Local A. and M. Boys Injured In Wreck

Joe Hal English and Douglas White, both of Gatesville, along with two other A. and M. boys, McCall and Brumbalow, were injured in a wreck near Summersville about 12:00 o'clock Saturday night.

McCall, who was driving, was killed, Joe Hal sustained serious injuries, while White and Brumbalow were not seriously injured, though they were considerably slashed and bruised.

The wreck occurred when their car struck another in a side-on crash. When questioned White explained, "Our car struck the car containing two men and I remember several complete rollings. When I came to, we were all out of the car and the other car was gone."

The hit-and-run drivers have not been located as yet.

Many Local Youths To Join Austin Anti-Liquor March

In order to show the people of Texas that it is not just the old bugs and fanatics that favor prohibition, but that many of the younger people of our city have true convictions on the question of prohibition, today it is expected that quite a number of Gatesville youths will go to Austin to register as against the sale and use of intoxicants.

The many church denominations of the state are combined to do their part in the issue of prohibition.

Coryell Farmer First To Sign Soil Agreements

B. A. Martin, Coryell county farmer, became one of the first land owners in Texas to pledge himself to a conservation program when he signed the first soil conservation agreement in Gatesville this week with supervisors of the Hamilton-Coryell county soil conservation district.

Martin placed his signature to the soil conservation agreement immediately after approval of the district by the U. S. department of agriculture was received from Washington Friday.

By his agreement, and its approval by the district supervisors Martin becomes entitled to aid from such federal and state extension service, agricultural adjustment administration, farm security administration, soil conservation service, farm credit agencies and vocational agriculture teachers.

Soil conservation surveys have been run on Martin's 232-acre farm lying eight miles west of Oglesby and recommendations have been made by the soil conservation service for terracing, strip cropping, contour tillage, pasture contour furrowing, control grazing and protection of wild life. Martin plans to begin work on the complete program at once. He will be assisted by Guy Powell and T. D. Craddock, county agents of Coryell and Hamilton counties, respectively.

"This district represents the combined efforts of landowners and agricultural leaders of Hamilton and Coryell counties in attacking their erosion problems of a wide scale," Powell said.

Superintendent E. W. Brooks, who has been sick for the last few days is able to assume his duties again.

J'boro "Boxes" In Pearl And Cops Class B Banner Sat .Nite

By Mat Jones, Subbing for GHS Press Club Sports Editor, Norris Graves.

It happened in the Pearl High School Gym Saturday night at nine. It could all have been over at half, since the Pearls put on a better show in the last division than in the opening.

Getting back to the facts, Jonesboro Basketeers outclassed a scrapping, fighting Pearl Dragoner team 42-19 to cop the Coryell County Class B Senior Boys Basketball Bunting. Didn't they, get a long title.

Last night, in the GHS gym, the first of a three-game series between Jonesboro and the Hornets was opened for the county champions, all alphabets, and the winner of this series will go to Waco for the District, come Saturday.

Where Coach P. T. (Barnum) Lemmons gets 'em, we don't know but he has them. Three of them, a pair of Boxes and a long gangling red-head, who really know their way about on the hardwood. Big Box and Little Box, are really the show of the club, but that Redman is no slouch. The other two of Lemmons' club are small, but they're not just sacks of salt, they're in there "feeding the leather" to the Boxes, and doing a little shooting themselves, just enough to keep the "heavy guards" off the Boxes.

What Coach "Peck" Tharp needed was 5 boxes for his boys to stand on. That, folks, is not slammimg Peck's club in the least. If the "fighting" of a club counted, Peck's club would be on the other end of the picture. Moseley and Haines, (we heard their names) carried the freight for the Dragons, and were always dangerous. Peck put everybody in but the waterboy, and there was none. Freeman, tall and skinny did well in the "take off" on the backboard, and was about the only Pearl lad who could, considering the height of the Red-Boxes combination.

Probably the main handicap for the Dragons, was the fact they didn't get over too easily with Coach Virgil Jones' Turnersville aggregation, who took them to the tune of (approximately) a 2-1 county. This game was played only an hour before the final and the Dragons had an hour of running while Jonesboro top flight stars were lucky enough to draw a bye. It was a bad night for Peck and his Dragonettes too, as this young team, dropped a close one 28-21 to Jonesboro's taller and more experienced girls. The Jonesboros got the jump on the Dragonettes right off, and held it well throughout the game, but in the waning moments, the Pearl scrappers closed the gap until it was nothing to write home about.

One of Pearl's stellar players fouled out before the half, and this didn't help. Dickey, played a consistent game, and Pearl's midget forwards, well, they've just started, and somebody's going to have to watch out.

Little No. 17, Miss Schwalbe, playing with the bigger Jonesboro team, looked like she'd be mashed any minute, but she turned out to be the "masher". She's very young, fast, and has plenty of possibilities. Complete results of the Class B Tournament are not available, and will be published as soon as they can be collected.

Girls District Meet To Be Held Here February 27, 28

The Girls District basketball meet will be held here on the 27th and 28th of this month at the High School gymnasium. The winner will represent this district at the State Meet which will be held in Waco in early March. Among the entries received are from Hamilton and Pottsville of Hamilton county, and Lampasas from Lampasas county.

