Accidents Still Mar Weeks' News

About 4 p. m. Tuesday, on U. S. 84, at the park, about four miles east, a car driven, it is said by J. M. Wright of Hamilton struck and knocked down, Robert Gober, about 8, breaking his leg at the ankle, and giving him bruises on his hip and head, and possible internal injuries. Mr. Wright, it is said, stopped, and went back to the scene. Later he drove off, and was arrested in Hamilton, and brought back to Gatesville.

A school bus had stopped, young Gober got off, and in crossing the road, after the bus started in motion, evidently didn't see the approaching car, and was struck as he was crossing the highway. The car was reported to be driving at a moderate rate.

"TWENTY-TWO" BULLET ENTERS MAN'S LEG

Charley Kinsey, according to Sheriff J. H. Brown, was accidentally shot in his left leg Wednesday about 11 a. m. at the Royalty Farm in the southeastern part of the county.

The bullet entered Mr. Kinsey's calf just below the knee, coming out just above the ankle.

Details of the accident were lacking, according to Sheriff Brown.

ANOTHER '29ER

From out Levita way, we have another '29er.

This one, according to Mrs. S. B. Comer is her grandson, which brings the total up to four for Coryell County, which has a population of 20,000. In other words, you have one chance in 5,000 births to be a '29er. The others are,

A. M. BERRY

ED DEVOSS
TRAVIS ANDERSON
WILLIS DALE WARNER

Mrs. Comer says about A. M. Berry, he was born 2-29-32. Some more interesting information she gives, is that these Februarys (?) had five Thursdays, 1776, 1816, 1844, 1872, 1913, 1940, and so will 1968.

Dr. Dean B. Jones was a business visitor in Austin the latter part of this week.

Hon. Pat M. Neff, President of Baylor University passed thru Gatesville Wednesday morning, and between bus time, had time to meet some of his many friends here. He was enroute to Lamesa and Canyon, at which places he was scheduled to speak.

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Mayes Jr. Sunday were the latter's mother, Mrs. Simpson, and two brothers of Waco.

Relative to "Locals" Out For Governor

G. A. (Jerry) SADLER

G. A. (Jerry) Sadler, present Railroad Commissioner, has announced his candidacy for Governor of Texas.

His platform calls for heavily increased natural resource taxes, together with a hike in the state corporate franchise tax, to finance pension payments.

Mr. Sadler is related to a number of Gatesville and Coryell county "Sadlers".

FFA And 4-H Boys To Stock Show

Saturday at 4:30, approximately fifty FFA boys from the local FFA club will leave to attend the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show, which opened Friday, and continues thru the 17th.

Fifteen hundred FFA boys are expected, and the Gatesville boys will go on two school buses which will leave Fort Worth for home about 7:00 p. m. Saturday night.

With them, will be the FFA sweetheart, queen and favorite who are, in order, Mary Jane Coward, Melba Hardin and Dorothy Chamlee. Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Slay will chaperon the party.

THE GROVE AND FLAT 4-H BOYS AND GIRLS, TOO

In addition to the FFA boys from Gatesville, two other Coryell County communities are sending delegates via school bus, and these are The Grove and Flat.

The 28 from The Grove will be chaperoned by Miss Mildred Morse, and H. R. Mueller, and the 4-H Club of Flat will be chaperoned by Mrs. W. T. Brumalaw and Curtis Humphries.

4-H Clubs, which have both girl and boy members, and the FFA will attend a morning rodeo and visit the exposition in the afternoon. It is understood the Gatesville FFA string band will be featured at the show.

Landowners of the county, and also Hamilton county, will go to the Polls Saturday. It won't be "fir" or "agin" anybody but will be for or against the creation of the Hamilton-Coryell Soil Conservation District.

Some 5,000 pamphlets have been distributed to all the landowners of the county, or made available by the Chamber of Commerce, and the entire affair is solely up to the landowners.

Reports indicate that most of the landowners of the county are in favor of the creation of the District, but those who are in close touch with the State Board have advised that a lack of interest shown in the election may defeat the program. The State Board, it is said, does not have to create the District even if the election carries and they have the option of creating the District or not creating it on the basis of the interest shown by the land owners.

Due to the fact that there are approximately 100 sections of the state clamoring for districts, it seems that the State Board's will be to create the District where the most interest is shown.

It therefore seems necessary that voters of both Hamilton and Coryell should go to the polls on Saturday, and express their opinion. The wife of a landowner is entitled to vote the same as her husband.

