YOUNGSTER EDITS TAB AT WEST COLUMBIA: STARTED IN '38

Bobby Wright, is probably one of the youngest publishers in Texas. He publishes a 4-page tab at West Columbia, called "The West Columbia Light".

Bobby, we are told, started the idea while still a student at the West Columbia high school, if he isn't yet, and now is going in for it big.

It's a very creditable publication, and we are indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Leon Anderson of West Columbia for the information, and Bobby for putting us on his mailing list.

Knob Knockers Knock Knobs At Kilowatt And Gas Houses

Knob knock or knob knockers invaded utility row Tuesday and successfully knocked the knob on the Community Public Service Company's safe to the tune of $80.23 in cash and $3.00 in 3c stamps.

They were only 50 per cent lucky, and got nothing at the Community Natural Gas Company, except the knob, which they knocked off and left.

Entrance was made identically at both places—knocking a rear window pane out, and crawling in thru the steel frame windows. Nothing else was disturbed in either case.

Earl Heath said his loss was about $40 in getting the safe fixed back, with a welded piece on the back, where the "opener" had to cut to get his safe open.

So far, no clues have been found.

J. W. Ramsey has returned after a two weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Dillard Ramsey in Waco.

SANTA CLAUS HERE TODAY FOR OPENING OF CHRISTMAS SEASON: PARADE AND ALL THE FIXTURES TO BE HERE

Everyone of you kids from all over Coryell County are goin' to be here today, of all days.

SANTA CLAUS WILL BE HERE!

Santa Claus, will make his "pre-viewing" appearance with all his entourage this morning, Friday, at 11 a. m. or as quickly afterward as he can get his gear ready, and his parade fixed up.

You want to be on hand!

He'll have things to give you, and he'll be wanting to know what you want him to bring when he returns for his annual visit on the night before Christmas, December 24th.

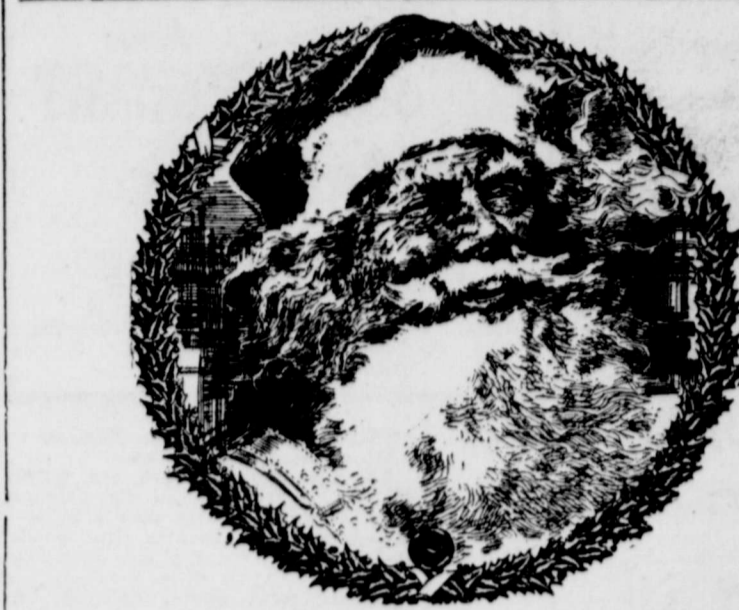

One way to do this is to write the Jones Boys, Incorporated, c/o The Coryell County News, and have your letter forwarded to Old Santa Claus thru our North Pole Post office, which will be here for your convenience.

You know, Old Santa Claus has always made a big hit in Gatesville, and you tell Mama and Papa to be sure and get you to town by 11 o'clock, because then, it won't be long.

You, too, be a good little boy or girl, and then there won't be any switches or ashes in your stocking, Christmas morning when you wake up (if you ever go to sleep).

