RAM-BILLY SALE DRAWS MANY BREEDERS

2 "First Bales" Friday; Oglesby Is First Ginned

It was evidently a rush to be "first" as it usually is. Saturday morning, the news spread that J. L. Sullins of near Oglesby had brought in and had ginned at the Gatesville Gin Company, the first bale of Cotton of the 1937 crop. The Gatesville Chamber of Commerce, in order to pay a premium for the first bale decided to buy the bale at 20c which made the bale bring $106.80, since it was a 534 lb. bale. The prevailing market we understood, was 12½c, making the premium amount to Mr. Sullins $40.05, since the bale at 12½c would have brought $66.75.

But Whoa! Our correspondent, Mr. Frank L. Simmons, perpetrator of "This Week in Oglesby" in the News, has this information:

The Grantham Gin Company of Oglesby, managed by W. W. Pollard, ginned Oglesby's, and now Coryell County's First Bale of Cotton in the 1937 crop, on the morning of Friday, 29th, which was grown by Luther Kinsey, on Commissioner Harry Johnson's farm two miles south of Oglesby. The bale weighed 603 lbs. and sold for 12½ cents per lb. At the time Mr. Simmons was passing this information, a collection was being made by Oglesby Merchants for a premium, but we have not learned the amount.

Other sections of the county are to be heard from as yet, and we may have to "back-up," but, anyhow, the Coryell county crop of gold is coming in and every gin in the county will be in operation shortly, and there'll be plenty of bales with the present wonderful prospects for a bumper crop.

The jurors deliberated 20 minutes. Cockerell, a Lampasas resident, received the verdict without a show of emotion.

G. P. SCHAUB BUYS OUT J. A. HALLMAN BUSINESS AND MOVES

G. P. Schaub, feed and grain dealer here, has just purchased the J. A. Hallman feed business and will move into the building formerly occupied by Mr. Hallman, which is across from the Gatesville Ice Company, on N. 9th street.

Mr. Schaub will also operate the scale in conjunction with this business, and is bonded weigher. He carries a complete line of feeds, seeds and grain, besides doing the trucking for the general public.

Mr. Hallman, with his family, will move to Waco, where he has a connection with the Waco Cotton Oil Mill. Before leaving this place, Mr. Hallman wishes to thank those who have patronized his business, and asks that they see Mr. Schaub, who will be handling the same products he formerly sold.

State Hwy. 36 Ass'n to Meet in Hamilton Aug. 10; Delegation Wanted

H. Burks, Secretary of the Highway 36 Association, announces in a letter to the News, that a meeting of this association will be held in Hamilton, August 10, 10 a. m. and that a large delegation of Coryell county and Gatesville citizens are urged to be present.

Mr. Burks also states letters have been received from Hon. John H. Woods and Hon. Harry Hines, State Highway Commissioners, that they would accept the invitation extended them to be present at this meeting.

Mr. Burks continues in his letter: "This is going to be a very important meeting, and we want to urge you to be there and bring a good delegation from your city. Improvements on Hwy 36 have been exceptionally good for the past year. We are going to have a good report on the progress of the building of Hwy 36, and we want to urge you in every way we can to be there with a good delegation."

It seems interest is now centering on the highway situation in this part of Texas and it is of paramount importance that citizens of this vicinity bend every to make this delegation one that will carry weight.

MARVIN E. FLETCHER OPENS STAR TIRE STORE IN TYLER; MOVED TOO

Marvin E. Fletcher, local Star Tire Dealer, and who operates a grocery on Hwy 36, north of Gatesville, has moved to Tyler with his family and is opening a New Star Tire store in that city.

Although Mr. Fletcher will live in Tyler, he is still operating the store here with Ted Liljedahl as his local manager.

This new store proves Mr. Fletcher is wide-awake in the tire business, since he has just recently opened a Star Tire Store in Hamilton, and has Hazen Ament as his local manager in that city.

O. L. Wilson of Brownwood is vacationing the first part of this week in this city with his wife.

Latest Highway Map

We are indebted to S. L. Hancock of the State Highway Maintenance Department for the latest official State Highway Map, which is dated February 15, 1937, and shows the latest routes in the state.

Unfortunately, this map does not show a great deal of paved highway in Coryell county, and a "marked copy" to the highway department at Austin—but they know it.

DISTRICT COURT INTEREST FADES; CIVIL DOCKET REVIVED

Coryell County's District Court for the July Term, is practically a thing of the past.

With only a few cases in the Civil Docket yet to come up, the lack lustre part of the legal proceedings is upon us.

Only one case was disposed of since our last issue, and was styled: Eva Bradshaw vs. J. B. Bradshaw, suit for divorce and custody of minor children granted as prayed for.

One case, Glenn Williamson vs. John Ames suit for damages, was opened Monday morning at which time a jury was chosen, and court adjourned until 9 a. m. today, when testimony will begin.

So far, there are no other cases announced to come up after the above case.

THE CLASS OF ANIMALS IS UNUSUALLY GOOD, AND SALES ARE BRISK

Gatesville's and Coryell county's Third Annual Ram and Billy Sale, proved an outstanding success from the beginning, as 400 animals were brought in, 300 of them being shown and the other 100 also offered for sale. Entries included breeders from as far north as Denton and Fort Worth, south as far as Uvalde and Salado, and west as far as Johnson City.

Although the Ram and Billy Sale is primarily a sale, exhibitions brought in their show animals and ribbons were awarded in classes as demanded. Interest in Coryell county was demonstrated conclusively with the entering of more than 40 individuals from the county. Sales, particularly in the afternoon were unusually brisk, as raisers in this county were interested in the fine animals shown and bought to increase the value of their flocks.

Prizes according to classes were awarded as follows, and consisted of ribbons:

C Type Delaine yearlings: 1. Frank Kimbrough, Salado; 2. J. W. Reese, Izora.

C Type Rambouillet yearlings: 1. and 2. H. J. Billings of Hamilton; 3. Diamond L. Ranch, Ft. Worth; 4. Joe Milner, Turnersville; 5. H. T. Viertel, Meridian.

Scoutmaster J. M. Witcher, Superintendent Erceel W. Brooks and Judge Floyd Zeigler have consented to act as judges and will declare the winners.

Only eight more days remain for entries, since at the beginning announcement was made that entries would close August 11. So far, all entries have been in Gatesville, and as there are bicycles in every town in the county, and in the country also, entries should be coming in from these sections. The course will be plainly marked and posted, so anyone will know the route. Enter now! Many prizes are offered!

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

Now that one-man government has been repudiated by the people and their elected representatives in Congress, the next great problem to be met is that of Federal spending. Analysis of a few figures will reveal the condition into which the Roosevelt spenders have plunged the nation.