Those who have been working on this program are very anxious to have this District created in order that the landowners in Hamilton and Coryell counties may be eligible to receive State and Federal aid when the same is made available by appropriation.

LANDOWNERS TO MEET AT 2:30 P. M. SATURDAY

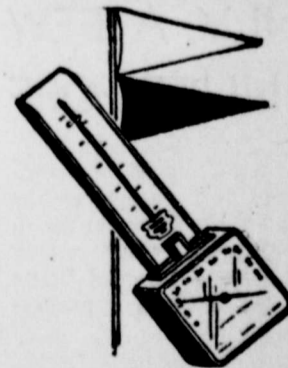

Landowners are called to meet in the District Court Room in Gatesville at 2:30 o'clock, for the purpose of recommending to the State Board, a man to be appointed Supervisor for the Hamilton-Coryell Soil Conservation District.

The State Board is given the authority under the law to appoint the first two supervisors and they are granting landowners of Hamilton and Coryell the right to recommend two supervisors that they would like to have appointed. These men must be landowners living within the District and at a later date an election will be held to elect three more landowners as supervisors.

C. K. Burns, Coach at Valley Mills High School, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Burns, at the State Training School.

David Franks of Wichita Falls spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Franks.

much, this week, lectures on the book of Acts.
 We enjoyed having a well filled house at Jonesboro last Sunday. A responsive audience like that always inspires a preacher to do his best. An occasional "amen" from a true Christian heart is much appreciated by the pastor. "Amen" means so may it Be. The preacher does not know whether the people appreciate what he is saying or not without a response.

BAPTIST CHURCH EXTENDS ROLL CALL THROUGH MONTH OF MARCH

There was a splendid response on the part of the members of the First Baptist Church to the first Church Roll Call Service which was held last Sunday. Every Sunday in the month of March is designated as Roll Call Sunday. Thus giving every member of the church, unless providentially hindered, an opportunity to answer the roll call one or more times during the month. It is earnestly hoped that every member will avail himself of this privilege and opportunity.

"NORTHWEST PASSAGE" WAS FIELD DAY FOR COSTUMERS

Wearing out green buckskin Ranger outfits so completely in two days that they were no longer fit for service is the record of Spencer Tracy, Robert Young and Walter Brennan. With arduous scenes requiring such mortality on outfits, it was small wonder that the wardrobe man on location in the forests and swamps of Idaho had his troubles during production of the Technicolor adventure film "Northwest Passage" which opens next Saturday at the Palace Theatre for an engagement of three days.

When the studio wardrobe department filled three over-sized box cars with outfits for the location sequences, it was assumed there would be plenty of costume changes for 240 Rangers, 200 British soldiers, 200 French soldiers, 200 oarsmen and 100 Indians. The first emergency arose for Sox. The 700 taken along proved only a drop in the bucket. In the lakes, woods and swamps, a pair lasted an average of three days. Sox were rushed from the studio to fill the need.

LIONS CLUB HEAVYWEIGHT BASKETBALL GAME IN LOCAL GYM TUESDAY NIGHT

Next Tuesday night in the Gatesville high school gym the thump thump brigade of the local Lions Club will take to the hardwood floor in a brilliant goal-shooting exhibition that is likely to draw fans from the "fer forks of the branch."

On one side will be J. B. Martin, "Mastero of the Mighty Maulers" and his team which is composed of J. H. Barneburg, Roger Miller, George Painter, V. C. Ray, Crawford Scott, Earle Worley, Frank Farquhar, Pat Holt, R. D. Foster and Howard Franks.

Corporal Troy (Too Long) Jones is in command of the other division which is composed of Reb Brown, H. K. Jackson, Bobby Patterson, Dr. O. Carter Ray, Wade Sadler, M. G. Slay, Luke Walker, Dr. K. R. Jones, Harry Jones, A. L. Chollar and E. W. Brooks.

To make the game still more interesting is the fact that an argument between Martin of the Maulers and Corporal Jones of the opposing aggregation, is gaining momentum as the date of the game approaches and by the time the clash is over, is likely to develop into a hillybilly feud that will make the descendants of the Martins and the Coys (if there are any) take to the tall timber.

Corporal Jones charges that his team is sure to win as Martin who is said to be the star on the Maulers team can't even hit a transmission with a grease gun. Martin comes back with a statement that he's worked out a 0-0-0 combination of brawn-plus-brains and that Jones' men will have about as much chance as a Russian Division in Finland.

