GAS TO HAVE ODOR AS A MEANS OF FINDING LEAKS

Odorization of natural gas on a part of the Lone Star Gas System will begin Monday, July 26, Community Natural Gas officials announced. The project is in compliance with a recent law passed by the Texas Legislature as a safety measure.

The odorant will be first introduced into the system's main lines to permit the detection of leaks, and will not affect the usefulness of the fuel, it was explained. When the gas is burned, no odor is noticeable and it will give no nauseating fumes nor any gas injuries to clothing, rugs, drapes or furniture.

The odorant will be first introduced into main lines at Gordon, Trinidad, and a point east of Groesbeck, Texas; later at Hollis and Fox, Oklahoma, and at a point south of Chillicothe, Texas, and at a number of intermediate points. The odorizing project, reaching most of the towns by the system in Texas and Oklahoma, will be completed in about three weeks.

Introduction of the odor will not be noticeable for several days, it was pointed out, because conditions and the low load on the system. Towns farther away from the points of odorization will receive its effects later than those closer to these points.

To some person the odorant will smell like fumes from a refinery, to others like burning rubber. It will be definitely noticeable if a leak in a line exists or if a cock or burner is left open and unlighted. The company has advised its customers to call a plumber if necessary. It was pointed out that odorization will not create a hazard, but will warn consumers if a leak occurs in a line or connection.

The Lone Star System is proceeding with its odorization plans now in order to avoid the possibility of waiting until the fall and winter demand starts.

JULY 31ST B. & P. W. CLUB DAY AT FORT WORTH FRONTIER FIESTA

Several of the local ladies, who are members of the Business and Professional Women's Club, will be happy to learn that July 31st has been designated as Business and Professional Women's Day at the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta.

The Texas Hotel has a suite of rooms which will be reserved for the disposal of the club women.

The next meeting of the club will be on Tuesday, August 3.

DISTRICT GINNERS MEET HERE AUGUST 6TH

August 6 has been designated as the day for the annual convention of the cotton ginner's of this district, and Gatesville has been decided upon as the convention city.

From Falls, Basque, Coryell, Erath, Hamilton, and Milam counties will gather some 150 or 200 delegates to discuss problems relating to the cotton industry of Texas.

This is the first time in several years that Gatesville has secured the Ginner's Convention, and with the new City Auditorium and other conveniences of which Gatesville now boasts, the city should become a popular place for other conventions of small groups.

Gatesville Lions will take an unannounced part in the entertainment of the guests, and it is thought that the newly organized Chamber of Commerce will also take an active part in the entertainment of the visitors.

CIVIL DOCKET CONSUMES WEEK DIST. COURT

Civil Court held sway in District Court this week with the headliner, and for that matter, the only case of note handled being the damage suit styled, Mrs. Lucile Wheat et al, vs. D. B. Scott. At this time, Thursday afternoon, the jury is still out. Amount involved, as we understand it, is $40,000.

Beginning in the same court, while the jury on the above case is out, is the case styled, J. J. Savell vs. Harley Franklin, a damage suit, but no amount was given out.

Several divorce cases have been settled, but so far, no information has been given out as to what cases, since the principals asked that they not be published.

Grand Jury Working

Thursday, the Grand Jury was back in session, but as to what matters were being investigated, no information was given.

Seventeen people appeared before the Grand Jury, and they are still "grinding". The door baliff, stated there wasn't any knowing just when they'd finish.

Western Auto Donates First Prizes in Bicycle Derby

W. T. Hix, owner-manager of the Western Auto Associate Store has "sweetened the pot" considerably by his donations as First prize in each of the Four Divisions of the NEWS-MERCHANTS BICYCLE DERBY which is to be run on August 13, the Lucky Second Friday of this torid month.

Mr. Hix, in making his gifts for this race and for the boys and girls of Coryell County, says, "they can have their choice, each First Prize Winner in each of the Four Divisions, of a bicycle basket that fits in the handle bars, or, an expensive thief-proof lock with chain, or, a streamlined modernistic headlight, battery operated, or a luggage carrier, capable of hauling an extra passenger." These prizes and Western Auto Associate Store's "Western Flyer" bicycles may be seen in the window of this progressive Gatesville store. Entries are coming fast, and with every entry, a bicycle horn, is given to each and every boy or girl brought back to the News office.

Other prizes which will be offered by both the News and Merchants from time to time will be announced.

Boys! Girls! Get in on the fun, and,—the prizes. There is no cost to enter. Get your application blank NOW, and be ready for the start of this most interesting race.

"RAIN CAN" SAY .24 RAIN IN GATESVILLE

Official recording of the rain, according to information received at this office, was only .24 of an inch. That's not a guess, but the correct reading, but if it was guess work, the local rain would have been something over an inch.

This .24, however, does not cover the county but is only for Gatesville, and rain was heavier, from the looks of the clouds, in nearly every other section of the country.

