side, the present line-up being, according to United Press poll, 37 to 36, with the judiciary committee divided nine to eight against the bill.

Compromise proposals have been forthcoming from prominent senate and house members and various civilians since President Roosevelt first announced his court reorganization plan. Senator Ashurst's remedy is to give Congress unlimited power over agriculture, commerce, labor and industry. Mr. Morris Ernst proposes that Congress shall by a two-thirds vote of both houses have the power to override a decision of the court.

Out of all these compromise suggestions there is only one, in my opinion, which would satisfy the administration forces while maintaining the independence of the Supreme Court. That is the joint suggestion of Dean Young B. Smith of the Columbia law school and a prominent member of the senate, that supreme court justices be required to retire at 75. A constitutional amendment, to be submitted to the people in conventions, would accomplish this purpose.

If, as administration supporters assert, it is the aim of the President to infuse new blood into the judiciary and not to subvert the supreme court to the executive branch of the government, this amendment should prove acceptable.

If the charge of the administration supporters that court justices over seventy or seventy-five are incapable of interpreting the constitution to meet modern conditions is true this amendment would remedy that situation by forcing judges from the bench at this age (the age limit could be fixed at seventy) and should prove acceptable to President Roosevelt.

Administration forces maintain that submission of an amendment would require too long a period for ratification, during which time the President's reform laws would be held in abeyance by decisions of unconstitutionality from the court packed with senile old men. But the repeal amendment was submitted and repealed in nine months—and in view of recent liberal decisions of the court, Mr. Roosevelt can certainly wait nine months. It must be remembered that the reforms which Mr. Roosevelt proposes and wants a rubber-stamp court to okay can not be accomplished for twenty or thirty years. So what do nine months mean, when the

TYPING TEAM WINS SECOND PLACE IN REGIONAL MEET AT DENTON

The Gatesville Typing team won second place at the Regional Meet held in Denton last Saturday. The team composed of Linda E. Hayes and Mary Evelyn Eubanks won second place as a team, and Mary Evelyn won second place as an individual. They missed first place by only one point.

The team has made an excellent record this year. They won first and second places at the District Meet, with Mexia next. At the Regional Meet Gatesville and Mexia won all the places; since Gatesville beat Mexia at the District, they are "tops" in this part of the State. All the other districts of which Dallas, Ft. Worth, Wichita Falls are the centers failed to place.

As a result of the meet at Denton, Gatesville will be presented at the State Meet in Austin on May 8. This will be the first time that Gatesville has ever had a representative at the State Meet.

LIBRARY NOTES

The library continues to grow but the demand for books remains larger than the supply. Mrs. George Royalty and Mrs. H. R. Edwards of Waco have recently donated a set of autobiographies and a late novel, "The Cross of Peace," by Phillip Gibbs. George Royalty Edwards also donated a child's book. Other donors are Mrs. Hugh Saunders, Sammie Jack Horne, Mrs. Marion Burleson, The Business and Professional Women's Club and Mrs. Gus Schloeman gave the library the National Geographic Magazine for seven consecutive years. Leon Junction and Turnersville have also contributed books to their local libraries.

The library is to continue the Modern Readers Club which was formerly located in Mrs. J. P. Kendrick's home. Anyone desiring to become a member may call at the library and pay their dues which are fifty cents for six months' membership.

WASHINGTON WITH Congressman W. R. (BOB) POAGE

April 26 1937.

I am glad to be able to report that the President's message requesting economy in government expenditures is seeming to meet with a surprising amount of support here in Washington. Everyone should realize that for the past four years the government has been on a spending spree very similar to that of most individuals back in 1928, but the government is now about to reach the limit of its credit just as the average citizen did in 1929. It is just as hard for the governmental household to adjust its expenditures to a radically reduced budget as it was for the individual household. It is bound to cause hardship but probably the suffering will be less if we turn toward a balanced budget now than if we refuse to heed the warnings of trouble. Anyway, it looks as if Washington was becoming at least slightly economy conscious, and I am glad to see it. The President very truly said: "While I recognize many opportunities to improve social and economic conditions through Federal action, I am convinced that the success of our whole program and the permanent security of our people demand that we adjust all expenditures within the limits of my budget estimate."

The two most serious results of the economy program as far as our people are concerned will probably be the effect it will have in WPA work and on the agricultural program. The President has recommended one billion five hundred million dollars for relief for the coming year. Some members believe that we should appropriate as high as four billion and some want to go as low as one billion. I think we should, if at all possible, provide enough money to give work to every one who needs a job and that our work policy should be put on some kind of long-time basis where the work done would be worthwhile rather than to follow the present policy laying off half of our workers in the dead of winter when they need work most and when warm weather comes and crops get under way to call for new projects. I believe one and one-half billion dollars properly handled will provide employment for the needy but unless it is administered with some degree of judgment it will take four billions and still the people who need help will not get it.