The end of the 1936-37 fiscal year found the national debt at an all-time high of $36,424,613,731 (billions). Receipts for the fiscal year were $5,293,840,236 (billions), and expenditures $8,105,158,547 (billions). This deficit of nearly three billions marked the seventh successive year in which the government has gone into the red. Not since 1930 have the Government's receipts been larger than expenditures. The following table reveals the annual deficit for each of the last seven years:

|------|-----------------|
| 1931 | $ 901,595,080 |
| 1932 | $3,147,919,453 |
| 1933 | $3,063,256,885 |
| 1934 | $3,989,496,035 |
| 1935 | $3,585,779,434 |
| 1936 | $4,763,841,643 |
| 1937 | $2,811,318,310 |

The deficit figures do not tell the entire story. The last seven years have witnessed a steadily increasing rise in Federal expenditures to an estimated seven and three quarters billions for the current year which runs from July 1, 1937, to June 30, 1938. Here is the story of Federal expenditures for the fiscal years thru 1938:

|------|-----------------|
| 1930 | $3,882,152,487 |
| 1931 | $3,867,597,712 |
| 1932 | $4,953,644,895 |
| 1933 | $5,042,953,627 |
| 1934 | $7,055,050,885 |
| 1935 | 7,325,825,166 |
| 1936 | $7,106,305,727 |
| 1937 | $7,548,493,123 |
| 1938 | $7,735,515,000 |

The Federal government is now spending two dollars for each dollar spent eight years ago; it is spending ten dollars for each dollar spent 25 years ago.

Even more appalling figures confront one when total governmental expenditures are considered. Expenditures for all branches of government, including Federal, State, and municipal now totaling 17 billions annually. The aggregate public debt for all divisions of government now totals 56 billions as compared with an aggregate public debt of only $4,850,000,000 (billions) in 1912.

What is the story behind the marked increase in governmental costs and particularly in Federal expenditures, which has been apparent for a quarter of a century. These twenty-five years might have been divided roughly into three periods the first extending from 1915, to 1925. That period of ten years saw Federal expenses rise about two billion dollars and remain stationary at about three and one billions until the depression. In this ten-year period, which saw the Nation plunged into war and included the costly period of reconstruction and readjustment of business and finance which followed the World War, the increase in expenditures was attributed largely to interest charges on the debt, war pensions, and the maintenance of an expanded Army and Navy.

Steady reduction of the national debt to approximately 17 billions in 1929 took place during the era of Harding-Coolidge prosperity. The year 1932—which marks the beginning of the second period of the suarter century which saw governmental expenditures rise to their present high—witnessed the assumption of the relief burden by the Federal government.

The second period extends from 1932 to 1936. During this four year period government outlays for public works, relief, and subsidies to farmers caused a steady increase in both the national debt and the deficit.

The third period began with the 1936-1937 fiscal year and will terminate—perhaps never. This date—1937—saw Federal expenditures for national defense, old-age pensions, social security payments, and Governmental agencies far exceed the outlays for relief, public works, and subsidies. The era of pump priming is over, with industrial production exceeding the 1929 level, although the spectre to unemployment is still one of the Nation's greatest problems, but a new era of increasing outlays from the Treasury is in progress. With the national debt and Federal expenditures both at an all-time high, only maintenance of the present crushing tax-burden and probably additional levies at future sessions of Congress can balance the budget, reduce the national debt, and still take care of a billion dollar armament program and the vast program of social experiments which the administration is sponsoring.

Uncle Jim Says

"Drastic flood losses can be reduced by controlling stream flow at its source with the help of adequate cover crops, pastures, terracing and contouring."

Following recent heavy rains in the Panhandle numerous county agricultural agents reported that land which had been listed on the contour retained the rainfall which fell on the land and that in many cases water stood in the rows for from 12 to 24 hours after the rains.

In nearby fields of contoured or terraced the rainfall ran off quickly and contributed to flood waters which gathered after the rains. Some damage resulted from the flood water.

It is clear that land protected by terraces and contours, or by adequate cover crops, results in a double benefit to the public. The individual farmer retains more rainfall for subsequent crops and runoff water from his farm does not contribute to flood damage.

Under the Agricultural Conservation Program farmers receive grants which practically repay them for expenses incurred in planting cover crops and constructing terraces. Increased farm income on lessened flood damage are only part of the benefits which revert to the public thru this type of work.

"Terraces are one way to keep good land where it belongs."

Texas farmers have long realized the need for constructing terraces to prevent erosion. As early as 1882, Duke Howell, Newton county farmer, terraced part of his field.

By 1916, officials of the Texas Extension Service realized that agricultural conservation must be one of the principal jobs of the organization. A long time soil and water conservation program was started which resulted in Texas farmers, through the supervision of county agricultural agents, terracing a total of more than 10 million acres in the next 20 year period.