MOTHER OF EDGAR JONES DIES IN OKLAHOMA

Word was received here early Thursday morning of the demise of Mrs. Barbara Jones of Tahlaquah, Oklahoma, mother of Edgar Jones of this city and brother to Henry E. Moore, also of this city.

Mrs. Jones was 78 years of age and funeral services will be conducted sometime Friday (today).

BETHEL BAPTIST REVIVAL OPENS FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday evening, July 23, today, a revival meeting will begin at the Bethel Baptist Church with the Reverend Paul Skinner of Waco doing the preaching.

Services will be held at 10:30 a. m. and 7:45 p. m., and the public is cordially invited to be present at all services.

Mrs. W. A. Jones of New London, Conn. has been visiting her sisters, Mesdams Otis Chambers and Clifford Clemons in this city and her husbands parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jones in Lampasas for the past week. She was accompanied to Texas by sister, Miss Lajuan Walker, who has been attending school in Connecticut for the past year. Mrs. Jones will be remembered as the former, Miss Mildred Walker, of this city. Jack Straw has accepted a position at the First National Bank. He assumed his duties there Wednesday.

TWO CARS IN ACCIDENT ON CORNER OF LEON AND LUTTERLOH

In Wednesday evening's rain, two unidentified automobiles crashed into each other at the intersection of East Leon and Lutterloh. Apparently, there was no damage of consequences to either the cars or their occupants.

After the crash was over both cars drove away under their own power. It is not known who the drivers were.

CEMETERY FOR COLORED UNDERGOES CLEAN UP

If you've been out in East Gatesville within the past week, probably you've noticed that some changes have been made at the Colored Cemetery.

All weeds, dead wood, leaves and fragments of glass ect. have been removed, the grass mowed and lower branches of the live oak trees neatly trimmed.

All work was done by the colored people and certainly they deserve some word of praise on their efforts to improve and help make Gatesville a more beautiful place in which to live.

AIR FACILITIES FOR FAIR

New York—As many of the visitors to the New York World's Fair of 1939 will journey to it by land plane or sea plane, New York City plans the expenditure of more than $8,400,000 for the purchase and improvement of North Beach Airport, which is but a short distance from the Fair site. Flushing Bay is the water gate of the fair at its northern extremity, and there sea planes will be able to land upon quiet water and taxi up to amply provided ramps or landing stages.

A complete milk condensing plant is planned as an exhibit at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition on San Francisco Bay.

POPULAR VIOLINIST GUEST ARTIST AT LIONS CLUB MEET

Miss Jacquelyn West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben West of this city, was guest artist at the local Lions Club Wednesday and played two violin compositions, accompanied at the piano by Miss Orpa Mayo.

Guests were Vernon Ploeger of Houston and Mr. Scott of Copperas Cove.

REV. GEO. SILER ANNOUNCES REVIVAL MEETING AT THE GROVE

We will begin our Methodist revival meeting at The Grove Tabernacle Saturday night, July 24th and run through Sunday, August 1st.

There will be 2 services each day at 11 a. m. and 8:15 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Come, Work and Pray. George Siler, pastor

FALL OBLIGATIONS SHOULD BE STUDIED NOW SAYS FDA

Coryell county farmers who are anticipating trouble in meeting their early fall obligations are invited to meet with the Farm Debt Adjustment Committee of the Resettlement Administration at Gatesville, on Tuesday, at 2 p. m., August 17. C. P. Shaffer, District FDA Supervisor, will meet with the committee and the farmers.

The purpose of the FDA is to help the farmer meet his creditors on a business-like basis and secure better terms and conditions. Names of Coryell County committeemen are as follows: George Fritz, Copperas Cove; C. E. Gandy, Gatesville; C. H. McGilvray, Gatesville.

Mrs. Emily Dixon left Friday for Alexandria, La where she will visit her sister, Mrs. J. M. Carruth and other relatives and friends.

County School Board's Meeting Nets Bus Line Also Additional Grades

At the meeting of the County Board of Trustees, which is composed of Trustees A. T. Humes, President, J. M. Witcher, Secretary, and H. E. Huckabee, S. A. Turner, B. E. Morgan and C. H. Graham, a new bus line was established for Ireland school district, which will run from Ireland near Aleman and Liberty communities and back to Ireland. This bus line, as we understand is to be permanent. Another bus line was established for the Purlmela school which is a local bus route and will be for the years 1937-38, according to the Secretary, J. M. Witcher.

Topsey and Peabody schools were granted the privilege of having eight grades instead of the seven they formerly had, if they wish.

Transfers By July 31 Superintendent J. M. Witcher warns all those who wish to transfer from one school district to another, that the deadline is July 31 at 12:00 midnight. This is final. If transfers are not made by this time, no state aid can be had for the children transferred after this date and this aid will be left in the district from which they transfer.