As to the effects of agriculture, I fear they may be more serious. It is true that the House just last Friday passed the Agricultural Departmental Appropriation bill without reduction and I voted not to cut the amount, believing that this will probably be the most important appropriation bill we would pass and the one that would do more general good, but there is a general feeling that the tenant home-ownership bill is likely to be killed and that probably the next move will result in an early abandonment of the present policy of paying government benefits to farmers for cooperating with the soil conservation and crop control programs. That, instead, a general system of compulsory crop control similar to the old Bankhead Bill will be passed applying to all crops and that instead of paying the farmer to cooperate, the government will simply punish for not doing so. Of course, the present Supreme Court has held such an act unconstitutional but there is a strong ele-

Surest cash crop... MILK
America's most important crop is milk—surest and largest source of farm cash. The markets for milk and cream, though often full to overflowing, never fail to bring cash income to the producer. Everyone in the dairy business depends on the development of more outlets for milk and milk products. This takes constant telling and retelling of the story of quality—of cleanliness on farms and in factories. Continuous research and aggressive salesmanship must convince the world that milk is the most important food. Borden research, invention and selling effort, have contributed for 80 years to the world wide appreciation of milk and milk products.

"THE PRINCESS COMES ACROSS"

Serialized by Wallace West from the Paramount Picture of the same name

SYNOPSIS

Princess Olga of Sweden, who is in reality an American showgirl from Brooklyn posing as royalty to get a film contract, meets and falls in love with King Mandini aboard the S.S. Avignon bound for America. Darcy, a blackmailer, who received money from the Princess, is found dead in her stateroom after a ship's bail. She notifies Mandini who moves the body to an empty stateroom to avoid involving the Princess. A group of international detectives are searching the ship for a murderer. Merko, who is booked under the name of Petroff, is murdered in Petroff's suite. To get Petroff to show himself, Mandini announces to the detectives that he will name the murderer at midnight after the ship's concert.

CHAPTER IX

THE concert that night was a gala affair. The lounge was re-arranged into a theatre with chairs and divans roughly arranged about an impromptu stage. In the front row sat the mysterious steward, but, strangely enough, he was now dressed in evening clothes.

King Mandini's number was the climax of the evening. He directed his band with his concertina and at the end brought down the house in thunderous applause. The only person who did not join in this was the steward, who rose and left the room as he saw the four detectives sharply scrutinizing the audience.

As King bowed again and again in answer to the applause of the crowd, the Princess, who was sitting next to Inspector Lorel, leaned over to the Frenchman and whispered:

"Do you think it is safe—for Mr. Mandini to be alone—now that he has promised to reveal the murderer?"

"No, madame," answered the other gravely.

"Would you, as a favor to all of us, go with him?"

"Yes, madame, if the young man will permit." Lorel rose and bowed. He found King standing at the rail, smoking.

"Congratulations, Mandini," he smiled.

"Thanks. People usually like my playing."

"Excellent. But I did not mean your music," answered Lorel as he accepted a cigarette. "It is not every musician who wins the interest of a princess. She asked me herself to protect you."

"Thanks," King answered, lighting another cigarette.

"This boast of yours—that you will announce the murderer—it is merely a gesture, no?"

"Is it?" King stared out over the moonlit water.

"An attempt to clear the Princess."

"I know she's innocent. I also know the one who killed Darcy and Steindorf."

"Then you are prepared for an attack?" Lorel stared in amazement.

"I'm waiting for it." King drew deeply on his smoke.

"You are very brave," the Frenchman shook his head, "and also very foolish. This killer is clever. Do you think he would attack you here, with passengers passing by as they are. It is too public. If he is watching you, he would wait until you go to a more secluded place."

"That's right." The musician flipped his cigarette overboard, straightened up, pulled down his coat and slipped his hand under Lorel's arm. "You know," he added. "I'm beginning to appreciate your interest." They walked away down the deck.

Meantime the Princess and other young ladies among the passengers were passing through the audience making collections for the Seamen's Fund. Her Highness received generous donations from the three detectives present and was turning to continue her efforts when she noticed a banknote which Inspector Cragg had dropped in her basket. It was torn and water-stained, positively part of the money which she had given Darcy.

"This note," she gasped. "Where did you get it?"

"I won it—in a poker game," he answered in surprise.

"It's... it's one of the notes which Darcy forced me to give to him,"

"A couple of sweet little murders you boys have on your hands," commented the stranger, apparently unperturbed.

"Who are you, my man?" demanded Cragg. "Let me see your passport."

"I haven't one." Again that easy grin. "I'm a stowaway. The name is Tom Smith; I cover the waterfront for the New York Bulletin. It's like this; I'm suddenly taken drunk in New York—on a steamer I wake up in Paris; no money—no passport—nothing but a headache and my li'l pigeons."

The Princess herself opened the second passport and gasped with horror.

she confessed. "Tell me. Who were the other players in the game?"

"Let me think." Cragg was becoming as excited as his phlegmatic British nature would let him. "There was an American from Boston—a stranger I'd never met before—and—and Lorel. That's all."

"Well, of course, we can leave out your old friend Lorel," laughed the Captain, who had been eavesdropping.