The district meet has only been held two years and both times the Gatesville sextette has won the meet. The tournament is expected to draw many fans who are interested in feminine basketball.

Temple Boxer Wins Flyweight Bout In Fort Worth

Jesse Gonzales, Temple flyweight, entered into the final rounds of the State Golden Gloves Championship by kayoing Harry Carlton of Hamilton in the third round of their fight in the Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum at Ft. Worth Saturday night.

Though Gonzales won his bout, Moe Hair, also of the Temple district was kayoed by Aubrey Martin, a Milford schoolboy, in the third round of their battle.

Both of these boys represent this district in the Golden Gloves tournament now being staged in Fort Worth. The tournament competition has now narrowed down to thirty contenders for the various titles.

County Basketball Champonship At Stake This Week

The Gatesville Hornets and the Jonesboro Eagles, winners of the Class A and B tournament of the county, met last night at the local gymnasium to battle it out in the first game of a three game series that will determine the county champions.

The Eagles captured the Class B tournament at Pearl last Saturday night by defeating the Dragons. The Hornets won their class tournament two weeks ago from the Evant team.

The second game of the series will be played tonight in the Jonesboro gym at 7:45. The two teams have met only twice this season and the Eagles have won both games, but it is probable that both cage teams have improved from their last meetings. The Eagles have defeated the Hornets previous to the series by the score of 28-21 and 31-26; and thus are favorites to win the championship.

If a third game is needed it will probably be played tomorrow nite or Thursday night at the local gym.

SPORT SLANTING

The Gatesville Hornets are well on their way to the state race. Their easy wins over the other girl teams in this county have made them favorites to cop the county championship and also the district title.

The Hornets one the other hand will have their hands full. They have won from their Class A opponent with ease, but they have lost a couple of games to the Jonesboro team, which is a heavy favorite to cop the county crown.

The Arkansas Razorbacks have the Southwest Conference title in the bag, for they took two games from the pre-season favorites, the Rice Owls, on their home court last Wednesday and Thursday night. The Hogs took the first game by the score of 66-41, and then came back the following night to win by a score of 48-43.

It is not news that Morley Jennings is no longer the Baylor varsity, but it is interesting that Jack Sisco of North Texas has the inside track on the Bear coaching job.

The Gatesville senior boys' win over the Clifton cagers last Thursday night was their second of the season over the Cubs. They had little trouble in coping the game from the visitors who used a man to man defense which was too slow for the Hornet fast breaking offense.

Jarring John Kimbrough, the Texas A. and M. All-American fullback, will probably not get to play pro-football after all. Uncle Sam has sent Big John his questionnaire for military service. Kimbrough will finish in June, but he will have to go six weeks extra to become eligible for his ROTC commission.

Major League baseball teams are getting set for a short and snappy training schedule. The Texas League will begin its 1941 league race on April 13, which is on Sunday. The St. Louis Browns of the American League will train in San Antonio for the Major League race which will also get underway in the middle of April.

The Golden Gloves state tournament has been going in full fury during the week end. The bouts are being fought in the Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum in Fort Worth.

The Gatesville Hornets will either meet the Ireland, Jonesboro or Turnersville sextettes for the county championship. The locals have great team, and the guards are better than any girls' cage team around here. Mueller, Lester and co-captain Black make up this defense combination.

Basketball is not drawing the crowds that football drew. The latter two sports are rapidly growing in popularity, but basketball is losing the interest that it first caused.

The Hornet Scrub team, coached by Clint White, defeated the Plainview team last Thursday night by the score of 19-12. This team is made up of promising cagers who will make up the regular Hornet line-up next season.

CLIFTON JR. COLLEGE SEXTETTE FALLS BEFORE HORNETTE ATTACK

The Gatesville Hornets came through with flying colors last Thursday night at the local gym to defeat a classy Clifton Junior College sextette by the score of 31 to 15.

The Clifton lassies were completely outclassed during the entire game. The Hornets outclassed the visitors by such a large score that during the last four minutes in the game, the guards went to the forward positions and the forwards became guards. Even this combination failed to stop the Hornets from scoring as Lester hit a side shot to add to the Hornette lead.

The Hornets took the lead in the opening minutes when Patterson hit a crisp and Moore hit a side shot.

The Hornette guards played their usual brand of heads-up ball. The visitors never got a chance to work the ball under the goal and what shots they made were from long and difficult positions in the court.

The Cubs never threatened the locals lead and they could not match the Hornette forwards who broke through the Clifton defense to make one crisp after another.

HORNETS TAKE ONE-SIDED AFFAIR FROM CLIFTON CAGERS

After finding themselves on the long end of a 12-9 lead at the end of the initial quarter, the Gatesville Hornets went to work and scored an even dozen points during the second quarter to run up a 24 to 11 score on the Clifton Cubs at the local gym last Thursday nite.

Billy Manning started the Hornets off in the second frame with a one handed corner shot. Ward followed with a crisp and King slipped in a long one to put the locals well out in front. "Rosy" Ward then came back with a crisp and a one-handed side shot to account for the Hornets' twenty second tally of the game. Bake hit one of the Cubs, but Fry hit a long one from the corner of the court a few seconds before the half ended.

