In Little Old New York

We believe, in the fast moving events, we must have left you somewhere in the deep south. Most of the south, as we've repeatedly told you was a constant repetition of the states about which we've already written.

Georgia, was somewhat bigger than we expected, and we believe we told you we stopped in Opelika, Ala., one of the nights. Then, on thru Macon, Augusta, Milledgeville, where we ate dinner, and then, we were out of the "repetition" states.

The south end of South Carolina is a dandy country. Beautiful productive farms, and then, as you go north, you get again in the piney woods, the "hillbilly" country. Also, you might duplicate the same thing about South Carolina, except reverse it.

Then briefly, we went on to Richmond, Virginia, and all thru the country, there's that looking-backward attitude, or appearance of the country. Historical places, it seems, always glory in the past.

We tied up at Richmond, about 7 miles out, and drove thru this historic part of Old Virginia. About every hundred yards or so, there's a historic marker of some kind. Traffic, like is unknown in Texas, began after Richmond. Most of the time between the cities, there were four lane highways, but nearer to New York, they spread out to 7 or more lanes.

In Washington, D. C., we visited the Capitol, the White House, and many of the government buildings (drove by) stopping only at the Capitol. We telephoned Miss Lorraine Alexander and tried to get connected with Congressman Poage, but didn't make it—it was Sunday.

Beginning at Washington, the traffic troubles started. Being Sunday, there were millions of Sunday drivers from every state and

BURNEY ASKS FOR SECOND TERM IN LEGISLATURE

In asking for a second term, I do so believing I have rendered my district and the State of Texas a valuable service, and if re-elected will be in a position to render a still greater service.

I have voted my honest convictions without regard to the effect of such upon my popularity or political future. I refused to shift the responsibility back to you as I might have done.

Each vote that I cast would have been unchangeable, had every voter in this district been in the galleries of the House of Representatives to watch my actions. I kept the faith and was not a "Yes Man", to be brow beaten or bluffed by the representatives of special interest. My sole ambition was to fill the office to which you have so graciously elected me with credit to myself and my district. I am willing to stand on my record.

Texas is the richest state in our union, with natural resources running into billions of dollars. With the yearly expenditures amounting to more than one hundred million. We need honest, capable, fearless men to manage this large a business—men with integrity and patriotism, men who are more concerned with the future of Texas than their own political fortunes, men with courage, who can say "NO" when under pressure of the hirings of big interest.

The record of the Forty Sixth Legislature will show that I cast more than two thousand votes, and not one have I cast to back the promise that I made you—that promise not to raise the taxes upon the common citizens of this district. Some of the most controversial measures to come before a

E. F. POHL, INDIAN RELIC COLLECTOR, HERE SUNDAY

E. F. Pohl, who is connected with the Dallas Journal at Dallas, was in this city Sunday visiting Dr. Clyde Bailey and while here was a pleasant caller at the News office.

Mr. Pohl has a hobby of collecting Indian relics and was in Gatesville to obtain additional relics for his collection, which is said to be one of the best in the State. He has spent the past twenty five years of his life in archaeological research and is especially interested in obtaining Coryell county relics for his collection.

DR. ELWORTH LOWREY RECEIVES LETTER FROM HONOLULU

The following paragraphs were taken from a letter received by Dr. Elworth Lowrey from Bryan Arnold, a former Gatesville boy, who is enlisted in the U. S. Army, stationed in Honolulu:

"This is a paradise. Beautiful verdant isles lounging in a tropical ocean, blest by trade winds, decorated with dusky maidens—quite an ideal for romantic living.

The temperature is never above 75 degrees farhenheit except in the evening when it falls about 10 degrees. My post is inland, near the mountains, hence we have colder, or I should say cooler, average temperature than Honolulu. I am twenty miles by highway from the city.

At present I am on maneuvers. The entire department is just finishing two weeks of mimic war. The climax came last night with a territory-wide "blackout" and an "attack" by enemy bombers.

Ten minutes after the island went black, planes dropped clusters of flares that lighted their supposed "targets". Searchlights from every direction then tried to pick them up, but could not. The planes were too high and aided by a cloud bank that limited visibility. I'm afraid we would have been mercilessly bombed.

