R. L. Powell, a Long Time Resident Passes Suddenly at Work

Wednesday morning, September 29, death suddenly claimed the life of R. L. Powell, as he was working at a neighbor's house. Although Mr. Powell had been in bad health for the past two years, he continued to be active in his work as a painter and carpenter.

Mr. Powell was born in the Carden community, in April in 1868. In 1890 he was married to Miss Pearl Tony, also of near Gatesville; during the early part of their married life they moved to the city, and since then have made their home here. To this happy union were born five children; one son preceding his father in death in 1930.

After joining the Methodist Church at the age of 16, Mr. Powell was a faithful member, living a very noble and gracious life.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning at 10:00 o'clock at the First Methodist Church with Rev. M. M. Chunn conducting the rites. The body was carried to the City Cemetery for burial. Pall bearers were, Jim Franks, E. G. Beerwinkle, Roy Pennington, Rufe Brown, Louie Powell, and Bob Saunders.

Mr. Powell is survived by his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Reed Powell of this city and Miss Imogene Powell of Ft. Worth; two sons, Gladstone of Cisco, and Gordon Powell of Greenville; one daughter in law, Mrs. Elsie Powell of Waco; one brother, Tom Powell of Colorado City; three sisters; Mrs. Gus Jones of Carden, Mrs. Pheobe Cranfill of Gayle, and Mrs. Ollie Hedgcock, of Clarendon the latter two being unable to attend the funeral. Mr. Powell has five grand children and one great grand child.

Among the out of town present were: Miss Maxine Cole of Sweetwater; Mrs. Mable Schley of Big Springs; Mr. and Mrs. Otha Jones and family of Waco and Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Mayhew of Panhandle and Mrs. K. Rock of Brownwood.

MRS. WILL IRVINE OF TOPSEY REPRESENTS CO. IN SANTONE

Mrs. Will Irvine of Topsey is Coryell County's sole representative at the State Home Demonstration Council Association meeting at San Antonio, which ended a three-day session yesterday.

Mrs. Irvine represented the County H. D. Council and, according to Miss Sidney Gale Gibson, this is the year for election of officers for the association.

Mrs. Irvine is to be congratulated on representing the entire county at this important gathering.

THE GROVE SCHOOL NOW CLOSES AT 3 P. M.; KIDS "PICK"

The Grove school, which started September 27, for the time being is closing at 3 p. m. in order that the school children may help "get the cotton out."

The PTA will have its first regular meeting Friday, October 1st, at which time the year's program will be planned and they will decide on the objectives toward which they will work. This in addition to a short program.

School entertainment last week included the Carr Quartette, which stopped by the school Tuesday enroute to Flat and gave a few numbers.

Full house cleaning has been the order of the day, and the play periods have been spent in cleaning the weeds off the school yard.

PASTURE TOUR CONDUCTED BY SPECIALIST

Tuesday, October 5, a pasture tour will be conducted under the leadership of R. R. Lancaster, Pasture Specialist from the Texas Extension Service, M. R. Bentley, Agricultural Engineer, M. T. Payne, District Agent and County Agent Guy Powell.

Paramount on a tour of this nature is the study which will be made of practices which are being used on representative ranches for improving pastures of this section. The tour starts from the County Agent's office at 9 a. m. on that date, and those who care to make the trip are asked to be there at that hour.

Stops will be made at the Foite ranch near Turnersville, Liljeblad ranch, Ames, A. T.

Quickall farm, Ames.

After lunch, inspection will be made of native grass meadow 8 miles from Gatesville on the Killeen road, and the result of 7 years' pasture improvement, on the C. C. (Lum) Hubbard farm.

Parties who wish may join the tour at any of the locations.

GATESVILLE CONTRACTS DAVIDSON SCHOOL

With the approval of the Davidson school trustees, the Davidson school becomes a part of the Gatesville Public School system this week. Mr and Mrs. L. D. Young who have been employed to teach there this year will teach in Gatesville. Mr. Young will teach in the High school and will also be Physical Education instructor. Mrs. Young will teach in the elementary department, taking charge of half of the second grade.

Supt. Brooks states that the Mound bus will pick up the students of Davidson school. This indeed is a fortunate move for the Davidson school students, in that they will have a wider range of courses to choose from. It also gives them a better opportunity for extra curricula activities.

The trustees of Davidson who approved the contract are W. T. Scott, J. T. Davidson, and Sam Jones.

OWNER OF TEXTILE MILL SPEAKER AT OGLESBY ON COTTON

Walter Dillard, owner and operator of the New Braunfels Textile Mill at New Braunfels, will discuss the type of cotton which he, as a manufacturer, must have to produce cloth, at Oglesby Monday, October 4, at 2 o'clock p. m.

Cotton producers are urged to be on hand as Mr. Dillard will give the manufacturer's side of the cotton situation in Texas and tell how farmers of this section may increase their grade, staple, and seed in general with a view of improving it in the manufacturer's eye so that it will draw a premium in price.

COTTON NEARLY TWO GRAND AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

No matter what the price, according to W. R. Goodson, Special Agent of the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Census of Copperas Cove the reports of September 27 shows that there were 5,592 bales of cotton ginned in Coryell county from the crop of 1937 prior to Sept. 18 as compared with but 3,983 bales ginned to the same date of the 1936 crop.

Well, even if it is low, 2,000 more than last year, at 8 cents or less, it would mean (our figures at 500 lbs each) the small sum of a paltry $80,000, which ain't bad, ain't bad if we had it.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Morton and daughter, Margaret Ann, visited Ballinger Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Morton returned Wednesday, but Margaret Ann remained at the home of her uncle, and began school at Ballinger Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McGilvray and family moved this week from their home on the Georgetown road to Finimore Street in this city. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Britton of Pilsbake will live in the McGilvray's former home.

