WILL BRUMBALOW HAS STATEMENT FOR CORYELL VOTERS

To the Voters of Coryell County:
I am asking the voters of Coryell

County to elect me as your next county judge. I believe that I can best serve the interest of the entire county. I have no political promises outstanding to either individuals or to political subdivisions of the county. I am free to chart my course of action in the execution of the duties of this office and welfare of all concerned. I am apposed to any public official with executive duties either local or state being retained in office long enough that he becomes involved in special interest to the extent that he may show favors to certain individuals or political subdivisions, of the county. It is for this reason that I believe the County Judge's office of this county should be rotated for the best interest of all concerned.

I am not making any special or empty promises that I cannot make good to the people of this county. I do pledge, however, to the people of this county my best efforts to serve them faithfully and efficiently, and I shall at all times solicit and respect worthy

State Boys Picked Up After Week End Of Furtive Freedom

Hollis Watson, 17, Lou Hodges and Thurman Motley, both 16, and inmates of the Gatesville State School for Boys in Gatesville, were taken by employees of the school and turned over to local authorities, after a Saturday night and Sunday of varied freedom.

During that time they are alleged to have broken into U. D. Maxwell's Service Station on North Lutterloh and a Hilltop Service Station west of Gatesville on U. S. 84. Between times they are said to have stolen a taxi and Ayres Anderson's bicycle. He's a newspaper carrier boy.

Two of them were picked up Sunday morning after a chase from the down-town section to the carnival and back on Saunders Street. The last one was picked up early Monday, on U. S. 84, near Arnett. What they got Maxwell's was tobacco, tools and other odds and ends amounting to about $26. What was taken at Hilltop was very little, but they took a water hose, attempted to get gas from a pump, but didn't and entrance was made to the store through a window they broke. At Waxwell's too, they got in through a window after breaking a screen.

25 SHIPS; 140 SEAMEN

By Associated Press
Sinking of 25 Allied merchant ships in the Western Atlantic with the loss of more than 140 seamen was disclosed in official announcements last week. 43 other persons were reported missing.

That's the greatest war we're in, right now, and by the reports, more men are lost each week at this route, than any other. We said, "according to the reports." The total allied vessels are now 383 since Dec. 7. It is a "first front," we think.

BRITS GO IN SAND

Retail stores, tailors and others who have handled insignias in the past may dispose of stocks on hand, but sales may be made only to persons who present official War Department identification.

SIDE GLANCES ON TEXAS HISTORY

By Charles O. Hucker
University of Texas Library

PRAISE FOR TEXAS INDIANS

Although some writers seem to have thought the Indians of Texas unusually savage, at least one traveler during the period of the American Revolution considered their behaviour "very decent."

During the course of a five-year trip around the world, a Monsieur De Pages, captain in the French Navy and corresponding member of the Paris Academy of Science, visited Texas, and traveled to San Antonio and then across the Rio Grande into Mexico. A copy of his account of this trip, "Travels Round the World," written in the years 1767-1771, is contained in the Texas collection in the University of Texas Library.

The Indians, De Pages wrote, made a display of horsemanship for the benefit of the party in which he was traveling, which was headed by a Spanish governor.

"It is but doing them justice to say the most noble and graceful object I have ever seen was one of those savages mounted and running at full speed," he wrote. "The broad Herculean trunk of his body, his gun leaning over the left arm, and his plaid or blanket thrown carelessly across his naked shoulders and streaming in the wind, was such an appearance as I could only compare to some of the finest equestrian statues of antiquity."

The Indian women, the traveler declared, were very modest and resented "our too inquisitive regard."

Traveler Doubts Value of Missionary Efforts

De Pages found little to praise in the enterprises of four mission stations which he found near San Antonio. He described the missions as each containing two or three Franciscan monks and a group of Indians, captured in war, on whom the missionaries had conferred marriage and baptism."

The Indians received some education and maintenance in the mission, but De Pages regarded the rules of conduct set down by the monks, and particularly their method of enforcement, as unduly harsh.