This is by far the greatest collection of "Two-Ton-Tonies" that has ever been assembled in this vicinity and will probably be the last as a greater part of the number are not expected to survive after the ordeal.

A lady referee, assisted by Bobbie Arnold will officiate at the massacre. Don't Miss It!

GHS Track Hopetuls Report for Practice

Tuesday afternoon while suffering from an acute attack of spring fever we watched the Hornets' track team limber up preparatory for the county meet which will be held next week end.

Scheonewolf worked diligently on the mile and this race between this speedy Hornet and Dumas of Pearl is likely to be one of the major track attractions. Dumas was second in the mile last year, and is reported to be coming back stronger than ever.

Ward and Laceywell looked fair on the pole vault and should be able to place in the county without much outside competition. Williams and Ward appear to be tops in the high jump but have some kinks to work out before they can accomplish much in this event. Jones is the Hornets best bet on the discus throw and with another week of practice will be in pretty fair shape for the meet.

Who will represent the locals in the 220, 440 and the 100 yard dash was not learned as some of boys had not reported for practice. According to Coach Worley, a complete workout in all events will be held next week to determine the best all-around track man on the team.

Mexico comprises 28 states, two territories and one federal district.

Last year baseball celebrated its 100th birthday anniversary as the nations leading sport, and with the opening date of the 1940 season rapidly approaching, we are reminded that its time to start laying the groundwork for another county baseball league.

This year, as in the past, the News will offer a beautiful Championship trophy to the winning team in the County Baseball League and the City Softball League. The names of the winners will be engraved on the trophy and they will be declared the official champions of 1940.

Last year Pidcoke won the baseball championship after a blistering series and year before last Jonesboro copped the trophy.

In the softball loop the Coca-Cola Bottling Company were the Champions of 1938 and Arnold's were victorious last season.

No definite date has been set for the opening of the 1940 softball season. Arnold's last year's champions are practically ready to go into practice sessions with only one vacant slot in the line-up remaining to be filled. Several more teams are rounding up players preparatory to the opening of the season and as usual competition is sure to be keen.

Here's the teams that composed the 1939 City softball league: Merchants, CCC, Highway, Coca-Cola, Arnold's and Firemen.

In the county Baseball League last year nine teams saw action, namely: Pidcoke, Mound, White Hall, Blackfoot, Topsey, Pearl, Moshier, Turnersville and Gatesville.

All these teams should be able to participate again this year and possibly more. The eastern part of the county around The Grove, Seattle, Flat and Hubbard is generously sprinkled with good baseball talent and could support one or more good clubs if they were properly organized and managed.

In the near future a baseball meeting will be held at the News office for the purpose of organizing a County Baseball League, adopting a set of rules and regulations to govern the league, working out a schedule, electing officers and other necessary arrangements before the official opening of the season. Further announcement concerning the meeting will appear in the News and every person interested in baseball, especially the teams that played last season are urged to be present. New teams over the county who plan to enter the league are also urged to come or send a representative.

As we go to press the Hornets will be battling the Santa Rosa Sextete in their first clash of the State Girls Basketball Meet which started at 10:30 o'clock Thursday.

The strength of the Santa Rosa team which comes from Cameron county away down in the southern tip of Texas, is still a mystery. Should the Hornets come out victorious in the first game, they will meet the winner of the Bullard-Highland game at 9:30 p. m. Friday.

Results of Junior-Senior BB Tourney

Yes, it takes good lumber to build a good home. We often think by shopping around we can save 10% on the lumber bill, and we get a cheaper grade of lumber which may amount to about a 2 1/2% saving on the whole building when completed in cost; but the lumber is really the frame work that gives strength to the structure, and finish to the floors, doors and inside wood work, when this warps, twists and draws out of shape, we have a sorry and cheap looking building and we have for 2 1/2% on the cost driven a poor bargain. Remember it takes GOOD LUMBER well put up that insures you 100% on the money you put into your home.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 1940

NUMBER 23

The House has been holding long sessions each day—often lasting until into the night, very much as if we were approaching adjournment. Prior to the passage of the "Lame Duck Amendment" six or eight years ago Congress adjourned every other year on the 4th of March and the members were given an opportunity to spend much of their time at home. As it is now, there are no short sessions and since I have been a member the President has called a special session almost every Fall as well as regular sessions lasting about eight months each year. This is the reason you have seen so little of your Congressman in recent years. This year we hope to be able to adjourn in June.

Early this week the House passed the first Deficiency Appropriation Bill. This bill carried appropriations for the payments of judgements and claims against the United States, and for deficits in many of the departments. The total amount appropriated was $90,000,000, which was $4,020,000 less than the budget estimates.