LIONS ROYALLY FETED BY ATHLETIC ASSN. OF COPPERAS COVE

About one hundred people were present Tuesday night for the program and supper put on by the Lions Club in the Copperas Cove school auditorium, when they were guests of the Copperas Cove Athletic Association.

Visitors from Gatesville were welcomed at the school by a group of Copperas Cove citizens, including Mayor Teinert, Prof. J. C. Culwell, Louis Behrens, Mr. Mickan, and others.

On the program, songs were led by Rev. M. M. Chunn, and introduction of the Copperas Cove people was by Mayor Teinert, and Guy Powell introduced the Gatesville folks.

Following the delicious supper, dinner, or luncheon, as you like, the entertained and entertainers went to the school auditorium, where the five-piece string band, composed of Copperas Cove boys entertained with two violins, two guitars and a cello.

Following this, with Ira Swindall as the Preacher, Eloise Cook the bride, C. H. Wallace Jr. the groom, Skeet Shepherd best man, Francis Bron bridesmaid, and Cotton Davis as the "Papa" a mock wedding was given. Miss Orpa Mayo playing the wedding music.

Rev. M. M. Chunn then made a talk on Lionism, and for a closing number the group sang "The Eyes of Texas."

Howard Franks was chairman of the program committee. Approximately twenty-five people attended from Gatesville, and they were entertained by about 75 Copperas Cove folks.

Plates prepared by the Copperas Cove Athletic Association and the proceeds went to the fund of that committee.

Pure Food Show at Turnersville Holds Spotlight for Oct. 7-9

Turnersville will be the focal point for October 7, 8, and 9 when the First Methodist Church of that city, sponsors the annual Pure Food Show, evenings only, which will feature an interesting program for each performance.

The show will be held in the tabernacle and there will be displays and booths by merchants from Turnersville and other neighboring towns and cities.

Last year's show proved a drawing card of no small note and an even larger crowd is expected nightly for the 1937 show.

Other details of the show have not been made public and only this brief announcement came to the News Wednesday afternoon.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD STORY TELLING

It's the story-telling picture that carries real human interest appeal.

ALMOST all of us have had the experience of calling on friends who persist in getting out their collection of snapshots and parading them before the eyes of their denseless guests.

Now please bear in mind that I harbor no thoughts of this practice being a breach of social etiquette. On the contrary, I am for it. But—there are many kinds and classes of snapshots. There are, for instance, the snapshots that are very good as far as exposure, sharpness and composition are concerned but with practically no human interest appeal. We can class these as record pictures.

Have you ever heard of story-telling snapshots? I'll wager that many of you haven't. For that reason this week's Snapshot Guild will be devoted to story-telling pictures.

From the cradle to the grave we rear stories—and like them. All through our lives we retain our interest in story-illustrations. It is this appeal that takes us to the movies and causes us to look through the pages of daily newspapers and magazines for pictures that tell stories of human activities.

When it comes to taking snapshots, however, so many seem to forget about story-telling subjects. They pick up their cameras and just shoot. There is a better way to take pictures.

There is a vast difference between a close-up view of a person and a story-telling picture. A close-up—whether head-and-shoulder, three-quarters or full length—is more or less a record picture to show the image of the person photographed, but it does not tell a story. You may take a picture of Peggy standing looking at the camera. A fine picture, no doubt, bearing all the earmarks of good photography properly exposed and a good example of composition, but still a record-type snapshot. Let Peggy be pictured raking the leaves and you have a story-telling human interest snapshot. Today as you're glancing through the newspaper, notice for yourself whether record pictures of people looking at the camera or story-telling pictures of people doing things interest and please you more.

Before taking a picture give it a little thought and if it is to be a snapshot of an individual, have him doing something and not staring at the camera, simulating a victim of amnesia.

I don't want to seem to lecture but I do want to impress upon you the importance of giving serious thought to your picture taking. If you will keep this story-telling idea foremost in your mind when you take your next pictures, I am sure they will be more interesting to you and your friends.

WITH THE

SHIP OF STATE

Washington, D. C.—Before the smoke of battle clears away, the fray between the Administration and Congress over the Supreme Court issue is likely to take rank with the fiercest struggles ever waged by American Presidents. Politicians believe that Mr. Roosevelt has accepted at its face value Jim Farley's assurance that "we'll have the votes." Many legislators must face the guns in renomination primaries, shortly and nobody doubts that the Postmaster General will crack the whip relentlessly in order to bring wavering legislators into line. Should one or two more of the "conservative" Justices resign shortly, it is our guess that Mr. Roosevelt will accept a compromise. The President aims to win the decisive battle of the New Deal, which must be fought in the next year or two, and two additional Justices on the Supreme Court bench can assure success as well as six.

Interior Secretary Ickes has lost another bout with the General Accounting Office over the purchase of an automobile. Acting Controller General Elliott forced the purchase of a car for the Geological Survey that the Interior Department did not want, because it was $1.10 cheaper than the one desired. The economy drive is on in earnest!

Once more Washington has become the mecca of international diplomacy. European Powers have ceased sending stuffed skirt diplomats to the banks of the Potomac. Ambassadors, who have crossed the ocean lately are young men, who if required will be capable to propagandize effectively.

It is often said in European capitals that "war or peace depends on the United States." What London and Paris really mean is "We can win the next war if America sides with us." Berlin and Rome say "We can lick our opponents if America will only stay out."

The Germans have replaced Nazi-winded Dr. Luther with young Dr. Hans Dieckhoff, a career man who served the Weimer republic as well as he tries to serve the Nazi dictatorship now. He is without a doubt the ablest diplomat Germany has at present. Furthermore, Dieckhoff, who did not participate in the Nazi struggle for power and considers himself a Nazi simply because his country is Nazified, understands that the majority in this country do not like his country's present system of government. He is the one man capable of doing something to improve relations between both countries.