Fry hit a couple of crimps to start the second half off and Ward further added to the Hornet lead with a slap in. Holder put in a crisp for the visitors, but Ward hit the net for another counter for the locals and Blanchard hit three goals in succession to widen the lead. Holder again hit the goal for the Cubs and Hulme added a charity toss, but Ward, Fry and King hit three more for the locals to put them in a comfortable 44-16 lead at the end of the quarter.

Kelly hit two for the visitors in the final stanza, but a goal by Fry and two gratis tosses by Manning and Schoenewolf equaled the Clifton scoring and ending the game with a 48 to 20 score.

Ward captured high scoring honors for the night with fourteen points to his credit. Fry of the Hornets was runner-up with an even dozen points, and Holder of the Cubs was next with nine.

The Cubs had a fast team and a classy ball bunch of ball handlers, but they were not to cope with the fast Hornet breaking attack.

HUDSON LAUNCHES PRE-SPRING SALES CAMPAIGN

Returning from a meeting with C. G. Beeching, Midwest Sales Manager of the Hudson Motor Car Company, held in Dallas yesterday Mr. Scott, Hudson dealer for this territory, declared that Hudson will immediately launch one of the most aggressive pre-spring merchandising drives the company has yet undertaken in preparation for what it believed will be the most active early spring market the automobile industry has yet known. Commenting upon the aims of the program Mr. Scott said: "It should not be forgotten that the automobile itself is an important factor in speeding up the nation's productive forces. The world is on wheels today and motor cars have their own task to do in defense activities by enabling men to reach their jobs easily and return home to their families again for rest and recreation. Then too, it is only through a healthy volume of normal business that our defense program can be made possible and paid for and normal business today is geared to automobile transportation. With this in mind we are preparing, by this merchandising program, to place our selling organization in a position to meet what we believe will be an earlier than usual seasonal demand."

Hudson Motor Car Company announced today that it has contracted to build and operate for the United States Navy a $13,000,000 Ordnance Plant to be erected on a site near Detroit.

The land for the new plant which has been purchased by the Navy Department comprises a tract of 114 acres, located at Mound Road and Nine Mile Road. This site is about five miles from the present Hudson Plant.

It will be devoted, among other things, to the manufacture of parts for guns and torpedoes.

 Adapted from the story by J. EDGAR HOOVER

CHAPTER NINE SYNOPSIS:
 Dr. Bart Morgan, brilliant young surgeon, becomes a gangland doctor when success in legal practice is not his. Bank bandits, headed by Eddie Krator, Public Enemy No. 1, are his best customers. On a tip from Margaret Hopkins, Morgan's nurse, Krator and his gang are captured by the G-Men. Bob Anders, G-Man operating on the Krator case, suspects Morgan is tied up with the gangsters. Meanwhile, Krator slugs a guard and escapes from the prison. G-Men have an idea that he will go to Morgan's for some facial surgery in order to pass the patrols blocking all highways. Anders hopes that his hunch is right.

CHAPTER X
ACTING on Bob's suggestion, Kingsley arranged to have the press and radio flooded with descriptions and photographs of Krator. Within a few hours a hundred million people throughout the country were familiar with Krator's features.

The immediate result of this pub-

She's pretty and charming and...
 "Has money," Margaret interjected. She stared at Bart in disgust. For the first time she saw him as he really was.
 The door behind them opened and Krator and Warner entered noiselessly. Warner closed the door and kept his hand on the gun in his pocket.
 "What are you doing here?" Bart demanded.
 "I'm on my way out of town and you're gonna fix me up with a new face," Krator said softly.
 "I told you I was finished with you, Eddie," Bart's voice was steady.
 "I know one thing you ain't finished with," Krator snarled. He tossed a sheaf of bills on the table. "Count that and then get going."
 "That money is no good — every cop in the country has those serial numbers," Bart pointed out. "And besides I don't need it."