Tin Can Matinee, 21st

Now, tell Mom and Pop you want a can or two to take to Mr. Powell's or Mr. Brown's show, when the yhave the Second Annual Tin Can Matinee, on Friday, December 20.

Everybody's going to either go to one of the shows or both, and the only thing they'll need that morning is a can or cans of something good to eat. If'n you're 'goin' t' be busy, you needn't mind goin' but need t' mind leavin' a can or cans. We don't care if you leave a case, since this stuff, is going to be distributed to those who more 'n likely won't get any Christmas unless we all do this.

Superintendent Ercell W. Brooks says that school will technically, if not actually be out that morning, and it may be necessary for two showings of the two shows to handle the crowd.

What the promoters want most, is the cans, of course, the show is included, but the can will be gleefully accepted if you don't get to see the "movie".

Distribution will probably be by the Firemen, Lions Club, may be the B and PW and who knows, what other clubs, societies etc.. You know, this is an "open house" proposition, and nobody is barred. Let's make it a big event.

The Red Cross Roll Call Has Gone Over The Top

At the beginning of the Roll Call campaign, the officials of the Coryell County Chapter put as their goal three hundred memberships in Gatesville and a total of five hundred memberships in Coryell County. Both goals have been passed. We already have reported more than six hundred memberships and still more have been obtained but have not yet been reported. The campaign is over, but the list is still growing from day to day. The following is a continuation of the lists already published. The amounts are one dollar or less unless otherwise stated.

THOSE BERRIES: WE'VE GOT TWO STORIES: FRENCH AND ELDER

Two different folks have told us two different stories about the "berries".

Charlie Baker says they're some kind of "French" berries, and we have forgotten that.

Now, comes another lady, who says they come originally from Mississippi and are Elderberries. They grow wild there, she says. We wouldn't know.

"MADE FOR EACH OTHER"

Chapter One

New York's busy streets, the bright sunshine, the roar of traffic, the hurrying throngs, were not for Johnny Mason. Not on this day of days. He might have been sitting on a pink cloud somewhere in space, gazing raptly at the photograph he carried in his hand. He was a detached island, moving down the sidewalk along the line of least resistance, stopping from time to time for another look at the young, blonde beautiful dream that was his.

He almost forgot he was headed for the law firm of Doolittle, Messerschmidt, Doolittle and Hutch, his employers. Had it not been for a collision with a short, squat individual, Johnny might have wandered on, alone with his dream. The collision brought him back to earth just long enough to enter the right building and take the elevator upstairs.

By the time he reached the austere offices where he struggled toward what he hoped would be a partnership in the firm, the rosy glow had returned. This time the spell was broken by a bombardment of questions from the office staff. They rushed at him from all sides.

"How did you meet her?"
"What's she like?"
"Blonde or brunette?"

Johnny was trying to answer them all at once, when he heard the cold voice of Judge Doolittle, which brought instant silence.

He looked again at Eunice. "Congratulations, Mason!" Johnny tried to get six weeks off for a honeymoon to Europe. But Judge Doolittle didn't believe in honeymoons in the first place and in the second place, the Higgins vs. Higgins case was on the calendar next week. Johnny explained he had been promised in continuance. He wound up by accepting two weeks, without a struggle.

This news Johnny carried to his bride when he met her at a beauty parlor an hour later. Only he didn't tell her all at once.

"Well, you see, I didn't exactly get six weeks," he said slowly. "Of course, if I'd insisted —"

Jane, seated in a chair, receiving a facial from a red-haired beauty operator, guessed the truth. "How many, darling?"

After a long pause, "I — I committed on two."

"We'll take in everything — only quicker," Johnny hastened to add. "After all, Howard Hughes went around the world in four days — and it will help with mother."

Jane sat bolt upright.

"What'll help with mother?"

"Well," said Johnny, "we won't have to leave her alone so long."

Something in the back of Jane's mind began to flash a warning.