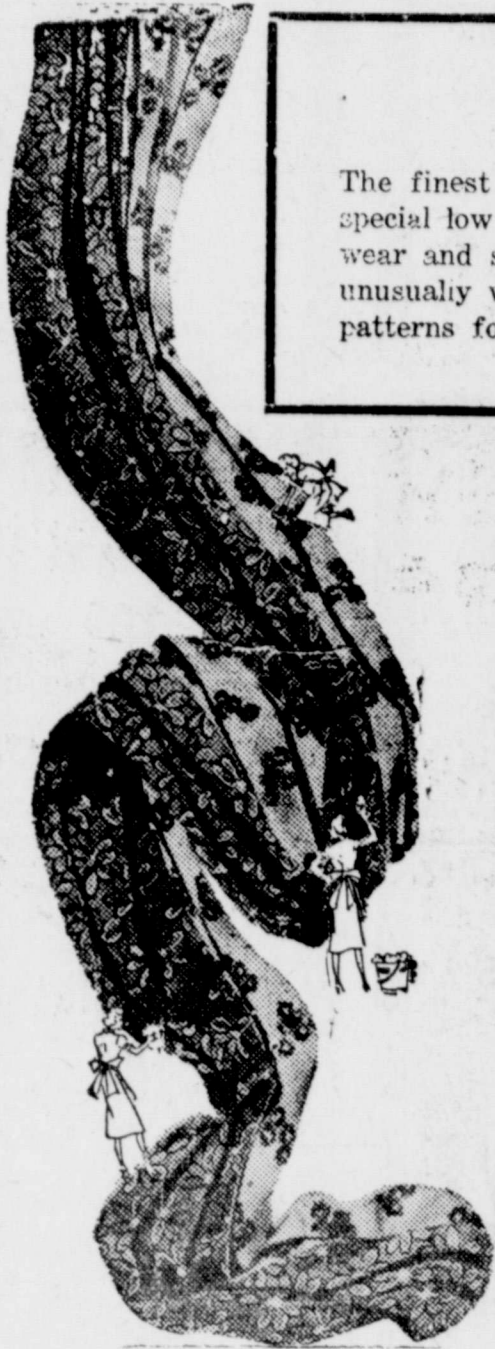

The French also have replaced an old school diplomat, Andre de Laboulaye, with young George Bounet. The new Ambassador has none of the Olympian aloofness of the old school socialite diplomats. He is a frank, unobtrusive man of 45, remarkably well informed on international affairs and enjoys the friendship of more members of Congress, Government officials and newspapermen than any of the other new arrivals. Bounet, unlike former Ambassadors who never condescended to get into an outspoken argument with politicians or reporters, will, figuratively speaking, take off his coat and give as much as he takes.

The days of hypocritical and guarded speeches by diplomats seem to be over. The new school Ambassador's job is to expose the points of view of his government honestly and dispassionately—a welcome change!

LONE STAR GAS OFFERS PRIZES IN PHOTO CONTEST

A novel contest for amateur photographers which reverse the usual order of such competition is announced by Lone Star Gas System in an advertisement appearing in this issue. Instead of asking the contestant to buy something or write an essay about a product, the Gas company announces that it wants to buy from its customers one hundred good photographs of gas heating and equipment.

"There is nothing to buy, no letters to write, in this contest," the company explains in announcing the new contest which opens October 11 and will close December 18. "Your gas company and national manufacturers of heating appliances wish to obtain snapshots illustrating various types of gas heating equipment used in the homes of this section. We need 100 photos from our gas customers that can be used to illustrate gas heating appliances. We want to buy these 100 photos from our gas customers and will pay $10 each for the best 10 submitted each week during the ten week contest. At the end of the ten week period grand prizes of $100, $75, $50, and $25 will be awarded for the four best entries submitted during the contest."

In explaining the reason for the contest, company officials said: "One of the most difficult things to obtain is an interior view showing gas heating equipment in natural home surroundings. We have definite need for such pictures, for experience has shown us that it is difficult for customers who wish to buy gas heating equipment to visualize how the appliance they are considering will look in their home. It will heat comfortably, but will it harmonize with other furniture, they wonder? The photos we hope to obtain through this contest will be of great assistance in helping them decide just which type of heating appliances will look best in their own home."

The contest is open to anyone living in a home supplied by any of the Lone Star Gas System with the exception of professional photographers or others who may take pictures for commercial purposes, and Lone Star Gas System employees and their immediate families. Companies participating in the contest include Lone Star Gas Company, The Dallas Gas Company, County Gas Company, Texas Cities Gas Company, and Community Natural Gas Company. Entries may be submitted at the nearest gas company or mailed directly to Lone Star Gas System Advertising Department, 305 South Harwood, Dallas. Folders giving complete information on the contest and showing sample pictures similar to those desired may be obtained from the gas company.

Living animals with no offensive odor can now be sent by air express, providing they will not require food or water in transit.

The head of the Statue of Liberty was shown at the Paris exposition in 1878, before the statue had been assembled.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

YOU hear all kinds of tales about things that are supposed to happen on the movie lot. Most of them never happen, of course. But they're good atmosphere, just like the Ford jokes used to be. They tell about a shooting scene that some director was rehearsing. He was a great guy to have everything realistic, the way he thought things really are. But he hardly ever got anything right, because he didn't know, somehow, what things really look like.

Well, the actor that was to do the shooting pulled his pistol and fired, and the other fellow toppled over on his face.

"Terrible!" yells the director. "Don't that man know nothing about how a guy falls when he's shot? I never seen anything so dumb. Get up and do that over again, the way fellows really do it when they're shot."

"He can't get up," says the shooter. "I done forget and shot him dead with a loaded gun!"