European matters are going into tropical stages, arn't they? Hope we stay out. I'd better stop for this time. Many regards to Alene and best of luck to you.

Your Friend,

territory on the highway. Baltimore was next, Wilmington, Del., Trenton, N. J., and Philadelphia, Pa. When the highway got jammed into two lanes, we really found out what traffic was.

It was about the same thruout New York, New Jersey, etc., and we finally landed in the city via the Holland Tunnel and the up-town express drive (after going under the Hudson), and deposited ourselves at the Hotel Chesterfield. Total milage was about 1,900 and included only one flat. (The old tires are a shade weak).

The Hotel is on 49th between 6th and 7th avenues, and about four block from Times Square. It's reasonable, too, as we have two rooms, 2 double beds and a half, for $7.50 per day, with the last day free. Car storage is $1 a day.

The Family, the "big shot", Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Graves and Annie spent the first day looking over the Fifth, Park, Madison and Lexington Avenue shops, while we were at the convention. There are only two representatives from Texas, myself and Mrs. J. Lee Rountree of the Bryan Daily Eagle. The Mission Times, the Menard News, and The Temple Daily Telegram all won various places in the newspaper contests.

To a fellow from a small town like Gatesville, it's really unusual to be treated as well in a big city. We went to the convention headquarters, registered, and immediately went into session at we suppose the Cinderella Room (it was decorated with Cinderella's pictures. Winners were announced, and other announcements made, and then at 12:30, we adjourned for the World's Fair, with a free ride on the Subway (It isn't often done in New York). Busses met us at the gate, and took us to the Swedish Pavilion. Here, we had luncheon or dinner with Smorgs-board, or whatever the Swedes eat, and when it comes to cooking chicken, there's none better. The other courses consisted of the evident base of all Scandinavian dishes, which was fish, spices, and cheese. Then, there was an ice cream delicacy like which these old storebought teeth have never been hanged (hung) over. This was followed by a demi-tasse (to us regular guys, that's just a half pint cup of coffee).

Well, al lthat ended briefly, and then we again boarded the buses, and went to Billy Rose's Aquacade, which to our little mind is a glorified extension of Casa Manan at Fort Worth. It was just Billy Rose, New York size. We were a little late and only saw and heard that bellowing Everett Marshall singing one of those he-man songs, with an appropriate chorus. This was in day time, and we imagine there's no comparison to the show at night. It was all beautiful.

Soon this closed, and we were then again bus-boarded, and taken to Mr. General Motor's Futurama, a delightful experience in the future, which these old eyes might see come true, if they are not dimmed by years too soon. The good part, we, the NEA by-passed the regulars who had been probably been standing in line for two hours and took our seats in the sitting down-escalator, and this, with a radio at each two chairs, which explained the entire lay-out, which was very impressive. The design and job was done by the famous imaginative artist Bel Geddes, or some sort name.

Shown thru the General Motors exhibit, which was the "sales-talk" for G-M, we were then taken to their "guest rooms", after the men in the party received a carnation for their lapels, and the ladies, each a gardenia.

Here, we went personally, and shook hands with Alfred P. Sloan, Chairman of General Motors Corporation, and Charles F. Kettering, Chief engineer and general manager, who is given up to be the brains of this vast organization. Also there was Grover C. Whalen, originator of the World's Fair, and the man who sold the "ash heap" to Mr. Sloan.

It was a "cocktail" party, and everything was on the house. And by the time we got thru with their generosity, most of us were under the house, so to speak.

They fixed that however, and we of the Texas delegation, went to a table for further refreshments which was presided over by a G-M host who was formerly a Dallas boy. G-M is no more shoddy about this en dig a buffet luncheon or whatever you want to call it, as they were with the "wet goods". It all ended with the usual demi-tasse, after a meat course, and various others, including cherries and ice cream. Although, we're not autograph collectors, just to prove, if necessary, that we did get close to the "big shot" G-M executives, we got their autographs. That, to us, was a thrill a country boy like ourselves seldom has the opportunity of getting.

Today, this is Tuesday, we had a morning session, and at this meeting Col Julius Ochs Adler, vice president and General Manager of the New York Times, who spoke on "National Defense". This included the introduction of a bill in Congress for the selection of men of all stages of life, and the women too, not only the youngsters, but up to the age of 60 for various parts in the national defense. Students would be allowed to continue or finish their education.