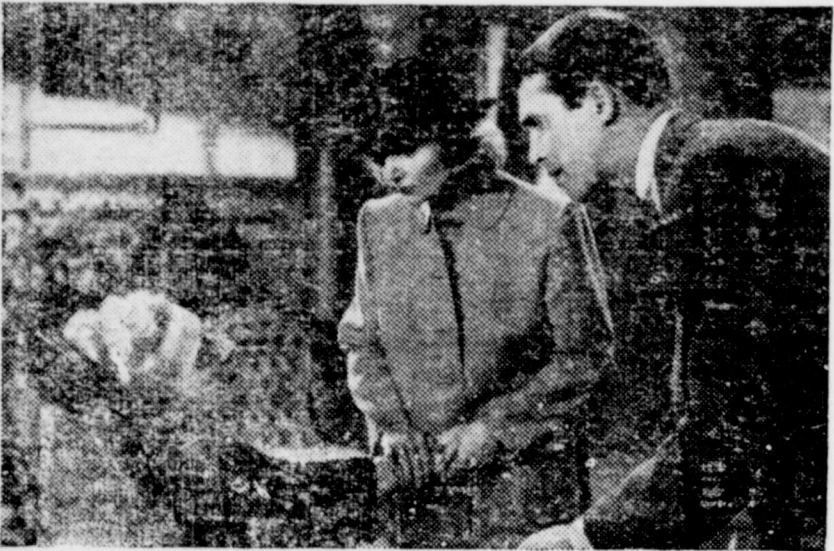

"Johnny," she asked quietly, "what did your mother say when you phoned her this morning?"

"I just sort of broke the ice," Johnny confessed.

"How much ice did you break?"

"I — I just told her that while I was in Boston I ran into several people —"

The warning signal in Jane's

"We're married," said Jane. Mrs. Mason collapsed weakly.

"Mason!" Jimmy turned to face the judge. Doolittle stood, frowning, in the doorway of his office, tall, portly and forbidding. His head was adorned by a mechanical hearing device, attached to his right ear.

"What's all this fuss?" demanded the judge.

"I — they — somehow or other they all found out — while I was in Boston —"

"What were you doing in Boston?"

"I — well — I got the deposition on Higgins against Higgins."

"Well," prompted the judge, "then what's all this horseplay about?"

Johnny gulped. Then, summoning up his courage, he blurted out the news.

"I — I got married!"

Doolittle, his sour expression unchanged, beckoned Johnny into his office. He sat down, glanced at Johnny, then stared at a photograph on his desk, on which was written the words, "To Father, with love, Eunice."

The full significance of the stare hit Johnny. Several times he had escorted the judge's daughter to theatres and night clubs. His own mother more than once hinted at an engagement.

"I imagine this will be a surprise to some people," observed Doolittle. Johnny didn't have to guess his meaning.

Almost desperately Johnny tried to explain how he met Jane on Boston Common.

"Jane — Mrs. Mason — my wife — that is, she wasn't my wife then — but she is now. I got the cinder out of her eye and —"

"You married her," Doolittle concluded for him.

"Judge Doolittle, we knew the minute we looked at each other —"

The judge interrupted with a stentorian pronouncement.

"Last year there were almost half a million divorces in this country."

head flashed bright red.

"Didn't you tell her about me at all?"

"I thought it would be fun to surprise her," said Johnny lamely.

Without pausing in her work, the beauty operator, bending over Jane's face, muttered, "Oh — oh!"

Jane felt like a lamb led to slaughter when at last she was taken by Johnny to meet her new mother-in-law. She agreed with him the news should be broken gently, but she couldn't think how.

At first glance, Jane could see Mrs. Mason was the doting mother, fiercely possessive of her only son.

She was coldly kind to Jane. She brewed tea and served cookies. Her attitude was strictly formal.

Johnny fenced in circles. He told how he met Jane in Boston.

"I knew it was love right after the cinder came out," he said, but he didn't disclose the real news.

Mrs. Mason smiled indulgently and said to Jane, "John's so young and impulsive."