The most hotly contested measure of the week was the bill for the increase in the capital of the Export-Import Bank. This bill was very generally referred to as the "Finnish Relief Bill". It was so called because it is known that Hon. Jesse Jones, the Administrator of the Federal Loan Agency, has stated that with the increase in capital of this bank he would be willing to consider loans for the sale to Finnish citizens of American products of a non-military character. The bill limits the amount that may be loaned to promote trade with any one country to $20,000,000. It provides that no loans shall be made to finance the purchase of guns, ammunition, or implements of war. It is, therefore, impossible for Finland to use any credit under the terms of this bill for the purchase of war materials that she so desperately needs, and I fear that this bill will prove but a false hope to the brave people of this little republic. This should not be taken as evidence that the Congress does not sympathize with Finland, but rather that the American Congress is not going to do anything that might in any manner involve our country in the European war. This bill was introduced last year, long before the Russian invasion of Finland. It was felt then that the capital stock of the Export-Import Bank should be increased to promote trade with foreign countries and thereby increase our exports of American goods. Incidentally, the record shows that much of the money advanced by this Bank has been used to export cotton—and interestingly there have been no losses, and so far the bank has made over $5,000,000 profit.

This bank does not make direct loans to foreign nations as so many people suppose. The loans are made to Americans engaged in foreign trade. For instance, an American citizen or corporation has 10,000 bales of cotton. They find that they can sell this cotton to a firm or individual in Sweden, but that the Swedish buyer must make payments over an extended period of time while the American owner of the cotton must have his money in cash. The sale could not be made unless someone in the United States would take the notes of the Swedish purchaser. That is what the Export-Import Bank is set up to do. If it feels that the notes will be paid it buy them and gives the American exporter cash. Often the bank will require the American exporter to hold part of the notes to prove his good faith. Often the notes are obligations of the Central Bank of the nation to which the goods move. Sometimes the Export-Import Bank has required the deposit of foreign currency as security. These are the transactions that we have looked upon as foreign loans. They are actually banking services rendered to our own exporters in an effort on the part of the Government to encourage the sale of American surpluses, particularly farm surpluses. I voted for the bill believing that it is helpful to our own people to do everything we can to increase our foreign markets, and especially so when the action involves no loss to our Government. I will be glad if this action will enable the people in Finland to get anything that they need here, but the bill is not a Finnish relief bill and no one should be deceived.

Later in the week, the House passed the Non-Military Appropriations Bill for the War Department. This bill includes the appropriation for rivers, harbors, and similar items that have no connection with the military activities of the Army, but which are supervised by the Army Engineers. This bill reduced the appropriation when compared with last years by $16,609,134.

We have just this afternoon passed the Anti-Stream Pollution Bill. We have long recognized the importance of protecting our streams from pollution by industry as well as big cities. This bill attempts to put a stop to this evil.

CHAPTER I

ALL day long selected special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Washington had been pouring lead into every form of moving and still target with sub-machine guns, rifles and pistols. The keen-eyed marksmen, all members of the famous federal organization for several years, had been recalled to the capital from the various cities to which they had been assigned for the special re-training period, required at eight-month intervals. A trainer brought an end to the day's "hostilities" with a blast of his whistle. "Report to the gym tomorrow morning at nine," he directed. "We'll be there," Scott Britton, a tall, dark-haired agent replied. The trainer complimented him on his marksmanship. "I suppose I was no good?" Ross with blond hair and blue eyes, grinned at the trainer.

"On the contrary, you were better than average, Mr. Waring." The trainer indicated George Mattison, a little older than the other two men, with streaks of silver in his wavy hair. "And as for Mr. Mattison, he's always good."

The trainer waved goodbye and left the group. A stocky agent advanced on the three men.

"How're Mrs. Mattison and the three boys?" he asked Mattison.

"Ed Bradshaw!" Mattison exclaimed. "Glad to see you. Rita's fine. Ed. The kids are growing like weeds on Aunt Lindy's southern fried chicken—"

"Still have Lindy?" Bradshaw asked, smacking his lips.

"I'll say he has. What a cook!" Britton exclaimed. "Where're you working now, Ed?"

"Out on the coast." He turned to Mattison.

"By the way, George—I saw a note on the teletype this morning that'll interest you. Remember 'Big Boy' Bradmore? He's coming up for parole—"

Mattison looked at Britton and Waring.

