THERE ARE NO "I'S" IN THIS BUSINESS: EDWARDS SELLS TO JONES

Saturday, Sterling Edwards who on December 1, 1939 bought S. F. Bethel's half interest in the Coryell County News, sold his half interest to W. Mat Jones, on that date, January 6, 1940.

It was a surprise to "this half" of this newspaper as it will probably be to our readers, and friends and advertisers.

Mr. Edwards said he did not know exactly what he would do in the future, but that he was planning to be a rancher.

We, and this newspaper are still "we", see no need of changing any policy toward our readers, friends, advertisers or the general public. All of us will continue to endeavor to give the best possible newspaper that can be, twice weekly.

Our local staff and correspondents all are interested in giving you what you want to read, as soon after it happens as is humanly possible.

In behalf of Mr. Edwards and also, Mr. Bethel, we thank all for the interest and confidence which has been shown toward this newspaper during its life in this county. This thanks also includes that of the present owner, and our staff and correspondents.

DOC BARNARD IS OUT FOR COMMISSIONER, BEAT 2

To the voters of Commissioner, Beat 2:

I am presenting to the voters of this precinct my candidacy for Commissioner, Beat 2, subject to the July election, and ask that you investigate my reputation as a citizen and my qualifications for this office.

I am making this race because I need the income and because I believe I can handle the job I'm asking for. In my connections with business as well as in my farm management, I've had experiences that will be of value to me as your Commissioner.

I expect to make an active campaign, and shall endeavor to personally contact each and every voter in Beat 2.

If elected, I promise to give the very best that is in me to the administration of your county government, and pledge to you an impartial and economical administration of the duties of this office.

Signed: DOC BARNARD
Candidate, Commissioner, Beat 2.
(Political Adv. Itp.)

"FINS" FOR THE FINNS

H. R. HAASE, $1.00

Thank you, Mr. Haase, and we will send this in, as instructed, this week end. Officials of the Finnish Relief Fund request an accounting, and that all funds be reported each week.

If you have anything to offer for these folks, we'll be glad to send it in for you, giving credit for your generosity.

Both newspapers represent this good movement in Gatesville, and of course, it matters not which newspaper reports your gift.

An extensive drive is being made throughout the United States in behalf of these people. A bill is being introduced in the present Congress for a loan of $60,000,000 to this little country that stands out as one that pays its debts.

All these men, deserve your and my fair consideration in the places they aspire to fill.

Lions to Look for Boxers, Tourney

Gatesville Lions will be visitors in many schools this week, according to reports, and will be out looking for potential Jack Dempseys.

The reason? The Gatesville Lions Club's County Golden Gloves Tournament will be held here on January 25, 26 and 27.

STORK DERBY DATES EXTENDED: NO BABIES: DATE FOR CLOSING 15TH

The gifts are ready, the Merchants are ready—everything's ready, but no baby!

So we have extended the time limit on this event until Monday, January 15th, at press time.

Reminding you again, here are the merchants who are very much interested in this little "tot". They are: Murray Grocery & Market, The National Bank of Gatesville, Koen-Foster Drug, Mrs. J. B.

"Jackson Day" Feed Is Shy Locals

As far as is known, no one in Coryell County attended any of this year's Jackson Day celebrations at any point, including the 25c Hot Dog Dinner in Austin.

No doubt, some have sent their checks, but on a check-up we failed to find anyone attended in person.

PAINTER'S PEOPLE ATTEND SHOE SHOW

George Painter, owner of Painter's, accompanied by men from the Shoe and other departments of this popular store, attended the recent Shoe Convention in Dallas, where they made purchases to complete lines in their shoe stock, and also placed orders for the new spring styles, some of which have already arrived.

Texans Get 1939 Rodeo Honors

In the January-February, 1940 issue of the magazine "The Western Horseman," which is published at Lafayette, California, two Texans, who have appeared in Gatesville's Annual Rodeo, were listed among the winners at Western Horseman's home town show, 1939.

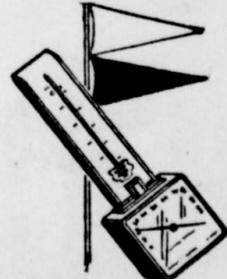

The paragraph read: "The black horse Honey Boy is conceded to be about the best roping horse for 1939. He is owned by Juan Salinas of Encinal, Texas."

Another read: "Toots Mansfield is rated by all as top calf roper of 1939. He is from Bandera, Texas, and led the field in roping from early in the season."

Salinas appeared in Gatesville's first and second annual rodeos, and Mansfield was here last year for the third annual rodeo.

Mrs. Maurice F. Roberts returned Monday from a trip to Long Beach, California, where she spent the holidays with her mother for the first time in ten years.