ARNOLDS ELECTRIC COMPANY OFFICIALLY OPENS AND INVITES FRIENDS

Arnold Electric Company, owned and operated by R. M. Arnold, Jr. officially opens its doors Saturday of this week. This business was for a short time in the building next to Chamlee's Garage, but since the post office has moved, Arnold Electric Company is now in the old post office building.

Mr. Arnold stated to a News representative yesterday morning that in his new location, he would be handling radios, sporting goods,—in fact, everything and anything in the electrical business, except electricity, which he would also carry in batteries.

Associated with Mr. Arnold is R. E. West, local electrician, and together these men have during the past eleven years done wiring jobs on such buildings and residences as the gym, Methodist church, D. R. Boone, F. W. Straw, R. B. Cross, Dr. J. H. Hamilton, and Paul Martin homes, and also Purlmela school and Turnersville gym, and are now engaged in wiring the new Junior High School here.

In the Radio Department, Mr. Edgar Gohlke, who is a graduate of Tyler Commercial School of Radio will be in charge. He has purchased a new United Motors Test Panel with all the latest meters and also with an oscillograph tester which is used by radio factories.

An invitation is extended to M. and Mrs. Coryell County to visit them in their new location.

Mrs. Frank Poole and son of Grand Prairie visited relatives in this city a few days ago.

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Patients in the hospital are: Mrs. B. K. Cooper and son, B. K. Jr., Mrs. Clarence Vaughn and daughter, Linda Vaughn, Mr. Ralph Wright.

FOOTBALL PREVUE

Exactly nine weeks from today Gatesville opens the 1937 season against Moody. The chances of the Hornets this year are unpredictable. Last year they were early season favorites to capture the title but it turned out that the team was too young and green and they flopped miserably. But the Hornets beat McGregor, which, after all, is the main reason why Gatesville has a football team.

This week instead of discussing the team as a whole, we are going to give you a brief review of the nine returning lettermen.

Byron Gilbreath is an aggressive, smart, rangy end who is hard to fool on defense and hard to stop on offense. Too many fans fail to recognize an end's value from an offensive standpoint. Gilbreath happens to be one of the main cogs in Worley's go-to-town plans, and you never find Gilbreath falling behind on his duties. His ability to snag the ball out of the air has made him a dangerous threat and there is every indication that his 1937 performances will be no worse than his late-season performances of 1936, which is all the Hornet fans are asking.

Fats Williams is a tremendous fellow, one of the most massive moleskinners roaming the gridirons of this section. He weighs around 190 pounds and stands 5 ft. 11 inches, has large hands and big feet and knows how to use both to advantage.

Guards, they used to say, are "fullbacks with their brains knocked out." That was in the good ole days of leg-locking when the beau ideal of guardsmen was a massive Gibraltar that couldn't be budged. The modern guard is a mobile tank on offense as well as a staunch defender and here at Gatesville we have one of the outstanding guards of Class B Central Texas football—Cotton Davis. In the McGregor game last year Cotton's reckless ramming and judicious blocking paved the way for Joe Baker and gave Neal Hinesley plenty of time to throw his deadly accurate passes. Davis is a fighter—a chunky, 160 pounder with a bulldog jaw. He is now busily engaged winning his third letter as a big gun of the Hornet line. Cotton makes few mistakes, knows every block in the book, and is a vicious tackler. These assets should carry him far.

NOTICE to Gas Customers

In compliance with a law passed at the last session of the Legislature, Community Natural Gas Company will begin to odorize the gas supplied to its customers within the next few days.

If you should notice an unusual odor about your premises, your gas piping and connections should be checked for leaks. For this purpose we advise that you call your plumber in order that any necessary repairs can be made.

Odorization of gas does not affect your gas service, but it may enable you to determine whether your gas piping needs attention.

CAUTION:

Do not look for leaks with matches or an open flame of any kind.

LEAIRD'S DEPT. STORE

C. H. Wallace will take care of the center duties. He is a fast half-back and has a keen diagnosis that makes him a defensive terror. He has the physical strength and the agility to snap the ball and ram through to the secondary where he mops up for the ball carriers. Last year as a rookie with a team as green as grass he was intuitive enough to cover up some of the defensive mistakes of his mates. With a year of hard campaigning under his belt and healed of the ankle injury that bothered him the latter part of last season, he is sure to be a headliner this year.

Roy Adams will serve at the other tackle post. He comes from the farm regions of Purnella where they catch 'em young, treat 'em rough, and teach 'em plenty. This 170-pounder can plow through an offensive line without any assistance. Adams is a conscientious worker in the classroom and on the field. You won't see his name in the newspaper headlines but you will find it ringed in red on the reports turned in by rival scouts.