"When I get through, he won't even know himself," Bart said as he rolled back one of Krator's eyelids and studied the eye before reaching for the tray of surgical instruments.
 The door opened. Bart and Warner whirled, the latter vainly reaching for his gun. In the doorway stood Kingsley, Bob and Tom.
 "Don't try it, Dizzy," Bob warned as he covered the gangster. Slowly Warner's hands went up.
 "You're under arrest, Morgan," Kingsley said.
 "And just stay where you are, Eddie," Bob added.
 Bart laughed ironically. "Don't worry—he will," he said.
 Bob examined the unconscious figure of Public Enemy No. 1. "Get this! Eddie Krator out cold," he chuckled. "Will he be surprised when he wakes up." He noticed Margaret and crossed to her. "And why have they got you chained?"
 "Because she refused to assist in this operation," Bart explained quickly.
 "You can't alibi for her," Kingsley snapped. Bob untied Margaret.
 "You saw her tied up, didn't you?" Morgan replied. "She's had nothing to do with this or any of the rest of it."
 "What about her fingerprints on that anaesthetic container at the Ace Inn?" Kingsley insisted.
 "Me and Eddie made her give us that stuff here," Dizzy suddenly contributed. "I ain't gonna see no dame take the rap for somethin' she didn't do," he added.
 Bob studied Margaret intently. "Was it you who tipped us off about Krator and the Ace Inn?" he said.
 Margaret was silent for a moment. "I phoned you," she admitted at last, "and told you to go to the Inn."
 Bart Morgan looked at her in surprise. "You did that?" he asked.
 "I thought if they caught Eddie Krator and the others — and you were away from them for good—you might straighten yourself out."
 "And you did that because you love me?" Morgan continued.
 "No. That's where you're wrong. I did love you, Bart," Margaret said earnestly, "but tonight it vanished as if it had never existed. There's nothing decent in you."
 Bart shrugged. "There might be. Cynthia was only a short cut to what I wanted—quick success. Will you go and see Cynthia before she reads about this in the newspapers? You can help her. Tell her anything you wish. I've always depended on you, Margaret."
 "I'll see Cynthia for you," Margaret promised as Kingsley led Bart away.
 Bob faced Margaret. He slipped a handcuff on her wrist and locked it. Margaret looked at it in dismay. "I know I should have reported him after the operation at Ace Inn," she said, "but I—"
 "If you had, we'd never have gotten him with sufficient evidence," Bob explained. "This isn't an arrest. I'm just making a date for dinner." He grinned. "And this time you know I'll be there."
 Margaret smiled. "There's still a chance that you won't," she pointed out.
 Bob circled his own wrist with the other half of the handcuff and snapped it. He handed her the key. "Would you make a bet?" he grinned.

Dizzy forced the girl into the chair. In a moment he had strapped her hands behind her.

licity was to close the door of all hide-outs to the fugitives. Everywhere that Krator and Warner sought refuge they were greeted with: "Not here. The heat's on you."
 Cruising aimlessly around the city in a stolen car, Eddie alternately listened to the car's radio broadcast of his appearance and discussed their chances with Dizzy. Suddenly an idea came to him—the idea Bob Anders hoped would come. Krator turned to Dizzy. He was jubilant. "I'll show 'em. I know what I'm gonna do about my face." Quickly he headed the car toward Bart Morgan's office.
 Margaret had just arrived and had found Bart asleep on the couch in his office. She studied him for a moment. Obviously he had been drinking too much. She shook him.
 "A fellow's got a right to celebrate on the eve of his marriage, hasn't he?" Bart complained as he faced Margaret's accusing glance. "Call Cynthia and tell her I was on an emergency, will you?"
 "Bart, why do you do these things?" Margaret demanded. "I thought you loved Cynthia."
 "Love? What's love?" Bart laughed shortly.
 "But you are in love with her, aren't you?" Margaret persisted.
 "Cynthia's a nice enough girl.

"Yeah. I know you're marryin' money. But some day she may throw you out and by that time this would come in handy."
 Bart eyed the money in silence.
 "I'll have to put you under an anaesthetic," he said at last. "You won't be able to leave here for five or six hours."
 "Don't do it, Bart," Margaret cried.
 "Shut up," Dizzy Warner barked. He produced the guard's gun. "Do as the doc tells you."
 Krator stretched out on the operating table. Bart poured himself a stiff drink and downed it before he applied the ether cone. "Take his pulse," Bart ordered.
 "I'll have nothing to do with a criminal operation," Margaret insisted. She started to leave the office. Dizzy stepped between her and the door. "Over there, sister," he said, gesturing toward a chair with the gun. Margaret looked at Bart. He shrugged.
 "I'm sorry, Margaret. You'll have to stay now."
 Dizzy forced the girl into the chair. With his free hand, the gangster loosened his belt. In a moment he had strapped her hands behind her, effectually binding her to the chair. He turned to Bart.
 "Think you can change his face, Doc?" he queried.

OUR WELCOME TO A HUNGRY WORLD—
GOOD EATING!
PEYTON'S CAFE

This has been a serious and in some respects a trying week in the House. For six full days we have debated the bill for the aid to the democracies. While I feel very sure in my own mind and heart that our only possible opportunity to avoid a terrible war is for the United States to extend the utmost aid to Great Britain; at the same time I recognize that we are making a vital and momentous decision. I know that no matter what is done we have no guarantee that we will not be drawn into the conflict, but I would feel guilty of a breach of my highest duty to my people and to our country if I did not do everything in my power to maintain peace. We all want peace and I believe that the action of the house today (Saturday, February 8, 1941) will make peace more likely. Of course, each one of you has been compelled to make the same decision in his own mind and conscience that has been required of the members of Congress, but with this difference—you have known that your decision will in no way endanger your friends or neighbors, but those of us who have the duty and responsibility to determine the policy of this nation recognize just how serious a mistake of judgement on our part would be. It is indeed a most serious and sobering responsibility. It makes the sessions nerve wracking and exhausting, and probably accounts for much of the bitterness that has crept into the debate.

I do, however, feel that all in all the debate has been held to a high plane. There has been some evidence of what seemed to me to be partisanship in the attitude of the great bulk of the Republican membership, but certainly the great majority of all members have done their best to secure legislation which they believe to be helpful to the United States. Every effort was made to secure full, free and fair debate. A great deal more debate was allowed than was provided in 1917 when the resolution declaring war was before the House. For three successive nights the House stayed in session until every member who desired to speak in opposition to the bill had had an opportunity to do so. As evidence that the House desired to be fair it was noteworthy to observe that as the Republican began to vote to strictly limit debate. At the same time, when Rep. Wadsworth (Rep.) of New York found his time exhausted while making a very effective argument in an effort to weaken the bill by an amendment, the Democratic Leader recognizing his sincerity made the motion to give him more time.