Congress and the Political Situation: Part II

Two names are being mentioned with increasing frequency in evaluations of possible Democratic nominees: Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

Secretary Hull is liked and respected by both conservative Democrats and new dealers on Capitol Hill. His prestige has been steadily enhanced by his calm, deliberate conduct of American foreign policy during one of the most turbulent eras of world history, and by his sponsorship of the reciprocal trade program.

Furthermore, he has remained aloof from the domestic controversies which have split the Democratic party into two warring and apparently irreconcilable factions.

Although Mr. Hull is making no effort to corral delegates, has no active organization working in his behalf and will have only the support of his home State of Tennessee and possibly Virginia on the first convention ballot, he is decidedly in the running for the nomination.

Should a deadlock ensue between the conservative and new deal forces, Mr. Hull would be a logical compromise choice for the convention. For Mr. Roosevelt could hardly repudiate his ranking cabinet officer, and Mr. Hull would be acceptable to the conservative Democrats on the basis of his 30 year record of service in Washington.

Hot off the wire from Washington are reports that National Chairman Jim Farley plans to back Mr. Hull with all the forces at his command. If this be true, it would make a Hull-Farley ticket extremely likely.

Montana's Senator Wheeler boasts a record of consistent liberalism equal to that of any Democrat alive. In 1924 he bolted his party to accept the vice-presidential nomination on the Progressive ticket of that ebullient evangel of progressiveism, Robert Marion La Follette of Wisconsin.

Since that time Senator Wheeler has continued as a leader of the liberal forces in the Senate, although he broke with the Roosevelt administration over the issue of the Supreme Court.

Senator Ed Johnson of Colorado is the leader in espousing Wheeler's cause, which also has the strong support of organized labor, including both AFL and CIO. Wheeler's bloc of delegates will number less than 50 at the outset of the convention, but his potential strength should not be minimized on any score.

Only the organization backing Vice-President Garner surpasses in elaborateness, energy, determination and financial support the one backing Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt for the Democratic nomination.

Mr. McNutt, former Phillippine High Commissioner and former governor of Indiana, is being proclaimed far and wide by his managers as the fair-haired favorite of President Roosevelt for the nomination, although this point has yet to be clarified.

Every state in the North, East, and Middle West is being scoured for McNutt delegates. In their energetic quest for delegates the McNutt emissaries, headed by shrewd, bulky Frank McHale, solemnly promises that their candidate will withdraw if Mr. Roosevelt seeks a third nomination.

Mr. McNutt is laboring under serious handicaps, including a record as a machine politician and as an anti-labor governor in Indiana, and the open dislike of Mr. Farley and other leading Democrats. But if he enters the convention with an impressive bloc of delegates, he might win the vice-presidential nomination or even emerge as a compromise choice for president.

James Aloysius Farley will rank with Mr. Garner as one of the two key figures at the Democratic convention. It is estimated that a minimum of 300 delegates will be responsive to the Democratic chairman.

In current political speculation, Mr. Farley's name is being linked politically with Mr. Garner, Mr. Hull and Senator Wheeler. But as this column was penned, reports of an authoritative nature were received from Washington that Mr. Farley had definitely thrown his support to Mr. Hull.

Aside from this new development, no more is known of Mr. Farley's intentions than of Mr. Roosevelt's third term plans—which means exactly nothing.

It is known that Mr. Farley disapproves of a third term for the President. But what would he do if Mr. Roosevelt insisted upon running again?

This, then, is the situation—summed up in two articles—on the Democratic side of the political fence as the politicians unlimber their big guns for the initial barlas rage of the new year, both in the halls of Congress and in the nation at large, through such agencies as the press, the radio and the public platform.

How do the Republicans stack up at present? The situation is hardly clearer among the followers of the Good Old Party. But that is material for another column.

Gatesville Cagers To Play McGregor

Highlighting the sports program this week will be the clash between the Gatesville Hornets and their old traditional rivals of court and gridiron, the McGregor Bulldogs. The game is scheduled 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, January 9 at Gatesville.

All basketball fans are urged to come out and root for the local team.

Wednesday the Hornets journey to Star for a game with the Star cagers and the Hornets go to De Leon. Both these places are noted for their cage talent and the locals are almost certain to run into some tough competition.

Flat Cagers Wallop Holland

The Senior boys basketball team of Flat high school went to Little River Friday night and played a quintet from Holland in the Little River gym.

The Flat team led by Halcomb and Powell, won by a comfortable margin and will clash with another Bell county team in the near future. Just when the game will be played and the name of the opposing team has not been learned.

Jonesboro Defeats Hamilton Cagers

The Jonesboro Eagles, coached by P. T. Lemmons, and one of the strongest rural basketball teams in Coryell County, journeyed to Hamilton Friday night and defeated the Hamilton basketball team by a thrilling score of 19 to 18.

The Hamilton team is expected to come to Jonesboro and return the game but the exact date has not been set.