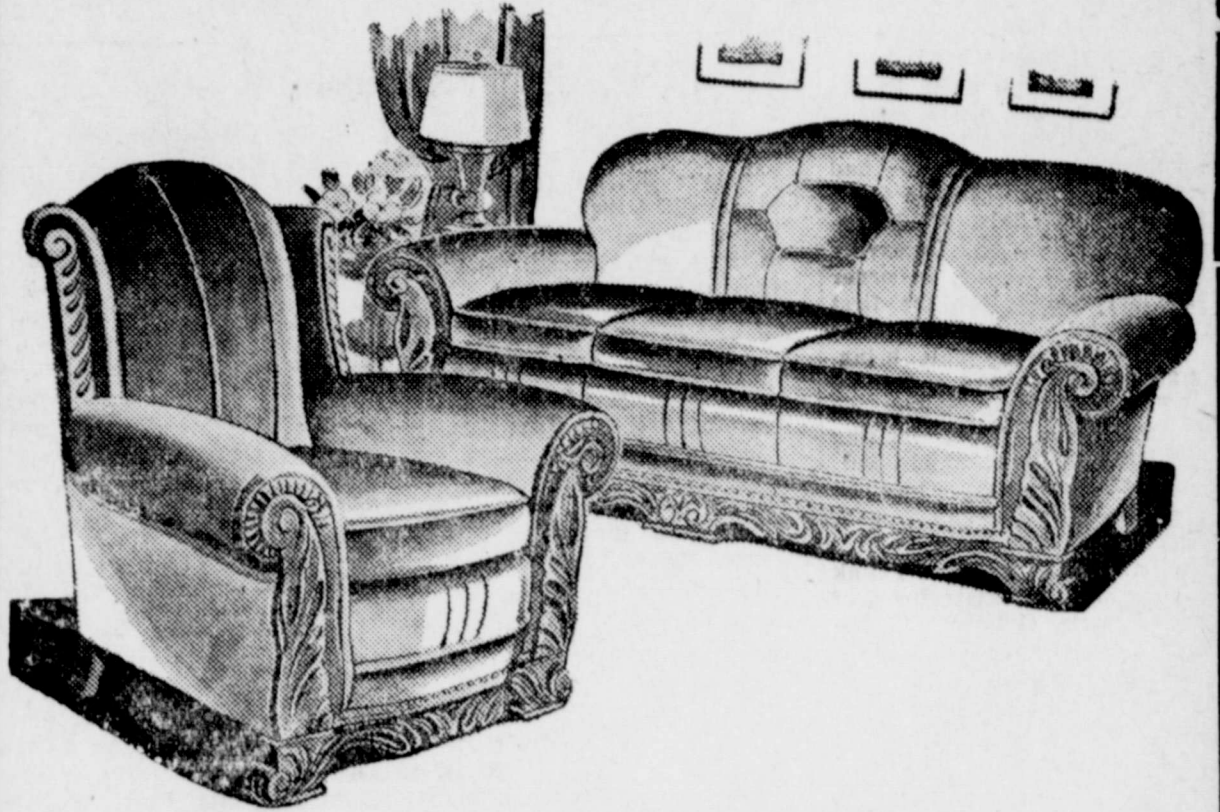

During 1936, when the Agricultural Conservation Program carried provisions for partially reimbursing farmers for the expense of building terraces, Texas broke all terracing records by terracing and contouring 3,976,244 acres, of which 2,338,418 acres were treated under the direction and supervision of county agricultural agents.

County road machinery was used by commissioners' courts to aid in the terracing work in 170 counties and 356,764 acres were protected against soil losses through this medium.

With the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program again carrying provisions for aid in the terracing program, Texas farmers are terracing more land than ever before.

LOOK It Could Be Your Home

COLONIAL BUNGALOW

A bungalow deserving of its popularity. It is surprising to find out just how inexpensively homes of this type can be built. All of the rooms are conveniently arranged on one floor with desirable privacy between the living rooms and bedrooms. An attractive living room, dinette and comfortable bedrooms and four large closets are desirable features of the plan. Built-in conveniences include a telephone niche in the hallway and a medicine chest in the bathroom. Provisions for cupboard space is made in the kitchen. Plans may be obtained from the News office.

While this has been another week of rather meager results in the House it has not been lacking in protractor and bitter debate. Of course, the question of adjournment has been in the background of all the debate but there has been no definite development along that line. There are a number of small groups, each of which says they will not adjourn until Congress acts on their special legislation. For my part, I feel that we should decide on a definite and permanent agricultural policy before adjournment if at all possible and I for one would gladly stay until that is done but the agricultural Committees of both Houses seem to be of the opinion that it will be impossible to agree to any bill I realize that it is a difficult problem and I do not want us to pass some legislation simply to pass something. I realize that by taking this attitude of simply "passing something," we could easily get things in a worse condition than we have at present, but I do feel that if there is anyway for the Committees to agree on a well-thought-out bill we should act this session and let our people know just what they can count on in the way of agricultural policy. Many of the Northern Congressmen can not the importance of acting until January or February but I am convinced it will never be possible to make a general agriculture bill properly function the first year it is passed. Our farmers should know in the Fall just what they can rely on next Spring and it will be a distinct hardship if we do not get this information. On Wednesday, the House spent the day in a bitter fight that started with a Republican effort to embarrass the Democrats by splitting their forces. Finally we passed the only bill of the day—a relatively unimportant measure conferring American citizenship on children of American parents residing in Panama—by a vote of 146 to 144. The vote was so close that the Speaker required verification—the first time this has happened since I have been here. I voted for the bill. Early in the week the House passed a bill providing for the sale of power produced at Bonneville Dam. I voted for this measure as I feel that we must use the investment we have but I voted against the measure to authorize the Gila Reclamation project, which passed the House 160 to 147. I am a strong believer in flood control and power the consistency of appropriating millions to irrigate desert lands. These lands are being put into crops in competition with the very farmers who are being told to reduce the crops in other parts of the country and in the case of the Gila Project most of the land will go into long staple cotton. I am not going to use public money to put in new cotton land while we do not have a market for all the cotton we can produce on our existing farms. I do not think you can make the country prosperous by killing baby pigs but neither do I think you can help making a fourth of a bale per acre by taxing him to irrigate land in an Arizona desert so that someone out there can grow te bales per acre in competition with our Texas farmers.

Large numbers of vacationists are now coming to Washington to see the nation's Capital. Almost every day we have some group from the Eleventh Texas Congressional District. Most of the visitors came to my office in the House Office Building and it is possible to make their trip more pleasant by giving them letters of introduction to The White House, the Senate and House Galleries, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the Library of Congress and other places of interest. It is a pleasure to serve the people of my home counties and whenever you plan your vacation trip to include Washington, do not fail to come to my office and let me help you enjoy your vacation trip by seeing that you have opportunity to be guided through the Government buildings.

Twenty Questions on Social Security

QUESTION NO. 14

QUESTION: May an employee use a name on his Social Security account card other than the exact name under which he was born?

ANSWER: An employee may use a name on his account card other than the name under which he was born. He should, however, show his real name under line 1 of the application, sign his name on the application as he usually signs it, and attach to such application a request that his card be issued other than that shown on line 1.

It is necessary the employee's real name be shown on line 1 in order that proper identification may be made at the time he applies for benefits, and for verification of his age. His account card will then be given to him under the name by which he is known to his employer.

(Further inquiries should be directed to the Social Security Board office, 1530 Allen Bldg., Dallas, Texas.)

IN MEMORY OF TOMMIE SPENCER

On Sunday, July 18, Tommie Spencer was killed when struck by a Santa Fe Limited freight train. Mr. Spencer was in an ice truck on his ice route at the time of the accident.

Tommie Spencer was born in Crawford, McLennan County, and died July 18 at 9:15 o'clock. He was married to Miss Bertha Smith on March 27, 1920. Surviving is his sister, Ola Borlow, and son Raymond; a brother, Luther Spencer, who was visiting in the T. Spencer home at the time of the accident. He was killed in Fort Sumner, New Mexico three blocks from the depot as the freight came thru a deep cut and the weeds and under brush was growing so tall that it prevented him seeing the train until it was too late. He died before they reached the hospital.

Oh, how happy he was to be with his brother and sister and how little they realized how near death was when they left him so happy and telling them he would be with them in a few hours for dinner before they left for the Cavern.

Life is so sweet and death is so sudden; little did he dream of the danger he was approaching. Oh, dear brother, how we shall miss you. How we will miss the tender love and happy smile.