The bill was amended in several respects. A limit was placed on the amount of existing defense material that might be transferred to the Democracies. This amount was fixed at $1,300,000,000.00. It was also expressly provided that Congress might at any time terminate the authority granted by the bill. I have no objection to a definite statement of the power of Congress, which incidentally is not delegated as the opponents of the bill have sought to have the public believe, but I hope that the aid that can be extended to Great Britain. We are giving this aid to protect America. If we are not, we should give no aid at all. If it is to protect our own country we should not limit ourselves.

The bill finally passed the House a little after six o'clock Saturday afternoon by a vote of 260 to 165. Of course, I voted for the bill. One of the interesting side-lights of the consideration of the bill was the appearance of a young lady in the gallery who said that she was from Vassar College. In some manner she succeeded in getting into a black dress with the bones of a skeleton outlined thereon in white, and a palid mask that made her look like a conventional figure of death. During one of the speeches she rose and made a gurgling noise like a person struggling to death. Of course, she was immediately removed from the gallery only to get onto the front page of the newspapers, where she evidently wanted. There were other individuals and groups in Washington seeking publicity in connection with the bill, including the discredited National Youth Congress, which has shown such Communistic sympathies. However, on the whole the great crowds that have stood in long lines to get into the galleries have seemed to share the serious air that has been evidenced by Congress.

It is my sincere hope that there may be no undue delay on the part of the Senate. The die is cast. It is now too late to turn back and speed action is vitally important. Delay of undue limitation of our aid will but make it more likely that we will be unable to avoid involvement. On the other hand, if our aid is prompt and effective we may be able to remove all threat of attack.

A Cappella Choir

Because the properly trained voice is the supreme musical instrument and because the A Cappella Choir itself transcends in versatility the average glee club or chorus, the program to be offered by the Denton A Cappella Choir under the direction of Dr. Wilfred C. Bain here Tuesday, February 18 at 2:45 in the High School Gym, will be of wide interest to music lovers.

Dr. Bain's group of 45 musicians from the North Texas State Teachers College have been recognized as one of the outstanding A Cappella Choirs in the Southwest and offer a program that embodies all the peculiarly rich and beautiful qualities of A Cappella choir music.

"A Cappella", a term which means 'unaccompanied' is applied to all choirs singing without instruments, but few people realize that the real idea of the 'A Cappella' Choir transcends the literal meaning of the phrase", says Dr. Bain. "The choir does not sing unaccompanied—it accompanies itself."

The conductor of the Denton choir believes that even the organ, the so-called "king of instruments" is but a collection of cold pipes and mechanical devices in comparison with the warm and vibrant human voice, supplemented always by the personality of the singer and his emotional interpretation of the music and words.

"The A Cappella organization combines and harmonizes individual voices of all grades and shades of tonal quality into one incomparable instrument", says Dr. Bain. "Each voice is capable of entire scales and varying shades of meaning, and with the entire choir swayed not alone by the hand of the director but by an emotional intensity compellingly human—it is small wonder that A Cappella renditions of familiar music are unprecedented in the freshness and richness of their moving qualities. The A Cappella no more needs accompaniment than does the organ; it is its own accompaniment."

The unusually versatile A Cappella Choir also leads itself to unusual antiphonal effects, many of the compositions of Bach being sung with two complete choirs blending with each other in the most complex movements, Dr. Bain explains.

W. T. HIX, LOCAL FRIGIDAIRE DEALER, TELLS OF 1941 IMPROVEMENTS

Features that express the latest note of modernization in electric refrigerator design are revealed in the convenience and style offered by 1941 model Frigidaire electric refrigerators, according to W. T. Hix, Frigidaire dealer here, who states that new models are now on display at his store.

Similar improvements also have been created in the design of this year's Frigidaire electric range models, Mr. Hix said, with the addition of new features and unusual cabinet styling.

"One of the important advancements in which women will be especially interested is the introduction of improvements in Cold Wall refrigerator models. The Cold Wall type of refrigeration, first introduced two seasons ago, provides both moist and dry cold in the same cabinet so that foods may be kept for days without any need for covers on dishes and without drying out.

"In Cold Wall deluxe models this year a brand new type of 'chest' freezer is used that extends across the top of the upper compartment. The freezer is spacious and holds a large quantity of frozen foods, includes a large meat storage section and enables the use to freeze plenty of ice cubes without interfering with food storage. These same models are fitted with adjustable shelves that give the food compartment new flexibility of arrangement. Cold Wall models are available this year in nine cubic foot sizes, an innovation that will provide sufficient food storage capacity for every family."

Among other features of the 1941 Frigidaire electric refrigerators, explained Mr. Hix are the use of instant trap and grid release "Quickube" trays; sliding hydrators with glass tops that make it easy both to see and use these convenient fruit and vegetable storage containers; a recessed interior light; increase in refrigeration power that brings even faster ice cube freezing; a storage bin for such items as canned foods; a re-styled meat tender; four different model series, each with its own cabinet design; and many other improvements.