GHS Basketeers Take 3 Games Fri. Night

The Gatesville High School Hornets added Marlin to their string of basketball victims Friday night by outscoring the Bulldog aggregation by a score of 25 to 5. Koch led the locals to victory with 7 points and Schenewolf, Wittie, and Moore followed with 6 points each.

Big Jack Moore, lanky Gatesville center was back in the lineup and played an outstanding game for the Hornets.

In the second game of the evening the Hornet's second string sparked by the brilliant defense work of Red White and accurate goal tossing of Billy Manning, trampled the Bulldogs scrubs 20 to 15. Turnipseed was outstanding for the visitors with 5 points to his credit and was responsible for the last minute rally that brought them within five points of the local's lead.

In the first game the Junior girls from the local Junior High School tangled with Plainview Juniors and emerged victorious by a score of 17 to 11. This was an outstanding contest with both teams fighting hard from the first to the last whistle.

Gatesville Teams Meet Jonesboro

Saturday night in the gym the Hornets met and defeated the strong Jonesboro sextette in a very good game that ended in a 25-16 score. Rutherford, Moore, and Turner played a very good passing game at their forward slots and Rutherford was the high scorer for the Hornets with nine points while Moore was next with eight. Holden from Jonesboro led the scoring with twelve points. The Hornet guards led by the fast, fighting Norma Apel kept the strong Jonesboro forwards to five field goals.

In a real thriller, the J'boro Eagles out-lucked the Hornets to the tune of 15-14. This game kept the excited fans on the edges of the bleachers throughout the game. Time after time the ball rolled around the edges and failed to fall in.

Box for Jonesbor and Rosy Ward for the Hornets scored six points each.

Nathan Wittie, husky Hornet center, played a good game.

Also for Gatesville, Moore and Schoenewolf played good defensive games from their guard slots.

The county competition seems to be hot and furious this year with no team the top notch favorite.

Red White and Jan Jones led the Hornet scrubs to a 7-5 victory over the Ewing cagers in the last game. Jones was the high scorer with three points.

In 1939 approximately 35,000 acres of peanuts were harvested in Atascosa county, Texas, with the yield about 15 bushels to the acre. The market value was about $500,000.

Hornettes Win, Hornets Lose, J'boro

Coach Worley's Golden Hornets failed to hit their stride against the Jonesboro Basketeers when they clashed in the Jonesboro gym last Thursday night and when the final whistle had sounded, the score board read; Jonesboro 23, Gatesville 13.

The Hornettes had better luck, however, and won over the Jonesboro girls by a score of 26 to 23.

With a lot of cage victories already behind them this season, it looks like the Jonesboro teams will be in the thickest of the battle for county basketball supremacy this year.

Gatesville Girl Weds South Carolina Man

Miss Doris Jones, daughter of Mrs. W. O. Jones, became the bride of David McBroom of Columbia, S. Carolina, in a single ring ceremony preformed December 25 with the Rev. A. Loper officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Weldon Jones, wore an afternoon frock of aqua blue aplaca with black accessories. Her corsage was of white rosebuds. For the traditional something old, she wore a watch belonging to her mother, who wore it in her wedding. Alvin Flemming attended the groom as best-man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McBroom are graduates of Gatesville High School and later attended business college in Dallas.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple was invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Flemming where a bountiful lunch was served. Only relatives of the bride were present.

After the lunch, the couple left for a honeymoon trip to points of interest in South and East Texas.

The Bears played their first conference game last week and are doped to finish fourth in the conference race.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties. BUT if you are cross, listless and tired; men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep. So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders. You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

GATESVILLE SCHOOL GIRLS TO ENGAGE IN FOOTBALL GAME HERE WEDNESDAY

It looks like California who boasts of the only girl's football team in the nation is going to have a little competition in this pigskin packing game, and by none other than the local high school lassies.

Next Wednesday afternoon about three o'clock, the GHS senior girls clash with the Jrs. in the Butter Bowl in Coryell county's first girl's football game. Just who is going to play who and what positions they will occupy on the barred green is a dark deep mystery to us but we have been reliably informed that the girls will be decked out in full football regalia and promise to put on a real pigskin packing exhibition.

You are invited to be on hand for the opening kickoff at 3 p. m. and it looks like the girls are really going to pack 'em in.

BASEMENTS AND ATTICS GAIN NEW IMPORTANCE

No longer are attics and basements considered mere storage rooms, where the accumulated debris of years gone by gathers dust and venerability. The modern generation has a more practical outlook on this question—it makes active use of these parts of the home.

This is a natural outcome from the current emphasis on the full utilization of leisure time, the accent on sports and games, and the ever present desire for economy. Nowadays every homeowner wants to make full use of his home's potentialities.

Ping-pong the miniature sized interpretation of tennis, has played a major part in the reclamation of attics and basements. In many cases it is the sole reason for remodeling these sections of the home.