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

AUTUMN SNAPSHOTTING

WE MAY sing of the flowers that bloom in the spring—tra-la—but a song cannot adequately describe the wonderful colorings that Mother Nature bestows upon the trees and shrubs in the fall. The woods are ablaze with color and new colorful fall flowers appear. Lakes, rivers, and the well known babbling brook seems to reflect these bright colors.

Now, let's consider the type of film to use for fall colors. For example, suppose you are taking a picture of a bed of fall flowers—some deep orange or red and others dark blue. Ordinary film, not the chrome type, would yield a print in which the brighter colored flowers would appear darker than the blue ones, though to the eye the orange and red flowers appeared lighter. It would not, in other words, give true color brightness values in black and white print. However, with what is known as panchromatic film the true tonal values in monochrome rendering will be obtained.

Renderings of color and cloud effects are further improved by the use of proper color filters with any type film, including the chrome and panchromatic.

A filter is a specially prepared disc of colored gelatine, between glass, which is slipped over the camera lens. Its function is to hold back certain rays of light and let others pass through. Although there are several kinds, I believe the beginner who has never used a filter might choose between the two most popularly used, or better yet, have both to use when necessary to improve the quality and artistic appearance of the snapshot.

One of these filters is known as the K-2. When using the K-2 filter with chrome type film, it is necessary to increase the exposure over that which you would give without the filter about 2 1/2 times. With supersensitive panchromatic film the exposure with a K-2 filter need be increased but two times.

The other filter is used largely to photograph clouds in a landscape with NO increase in exposure time. This is called a Sky Filter, one half of which is yellow, and the other half clear. The reason why this filter can record both clouds and landscape without requiring any increase in exposure is that the sky is photographed through the yellow part of the filter while the landscape is photographed through the part which is not colored. The yellow part of the filter holds back the blue of the sky somewhat and gives the white clouds more chance to record their real beauty.

Your nearest dealer in photographic materials will gladly give you more information regarding the use of color filters and I am sure that when you realize the great difference the use of a filter makes in the appearance of your snapshots, you will become a confirmed user of this inexpensive accessory.

Farewell Social Held Wednesday For Mortons

About three hundred people, which included representatives from all the local churches, gathered at the adult auditorium Wednesday evening for a farewell social in honor of Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Morton, who will leave for Ballinger the latter part of this week.

In the center of the filled auditorium, which was decorated with many lovely flowers donated by Mrs. J. B. Graves, was a long table centered with a lovely vase of roses, and on the stage floor was a huge basket of queen's wreaths.

The enjoyable program, headed by Edgar Franks, Chairman of the Board of Deacons was opened with a hymn, "Standing on the Promises". Short talks were delivered by Dan E. Graves and Horace K. Jackson, the latter in the form of a tribute to the pastor and his wife. Mrs. A. D. Honeycutt read a very lovely tribute, a poem which she composed herself. Miss Nona Ditz presented two clever readings, and was followed by an Edgar A. Guest Poem by Miss Anita Lowrey. An Orchestra, composed of musicians from the different churches with Miss Oja Mae Parks at the piano, added to the entertainment, and a trumbone solo, entitled "The End of a Perfect Day" was presented by C. P. Bellamy. The climax of the evening was the presentation of a large lovely rug to the Mortons from the Baptist.

Refreshments, consisting of a fruit drink and cookies were served to the large crowd.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

CHILDREN COLLECT THINGS

I have just returned from Atlantic City where I was in charge of a public school exhibit at the convention of the American Dental Association.

One unit of my display certainly made a hit with the delegates. Unfailingly, they looked, stopped to explain, then to ask questions. What they saw was as fine an illustration of modern education as I have ever seen.

It seems the teacher was developing a unit on care of the teeth. One day a pupil brought a decayed tooth to school. Then the fun started. And there came teeth, whole jaws and even skulls, originally belonging to a dog, cat, horse, hog, coon, possum, halibut and shark.

The collection was well organized, with the facts about each item on a card written by the pupil-donors. It was put in a box with a glass cover and loaned to me to show the visiting dentists from all over the United States.

Now for the best part. It was a one-room rural school, having only the first five grade. From the teacher I learned that enthusiasm for dental health then reached the peak because of the novelty exhibit. Nothing else could have served the purpose quite as well. Milk, fruits, vegetables, going to the dentist, use of the toothbrush and so on were discussed with new interest, because of this central motivating force—the museum of teeth.

Construction of World's Fair Palaces and Towers is speeding ahead on Treasure Island, San Francisco Bay site of the 1939 Golden Gate International Fair.

VINES POINTS OUT TWO TENNIS "MUSTS"

"TWO things make a bang-up tennis player," says Ellsworth Vines, brilliant court star. "The fun he has and the condition of his muscles." To his program for keeping muscles and interest in top form Vines attributes the fact that in last winter's tour of exhibition matches with England's ace, he won 32 to 29 matches.

"In professional tennis," he says, "I have to be in fighting form every match. There's only one way to do it—through keeping up that great old amateur spirit of doing the thing for the fun of it."

Vines lays his day's ground work before ten o'clock. "I get up at six-thirty, play a stiff set for nothing but the sheer fun you get out of using your muscles hard in the sharp early morning air. Then I come in, take a brisk shower and rub-down and finish up with a hearty rib-sticking breakfast with emphasis on cereal, eggs, milk, bacon, biscuits, food with real muscle making value."

This regime keeps him in A-1 physical condition and it frons any quirk out of his stroke early in the day.

THERE was a fellow at a lawyer's office complaining that he felt awful low. He was one of the lawyer's customers, so the lawyer listened to him.

"Why, Mr. Wise, that ain't nothing but depression," says the lawyer. "I was that way last week. I got the best little old remedy in the world for it. I went right home and pretended I was sick and got my wife all excited about my health, and she petted me and kissed me and put an ice bag on my head and fussed over me, and I felt fine. Just the best kind of treatment for us babies that think we're grown up."