Joe Ned Brown, junior half-back of last season, was consistently good. This year in spring training he looked great. Coach Worley shifted him to quarterback and he proved himself an able signal-caller. He's not the battering ram type of quarterback but rather inclined toward the shifty type. No telling when he is liable to breakaway with a long run particularly if his mates can get him past the line of scrimmage, which they had a great deal of difficulty in doing last year.

The No. 1 candidate for all-district recognition on the Hornet team is Neal Hinesley, alert and versatile halfback. Last year he was this section's outstanding leather stinger, feeding them long and short into the hands of his mates with uncanny accuracy that smacked of witchcraft. He can thread a needle with those short shots over the line. Hinesley is a senior this year and is shooting at an all-district berth as a brilliant wind-up of his scholastic career.

To watch Zack Fore in action one would think a Hoo-voo-doo snake dance was taking place. He hops in and out, buck-jumps and backs, but when the whistle blows and the music is over, the long-legged redhead has gained his yardage. He has speed, poise, and natural ability and there is no reason why he shouldn't cover himself with glory.

Harry Viss came like a house afire last year after being shifted from tackle to fullback. He's a bruising, bumping, thumping fullback, and Coach Worley thinks "Precious Fuzz" will be one of the best in the district before he turns in his suit. Voss showed flashes of his true form last year, inexperienced as he was in the arduous duties of a fullback. He made defensive errors, but they were errors of eagerness; he wanted to play too many positions at once and some times his wild-bull charges were misdirected. But just the same he was one of the toughest men to stop once he did get going. Patient teaching during the spring exercises have taught Fuzz how to make better use of his physical training assets. His blocking has improved remarkably and his defensive deductions have been sharpened to razor edge. Nor have those refinements diluted the vigor and headlong abandon with which he smacks the line.

Every field of science, including a new "science" of recreation, will display its latest advances at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

L. A. Woods and F. A. Morris Jr. have had quite a lot of improving done to their homes, treating them to new roofs and painting them up attractively in several ways.

John Huddleston, of Corsicana, is vacationing at home and with friends and attending the Baptist revival. Earl Huddleston patching his fences at Copperas Cove over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Parker, of Port Arthur visiting the Stockburgers and other friends. Prof. Boyer came out of hiding and was back in town this week. Margaret Dixon, of McGregor visiting her aunt and uncle, the Lon Pollards, and attending the Baptist Revival. J. M. Dixon is home from Provident Sanitarium, where he was operated on of appendicitis. He is much improved. Mr. A. Kagle and family of Moody visiting the Pollards. Frances Moony, six year old daughter of the Charles Moony's and who spent many days in the Milton Powell Memorial Hospital is home and improving rapidly.

The ten day old revival meeting, at the Baptist church, being conducted by pastor Carrol Chadwick, is arousing great spiritual interest among all classes and all churches. Many visitors from all neighboring towns and communities are here nightly. A rejuvenation of the spiritual life of the community is being effected. Bro. Murph, who is conducting the song service is putting much feeling into that feature of the service. Seven, todate, Tuesday, have been admitted to the church. The revival is to continue over another Sunday. The fine cooperation of the Methodists with the Baptists is very commendable. May it continue. The Methodist revival began Wednesday is to continue over ten days, or two weeks. Let our cooperation and faith in a great revival be a part of our contribution to them.

Rev. Raymond Sims closed the revival at Leon Junction and is home lending his efforts to assist the revivals in Oglesby.

W. E. Sims, and wife, and Lonnie Sims and family of White Hall, are visiting the Chas. Moony's and Henry Sims' and attending the revival.

Milk money is CASH

Milk money represents the community pay roll in thousands of towns, a dependable income for millions of farmers.

Milk and milk products must be sold so that cash can flow back to dairy farmers and their communities week after week and month after month.

This is a job Borden knows how to do, for behind Borden are 80 years of experience in handling and selling the most perishable of food products. Dairy farmers producing for a Borden company, know that a Borden milk check means dependable income.

FEATURES of INTEREST

THE TEXAS AND AMERICAN TRADE POLICY AFFECTING COTTON

Texas is by far the chief exporting region of the United States. Less than 5 per cent of the people of the United States live in Texas and they produce less than 4 per cent of the annual production of wealth in the country. And yet normally between 13 and 14 per cent of the American exports originate in Texas. At the time the depression came upon us, the export trade of Texas had reached unprecedented levels. In 1928, for example, more than 16 per cent of the total exports of the United States originated in Texas. The total value of Texas exports that year was $817,000,000, the equivalent of $620 each to every family in Texas and more than the value of the total exports of the United States as recently as the year 1895. But they began to decline after that, and in 1932 the total was less than $300,000,000 of the equivalent of $244 to every Texas family. The difference between $620 and $244 per family is a pretty fair measure of the depth the depression reached in Texas and its relation to export trade.