This game, and others like it, no longer are solely within the province of children and adolescents; adults, too, are participating in increasing numbers. They also are cashing in on the rich dividends in pleasure, health and companionship that recreation rooms provide at such a reasonable cost.

Ultra modern without being "radically different", this study in the Chicago residence of Sigmund Kunstadter, created by James F. Eppenstein, architect-designer, is a study in delightful coloring and subdued but plentiful lighting—of particular interest to home owners seeking what may be termed "more gracious living". The beige colored walls are matched by the soft, diffused light filtering through an insulux glass block panel which assures privacy and obscures possible objectionable exterior scenes; the ceiling is white, carpet in sand color, with draperies shading from light beige at top to sand and pale orange to deep burgundy at bottom, to harmonize with the burgundy-colored upholstery, natural walnut woodwork, brushed brass metal work and pale beige desk leather furnishings. Plants provide a pleasing decorative effect against the glass block wall. The blocks diffuse sunlight so well that plants and flowers are not subjected to undue heat.

EXCELLENT RESULTS ARE OBTAINED FROM PASTURE FURROWING

Realizing the value of water conservation as a part of an improved range program, approximately fifteen farmers cooperating with the Gatesville Soil Conservation Camp have had contour furrows run on their pastures in 1939.

Although contour furrowing is a comparatively new practice in pasture development in this area it has already proven its worth where furrows have been constructed. During the hot, dry summer months, local farmers noted that grasses on furrowed areas were thicker and remained green longer than on adjoining areas. Typical of the farmers response to contour furrowing in this area is that of Mr. W. C. Guggolz of Gatesville. After observing the contour furrows constructed on his pasture during the past year Mr. Guggolz states that the grass on the plot furrowed showed a more abundant growth, stayed green longer, quickly covered the disturbed area, and afforded better grazing. He has requested assistance for running more contour lines on his pasture.

The possibilities of the use of contour furrows in sections such as Coryell County, where the rainfall is not equally distributed throughout the year deserves full consideration both for flood control and conserving water for plant growth. The actual capacity of contour furrows constructed on 4.5 foot centers is 22,000 gallons per acre. This amount of water is not only conserved when moisture is plentiful but is held out of swollen streams during periods of heavy rainfall.

Since a simple furrow holds back rain water, increases the available moisture for plant growth, and at the same time contributes to the equalizing of stream flow and thereby reduces erosion, the contour furrow appears certain to attain wide popularity in this section.

Orchid perfume is made up largely of synthetic substitutes, since it is so expensive to make in the pure state.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

[ NOTICE there's a big difference of opinion about big families and little families. Seems mighty queer, but it works out like this. The people with big families is all for big families, and they generally look down on the fellows that have only one or two kids. The ones with the single or pair feel terrible set up about having so few and they look down on the big-family folks. Course, I don't think myself it makes much difference if there's one or a score of kids, so long as they're what you might call pretty well dragged up.

It was a woman with one of the old-fashioned families that got into the worst story I heard today. It was the worst I heard thirty years ago, too. This here woman went to a photograph gallery with her big string of kids, and she asked the man how much it would cost to get a group picture made at his very lowest price.

"Twenty dollars a dozen," he says. "Come on, kids," she says to her group, "we'll have to be going." And she turns to the photographer: "You see, I'll come back next year. I've only got eleven here."

LIONS HUNT—

Already, other committees are said to be working in making preparations for this event, which will and already has attracted state-wide attention.

The "mainest" event, however, will be the District Tournament which will also be "steered" by the Lions, will be held, February 5, 6, and 7.

We have a letter from Walter R. Humphrey, Chairman, Central Texas Amateur Athletic Council, and also editor of the Temple Daily Telegram, announcing that the Bell County Golden Gloves Tournament will be held January 19, 20 and 21.

Boys from Bell county who win in this tournament will be sent to the District Tournament here, and will make an effort to "carry on for old Bell" at the State Golden Gloves Tournament which will be held in Fort Worth on February 14, 15, 16, 17 and 20. Entry Blanks have been inserted in both newspapers published here, and any boy over 16 who is planning to enter is urged to present the signed coupon to either newspaper, signed and ready to hand in to the proper Lions Club committee.

Turnersville Defeats Flat Tuesday Night

Two hard fought basketball games were played in the Turnersville gym Tuesday night when the boys and girls teams from the Turnersville high school played hosts to the Flat basketeers.

The Turnersville lads had very little trouble with the Flat quint and won by a comfortable score of 34 to 17. The Flat girls also dropped their game to a classy Turnersville sextet and at the end of the game were trailing by a score of 31 to 14.

Here's the line up for the boys teams:

Flat: Powell, Halcomb, Clawson, Williams and Ingram.

Turnersville: Brasher, McCallister, Southerland, Huckaby and Bates.

A complete lineup for the girls teams was not available.

We are having some winter weather.