"Frigidaire electric ranges for 1941 also have a generous share of new features," Mr. Hix said. "For instance, an advanced type of top heating unit permits an increase of up to 18 per cent more speed; and each top unit has a stainless steel drip tray which is easy to remove and clean. Each top heating unit is adjustable that makes it easy to enjoy dependable duplication of recipes from week to week for each adjustment of a switch supplies the same heat every time."

Offered with the new model electric ranges also are refinements in design of the "Cook Master"

THE BIG THREE OF FEBRUARY

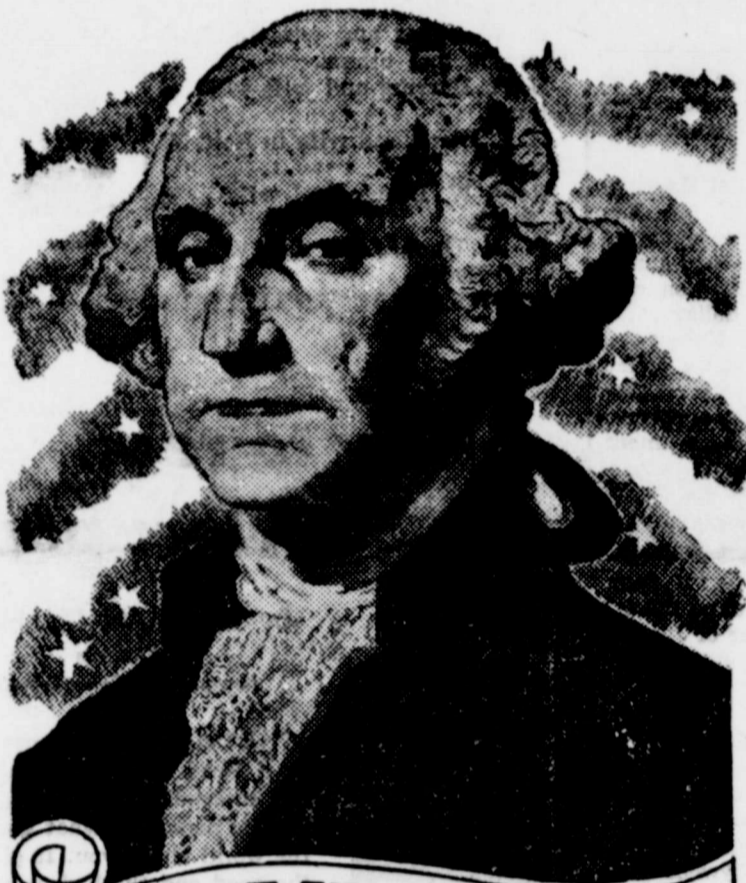

"First in peace, first in war, and first in the hearts of his countrymen" in 1787 and still is today because of the principles by which he ruled his life.

Born on the banks of the lovely Potomac River in 1732 on February 22, George Washington lived his boyhood as the son of a Virginia planter, to become the first president of this Democracy. He dressed in buckskin wore a size eleven shoe, and was tall, straight, and athletic in form.

Washington was commander-in-chief of the Colonial forces in the War for Independence and lead our fathers of liberty to a victory over a nation more than equal the thirteen colonies in power but not in purpose.

Washington died in 1799 as a result of riding in a storm of rain and sleet.

As is suggestive of his straight figure, so was Washington's life. He up-held truth, decipline, and higher moral principles.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

The greatest inventor of our nation, Thomas Edison, was born at Milan, Ohio, February 11, 1847. Because his family was very poor Edison did not attend school. In 1863, Edison purchased a small printing press on which he printed a small paper on the train on which he sold candy, papers, and novelties.

In 1864 Edison invented the automatic telegraph, which was the first of his electrical inventions. Edison sold the telegraph to a New York Company for $40,000.

Quickly followed in a steady stream a long list of inventions: Phonograph, long distance telephone, megaphone, the encandescant electric lamp, and the storage battery.

In 1878, Edison was made chevalier of the French Legion of Honor and in 1915 he received the Noble prize for physics.

Lincoln was born February 12, 1809 in Hardin County, Kentucky. Since he was the son of very poor parents, his father a shiftless man with no ideals, but ti his mother, very neat and tidy, we owe a lot to this man who became the sixteenth president of our democracy.