Our once happy home will not be the same; for our hearts are sad, our eyes are filled with tears for someone who has gone away. Gone to a home of light and love where he will watch for his loved ones to join him some happy day. A precious one from us is gone, a voice we loved is still. A place in our hearts as vacant and never can be filled.

He is survived by his wife and three sons, Lynn, W. T., and Alton of Purlama; his mother, Mrs. Mary Spencer of Ireland, who was at Santa Rosa on a visit at the time of his death; four sisters, and one brother; Mrs. Ola Borlow of Bowie; Mrs. Faye Thetford, Carlton; Mrs. George Thetford, Purlama and Mrs. Wess Strickland of Levita and Luther Spencer of Fort Worth.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church in Santa Rosa on July 20 with Bro. Joneson conducting. Interment followed in the Ever Green Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Basil Bruner, Phillip Creig, Homer Gilham, Albert Mitchell, Harvey Rice, Walter Wilson. Flower girls were Emma Fay Guy, Jacquelyn Herndon, Betty Story, Merlyn June Sanford, Joy Ellen Spitter, Ila Dean Thurston.

Musical quartette was sung by Mrs. C. L. Bornhart, Miss Louise Smith, T. H. Little and Rev. Mr. Joneson.—Written by his sister, Laura.

Mrs. C. H. McGilvray and daughter, Miss Truie Pearl, have returned from a visit with the former's son, Burl McGilvray, and wife in Dallas.

Miss Erma Sue Brooks of Waco spent Monday with Mrs. Emily Dixon and family.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month. Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Cavalcade Is $500,000 Free Spectacle at Exposition

The Cavalcade of the Americas, a great historical spectacle depicting the struggle for liberty on the part of the peoples of the nations of the Western Hemisphere, is a free attraction at the Pan American Exposition in Dallas. The production cost $500,000 and is on the largest stage in the world. Scenes from Cavalcade, shown above, are: (1) The landing of Christopher Columbus; (2) Geraldine Robertson, star of Cavalcade; (3) Cortes captures Mexico City; (4) Bolivar's cavalry charges the Spaniards.

The start of the America's Cup races will look something like this. Harold Vanderbilt's undefeated Ranger, left, at the beginning of a recent trial in which Rainbow was the loser. This week's Saturday Evening Post shows how easy it is to put a half a million dollars into just one of these sailing greyhounds.

HENRY McLEMORE FINDS EXPERTS GET MUDDLED FOLLOWING YACHTS

Philadelphia, Aug. 2.—Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith, the English sportsman, puts out to sea off Newport, Rhode Island, this coming Saturday to try for the second time to wrest from Harold Stirling ("Mike") Vanderbilt the ninety-five dollar silver mug for which Englishmen have fought, bled and spent $10,000,000 in the eighty-five years since Commodore John C. Stevens, of New York, first won the "Holy Grail" of yachting.

Wealth, uncounted and untold, will cluster in dazzling profusion on hundreds of pleasure boats along the course, nevertheless, the spectators, rich and poor alike, will, as usual in this most aristocratic of sports, be out of luck, declares Henry McLemore in the current Saturday Evening Post. Even the most fortunate of those who watch will be no closer than two miles to either of the boats, which themselves may be a mile or more apart.

Wide Interest Despite General Ignorance of Sport

According to Mr. McLemore, there's not one man in ten thousand who knows the difference between a spinnaker and a Genoa (sails or something). Yet when the coming series ends, millions of words will have been wired from Newport and from nearby press association headquarters to newspapers all over the United States.

Nobody to speak of knows anything about sail boats; the race spectator, no matter how skilled in the lore of the deep, can only guess at the position of the racers, and the men who actually sail the graceful craft sometimes haven't the faintest idea of whether they are ahead or behind. Yet from Limehouse and Buckingham Palace to the White House and the Bowery the America's Cup stands for one of the finest traditions in international sport.

Cup Racing Costs Plenty

This is only the sixteenth challenge in the long history of the America's Cup. Mr. McLemore supplies the reason. "A person with an income of $100,000 a year can play polo and keep a nice string of ponies. But $100,000 would just about take care of the designing of an America's Cup Yacht; all you would have would be a set of blue prints and some models that you could float in your bathtub."

The Post writer itemizes Sopwith's expenses as follows.

|--|------------------|
| Designer's fee, experimental work with models and putting the plan on blueprints | $75,000 |
| Hull and keel | 225,000 |
| Mast (and you must have a spare mast) at $15,000 each | 30,000 |
| Four sets of nails | 10,000 |
| Maintenance costs for crew of twenty-six for four months | 15,000 |
| Total | $445,000 |

"These are rock-bottom costs," says Mr. McLemore. "You had better set aside $150,000 for a reserve fund to take care of emergencies." Of course, Mr. Sopwith also had to tow his craft over here and that cost something.

No wonder there are only about six of these Class J. boats in the United States and six more in the rest of the world. If you are not discouraged about taking up this sport by now there are some additional perplexities. For one thing, your boat, if you have decided to build one, is approximately 134 feet long, 21 feet wide, draws up 15 feet of water and displaces 164 tons. It's no good for a week-end cruise; it's for racing only. And finally, you would have to find someone to sail it, there being just about five or six expert skippers of Class J yachts in this country.

Yet Mike Vanderbilt shouldered this responsibility himself this year when the New York Yacht Club failed to form a syndicate that usually raises the money. "He knew," Mr. McLemore writes, "that unless a new defender was built Sopwith would probably lift the trophy."

Furthermore, Vanderbilt, "America's premier yachtsman," had to put aside important business obligations and devote his entire summer preparing for the defense of the historic cup. He began a rigid training regimen immediately after accepting Sopwith's challenge. He even gave up contract bridge, another game in which he is recognized as one of the world's leading experts.

Sopwith, of course, has a similar stake in his second endeavor, plus the incentive to be the first man to return the battered silver trophy to England. The plate and the glory goes to the first boat to win four races.

RADIO ROBOT OBSERVES WEATHER

THE newest mechanical weather observer is a radiometeorograph, an instrument which makes its own observations, sending them out instantaneously as signals to be picked up by properly tuned radio sets within a radius of 200 miles.

Two sensitive elements react to temperature changes. A barometer capsule contracts or expands with change of atmospheric pressure; a bi-metallic coil curls or uncurls, with changing temperature. A third hand, the timer, turns on a miniature broadcasting station.

The radiometeorograph is carried up by a sounding balloon capable of rising 20 miles—or higher—and staying in the air for about 2 hours. These balloons can be sent up in any kind of weather, from any place, including the sea coast and ships at sea. When the balloon bursts a small parachute, attached between it and the instrument, insures the safe descent of the radiometeorograph.