Mr. Oliver Newland and son were recent visitors to Waco.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Matleon of Waco have moved back to Ireland on their ranch. Joe enjoys country life so much that you just cannot make a city man out of him. We are glad to welcome you home.

Mr. R. M. Grubb and family of Hamlin, Jones Co., were visiting relatives here the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Boyd from California spent the Christmas holidays visiting relatives in the Ireland community, and on their return Mr. Martin Harmon accompanied them. Mr. Harmon will probably locate in that county.

Mr. and Mrs. John Waddill from Valentine were visiting relatives here during the Christmas holidays and with the coming of the New Year, they left to visit relatives in Arkansas before returning to their home in Valentine.

Mr. Put King and family from far-away Georgia were here visiting in the R. M. Kite and family home in Ireland during the Christmas holidays and the New Year of 1940. They were glad to return to the old home State.

Mr. Bert Beechly and family have purchased the old Beechly farm and ranch near Levita and have moved on same the past week.

Mr. Clayton and family have moved and are located in the Parsonage of the Methodist Church. While we have had quite a lot of moving, all are now settled and are ready to continue to ride high the New Year 1940.

The supposition that marriages are less popular than they were a few years ago is a false impression according to the records of the County Clerk, Charley Mounce. In 1934 there were 196 licenses issued, an average of nearly each month, more than one every other day. This means of course that many homes have been started, most of which are in Coryell County.

The highly touted defensive strength of the Temple Wildcats wasn't defensive enough to stop the antics of the Hornet cagers, who put their visitors to rout here Friday night 27-12. Hazen Ward lead his teammates in scoring with 11 points. McLarty was second with 9 points. Victory for the Hornets over the Bell County team increases the laurels for Gatesville to nine games won, out of nine games played. Before the boys had a chance to demonstrate their prowess, the Gatesville girls scored a well earned victory over Pearl, 39-17.

Wm. M. BALLARD PASSES AWAY AT OHIO JAN. 2

As a great shock to this entire community came the sudden death of "Grandpa" Ballard at his home at Ohio January 2, 1940, at the age of 90 years, 9 month, and 18 days. He was born near Atlanta, Ga. March 15, 1849. After coming to Texas in 1872, he established his home at Ohio, Texas. The next year he married Annie E. Carter. To this union were born twelve children, nine of whom are still living: Mrs. Emma Arnett and Lewis Ballard of Ohio, Texas; Almer Ballard of Fort Worth; Mrs. Elmer Keller of Hico; Mrs. Etta Green of Wichita Falls; Mrs. Maurice Dittrich of Long Beach, Cal.; Mrs. Florence Jackson of Bakersfield, Calif.; Luther Ballard of Stephenville; Thomas Ballard of New Pine Creek, Oregon.

He is survived by forty grandchildren, thirty-nine great grandchildren, and three great great grandchildren; one brother-in-law, Sam Carter of Ohio; and two sisters-in-law, Mrs. J. N. Billingsley of Hamilton, and Mrs. Owens of Ozona.

Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Milton Slayden of Evant, and a very dear friend, Rev. R. M. Studer of Purmela. Interment was made in Live Oak cemetery.

Active pallbearers were: L. C. Perryman, A. A. Jeffers, Tom Stiles, R. A. Bertrand, Gustoff Baize, and W. A. Summerford.

Grandfather Ballard has been one of the important factors in making South Hamilton county and west Coryell a better place in which to live. He has lived continuously in his grand old home for almost seventy years. His influence has always been for every good constructive movement. He was never known to be on the wrong side of any issue. Few Christian gentlemen have such a long and perfect record of gentle uplifting influence.

Our entire community offers sincere sympathy to the bereaved loved ones.—Written by Grace Elam.

The opening dates of Coryell County's Golden Gloves Boxing Tournaments are rapidly approaching and all the Mugs along Tin Ear Terrace are waiting patiently for the big "swing" contest to get underway.

We notice where one of the great fight promoters* of New York has suggested that the proceeds of the Baer-Galento prize fight which will be staged in Madison Square Garden some time this winter, be set aside for the Finnish Relief Fund.

