GHS HORNETS OPEN FIRST FRONT WITH WACO KITTENS HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

A new machine in action will be presented to local football fans Saturday night of this week, when the Gatesville High School Hornets take on the Waco Kittens at the local gridiron.

Nothing is known of the strength of the Kittens, but they usually have it, and with it, they usually have a few ineligible who can make it hot for any team in this conference, and the fans are due to see some top notch early season football on that evening.

Coach Madison Pruitt didn't put out any definite line-up for the opener, but gives a rough idea of about how it'll start with the following notation.

Fry seems to have a good hold on the pivot position, and in the forward wall, there are Gartman, Edwards and Powell as tackles, all experienced men, and all let-terms, and that goes for Fry, too. Then, at the guards, there'll be Morgan, Copeland and Tatum, all numeral men. On the wings, there'll be Whittenburg, Williams, Coskrey and Yows, completing a pretty good forward wall, with all experienced men. Looks like Wacoans are going to have to go around this, or should.

Now in the ball carrying department, we're looking at Lengefeld, Henderson, Boynton, Deavers, Voss, Weaver and Gandy all with experience and the first three with letters. Painter has dropped from the picture, since he has quit school to go to work.

Now, about that schedule. It's here as far as can be said right now.

WEST, here, Oct. 8.
CLIFTON, there, Oct. 15.
ITACSA, here, Oct. 22.
LA VEGA, here, Nov. 5.
HAMILTON, here, Nov. 11.
McGREGOR, there, Nov. 25.

Conference teams are allowed 10 games, and there's one open date the 29th, and then, there's a possibility of a game next Friday. But nothing is in the bag yet.

Experience, heft, and some speed will feature the 1943 Hornet machine, and Coach Madison Pruitt is oiling them up, and you ought to see some nice high school football in this class, so just be there Saturday night.

See you Saturday nite!

HAVE YOU DONE THIS MUCH? SIX SONS OF THE J. A. TEINERT'S OF COPPERAS COVE IN THE SERVICE

You can hardly do this much, if you bought a cold million dollars worth of War Bonds in the 3rd War Bond Drive. The Teinert's are risking $5,000,000 in this 2nd war to end wars! I think my three are worth more than a mere $3,000,000, and I'm sure you think yours are. They're worth BILLIONS, if you ask me.

Look at them! A grand bunch of boys; you'll never see better! How in the world can ANYBODY complain when Mr. and Mrs. Teinert are not? I can't answer that one; maybe you can? Yes, we both can; we can buy Bonds, Bonds, Bonds and then go on buying MORE BONDS.

Coryell County is doing it's bit, a bit that hurts in manpower, and, it's GOING to do it's bit in "buypower". The Answer is "BONDS". Buy them anywhere, but BUY THEM!

Now, here are the boys we have pictured here:

1. Cpl. Edgar A. Teinert, 19, with the 8th T.S.S., Bks. 284, Chan... Field, Ill. In the service since May 1943.
2. Reinhold O. Teinert, G. M. 3/c., U. S. S. % Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, Calif. He is 22 years of age.
3. Sgt. Gus O. Teinert, APO 528, % Postmaster, New York, N. Y. He is 26.
4. Pvt. Otto W. Teinert, Hdqs. and Hdqs. Sqdn., 87th T. G. A. A. F. T. G., Hondo, Texas. He's 32.
5. T/Sgt. Emil B. Teinert, APO 520, New York, N. Y.
6. S 3/c AMM Walter E. Teinert, T. L. U. Naval Air Station, San Diego, California. He's 21.

Coryell County, no, not Coryell County, but Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Teinert should be the Honor Citizens of Coryell County, and it looks like if there was any awarding of Army and Navy E's, there'd be no more appropriate place for one, than in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Teinert of Copperas Cove. No one, or no place we know of has done more for this nation than has these good people. We nominate them for Coryell County's No. 1 Citizens!

Can you FAIL to buy a bond, yes, lots of them, when they have six sons in the service?

NEWSPAPER COLLECTION PICKING UP: THANKS VISITORS

We put a little advertisement in the Classified section of the News for newspapers from soldiers and other visitors. We are making a collection of the "mast-heads", And the Classified, as usual is getting results.

Now, we have one from Lieut.

Kenneth P. Jungbluth who lives, or did, with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Goolsby, of Jonesboro, and we thank you for it. Don't claim to know it all, you know, and would like to see how your newspaper does it in your "home-town".

1,759 BALES COTTON GINNED HERE PRIOR TO SEPT. FIRST

According to the report from

Mrs. Myrtle E. Lee, Special Agent for the Department of Commerce Bureau of the Census, Cotton Ginning Report, 1,759 bales of cotton were ginned in Coryell county this year prior to September first compared to 47 for the same period last year.

Looks like we're away ahead of the ball on this score. May be a good thing, and the hot dry weather has helped the situation considerably.