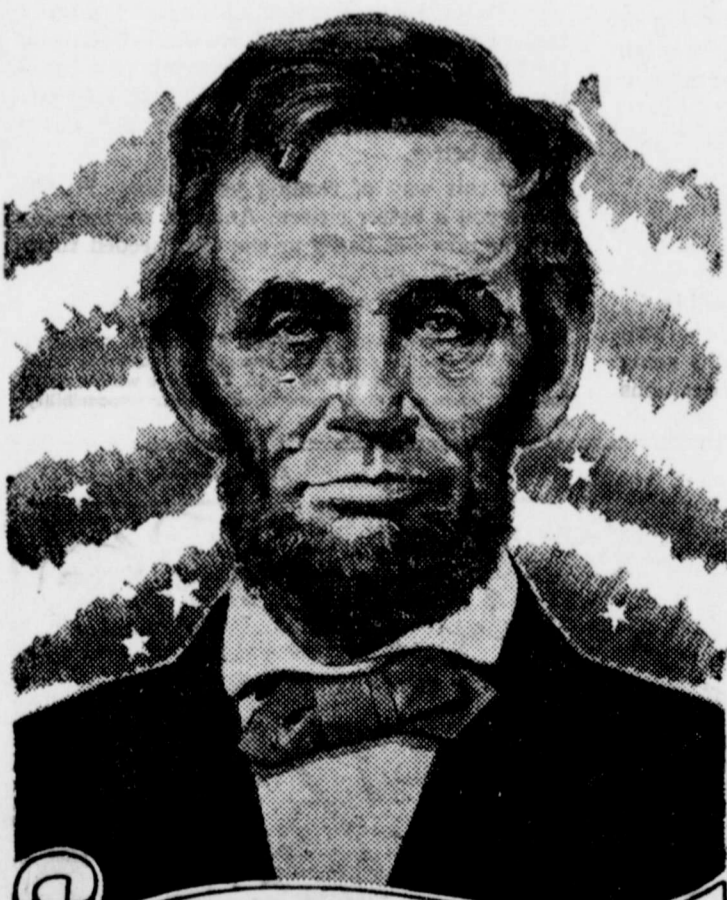

Because his parents were so poor Abraham had very little schooling, only about a year in all. This did not ruin his whole life, however. It is said that Lincoln would walk miles to secure a book which he read by the light furnished by the large fireplace in the one room of his home.

It was one of Lincoln's ambitions to enter politics and in 1838, when he was elected to the legislature of Kentucky, he began to realize the fulfillment of his dreams.

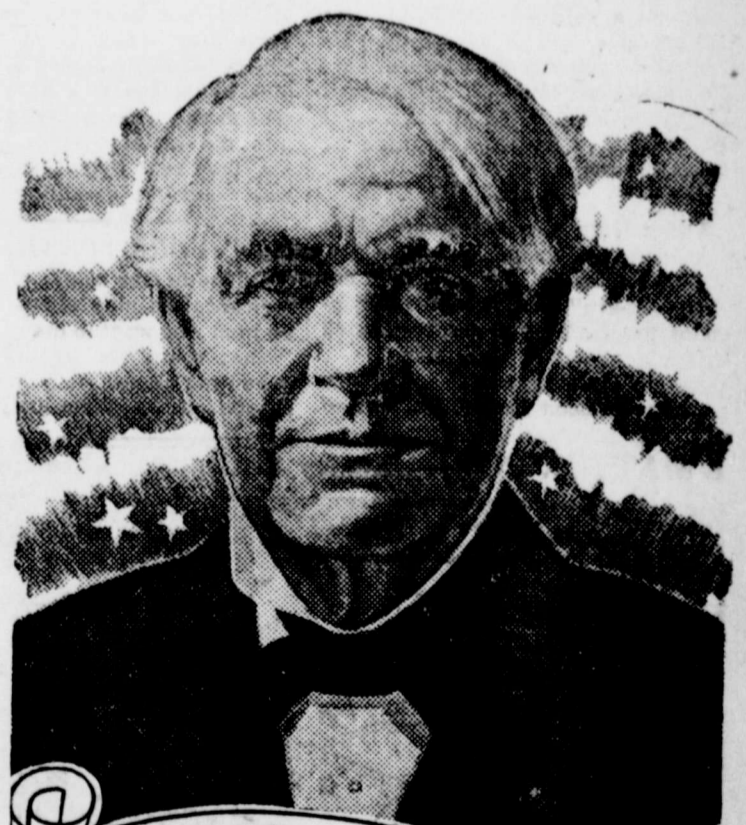

In 1842 Abraham was married to Miss Mary Todd, after which he lived a very happy married life until the death of his wife.

In 1846 Lincoln was elected to Congress and in 1856 he helped form the Republican Party. In 1861 as the climax to a remarkable life Lincoln became president, only to be assassinated in the same year by John Wilkes Booth while he and his family were attending the Ford Theatre in Washington.

"Honest Abe", a title by which we always recognize Lincoln, lived his life in his own simple way, but by which history was made.

A NEW YORKER'S NOTES:

On one of the forums the other Sabbath the opposing sides wrestled with the topic of the best way to stifle the Fifth Column. All agreed on one thing: Publicity is the best way to wipe out all the rodents. But a certain WW, who has been doing that for a long time now, is called "hysterical," among other things. Ho, hum . . . Some of us, incidentally, are heckled for playing up "unimportant" news . . . But the New York H-T devoted a 2-column front page spread to the news that Princeton stewdents are now allowed to have panther soup in their rooms . . . The same day the NY Times reported that all the bishops in Norway condemned the Nazis . . . Wonder how the Satevepost feels about that? Since the SEP ran a piece claiming the Norwegians are playing ball with them . . . Lindbergh, the aviation expert, claims we need 10,000 planes to be safe . . . Rickenbacker, another expert, claims we need 150,000 planes . . . In short, what the country needs is—less experts and more planes.