The Frenchman further described the way in which the savages were induced to live in the missions. In battles with Indians still using bows and arrows as weapons, the better-armed Spaniards would capture prisoners, bind them hand and foot, and carry them to one of the missions.

"The missionary makes it his business by threat, persuasion, severe fasting, gentleness, and last of all my marriage, to tame and civilize the manners of his prisoners," De Pages continued.

Frenchman Declares Indians More Trustworthy Than Spaniards

It was perhaps typical of a French traveler to regard Spanish colonial administration—particularly of a province once claimed by France—with suspicion and criticism.

De Page's account of his sojourn in Texas is full of references to the cruelty and unfairness of the Spaniards. In San Antonio, he relates, he lived in the home of an Indian and became close friends with him, even seriously considering settling down and marrying one of the Indian's daughters.

The Frenchman concluded that he had in his Texas travels found proof of his contention that a man's honesty was in direct proportion to his birth, education and environment. "Innocent and inenuous manners diminish progressively from the native of the woods to the villager, Indian, Creole, and Spaniard; the last of whom is the least friendly and sociable of the whole," De Pages declared.

Mrs. C. S. Tucker has been visiting her sister, Mrs. C. H. Graham in Oglesby, where she met her sister, Mrs. O. F. Peterson of Fort Worth.

BROILERS AND FRYERS NEW VICTORY FOOD SPECIAL

Since the supply of broilers and fryers which are coming off the farms this year has reached an all-time high, the Agricultural Marketing Administration has designated broilers and fryers a national Victory Food Special from July 16 to 25. This is the fourth Victory Food Special to be featured by stores in this area—previous specials have been centered around lettuce, onions and tomatoes.

"Victory Food Special campaigns have been unusually successful in this area," Lewis Thomson, chairman of the Food Industry Committee, explained.

The campaigns have given homemakers the opportunity to serve nutritious foods at a cost much lower than usual. Merchants and consumers by cooperating with the government are helping make full use of the nation's food and preventing waste of supplies in abundance.

"Large numbers of broilers and fryers will show up this year on consumer markets. This is a result of expansion in poultry production to meet wartime needs. Poultry plenty is nothing but good news to the woman who sets before her family three good meals a day. For chicken—fried or broiled—is not only good food, but it is one of America's favorites for summertime eating," Thomson said.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD ENCAMPMENT

The young people's camp sponsored by the Baptist Leon River Associational W. M. U. was held at Pecan Grove Monday through Wednesday of this week. 165 were enrolled in the 3-day encampment, directed by Catherine Lee, Associational director of young people's work. Ten of the 24 churches of the association were represented at the camp.

Three books were taught. The Steward Family by Mrs. Lawrence Hayes, was taught for the Junior Girls; Miss Zelma Scott taught The Queenly Quest for the Intermediate Girls and Rev. J. W. Carpenter taught Airways for the King to the class of boys. These comprise a part of the mission course of study as directed by the Women's Missionary Union for the auxiliary group.

M. A. Sanderfer and J. T. Ayers served as sponsors for the boys groups together with J. W. Carpenter as camp pastor. The daily program consisted of recreation, swimming, games, bonfire service, quiet hour, and class period. Three negro cooks provided meals for the camp and the group were unanimous in the acclaim of good eats. The plan is for a full week's camp another summer.

BEHIND RAF RAIDS

Few people outside the inner circle know it, but the recent bombing raids on Bremen, Cologne, Essen, have been accomplished in part through the farsightedness of Ed Stettinius Jr., who, long ago saw the importance of high octane gas and demanded that the administration start large scale production.

Stettinius has taken it on the chin regarding the slowness of aluminum production and has admitted he was wrong. (Real reason for the tragic error was his reliance on Aluminum Corporation of America figures). But on two other vital commodities he was way out in front.

One of these was rubber. Stettinius was the first to see the need of building synthetic rubber factories to prepare for the fall of Singapore and began dining on Jesse Jones for nearly a year before he could get Jesse to move.