CITY BASTILE BEING REHABILITATED RENOVATED RENEWED

Although, according to Alderman Bob Saunders, the City Bastile won't be air-conditioned, or have movies, rodeos, ball games, or magazines and libraries, it will be new, and have those new modernistic straight-line bars over the windows that give it the 1937 modernity, so prevalent during the age.

Apropos to all that city rowdys now will have a nice clean place, and a safe place, to spend their "off" nights.

Included in the conveniences are a wash room, and complete new equipment thruout, since the old jail has been torn down, and the bars, and the steel door have found their way to this new citadel.

Twenty Questions on Social Security

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTION NO. 13

QUESTION: Is it necessary for an employee to have his account number card with him at all times or should the employer keep it?

ANSWER: The employer should make a record of the employee's account number, but in no case should the employer keep the account number card of the employee. Employers holding cards of their ex-employees should try to find these workers and return their cards to them. If employers are unable to return such cards, they should be forwarded to the nearest field office of the Social Security Board.

It is not necessary that the employee keep his account number card with him at all times. After he tells his employer his number, he should then place the card in a safe place and in addition should make a record of his number in case the card is lost. An employee should have only one number all his lifetime and need not apply for a new card if he changes employers. If he loses the card, he may apply to the nearest field office of the Social Security Board for a duplicate, but in no case should he make application for another card until instructed to do so. (Further inquiries should be directed to the Social Security Board Office, 1530 Allen Bldg., Dallas Texas.)

Nearly 4,400 students, representing every state in the Union and many foreign countries, are attending the session, which is the largest in the history of the university. TEXAS SILVER MINE

Although Texas does not contribute much to the gold supply of the nation, from the little town of Shafter comes $3,000,000 to $700,000 of silver annually. The mine, which is located in the western section near the Mexican border, has been in operation about half a century. It was closed from 1930 to 1932, but has been producing regularly ever since.

Uncle Jim Says

"Green manure crops cut production costs and pay good dividends on thousands of Texas farms."

The practice of turning under crops, especially legumes, to add fertility to the soil is not new to Texas farmers. In 1920, Texas farmers devoted 14,609 acres to legume demonstrations in cooperation with county agricultural agents, and by 1931 the total had grown to 30,753 acres.

The 1930 census figures show that 394,555 Texas acres were devoted to legumes in 1929. The 1935 agricultural census figures show that the acreage of legumes in Texas almost doubled from 1929 to 1934, when farmers planted 773,783 acres of legumes.

A good part of the increase shown in 1934 was due to the planting of legumes on "idle acres" which were rented to the government under the AAA crop reduction program.

The past year saw Texas farmers, in compliance with the Agricultural Conservation program, plant 1,776,876 acres to legumes. Stories of increased yields of crops which were planted to follow the legumes are being reported in large numbers by county agricultural agents.

SPEAKING OF HARVESTS

Four million dollars worth of peanuts! That's a lot of money to connect with the scornful "goober," but the 134,550,000 pounds of peanuts produced in Texas in 1935 are valued at that figure. The peanut crop is centered in Eastland, Brown and Comanche counties and branches into the East Texas and west cross timber belts.

NAME PLEASE?

Denton, Aug. 2.—The first telephone exchange was opened in Texas, August 21, 1879, at Galveston. Anyone who used the phone called by name not number. In 1883 the first long distance line was constructed between Galveston and Houston. Now, according to 1935 figures there are 1,135 exchanges over the state and 553,928 telephones.

A Modern "Atlantis" the largest man-made island in the world, has been constructed in San Francisco Bay for the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

Philadelphia, Aug. 2.—The mortgage situation is revealed as one of the most perplexing of the national problems confronting the Government, in an article on the Farm Credit Administration appearing in the current Saturday Evening Post.

"Through the Federal land banks and the Federal Mortgage Corporation the Government holds mortgages on approximately 832,000 farms, containing an estimated 114,000,000 acres of land. That is equal to about half the acreage given away during the seventy-three years the Homestead Act was in operation, the total amount of money owed by farm owners to the Government was $2,900,936,491, or about 40 per cent of the total farm mortgage indebtedness of the entire country.

FCA Has Foreclosed 40,000

"During the past twenty years, the Federal land banks have acquired approximately 80,000 farms by foreclosure. About half of these have been acquired during the past four years since the government set up its emergency agencies. Of the farms thus acquired, the Government, thus acquired, the Government outright 23,195 and was holding 7,723 more, pending the expiration of the redemption periods required by various state laws.

"The number of farms which the Government now owns, farms that it was taken away from the original owners by foreclosure, nearly equals the total number of farms in Massachusetts. They contain almost 5,000,000 acres of land, and that is more than the total acreage of all the farms in the whole state of Maine.

The Government Tried to Help

"The farm-mortgage situation, serious enough before the depression, became desperately so after that catastrophe occurred. Sixty per cent of the borrowers from the Federal land banks, which were established by an act of Congress in 1916 for the purpose of making it possible for farmers to borrow money on easier terms than were then obtainable, were delinquent."

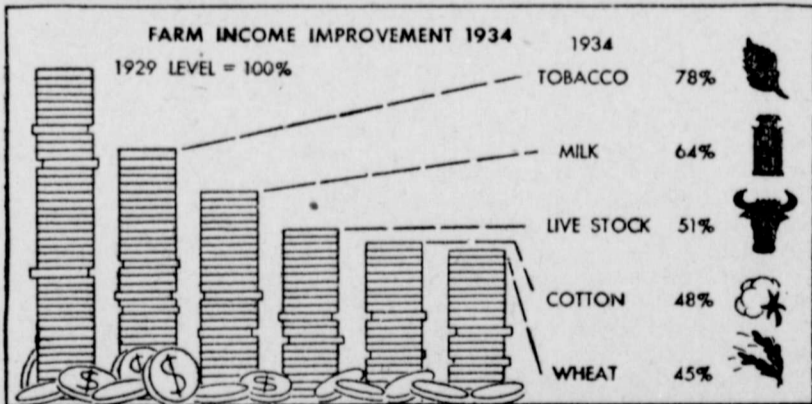

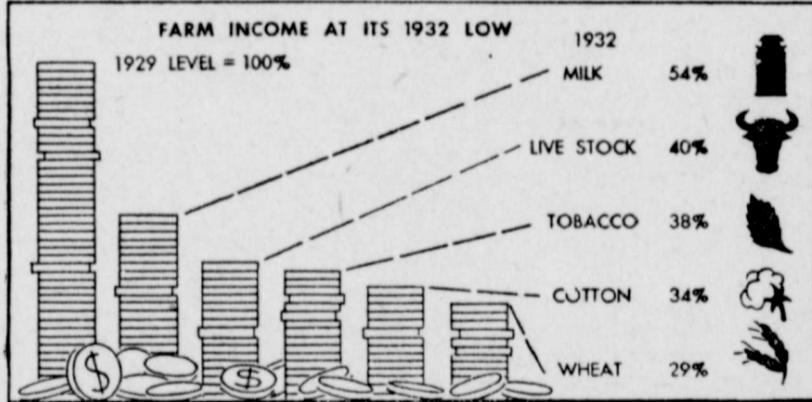

The Government first reduced interest rates. "In addition to this, the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation was created by Congress, and the Land Bank Commissioner, acting as its agent, was authorized to make loans, at five per cent interest, from the funds of this corporation on second mortgage security up to 75 per cent of the appraised value of the property. Sale of bonds to the amount of $2,000,000,000 was authorized."