No other six million people living in an unbroken area in the United States depend to such an extent upon exports to foreign countries as do the six million people living in Texas. The question with us is not one of expanding our business and adding to our prosperity by going out after foreign markets. It is rather that of restoring and maintaining our prosperity by regaining and maintaining the foreign markets for our products.

The reason for this can be expressed in one word; cotton. Texas is the greatest single cotton growing unit in the world. Nearly one-third of the people of Texas, over 2,000,000 people constituting about 500,000 families, live on cotton farms and depend primarily on the growing of cotton for a living. But there is practically no market for Texas cotton within the borders of the United States. If our people are to produce cotton on a profitable basis, there must be a profitable market for their product outside the United States.

Prior to the depression Texas produced more than 4,500,000 bales of cotton annually, which was sold for about $450,000,000 a year. In 1928, for example, 5,150,000 bales of cotton were produced in Texas and farmers received about $450,675,000 for it, but last year, 1936, only 2,945,000 bales of cotton were produced in Texas and farmers received only about $173,755,000. The amount of cotton produced in Texas last year was less than 58 per cent of the amount produced in that region in 1928, and its market value was only 38 1/2 per cent of that of the 1928 crop. But if Texas is to continue to produce cotton even on the reduced scale of last year, foreign markets must be maintained for more than 2,650,000 bales of Texas cotton. And it is to restore its production to pre-depression levels, foreign markets must be found for nearly two million bales of Texas cotton. Meantime, it must be kept in mind that even outside of Texas more cotton is produced than is consumed within the borders of the United States. American cotton must be sold profitably outside the United States or Texas must quit growing cotton.

Now here are two stubborn facts which Texas must face in this connection. First, American cotton sold outside the United States can be paid for only with the proceeds of the sale of foreign goods within the United State. And second, the trade policy of the United States which is that of stringently limiting imports of foreign goods, limits the ability of foreign countries to buy American cotton sold outside the United States can be paid for only with the proceeds of the sale of foreign goods within the United States and the trade, and trade policy of the United States, that of limiting imports of foreign goods, limits the ability of foreign countries to buy American cotton. These two statements do not represent merely my opinion. They are stubborn and inescapable facts. Now, we may not like these facts. We may not like the fact that foreign countries must sell goods in the United States if they are to buy American cotton and pay for it. But our not liking it does not make it any the less a fact. We may not like the fact that the trade policy of the United States Government, by limiting the sale of foreign goods in the United States, limits the ability of foreign countries to pay for American cotton and thereby limits the market for American cotton abroad. But our not liking this does not make it any the less a fact, either.

Facts like these may be ignored. But they do not cease to exist on that account. They may be evaded, but not indefinitely. Evasion merely postpones the consequences and frequently aggravates them many fold. We managed to evade the two facts I have cited for nearly ten years, and now for the past seven years, even after the consequences of such evasion had come upon us with a vengeance, we have been largely ignoring them. But the consequence of our evading and ignoring these facts have been operating inexorably throughout the world, outside the United States, while more cotton is being consumed than ever before in history, the consumption of American cotton is being reduced. Foreign cotton is being substituted for American cotton and foreign countries are finding new sources of cotton outside the United States. And this process will continue to operate so long as we continue that stringently limit imports.

During the past three years, under the leadership of Secretary Hull, we have been endeavoring to change our trade policy by means of reciprocal agreements. But it is an extremely slow process, and it still remains to be proved that we shall succeed by this method in changing our policy sufficiently to save our cotton markets abroad.

Make no mistake about it, the choice is presented to us of changing our trade policy decidedly or of seeing an inexorable continuance of the process substituting foreign cotton for foreign cotton abroad, until American cotton has been banished for the world's markets altogether. The continued decline of the foreign market for American cotton can mean only one thing for Texas, and that is the continued reduction of the growing of cotton. And if our foreign markets are destroyed completely Texas must quit growing cotton. Do you think that Texas can afford to do that? Cotton-growing, even on the present reduced scale, provides employment for probably 600,000 workers in Texas. It used to provide employment for more than 700,000 workers. What are you going to do with these people when they can no longer grow cotton profitably? You cannot maintain them indefinitely at the public expense. And you should not want to maintain them that way.

Texas is taking steps to promote the growing of better staple quality of cotton, and that is fine. Steps are also being taken to carry on research to discover new uses for Texas cotton, and that also is fine. But while poor quality is a major factor, yet neither quality nor price is the chief cause of our loss of markets abroad. The chief cause is the difficulty of the foreign buyer in obtaining Texas cotton from behind the American tariff wall. Likewise, there is no probability that the consumption of cotton in the United States can never be brought within hailing distance of our capacity to produce cotton. You must remember that the per capita consumption of cotton in the United States is already four times as great as that of the rest of the world. It is outside the United States that the greatest possibilities for increasing the consumption of cotton exist. The big increase of the past seven years only adds to the proof of this. Increasing the uses of cotton in the United States is no substitute for effort to regain our export markets. And improving the staple quality of our cotton while very necessary, will not alone recapture our lost markets. The thing that is needed is to change the trade policy which is progressively destroying those markets. It is our own tariff wall that is interfering with the natural flow of our goods abroad. And by whatever means, that wall must be torn down.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

"THE ROAD BACK"—dramatic, epochal cinema production and sequel to Erich Maria Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front,"—portrays the revolutionary conditions prevailing in Germany following the signing of the Armistice and the peace treaties and the abdication of authority.