The other commodity was high octane gasoline, without which the current bombing raids could not take place. One bomber takes about 1,000 gallons of gasoline to fly from England to Germany and back, so with 1,000 bombers staging a raid, 1,000,000 gallons of fuel is used up in one night.

U. S. PRISONERS IN BATAAN

Ex-Undersecretary of the Interior Jack Dempsey has taken up with the American Red Cross the problem of getting a Red Cross representative in Manila to look out for U. S. prisoners from Bataan and Corregidor.

So far, the Japs have not permitted a Swiss Red Cross representative in Manila, though they have admitted Swiss representatives to Tokyo, Shanghai and Hong Kong.

No excuse has been given by the Japs for not permitting a Swiss representative in Manila, but U. S. officials presume it is because they don't want anyone from the outside world to see what is going on there.

Meanwhile, however, the treatment of U. S. prisoners in Japan and China is reported to be good. The Swiss representatives make regular reports, state that American prisoners have no complaints, that sheets on the beds are changed frequently, and that married men are allowed to go to see their wives every week-end.

ROYAL PRESS CONFERENCE

At King Peter's conference with the press, the Yugoslav monarch was completely poised, though admitting the camera men fazed him a bit. With characteristic zeal they monopolized the proceedings with popping flash-bulbs.

A reporter asked Peter what his outstanding impressions were of the U. S.

"One that stands out is your friendliness," he answered promptly. "Everywhere I have gone I have noticed that."

"Does that include photographers?"

"Well, they are persistent, aren't they? I wouldn't mind if they didn't keep shooting off things in my face."

TANKER-SAVING PIPELINE

American automobile owners don't know it, but indirectly they had the British to thank for the final decision to build a new pipeline from the South to the Middle West.

Secretary Ickes had been urging construction of this pipeline for more than a year—always being rebuffed by the War Production board.

Part of Ickes' argument was that it was foolish to waste American tankers by having them carry oil all the way to England from the Gulf of Mexico. If, on the other hand, tankers could load oil and gasoline at a Middle Atlantic port, they could save 1,000 miles of travel and reduce the exposure to submarine attack. Tankers are getting scarce these days, and the shorter the distance they have to steam, the more trips they can make.

Ickes put forth this argument emphatically at the last hearing before the War Production board, but was rebutted by Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, head of the army's service of supplies. Somervell pooh-poohed the idea that England was hard up for oil or gasoline, said he had just returned from there, and that Ickes' argument was pure poppycock.

Ickes made no immediate reply, but cabled the British government. The British were boiling mad, and the reply he received clinched the matter. The War Production board decided Somervell didn't know much about British oil supplies. The pipeline was ordered built.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Capitol insiders are betting that before the tax bill finally emerges from congress it will contain some kind of provision for compulsory war savings as an anti-inflation measure. Secretary Morgenthau has been opposed to this, but recently seems willing to shift his view.

Former OPM boss William Knudsen, in his new role as a lieutenant-general in the army, has inspected 285 war plants and in many of them he has recommended changes which have increased production.

When this is finally granted, the local USO will be the largest and most complete in the Camp Hood area.

Mrs. Laura Bess Florey of Mineral Wells, has been selected as assistant director of the USO, and will assume her duties Monday, and an orientation course, for prospective leaders in the work. Volunteers contribute to the program as participants and as leaders. In selecting these, the following qualifications are required: 1. Fitness for a particular task; 2. Interest in the work; 3. Readiness to accept a continuing assignment for a definite period; 4. Ability to work with groups that have widely different backgrounds; 5. Sympathetic interest in the welfare of the service men; 6. Emotional stability.

Right now, volunteers are wanted and are asked to get in touch with Dick Palmatier. Training courses will include visits to camp activities, talks by army officials and orientation into the work of group leadership techniques. Enthusiasm and interest shown by civilians is the basis on which USO programs rest.