As though building a bulwark around her son against the assault of a predatory female, she launched at once into a long lecture about marriage and its duties.

"Jane'll learn them all after — after we're married," Johnny stammered.

For a full minute the room was silent. Mrs. Mason at length composed herself and declared slowly, "I hope and pray that day will not come for many years!"

Johnny tried to get the news out.

"You see, mother — you see," he blurted, and looked despairingly at Jane.

"We're married," said Jane.

Mrs. Mason's mouth popped open. She collapsed weakly in the chair, gasping for breath.

Johnny was panic-stricken. It was Jane who had to run to the bathroom for the smelling salts.

Meeting Held

County Home Demonstration Council officers for 1941 were elected Saturday afternoon, November 30th, at the Courthouse at Gatesville. Mrs. J. B. Kemp, 1940 chairman, was re-elected for 1941. Mrs. T. C. Music was elected secretary-treasurer.

Each November this Annual Meeting is held at which a review of the past year is given through splendid reports of officers and committee chairmen.

The chairman reported she was present at nine of the ten regular County Home Demonstration Council meetings during 1940. She helped with all exhibits held during the year. In addition to Council meetings she attended the Texas Home Demonstration District 8 meeting at Austin in May. County Land Use Planning meeting at Gatesville, and the Coryell-Hamilton County Soil Conservation District meeting at Jonesboro in October. She served on the mattress making supplies Purchasing Committee which bought the supplies, such as thread, twine, pins, etc. that were necessary for making mattresses. One thousand and twenty one mattresses have been made in the Cotton Mattress Demonstration Program in Coryell County this year.

Further interest was given to Saturday's meeting by Mrs. J. O. Winslar, secretary-treasurer. She mentioned inclusion in the Gatesville Chamber of Commerce budget helped materially all during 1940 toward better yearbooks, exhibits, and representation at district and state meetings.

A woman milliner in England whose arms had been paralyzed several month reported herself cured when thrown to the ground recently by a bomb.

Community AAA Committeemen To Be Elected for '41

Since the AAA program has a direct effect on every farmer and ranchman in Coryell County, great care should be taken in electing the men who will administer that program in the county during the coming year.

That's the advise N. Foote, chairman of the county ACA committee gave to AAA cooperators this week. Community meetings will be held on December 13, at 2:00 p. m. in the 7 communities of the county.

In the community meetings all farmers and ranchmen cooperating with the AAA have one vote each. A delegate and alternate delegate to the county convention to be held the following day will be elected, the three-man community committee and two alternate committeemen.

At the county convention attended by the delegates from the several communities, the 3-man county committee and two alternate committeemen will be elected. The community committeemen have specified duties to perform, including assisting the county committee in determining acreage allotment goals, normal yields and other agricultural facts; informing farmers concerning the purposes and provisions of agricultural programs; and assisting in arranging for and conducting meetings.

Broader administrative powers are given to the county committee. A few of the committee's duties as determining farm acreage allotments, normal yields, productivity indices and other agricultural facts; preparing budgets; supervising and directing activities of community committees; reviewing and certifying various forms; conducting hearings and investigations; generally supervising the work in the county office; and assisting and working with the state committee.

Community meetings, which all AAA cooperators should participate in, will be held at the following places in Coryell County the afternoon of December 13, the chairman said: Oglesby, Gatesville, District Court Room, Turnersville, Purmela, Slater, Antelope, and Flat.

Cotton Farmers To Vote On Quotas Sat., Dec. 7

Cotton producers have used cotton marketing quotas as authorized under the AAA Act, for the last three seasons. They are asked the question which they must decide Saturday, December 7, "Do you want control on cotton production during 1941 with the surplus of cotton on hand sufficient to last two years if not one stalk of cotton is planted in the entire United States?" Farmers are asked to settle the question, "What price will we probably receive for cotton in 1941 if control of production is not voted on through marketing quotas?" Marketing quotas will not be in effect unless at least two-thirds of the cotton producers who vote on December 7 vote in favor of them.