Local loiterers have perfected a game of Pedestrian Poker. It's played with names. The first player yells a common monicker, like "Bill," at a mob of passersby. He counts the number who turn around and that's his hand . . . The next player hollers: "Jack!" . . . If he attracts more neck cranes he takes the pot.

The colyum recently itemed that commentators should pronounce Mr. Knudsen's name "Nood-sen," not "Ka-nood-sen" . . . A country-woman of the Defense Chief responded by saying that "K" was silent . . . Well, she's wrong, too . . . We now learn from Leon Henderson, one of Mr. Knudsen's colleagues, that his name is pronounced "Ka-noo-sen"—the "d" being excess baggage.

Over at the 18 Club, Pat Harrington relayed this one of Mr. Ka-noo-sen . . . The Defense biggie was playing his favorite card game, poker, with some Washington cronies. The limit was a dollar . . . During a big pot, Mr. Ka-noo-sen was about to wager a whole dollar to call his opponent's bluff . . . "Be careful," cautioned the opponent, "that's a whole year's Government pay!"

The London Daily Express reports this sign observed on a board outside a London church: "If your knees are knocking, kneel on them" . . . Germany's Minister of Justice has just died . . . Gone to join Justice, no doubt.

It happened over at Barbara Hutton's house in Hollywood the other party . . . The wealthy lady invited several of her friends on the Coast newspapers and trade dailies . . . Herb Stein, of the Hollywood Reporter, a newcomer, was talking with her in a dimly lit corner—a heart-to-heart talk.

"This is all very nice," said Stein, "everybody is so pleasant to me. But can you imagine how they'd snub me if I didn't have a colyum?" "Can you imagine," was the grim reply, "if I didn't have money?"

New York racing officials met and toasted each other over the heap of moolah they had fetched the State via the race track parimutuels . . . Then they voted down "the daily double"—which allows a chump to pick two races at a time . . . The reason the officials gave should go into the history books. The double, they said (with straight faces), was "outright gambling."

NEW YORK SCENE:

Sallies in Our Alley: Joe E. Lewis forwards the silly about the mixed-up man who went to the psychiatrist: "What seems to be the trouble?" asked the doctor . . . The daffydillo responded by vigorously brushing imaginary things off his arm, explaining: "See? I have dragons on my sleeve!" . . . The psychiatrist, backing away, hysterically screamed: "Well, you don't have to brush them off on me!"

Memos of a Midnighter: Glenn Warner, vet football coach, has slapped a $100,000 libel suit against the Satevepost—over their piece on football "boners" . . . One of the town's biggest papers can't get a British visa for one of its star reporters because of pro-Hitler utterances . . . Bob Benchley is the town's leading pacifist. He gets into such violent arguments that his peace arguments sound a little Benchleyish.

Manhattan Murals: The way subway riders stare at a man who wears a tuxedo . . . The few mid-town French restaurants which have more happy Frenchmen than in all France . . . The black cat crossing against the light at 47th and 7th and putting the traffic to a standstill . . . The sign in a 4th Avenue bookshop: "We Fill Bookends" . . . The 48th Street cabaret sign that states: "No Minimum—No Cover." Under which some disgruntled patron or critic has pencilled: "And No Nothin'!"

How to read your Newspaper

By NORMAN CHANDLER

Chairman

Newspaper Publishers Committee

NORMAN CHANDLER

GET fun out of your newspaper. Read it for sheer enjoyment and entertainment. It brings you a regular parade of what goes on in the world about you. It gives you the good and the bad news. It reports success and failure, rain and sunshine, happiness and sorrow.

But when next you start to read a copy of your paper say this sentence over to yourself:

"Here in my hands is the recipe for freedom; from it I will learn what I can and must do, if I am to keep my freedom."

Probably you hadn't thought of it that way, but from some source you must learn to distinguish right from wrong, good from bad, worth from worthlessness. Your horse or your dog or even your small son does not need to concern himself much with those things because most of his decisions are made for him.

However, you, a free citizen, responsible for your own safety, your own money, your own government, must keep abreast of what's going on. You must make hundreds of definite decisions each year.

Is the proposed new traffic law a good thing; is that shirt worth two dollars; shall I buy life insurance or government bonds; should medical service be paid for by taxes or by the individual?

How good is our national defense? How dependable is our local police force? The list is almost endless in this complicated, modern life we live.

Unless you want to give up democracy and turn all such vexing questions over to a king, or a dictator, or a master, you must have all the evidence in order to make your share of right decisions.

You know, of course, that your newspaper gives you the news, the accurate information which enables you to find your answers.

Take the "wave" of kidnaping which struck us a few years ago. Public opinion, roused by the news, led to stiffening of laws, to efficient law enforcement and finally to the virtual stamping out of this kind of crime. Except for your newspapers or some news-reporting service you could hardly have known of a single kidnaping case.

Or take an example from the advertising columns of the newspapers. There'll be news of the development of a new kind of fabric in a laboratory. It is, perhaps, one that will stretch two ways instead of one. Next you'll see stores featuring the new fabric in their advertisements of a bathing suit. And with memories of straps that cut into your shoulders, you quickly decide this new thing is better.

Try this way of reading your paper. It will make you a better citizen. America needs good citizens now—as badly as she ever needed them in all her history.