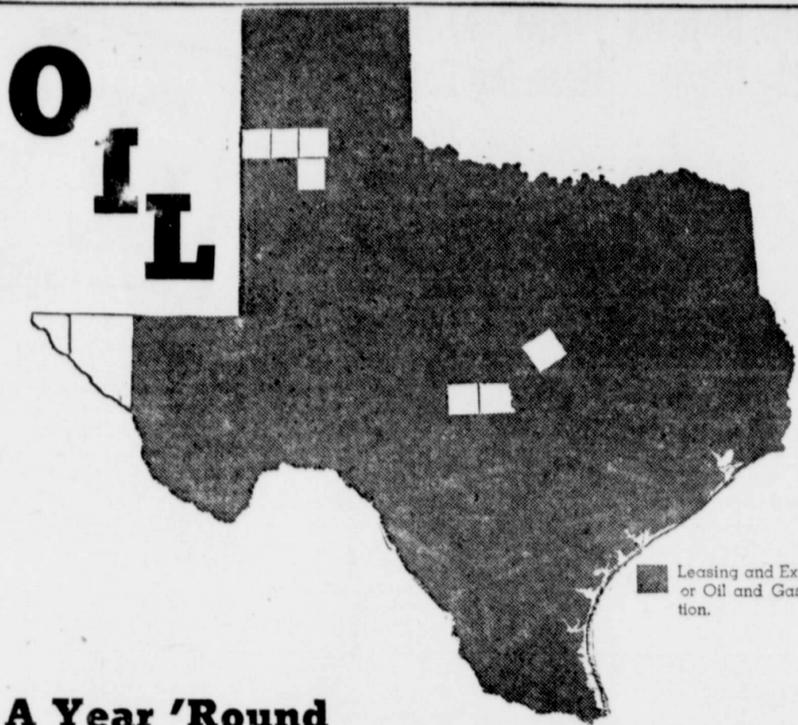

Freddie Apostoli former light-heavy champion of the world hit the come-back trail Friday night by winning a 12 round decision over Melo Bettina in the Madison Square Garden boxing arena. Incidentally Apostoli was knocked out the canvas three times during the bout but came up fighting each time and finally won on a close decision.

During the past year, speed on water, land and in the air seems to have hit an all time high.

Here are a few of the records that were hung up during the year 1939: Pilot H. Lloyd Childs dived a plane at the terrific speed of 575 miles per hour. A German set a new record for flying straight at 469.11 miles an hour. A new U. S. Bomber weighing 22 tons flew 2500 miles in 9 hours and 14 minutes. Miss Jacquelin Cochran set a record for women flyers by zooming around the course at Long Island at 173,097 miles an hour. A couple of aviators from Long Beach, Cal., set a new endurance record by remaining in the air for 726 hours.

An Italian claims the altitude record for sea planes by climbing 44,456 feet in less than two hours. John R. Cobb, English speed King drove his automobile over the salt flats of Utah at 368.85 miles per hour. Sir Malcomb Campbell shattered all speed records on the water by driving his speed boat 141.74 miles per hour. A German streamlined train roared over the steel rails 134 miles per hour and set a new speed record for trains.

Thus in 245 of Texas' 254 counties, business, government, tax collector, wage earner, farmer and rancher receive their part of the oil man's expenditures every month in the year.

Even the dry holes (52,000 drilled to date at a cost of a billion dollars) contributed their share of employment and wide distribution of money.

Last year land owners received 50 million dollars in lease rentals and bonuses alone.

In many counties where oil is a major factor, local government receives as much as 90% of its total tax revenue from the oil business.

Then, too, the State collects 45% of its tax money (exclusive of the gasoline tax) from the oil man. In 1938 this was 32 million dollars.

Congress and the Political Situation

The new session of Congress will be closely followed by political quidnuncs and by an attentive public for its effects upon the national political situation. For most of the leading candidates for the Democratic and Republican nominations must in the regular procedure of Congress make decisions on national policy that will materially and perhaps decisively affect their chances of winning the party nominations.

The actions of President Roosevelt in proposing legislation, of Vice-President Garner in his capacity as vice-president and leader of the conservative Democrats, and of such key legislative figures as Senators Wheeler, Taft and Vandenberg will be watched with keen interest as keys to their popularity in the campaigns to win the party nominations and subsequently the election.

The political situation will be considerably clarified as the session of Congress proceeds and as the candidates adopt policies and procedure which commit them to one side of the crucial issues upon which the actual presidential campaign will be based. When the session terminates several months hence, it will doubtless be possible to predict with reasonable accuracy who the leading figures at the conventions will be.

As Congress takes up the cudgel for another hectic round of activity, the political scene is extremely muddled, however, with new entrants emerging as possible nominees, heightening the general confusion and increasing the possibility of both parties nominating dark horses.

A review of the general political lineup as inherited from 1939 seems to be in order if the effects of the congressional session upon candidates and issues and parties are to be intelligently and correctly appraised at the conclusion of the session.

Only guesses are available as to the attitude and wishes of President Roosevelt toward the Democratic nomination. Will he run himself? Will he demand as the price of his support of the ticket that a new dealer be nominated? Will he bolt the party if the conservatives control the convention and nominate one of their own number? For the present, these are rhetorical questions, but they will be answered before many months of this year have elapsed.

On the subject of the third term—one of the most controversial political issues of the century—this columnist is prepared to go on record with a categorical statement—or, if you prefer, a prediction.

I predict that President Roosevelt positively will not run for a third term if this country is at peace and is free from threats from abroad.