BRACKETED

By BRACK CURRY

In penning the recent articles for this column urging all out aid to Britain, I rather assumed that I was expressing a conception of America's role in the war which has not yet been accepted en toto by the American people. Yet I firmly believe that this conception will be accepted and that my proposals will constitute the basis for future American policy in regard to the remainder of the world.

Apropos of the specific proposals made in this space to increase

American aid to Britain is an editorial carried by the Louisville Courier-Journal, entitled "The Lotus-Eaters of 1940", which is reprinted here because its reasoning parallels that expressed in the two preceding articles of this column:

"America has had time to recover from her descent into the opium dens of politics. But she seems to have caught the drug habit; she shrinks from returning to the cold ugliness of life.

"It was fun to turn our back on the world blizzard, to behave for a time as if nothing mattered but the fairy-tale wickedness of Roosevelt or of Willkie. But during our days of indulgence the blizzard grew more severe, and now it is not fun to face again into that freezing wind . . .

"There is no rest for anyone who faces reality today, no peace, no abiding pleasure. Those who cry for peace when peace is impossible are the modern lotus-eaters, the peacemongers who may yet succeed in drenching our land in blood. There is no reason why war need come to these shores; but the peacemongers are doing their best to bring it here, the silly lotus-eaters who dream that all is well because our last allies have not yet bled to death.

"Fate gave us the chance to protect America thousands of miles away, on the cold North Sea and in the mist above the British Isles. Fate offered us as allies a noble people. But our peacemongers ask only for "long rest or death, dark death or dreamful ease". In the world of Adolf Hitler, "dreamful ease" cannot be had for the asking. "Dark death" is the one drink for the lotus-eaters of 1940; it is the potion they are preparing for their betrayed country.

"This is all the more discouraging because the Winged Victory herself is wooing us today, offering her favors cheap but for the last time. If we reject these advances we shall not see her face again until we, too, have known the toil and tears and sweat of Churchill's England. Freedom and peace can be had today at the cost of a little courage, a little breath of mind and spirit. Tomorrow the cost may be years of total effort on two oceans and across the two Americas. Tomorrow the cost may be so great that we of little faith refuse to pay it, preferring retreat and frustration to such prolonged pain.

"Today we need only admit a total emergency, an uncompromising intention to see the war won, and the game is ours. Tomorrow it may be forever too late to win the easy way, or to win at all.

"The bravest men alive are on our side today, prepared to do almost all the fighting and take almost all the loss. By summer they may be gone, as France is gone, leaving us alone in a contemptuous world. Our caution will have landed us in the old dilemma: either defeat, or victory at the cost of rivers of blood. It is our peacemongers who are driving us to that awful choice.

"All winter the resources of the Continent of Europe will be used, 24 hours of every day, to prepare the machinery for the murder of England. The enemy is ruthless, untiring, filled with a vicious zeal. He owns Europe and most of Africa, and his friends have the upper hand in Asia. What he began in the spring of '40 he intends to finish in the spring of '41. We alone can surely stop him; but we cannot be certain of success unless we go "all out" at once.

"The American people decided long ago that they would like Britain to win. That decision, with the small results that have followed it, is not enough. We must now decide that we insist on a British victory, come what may. If we reach that pitch of determination today, Hitler's game is ended. If we reach it in two or three months, we may be too late.

"But what can we do, that we are not already doing. Haven't we appropriated a lot of money? Have not we trade 50 destroyers to the British? Those who are not yet weakened with 'the yellow lotus dust', not yet ripe for peacemongering, know there is much we can do.

"First we can repeal the Neutrality Act, a law that looks more sickly with every day's experience. It has become a disgrace, an admission that we do not mean business in opposing Hitler.

"Second, we can repeal the Johnson Act, a law that was passed on the lying assumption that we got into the last war to recover our debts, and which is preserved on the outrageous hope that only love of cash could move us to strong action today.