With the authority of the empire gone, old traditions and customs scrapped, young German boys returned home from four years in the trenches confronted with a world which no longer respected the ideals under which they marched to war. Not as conquering heroes did these boys return home, as did their British cousins and the French, but at home they found a bewildered people and a republican government which had overthrown all which they respected.

A vivid picture of the hell which follows the termination of a fighting in the trenches—of what happens back home when a Nation goes down to defeat on the field of battle.

Today Germany is preparing for war, although the German people want no war. France is preparing for conflict, for defense of her institutions against the forces which she mercilessly attempted to drive from existence in 1918.

Russia suffered a revolution—a revolution within her social, political, religious, and economic spheres—and today is concentrating her energies on a war machine. Likewise with Italy, Britain, Japan, and the United States.

Nineteen eighteen—have Germans and Russians and Italians—who suffered most in that year forgotten the war that cost ce and Britain—who in that year closed their fight for existence, forgotten the war that cost them the flower of their manhood?

Twenty-five million dollars a day for arms, more than a million dollars an hour, to that extent have the European powers forgotten 1918.

The major states of the world, including this country, today have 557,000 men actually under arms. Another 8,000,000 could be called to the service immediately upon the outbreak of war. These powers, France Italy, Japan, Poland, Turkey, Russia and the United States and the Cen-

Taxes under the Social Security Act are collected by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. In Texas contributions for unemployment compensation are collected from employers of eight or more by the Texas Unemployment Compensation Commission. Employers may credit against the tax required under Title IX of the Social Security Act their contributions to the State Unemployment compensation fund, up to 90 per cent of the federal tax.

All other parts of the Act, such as old-age assistance, aid to the blind, aid to dependent children, child health and welfare service, and vocational rehabilitation are administered directly by the several state agencies in Texas which work in cooperation with the Social Security Board and other Federal Government agencies in Washington, D. #### FACULTY MEMBERS ADDED AT MARY-HARDIN BAYLOR

Belton, July 21, (spl.)—Mrs. Florence E. Richey, Austin, has been added to the faculty of Mary Hardin-Baylor College as head of the department of home economics, according to an announcement from Dr. Gordon G. Singleton, president.

Mrs. Richey comes directly to Mary Hardin-Baylor from the University of Texas where she is teaching this summer. Since receiving the B. S. and M. A. degrees in home economics from the University of Texas, she has been employed by the University and for eight years by the Austin High School. Prior to teaching in Austin, she was on the faculty of the Galveston High School. Mrs. Richey has also done work toward the Ph. D. degree in Columbia University, where her major interest was in vocational home economics.

The past week has been a tragic as well as a hectic one, but it has been productive of very little in the way of tangible results.

The weather has been unbearably hot. When it gets hot in Washington there is no breeze and the air is full of moisture, almost like a room full of steam.
There is no escape. Even though the House and Senate Chambers are air cooled, the offices are not and the nights are as bad as the days. There have been a number of deaths in Washington from the heat and while I do not know whether it is true, it was reported early last week that more than 30 members of the House and Senate were in hospitals at that time.

In spite of this situation the court fight has been going on with increasing fervor in the Senate. On Tuesday afternoon, Judge Summers of Dallas, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee and sixth oldest man in the House on point of service, rose and spoke for an hour, urging that we lay aside the court fight and act on some of those other problems that need attention before adjournment. He contended that the court fight was useless in that there was no longer any reactionary majority on the court and that in fact as soon as the President fills the present vacancy there will be two-thirds progressive majority. He said in his opinion if the fight did not stop it would wreck the Democratic Party and prevent the passage of any needed legislation.

The next morning we got the news of the sudden death of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, who was the majority or Democratic leader in the Senate. Everyone here feels that the Senator wore himself out trying to carry too great a load. He was loved and respected by both friend and foe. Services were held in the Senate Chamber Friday and were attended by the President as well as all members of both House and Senate.

While the Senate has been absorbed with the court question the House has been in continual session (except on the day of Senator Robinson's death). As the tempers of the members have seemed to resemble the weather,
The debates have become more bitter and most matters have been accompanied by prolonged debate. The House spent one whole day debating the conference report on the Interior Department Bill and finally passed it over till this week. This bill should have been passed prior to July first (the beginning of the fiscal year). The Senate has added so much that it is now

$17,000,000 in excess of the figure reported by the House sub-committee. I voted against accepting several of the Senate amendments and to send the bill back to the conference committee.