Mr. Roosevelt does not want the nomination again and does not want the presidency again, according to authoritative reports from Washington reaching this writer. Furthermore, he will make no effort to win the nomination, and at the psychological moment will declare himself out of the race for the nomination.

The President, like all of his predecessors, is burdened by the strenuous demands of his office. He feels that he has done his duty by the office and that he deserves a rest. In this respect he is absolutely right. He is broadminded enough to know that he is not the only man in this country capable of filling the office of president—although many of his more ardent and shortsighted followers do not agree with him here.

The only condition which could possibly motivate or impel Mr. Roosevelt to run again would be the danger of foreign attack upon the United States or involvement of this country in war abroad, I feel.

Nevertheless, the third term issue will be projected into this session of Congress if Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia carries out his announced intention of introducing an anti-third term resolution in the Senate.

Candidacy of Vice President Garner precludes the possibility of the Democrats nominating Mr. Roosevelt again, it seems to me. For Mr. Garner's managers have announced that their candidate is in the race to the last convention ballot—thus dispelling the once prevalent belief that the Vice-President's name was being used merely to block the third term aspirations of the President.

The only politically logical basis upon which President Roosevelt could accept the nomination for a third term would be by a unanimous vote of the convention. Mr. Garner's candidacy obviates that possibility.

Mr. Garner is far ahead of any other member of his party for the Democratic nomination, and his nomination on the second ballot after courtesy votes by state delegations pledged to favorite sons for the first ballot, is not beyond the realm of possibility.

Within the last four months the Garner candidacy has come to be regarded with increasing seriousness by Democrats and Republicans alike. At the inception of the Garner campaign many Democrats ridiculed the possibility of the Texan winning the nomination. But they have discovered that the Vice-President is popular in the East, the North, the Middle West and the Pacific Coast regions as well as in his native Southwest.

Garner backers expect to enter the convention with 300 pledged delegates or more than 25 percent of the total convention vote. Garner organizations are now operating in 20 states or more, and branch headquarters have been established in Oklahoma, Oregon, California and some of the Southern states to supplement the headquarters operating in Dallas and New York City.

Rep. Sam Rayburn, manager of the Garner forces at the 1932 convention, will be the Garner floor manager at the convention. Roy Miller of Corpus Christi, staunch Roosevelt supporter; E. B. Germany, State Democratic chairman and Maury Hughes and Myron G. Blalock, both former State chairmen, are directing the organizational work for the Garner campaign.

Should Mr. Garner head of the Democratic ticket, his supporters maintain, the Republicans would enter the campaign without one effective point of attack against the opposition. They could not attack Mr. Garner's alleged conservative platform and name a conservative candidate themselves.

On the other hand, almost any other Democrat currently regarded as a presidential possibility is vulnerable on some point.

Mr. Roosevelt would have to buck the third term tradition; Mr. Hull would confront agrarian distrust of his reciprocal trade program; Mr. McNutt would face a hostile labor and intraparty distrust; Mr. Farley would re-arouse the Catholic controversy, a la 1928, and would provoke the puritan element of the electorate which dislikes his reputation as a political boss and patronage dispenser.

This is not to infer by any means that the nomination of Mr. Garner is a certainty. Many new developments can occur between now and July, when the convention most likely will be held. But it does mean that practical politicians and serious thinkers everywhere are giving thoughtful and serious consideration to the Garner candidacy.

SYNOPSIS
General Steele, who has been sent out West by President Grant to wipe out Geronimo, Apache chief who has been looting and murdering, has rescued members of an immigrant wagon train which has been attacked by Indians. He rejects the pleas of his officers to fight, and insists that smart military tactics call for him to wait until he received reinforcements and supplies of ammunition.

CHAPTER IV
COLONEL WHITE, on his nightly tour of inspection of Fort Grant, stopped by the side of one of the wagons in the immigrant train which was stationed in the courtyard. He listened with intense interest to the earnest conversation between Allison, leader of the wagon train, Captain Starrett and young Lieutenant Jack Steele.

Allison was speaking. "But there isn't anything else to do," he exclaimed. "Texas is over-run with crooked politicians—carpet baggers from up north! We had to get out!" "Couldn't you get together and chase them out?" demanded Starrett.

"How?" Allison shrugged his shoulders in defeat. "We were Con-them. No one to order us about—to tell us what we can do—and can't. Oh, I know pioneering is hard. . . ."

"But it's worth it!" cried Jack. "You bet it's worth it!" Allison said with determination. "It's worth anything—any hardship—to be able to call your soul your own!"

Jack Steele's strongly set chin told Starrett how deeply the pioneer's words had moved him. In silence the officer watched Jack rise to his feet, and slowly march toward his living quarters.