Congress also provided for extension and reamortization of unpaid obligations and deferment of principal payments until July 11, 1938. "By the first of this year these interest reductions have cost the government $61,000,000. Deferments of principal payments had cost it $122,000,000." The next step was grouping together of all agricultural lending agencies into the Farm Credit Administration under the governorship of William I. Meyers.

MILK INCOME DEPENDABLE

THE FARMER'S INCOME

Milk Industry Foundation Chart

Milk proved a more dependable source of farm income during recent years than most major farm products, according to the Federal Trade Commission's recent agricultural income study.

During 1932 when gross farm income sagged to its lowest point, dairy farmers received 54 per cent as much for milk as in 1929. Farmers received only 40 per cent of the 1929 total for livestock, 38 per cent for tobacco, 34 per cent for cotton and 29 per cent for wheat.

By 1934 when gross farm income recovered substantially, milk was well ahead of other major farm products with a gross of 64 per cent. Livestock was 51 per cent and wheat 45 per cent. Only one non-food crop was higher—tobacco at 78 per cent of the 1929 figure. Cotton was 48 per cent of the pre-depression income.

From 1929 to 1934, the average income to the producer from milk held up better than any farm product reported.

BIT'S PHILOSOPHY
by DEAN E.V. WHITE

TEXAS STATE COLLEGE for Women

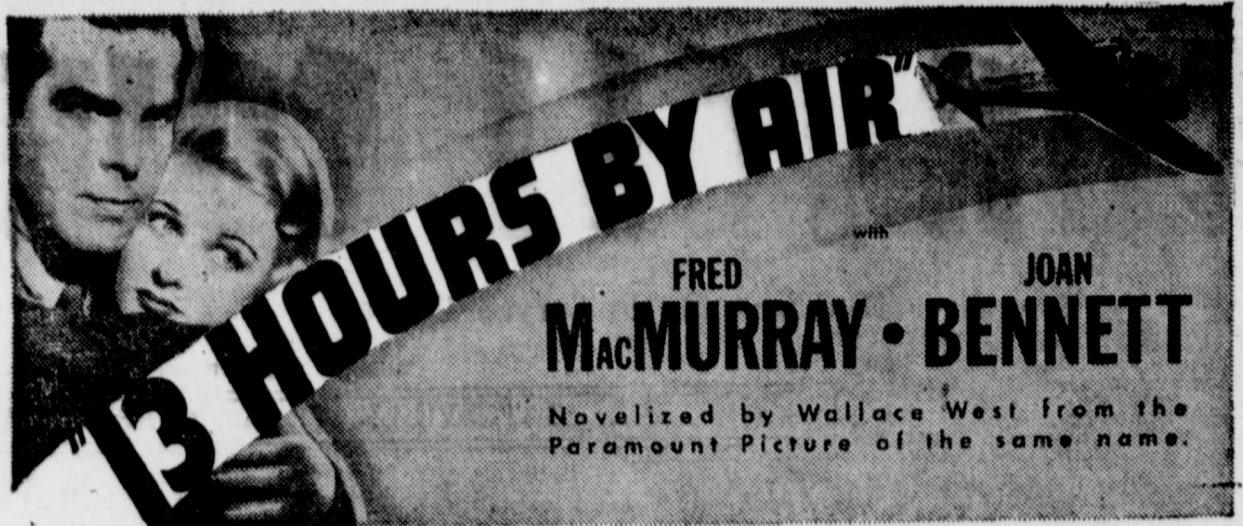

It is difficult to discern a spotless character in greasy clothes. Dead brain cells may cause foaming at the mouth.

The love of money is the root of all evil, the lack of it the seat of crime.

It pays to do many things you do not get paid for.

Don't grieve because others are not like you.

Talking about your enemies makes your friends wonder at you.

SYNOPSIS

Jack Gordon, crack western aviation air pilot, comes to New York on a vacation but is immediately called back to Salt Lake City to fly a ship to San Francisco. He balks at this but changes his mind when he sees pretty Felice Rollins board the westbound plane. Felice treats him coldly on the way to Chicago but there he saves her from the menacing attentions of a gun-toting foreigner named Stephani. Felice, then, becomes more chummy. For some reason, Stephani is interested in preventing Felice from reaching San Francisco. Offered a bribe by Stephani to land the ship before it reaches the Coast, Gordon refuses and gets under way in a howling storm. The storm gets worse and he is forced to look for an emergency landing field.

CHAPTER VIII.

"We're sitting down," said Jack a moment later as the clouds closed in and snow and sleet began to hammer on the windshield.

"Where?"

"That field to the left." He pushed the stick forward sharply. "That's no field. That's a bathmat."

"Well, it's gonna be a field from now on. Tell 'em we're landing." As Freddy crawled into the cabin, Gordon switched on the radio once more and announced, in clipped tones, "Gordon to Salt Lake. Mayday. . . Mayday. Landing strange field. Exact position unknown. Details later."

The air was full of swirling snow as the plane tipped forward and nosed down. Then it half-circled the field and turned into the wind for a landing. Finally Jack cut off the throttles. As he did so a Klaxon went off with a deafening roar and two red lights on the instrument board flashed on.

"The wheels," yelled Freddy. "We forgot to lower them." He tugged at a lever. The noise died away and the lights went out as the retractable landing gear dropped down. The plane side-slipped over trees surrounding the field as the passengers screamed. Sweat breaking out on his face, Jack kicked the ship out of its slip and started to step back on the wheel—literally feeling for the ground in the darkness. The plane settled—settled—hit the ground with a gentle bump and a hissing sound as the tires crunched into the snow. It taxied, and came to a stop, practically on the edge of the field.

"Well, m'lud here we are," gasped the pilot, mopping his dripping face and turning off the switches.

"Wherever 'here' is," sighed Freddy.

"Aw, this isn't bad." Jack peered through the window. "We can get out of here when the storm blows over."

"Yeah—three months from now—on snow shoes," was the glum reply. "But Boy, howdy! I gotta hand it to you—you sure put her down!"