The House did, however take two important steps. Both House and Senate last week accepted the conference report on the tenant-farm home-ownership bill and sent it to the President in substantially the same form as it passed the House. Of course I voted for the report, although as I have heretofore said, it is but a step in the right direction. The other important action was the vote of the House to override the President's veto of the act extending the present 3½ and 4 per cent interest rates on Federal Farm Loans and Commissioners loans respectively. I cannot see how we can justify a policy of spending money to make homeowners out of tenants and at the same time extend no hope to those who are now home owners to try to keep them from falling back into tenancy. The Government can now borrow money at 2½ per cent. It does not sus-tain any actual loss in loaning this at 3½ per cent on farm mortgages and I don't believe the Government should demand its pound of flesh by the literal enforcement of its outstanding contracts that would allow it to collect up to 6½ per cent interest on these loans. I, therefore, voted to override the veto.
If the Senate can get a two-thirds vote as did the House, this relief will be extended, but I do not know when the Senate will vote on the matter.

SYNOPSIS

Jack Gordon, crack western division air pilot, comes to New York on vacation but is called back to fly a ship from Salt Lake City to San Francisco. He balks but changes his mind when he sees pretty Felice Rollins, a society heiress, board the westbound plane. Jack makes an effort to become better acquainted with Miss Rollins but she treats him coldly. Arriving in Chicago, he saves Felice from the menacing attentions of a foreigner, Count Stephani. Felice is grateful but she refuses to tell Jack why Stephani is so anxious to stop her from getting to San Francisco. Later, Felice asks Jack to wire Salt Lake City to find out if her sister is aboard the limited train due to pass that point. All of this is very mysterious to the pilot.

CHAPTER V.

"SINCE we had breakfast in Omaha," Jack began when the plane was in the air again, "how about our having dinner tonight in Frisco?"

"So you can win your two dollar bet?" inquired Felice cheerfully.

"Aw!" The pilot was caught completely off-guard. "Vi Johnston and I are always kidding each other like that."

"You must have a lot of fun together."

"Well," he sighed, "I suppose that is the end of that."

"No-o-o. Not necessarily," she smiled. "I'll make a bargain with you. If you get me to San Francisco tonight, I'll have dinner with you tomorrow night."

"And—if I don't?"

"I won't."

"There's a swell little place on Fisherman's wharf," he began persuasively. "Or we could go to Tait's at the beach—they call it something else now—or the Mark Hopkins."

"Why not all of them, providing, of course, we reach San Francisco in time to meet the Overland Limited."

"Is it any business of mine why you have to meet that train?"

"None whatever," she answered sweetly.

Slightly piqued by her aloofness, Jack rose and drifted into the pilot's cabin. The co-pilot was flying while Tex Noyle talked to Cheyenne over the radio.

"Noyle—three four two," were his cryptic words. "Cheyenne to Salt Lake—one mile south of Elk Peak. Visibility fifteen miles—scattered clouds at five thousand—temperature two above—air slightly rough." He stopped speaking and started copying a message to Dr. Evarts which was coming through his ear-phones from Cheyenne.

"Situation critical," it read. "Patient may die."

"I'll take it back to him," said Jack.

"Mmm! That's too bad," was the doctor's only comment.

But Palmer was more inquisitive as usual. "How come he's getting messages over your radio?"

he inquired, nodding toward the grey-haired physician.

"He's got a critical case in Frisco he has to keep in touch with."

"But he says he's a New York specialist," Palmer shook his head.

The ship was met at Salt Lake by Pop Andrews, just as Jack had expected.

"Hi-ya, you old smoke-eater?" grinned the pilot. "This is Miss Rollins, Pop Andrews. How about it, Pop, was that girl aboard?"

"Yep." Andrews shifted his

NEW YORK DIRECTORY CAREFUL," it read.

Palmer's eyes narrowed as he digested the meaning of the wire.

Then he walked over to Evarts, who was admiring the distant mountains.

"How they comin', Doc?" he inquired familiarly.

"Everything seems pleasant, thank you."

"Did you say your office was in New York City?"

The physician nodded.

"I'll make a bargain with you," she smiled. "If you get me to San Francisco tonight, I'll have dinner with you tomorrow night."

chew and nodded vigorously. "Initials on her bag were K.L.R."

"Thanks, Pop," Jack pounded him on the back, then added.

"We've only got a few minutes here—and I gotta put on my monkey suit and fly the next leg. You look after Miss Rollins, will you?"

"If you expected her to get off here she fooled you—went right on," said the old man when he and the girl were alone.

"Was she by herself?" Felice's voice was anxious.

"Nope. She was walking up and down with a kind of foreign-lookin' feller."