"By golly, you're right, I think," says the customer. "I'll try it. Where can I find your wife this afternoon?"

The engineers are the unsung heroes of the broadcasts of Southwest Conference football games sponsored by the Humble Oil & Refining Company. They attend more football games in a season than most dyed-in-the-wool football fans, but they rarely see one. SOCK HIT SONGS IN NEW MUSICAL FILM

Al Dublin and Hairy Warren famed movie songsmiths, started working as a team on "42nd Street" and have written over 100 movie song hits since, for all of the "Gold Diggers" musicals, musicals among others.

Portly Al Dublin was born in Philadelphia and once tended bar. When he was started in Tin Pan Alley he would sell ordinary songs for a few dollars and then write English lyrics for such famous nationality tunes as "Dark Eyes", "La Golondrina", etc.

Then he clicked and became a mainstay in Tin Pan Alley. He was in on the first musical era in pictures (remember his "Tiptoe Through the Tulips" and "Painting the Clouds with Sunshine"?)

Music man Harry Warren was born in Brooklyn. He played piano in a Coney Island cafe. He gravitated to "Song Street", and worked there as a "plugger" particularly on his own songs.

He too, has written hundreds of songs since his harpsicords hammering at Coney Island. Erceaway shows claimed him eventually and he turned out revue numbers galore among them. ("You're My Everything", and "Wouldja Like to take A Walk?")

When Warners bought "42nd Street" they teamed the two writers for the first time. The rest is history, as far as Dublin and Warren and musical movies are concerned. During one year, 1935 their songs were played more than any others on the radio. They are attached to the Warner studio staff on regular contract.

Their biggest assignment to date was writing songs for "The Singing Marine" which comes to the Regal Theatre on Saturday Nite 10:30 also Sunday and Monday.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

OCTOBER

3 to 9

BUILDING TO BURN

The first five minutes of a fire are more important than the next five hours.

T. Alfred Fleming, of the National Board Fire Underwriters, quotes a number of instances of fires which became uncontrollable within an incredible short time after their discovery. For example, a clothing factory in an Eastern city took fire at 2:30. By 2:35 the building was such an inferno that firemen could not endure the radiated heat across the street and 35 factory employes had already been cremated.

The main remedy for this condition is safer construction. It is much cheaper to fight a fire at the architectural drawing board than at the hydrant. But safer construction cannot be achieved until building codes in towns, large and small, are revised and modernized. Not long ago a review was made of the building codes in 281 municipalities containing 81 per cent of the population of the state. An alarming proportion of these codes were found to be inadequate and out of date.

New discoveries bring new hazards. Air-conditioning, for example, breeds fire hazards not provided for in the codes of 99 out of 100 cities, according to Mr. Fleming. A truly adequate building code must cover such contingencies as this. Improper ventilating systems are another prime cause of fires. In recent years there have been a score or more of total loss fires in schools where ventilating systems were completely responsible.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK, which begins October 3, should inspire every community to scientifically examine its code in the light of needed revision—and if it has no code, to start preparing one. Don't build to burn.

FIRST PASSENGER TO LEAVE "PAN" TRAIN AT BETHLEHEM

The following item recently appeared in the Clarksville Star, Clarksville, Tennessee:

An interesting visitor to the St. Bethlehem community is Miss Jessie Faunt Le Roy of Gatesville, Texas, who is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Eddie Slaughter, and her aunt, Mrs. Donna Inez Jacobs. The Faunt Le Rofs of Gatesville are great travelers and from their home town Gatesville, and nearby city of Waco, are prejudiced in favor of the Cotton Belt Railroad and have always used it in their many peregrinations. A sister of Miss Jessie has made 18 trips on this road and Miss Jessie's record is not far behind. On the occasion of this trip, Miss Faunt Le Roy was puzzled at the unusual attention showered upon her. The use of Pullman and observation car was tendered her as a courtesy. Further, each time there was a change of conductors her ticket was scrutinized most meticulously. Finally, her curiosity being aroused, she asked the wherefore of the repeated unusual performance and was answered with "Orders from Headquarters, Madame."

Reaching Clarksville on the Pan, she was requested to retain her seat and when the flyer reached St. Bethlehem it rolled to an easy stop and Miss Faunt Le Roy descended. St. Bethlehemites had been all agog to learn what extraordinary reason caused the Pan to stop at the village. "Why, it's Miss Jessie! Didn't think she'd get further than Clarksville on the Limited!"

And there you are. Sometime in October Miss Faunt Le Roy leaves for a visit with relatives and friends in Evansville, Ind., and from there goes to historic New Harmony, a one-time Rappite colony, sold later to Robert Dale Owen, a Ruskite. There lives the Faunt Le Rofs, one of the old aristocratic families of the town, at the ancestral home which by now is a museum of 18th century historical relics. In this home was organized the first woman's club of this coun-

WORLD COMMENT

THE FUTURE OF THE G. O. P.

If the republicans expect to enter a national ticket in the sweepstakes of 1940 worthy of their name, they must make their first gains in the 1938 congressional try ante-dating even the famous "Sorels," nation-wide in fame and achievement. Before returning to her home in Texas, Miss Faunt Le Roy will come back to St. Bethlehem, and it would be interesting to hear tell of the beauty and history of this charming town in rich agricultural Posey County, situated in the pocket between the Ohio and Wabash Rivers, elections. As the Democratic election machinery for 1932 was set in motion in 1930 by John J. Raskob, so must the G. O. P. lay the groundwork for the next presidential campaign, in the elections.

The basis of party support in each of the congressional districts is the Congressman, who is more directly responsive to the voice of the people than is the Senator who is elected for six years. The representative is in touch with district, county and municipal leaders of his party and is the most important link between the party's national committee and the voters at large.