Jack Steele paced up and down his room, struggling with the myriad thoughts and emotions which Allison's words had impressed on his mind. He sat down at his table and yanked open the drawer. Slowly he took out the letter which lay on top and re-read the familiar message which it contained. He studied the close: "Always remember that your father is a great soldier, who has devoted his whole life to duty—and that you must follow in his footsteps. Signed: Ulysses S. Grant."

Jack's eyes left the letter. He stared up at the ceiling for a moment, then, as if he had come to a

"If you'll permit me to say so, sir, he seems very unhappy. I'm rather concerned about him."

"I've just been wondering," said Steele, in a slightly shame-faced voice. "Perhaps I've been to severe with him. Too much army."

"He's a very sensitive boy, sir," Steele nodded. "Yes," he said, as if in a reverie. "Like his mother, that way." And the general's voice made it clear that it had been his inability to deal with this same sensitiveness on his wife's part that had led to his personal tragedy, and that he was trying to avoid a repetition of the same tragedy with his boy. "Perhaps I ought to talk to him—get to know him better."

White nodded slowly. "It would mean a great deal to him, sir."

Steele sighed. "I will," he said. "I'll . . ." he broke off, a little shame-faced at the thought of letting any one else know that he cared for the boy and was worried about him. "Yes," he wound up. "I'll talk to him—sometime."

In a comfortably furnished living room in Washington, Mrs. Steele

"You wouldn't think so," Allison said bitterly. "If you saw them treat us like slaves; rob—kill—tax us to death!"

federates. We lost the war. They came in to make us pay."

Jack Steele leaned forward. He spoke with deep sympathy. "But you're still Americans! They have no right to do that!"

"You wouldn't think so," said Allison bitterly. "If you saw them treat us like slaves; rob—kill—tax us to death!"

"Couldn't you do anything about it?"

"What?" Allison's voice was weary. "Suppose you men—in the army—had to serve under some superior who treated you worse than dogs—who had the power to make your life unbearable. What would you do?"

When Jack replied to Allison, it was apparent that he was speaking subconsciously, without meaning to. "Get out of the army, I suppose," he said softly.

Allison, absorbed in his own problem, and knowing nothing of what was going on in Jack's mind, didn't notice the quick, apprehensive look that Starrett flashed toward him. "Exactly," he said. "That's why we're getting out of Texas!"

Starrett, trying desperately to weaken Allison's argument in Jack's mind, said, "But what have you got to look forward to in California?" "Everything! New country—opportunity—and above all, a chance to be free again."

Jack's voice was low and vibrant as he murmured, "Free!"

Allison continued eagerly. "A chance to make our lives as we want decision, tore the letter in tiny bits, dropped the pieces on the floor and began to write another letter. "Dear Mother," he wrote. "At last I understand what you must have gone through with him. I can't stand it any longer. I am resigning from the army; and I want you and Alice to come here so that we can join this wagon train when it leaves for California in the spring. It will be a chance for all of us to start our lives over again."

Back in the commander's quarters, General Steele glanced through the darkness of the unlighted room, and recognized the figure of Colonel White standing in the doorway.

"Come in, Colonel," he said. "All precautions taken for the night?"

"Yes sir," replied White. "I've checked everything personally."

"Good."

"Orders for tomorrow, sir?"

Steele's voice was crisp and military. "Drill and review in the morning; rations and supplies to the Indians in the afternoon."

"Yes sir. Is that all, sir?"

Steele, obviously struggling with something which lay heavily on his mind, spoke hesitantly. "Colonel, have . . . have . . . have you seen the boy . . . Lieutenant Steele . . . lately?"

White, realizing that something was weighing on his commander's mind, came close. "Yes sir," he said softly. "Just a few moments ago."

"How . . ." said Steele, still fumbling for word, ". . . how's he getting along?"

and Alice Hamilton sat before a table. Mrs. Steele was reading Jack's letter aloud, while Alice sat drinking in each word.

As Mrs. Steele finished the letter, she glanced at Alice's face. The look of intense happiness at the prospect of seeing Jack, and the eagerness with which she looked forward to the high adventure of starting her new life in far-off California convinced her that Jack's plan was a good one.

Softly she stroked Alice's forehead. The two women kissed and clung to each other.

Mrs. Steele and Alice stood against the rail of a river boat, looking out at the moonlit river.

Alice turned to the older woman. "Of course it's right. It's what Jack wants to do. We've got to help him."

Mrs. Steele's eyes were misty as she glanced at Alice's loveliness. In her look could be seen her consciousness that if she had felt as Alice did, her own life might have been different. She said, softly, "If only I had been as wise as you are." She sighed. "Yes, darling, we've got to help."

Alice smiled happily. "Isn't it thrilling! We'll both have the same name—Mrs. John Steele!"

Mrs. Steele, her mind distracted by her own thoughts, nodded absently. "Mrs. John Steele," she said, quietly. "I wonder what he'll say when he sees me. That's the only part that frightens me—meeting him again!"

Tenderly, Alice patted her hand. (To be continued)