"That train gets into San Francisco at ten tomorrow morning?"

"If she's on time."

"And we get there at 2:15 this afternoon?"

"If nothing happens." The railroad man didn't think much of the air.

"You don't think we'll be delayed?" the girl gasped.

"Bad snowstorm to the north an' my bunion says it's coming this-a-way."

"Where's the telegraph office?" Felice was almost in a panic.

As she entered the office she almost bumped into Palmer who was coming out, staring at a message which he had received in answer to one he had sent in Omaha.

"NO JAMES L. EVARTS IN

"I used to know about a Dr. Evarts on Madison Avenue. You the same one?"

"I've never had an office on Madison."

"I just wondered." Palmer turned away, frustrated.

As Jack stood in the locker-room buttoning on his uniform, Pete Steven, the weather bureau man, came in.

"Well, if it isn't Uncle Sam's little weather boy," chuckled the pilot, surveying the wizened youngster.

"How's it behaving West?"

"Lovely—Shafter fair—Elko—bad—Battle Mountain worse—and from there on until Reno—zero—zero—no ceiling—no visibility."

"That's a swell way to greet a pal." Jack was dead serious.

"When did you get these reports?"

"Eight o'clock."

"How's the emergency field at Halleck?"

"Swell if you stay on the runways—but you won't have any trouble. You're the best pilot on the line." Then, as Jack, taking it big, thrust out his chest, Pete added: "At least you've always said so."

"Yeah?" The pilot's face fell.

"Well, I still say so."

"No kidding, Jack." Pete's voice was anxious. "It don't look so hot."

spent upon armaments this year. Does Europe remember 1918? Can the period from 1914-1918 have so easily flitted from the minds of statesmen, youth, people fighters? The court reorganization fight has consumed most of the last five months of the present congressional session. If Congress does not walk out on the President about Aug. 15, as has been predicted in reliable sources, the court battle may rival the thirteen months' fight over the League of Nations before a final vote is secured in the Senate and House.

As conditions now stand, the bill will not be reported in the House until the Senate votes or returns the bill to the committee. An adverse report from the judiciary committee and the rules committee of the House is a certainty - the lineup in Hatton Summers' judiciary committee being 15 to 10 against the bill.

Administration measure may not fare so well in the House as first predicted. Emphasizing the break in the ranks of the Democrats and the formidable array of opponents against increasing the membership of the Supreme Court, Hatton Summers of Dallas, potent chairman of the House judiciary committee, last week urged the President to withdraw the measure because of "the havoc it was working on the solidarity of the nation". Summers warned that passage of the court bill would open the way for a dictatorship, and soundly condemned the principle of holding a club over the heads of Supreme Court members.

This setback for the bill in the House was equalled in the Senate by the death of the Democrat majority leader, Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas. Robinson was responsible for holding the shaky administration forces together on the court measure, and already the absence of his leadership is being felt. Senator Brown of Michigan, previously favoring the compromise bill, has shifted to the uncommitted group, leaving the current lineup 41 against, 38 for, 16 noncommittal and one vacancy.

Early in the week four newcomers to the Senate, Andrews of Florida, Gillette of Iowa, Johnson of Colorado, and Brown of Michigan, all Democrats, called at the White House and urged the President to withdraw the measure, echoing the same argument advanced by another Democrat, Summers of Texas.

The answer came in the form of a letter from the chief executive urging both branches of the Congress to enact the obnoxious measure. The responsibility will be squarely on the Congress for the abandonment of the goals of economic security and social betterment, the President said, if the reorganization measure is not passed. This statement was forthcoming in spite of the fact that the stamp of approval was placed upon all administration measures at the last term of the Supreme Court and no major new deal legislation is now being held up by the courts.

The outlook is not bright for those who propose the packing of the United States Supreme Court. The prospect is even darker for a reconciliation of the two diverse elements within the Democratic Party. The conviction is growing among both voters and Congressmen that a definite showdown is in the offing, one that will be climaxed at the polls in the 1938 and 1940 election, and that they must make their choice.

Vice President Garner is returning to Washington following the funeral of Senator Robinson. Garner will lend no support to the court bill; instead, he will probably assume leadership of those forces whose avowed aim is the defeat of this measure.

The Denison Herald comments upon the break among the Democrats with an editorial entitled "Can You Believe It?" In part the editorial reads:

"To realize how complete is the break between old-line Democrats and the new deal one needs only to read an editorial that appeared in the Macon Telegraph, one of the most influential democratic newspapers in Georgia, last week, advocating the impeachment of President Roosevelt and the elevating of Vice-President Garner to the presidency. The charges which the Georgia newspaper brings against the President are the same that the Colonist brought against George Third at the beginning of the Revolutionary War. The Telegraph believes that the President intends to become a dictator and urges his impeachment in order to save the country from a revolution."