"Can you tie that!" he exclaimed.

And, in the southern city where Mattison, Britton and Waring made their headquarters, wheels were already turning to free the public enemy. Tyler Craden, criminal lawyer, was dictating to his secretary a letter to the warden of the penitentiary to which Bradmore had been sent. The letter supposedly was written by Bradmore's mother and was filled with sticky sentimentality.

"You're breaking my heart, Mr. Craden!" exclaimed the secretary.

"You think it's okay, Miss Menthe?"

"Gorgeous!"

The next day the warden got the letter, read it to Bradmore to inspire him to a better life, gave him some nice fatherly advice on going straight, and turned him over to the parole authorities.

A week later he hijacked a fur truck, shot one of the drivers, slugged the other and escaped with the loot.

A few days after that he reported to his lawyer, Craden, and gave him a stack of bills. Craden counted them.

"Only fifteen thousand," he said. "I know you got twenty-one thousand for those furs. My fee seems to

He scribbled a note on a card. "Mention my name to the manager. He'll keep you under cover until the noise on this fur job dies down."

"Okay."

Craden showed the public enemy into the hall through a side door, then returned to his office and asked Miss Menthe to send the parole board chairman in to him. He greeted him with a wide smile.

"Well, Gus! This is a pleasant surprise!"

Kalkus nervously closed the door behind him.

"Stop pretending!" he snapped. "You knew I'd be here." He opened a newspaper, indicated the headlines. They stated:

"POLICE SEEK BIG BOY BRADMORE IN FUR TRUCK HOLDUP"

"What about this?" he demanded. "You said that if I arranged Bradmore's parole I had your guarantee out of line—around here, anyway."

"Have you any proof that Bradmore pulled that job, Gus? Stop being a chump for a headline. And that reminds me—what about the matter of Steve Eddson's parole? When are you going to have the board take that up?"

Kalkus held up his hands as if to ward off the suggestion.

"After this Bradmore business," he expostulated, "I can't bring up any more nominations. I had trouble over Bradmore as it was, and this man, Eddson, has an even worse record—"

Craden snapped his fingers.

"What's a record? Paper and ink!" He lowered his voice, looked at Kalkus out of the corners of his eyes. "Supposing someone wrote on a piece of paper—with ink—that Gustav Kalkus is in serious difficulties with the finances of the twelve story building that bears his name. If the people who make investigations and write records were to go over your books and discover that you have manipulated your bonds, you can't tell—you might be asking for a parole—instead of giving them out—"

"You'd—see that my books were examined, Craden?"

"Of course not. Come on, Gus—take life with more calm and serenity. Now about Steve Eddson—"

"I tell you it's impossible. The public would never stand for—"

Craden smiled. "The public? The public is going to demand the parole of Steve Eddson."

Bradmore leaned forward tensely. "Isn't Kalkus chairman of the parole board?" he asked.

be a little short. You'll give me eighteen."

"Leaving only three for me!" Bradmore protested.

"They aren't giving paroles away with chewing gum."

"Sure," sneered Bradmore. "You had to do some heavy bribing."

"I have never bribed a public official." A crafty smile played around Craden's thin lips. "However, there are certain things one must do for certain people to keep on friendly terms with them—"

"Say, listen, Craden—"

The buzzing of the dictograph interrupted his protest. Miss Menthe's voice came over the wire:

"Mr. Kalkus is here to see you."

Bradmore leaned forward, tensely.

"Isn't Kalkus chairman of the parole board?" he asked.

"Yes," said Craden, holding up a hand for silence. "Tell him to wait," he ordered his secretary. He turned to Bradmore as he clicked the key.

"Go to the Owl Hotel," he said.

KITES and WIRES

A Dangerous Combination

• Kite-flying is great sport for growing youngsters but danger lurks when kites are flown near electric lines. Every year little lives are needlessly lost in accidents caused by the use of wire for kite strings, attempts to retrieve kites entangled in electric lines and other hazardous practices.

BOYS and GIRLS--PLAY SAFE!

Follow These Safety Suggestions

1. Do not use wire or metallic kite string.
2. Do not fly your kite with wet string or in wet weather.
3. Do not use metal kite sticks.
4. Never try to rescue kites from electric wires by using long sticks or climbing poles.
5. Never try to jerk your kite from an electric wire by pulling on the tail or string.
6. Best of all, fly your kites in open fields clear away from electric wires.

If you see a kite caught in a wire, call our office at once. Our employees know how to remove kites without endangering anyone or causing an interruption in electric service.