The Republican Party has only 88 representatives in the lower house and 16 senators. The normal backswing of Republican voters who bolted to Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936, accelerated by recent policies of the administration, should net the Good Old Party from twenty to fifty congressional seats in the 1938 elections. A concerted drive, in which Republican nominees for Congress and other offices would receive the backing of the national committee and members of the senate who are not up for reelection, might add as many as 100 new Republicans to the House.

One of the most effective arguments for electing a Republican president in 1940 would be a constructive platform of criticism formulated by a vigorous and sizeable Republican minority in the house between now and the presidential election year. The lethargic opposition of the last five years to the Democratic administration must be abandoned if the Republican ticket is to be given consideration by the voters three years from now.

The Republicans cannot possibly control the Senate before the year 1942, but they should begin next year their campaign to regain domination of this body. Should they elect a successor to Franklin Roosevelt, the Republicans would find themselves confronted with a sizeable Democratic senatorial majority even should they pick up a few seats next year and make good gains in 1940.

What explains the do nothing attitude of the Republican National Committee since the Roosevelt landslide last year? Good strategy is in part the answer, but the greater explanation lies in the dissension and disunion prevalent both in the ranks and among the leaders.

As to the strategical explanation, the Republicans in the Senate, sixteen in number, delt the administration's Court reform strategy a death blow when they refused to openly oppose Supreme Court enlargement and delegated the opposition to the anti-new deal Democrats. The administration was unable to make the Court plan a partisan issue and thus rally recalcitrant Democrats to the new deal court packing standard on the basis of party loyalty.

This was the smartest move the Republicans have made since 1928. Up until last February, virtually every move made by the G. O. P. since Hoover was elected nine years ago and has been the wrong move from all angles concerned. But this legislation, which if enacted, would have kept the elephant out of office for all time, was blocked and the leaders in the Senate are now gloating over their success.

A great deal of labor was necessary to keep all factions of the G. O. P. quiet during the six months fight over the court bill. First, Vandenberg, Borah, and McNary, the Senate leader, agreed to shift the opposition to the Wheeler, Clark, Glass O'Mahoney block among the Democratic majority. Then they set about silencing the titular leader of the party and the 1932 nominee, Landon and Hamilton readily agreed to the plan but Hoover was more difficult to silence. Eventually, his objections were overcome by Vandenberg and the elephant's vocal cords were silenced.

The result is known to all. What about the organizational activities of the Republican National Committee and its $25,000 a year chairman, John D. M. Hamilton? What is behind Herbert Hoover's call for a pre-election convention of the Republicans early in next year? Why are not the Republicans undertaking grass roots reorganization of their local political machines?

Behind these questions and constituting the only answer to them is the general disunion and discord which is prevalent from the leaders down to the precinct organizations. Landon fears that Hoover will wrest control of the party from him. Hoover regards Landon with general disdain and fears that the party will collapse as a political entity if Landon continues as its titular leader until 1940. Landon and Hamilton, the national chairman, nominally in the control of the party machinery, are by no means in agreement over the policies, platform, and reorganizational efforts of the party.

The local leaders, the district, county, city leaders, have nothing upon which to appeal to the people. Criticism may be effective in blasting the myth of the new deal utopia but until the G. O. P. offers an alternative program the people are going to flock to its standard and vote for its candidates.

If the republicans are opposed to wages and hours legislation, relief as conducted by Roosevelt. (Continued on last page)

HORNET SQUAD PLAYS M. E. HOME TONIGHT AT EIGHT

Tonight at eight o'clock sharp, the improved Hornet aggregation will take on the, always good, M. E. Home eleven, in what promises to be one of the best games played on the local grid-iron this season. Coach Worleys' Hornets are in great shape and should show the fans a lot of improvement since the easily won practice game against Moody last week. No time has been lost on the practice field this week and the Coach has his pass defence in good order.

The Orphan boys will bring a fighting team over and will come expecting to win the game. They have one great advantage over the Hornets, in that they have played together longer, but on the other hand they have a disadvantage, in that they have only had a Coach about ten days. All in all tho, it will be a fine performance and a fast one, so lets all go out and enjoy the "Ole Ball Game."

The Hornet lineup will probably be the same as the one that started against Moody last week. Jones, Davis, Adams, Blankenship, Wallace, Williams and Gilbreath on the line, and Weaver, Fore Brown and Voss in the backfield. With Brown calling signals.

Head Coach: J. H. Malone.

Well, well, well, things changed around a little last week in the world of sports, some dope buckets were upset but very few. We'll take the Southwest first and see just what happened. Baylor is the closest to us, so we will see what they did. They played Southwestern of Georgetown at Waco. The weather was perfect, for football and Baylor could have beaten the boys 100 to 0 if Jennings had only wanted them to. The Georgetown boys were outclassed thru-out the game. Jennings played most all the men he had. They will give the Oklahoma City University a good beating this week.

T. C. U. had tough luck against Ohio State. We believe that T. C. U. would have given the Ohio boys plenty of trouble if it had not been raining, anyway it wouldn't have been, 14-0. The Frogs have a powerful line this year and so I imagine the Hogs from Arkansas will take to the air against them this week. O'Brien will toss plenty too.

The heavy, fast, powerful and smart Texas A. & M. College football team are in dear ole New York City this morning waiting for the morrow to roll around so they can show that Manhattan burch how to play All American football. They played the Jaspers last year at Tyler, winning by a score of 13-6. This year it will be A. & M. 16, Manhattan 0. Coach Homer Norton and his Cadets are Rosebowl bound this year and you might as well mark Todd down for All-American halfback.