Every day American fighting men are facing death on the battle fronts of the world.

They know what invasion costs in blood and lives. They know, too, what it costs in munitions and supplies that must keep coming in a never-ending stream—and they're looking to us to keep that stream flowing.

So no matter what the sacrifice ... no matter how hard it pinches ... do your part by buying at least one extra $100 bond during this Third War Loan.

Buy more if you can possibly do so. Everyone must invest to the limit if the non-banking quota of 15 billion dollars is to be reached.

Remember—the men who are fighting for you ... bleeding for you ... ready to die for you ... are waiting for the word that the folks at home are backing them up 100%. With victory in sight, we cannot let them down!

MODELS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
George Curson, having given pretty Wendy Van Klettering a job as model in his dress establishment, finds that Henry Morgan, the fiance she fitted, has set up a rival house, run by Prince Muratov. Curson backs producer Brockton in a musical show starring his wife Mary, which flops in Boston. Meanwhile Morgan is ruining Curson's business, and Wendy, who loves Curson, offers to marry Morgan if he will desist. But Morgan laughs at her and threatens to evict Curson, on whose establishment he has acquired the mortgage. When Curson is at his wit's end, unable to stage a fall fashion show, the scenery, costumes, etc., from his Boston show are delivered to him and he resolves to put on a musical fashion show "Vogues of 1938."

Chapter Six

The lavish, lilting strains of a hot swing band filled the once dignified showroom of the House of Curson. A good many other things filled it, too — a stage, scenery, lights, and the most patrician theatre audience New York had seen in many a calcium moon. For the show was on — Curson's combined Fall Fashion Show and Revue, "Vogues of 1938," staged with the aid of the lights, properties, music and costumes which a benign Providence had brought down from Boston. The orchestra blared louder, then faded softly, as Curson entered the model room which had been converted into a dressing room for the chorus. Among the girls applying their makeup, he spied Wendy sitting, half-kneeling, with her lips moving, in an attitude of prayer. "And please," he contributed, coming close to her, "send me a sleigh and a rocking horse, and a six-shooter in case this show flops." He leaned over and kissed her lightly on the hair. "Take your places, girls! The show is starting!" As the girls formed in line for their entrance, Curson turned — to find Prince Muratov confronting him. "You are surprised to see me?" said Muratov. I am surprised myself, Curson, I am the victim of an unscrupulous scoundrel. Morgan has withdrawn his support from me and thrown me away like a squeezed-out grapefruit. "Naturally," shrugged Curson. "You lost him a fortune — and he finally got tired." "Curson, I have a message from Betty. I am to be a father!" He put his hand to his brow, as if suffering physical distress. "Curson, my soul is tortured at the wrong I have done you. What can I do to help you — to wipe out the stain?" "Well," said Curson nonchalantly, "I could use a doorman." And to his amazement, Muratov accepted his job!

... morning happily alone... their favorite milk wagon.

Meanwhile, out on the stage, the show was progressing at a brisk pace, the song, dance and costume numbers going off with smoothness and verve, though it was yet too early to predict the fate of the show. Curson circulated among his numerous creditors who were comfortably drinking up the bar. Out in front of the establishment a new and resplendent figure appeared to take up the business of keeping the crowds moving. It was Muratov in the flesh and in a magnificent doorman's uniform such as his father might have worn as a Colonel of the Czar's lancers, if his father had not emigrated to the Bronx. Soon he found himself confronting his former backer, Morgan, and a gentleman who turned out to be the letter's attorney. Morgan demanded admission on the ground that he had a court order. The building belonged to him; Curson was converting it into a theatre to its detriment; hence he had obtained an injunction to stop the show. "Lawyers!" cried Muratov. I spit on lawyers! My grandfather — "Yes, I know," interrupted Morgan. "He kicked them." "No. He did worse. He never paid them. But come, I will take you to Curson. He is upstairs." So saying he ushered them into the elevator, pressed the starter, closed the door from outside, and walked calmly away. The car shot upward several feet, then stopped — between floors. During Muratov's absence an excited young lady had rushed into the theatre backstage. "It's me, George!" burred Mary Curson, throwing her arms around him. "Darling, why didn't you ask me to play in this? It's a beautiful show — and Brockton said you were poor!" Curson regarded her grimly, then took her by the arm and led her to the bar. "You see these gentlemen? Creditors. You see those? More creditors. And over there, do you know what I have? More creditors!" Mary, never more to see a point, changed her tone like magic. "Oh! Well, I suppose it's all for the best."