"My old friend?" Cragg stared at the others as if a brand new thought had struck him. "I never met him personally before this trip. I say—let us go into that for a moment."

The upshot of Cragg's hunch was that he, the Captain, Kawati, Morevitch and the Princess invaded Lorel's cabin and began a minute search of the Frenchman's belongings.

"Quite embarrassing," smiled the Russian, "if Monsieur Lorel should come into his cabin and find—all this."

"Inspector—what is it you look for?" inquired the Princess as she sat next to Cragg and watched him pawing over the contents of a drawer.

"Frankly, I don't know," the Britisher answered ruefully.

At that moment a shadow appeared across the open door. All of them started, then looked puzzled as the dress-suited "steward" lounged into the cabin.

"What were you doing at the door there?" snapped the captain.

"Looking in," the young man answered calmly.

"I say—you were in that card game with me," exclaimed Cragg.

"What's the number of your stateroom?" the Captain barked.

"I've been using B-50," was the leisurely answer.

"B-50!" shouted Cragg. "Petroff's cabin!"

"Pigeons?" The Captain stared open-mouthed.

"Yeh. We use 'em to carry photos from ships back to the press room."

"Humph! A likely story, I must say," grunted Cragg. "Better lock him up, Captain."

"Wait!" The Princess cried at that moment. "Look!" She was pointing at a mirror which had fallen to the floor face up. In it was reflected three passports fastened with adhesive tape to the underside of the dresser. The girl quickly reached underneath the piece of furniture, pulled the papers loose and handed them to Cragg.

"Passports!" muttered the Englishman. He opened one and stared doubtfully. The picture showed a dark-skinned Hindu in native costume wearing a turban and a mustache. Although it bore the name "Saladin Singh" that face looked peculiarly familiar.

"Could that be Lorel?" marvelled the Captain.

The Princess herself opened the second passport and gasped with horror. The photograph on that one was of Lorel, but the name under it was "Paul Merko."

"Merko! Lorel!" Her hand flew to her throat.

"By George! Then he is on board!" Cragg's pipestem snapped between his teeth.

"On board!" wailed the Princess. "He's walking around the ship now—with Mandini! I asked him to!" As the others stared at her in a stupor she suddenly forgot her accent and tore loose with a stream of Brooklynese. "Well, why don't you do something? Do you want him to kill Mandini, too? Quit staring at me—you dumb lugs—something's got to be done. Snap into it!"

She rushed for the door followed by the others.

Sore Mouth Vaccination Demonstration Coming

Sheep and goat specialist, Extension Service, A and M College will demonstrate proper methods of administering sore mouth vaccine to lambs and kids at the Wool and Mohair Show, afternoon of May 6th. Sore mouth caused much loss in some sections of the county last year.

Trench Silos

Have you planted your crops so that you can have a trench silo this fall? Include in your cropping plan sufficient acreage of hegari, milo haize, ajax, dorso, ribbon cane, corn, or adapted crops to this locality to be placed in the trench silo as quickly as they are matured.

Even though the season this year will be such that no ensilage will be needed this fall or winter it can be kept until it is needed, which might run into a term of years.

Sufficient ensilage should be on hand to feed stock, and by stock we mean work stock, beef cattle, sheep and goats, during the hot dry summer, a time which is realized by stockmen as one of the most trying seasons of the year. If sufficient ensilage is on hand to take care of this hot dry season many pounds of flesh can be maintained on the farm livestock; therefore build a trench silo to be used when it is needed whether winter or summer.

Poage Letter—

ment here that would like to try it again, and to go a great deal further. Personally, I hope we can continue with the present system of rewarding the farmer who helps to preserve the soil and to control the total crop production. I feel that it is better for the farmer and the country at large to carry on the policies that are working rather well, instead of scrapping our present conservation policy and substituting a policy of enforced reduction of acreage. I ed to work out injustices (and there are some injustices) but let us follow the general policy. I think these frequent changes in basic policy are bad for all our people and I want to see us reach a period of consolidation of the economic gains we have made rather than to continually change to some new policy.

The appropriation for the farm home-ownership may not be brought up if the Democratic leaders feel that the President will veto it. Personally, I think it should yet be passed but if it is not brought out I have in mind that we may be able to work out a plan for government insurance of farm loans, made for home purchases, similar to the plan of the Federal Housing Loans. This would secure a large amount of private money, for these loans at a low interest rate with a very small Government outlay. The plan has worked rather successfully as to city loans and I see no reason why it should not be extended to farm home loans. Anyway I am not willing to give up our efforts to provide farm homes for our tenant families.

World Comment—

entire system of constitutional government is at stake? Looking at the amendment from the viewpoint of the opposition, there is no reason to believe that these forces would oppose such a proposal. The chief objection of such legislators as Senators Burke, Glass and Connally is that the President's plan is unconstitutional and would destroy the independence of the judiciary. But the amendment plan would be entirely constitutional, and even some opponents of the President's plan concede that there should be an ge limit on the court.