HUDDLESTON—

The most important task we have at present is to aid in defeating the Axis powers who are seeking to destroy our free way of life. I favor doing everything possible to aid and protect our boys and men in service also.

Although we must do all possible to win the war we must also carry on here at home the best we can. We must continue to care for the unfortunate, educate our youths, assist our aged, and keep our state government functioning and business going as well as possible, however, I think we are all agreed that this should be done in as sensible way as possible. It shall be my policy to counsel with the citizens of my district and county, state officials in working out said problems if elected your representative. It is my candid opinion that if we are to survive this crisis it will take a united effort on the part of all.

On account of war conditions, I have not attempted to campaign as usual. I mean by living out cards and so on. I, like all other good citizens have tried to do all possible to aid our war efforts and attend to the duties of my office which have been much heavier since the war started, however, I am trying to take my message to the voters through the county papers so I want you to take this as a personal solicitation from me. I assure each of you that if you reelect me as your representative that I will appreciate your support and will continue to give my best in serving you.

Sincerely,
EARL HUDDLESTON,
Candidate for Rep. 94th Dist.

BRAMBALOW—

suggestions or opinions made by any individual who may be interested in the improvement of our local government.

In regard to highways, I believe that highways should be left out of politics, so that money available for road construction will be spent from year to year—rather than lumped off on election years to serve the interest of certain local and state officials who are seeking reelection. Such procedure prolongs the construction of many roads, results in waste and extravagance, and delays the good that should come from the use of these roads.

I am in favor of the immediate completion of highway 36, and a County Judge, I will insist on completion without delay the gap in this county. I am in favor of the construction of the road from Gatesville to Copperas Cove and will render all possible assistance. However, the project is sponsored by the federal government as war measure, and pressure by any individual will have little weight, if any.

I am asking you to support me because I am qualified to fill the office and need the salary that it pays. The present County Judge has been paid around $20,000 of the tax payers' money and is asking to be continued on the pay roll. I believe that good democracy justifies the rotation of this office and I am asking that you give me an opportunity to serve you as your next County Judge.

WILL BRUMBALOW,
Candidate for County Judge.

WHAT WAS GONE BEFORE:
Steve Leaird, dapper night club propp, with underworld connections, is intrigued by the effrontery of his lovely new chorus girl, Brenda Bentley, when she coolly announces her intention of taking him away from his present sweetheart. He falls in love with Brenda and promises her to soloist in a floor show. Then he suddenly fires her; and when she demands the reason he informs her that he has decided to eschew all other women and marry her.

Chapter Two

For three years their married life was one of ecstatic happiness; almost unreal in its flawless succession of unclouded days and nights. All of Steve's driving ambition, all his relentless energy centered around one goal: to make more and more money, to earn more and more costly luxuries for his adored wife. And Brenda, who in the beginning had protested that she did not seek material things but only the happiness of quiet security and love, accustomed herself to the steady flow of fabulous gifts — of jewels, furs, exquisite gowns, regal living quarters, and anything else her heart might desire.

But Steve paid a price for his spectacular rise to riches and power. For most of his enterprises were just on the shadowy edge of the underworld; and in the un-

Jim, Steve's chauffeur, leaped out of the parked limousine and helped him to his feet.
"Taresca — eh, boss?" said Jim.
"Steve!" cried Brenda, terrified.
"I'm all right, honey," he grinned, calmly brushing himself off. "Nothing to get excited about."
As they were preparing for bed, Brenda pleaded desperately with Steve.
"Steve, you've never liked to talk to me about your business — and I've let it go at that. But I've had an idea you were taking chances, and tonight proves it."
"Nothing's happened to me. And nothing's going to."
"Please, Steve. Let's get out of here — let's go away some place — to Europe or South America for a year — until whatever this thing is blows over. We've got enough."
"We will have," he smiled, "in five years."