For every barrel of petroleum produced in Texas last year, 46 cents was paid in wages, salaries to workers.

GOVERNMENT MATTRESS MAKING IN CORYELL COUNTY

It is planned to have 20 centrally located places in the county where mattresses can be made. Total cost of each mattress to one receiving same will be $30, which will pay for; roll needles, tufting twine, straight pins, safety pins, thread, steel file and first aid kit.

The opening games will be announced later.

The Blackfoot-Mound clash that has been looked forward to with much anticipation by Coryell county baseball fans took place at Mound Sunday afternoon as the powerful Blackfoot Indians slugged their way to a 4 to 1 victory.

In the box for the Indians was the veteran right-hander Jack Barton who did an excellent job of throttling the dandy little Mound club while his mates pounded "Scaley" Holcomb, youthful school boy hurler for four runs to cinch the contest.

Pidcoke Open

Virgil Lockhart's Pidcoke Cokers by virtue of Topsey's withdrawal from the race early in the season remained idle Sunday and are preparing for their game with Plainview at Pidcoke next Sunday. The Cokers have played like wildfire in some of their games this season and rather listless in others, but they are still one of the favorite teams in the league. Plainview has made several changes in their lineup recently and just what effect that these changes will make will probably be revealed in Sunday's game with the Cokers.

Plainview Wallops Coryell City

No definite report on the Plainview-Coryell City clash which was played at Plainview Sunday has been turned in other than that Plainview was victorious by a large score. Coryell City is scheduled to play Turnersville at Coryell City next Sunday.

Jonesboro, the leading team in the race, played Turnersville on the Turnersville diamond Sunday afternoon but as yet no results have been turned in to the league's secretary. More results and the League's Standing will be carried in the sport columns of Friday's issue of the News.

THERE was a girl in Chicago that broke the heel of her shoe when she stepped down from one of them high curbs along about Monroe street one day, and she kinda keeled over and fell on the sidewalk. Then she was so scared with all the yaps crowding around that she fainted, and they loaded her into an ambulance and took her home. She had to make out she was hurt when she got home, so her dad wouldn't kick too much about the ambulance bill, so she said she sprained her knee. Her mother said: "Well, there's that nice-looking young man that goes by here every night and morning with the medical case in his hand; I'll call him in when he passes this evening." So she did.

"My daughter sprained her knee," she says, "and I want you to take a look at it."

"Oh, thanks," he says, "but really, you know—"

"Come right in here. There she is. I think it's hurt bad, but it don't show, you know. Looks all right. Just take a look at it."

So of course he did, and then he says, "Yes. Well, thanks," and started to go out, kinda embarrassed-like.

"But looka-here," says Mamma, "I want you to tell us what we ought to do for her. For the knee, you know."

"Oh," the young man says, "why, if I was you, I think I'd call a doctor, although the knee looks fine and dandy. You see, I'm a piano tuner, and I'm awful busy and I really can't stay any longer."

Texas oil refined 400,000,000 barrels of petroleum in 1939, or over four-fifth of the States' total oil production.

BURNEY ASKS—

Texas Legislature were among that number. I have been accredited throughout the state for my actions to defeat some of these unfair tax measures.

It was my solemn promise to the people to oppose a sales tax. I made that promise without reservation. My record will show that I "kept the faith." Again my record will show that I voted consistently in the economy block of the House which effected a twelve million dollar cut in the appropriation bills.

It has ever been my policy to let the people know my stand upon all important questions. I believe every one in this district has full knowledge of my actions during the last session. I fought hard for what I believed was right and fought still harder against what I thought was wrong. I went on the radio and told the people of this district and all of Texas what was wrong with S-J-R-12 and who was behind it, to saddle the burden upon the common citizens.

I want to make it plain here and now, that I shall continue to fight a sales tax in any form, I shall not be subjected to sugar coated compromises which will ultimately result in the same sales tax, on the common people of this district. That would repudiate the very promise I have made. You will not find me promising to fight an unjust tax at the beginning, and then end up by supporting that same tax, when the heat and the pressure is put on me as happened in the last session.