Local School Head Attends Convention

Selecting for the theme of their programs, "What Is Right with the Schools?" nearly 12,000 educators assembled at St. Louis, Feb. 24-29, to attend the Seventieth Annual Convention of the American Association of School Administrators.

Among achievements recounted was a remarkable record in the teaching of safety which resulted in the saving between 1922 and 1938 of the lives of 62,000 school children. These figures are given in the Yearbook, "Safety Education" one of the principal reports of the Convention, prepared by a Commission at work for two years investigating methods of safety instruction now practiced in the schools of the nation.

An entire session was devoted to other notably effective practices and outstanding accomplishments of the schools. Edgar G. Doudna of Madison, Wisconsin, described advancements made in the teaching of elementary school subjects such as spelling, arithmetic, and reading, and the improvements made in school buildings, playground equipment, libraries, shops, laboratories, and administrative organization. He assailed the "blind and stupid leadership which insists on curtailing the work of the schools and the opportunities of that the survival of democracy depends upon what the schools can do to raise the social intelligence of all the people. Francis T. Spaulding, Harvard University, enumerated forward steps in high school education, giving this educational level great credit for inculcating good physical habits, for increasing the demand for a higher standard of living, and for helping to minimize class distinction among the American people. Superintendent Willis A. Sutton of Atlanta, speaking on the subject of what is right with youth in general, saw great hope for the nation's future in the fact that young people have begun to think for themselves, that their eagerness to learn is increasing, and that their desire to cultivate the spiritual life is greater than ever before.

Speakers at a session devoted to "The National Scene" were Paul V. McNutt, Administrator, Federal Security Agency, and James G. McDonald, Chairman of President Roosevelt's Advisory Committee on Political Refugees. Mr. McNutt called attention to expansion in the functions of government in the United States in order to meet the needs of citizens and to enrich democracy, at a time when popular government is breaking down in most European countries. Defending recent steps in the evolution of self-government in the United States, Mr. McNutt declared that "Our occasional nostalgia for the simpler governmental functions of an earlier day should not blind us to the exigencies of a different time." Mr. McDonald discussed the diplomatic and military fronts of the warring nations, claiming that the history of the months immediately prior to our entrance into the World War "does not support those who contend that the United States will under no circumstances become involved."

The responsibilities of education of maintaining the democratic ideal were stressed by many Convention speakers. G. Bromley Oxnam, Methodist Bishop of Boston, urged educators to lead a crusade for free self-government. William F. Russell, Teachers College, Columbia University, spoke on "Education for National Defense." Important steps being taken to improve school training for citizenship in a democracy were described by the staff of the Educational Policies Commission. The Commission has analyzed programs of citizenship education in eight-five selected high schools. These programs are to be described in a publication of the Commission which will include extracurriculum activities and community life as well as class study as a means of training citizens.

The social studies as related to citizenship education came to the fore in "America's Town Meeting of the Air" weekly radio program of the National Broadcasting Co., of which the final Convention assembly was the studio audience. The topic was "Should Controversial Subjects Be Discussed in the Schools?" The affirmative was upheld by United States Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker; the negative by C. Harold Cauldfield, president of the San Francisco Board of Education.

Education in the economic welfare of democracy was discussed by John K. Norton, Teachers College, Columbia University, who pointed to the part education plays in maintaining and increasing a nation's productive capacity, conserving its material resources, developing its capital and managing its industrial problems with intelligence. "A positive attack on unemployment means training more boys and girls in school for the better-paid, semi-skilled and highly skilled occupations, so that our productivity and our total national income can rise," said Mr. Norton, in a plea for an increase in the amount of education provided for youth.

Two outstanding entertainment sessions featured Convention programs. The Educational Policies Commission presented "On Our Way," a revue which set forth dramatically the purposes of education. Participants were students and teachers in the schools of Clayton, University City, and Webster Groves, suburban communities of St. Louis. The script was written by E. W. Jacobsen, Superintendent of Schools in Oakland, California. "Musica Americana", a dramatic portrayal of American music from the days of the Indian to those of Irving Berlin and John Philip Sousa, was presented by nearly 3,000 students from St. Louis High Schools, under the direction of Ernest Hares, supervisor of Instrumental music in the schools of that city.

The Associated Exhibitors of the National Education Association were in charge of a session at which William Lyon Phelps of Yale and Irvin S. Cobb, author and humorist, were speakers. William Lyon Phelps was the recipient of the American Education Award made each year by the Exhibitors to an outstanding educator.