But it hurt terribly when I plucked you right out of my heart... What price fame?" she hammed. "It was either you or my career, George... That's what I told Brockton when we planned it all in Reno." "Reno! Did you divorce me, Mary?" "Why — yes — didn't you get my letter? ... Well goodbye, George. No hard feelings? I hope you pull through all right." And she had gone — swiftly and silently as a little four-footed friend deserting a sinking ship. Curson turned away — very, very thoughtful. He was interrupted in his reverie by a bevy of his very best creditors, who had come backstage from watching the show which was now nearing the end of its profusion of lush melody, light-foot entertainment and gorgeous apparel. "Curson," they babbled, crowding around, shaking his hand, clapping him on the back. "Curson, forget everything we said... You can have anything you want... It's a great show... You're made... It's a hit..." "Thanks," replied Curson gravely, still very thoughtful — and bowed himself away.

The show was over — indeed a resounding hit — and the audience was chattering happily homeward. Backstage Wendy, a little giddy, a little dubious about life, greeted Curson. "Well, Mr. Curson, your show is a smash — — And Mrs. Curson's back." "But not to stay," answered Curson. "Remember that 'bill' you picked in our private lottery? Well, that creditor has already been paid in full. Look!" And he extended to her the piece of paper — a letter from Mary written from Reno. But Wendy had some difficulty in reading it, for she was being held in his arms, uncomfortably — comfortably close. And that is where she was being held several hours later, when the dawn came up like thunder out of Jackson Heights, across the river, and Mr. Curson and his fiancée, Miss Van Klettering, were clattering down a side street, dreamily happy, in their favorite milk wagon.

THE END.

The Cotton Trade

Coastal packets brought the cotton from Mobile, New Orleans, Savannah and Charleston to unload in New York harbor.

In the early 1800's American ocean packets bringing immigrants to New York carried thousands of bales of cotton on their return trips to England.

Thus, New York became a center of the cotton trade although completely off the most direct shipping route.

Farm News

Eggs are selling at 40c a dozen in stores and there is evidence that we will have a scarcity of eggs before Christmas. Recent culling work done by the County Agent suggested some things that might be done to increase egg production during the fall. Among these is treating the flock for lice, worming the flock, spraying roosts with Carbollinum, and spraying dirt floors with Crude Oil to keep down dust. The lack of green feed and the molting of short layers has also contributed to fewer eggs. Patches of green oats may now be grown and these plus a good mash and suitable scratch should bring hens into production. Egg production can be helped by avoiding to feed too much scratch to mature hens. Early laying pullets should receive a fleshing mash after they have come into 50 per cent production. The object of this fleshing mash may be made by mixing 50 pounds of regular laying mash with 50 pounds of ground oats or 25 lbs. of ground oats and 25 lbs. of ground barley.

Feed the scratch, whole corn, and other grain twice a day, no more than the hens will clean up in 30 minutes. Many hens receiving too much grain get too fat to lay. It is the laying mash and the green feed that produces eggs.

LABOR SITUATION

The labor situation is still critical in several parts of the county. Cotton pickers are needed badly in the Turnersville, Pancake, and Oglesby section of the County. Calls for cotton pickers that have come from other parts of the county but the above section seem to be more in distress for pickers.

CALF FEEDING PROGRAM

Several 4-H Club boys have started calves in feed in the dry lot. These calves were well bred and weighed 500 lbs. on the first day of September. They are being fed 2 lbs. on the first day of September, 2 lbs. of cottonseed meal daily in addition to corn and oats. Three parts corn to one part oats and about eight lbs. of hay a day. As a feeding program progresses the Calves will receive less hay and more grain feed. However the 2 lbs. of cottonseed meal is scheduled the entire 180 days the calves will be fed. The object of these demonstrations is not altogether for profit in dollars and cents. The boys are keeping a close record on lbs. of feed fed, gain the calves are making and in the end will be able to compare cost of production with lbs. of gain made. Then too every group of 4-H Club boys with out loss of money should contribute the fattened animal to the War program. The calves will be shown next

FROM

Camp Hood

For extraordinary heroism in action in Tunisia, Maj. Gen. Orlando Ward, commanding general of the Tank Destroyer Center, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

In the presence of high ranking officers at Army Ground Forces Headquarters at Washington, Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commander of the Army Ground Forces, made the presentation to General Ward last week.

General Ward was in command of the first armored division when he won the decoration in March during a battle near Maknassy. To obtain personal knowledge of the combat operations and of enemy defense measures, he joined an infantry battalion in a night attack, and directed the offensive throughout the night, despite face wounds inflicted by direct enemy fire.

General Ward was cited for "drawing fire upon himself to enable infantry groups to advance on an enemy position at Maknassy" in Tunisia, during an attack by elements of the First Armored Division.

Col. Donald R. Dunkle, executive officer of North Camp Hood, has been promoted from the rank of lieutenant colonel, according to an announcement last week by the War Department. Now in his 27th year as an Army officer, Colonel Dunkle is continuing a military career which started in 1917, when he entered the Army after graduation from Bucknell University.