Over 90 per cent of the candidates for legislature have pledged themselves against a sales tax, I point out that it is easy to promise to oppose a tax measure, but how will these candidates vote after the Governor demands a sales tax as was done in the last session. I shall discuss further the issue in the next edition of this paper.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS
WHENEVER I hear or read about some poor soft hearted country-boy being done-in by city slickers I am reminded of this story about a native of Arkansas who came to New York to see the sights. He entered a drug store and in a corner he spotted a new fangled telephone with dials and a lot of slots. This guy took out a nickel, dropped it in a slot, gave the dial a couple of whirls and lifted up the receiver. He was amazed to hear a voice from the contraption saying, "What number did you call." "Number, Heli," answered the true hill billie, "I want my peanuts." (American News Features, Inc.)

TEXAS POLITICS

If Texas voters fail to stir from their lethargic attitude concerning the gubernatorial race, Governor O'Daniel will hold a decisive advantage over his six opponents when the balloting starts on July 27.

The fact that the chief executive is known in all parts of the State plus the two-term precedent for Texas governors will accrue to his advantage. His opponents face the task of convincing the voters that the governor should not be re-elected. This will be difficult to accomplish if the candidates are unable to attract crowds on their speaking tours or to share with the radio commentators the attention of listeners.

Eight gubernatorial candidates were certified by the State Democratic Executive Committee—five less than were in the race in 1938—but only seven of these will make the race. Opposing O'Daniel are Harry Hines, Jerry Sadler, Miriam A. Ferguson, R. P. Condron, Ernest O. Thompson and Arlon B. (Cyclone) Davis.

Rep. Albert L. Derden of Marlin, the eighth certified candidate, last week announced his withdrawal from the race in favor of Highway Commissioner Hines.

Sadler and Hines have undertaken the most intensive campaigns of the group to date, both having spoken a number of times over State-wide radio hookups. The theme of their speeches is similar: Unequivocal opposition to a sales tax and the assertion that O'Daniel has failed to keep his promises to the voters and therefore should be replaced.

This, apparently, will be the argument of the entire gubernatorial flock, with variations, of course, in her opening address at Waco, Mrs. Ferguson delivered some hard verbal broadsides at the governor.

Campaigning on a big scale will probably be launched before the end of the month, regardless of the foreign situation, as the candidates realize the necessity of delivering some telling blows at the incumbent before the July voting.

The Sadler and Thompson campaigns will be well financed and vigorously conducted in the ensuing weeks. Both have the experience of the 1938 campaign upon which to rely and both will seek to capitalize upon the contacts made during that memorable campaign year.

Hines and Mrs. Ferguson will campaign as industriously as the others but they will have less money to spend than either O'Daniel, Sadler or Thompson.

Jerry Sadler is the only candidate in the gubernatorial race who can equal Lee O'Daniel in the field of showmanships. But whether the people of Texas again will respond to hillbilly music is another question. The quiet, serious analytical speeches of Harry Hines and Ernest Thompson may arouse more enthusiasm at a time when the entire world is seriously contemplative than the songs of a cowboy crooner.

The first primary will be a key to the ultimate outcome of the governor's race. If O'Daniel polls as many votes as he did in the first primary in 1938, he will, of course, win the nomination without the necessity of a second race. If he lacks only a few thousand votes of the combined total of his opponents, his nomination in the second race will be reasonably assured.

But if the combined total of the opposition vote is considerably greater than the vote which O'Daniel amasses, and if his second primary opponent polls a comparatively equal number of votes with the governor, O'Daniel will have to fight for his political life in the second campaign with a good chance of losing the battle.

For this fact is certain: Most of the votes cast for Mrs. Ferguson, Thompson, Hines and Sadler will be anti-O'Daniel votes as the basis of all their campaigns is the alleged failure of the O'Daniel program and the argument that one of them should be elected to succeed him.

If, for example, Hines should enter the second race with O'Daniel, it is reasonable to believe that most of the Ferguson, Sadler and Thompson votes would be cast for him in preference to O'Daniel. The same would apply to Sadler and to Thompson and a lesser extent Mrs. Ferguson, although some voters might abstain from voting for either O'Daniel or Mrs. Ferguson if they were in the second primary contestants.