The two pilots entered the cabin to find the passengers sitting in ominous silence. They were just recovering from a bad fright, except Stephani, who grinned in triumph.

"Thanks for saving me a lot of money," he said quietly to Jack.

"Everything's all right folks," said the other cheerfully. "The weather closed in on us and I thought it best to land and wait for it to clear."

"I suppose you had to land." Felice commented bitterly.

"You don't think I'd have plopped down in this cow corral unless I had to, do you?"

"Not even for five thousand dollars?" she demanded, thrusting out her pretty chin.

"You go take a running jump in the lake, sister," he answered savagely. Then, to Freddy: "Let's see what it looks like outside. Ann, have you got any groceries?"

"Plenty of tea and coffee and some stuff for sandwiches, that's all."

"Go easy—we may need 'em. Better close the ventilators and pass out blankets. Looks like we're in for a long winter evening."

He opened the door and climbed out with Freddy. Evarts looked sharply at Palmer, then came to a sudden decision and also went out.

"This don't look so hot," remarked Freddy as he and Gordon scuffed through the snow and otherwise studied the lay of the land.

"It's a cinch we won't get sunburned," the other agreed. "But we can get out of here in the morning if it clears."

"I'd like a word with you," Evarts interrupted. "I've got to

"Good idea," agreed Freddy. The three started off as Jack entered the plane and started to the cockpit to report to Salt Lake. Inside he found that Waldemar had slipped on the ear-phones and was gravely inspecting the microphone which had been completely smashed.

"Get out of here, youngster," commanded the pilot. Then, as he saw the damage which had been wrought: "What have you done to it?"

"It's busted," answered the boy calmly. "That guy Palmer came in while you were away and smashed it up proper."

Completely stunned by this disaster, Jack returned to the cabin and faced the passengers.

"I don't intend to conceal the facts from you," he began. "Our radio is out of commission, so we can't send for help. If we're

"He can't get away from you through this snow," said Jack as the three turned toward the plane. "He'd freeze to death. Has he got a gun? Evarts nodded. "And he won't mind using it," he said.

talk fast. You're a Federal employee—so am I." He took out a small leather case and flipped it open, not noticing that Palmer, who was watching from a window in the plane, seemed extraordinarily interested in what he was doing.

"Ever hear of a guy named Hales, alias Trasker?" inquired the "doctor" as he put away the case.

"You mean the fellow who held up those New Jersey banks and killed two policemen?"

"Yeah." Evarts nodded toward the plane. "Palmer—I think."

"Holy Cow," groaned Freddy. "You certainly meet nice people in this line of work."

"I was tailing him because we thought his partner was in Frisco, but that 'just died' message meant they pinched him in Brooklyn. I can hand-cuff Palmer now, but I don't want to take any chances. If he's Hales—and I'm practically certain he is—he's a killer and I don't want anyone to get hurt."

"He can't get away from you through this snow," said Jack as the three turned back toward the plane. "He'd freeze to death. Has he got a gun?"

"And he won't mind using it," Evarts nodded.

As they arrived at the cabin door Palmer opened it and jumped down.

"How about gathering some firewood and keeping warm," Evarts changed the subject. Then to Palmer: "Will you help?"

"Yeah," grunted the criminal, eyeing them covertly.

snowed in so we can't take off in the morning, we may be here several days."

"But we have to get to . . ." exclaimed Felice.

"That's what you think," he cut her off.

Returning to the cockpit he started the motors and set them idling to keep them from freezing. Stephani found him there.

"It all seems to have turned out for the best, hasn't it?" he gloated. "Your conscience is clear and I'm in $5,000. Glad it turned out this way—hated to see that girl making a fool out of you."

"What you mean?" Jack's fists clenched.

"Very gallant of you to try and get her through on time—under the circumstances. I don't suppose she told you that she was rushing to San Francisco to elope to China with another man who's on the Overland with her sister Katharine?"

As he finished there was the sound of a pistol shot in the darkness outside. It was followed almost instantly by another. Jack leaped to his feet, dashed through the cabin and out the door. A moment later he made out the figure of someone stumbling toward him. It fell, then staggered to its feet again.

"What happened," gasped the pilot as he recognized Evarts. "Is it bad?" He aided the government man to reach the plane.

"I don't know. Hurts like blazes." Evarts was badly wounded.

"Where's Freddy?"

"Palmer shot him through the head."

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hamilton of Flat are announcing the arrival of a fine baby boy born last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Foster and son Claude of Wingate have been visiting in the N. E. Foster and W. M. Gamblin homes this week.

Mrs. Mattie Bailey and daughter, Virginia, are visiting the former's daughter, Mrs. J. B. Gilbreath and family at Valley Mills.

Washington, D. C.—Practically every day during the next two years, members of the Seventy-fifth Congress will have to read in the newspapers and hear over the radio and at banquet tables that they are demagogue, loafers, chronic exhibitionists, and "what nots." Other members of previous Congresses have heard the same thing for years! It is part of the job to stand up and be shot at!

The fact is, however, that your legislator's life is no sinecure. The job may not require statesmanship, intellectuality or moral grandeur, but there is plenty of hard work attached to it. Between acting as ambassador for his district, counseling and assisting thousands of constituents in search of favors or services, the much maligned Congressman must keep an eye on legitimate political issues and steer a safe course through the factional wars within his own party which constantly arise in Congress—or be destroyed within a short time. In the last analysis it is simply a matter of the survival of the fittest!

There is one fellow in Washington who leans to the theory that "geniuses" are terrible poker players. The fellow's name is Theror Bamberger. His fortune, however, small as it may be, has been built out of some of the finest artistic talent in the country—and especially New York City intelligentsia: Notably the Heywood Brown and Marc Connelly set. We may yet see a poker war declared between New York and Washington.

Newspapermen covering Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr.'s bi-weekly conferences, are often tempted to inject a tremulous query as to the number of white, button-down-collar shirts Mr. Morgenthau owns. He must have dozens of them. Morning or afternoon, day in and day out he wears the same style shirts—always immaculate, brand new in looks and without a single crease.

Not so long ago an applicant for a government job called at the office of Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas. "I'm from Arkansas," he proclaimed, with emphasis on the middle syllable and the last "s," and I'd like some help in landing the job." That particular fellow, unless he reads this, is probably wondering at the lack of help he received. The Senator's secretary, to whom the call of help was made, surmised that if one didn't know the native pronunciation, his claim of residence was very doubtful.

Terrapin—one of President Roosevelt's favorite dishes, has appeared at several dinners the President has eaten outside the White House this season. Unlike the one dish he eats with relish week after week—scrambled eggs—he has quietly released the hint that terrapin will be out from now on. Too much repetition of that dish has caused the rebellion. The President is not a finicky eater, but like most of us he likes variety.