He has been associated with North Camp Hood since construction started last January, and after completion of the cantonment area in May, he assumed his present post in North Camp Hood headquarters. His home is at Marfa, Texas.

The necessity of hard training to fit officers for every type of warfare was stressed in an address by Col. E. N. Quigley, commanding officer of the 17th TD Group, to members of the 45th class of the Tank Destroyer Officer Candidate School.

Brig. Gen. H. T. Mayberry, commandant of the School, presented the commissions and certificates of graduation to the new officers.

Army Service Forces troops at Camp Hood and North Camp Hood are undergoing a rigorous training program in line with recent directives from the War Department ment urging that all service soldiers become proficient in military techniques.

Maj. Frank M. Parker, training officer of the DEML, 1848 Unit, Eighth Service Command, has instituted a daily basic training program for members of the detachment who have not yet had such fundamental training.

The same enlisted personnel which served the first Officer Candidate Company when it was activated over a year ago at Gatesville, before Camp Hood was an actuality, is still on duty.

First Sgt. Ralph E. Dunn; T-5 Ben Hansman, in charge of supplies; Pfc.'s Henry Darling, and Charles Radinski and Pvt. Perry Moore have seen four classes come and go and are now working with their fifth. They have helped the company move a number of times, first from Gatesville to camp, next to Thirty-first street, and then to the present regimental area.

ARE YOU REALLY AT WAR?

What does being at war mean to you? Less gasoline for your auto? Less sugar in your coffee? Higher prices for your food and clothes? Separation from your husband?

3rd WAR LOAN Buy More Bonds Sure, it has meant all those things, some serious and some really trivial for a period when your actual safety is at stake.

But has the war meant BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS to you? In many instances YES. The first stage of invasion has already pushed our casualties over the 100,000 mark.

The gold stars which decorate thousands of our homes today are a challenge to the vast majority of us to do our best in the Third War Loan. No good American wants to see one more gold star added to the firmament of glory. We educate our youth for life, not for death. If they die, they die so that we might live. Every extra War Bond you buy today will back the invasion so that the war will be shortened and so that there will be less blood, sweat and tears for you and your friends.

Here's one from Jesse (last name not given) at Camp Kilmer, N. J. located at Stelton, N. J. This letter was to the former Katherine Robinson, of Leon Junction, we believe.

Dear Kathryn: Here's a little more about where I've been. Since this campaign is over they aren't so strict on the censorship.

To begin with, I landed in Africa 3 days after the invasion had begun, and landed at Oran, but almost didn't make it. The boat ahead of us was torpedoed as we were entering the mouth of the harbor. We stayed in Oran until just after New Year and then went to Constantine and stayed there 2 weeks and moved up east of Tebessa on the side of a mountain. That was where we had the snow and cold weather.

When the Germans made a drive and took Gasa and Jaireana we moved up close to Thala. Then they made a drive thru Kasserine Pass Thala and we moved back in a hurry one day. We drove 75 miles over the worst roads I've ever seen and ended up almost back to Constantine. They stopped the drive the night we moved back so the next morning we moved back to where we were. We started going back lost ground and moved up to Jaireana and then on up to Gafsa. At Gafsa we had the most trouble with air attacks. One night, they dropped about 50 butterfly bombs on our bivouac area but no one got hurt. We had a few flat tires and two radiators to patch up, but that was all.

When things quieted down in that area, we moved up to Beja, almost up to Bizerte, and then moved up to Mateur, and never did get right up to the front lines to see what was going on but we were always close enough to it to be plenty hot.

While we were at Beja, S/Sgt. Anderson and I made a trip back to Algiers. He was trying to get meat and supplies and I tried to get motor parts. It was about a 1200 mile trip, but it was a good one. There is sure some beautiful scenery here in North Africa. Most of the places we've been wasn't much to look at but along the coast it is nice.

We had a little excitement here today. A truck load of ammunition and mines caught fire right in front of our area. The rifle shells started popping like firecrackers and then the mines let loose. We were about 300 yards from the truck and pieces of wheels and tires came clear down in our area and set fire to two of the pup tents and sure made a mess. There were unexploded mines and mortar shells laying all around the area. All there was left of the truck was part of the motor and the winch on the front end. The rest of it was scattered all over the place. Luckily no one was hurt.

Our outfit has really been lucky for the work they've done. Messengers taking messages to the front lines thru minefields and wire crews laying lines sometimes ahead of the infantry and working under shell fire.

I saw Rufus last night and he said to tell you "hello".

Had better close for now, but will write again soon.

With love, Jesse.

Ain't it a lot awful nicer just to stay home and buy a few bonds. How can anyone at home fail? We don't know!

At William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, T/4 Minard L. Hill was this week awarded the soldier's "Good conduct" medal by Col. Geo. M. Edwards of the Army Service Forces.