The decision of former Gov. Dan Moody not to permit his name to be certified on the ballot reacts chiefly to the advantage of Thompson and Hines, who will receive between them most of the votes that would have gone to Moody.

Nineteen candidates were placed upon the ballot for railroad commissioner, the post which Lon A. Smith will vacate at the end of the year.

Only a few of those contending for this lucrative position have State-Wide reputations. These include Senator Olan R. Van Zandt, William H. McDonald, Clyde E. Smith, Olin Culberson, Pierce Brooks, Ross Hardin and John Pundt.

McDonald, Smith, Culberson, Brooks and Pundt have been in various races for State office before. McDonald, former commissioner for the general land office, was defeated by Bascom Giles in 1938 for re-election. Smith ran third in the attorney general's race in 1934. Culberson ran unsuccessfully for the railroad commission in 1932. Brooks was defeated for governor in 1936 and for lieutenant governor in 1938. Pundt lost to retiring Commissioner Smith in a second primary race in 1934.

The second primary contestants for this race will probably be chosen from five of the group listed above—Van Zandt, Culberson, Brooks, Hardin and Pundt.

Attorney General Gerald C. Mann and Land Commissioner Bascom Giles will not be opposed on the Democratic primary ballot.

U. S. Senator Tom Conally and Lieut. Gov. Coke R. Stevenson seem to be certain of re-nomination, as neither has strong opposition.

A.A.A. VIOLATORS FINED

Fines recently assessed against Cameron county residents for violations of the marketing quota provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act leave no doubt but that the AAA will enforce these regulations. N. Foote, chairman of the Coryell County ACA committee points out.

Federal Judge James V. Allred assessed fines ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 against the two partners of a San Benito gin, the bookkeeper of the firm and a farmer, all of whom pled guilty to violating the marketing quota regulations. The two owners were fined $10,000 each with $9,000 suspended pending good behavior for three years. The bookkeeper was fined $1,000 and the farmer $2,000, both fines suspended upon good behavior for three years.

The owners and the farmer had been indicted for conspiracy to defeat and evade the AAA act of 1938 and to defraud the U. S. government of penalties due on cotton sold in excess of allotments granted to certain farms. All four defendants were indicted for conspiracy to violate the 1938 act and to defeat, evade and impair the agricultural policy of the U. S. Government by submitting false and fraudulent reports.

Under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 a national marketing quota for cotton is proclaimed whenever the cotton supply is too large and the price too low. To make the quota effective, cotton farmers throughout the nation must approve it by a it is not enforced. When quotas are in effect, a three-cent per pound penalty is collected on cotton marketed in excess of quotas, but the producer may market all the cotton produced within his acreage allotment without penalty.

LIBERTY CLUB NEWS

"If you could only realize how much good the recreational movement will do our young people, more of you would get behind it. All of you would attend every meeting." Thus began Mrs. Joe Glaze after the club had granted her request, "Let me report on the County recreational meeting".

Mrs. Glaze's report was enthusiastic and inspiring, she realizes the tremendous need of our rural adolescent youth for wholesome entertainment. Considering her own family of sturdy dependable young people, the proposition is a vital one to her. Entertain them at home and they will escape the expense and dangers of going to our urban centers to find amusement.

Would that more parents could realize this need and get squarely behind the movement.

At the club meeting at the Hill Parrish home last Tuesday some very important changes were made. Mrs. Alvin Kautzsch has gone west, where her husband is employed on the D. K. McGeehee wheat plantation. Mrs. Fleeta Wright was appointed to act as poultry demonstrator during Mrs. Kautzsch's absence and Mrs. Calvin Perryman will take Mrs. Kautzsch's place as sponsor of the Senior Girls 4-H group.