Slant Kolma was surprised, early the next morning, to receive a call from Brenda — alone. He offered her a chair, watching her with eyes that knew well how to conceal their hungry admiration.
"Slant, who's Taresca?"
"Oh, he's a fellow Steve's been talking business to."
"It's Taresca who's out to get him, isn't it?"
"I wouldn't worry about that if I were you. I'd worry about that if I were Taresca." He strove to make his voice casual; but every moment he was thinking how gorgeous, how desirable she was, how much too good she was for her out of a husband.
"When shots start buzzing around," said Brenda tensely, "I think it's time to worry. They're going to get him if he stays around here long enough. He's too sure of himself."

"Well, I don't know," Slant smiled. "Steve seems to think he's a man of destiny. Maybe he is."

She soon rose to go, baffled by the interview. Plainly Slant would be no help to her, though she could scarcely blame him. But as she was walking through the outer office, she paused on hearing the voice of Kolma's secretary delivering a message through the inter-office dictaphone.

"The income tax people are on the way over, Mr. Kolma."
Brenda considered for a moment, then slowly retraced her steps to Slant's office.

"By the way, Slant, how is that income tax business coming along? With Steve, I mean?"

"We're okay. It wasn't serious."
"Could it have been serious? I know Steve's been jumping the Government. If they caught him what would he get?"

Slant's eyes narrowed, his cool mind racing along with hers, his face betraying nothing. "They couldn't catch him. Steve's too smart — I'm too smart."

"But if they did catch him?"
"Oh, it wouldn't cost him much as those things go. A hunk of dough, of course — maybe a year or so in the can."

"I see." She laughed nervously. "Of course, it's silly even to talk about it. As you say, he's okay."
"Yeah. He's okay."

That afternoon Brenda posted a letter whose envelope contained no return address. The envelope was addressed, "Internal Revenue Department, New York City, New York."

And on the following afternoon, while they were at the racetrack cheering on Brenda's own filly, Lucky, two quiet-looking men stepped up to Steve.

"Mr. Larwitz? We're from the Federal Bureau of Investigation. We'd like you to come down to the office with us."

Stewart of San Saba, took place Sunday at the Lutheran Church in Copperas Cove at 6:00 p. m.

The Rev. J. L. Werner performed the ceremony before an altar of ferns, marigolds and zinnias. Mr. A. Winterstien gave the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white taffeta frock, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and a gathered skirt. Her long veil was bordered with lace and satin ribbon, was caught at the head by white violets and lace, forming a cap. She wore a necklace that belonged to her grandmother. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Olga Kindler, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a frock of pink taffeta and carried lavender gladoli.

Marvin Kindler, brother of the bride, attended Pfc. Stewart as best man, and ushers were Edwin Kindler and Carl Rosenkranz.

A reception was held following the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, arranged on a reflector and flanked with ing candles.

After a short visit in San Saba and Lampasas, the couple will make their home in San Antonio.

Mrs. Stewart is a Gatesville high school graduate, and for several years has been employed in gleaming candles.

THE WYVERN SPEAKS

By Corp. Jos. I. Fox
An MP stopped the new car which was driven by the soldier. Feeling his superiority he asked the corporal driving the car, "This your car?" "Yes." "When did you get it?" "A while ago." "Let's see your permit."

The doughboy showed him his newly issued permit. The MP looked at it and suddenly said, "This permit expired 27 years ago, on the 15th day of December, 1915." The corporal looked at the permit, surprised at the comment of the policeman, could find nothing wrong with it. The policeman stabbed his finger at the first lie and his face reddened when the line read "Born 12-15-15." He mumbled something and waved the laughing corporal on.

What bugler was all set to toot the horn when he glanced at his watch and found it was only 5 a. m. (another case when the song about murdering the bugler almost became a reality). He is hereby awarded the academic degree "Doctor of Absent Mindedness."

We're surprised at looking over this list to find as many who are employed at the Blue Bonnet Ordnance Plant at McGregor. Too, there are quite a number with different contractors in the Camp Hood section, that being among the oddities. One, incidently, is a WPA worker.