"With those laws out of the way our chances to help Britain would be increased many fold. We could begin giving (not selling) the goods with which Britishers are helping to save our world. We could begin using American ships to take to the British Isles the machines without which the war must go against us in the spring.

"Third, we could use American warships to convoy boats across the full extent of our declared 'neutrality zone.' Or we could convoy all the way to British ports.

"Fourth, we can make easy the enlistment, in the armies of the British Empire, of large numbers of American aviators and mechanics. Twenty thousand such volunteers, in Britain or the near east by next spring, might turn the tide of war and save our world from years of agony.

"Fifth, we can promote some form of understanding among the English-speaking peoples, an alliance or a union looking toward a peace of justice in which all free men can share equality. We shall not conquer the Satanic daring of Hitler until we lift our imaginations to an equivalent daring in the service of Man.

"All these are actions that can still be described as "short of war, if we insist on clinging to that ambiguous unworthy phrase. Most of us know that war, in the modern Hitlerian sense, is being waged against America, and that America must fight back or be ruined. Whom are we afraid of, that we dare say these things out loud, unambiguously, and at once? Instead of the soft song of the appealing lotus-eaters, America needs a voice like John Milton's to cry unceasingly:

"Awake, arise, or be forever fallen."

Washington, D. C. WALLACE TO PLAY STRONG ROLE

For about 160 years, the vice president of the United States has been either a pure figure-head or else a trouble-maker in the family of his chief, the President.

Tom Marshall, vice president under Woodrow Wilson, is remembered only for his remark: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar."

Charles G. Dawes, vice president under Coolidge, became famous when his alarm clock allegedly failed to go off and he arrived at the Capitol too late to change a tie vote.

Charley Curtis will only be remembered because of his social war to place his half-sister ahead of Alice Longworth at dinner. And Jack Garner will go down in history because of his private refrigerator and his covert opposition to Roosevelt.

None of these vice presidents was an active worker for the head of his administration; many of them deliberately hindered it.

Now, however, for the first time in recent history, we have a vice president who will be a right hand of the President. Wallace was trained under Roosevelt and can be counted upon to be a great asset, not a deterrent.

It is not supposed to be known yet, but already Wallace has discussed ideas with the President whereby he will work on three important problems. They are:

1. To act as liaison officer between the White House and congress. This is the most important job of all.
2. To act as a sort of ambassador-at-large in cementing Good Neighbor relations between the United States and Latin America, especially where congressional affairs are concerned.
3. To formulate plans for shifting the nation's industrial economy from armament to a normal basis, after the war is over.

PATRIOT BUSINESS MEN

Behind that irate outburst from the New England Shoe Manufacturers association at the army's new method of buying shoes was an untold story of how a group of business men working for the government saved the taxpayers about $6,000,000.

The manufacturers were indignant that the army, under Defense commission guidance, had scattered its orders for 4,000,000 pairs of shoes instead of giving this juicy business, as in the past, to a few big firms. But by this new method the army was able to obtain shoes at $1.50 a pair less than they cost during the World war.

A group of business executives, working devotedly in the procurement division, in the past six months not only have saved the government several hundred millions on defense supplies, but have not disturbed market conditions or caused consumer prices to zoom. The shoe deal was only one item in this remarkable record, but it is a typical one.

Because of the long battle in congress over the Selective Service act, the army was not sure until the very last moment whether it would need shoes for 400,000 regulars, or for 1,000,000 additional draftees. So it was September 16 before Brig. Gen. Clifford Corbin of the quartermaster corps rushed to the Defense commission with his requirements. The procurement aces were all ready for him.

For weeks they had quietly surveyed the shoe industry. They knew the capacity of every plant, from the giants capable of turning out thousands of pairs a day to the smallest factory in a Boston loft. Also, they had carefully studied World war experience, when the price of shoes had sky-rocketed as a result of the placing of big orders with a few firms.