The Arkansas Hogs are doped to go far this season, but did you know that the Horned Frogs are going to give them plenty of trouble this week. And unless Coach Thomsen fastly develops a strong pass defence, the O'Brien boy will pass them to death. Next to Baylor's Patterson, we believe that the short stacky 150 lb. O'Brien is the best in Texas, enheaving passes.

Now, to Austin and The Texas University Longhorn. Little has been said by the sports-scribes, regarding the Longhorn aggregation. They didn't show up so well last week against the always strong Tech team but it was their first real test of the season and one can never tell about Bibles' first two or three games. They will go to Baton Rouge this week to take on the LSU Tigers, and are liable to suffer a bad defeat. One writer has said that Rice has a better chance to tame the Tigers than has Texas; We disagree with that writer and say that Texas will score once against LUS. Rice will do good to get on LSU's territory.

This writer believes that SMU will end up in the cellar this season, with Baylor giving them a close call.

Clifton College

The Clifton College opened their football season last Friday nite against Decatur Baptist College, at Decatur in a 0-0 draw. The two teams played on even terms throughout the the entire game.

Coach Rogstad of Clifton College is bringing the boys around fast in what promises to be one of the best seasons that College has had in several years.

The following lineup started against Decatur; Grimland, and Pierce. Waco ends; Sorley, Cransfill Gap and Land. Hico tackles; Jensen, Appleton Minn., and Captain Sutherland. Archer City guards; Tergusin Cransfill Gap, center Stryker, Clifton, and Spangle, Clifton, Larkin, Archer City, and Jones, Turnersville, backs, Styker directing the plays.

HORNET SECOND AND THIRD TEAMS WILL PLAY COPPERAS COVE, TODAY

The Gatesville Hornet Scrub team goes to Copperas Cove this evening for a tilt with the first string team of that city. Coach Worley is sending a green team most of the boys being brand new as far as football is concerned. It will be good practice for the boys and they are liable to come back defeated. Copperas Cove has played Killeen this year and boasts a fighting little crew.

NERVES LINKED TO DIET

LAWSON LITTLE, famous golfer, only man ever to win both American and British Championships twice in succession, believes diet exerts a major control over the smooth nerves necessary to perfect timing.

"Since I've turned pro and have been playing exhibition matches," he says, "I remind myself of an author I once knew. He sold a story to The Saturday Evening Post. That night he went out to celebrate the fact that he had "arrived." It was the last time he ever celebrated a big sale, because, as he put it, from that time on, he worked just twice as hard keeping up with his own reputation as he had worked before trying to catch up with the reputations of other authors!

"Well—that's professional golf. Every stroke has to be perfectly timed—in the kind of rhythm that sends the ball just where you want it down the fairway or on the green.

"Personally, I think the best way to acquire the kind of steady nerves that let you send a ball where you want it to go is through proper diet. But a golfer does not need a training table. All he needs is three balanced meals a day, beginning with a hearty breakfast. Morning is the important end of a golfer's day. It sets the pace for his performance on the green. It sets a limit on his cusswords, too. So that's my advice to amateur golfers—build a body that makes for technique."

Little was born in Newport, R. I., son of a medical officer in the U. S. Army. He played his best golf following his father around the course at Peiping, China. His rise to fame came in 1929 when he beat Johnny Goodman after Goodman's spectacular defeat of Bobby Jones.

MOTHER hasn't been well and we got the phone for emergency calls to the doctor. But more than anything, it's a source of PLEASURE. We call our friends. They call us. And nearly every day we talk with our daughter in town. It's a fine feeling also to know that we could phone the neighbors if there was a fire or we needed help for any other reason. And it costs so little that it's a real bargain. We'll never be without a telephone again.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE
 Robert Conway, British diplomat in the East, who has been missing more than a year, has been found in a little Chinese mission by Lord Gainsford. Conway has no recollection of his past life but readily agrees to return to England with Gainsford. On the boat Conway hears a famous pianist playing at the ship's concert. Conway goes to the piano after the concert and begins to play a strange, beautiful melody. The famed pianist disagrees with Conway when the latter insists that it is a Chopin study. "It was never published. I learned it from a man who was one of Chopin's pupils." "That's impossible!" the pianist insists. "A pupil of Chopin's, if he were alive today, would have to be more than a hundred and twenty years old!" "What of it?" Conway snaps and then he rushes from the room. In his stateroom Lord Gainsford finds Conway packing his bag. "I must leave you," he says. "That music brought it all back to me. Shanghai! I remember it all now." Gainsford urges Conway to tell his story. Conway begins.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Chapter Two

Flames from the burning city of Baskul darted high into the night sky and cast a weird illumination over the bedlam of the flying field on the outskirts of the city. In the distance there was the steady rumble of gunfire and the solitary road from the city was choked with Chinese refugees fleeing from the demoniac fury of the bandits.

The airport itself was already packed to overflowing with wild-eyed, hysterical Chinese seeking refuge from their attackers. Floodlights on the field silhouetted their figures as they raced around seeking lost friends or families. A British Army transport plane was drawn up on the runway in front of the office building, its motor idling.

The door of the building opened and Robert Conway, the British Consul, came out followed by a small group of terrified whites. With Conway in the lead, they fought their way to the plane through the horde of milling yellow men. There was a roar as the motors raced and the huge ship began to lumber down the runway. Conway turned and pushed his way back to the office building where the remaining whites were huddled.

His brother, George, was sitting in one corner of the room, his ears glued to the radio. Conway strode over to him. "Are you through to Shanghai?" he asked. George nodded and handed the mike to Conway.

"Hello, Shanghai! Conway talking Colonel Marsh there?"

"Right here, Conway. Go ahead." "Where are those planes? I've still about thirty people here. The whole town's on fire and the bandits will be here any minute."

"Sent every ship we could find, Conway. They left Hangchow three hours ago."