The joint meeting of three clubs: Liberty H. D., Senior 4-H and Junior 4-H with Mrs. Parrish was a wonderful success. Her community activities always are. For over fifty years she has been a leader in every forward step our locality has taken. She and her husband are famed for their ability to make their community better and better. Her assistant hostess was her daughter, Mrs. David Hedgepeth of Hamilton. The club members were very happy to re-enter her name on the club roster. It has always belonged there. Mrs. Wallace Parrish was another joint hostess. One of the most interesting features of the recreational period was the piano-vocal solo by Liberty's mocking bird, Miss Hope Parrish. The beloved guest of honor was 96 years old, Grandmother Stansel, who enjoyed the entire afternoon with the same alert attention and appreciation of the women who were two generations younger. Grandmother is our most dearly beloved member and her presence is always an inspiration.

Misses Ray Seward, and Josephine Parrish and Mrs. Roslyn Brown, the retiring club pal committee received numerous thanks for their splendid work of conducting the games for the past three months. So many joys and happy memoirs are linked with this period of activity, that ties have been formed that will never be severed.

The new committee: Mrs. Ermon Hill, Mrs. Albert Tyson, and Miss Pauline Wenzel, who have been at work on their plans for a month, present the largest pal enrollment we have ever had.

Our community mothers noted with satisfaction the intense interest the 4-H groups manifested in their projects. Both groups are growing in numbers.

A palatable luncheon of potato chips, sandwiches, punch and cake was served to the following: Grandmother Stansel, Mrs. Alpha Peck, Mrs. J. Billingsley, Mrs. J. D. Hedgepeth, Miss Pauline Wenzel, Mrs. Harry Gotlin, Miss Maurice Neal, Mrs. Eldon Harris, Mrs. Calvin Perryman, Miss Parmecia Ann, Mrs. Bessie Brown, Mrs. J. B. Saunders, Mrs. W. M. Wenzel, Mrs. Willie Lange, Mrs. R. L. Parrish, Mrs. Fred Hartgraves, Ben L.

Miss Pauline Glaze was elected a candidate for the short course. Billie Doris Boykin, Charlene and Cloydine Hedgepeth joined the 4-H group.

The next club meeting will be with Mrs. Clifford Onstott at Ohio on June 25th.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
Bored by the life of dull correctness which is forced upon her by the fact that her father, Judge Smith, is a candidate for the Presidential nomination, Mary Smith goes to a West Palm Beach rodeo and meets Stretch Willoughby, a cowboy, on a blind date. Posing as her own maid, Mary wins Stretch's interest and sympathy with a sob story about having to support a "drunken father and four younger sisters." Stretch, believing she loves him, returns next day to propose, and when she puts him off he indignantly dumps her into her expensive swimming pool. Mary, contrite, follows him on the boat which he is taking with the show to Galveston. There, under the influence of the southern moon and a few drinks, they decide to let the Captain marry them.

Chapter Four

Things might have turned out more happily if Stretch had not been bound by a contract to play a week's engagement with the rodeo show. As it was, he had no choice but to disembark with the show at Galveston, and his bride had no choice but to accompany him to the rodeo camp.

her family settled. Then, he told her, he would take her out to the Montana ranch where he worked, and where they would live happily together in the idyllic little frame house he was having built.

Mary's return to the Palm Beach house was hailed by Elly with mingled relief and consternation. Relief at seeing her vanished mistress home again; consternation at the knowledge that Judge Smith and his political retinue were to arrive from New York any minute to open the Judge's campaign with a gala dinner at which the all-powerful political boss, Henderson, would be a guest. And if any slightest hint of unorthodoxy in Mary's conduct were to leak out, it would be too bad for her father's Presidential ambitions.

Mary dashed up to her room, basked briefly in the blissful cleansing relaxation of a hot shower, and changed to a smart afternoon frock. She was putting the finishing touches to her hair when someone knocked at her door.

"May I come in, Mary?" called Judge Smith, putting his head in the door. In another moment he held her fondly in his arms.

"You look splendid, my dear. A week in Palm Beach is just what you needed. And now you'll have to help me. The campaign is in excellent shape—probably have the whole thing settled before we leave here. All the committee mem-

"Mary, you're not going to Montana—you're staying here!"

To say that the camp was crude would be a triumph of understatement. For living quarters the fastidiously reared Mary found herself thrust into a tent containing two iron cots (one of which collapsed when she sat down on it) and little else. The camp site was a vacant lot made muddy from recent rains, and liberally studded with puddles of inky water. The ablutionary facilities consisted of a slop bucket of water and a community bar of laundry soap. Cowboys rode here and there, splashing gobs of mud; neighbors, friendly but uncouth, stuck their heads into her tent. By the end of the day Mary, in spite of her efforts to keep up her morale, was a soiled, disheveled, nerve-frazzled wreck.