So many requests have reached this desk for the scrambled eggs recipe that we have decided to print it as given to us by the American Society of Gourmets, whose chefs tested it—and pronounced it perfect: "Melt two squares of butter in a chafing dish; Add two tablespoonfuls of cream; break three eggs into the dish and stir with a wooden spoon until cooked. Serve piping hot after seasoning with salt and pepper."—Now that's off our mind!

Mrs. A. G. Tipton, Mrs. R. E. Kiger Sr. and daughter, Miss Annie Lee, have returned from a delightful visit with relatives in San Antonio.

Roger Miller, local agent for Gulf refining Company, and R. B. Miller and son, Bob of Hamilton, attended a Gulf Sales meeting in Fort Worth Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Alford and daughter Mildred, spent Friday night in Valley Mills where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Alexander.

Mrs. B. V. Perkins and daughter, Ewtole, of Ada, Oklahoma, have been visiting her mother, Mrs. J. W. Boyd at Ireland and the James Boyd's at Pearl.

John Michael and daughters, Misses Lillian and Robbie of Clovis, New Mexico, are visiting his mother and sisters in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ward and daughter Edna Ruth of Waco have been visiting her mother, Mrs. L. A. Pennington and other relatives in this city. Earl Ward of Waco was here Thursday.

Denton, Aug. 2.—The millinery world is marshaling its forces for an overwhelming uprising. Up go crowns, up go brims, and up goes milady's head when she sees how flattering are the newest, most insane creations.

Even berets will reach skyward this fall, and flighty bows will ornament those models with ordinary crowns. Inspiration for the new model comes from the Paris Exposition, where representatives of every nationality are adding their individual ideas to the fashion whirl.

With black as definitely settled as "The" color for this fall, hats are being presented in sleek, pliable black felt, in drapable duvetynes and in antelope, which will probably lead as favorite. Gayer numbers set off their blackness with rickly embroidered bands, with smart feathers, with flat bits of fur and with printed ribbons.

Students at Texas State College for Women waxed most enthusiastic over a little bonnet affair with a high, flung crown and a short visor brim which is pushed back far enough to show bangs or a part. Another model features a close-fitting crown with a flaring cuff of stitched black felt shooting straight up into the air.

Hats to be worn with suits and town dresses are set far back on the head or tip well to one side. Veils will attend any occasion again, both in little flirtatious wisps and in big circles for the toques and turbans.

The beret will be a mainstay of the season, only the new models are hardly to be recognized as berets. One is immensely high in front, climbing straight from the forehead, then sliding down in back to cling to the head with a shallow crown. The Uprising is on.

The annual Hampton reunion was held last Sunday, July 25 at Cravy Crossing on the Evans-Gatesville Highway. The members of this notable family of Coryell and Hamilton county are descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hampton, well remembered by the older folk in this section of the state. They are one of the largest families in this section of the State. And wherever a Hampton is located they are always found to be fine, honorable, useful citizens conscientious, kind and religious.

A picnic spread at the noon hour served 165 of the kindred and friends 35 coming later to meet and greet each other. Outstanding individuals present were

Swimming Time

City or country, large town or small, children became "swimming minded" with the first warm days of summer. And boys, in particular, are likely to take chances because they can't resist the temptation: immaturity does not insure exercise of caution. Each summer I write on this topic because each year I see the statistics on accidental drownings. Those telling the tragic story of the romantic "ole swimming hole," are especially prominent.

What can be done? Plenty. In the first place survey the swimming opportunities of the community. Which of these are adequately protected? Which are not? Which should be closed? Which are unsafe because of swift currents or eddies, hidden rocks, glass and tin cans on the bottom, sudden depths, or tall grass?

Some of these conditions can be corrected by county or municipality departments. Where there is not possible, local organizations should take over the job. It is a worthy community enterprise.

The matter of adult supervision is of great importance. Trained lifeguards should be provided. When they are off duty, the beach or pool should be closed. Frequently, a volunteer corps serves the purpose just as well.

The point is—do something. Thorough preparedness is the answer as well as the responsibility of any civic-conscious community.

NEW LIFE INJECTED INTO PAN AMERICAN SHOWS

Dallas, July 31. New faces, new acts and outstanding stage and radio personalities of America take their places in a revised edition of the Pan American Exposition's Casino this week. Lanny Ross, star of the Showboat radio program and repeatedly voted the favorite tenor singer of the airways will join the cast with songs and a dramatic role. Phil Harris, who is practically an adopted son of Texas, brings his orchestra here from Hollywood for a six week's engagement playing for the dancing.

Charlotte Arren and Johnny Broderick who have just completed long runs in London, Paris Berlin and Dublin with their hilarious "Opera in the Rough" arrived in Dallas several days ago for a rest and visit at the Pan American Exposition before joining the Casino. The four Kraddocks, pint sized French fun makers who combine the strength of Missouri mules with the agility of Mexican lions are other new entertainers.

Ross, the Harris crew, Arren and Broderick and the Kraddocks become added figures in a revue that is the talk of Texas in the six weeks of its run since June 12. Lanny Ross will sing some of the Casino melodies including "Don't You or Don't You Care". Georges and Jalna, graceful dancers are held over for a second extension of time. All the haunting beauty of color, form and melody that characterizes the Pan American Casino remains including the 48 precision girls chorus and ballet, the singing Gauchos and the never to be forgotten climax in color and sound, - Ravel's Bolero.

U. S. Holds Mortgage—Leniency Did Not Pay

But in 1935 it became evident to the FCA officials that extreme leniency was no longer a safe policy. There were several cases, particularly in the drought area, in which it was impossible for htrcken farmers to keep up their payments. On the other hand, "Investigations revealed the fact that in a great number of cases delinquent mortgagors had plenty of funds to pay their installment but were using the money for other purposes."

As a result the FCA has increased the number of foreclosures, but "This less lenient attitude with farmers who could afford to pay has resulted in only slightly better collections from this class of mortgagors." At the same time the case of the involuntary delinquent is even more difficult. I most parts of the drought area one farmer out of five, and sometimes more, is behind in payments. It has proved otherwise to carry owners beyond the point where these delinquencies have eaten up their equities in their farm.

No Solution in Sight

On the other hand, "Where the Government has been able to sell the farms it has acquired—it has been forced to sell them at prices averaging about thirty per cent less than its original loan."

"To carry these mortgagors at such a loss imposes a hardship on all the other land bank borrowers and jeopardizes their interests."

Meanwhile most of the farmers on the 832,000 farms fore-gaged to the Government are delinquent. There is no telling how many more properties will have to be foreclosed and as yet no one has decided what can be done about it.