So, discarding the army's system of asking for bids on the entire 4,000,000 pairs, the commission experts quietly asked every reputable manufacturer in the industry for a price on the number of shoes he was capable of producing. The results of this wily trading were remarkable.

During the World war, the army paid $4 a pair for shoes. Through the procurement division's method of negotiated contracts, distributed among 25 factories from New England to St. Louis, the army was able to get its 4,000,000 pairs of regulation shoes at $2.50 a pair.

Note—Chief of the procurement division is quiet-spoken Donald Nelson, the former Sears, Roebuck dynamo.

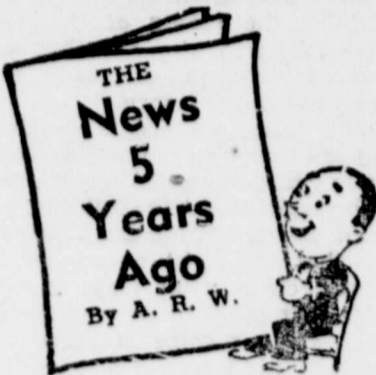

MORE G-MEN

Along with the speed-up in production of airplanes and tanks, there is a much less-heralded speed-up in the production of G-men.

J. Edgar Hoover is now turning out special agents of the FBI at the phenomenal rate of 40 a week.

Formerly, the Federal Bureau of Investigation had only 90 special agents, but a recent congressional authorization boosted the figure to 1,500. Hoover now has almost attained that mark, with 1,340 trained and 160 more to be produced.

A small fire started in the Poston Bros. and Britain Implement Shop on Leon Street Monday morning at 6:55 o'clock. It was caused from an explosion of a gas stove. Men in the shop at the time put out the flames before anyone called the fire department. Very little damage was done.

R. W. Ward, former operator of the Fresh Air Service Station, has moved across the street in a new Station. Mr. Ward has contracted to handle Humble and Eastex products besides a number of the leading lubricating oils which are sold in this territory. George I. Johnson is now operator of the Fresh Air Service Station across from Bauman's Store.

Mr. Marvin Van Clene, formerly of Waco, an expert radio repair and service man, will begin work in the service department of Mayes' Studio and Radio Shop Monday, December 9.

A fire of unknown origin, completely destroyed Richard Dickie's barn on West Saunders Street Wednesday night about 11 o'clock. Losses were estimated at $1,000.00

Newspaper Publishers Committee

NORMAN CHANDLER

HOW MUCH did you pay for this newspaper? That few cents is all that stands between you and slavery!

This newspaper is packed from front page to want ads with the very essence of liberty. It has some good opinions and some bad ones in it. It has some good bargains and some things you can't imagine yourself needing in its advertising columns.

And that is what makes it a free man's newspaper. If this paper were taking orders from a government or a dictator, you would not get free facts and opinions. You would not get each independent merchant's or manufacturer's best offering of the goods he thinks and hopes will please you.

You'd get only what a dictator thought you ought to know—about the things that happened in the past days and hours. You'd be told what you must buy; instead of being asked, with many "pretty-pleases," to consider this or that good value.

As long as you have the privilege of putting down a few cents and picking up a newspaper like the one you are reading now, you can glory in your democratic power in self-governing America.

Because, you see, you are the dictator here. If you and enough of your neighbors did not like this paper, the paper would have to mend its ways. If enough of you did not like the things the merchants offer, the merchants would be forced to change. And if enough of you did not like the men or the laws under which you live, these, too, would change.

A dictator would change you—and very easily, too. All he would need to do would be to give you just one side—his side—of every bit of news. Knowing no better, you'd follow him, as millions follow Hitler or Hirohito or Mussolini or Stalin.

An American paper gives you every side. And you, then, are the judge, the jury, the executioner.

That's what your few cents' worth of newspaper buys you—nothing much. Only the information which free men must have to govern themselves.

Just your liberty, that's all!