At that moment George rushed in. "They're here! They're circling the field now."

"All's well, Colonel. The planes are over the field now. See you in the morning."

Conway rounded up his whites and hurried them out to the planes, sending the women and children in the first planes.

The last plane jockeyed into position in front of the office building and Fenner, the pilot, grinned down from the cockpit.

"Hi, Conway!" he called. "Bit of a mess, what?" Conway waved to him and smiled as he turned back to the office building.

Besides Conway, there was only his brother, George, Gloria Stone and an American, Barnard. He rounded up the little group and they pushed their way through the shrieking Chinese to the waiting plane. At the plane's door they were joined by another man in Chinese costume, a box clutched under his arm, who pushed his way into the plane. Conway grabbed him by the neck and was about to throw him from the plane when he wrenched free. "Let me in, you slihters!" he cried. "I'm an Englishman!" And, indeed, he was.

As Conway closed the door of the plane and the motors began to race several truck loads of bandits came lumbering onto the field and they began to shoot wildly at the slow-moving plane.

"Everybody on the floor!! quick!!!"

They all crouched to the floor as the plane swung around, gathered momentum and taxied crazily down the runway. In a moment they ceased to bump over the uneven ground and took to the air. Conway peered warily out of a window. "Guess we're out of range now," he said. "Everybody all right?"

No one had been hurt and George slumped into a nearby seat. "Whew," he said. "That was a close one." Conway grinned at him and then turned to the newcomer in the Chinese robe. "Where'd you come from?" he asked.

"I'm Alexander P. Lovett, sir." "Why weren't you registered at the consulate? Serve you right if you were left behind."

"How did I know a war was going to break out right over my head? Lovett demanded. "I had to get into these ridiculous clothes to escape."

"Where were you hiding?" Conway asked.

"I was in the interior — hunting fossils." Barnard, the American, turned to Lovett. "Pardon me," he asked. "What did you say you were hunting?"

"Fossils. I'm a paleontologist." Barnard stared at him blankly. "Oh, I see," he muttered.

Conway had dropped into a seat at the rear of the plane. "What happened to that brandy, Freshie?" he demanded of his brother George produced the bottle. "Drink?" Conway asked.

The drone of the motors soon lulled them to slumber and the plane roared on through the night. With the dawn Barnard began to stir. He opened one eye, stretched and looked over at Lovett who was already awake. "Morning, Lovey," he smiled.

"The name is Lovett, Sir," was the frigid reply.

"Well, it's a good morning, anyway," Barnard, unabashed, replied. He glanced out the window of the plane and looked around thoughtfully. "Say, we're supposed to be heading east, aren't we?" he asked.

"Of course." "Well, seems to me we're going west."

Lovett peered out the window and then jumped quickly from his seat. "Oh my goodness," he cried, "we're going west! We're going in the wrong direction!"

From the rear of the plane George opened a sleepy eye. "Can you manage to make a little less noise?" he demanded.

"But we're going west Shanghai's east of here!"

George rose slowly, stretching and yawning. "Sit down and calm yourself. I'll talk to Fenner." He walked to the front of the plane and knocked on the glass panel separating the body of the ship from the cockpit. From the cockpit side a small shade snapped up and George stared into the scowling face of a strange pilot.

George ran down the narrow aisle to his brother and shook his shoulder. "Bob! Wake up!" he cried. "Something's happened. That isn't Fenner in the cockpit!"

Conway sat up and stretched. "You're having nightmares," he suggested.

"No. It's someone I never saw before. Queer looking bloke Chinese or Mongolian — or something. And the plane's flying away from Shanghai!"

Conway looked out the window to get his bearings. Then he rose and walked to the front of the plane. He pounded on the glass and once again the mysterious pilot turned and scowled at them.

"Charming chap," said Conway. "Wonder what happened to Fenner?"

"Where's he taking us?" Lovett demanded. "He may be a maniac for all we know." George opened a tool kit, extracted a monkey wrench and started for the cockpit. Conway stopped him.

"What are you going to do?" he asked.

"I'll drag him out and make him tell us what his game is," was George's determined reply.

"Brilliant!" Conway smiled. "Any one here fly a plane?" They all shook their heads. Conway took the wrench from his brother's hand and tossed it into a corner. "That's no good, Freshie."

"Mean to say you're going to wait until he lands before you do anything?" Lovett demanded.

Suddenly the plane lurched and headed for the ground. George looked through a window. "Bob, we're landing!" he cried. Conway came and looked over his shoulder. "George," he said, "we're going to try something. The moment the ship stops we're going to jump out. You run around the other side and I'll stay here. If he covers me with his gun you'll be back of him. Hit first — and hit hard!"

the administration's labor policies, the unbalanced deficit and huge national debt, reorganization of the judiciary and federal government, why do they not submit an alternative program which to their best beliefs would remedy the evils, defects and failures of the Roosevelt administration and restore order to our social, economic, religious and political systems?

John Lewis is at outs with the administration, but he is telling his workers that he will give them something better than the Rooseveltian new deal can offer them. What has the good Old Party to offer as a substitute for new dealism?

The Republicans will not get to first base if their 1938 platform is formulated by individual candidates in widely divergent sections. In spite of the fact that Roosevelt is in his second term and that local issues will play an increasingly important part in the elections next year, the new dealers are going to project national issues into the campaign next year as much as is possible. And the local candidates for office on the Republican ticket must run on a platform formulated by the national committee and national leaders and adhered to by them if they expect to make the gains which are within their grasp.

Hoover and Landon should get together and settle their differences. Neither will be nominated in 1940 so they should devote their efforts to building up the party strength in Congress and reorganizing their state and local organizations. They should cent-ainly share the leadership with the Senate leaders who have the best brains in the G. O. P. today. But will they do this?

A bird in the hand is bad cable manners.