Stretch found her, lying under a tree in a patch of grass at the outskirts of the camp, seeking surcease from the babble and balm for her jangled nerves.

"What's the matter, Mary? You're worried about something, ain't you?"

"Worried?" she lied. "No, I'm not worried about anything."
"I know. You're worried about your father and those kid sisters. Look—if we could get 'em out to the ranch where we're goin' to live, we could take care of 'em somehow."

Again she was engulfed by a feeling of shame at her deception. "Oh, they'll be all right," she improvised. "I have an uncle—and he'll look after them."

Stretch suggested that she go back home for awhile until she could arrange for the care of her "father and four kid sisters." To the harried girl it seemed a heaven-sent way out of the mess she had let herself become involved in; and she eagerly jumped at the suggestion. So, after supper, he took her to the bus station and tenderly bade her goodbye—just for a few days—until she could get bers and their wives are here, and I want a dinner arranged for them on Tuesday.

"Tuesday?" echoed Mary blankly. It was the day Stretch expected to meet her at the ranch!

"Yes. And I'll want a really impressive reception, my dear. Because who do you think is coming down? Henderson!"

Mary gulped, then decided to blurt out the story and have done with it. "I'm not going to be here Tuesday, Dad. I expect to be in Montana—with my husband. I'm married, Dad, and—"

Smith recoiled. "Mary, this is no time to be facetious!"

"I'm not being facetious. I met him last week at a rodeo—he's a cowboy!"

The Judge's horror was complete. His daughter married to a cowboy! What would people say? And in particular, what would Henderson say? It must not be—and yet it was!

"Mary, you're not going to Montana—you're going to stay right here. And I'll arrange to have the marriage annulled—quietly!"

"I'm sorry, Dad," she told him calmly, "but if you try to do that I'll give the story to the newspapers myself."

Looking defeat in the face, the Judge broke down—seemed almost visibly to shrink. "All right, Mary," he croaked. "Now that you've gone this far I don't suppose I should expect any further help. But I hope you'll have the decency to stay here until after the Henderson dinner. Or—bitterly—is that asking too much?"

Mary, touched to the quick by his disappointment, burst into sobs. "Of course I'll stay, Dad. Please don't worry, it may turn out all right yet. I'll stay and do anything you want me to."

She ran to him, threw her arms around his neck, and burst into sobs.

VARIED NYA PROJECTS SET UP IN CENTRAL TEXAS TOWNS

Central Texas boys and girls are receiving work experience and related information in various types of National Youth Administration projects which form a lattice-work throughout the towns in this area.

Seven NYA centers at Madisonville, Hillsboro, Stephenville, Palestine, Cleburne and Corsicana are offering homemaking experience to girls. In Mother Neff Park near McGregor, the construction and repair of camping facilities have been completed by NYA boys and a summer camp is being operated by girls. In Waco there is an Aeronautical unit that offers nine

There was a time

—when old fashioned heating methods blistered your face while your back thirved.

But now . . .

with natural gas service, winter can be just another pleasant, healthful season in the modern home

A timely reminder

Make your plans now for winter heating ahead of the usual fall rush

Do you remember the old days? Old-fashioned methods of heating . . . children wore heavy underwear and long stockings in order to keep warm . . . members of the family "huddled" in one or two rooms during cold weather . . . mother was shivering about the house with a shawl around her shoulders . . . someone was always "catching cold" . . . Remember? There is a direct relationship between your family's health during winter months and the way you heat your home.

Sudden changes of temperature during the treacherous months of cold weather are dangerous. If you follow the old-fashioned practice of "huddling" in one or two rooms while the rest of the house remains unheated — YOU ARE TAKING CHANCES WITH

YOUR FAMILY'S HEALTH. Plan now to have adequate heat and healthful temperatures in every room in the home this winter. It's the modern way to fight the "common cold."

The cold germ is responsible for more than two hundred million illnesses each year. Don't give a "common cold" an even break!
